Gosro. in vita Bern. Verse 10.] See ver. 7. The tears of sinners are the wine of Angels, saith Bernard: Who himself, for a certain time after his conversion, remained as it were deprived of his senses, by the excessive consolations he had from God.

Verse 11. And he said] A third Parable to the same purpose: and all to perswade us of Gods readiness to receive returning sinners. This is not so easily believed indeed, as most men imagine.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 12. He divided unto them his living] Gr. His life. Our life is called the life of our hands, Iſa. 57. 10. becauſe it is upheld by the labour of our hands. τὸν βίον.

Verſe 13. Gathered all together] Convaſatis veluti omnibus.

With riotous living] Ασώτως, Not caring to ſave any part, ſibi nihil reſervans, imò ſeipſum non ſervans, being ſuch as ſafety it ſelf could not ſave: whence the Latines call ſuch a man Perditum, an undone perſon. Such were thoſe of whom Seneca ſaith, that ſingulis auribus bina aut terna dependent patrimonia, hanged two or three good Lordſhips at their ears. Ασωτος quaſi σωτος, unſaveable.

And ſuch are thoſe amongſt us that turn lands into laces, great rents into great ruffs, &c. The expences of Apicius his kitchin amounted to more then two millions of gold. He having eaten up his eſtate, and finding by his account that he had no more then 200000. crowns remaining, thought himſelf poor, and that this ſufficed not to maintain his luxury: whereupon he drank down a glaſs of poyſon. H.S. millies in culinam congeſſit. Sen.

Verſe 14. And when he had ſpent all] And left himſelf nothing at all, præter cœlum & cœnum, but air to breath in, and earth to tread on, as that Roman prodigal boaſted; who had made his own hands his Executors, and his own eyes his over-ſeers, drawing much of his patrimony through his throat, and ſpending the reſt upon harlots; who left him as bare, as Crows do a dead Carcaſs; Ruine follows riot at the heels.

Verſe 15. To feed ſwine] Which to a Jew, that held ſwine an abomination, muſt needs be grievous.

Verſe 16. And he would fain have filled his belly] The ſtomack of man is a monſter (ſaith one) which, being contained in ſo little a bulk as his body, is able to conſume and devour all things.

And no man gave him] A ſwiniſh life he had led, and now would have been glad of ſwines meat.

Verſe 17. And when he came to himſelf] For till then he had been beſides himſelf, and not his own worthy. Nebulo (ſaith one) cometh of Nabal: fool of φαυλος: ἄνοια & ανομία are of neer affinity. Evil is Hebrew for a fool, &c. Wickedneſs is called the fooliſhneſs of madneſs, Eccleſ. 7. 25.

Verſe 18. Againſt heaven, and before thee] That is, I have not only thee, but the whole heaven for a ſwift witneſs againſt me of mine offences and out-burſts. The heaven doth declare mine iniquity, and the earth riſeth up againſt me, Job 20.27.

Verſe 19. I am not worthy] So Auſtine, Domine non ſum dignus quem tu diligas. So another, Non ſum dignus, Domine, ſed ſum indigens. Senſe of miſery muſt precede ſenſe of mercy. Let God but hear ſuch words as theſe fall from his Ephraims, and he will ſoon melt over them. Jer. 31. 19, 20. Hoſ. 11. 8. Henry the ſon of our Henry the ſecond, Crowned by his Father, and rebelling againſt him; died before his Father at Martel in Normandy, where his father lay at ſiege. His father refuſing to viſit him (as fearing his own life) but ſending his ring in ſign of forgiveneſs, the dying Prince moſt humbly with floods of tears kiſſing the ſame, made a moſt ſorrowful confeſſion of his ſins: And feeling death approach, would needs be drawn (as an unworthy ſinner) out of his own bed, and laid upon another ſtrewed with aſhes, where he died; which being related, the old King fell upon the earth, and weeping bitterly (like another David for his Abſalom) mourned very ſore. Speed. 522.

Verſe 20. When he was yet a great way off] Tantum velis & Deus tibi præoccurret, ſaith a Father. The Prodigal was but conceiving a purpoſe to return, and God met him, Iſa. 65.24.

And kiſſed him] One would have thought he ſhould have kicked him, or have killed him rather: but God is Pater miſerationum, he is all bowels. The Prodigal came, the Father ran: God is ſlow to anger, ſwift to ſhew mercy.

Verſe 21. Father, I have ſinned] Confeſs, and the mends is made. Homo agnoſcit, Deus ignoſcit. Acknowledge but the debt, and he will croſs the book.

And am no more worthy, &c.] Infernus ſum domine, ſaid that holy Martyr; Lord, I am hell, but thou art heaven: I am ſoil, and a ſink of ſin, but thou a gracious God, &c. Mr. Hooper at his death, Act. and Mon. fol. 1374.

Verſe 22. The beſt robe] That white raiment of Chriſts righteouſneſs, Rev. 3.18. that rich and royal array, Pſal. 45.14. the righteouſneſſes of the Saints. Rev. 19.8. δικαιώματα.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Act. and Mon. fol. 986. Verse 23. And bring hither the fatted calf] Christ is that fatted calf, saith Mr. Tindal Martyr, slain to make penitent sinners good chear withall: and his righteousness is the goodly rayment to cover the naked deformities of their sins.

Verse 24. For this my son was dead, &c.] So fareth it with every faithful Christian. He was dead, but now lives, and cannot be insensible or ignorant of such a change.

Verse 25. His elder son] The self-Justitiary, that is good in his own eyes, and needs no repentance.

Verse 26. What these things meant] Hypocrites understand not the just mans joyes, nor the sweet entercourse that is betwixt God and his people.

ὑγιαίνοντα. Verse 27. Safe] Gr. in health. Quod sanitas in corpore, id sanctitas in corde. The sanctified man is the onely sound man.

Calvin. Verse 28. And he was angry] Christi consilium est offendere, iniquum esse qui fratri in gratiam recepto obtrectat, etiamsi sanctitate Angelis non cedat.

Verse 29. And yet thou never gavest me a kid] Much less a calf. Hypocrites hold God to be in their debt, and through discontent weigh not his favours, as being never without some aylment.

Verse 30. But as soon as this thy son] He saith not, This my brother; he would not once own him, because in poverty.

Which hath devoured thy living] q. d. which you were so hasty to give unto him before your death (which you need not have done) and now he hath made a fair hand of it.

Verse 31. All that I have is thine] In thy conceit at least. Thou holdest thy self happy howsoever, and seemest to have one foot already in the Porch of Paradise. Self-deceivers will needlesly set up their Counter for a thousand pounds; and will not believe but their penny is very good silver. They lay claim to all, as the mad man of Athens did to all the ships that came into that harbor, as his.

Verse 32. Was lost, and is found] Of himself he left his Father: yet is he called the lost son.

Chap. XVI.

Verse 1. A certain rich man which had a Steward]

Masters had need look well 1. To the chusing of their servants. (Solomon saw Jeroboam, that he was industrious, and therefore without any respect at all to his Religion, he made him ruler over all the charge of the house of Joseph; but to his singular disadvantage, 1 King. 11. 28. with chapt. 12. 3.) 2. To the using of them: Most men make no other use of their servants then they do of their beasts: whiles they may have their bodies to do their service, they care not if their souls serve the Devil. Hence they so oft prove false and perfidious.

Verse 2. Give an account of thy stewardship] Villicus rationem cum Domino suo crebro putet, said Cato. Stewards should often account with their masters.

Verse 3. I cannot dig, &c.] They that will get wisdom; must both dig and beg; Prov. 2. 3, 4.

Verse 4. They may receive me] This is that wit he shewed for himself, and for the which he is here commended: Teaching us by all lawful means (not by any unlawful, as he) to provide for our selves, and to preserve our reputation.

Petron. Verse 5. How much owest thou?] Some are ever owing; and may say of debt, as the Strumpet Quartilla did of her Virginity, Iunonem meam iratam habeam, si unquam me meminerim virginem fuisse.

Verse 6. Take thy Bill] The scope of this Parable is, ut profusionem charitate erga pauperes compensemus, saith Beza, that we expiate, as it were, our prodigality, by shewing mercy to the poor, Dan. 4. 24.

Verse 7.] See verse 5.

ὁ Κύριος. Verse 8. And the Lord commended] Gr. That Lord, viz. the Stewards Lord, not the

Digitized by Google

the Lord Christ who relateth this parable. Or if we understand it of Christ (as the Syriack here doth) yet he herein no more approveth of this Stewards false-dealing, then he doth of the Usurers trade, Mat. 5.27. or the thieves, 1 Thes. 5.2. Or the dancers, Mat. 11.17. or the Olympick games, 1 Cor. 9.24.

Because he had done wisely] The worldlings wisdom serves him (as the Ostriches wings) to make him out-run others upon earth, and in earthly things; but helps him never a whit toward heaven.

Are in their generation wiser] A swine that wanders can make better shift to get home to the trough, then a sheep can to the fold. We have not received the spirit of this world, 1 Cor. 2.12. we cannot shift and plot as they can: but we have received a better thing. The fox is wise in his generation, the serpent subtile, so is the Devil too. When he was but young, he out-witted our first parents, 2 Cor. 11.3.

Then the children of light] As the Angels are called Angels of light, 2 Cor. 11.14. Gods children are the onely earthly Angels, have a Goshen in their bosoms, can lay their hands on their hearts with dying Oecolampadius, and say, Hic sat lucis. Melch. Adam.

Verse 9. Make unto your selves friends] Quibus officia praestita fidem defunctis apud deum testificentur, illa comprobantem, & gratis coronantem. Testifie your faith by your works, that God of his free-grace may commend and crown you. Beza.

Of the Mammon of unrighteousness] The next odious name to the Devil himself. This Mammon of iniquity, This wages of wickedness is not gain, but loss.

They may receive you] That is, that either the Angels, or thy riches, or the poor may let you into heaven.

Verse 10. He that is faithful] Mr. Diodates note here is, "The right use of "riches in believers, is a trial of their loyal use of their spiritual graces and gifts, "And on the contrary, the abuse of the one, sheweth the abuse of the other. God "likewise taketh away his spiritual graces from them, who do not use the temporal "ones well.

Verse 11. In the unrighteous Mammon] Or the uncertain, vain, deceitful wealth of this world, which yet most rich men trust in, as if simply the better or safer for their abundance. Hence Drusius derives Mammon from Aman, which signifieth to trust.

Verse 12. In that which is another mans] Riches are not properly ours, but Gods who hath entrusted us, and who doth usually assign them to the wicked, those men of his hand, for their portion, Psal. 17.14. for all the heaven that they are ever to look for. Better things abide the Saints, who are here but forreiners, and must do as they may.

Who shall give you that which is your own] Quod nec eripi nec surripi potest. Aristotle relateth a Law like this made by Theodectes, That he that used not another mans horse well, should forfeit his own. Arist. Rhet. lib. 2. cap. 23.

Verse 13.] See Mat. 6.24.

Verse 14. And they derided him] Gr. They blew their noses at him in scorn and derision. They fleared and jeared when they should have feared, and fled from the wrath to come. ἐξεμυκτήριζον. Naso suspendere adunco. Horat.

Verse 15. For that which is highly esteemed, &c.] A thing that I see in the night may shine, and that shining proceed from nothing but rottenness. There may be malum opus in bona materia, as in Jehu's Zeal. Two things make a good Christian, good actions and good ayms. And though a good aim doth not make a bad action good (as in Uzzah) yet a bad aim makes a good action bad (as in Jehu, whose justice was approved, but his pollicy punished.) Hos. 1.4.

Verse 16.] See Mat. 11.11.

Verse 17.] See Mat. 5.18.

Verse 18.] See Mat. 5.32. & 19.9. Mar. 10.5.

Verse 19. There was a certain rich man] Not once named, as Lazarus was, though never so little esteemed of men. God knew him by name, as he did Moses: when the rich mans name is written in the earth, rots above-ground, is left for a reproach. ἐνεδιδύσκετο. Verbum est quasi frequentativum. Pasor.

Which was clothed in Purple, &c.] Gr. was commonly so clothed. It was his every-days wear, as the word implyeth.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verse 20. A certain beggar named Lazarus] Or Eleazar (as Tertullian and Prudentius call him) who having been Abrahams faithfull servant, now resteth in his bosome.

Verse 21. And desiring to be fed with the crums] Many poor folk have but prisoners pittances, which will neither keep them alive, nor suffer them to dye.

The dogs came and licked his sores] When Sabinus was put to death for whispering against Sejanus, his dog lay down by his dead body, brought to his mouth the bread that was cast to him: And when Sabinus was thrown into the river Tiber, the dog leapt after him, endeavouring to keep him up, that he might not sink into the bottom. Plin.

Verse 22. Into Abrahams bosome] A Metaphor from feasts say some: from fathers, say others, who imbosom and hug their children when wearied with long running about, or have met with a knock, and come crying unto them.

And was carried by the Angels] Through the air, the Devils Region, do the Angels conduct the Saints at death: who may therefore call death, as Jacob did the place where he met the Angels, Mahanaim, Gen. 32. 2. For like as the palsy-man was let down with his bed through the tiling before Jesus, Luk. 5. 18. so is every good soul taken up in an heavenly couch through the roof of his house, and carried into Christs presence by these heavenly Courtiers; who as in life they are our Supporters, Psal. 91. so after death our Porters, as here: By the Angels; as if they had striven which should have a part. Act. and Mon. fol. 1907.

And was buried] Possibly with as much noysome stench and hurry in the ayr, as at Cardinal Wolseys burial. A terrible example there is in the book of Martyrs, of one Christopher Landsdale, an unmerciful Courtier, who suffering a poor Lazar to dye in a ditch by him, did afterwards perish himself in a ditch.

The rich man also died] Perhaps he was choaked, as Hardicanutus (noted for Epicurism A. D. 1041.) was at a marriage at Lambeth, most men rejoycing to be rid of him: In memory whereof Hocktide (a feast of scorning) was a long time after continued in this Kingdom, saith our Chronicler.

Verse 23. Being in torments] Having punishment without pity, misery without mercy, sorrow without succor, crying without compassion, mischief without measure, torments without end, and past imagination.

And Lazarus in his bosom] Which more vexed him then his own torments, saith Chrysostom.

He lifted up his eyes] So oft lifted up (saith one) in a false devotion.

Verse 24. And cool my tongue] In his tongue he was most tortured, quia plus lingua peccaverat, saith Cyprian. So Nestorius the heretick had his tongue eaten up with worms. So Thomas Arundel Arch-bishop of Canterbury, and Steven Gardiner Bishop of Winchester, (two notorious persecutors) died with their tongues thrust out, big-swollen, and black with inflammation of their bodies. A spectacle worthy to be noted of all such bloody burning persecutors. Nestorii lingua vermibus exesa. Evagr. l. 1. Act. and Mon. fol. 1622.

Verse 25. Son remember, &c.] Son he calls him, with respect either ad procreationem carnis, aut ad ætatem, saith Piscator. But as it was but cold comfort to Dives in flames, that Abraham called him son; so those that have no more to shrowd themselves under, then a general profession, shall find that an empty title yields but an empty comfort at last.

That thou in thy life time] Gregory the great could never read these words without horror: Lest himself, having such honors here, should be shut out of heaven, Jam. 5. 5. Ye have lived in pleasure upon earth; which is a Purgatory, not a Paradise.

Receivedst thy good things] Wicked men then have not only a civil title, but a right before God to earthly things. It is their portion, Psal. 17. 14. And what Ananias had was his own, Act. 5. whiles he had it. God gave Egypt to Nebuchadnezzar for his pains at Tyre. It is hard to say, they are usurpers. They shall not (saith One) be called to an account at last day for possessing what they had, but for abusing that possession. As when the King gives a Traytor his life, he gives him meat and drink that may maintain his life. So here God deals, not as that cruel D. Alva did, who starved some prisoners after he had given them quarter, saying, Though I promised you your lives, I promised not to find you meat. Grimst. Hist. of Netherl.

Verse 26. There is a great gulph fixed] viz. by the unmovable and immutable decree of God, called mountains of brass, Zach. 6. 1. from between which all effects and actions come forth as so many chariots. Firmissimum Dei statutum. Iansen.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 27. I pray thee therefore] Are not the Popiſh Doctors hard driven, when they alledge this text, to prove that the dead do take care of the living, and pray for them?

Verſe 28. Leſt they alſo come into this place] This he wiſheth, not for their good, but for his own. For he knew that if they were damned, he ſhould be double damned, becauſe they were brought thither partly by his lewd and looſe example.

Verſe 29. Let them hear them] Hell is to be eſcaped by hearing the word read and preached, Joh. 5. 25. Eſay 55. 3.

Verſe 30. They will repent] Bellarmine is of opinion, that one glimps of hell were enough to make a man not onely turn Chriſtian and ſober, but Anchorite and Monk; to live after the ſtricteſt rule that might be. Such a ſight or report might work much upon the judgement, but it is the Goſpel onely that works upon the affections, and produceth repentance, never to be repented of.

Verſe 31. Though one roſe from the dead] As Lazarus did, and yet they liſtened as little to him as to Chriſt, Joh. 12. but ſought to kill him alſo.

Chap. XVII.

Verſe 1,2.] See the Notes on Mat. 18. 6, 7.

Verſe 3.] See Mat. 18. 15.

Verſe 4.] See Mat. 18. 21.

Verſe 5. Lord encreaſe our faith] A moſt neceſſary requeſt in this caſe. For the more any man believeth that God for Chriſts ſake hath pardoned him, the readier he will be to pardon others.

Verſe 6. If ye had faith as a grain of muſtard-ſeed] Faith as a grain of muſtard-ſeed is parva, humilis, ſed & acris, fervida, ſmall and low, but withall ſharp and lively: it muſt have Acrimony and vivacity, and then it may remove mountains.

Ye might ſay unto this Sycamine tree, &c.] That was a ſenſleſs ſlander of the Jews, that Chriſt ſtole the true name of God out of the Holy of Holies; by which means he wrought all his miracles: And that, leſt he ſhould loſe it, he cut an hole in his thigh, and ſewed it therein: Get we but the true faith of God cloſed up in our hearts (that moſt holy faith, as Saint Jude calleth it) and you may work wonders. See the Note on Mat. 17. 20. Iude 20.

Verſe 7. But which of you, &c.] Whereas the diſciples, having begg'd increaſe of faith, might preſume to obtain it, as having deſerved it: Chriſt ſhews here that God is debtor to none; and that they muſt do their utmoſt in duty, and expect Gods leaſure and pleaſure for the reward. It is a mercy in God (ſo David accounteth it) to render to a man according to his works, Pſal. 62. 12.

Verſe 8. Gird thy ſelf and ſerve me] It implies firſt, readineſs: ſecondly nibleneſs, handineſs, and handſomneſs. A looſe diſcinct and diffluent mind is unfit to ſerve God. The Deacons cried of old in the Church-meetings, Oremus, attendamus, Let us pray, let us attend to prayer, &c.

Verſe 9. Doth he thank that ſervant] God owes us no thank: and yet of his grace he even thanks us, and thinks himſelf beholden to us, See 1 Pet. 2. 19. with the Note there. See alſo Luke 6. 34. This is dignatio ſtupenda, a wonderful condeſcenſion.

Verſe 10. We have done that was our duty] Or, our debt: and it is no matter of merit to pay debts. This made William Wickam, founder of New-College, &c. profeſs, he truſted in Jeſus Chriſt alone for ſalvation; Charles the Fifth did the like, when he came to die. And in times of Popery, the ordinary inſtruction appointed to be given to men upon their death beds, was, that they ſhould look to come to glory, not by their own merits, but by the vertue and merit of Chriſts paſſion: that they ſhould place their whole confidence in his death onely, and in no other thing: and that they ſhould interpoſe his death betwixt God and their ſins, betwixt them and Gods anger. Cade of the Church, Parei Medul. 883. Dr. Vſher in a Serm. on Eph. 4. 13.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 11. He paſſed through Samaria and Galilee] Albeit he had forbidden his Apoſtles to paſs into thoſe parts till after his death: yet he manifeſted by many arguments that the Goſpel belonged, and ſhould ſhortly be preached to thoſe poor Paynims, that as yet ſat in darkneſs, and in the ſhadow of death.

Verſe 12. Stood afar off] For ſo they were charged, Levit. 13. 45, 46. as alſo to cover their lips, for fear of infecting others.

Cant. 5. 1. Verſe 13. And they lifted up their voices] Theſe ſought themſelves onely in their prayers, as do hypocrites: and nought eſteemed the love of Chriſt. So did thoſe that faſted to themſelves, Zach. 7. more to get off their chains then their ſins. Ephraim is an empty vine, he beareth fruit to himſelf. The Church keeps her fruit for her beloved.

Verſe 14. Go ſhew your ſelves unto the Prieſts] As if ye were already cleanſed. They did ſo, though they ſaw no ſenſe for it: and before they came to the Prieſt, they were cleanſed indeed. Make your requeſts known to God with thankſgiving, Phil 4. 6. As who ſhould ſay, make account to ſpeed, and be ready with your thanks, as if you had what you ask of God.

Verſe 15. And one of them] Its ten to one if any return to give thanks. Men make prayer their refuge, but not their recompence. Hezekiah returned not according to his receipts.

And with a loud voice] He was as earneſt in praiſes, as he had been in prayers. Our thanks ſhould be larger and louder then our requeſts; becauſe God prevents us with many mercies, and denies nothing: we have it either in money or monies worth.

Cic. pro Planc. Barn. de conſid. lib. 4. Verſe 16. Giving him thanks] A thankfull man is worth his weight in gold. Sed perrarò grati homines reperiuntur, ſaith the Orator. Plerique ut accipiant importuni, donec acceperint, inquieti; ubi acceperint, ingrati, ſaith the Father. Moſt pray, but pay not.

Verſe 17. Were there not ten cleanſed?] Chriſt keeps count how many favours men receive from him, and will call them to a particular account thereof. He is an auſtere man this way.

But where are the nine?] Eraſmus tells of a Popiſh dolt, that thought he could prove that there were ten worlds from thoſe words of Chriſt, Nonnè decem facti ſunt mundi? Another preſently diſproved him with the words following, Sed ubi ſunt novem? But where are the nine?

Verſe 18. There are not found] The Syriack, and ſome others read theſe words queſtion-wiſe, and ſo it is more emphatical: Are there not found that returned? &c. q.d. That's admirable, that's abominable.

Verſe 19. Thy faith hath made thee whole] Whole on both ſides. Thus gratitude ingratiates with Chriſt: and gets more grace.

Verſe 20. When the Kingdom of God, &c.] This they asked in ſcorn. q. d. You tell us oft of the Kingdom of God, and that it is at hand: but when comes it once? All things continue as they did, &c.

Cometh not with obſervation] That is, with outward pomp, or ſuperſtitious ſeeking after.

Verſe 21. The Kingdom of God is within you] It is ſpiritual, Rom. 14. 17. Or, it is among you, but that you cannot ſee wood for trees. You ſeek me as abſent, whom you reject preſent.

Verſe 22. And he ſaid unto his Diſciples] q. d. This doctrine concerns you alſo, as well as the perverſe Phariſees. You ſhall be ere long at a great loſs for me: look to it therefore, and beſtir you.

Verſe 23.] See Mat. 24. 23. Mar. 13. 21.

Verſe 24. For as the lightning] q. d. From mine Aſcention, and ſo forwards, you are not to look for me again till I come to judgement: and then I come on a ſudden. Many devices there are in the minds of ſome, to think that Jeſus Chriſt ſhall come from heaven again, and reign here upon earth a Thouſand years. But they are (ſaith a good Divine) but the miſtakes of ſome high expreſſions in Scripture, which deſcribe the judgements poured out upon Gods enemies, in making a way to the Iews converſion, by the pattern of the laſt judgement.

Mr. Cotton upon the ſeven Vials.

Verſe 25. But firſt muſt he ſuffer] He muſt, becauſe God would have it ſo. Voluntas Dei, neceſſitas rei.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verse 26.] See the Notes on Mat. 24. 37. 1 Pet. 3. 20.

Verse 27. They did eat, they drank] An elegant Asyndeton. For the reason whereof, see the Note on Mat. 24. 38.

Verse 28. They did eat, they drank] It is not said here as verse 27. they married wives: they affected rather those odious concubitus, qui non utrinque resolvunt. The Turkish Bashaes have their Catamites, which are their serious loves: for their wives are used but to dress their meat, to laundress, and for reputation, saith one that had been amongst them. Sodomy (saith he) in the Levant is not held a vice. Ovid. Blounts Voyage, pag. 14.

Verse 29. But the same day] A fair Sun-shine morning had a foul dismall evening. Nescis quid serus vesper vehat. Thou knowest not what a great-bellied day may bring forth. Omnem crede diem tibi diluxisse supremum. Think every day thy last day. Horat.

Verse 30. Even thus shall it be] Security ushereth in destruction. The Judge standeth before the door, as is easie to foresee: Watch therefore. Iam. 5.

Verse 31. He which shall be on the house-top] An hyperbolicall expression, usuall among the Iews, to denote matter of haste.

Verse 32. Remember Lots wife] Who either out of curiosity or covetousness turned her but, and she was turned. We are as hardly drawn off the world, as a Dog from a fat morsell. Those that set forth of Italy with Galeacius Marquess of Vicum (who left all for the liberty of conscience at Geneva) many of them when they came to the borders of Italy, and considering what they forsook, first looked back, afterward went back again, and were taken by the Spanish Inquisition, and made publickly to abjure the Christian religion. Remember the horrible History of Julian of old, and the lamentable case of Spira alate, said the Lady Jane Grey prisoner, to Harding the Apostate. Lege historium, (saith one) ne fias historia: lege judicia, ne fias exemplum judicii. Ut canis ab uncto corio. Life of Galeac. by Mr. Crashaw. Acts and Mon. fol. 1291.

Verse 33.] See the Notes on Mat. 16. 25. & 10. 39.

Verse 34, &c.] See Mat. 24. 40, 41. With the Notes.

Verse 37. Where Lord?] Or, Whither Lord, viz. shall they be taken, of whom thou speakest? To heaven, saith he. See the Note on Mat. 24. 28.

Verse 38. There the Eagles] Those vulturine Eagles, that are said to fly two or three days before, to the place where Armies are to meet, and carcases shall be.

Chap. XVIII.

Verse 1. Alwaies to pray and not to faint]

Grece, Not shrink back, as Sluggards in work, or Cowards in war. Prayer should be redoubled and re-inforced, as those Arrows of deliverance, 2 King. 13. 19. The woman of Canaan prayes on, when denyed: And Jacob holds with his hands, when his thigh is lamed. He wrestled with slight and might, he raised dust, as the word signifies, and would not away without a blessing. James surnamed the Iust (Christs Kinsman) had his knees made as hard as Camels knees with much praying, as Eusebius witnesseth. Father Latimer during his imprisonment, was so constant and instant in prayer, that oft-times he was not able to rise off his knees, without help. Yea Paulus Emilius, being to fight with Perses King of Macedony, would not give over sacrificing to his God Hercules, till he saw certain arguments of a victory. As loathing of meat (saith a Divine) and painfulness of speaking are two symptoms of a sick body: so irksomness of praying, and carelessness of hearing, of a sick soul. ἐκκακεῖν. Etiam post naufragium tentantur maria. Sen. Epist. 81. Act. and Mon. fol. 1579. Sabellicus.

Verse 2. Which feared not God, nor regarded man] These two, Fear of God and shame of the world, God hath given to men as curbs to restrain them from outrage. But sin hath oaded such an impudency in some mens faces, that they dare do any thing.

Verse 3. Avenge me of mine adversary] A downright request, without either Logick or Rhetorick to set it forth, or inforce it: to teach us, that though our prayers be but blunt or broken language, if importunate, they shall prevail nevertheless.

Verse 4. And he would not for a while] There is a passive injustice. Non faciendo nocens, sed patiendo fuit, saith Ausonius of Claudius. Not to do justice, is injustice.

Verse 5. She weary me] Gr. She buffet me, or club me down. God must be pressed in prayer, till we put him (as you would say) to the blush, or leave a blot in his face, unless we may be masters of our requests.

Digitized by Google

Ὑποπιάζω. Obtundat. Vota fundimus cœlos tundimus Deum tangimus misericordiam extorquemus. Tertul. Apol.

Verse 6, 7. Hear what the unjust Judge saith] Hic paria non inter se conferuntur, sed minus cum majore, saith Beza.

Verse 7. Though he bare long with them] When they are at the utmost under. When their enemies are above fear, and they below hope; when there is not faith in Earth to believe, then are there bowels in Heaven to relieve and restore them.

Verse 8. Shall he find faith upon earth] God oft staies so long, till the Saints have done looking for him, when they have forgot their prayers; and he comes, as it were, out of an engine.

Verse 9. That they were righteous, and despise others] Pray to be preserved from this perilous pinacle of self-exaltation.

Verse 10. The one a Pharisee] A Dog may set his foot as far and further within the Sanctuary, as a David. The Pharisee and Publican went both of them up to private-prayer.

Ἀντιπρόσωπος βλέπων τῷ Θεῷ διελέγετο. Basil. Velut dignus qui cum Deo colloqueretur. Erasm.

Verse 11. God I thank thee] Non vulnera, sed munera ostendit, he shews not his want, but his worth: and stands not onely upon his comparisons, but upon his disparisons, I am not as this Publican. No, for thou art worse: yea for this, because thou thinkest thee better. But of Pharisees it might be said as Arnobius did of the Gentiles, Apud vos optimi censentur, quos comparatio pessimorum sic facit. They are very good that are not very bad.

I am not as other men are] Pride wears a triple crown, with this motto, Transcendo, Non obedio, Perturbo. This Pharisee held himself the whole piece, and all others a remnant onely, as Basil of Seleucia hath it: He takes his poor counter and sets it down for a Thousand pounds; he prizeth himself above the market.

Verse 12. I fast twice a week] Cardinall Bellarmine did more: for he fasted thrice a week, saith he that writes his life. John Arch-bishop of Constantinople, he who first affected the stile of Universall Bishop, was firnamed Nesteutes, from his frequent fasting. Munday and Thursday were the Pharisees fasting-dayes: because Moses went up to the Mount on a Thursday, and came down on a Munday, saith Drusius. The Manichees fasted on the Sabbath, from whence the whole week here taketh its denomination in the Original.

Iacob Fuligatus D. Vshier.

I give tithes] He braggingly made a gift of that which he was bound to pay.

Verse 13. Smote upon his breast] In token of Indignation, and that he would have smitten his sin so hard, if he could have come at it.

God be mercifull, &c.] Here was much in few. The Publican prayed much, though he spake little. As a body without a soul, much wood without fire, a bullet in a gun without powder, so are words in prayer without spirit. Oratio brevis penetrat cœlum. The hottest springs send forth their waters by ebullitions. Prayer is called a charm, Isa. 26. 16. Now in a charm or enchantment, in three or four words there is much efficacy.

To me a sinner] This prayer was oft in Mr. Bradfords mouth, and likewise in Mr. Samuel Crooks. See his life pag. 32.

Verse 14. Justified rather then the other] The Pharisee was not at all justified: Neither is there More or Less in justification. But our Saviour here useth a popular kind of expression.

Verse 15, 16, 17.] See the Notes on Mat. 19. 13. Mar. 10. 13.

Verse 18. And a certain Ruler] Saint Mark saith that this Ruler came running, which argues his earnestness; and in a man of quality was unusuall: for such walk softly for most part, and in state.

Mark 10.17. Gressu grallatorio.

Verse 19, 20, 21, &c.] See Mat. 19. 16, 17, &c.

Verse 22. Yet lackest thou one thing] Yea all things. But our Saviour speaketh thus by an holy irony.

Verse 23, 24.] See Mat. 19. 23, 24, &c.

Verse 25. It is easier for a Camell] Caveant ergo divites (saith an Interpreter) & solicitè; mane, vesperi, interdiu, noctu, secum de periculosa vita sua ratione commententur. Let rich men therefore weigh their danger, and beware.

Verse 26, 27, &c.] See Mat. 19. 26, 27, &c.

Verse 31, 32, 33.] See Mat. 20. 17. Mark 10. 32.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 34. And they underſtood none, &c.] Prejudicate opinions of Chriſts earthly Kingdom hung as ſo many bullets at their eye-lids, that they could not perceive ſo plain a truth.

Verſe 35, 36, &c.] See Mat. 20. 29. Mar. 10. 46.

CHAP. XIX.

Verſe 1. And paſſed through Iericho]

AN accurſed City, Joh. 6. 26. with 1 King. 16. 34. and yet Chriſt hath here a plentiful harveſt, poor blind men; rich Zacheus: to ſhew the truth of what he had affirmed in the former chapter, that a rich man alſo might poſſibly enter into the Kingdom of heaven.

Verſe 2. And behold] This Behold, one compareth to an hand in the margent of a book, pointing to ſome notable matter. Another, to the ſounding of a trumpet before ſome proclamation, &c.

There was a man named Zachæus] He ſhould by his name, have been a Puritan (in the beſt ſenſe) but he was an Arch-publican, a publick ſinner, not ſimple, but ſubtile, a griping extortioner, a rich, but wretched Sycophant.

Verſe 3. Becauſe he was little of ſtature] τυτθὸς ἦν τῇ. Saint Paul was but a little man (ſay ſome, and thence had his name) but of a notable ſpirit. Deus maximus eſt in minimis, ſaith One, & ſæpe compenſat defectus corporis ingenii dotibus. God is much ſeen in ſmall things: and he many times recompenſeth defects in the body, with gifts of the mind. Hence that of the Poet, Homer.

——— In parvo regnat corpore virtus.

Verſe 4. And he ran before] Forgetful of his rank and quality. Rich men and Rulers uſe not to run, much leſs to climb trees, as boyes do for birds-neſts. But his earneſt deſire to ſee his Saviour, and eſpecially a gracious impulſe of the holy Spirit, made him thus ſeemingly immodeſt, and unmindfull of keeping a decorum.

Verſe 5. Zachæus, make haſte] Chriſt is that good ſhepheard, that knoweth all his ſheep, and calleth them by name.

Make haſte and come down] Heaven is a matter of greateſt haſte: We muſt not adjourn as he did once, In craſtinum ſeria, more weighty buſineſſes till to morrow.

To day I muſt abide at thy houſe] Chriſt not only invites, but even obtrudes himſelf, as it were, upon Zacheus: Its happy having ſuch gueſts. He doth the ſame to us, when he ſends unto us his poor ſervants to preſs upon our charity. Unworthy we are ſurely to give an alms to poor Chriſt, &c.

Verſe 6. And he made haſte and came down] Gilbert Foliot Biſhop of London, Anno Dom. 1161. miſliking much Arch-biſhop Becket's pride and obſtinacy, would often exhort him to humility in theſe words, Ad Zachæum non divertiſſet Dominus, niſi de Sycomoro jam deſcendiſſet, i. e. Chriſt had never dined with Zacheus, had he not firſt yielded to come down from the Sycamore tree. Godwin Cata.

Verſe 7. They all murmured] So corrupt was their judgement concerning the offices and condition of the Meſſiah: ſo ill-ſet were their affections, that themſelves neglecting the grace of God that was offered, they take it ill that any other ſhould partake of it.

By falſe accuſation] After the manner of Sycophants. It ſeems it was his practiſe, that if any had ſpoke ought againſt him, he accuſed them as wrongers of the Law: and that he did nothing to them, but what he had law for. συκοφάντ. See Rous his Archæol. Attic.

Verſe 8. The half of my goods] See the like in Tyre converted, Eſay 23. 17, 18.

I reſtore him four-fold] Which was the Law for things ſtollen. Fraud is no better then theft. Reſtitution is neceſſary to remiſſion of ſin. God hates holocauſtum ex rapina, as Sultan Selymus could tell his Councellor Pyrrhus, who perſuaded him to beſtow the great wealth he had taken from the Perſian Merchants, upon ſome notable Hoſpitall for relief of the poor: The dying Turk commanded it rather to be reſtored to the right owners, which was done accordingly; to the great ſhame of many Chriſtians, who mind nothing leſs then reſtitution, &c. When Henry the Third of England had ſent Turk. Hiſt. fol. 567.

the

Digitized by Google

the Frier Minors a load of Freeze to cloath them, they returned the same with this message; That he ought not to give alms of what he had rent from the poor, neither would they accept of that abominable gift. Master Latimer saith, If ye make no restitution of goods detained, ye shall cough in hell, and the devils will laugh at you. Henry the seventh in his last will and Testament, after the disposition of his soul and body, he devised and willed restitution should he made of all such monies as had unjustly been levyed by his Officers. Q. Mary restored again all Ecclesiasticall livings assumed to the Crown: saying, that she set more by the salvation of her own soul, then she did by ten Kingdoms. A Bull came also from the Pope at the same time, that all others should do the like: but none did. Latimer tells us, that the first day that he preached about Restitution, one came and gave him 20 li. to restore. The next day another brought him 30 li. Another time another gave him 200 li. Mr. Bradford hearing Latimer on that Subject, was struck in the heart for one dash of a pen which he had made without the knowledge of his Master, and could never be quiet, till by the advice of Mr. Latimer, restitution was made: for which he did willingly forgo all the private and certain patrimony which he had on earth. I my self (saith Mr. Burroughs) knew one man that had wronged another but of five shillings, and fifty years after, could not be quiet till he had restored it.

Daniels Hist. of Engl. 109.

Speed 995.

Ibid. 826.

Zach. his Conv. by Mr. Wilson, pag. 389. Bur. on Hos. vol. 4. p. 322.

Verse 9. He also is a son of Abraham] That is, freely elected, Rom. 9. 1. a follower of Abrahams faith, Rom. 4. 12. and a doer of his works, Joh. 8. 39. Who then can say but he is his son, and shall rest in his bosome?

Verse 10.] See Mat. 18. 11.

Verse 11. That the Kingdom of God] A temporal earthly Kingdom, such as they expected by the Messiah. And it should seem, that hearing our Saviour say he came to seek and to save that which was lost, they mistook him so far, as to think that he meant the Jewish Kingdom, the publick liberty, &c. This misconceit he confuteth in the following parable.

Verse 14. Sent a message] Instead of sending a lamb to this ruler of the earth, Esay 16. 1. of the covering his altar with the calves of their lips, Hos. 14. 3. Such masterless monsters are rise every where; such dust-heaps are found in every corner.

Verse 15. And when he was returned] He went, at his Ascension; and returns at the general Resurrection: At what time he will first reckon with his servants, and then with his enemies. Judgement shall then also begin at Gods own house.

Verse 16. Thy pound hath gained] Not my pains, but thy pound hath done it. By the grace of God I am that I am, saith Paul that constantissimus gratiæ Prædicator, as Austin calleth him.

Verse 17, 18, 19, &c.] See Mat. 25. 21, 22, &c.

Verse 23. Into the bank] Gr. Unto the table, or (according to some copies) unto the Usurers, whom Beza here rightly calleth humani certè generis perniciosissimas pestes, the most pernitious pests of mankind.

τοῖς τραπεζίταις.

Verse 27. Slay them before me] Howbeit the Beast and the false Prophet, that is, the Pope and his Janizaries, shall not have the favour to be slain as the common sort of Christs enemies are, but shall be cast alive into the burning lake, tormented more exquisitly, Rev. 19. 20, 21.

Verse 28. He went before] To meet death in the face: this was true magnanimity. Herein he shewed himself the captain of our salvation, though perfected by sufferings.

Verse 29. Bethphage and Bethany] Bethphage was one mile out of Jerusalem, Bethany two.

Verse 30. Go ye into the village] Into Bethphage, that was in their view as they went from Bethany.

Verse 31, 32, &c.] See Notes on Mat. 21, 1, 2, 3, &c.

Verse 41. He beheld the City] That common slaughter-house of the Prophets. Our Lord is said to have been slain at Rome, Rev. 11. 8. because crucified at Jerusalem by the Roman authority.

And wept over it] Shall not we weep over the ruins of so many fair and flourishing Churches, that now lie in the dirt? Christ wept in this day of his solemn Inauguration. It shall be in our last triumph onely, that all tears shall be wiped from our eyes; till then our passions must be mixed, according to the occasions.

Verse 42. Oh, if thou hadst known] They had cognitionem historicam non mysticam, speculativam non affectivam, apprehensionis, non approbationis; discursivam, non experimentalem.

At

Digitized by Google

At least in this thy day] The time of grace is fitly called a Day in regard of 1 Revelation. 2 Adornation 3 Consolation. 4 Distinction. 5 Speedy preterition. Amend before the draw-bridge be taken up. No man can say he shall have 12 hours to his day.

But now they are hid from thine eyes] Yet they lived under the Ministry long after, and no outward change to be discerned. As Plutarch writes of Hannibal, that when he could have taken Rome, he would not; when he would he could not; so the Procrastinators.

Verse 43. For the days shall come] God hath his dayes for vengeance, as man hath his day for repentance. There is a Prime of every mans life, and of every mans Ministry. The Levite lingered so long, that he lost his Concubine, she came short home: so doth many a mans soul for like reason.

Shall cast a trench about thee] Because like the wild Ass, thou wouldst not otherwise be tamed, and kept within compass of Gods Commandments.

Verse 44. One stone] See Mat. 24. 2. Mar. 13. 2.

Because thou knowest not the time of thy visitation] Though thou be called the Vally of Vision, and the notation of thy name be the Vision of Peace, yet thou neither knowest the things of thy peace, nor the time of thy visitation, as being blinded with malice, and obstinacy.

Verse 45, 56.] See Mat. 21. 12, 13, &c. John 2. 14. With Notes.

Verse 47. He taught daily] The nearer he drew to his end, the more intent he was upon the work, that he might say, as afterwards he did in that heavenly prayer of his, I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do, Joh. 17. 4.

But the chief Priests] Wild beasts cannot endure fire: no more can wicked men away with Zeal. Tigers are enraged with sweet odours: beat up a drum to them, and they'l tear themselves for anger.

Verse 48. Were very attentive to hear him] Gr. Hanged on him, as the Bee doth on the flower, the babeon the breast, or the little bird on the bill of her Dam. Christ drew the people after him, as it were, by the golden chain of his heavenly eloquence. ἐξεκρέματο.

Chap. XX.

Verse 1. The chief Priests and Scribes came]

Græce, Came suddenly upon him] As an expected storm: the Devil drove them. Verse 2, 3, &c. See Notes on Mat. 21. 23. Mar. 11. 27. ἐπέστησαν.

Verse 4. The baptism of John, &c.] q. d. If John were sent by God to testifie, as he did, there is no colour of cause why ye should question mine authority.

Verse 8. Neither tell I you, &c.] Gods servants should be ready with their answer upon sudden assaults, and not to seek of such arguments as may stop the mouth of an adversary. When a nimble Iesuit asked, Where was your religion before Luther? Answer was presently returned, In the Bible, where your religion never was.

Verse 9. See Mat. 21. 33. Mar. 12. 1.

Verse 16. God forbid] Viz. That they should ever kill the Son of God sent unto them. We cannot get men to believe that their hearts are half so bad, or their ways so dangerous as the preacher makes of them.

Verse 17. What is this then that is written, &c.] q. d. If it be not so as I say, that you shall kill the Messiah, how is it that the Scripture saith as much? press men with Scripture-testimonies: that's the readiest way of sound conviction. It was a good speech of Augustine to Manichæus, contesting with him for audience: Hear me, hear me, said the Heretick. Nay, saith Augustine, Nec ego te, nec tu me, sed ambo audiamus Apostolum dicentum, Peccatum non cognovi, &c. It is not what I say, or what thou saiest, but what the Scripture saith, that we must stand to.

Verse 19. They perceived] Conscience, their domestical Chaplain, told them so much. God hath a witness to his truth in every mans bosom.

Verse 20. They sent forth spies] Gr. Fishers, that with net and bait catch the silly fish, and feed on them: such were these Emissaries, these catch-poles. ἐγκαθέτους. Aretius.

Which should fain themselves just men] Hypocrites onely act Religion, play devotion: as Stage-players they act a Sultan, when they are but so many sowters; as ferrymen, they look one way, and row another, they have Holiness written upon their outsides,

Digitized by Google

as

as Voſſius his book had De Deo in the front, and blaſphemy in the Text. They cry out Templum Domini, the Temple of the Lord, but care not for the Lord of the Temple. But religion, as it is the beſt armour, ſo it is the worſt cloke: and will ſerve hypocrites as the diſguiſe Ahab put on and periſhed, or as Abſoloms mule ſerved her maſter, &c.

Verſe 21.] See Mat. 22. 16. Mar. 12. 14.

Verſe 27, 28, &c.] See Mat. 22. 23, &c. Mar. 12. 18.

Verſe 35. Nor are given in marriage] Hence ſome collect, that the difference of ſexes ſhall continue after the reſurrection: wherefore elſe ſhould our Saviour ſay, that they ſhall then neither marry nor be given in marriage? Sed hic επέχω. Haymo is over confident, I ſuppoſe, in that gloſs he gives here, Quod viri in ſuo ſexu reſurgent, fœminæ in ſexu muliebri. Erunt habentes membra genitalia, non autem voluntatem coeundi.

Verſe 36. Die any more] That there ſhould be any further uſe of Matrimony, for the propagation of mankind.

Verſe 38. For all live to him] Even in their bodies alſo, which he now by rotting refineth; and ſhall as certainly raiſe, as if they were already raiſed, ſith all things are preſent with him.

Verſe 39. Thou haſt well ſaid] Becauſe he had ſet down the Sadduces, who were their counterfactioniſts.

Verſe 41.] See Mat. 22. 42. Mar. 12. 35.

Verſe 45. See Mat. 23. 1, 5. Mark 12. 38. Luk. 11. 43.

Verſe 47. Greater damnation] Shall be double-damned: becauſe diſſembled ſanctity is double iniquity.

Chap. XXI.

Verſe 1.] See the Notes on Mar. 12. 41.

Verſe 2. Caſting in thither two mites] That is, two eight parts of an half-penny, ſaith the Syriack. See the Notes on Mark 12. 41, 42, &c.

Verſe 5, 6, &c.] See Notes on Mat. 24. 1, 2, &c.

Verſe 7, 8, 9, &c.] See Mat. 24. 3, 4, &c.

Verſe 12.] See Mat. 24. 9. Mar. 13. 9.

Verſe 13. And it ſhall turn to you, &c.] Whileſt the valour of the Martyrs and the ſavageneſs of the Perſecutors ſtrove together, till both, exceeding nature and belief, bred wonder and aſtoniſhment in beholders and hearers.

Verſe 14.] See Mat. 10. 19. Mark 13. 11. With Notes.

Verſe 18.] See Mat. 10. 30. With Notes. See alſo for explication, 1 Sam. 14. 45. 2 Sam. 14. 11. Act. 27. 34.

Camd. Eliz. fol. 495. Verſe 19. In your patience poſſeſs] That is, Enjoy your ſelves, however the world goes with you. He that cannot have patience, had need make up his pack, and get out of the world: for here's no being for him. Burleigh Lord Treaſurer was wont to ſay, that he overcame envy more by patience then pertinacy.

Verſe 20. Jeruſalem compaſſed with armies] By Ceſtius Gallus, a little before that fatall ſiege by Titus. So God gave his people this ſign, to take beſt courſe for their own ſafety.

Verſe 21.] See Mat. 24. 16. Mar. 13. 14.

Verſe 22, 23.] See Mat. 24. 15, 17.

Verſe 24. Untill the times of the Gentiles] The Gentiles then ſhall not always tread down Jeruſalem. Thoſe Kings of the Eaſt the Iews may, likely, have their way prepared to it, through Euphrates, Rev 16. 12. and Jeruſalem be again inhabited by them, even in Jeruſalem. But this will be not long before the laſt day, verſe 25. Zach. 12. 6.

Verſe 25.] See Mat. 24. 29. Mark 13. 24. 2 Pet. 3. 10.

Verſe 26. Mens hearts failing them] What marvell though wicked men be diſpirited, and even ring their bells backwards, when they ſhall ſee all on a light fire? Moſes himſelf may tremble at the terror of the mount, and Abraham ſhew ſome trepidation in ſuch a fright.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 27. Coming in a cloud] As on a chariot, See Rev. 1. 7.

Verſe 28. Look up] You that ſhall then be found alive ſhall ſoon be caught up, 1 Theſ. 4. and fully freed from all evils and enemies.

Verſe 29.] See Mat. 24. 32. Mar. 13. 38.

Verſe 33.] See Mat. 5. 18.

Verſe 34. Take heed that your hearts] The Diſciples themſelves had in them the cómmon poiſon of nature: and ſo, were obnoxious even to the moſt reproachful evils. That παραφορικὸν, if watered with the temptation of Satan, what ſin may it not produce in the beſt, unleſs God prevent? Let the beſt take heed that they be not irregulares gulares, making the corps a cloak-bag, the gut a gulf, &c. A full belly makes a foul heart: the rankeſt weeds grow out of the fatteſt ſoil.

Verſe 35. As a ſnare] See Eccleſ. 9. 12. With the Note there.

Verſe 36. That ye may be accounted worthy] Great is the Emphaſis of this word (ſaith learned Beza) for it gives us to underſtand that we owe all to the free election of God, who loved us firſt, and ſo accepted us for worthy; Rev. 3. 4. καταξιωθῆτε.

Verſe 37. And in the day] So he divided his time between preaching and praying: as did alſo his Apoſtles, Act. 6. 4. See the Note there.

Verſe 38. Came early in the morning] Manicabat, ſaith the vulgar, imitating the Greek. Let our people look upon their forwardlineſs, and be aſhamed of their long lying, tardy coming to hear the word. ὠρθρίζε.

Chap. XXII.

Verſe 1. Now the feaſt of unleavened, &c.]

IT is good to bring Bibles to Church. Socrates relates of one Sabbatius a Novation Biſhop, that reading this text, added ſuch things of his own as carried away many ſimple people from the faith. Socrat. lib. 7. cap. 5.

Verſe 2. How they might kill him] Not put him to death as Iudges, but kill him as cut-throats. So Act. 2. 23. ἀνέλωσι.

Verſe 3. Then entered Satan] He ſtood but at the door till now, that the buſineſs was concluded on.

Verſe 4. And communed with the chief Prieſts] Suopte ingenio, ut reprobi Angeli, ſaith an Interpreter.

Verſe 5. And covenanted] Judas ſold his ſalvation, and they bought their damnation, ſaith One. He made a match with miſchief, and ſoon had enough of it.

Verſe 6. And he promiſed] By mutual ſtipulation (ſaith Beza) wherein the one asketh, Doſt thou promiſe to do ſuch a thing? the other anſwereth, I do promiſe. Like as of old it was, Credis? Credo. Abrenuncias? Abrenuncio. Believeſt thou? I do believe. Forſakeſt thou? I do forſake. ἐξωμολόγησε.

Verſe 7. The day of unleavened bread, When, &c.] It muſt be our care to caſt out all filthineſs of fleſh and ſpirit (that old leaven) before we communicate, 1 Cor. 5. 7. Firſt throw the baggage into the brook Kidron (the town-ditch) and then kill the Paſsover, 2 Chron. 30. 14.

Verſe 8, 9, 10. &c.] See Mat. 26. 17, 18, &c. Mar. 14. 12.

Verſe 15. With deſire have I deſired] How much more ſhould we come with ſtrong affections and luſty appetites to this holy Supper? It is a vertue here to be an holy glutton, and to drink hearty draughts; that we may go from the Table, as Chriſt from Jordan, full of the holy Ghoſt. For this end conſider what is before thee, as Prov. 23. 1. not to reſtrain appetite, but to provoke it. And the rather becauſe Chriſt thus earneſtly thirſted after our ſalvation, though he knew it ſhould coſt him ſo dear. See Luke 12. 50.

Verſe 16. Untill it be fulfilled] Untill the Old Paſsover be aboliſhed, and the New brought in place, by my death and reſurrection.

Verſe 17. And he took the cup] The cup of the common ſupper, John 13. 2, 3.

Verſe 18. See Mat. 26. 29. Mark 14. 25.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 19.] See Mat. 26. 26. Mar. 14. 22.

Verſe 23. And they began to enquire] Therefore the Lord had not perfectly pointed out the Traitor to them: or if he did, they either heard not, or heeded not.

Verſe 24. There was alſo a ſtrife] This was ſo much the worſe in them, becauſe immediatly after the Sacrament, and before the Paſſion, which our Saviour had told them ſhould fall out within two days after. Neither was this the firſt time that they had thus faulted, and were reproved for it.

Verſe 25. The Kings of the Gentiles, &c.] In ſtriving for precedency, the Diſciples ſhew'd themſelves but Gentiles, who ſtand upon their birth and priviledges.

Joh. Manlii loc. com. 636. Exerciſe Lordſhip over them] As he did with a witneſs (of whom Melanæthon writeth) that wrung money from his miſerable ſubjects, by knocking out their teeth, one by one, till he had what he would.

Are called Benefactors] Nedibim, Bountiful Princes, Pſal. 47. 10. & 83. 12. Such an one was Titus ſon of Veſpaſian, who never ſent away any ſuitor ſorrowful; and was the Author of this brave ſpeech, Hodie non regnavimus, quia neminem affecimus beneficio: We ſeem not to have reigned this day, becauſe we have done no man a good turn to day.

Verſe 26.] See Mat. 20. 25. Mar. 10. 42.

Verſe 27. I am among you as he that ſerveth] i. e. Not as a maſter, but rather as your fellow-diſciple. The Prophets had their Scholars to wait upon them, and to miniſter to them. Gods Levite had one man to ride with him, Judg. 19. 11. Balaam had two, Num. 22. 22.

Verſe 28. Ye are they which have continued, &c.] Agrippa having ſuffered impriſonment for wiſhing Caius Emperor, the firſt thing Caius did after he came to the Empire, was to prefer Agrippa to a Kingdom. He gave him alſo a chain of gold as heavy as the chain of iron that was upon him in priſon. And ſhall not Chriſt richly reward all thoſe his ſuffering ſervants?

διατίθεμαι, teſtor. Verſe 29. And I appoint] Gr. I bequeath as by my laſt Will and Teſtament, See Heb. 9. 17.

Verſe 30. That ye may eat and drink, &c.] As Mephiboſheth and Chimham at Davids table; which was an high favour.

Verſe 31. Simon, Simon] q. d. Mi chariſſime Simon. Piſcat.

Satan hath deſired, &c.] As a challenger deſireth to have one of the other-ſide to combat with, as Goliah did. He cannot harm us without leave. So he deſired to have Job, and had him.

That he may ſift you] Cribratione Satanæ non perditur, ſed purgatur frumentum, ſaith Zanchy. See the Note on Mat. 3. 12.

Verſe 32. But I have prayed] So the plaiſter is ready made before the wound be given: for elſe the patient might periſh, as thoſe do that are ſtung with ſcorpions, if not preſently anointed with oyl of ſcorpions.

Seneca. That thy faith fail not] It is our faith that Satan chiefly aſſaulteth: He knows that nihil retinet qui fidem perdidit.

Strengthen thy brethren] So he doth notably, in both his Epiſtles, dooming Apoſtates moſt ſeverely, 2 Pet. 2.

Verſe 33. Lord I am ready] Thus Peter overweened his own abilities: being melius ſemper animatus quam armatus, better affected then appointed.

Verſe 34.] See Mat. 26. 34. Mar. 14. 30. John 13. 38.

Verſe 35.] See Mat. 10. 9. Luke 10. 4.

Verſe 36. But now he that hath, &c.] Here the Captain of our ſalvation cryes, Arm, Arm: and under the name and notion of corporal weapons, he intends all manner of ſpiritual preparations.

Verſe 37. For the things concerning me] i. e. Concerning my ſtate of humiliation.

Verſe 38. It is enough] q. d. You ſpeak abſurdly: I mean not ſuch kind of ſwords, let me hear no more of them.

Verſe 39.] See Mat. 26. 36. Mar. 14. 32. John 14. 4.

Verſe 40.] See Mat. 26. 41. Mar. 14. 38.

Verſe 41. And he was withdrawn] For privacy ſake to pray, though loath to leave their company, through extream perplexity; which made him return ſo oft to them, calling upon them to watch with him.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verse 42. If thou be willing] He was so astonished with the greatness of his present pressures, that he seems for a time to suffer some kind of forgetfulness of his office.

Verse 43. And there appeared] To shew that he had made himself lower then the Angels, Heb. 2. 7. he received comfort from an Angel that was his servant. So in his Agony he was glad of his Apostles company, and the help of their poor prayers.

Verse 44. And being in an Agony] Μὴ διὰ τοῦτο ἀπμῷ, ὅτι, φιὰ σε τάπιι῾ῳ, saith a Greek Father. Alphonsus is honoured in Histories for this, that he abased himself so far, as to help one of his subjects out of a ditch. Shall not Christ much more be honoured that helped all his out of the ditch of damnation?

He prayed more earnestly] He bent as it were all his nerves, he intended the utmost activity of his spirit and of his speech; to make attonement for our dull and drowsie devotions. ἐκτενέστερον.

Great drops of blood] Clotty blood issuing through flesh and skin in great abundance. Oecolampadius tells of a certain poor man, who being kept hanging in the truss of the cord (which is a certain hanging by the hands behind, having a weighty stone fastned at their feet) the space of six hours, the sweat that dropt from his body for very pain and anguish, was almost blood. But here was no (almost) in our Saviours bloody sweat; whiles, without any external violence, meerly by the force of his own saddest thoughts working upon him, sanguinem congelatum quasi extruserit. So great was Scanderbegs ardor in battel, that the blood burst out of his lips. But from our Champions, not lips onely, but whole body burst out a bloody sweat. Not his eyes onely were fountains of tears, or his head waters, as Jeremy wished, Chap. 9. 1. but his whole body was turned, as it were, into rivers of blood: A sweet comfort to such as are cast down for that, that their sorrow for sin is not so deep and soaking as they could desire. θρομβὸς αἱματῶ῾. Act. and Mon. fol. 805. Buchoicer.

Falling down to the ground] Through clothes and all, in a cold night: so great was the pressure of his passion here begun. He wept with his members: a strange kind of watering of a garden, as One saith.

Verse 45. He found them sleeping] Who should have waked, and wiped off his sweat (as the Angell did Theodorus the Martyrs) but they rather added to it by their security. Socrates. Theodoret.

Verse 46, 47.] See Mat. 26. 47. Mar. 14. 43. John 18. 3.

Verse 48. Judas, betrayest thou, &c.] Sic Judæi, sub pretextu pietatis maximè delinquebant; & Deo osculum sine amore prebebant. Julian the Apostate was no friend to Basil, though he wrote to him φίλῳ φίλω καὶ ἀδελφὸς ἀδελφῷ. Nor was Libanius the more to be believed for saying, Βασιλεὺς μὲ ἐπαινῆσαι῾ῳ καὶ πάντων ἔχω τὰ νικητήρια. If Basil commend me, I despise other mens worse censures. Buchoicer. In Epist. ad Basilium.

Verse 49. Lord shall we smite?] But before he could answer, Peter smote: which might easily have cost him his life. Quod dubites, ne feceris, is a safe rule.

Verse 50.] See Mat. 26. 51. Mar. 14. 47. Joh. 18. 10.

Verse 51. And he touched his ear, &c.] After he had laid them flat on the ground. So he tryed them both ways: but nothing would do.

Verse 52. Captain of the Temple] See the Note on Act. 4. 1.

Verse 53. And the power of darkness] The dark places of the earth are full of the habitations of cruelty, Psal. 74. 20. Creatures kept in the dark are fierce and furious. Had they known, they would never have crucified the Lord of glory. I did it ignorantly, saith Paul, concerning his persecuting the Saints. 1 Cor. 2. 1 Tim.

Verse 54.] See Mat. 26. 57.

verse 55.] See Mat. 26. 69. John 18. 25.

Verse 56, 57, &c.] Vide ibidem cum Notis.

Verse 61. And looked upon Peter] A stroke from guilt broke Judas his heart into despair: but a look from Christ brake Peters heart into tears.

Verse 62] Mat. 26. 75. Titubatio Petri, omnium petra.

Verse 63.] Mat. 26. 27. Mar. 14. 65. John 18. 22. See Esay 50. 6. They scoffed him, not so much with their Tongues as hands; plucking his beard, and pulling away hair and skin too, as the word δέρειν importeth.

Verse 65. And many other things] Shooting their sharpest arrows at him, even barbed arrows, which being once got into the flesh, cannot easily be pulled out, but by tearing the flesh round about: And far worse then those shot by the Turks at the Cru-

Digitized by Google

Turk. Hiſt. fol. 347. cifix, when they ſacked Conſtantinople, railing alſo, and ſpetting at it, and calling it The God of the Chriſtians.

Verſe 66.] Mat. 27. 1.

Verſe 67.] Here the Preſident of the Counſel examineth him, as verſ. 70. the Aſſeſſors.

Verſe 68, 69.] Chriſts anſwer is partly Reprehenſory, partly Conceſſory and Commina-tory: For it is a confeſſion of the truth mixt with Menaces of condign puniſhment.

Verſe 70. Ye ſay that I am] Or, as Mark hath it more plainly, I am, Mar. 14. 62. Chriſt here uſeth a vulgar kind of ſpeech, to conſent to what another ſaith.

Verſe 71.] See Mat. 26. 65.

CHAP. XXIII.

Verſe 1.] See Mat. 27. 2. Joh. 18. 28.

διαστρέφοντα. ἀνασείει. VErſe 2. Perverting the people] Grece, Turning them up-ſide down, wreathing them from their right minds. So Verſe 5. He Stirreth up the people.] Gr. He maketh an earthquake in them; rectum tollit de cardine mentem, He throws them off the hinges.

Verſe 3.] Mat. 27. 11. Mar. 15. 2. Joh. 18. 33.

Verſe 4.] See Joh. 18. 38.

Verſe 5. He ſtirreth up the people] In the preſent tenſe. q. d. He doth nothing elſe: He maketh it his whole Trade, and conſtant practiſe, Mendacium putidum.

Verſe 6. He asked] As deſirous to rid his hands of him

Verſe 7. He ſent him] So ſeeking to ingratiate with Herod.

Verſe 8. He was exceeding glad] As if he had got ſome Jugler or Inchanter, that would ſhew him ſome pleaſant ſight.

Verſe 9. But he anſwered him nothing] Princes uſe to correct the undecencies of Embaſſadors by denying them audience: as if ſilence were the way royal to revenge a wrong. Chriſt ſpake not a word to Herod (ſaith one) becauſe Herod had taken away his voice, by beheading the Baptiſt, who was vox clamantis.

εὐτόνως. Verſe 10. Vehemently accuſed him] Gr. With great intention of ſpirit, and contention of ſpeech. Clamant, ut Stentora vincant.

ἐξουθένησας. λαμπρὰν. Verſe 11. Set him at naught] Gr. Made no body of him.

Arrayed him in a gorgerous Robe] Or a white Robe, as the old Interpreter hath it. Pilates Souldiers clad our Saviour in Purple, (a colour more affected by the Romans) Herod in white, as more affected by the Jewiſh Nobility.

ἐμπαίξας. Mocked him] Gr. Handled him like a boy, or made a baby of him, made ſport with him.

Verſe 12. Pilate and Herod were made friends] Two dogs that are fighting, can eaſily agree to purſue the Hare that paſſeth by them: Martial brings in the Hare thus complaining:

In me omnis terræque aviumque, mariſque rapina eſt:
Forſitan & cœli, ſi canis aſtra tenet.

Bodin. theat: Nat. 359. In littore Siculo cum lepus canum venaticorum vim evaſiſſet, à cane marino captus dicitur: Eſt enim voraciſſima maris bellua, ſaith Bodin. The wicked can eaſily unite againſt the Saints.

Verſe 13, 14.] See Mat. 27. 23. Joh. 18. 38.

Verſe 15. No nor yet Herod] Nor any man alive, though he had the Devil to help him. The Poets bring in Momus, finding fault with the creaking of Venus her Pantofle. But Chriſt was ἀμὼς ἀμώμος, as St. Peter calleth him, 1 Epiſt. Chap. 1. 19. The ſpotleſs Lamb of God, in whom Momus himſelf could find nothing amiſs, after long ſeeking. See Joh. 14. 30.

Verſe 16. I will therefore chaſtiſe him] And ſo he did, purpoſely to move pitty, Joh. 19. 1. but all in vain: Yea though he afterwards preſented him a pitiful ſpectacle, with, Behold the man.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 17. For of neceſſity] Tyrannus ille trium literarum Mos, would needs have it ſo. See Joh. 18.29. Mat. 27.15.

Verſe 18. Releaſe unto us] What marvel though murderers deſire a murderer? Similis ſimilem ſibi quærit.

Verſe 19.] See Joh. 18.40. with the Note.

Verſe 20. Pilate therefore willing, &c.] I read of one that did verily think that Pilate was an honeſt man, becauſe he was ſo unwilling to Crucifie Chriſt. But this aroſe only from the reſtraint of natural conſcience againſt ſo foul a fact.

Verſe 21. Crucifie him, Crucifie him] As if they ſhould ſay, do it twice over, rather then fail. The modern Jews, as mad as their forefathers, ſay that rather then we Gentiles ſhould have benefit by their expected Meſſiah, they would Crucifie him an hundred times over.

Verſe 22. The third time] It is well obſerved here, that Peter for fear denied Chriſt three times, and yet repented: Pilate three times juſtified Chriſt, and yet for popular favour condemned him. It may teach us, neither to deſpair, if we repent; Nor preſume, becauſe we have begun well.

Verſe 23. And they were inſtant with loud voices] It is ſaid of Neſtorius the heretick, that he was homo ſuperbus, & indoctus, ſed audax, & magnæ loquentiæ; quâ unicâ fretus, nihil non audebat; & quidem ſæpenumerò feliciter, quod volebat, obtinebat; a proud dunſe, but bold, and loud-ſpoken, whereby he had what he would many times. Zanch.

Verſe 24.] See Mat. 27.26. Mar. 15.15.

Verſe 25. Him that for ſedition] The Jews before they were baniſhed out of this Kingdom, threw bags of poyſon into the Wells and Fountains that the people were to drink of; and ſo endeavoured to poyſon them all: ſo deal thoſe that ſow ſedition, theſe are the Peſts, the botches of humane ſociety.

Verſe 26.] See Mat. 27.32. Mar. 15.21.

Verſe 27. Which alſo bewailed] This was all they could do, and it was much they durſt do it in ſo evil a time. In the reign of Tiberius, one Vitia was puniſhed with death, for that ſhe had lamented Gemitus her ſon, executed as friend to Sejanus. And becauſe they could not accuſe women for attempting againſt the State, their tears were criminal, ſaith Tacitus.

Verſe 28. Weep not for me] We are not ſo much to lament Chriſts dolorous ſufferings (as Papiſts uſe to do in their hiſtrionical deſcriptions of his paſſion) as to lay to heart and lament our ſins the cauſe of all. When a Papiſt came to Maſter Hooper at the ſtake, and ſaid, Sir, I am ſorry to ſee you thus. Be ſorry for thy ſelf man, (ſaid hearty Hooper) and lament thine own wickedneſs: for I am well, I thank God, and death to me for Chriſts ſake is welcome. Act. and Mon. fol. 1373.

Verſe 29. Bleſſed are the barren] Better be ſo, then bring forth children to the murtherer. Hence Hoſeas prays for barrenneſs as a bleſſing on his people, Hoſ. 9.14.

Verſe 30.] See Rev. 6.16. with the Note.

Verſe 31. What ſhall be done in the dry?] Lo little ſucklings alſo are here called dry trees, ſear-wood, ſuch as Gods wrath will ſoon kindle upon.

Verſe 32.] See Mat. 27.38.

Verſe 33. Which is called Calvary] As ſad a ſight to our Saviour, as the bodies of his ſlain wife and children were to Mauricius the Emperor, who was ſoon after to be ſlain alſo by the command of the Traytor Phocas. Let us learn to conſider the Tyranny and deformity of ſin as oft as we paſs through Church-yards, and Charnel-houſes. Hiſtorians tell us, that the way whereby Chriſt went bearing his Croſs to Calvary, is at this day called The Dolorous way.

There they Crucified him] Chriſts Croſs, with his naked and bloody body, being lift up on high, was let fall with violence into a mortaiſe, that his joynts were diſſolved, ſaid Origen to Alexander Severus the Emperor.

Verſe 34. Father, forgive them] See the ſweet mercy of Chriſt, mindful and careful of his enemies, when the pains of hell had taken hold of him, and they, like ſo many breathing Devils, were tormenting him. Pendebat & tamen petebat, ſaith Auguſtine. He was ſlain by them, and yet he begged for them.

Verſe 35. Derided him] Gr. Blew their noſes at him. ἐξεμυκτήριζον.

Verſe 36. Offered him vinegar] Inſtead of wine, which Kings drink much of.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verse 37.] See Mat. 27. 42.

Verse 38. Greek, Latine, and Hebrew] This venerable Elogy and Epitaph, set upon our Saviours Cross, proclaimed him King of all religion, having reference to the Hebrews; of all wisdom, to the Greeks; of all power to the Latines.

Solin. Verse 39. Which were hanged, railed, &c.] Sic plectimur à Deo, nec flectimur tamen, (saith Salvian) corripimur, sed non corrigimur. There are many, quos multò facilius fregeris, quàm flexeris, saith Buchanan. Monoceros interimi potest, capi non potest. The wicked are the worse for that they suffer, and will sooner break then bend.

Verse 40. But the other answering] Silent he was for a while, and therefore seemed to consent; till, hearing Christs prayers and the enemies outrages, he brake out into this brave confession, worthy to be written in letters of gold.

Verse 41.] See *Mat.*27.38. This good thief, like the Olive-tree, bore fruit late, but great store of that which was excellent.

Verse 42. Lord, remember me] By this penitent prayer he made his Cross a Jacobs ladder, whereby the Angels descended to fetch up his soul. So did Leonard Cæsar burnt Scultet. Annal. at Rappa in Bavaria, whose last words were these, Lord Jesu suffer with me, support me, give me strength: I am thine, save me, &c. See the Note on *Mat.*27.38.

Verse 43. Verily I say unto thee] See the infinite love of Christ to penitent sinners, in that when he hung upon the tree, and was paying dear for mans sin, he rejected not this malefactors petition. Shall he not hear us now that all is paid and finished?

To day shalt thou be with me] This is not every mans happiness. A pardon is sometimes given to one upon the gallows: but who so trusts to that, the rope may be his hire. It is not good to put it upon the Psalm of Miserere, and the neck-verse (saith one) for sometimes he proves no Clerk. Most deal with repentance as country people do with Physicians; Love not to have to do with them, till they fear they are gasping the last breath. The Mole begins not to see, till he be at point of death, Oculos incipit aperire moriendo, quos clausos habuit vivendo, saith Pliny. The Serpent strecheth not himself out streight, till he hath received his deaths wound. But what if God should say to such lingerers, as the Crab in the Fable did to the dying Serpent, At oportuit sic vixisse; It is too late now; You should have lived so?

Verse 44.] See *Mat.*27.25. *Mar.*15.33.

Verse 45.] See *Mat.*27.51. *Mar.*15.38.

Verse 46.] See *Mat.*27.50.

Verse 47. Certainly this was a righteous man] Bennet the Martyr in King Henry the Act. and Mon. Eighths days, being brought to execution, the most part of the people (he exhorted fol. 949. them with such gravity and sobriety) as also the Scribe who wrote the sentence of con- Ibid. 1156. demnation against him, did pronounce and confess that he was Gods servant, and a good & 1423. man So when Wiseheart and March, the Martyrs, went toward the stake, they were justified by the beholders, as innocent and godly persons.

Verse 48, 49.] See *Mat.*27.54.

Verse 50.] See *Mat.*27.57. *Mar.*15.43. *Joh.*19.38.

Verse 51. The same had not consented] This proved him to be a good man and a just, as *Psal.*1.1. Sir John Cheek was drawn in for fear of death to be present at the condem- Act and Mon. nation of some of the Martyrs. The remorse whereof so mightily wrought upon his 1774. heart, that not long after he left this mortal life: whose fall, though it was full of infirmity, yet his rising again by repentance was great, and his end comfortable, saith Master Fox. So by the malice and subtilty of Steven Gardiner, Cromwel was commanded by King Henry the eighth, to read the sentence of condemnation against Mr. Lambert the Martyr: For the which Cromwel afterwards asked him forgiveness.

προσδέχετο. Waited for the Kingdom of God] Gr. Entertained and embraced it.

Verse 52, 53.] See *Mat.*27.58,59,60.

Verse 54, 55.] See *Mat.*27.61.

Verse 56. And rested the Sabbath day] From all servile work: Yea that (otherwise most honorable) work of embalming Christs dead body.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

Chap. XXIV.

Verse 1. Very early in the morning]

About which time (probably) our Saviour roſe.

Verſe 2.] See Mat. 27. 60, 66.

Verſe 3. Found not the body] But the grave-clothes only, Joh. 20.6. As Sampſon ſhut up in Gaza, took the Gates on his ſhoulders, and went his way in deſpite of his enemies: So did Chriſt here. Theſe women came firſt by a wonderful providence, before the Apoſtles: to confute that impudent lie made by the Prieſts, that the Diſciples had ſtollen away the body.

Verſe 4. Two men ſtood] Two Angels in the habit of men.

Verſe 5, 6.] See Mat. 28 5, 6.

Verſe 7.] See Mat. 17.23. Mar. 9.31. Luk. 9.22.

Verſe 8. And they remembred his words] Which at firſt hearing they underſtood not, heeded not. So the new birth of ſome is like the birth of the Elephant, fourteen years after the ſeed injected into the womb.

Verſe 9. And told all theſe things] Per os mulieris mors ante proceſſerat, per os mulieris vita reparatur, ſaith Ambroſe. So Chap. 1. an Angel of light communeth with a woman about mans ſalvation, as an Angel of darkneſs had done, Gen. 3. about his fall and deſtruction.

Verſe 9. And told all theſe things] For it was a day of good tydings, as thoſe Lepers ſaid in another caſe, 2 King. 7. 9. the ſumm of all the good news in the world.

Verſe 10. And other women] Who were to be, Apoſtolorum Apoſtolæ, as the ancients ſpeak.

Verſe 11. As idle tales] Set on with great earneſtneſs.

Verſe 12. And ſtooping down] Obſtipo capite & propenſo collo. We need not doubt therefore of the certainty of this hiſtory of Chriſts reſurrection. λῆρος à λᾶ particula intenſiva & ἐρῶ valde dico.

Verſe 13. About threeſcore furlongs] About ſix miles.

Verſe 14. And they talked together] So did Elias and Eliſha, when the heavenly chariot came to ſunder them. Chriſt is ſtill with two or three met for ſuch an holy purpoſe.

Verſe 15. Jeſus himſelf] He made the third amongſt them: as Dionyſius the King of Sicily wiſht that he might be admitted into fellowſhip of friendſhip with thoſe two faſt-friends Damon and Pythias. Chriſt ſtill delights to be one among thoſe that meet to confer about the things of his Kingdom. Cic. de offic.

Verſe 16. But their eyes were held] Ut ulcus ſuum diſcipuli detegerent, ac pharmacum ſuſciperent, ſaith Theophylact. That they may tell their own diſeaſe, and receive healing.

Verſe 17. That ye have one to another] Gr. That ye toſs one to another, as a ball is toſſed betwixt two or more. ἀνταβάλλετε. ut cum duo pilâ luſitant.

And are ſad] Chriſt loves not to ſee his Saints ſad: he queſtions them as Joſeph did his priſoners, Wherefore look ye ſo ſadly to day, Gen. 40.7. and as the King did Nehemiah, Chap. 2. 2.

Verſe 18. And one of them, whoſe name was Cleophas] They that hold the other of theſe two to have been Saint Luke, are refuted by the preface he hath ſet before the Acts, ſaith Beza.

Art thou only a ſtranger, &c.] Tragedies have no prologues, as Comedies have: becauſe it is ſuppoſed, that all men take knowledge of publike calamities. Natal. Comes.

Verſe 19. Which was a Prophet] Yea and more then a Prophet. But the Diſciples were wondrous ignorant, till the Spirit came down upon them, Acts 2.

Verſe 20. Delivered him] Viz. To the Roman Governor. Hence he is ſaid to have been Crucified at Rome, Rev. 11.8.

Verſe 21. But We truſted] q. d. Indeed now we cannot tell what to ſay to it. Here their hope hangs the wing extreamly, their buckler is much battered, and needs beating out again. Ferendum & ſperandum, ſaid the Philoſopher. And good men find it more eaſie to bear evil, then to wait for good, Heb. 10. 36. οἰστέον καὶ ἐλπιστέον. Epictet.

Verſe 22. Made us aſtoniſhed] When they ſhould rather have believed without ſciſcitation: But that their hearts were yet ſtill ſtupified.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verse 23. Saying that they had seen a Vision] But you (wisely) thought that they had dreamt a dream rather, that they had doted and dreamt waking. ver 11.

Verse 24. Certain of them] Viz. Peter and John: see Joh. 20.6 with the Notes there.

Verse 25. O fools, &c.] Those in a Lethargy must have double the quantity of physick that others have. Some slow-bellies must be sharply rebuked, that they may be sound in the faith. Tit. 1.12,13.

Verse 26. Ought not Christ] Ne Jesum quidem audias glorioſum, niſi videris crucifixum, saith Luther in an Epistle to Melanchthon. Agentem fortiter oportet aliquid pati, said a Theban souldier, out of Pindarus, to Alexander, when he had received a wound in battle: For the which sentence, he liberally rewarded him. Τὸ δρῶντα δεῖνα καὶ παθεῖν δεῖ. Pindar.

Verse 27. The things concerning himself] Christ is Author, Object, Matter, and mark of Old and New Testament: the Babe of Bethlehem is bound up, (as I may so say) in these swathing-bands: Turn we the eyes of our minds to him, as the Cherubims did their faces toward the Mercy-seat. The Angels do, 1 Pet. 1.12.

Verse 28. And he made as though he would, &c.] So did the Angels to Lot, Gen. 19.2. See the like, Josh. 8.5,6. 1 King. 3.24. If Solomon might make as though he would do an act that was unlawful, we may surely do the like in things indifferent. Yet this was never done, (as is well observed) but 1. By those that had authority over others. 2. For some singular good to them, with whom they thus dealt.

Verse 29. But they constrained him] Though they had been sharply rebuked by him, whom they knew to be no other then a meer stranger to them.

For it is toward evening] Cry we, now if ever, ere it be too late;

Vespera jam venit, nobiscum Christe maneto.
Extingui lucem nec patiare tuam.

Verse 30. And blessed it.] Its thought they knew him by his ordinary form of giving thanks before meat.

Verse 31. Their eyes were opened] The free and entire use of their inward and outward senses was restored unto them.

Verse 32. Did not our hearts burn] By that spirit of burning, Esa. 4.4. that kindleth the fire of God, Cant. 8.6. on the harth of his Peoples hearts, whiles the mysterie of Christ is laid open unto them. Ego verò illius oratione sic incendebar (saith Senarclæus, concerning Darius the Martyr) ut cùm eum differentem audirem, Spiritus sancti verba me audire existimarem. Me thoughts when I heard him, I heard the Holy Ghost himself speaking to me. Senarc. in Epist. ad Bucer.

While he opened] Preaching then is the key of the Scripture.

Verse 33. The same hour] Late though it were, and they weary, yet they return the same night, not sparing themselves, to do good to others.

Verse 34. Appeared to Simon] 1 Cor. 15.5. To Peter Christ appeared severally; Because as he offended more hainously then the rest of the Disciples, so he was more grievously troubled.

Verse 35.] See the Note on vers. 30. Ex benedictionis forma solemni ipsi Christo antequam panem frangeret, saith Calvin here.

Verse 36.] See Mar. 16.14. Joh. 20.19.

Verse 37. But they were terrified and affrighted] Tam meticulosa est incredulitas. Ut etiam tutissima & maximè tranquilla timeat, saith Brentius here.

Verse 38. Why do thoughts arise] How easily can the Lord trouble us, by turning our own thoughts loose upon us.

Verse 39. Behold my hands, &c.] With those stamps of dishonor that the Jews did me with wicked hands. These he retained even after his Resurrection, as for the confirmation of his Apostles, so for our instruction, not to think much to suffer loss of honor for our brethrens good and comfort.

Verse 40. He shewed them his hands, &c.] For their better assurance and settlement: that they might both remember his resurrection, 2 Tim. 2.8. and with greater power give witness to it, Act. 4.33.

Verse 41. Believed not for joy] This was partly the joy of faith: And yet through mixture of the flesh, it became some hinderance to their faith. So Abraham laughed, and yet said in his heart, Shall a child be born to him that is an hundred year old? &c. Gen. 17.17. Strong affections, though from good Principles, may possibly miscarry us. Watch therefore.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 42. Broyled fiſh] Left of laſt nights ſupper, prandium quaſi perendium.

Verſe 43. And did eat] Not out of any natural neceſſity, or deſire after meat, as once before his paſſion: but for confirmation of their faith.

Verſe 44. And in the Pſalms] When a book is ſet forth, verſes of commendation are oft ſet afore it. Chriſt by thine one ſentence hath more honored and authorized the book of Pſalms, then all men could have done by their Prefaces and Elogies prefixed thereunto. The Turks diſclaim both Teſtaments, yet ſwear as ſolemnly by the Pſalms of David, as by the Alchoran of Mahomet. D. Hakew in his Davids Vow.

Verſe 45. Then opened he their underſtanding] He illightned both Organ and Object, as Act. 16. 14.

Verſe 46. Thus it is written, &c.] All things done and ſuffered by our Saviour, were punctually and exactly foretold and foreſhewed by Moſes and the Prophets: and eſpecially by Iſaiah, who writes more like an Evangeliſt then a Prophet; and is therefore called the Evangelical Prophet. Hieronym.

Verſe 47. And that repentance, &c.] Bleſſed be God (ſaith one) that after our ſhip-wrack by Adam, there is ſuch a plank as Repentance for a poor ſinner to ſwim to heaven upon. It is a mourning for ſin, as it is offenſivum Dei, & averſivum à Deo. It is commiſſa plangere, & plangenda non committere, as Ambroſe hath it: to bewail what is done amiſs, and to do ſo no more.

Verſe 48. And ye are witneſſes] Therefore prepare to Preach the Goſpel to every creature. And take it for a ſingular ſeal of my love, that notwithſtanding your late ſhameful defection and deſerting of me, I ſhall yet employ you as my witneſſes, and make uſe of your Miniſtry.

Verſe 49. Untill ye be endued] Gr. Cloathed. Carnal men are naked men: when the Saints are arrayed with that fine white linnen and ſhining, Rev. 19. 8. ἐνδυσησθε.

Verſe 50. As far as to Bethany] Where his three dear friends dwelt, Lazarus, Martha, and Mary. From hence he went to his croſs, and from hence he would go to his crown.

He lift up his hands] As a good houſholder, or rather as the high-Prieſt of the New Teſtament: benedixit, id eſt, valedixit, he bleſſed them, and ſo bade them Farewell.

Verſe 51. And it came to paſs] See Mar. 16. 19. Act. 1. 9.

Verſe 52. With great joy] Yet could they not hear of his aſcending to the Father, without great ſorrow, Joh. 14. and 16. We grieve for that ſometimes that we have great cauſe to take comfort in; ſuch is our weakneſs and waywardneſs.

Verſe 53. Praying and bleſſing God] Inter laudum devotiones, promiſſum Spiritus ſancti adventum, promptis per omnia paratiſque cordibus exſpectant. So putting themſelves into a fit poſture to receive the Comfort that Chriſt had promiſed them. Beda.

Deo Soli gloria.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

A COMMENTARY OR EXPOSITION Upon the GOSPEL according to S^t. Iohn.

CHAP. I.

Verſe 1. In the Beginning]

HEre this heavenly Eagle, Iohn the Divine, ſoars at firſt out of ſight: Here doth God detonare ab alto, thunder from on high, ſaith Calvin. St. Auſtin ſtands amazed at the myſtical Divinity here delivered. This Barbarian (ſaid the Philoſopher, concerning our Evangeliſt) hath compriſed more ſtupendious ſtuffe in three lines, then we have done in all our voluminous diſcourſes. Happy had it been for him, if he had been made, by this firſt Chapter, of an Atheiſt, a true Chriſtian, as learned Iunius was: But he only admired it, and ſo left it where he found it; as too many do the Word at this day. ὁ Θεόλογος κατ' ἐξοχήν.

Amel. Platonic. ap. Clem. Alex.

Iun. in vita ſua, operib. præfix.

Was the Word.] Perſonal, and Enunciative. Iſaiah ſaw him on the Throne, and heard him ſpeaking; Daniel calleth him Palmoni hammedabber, that excellent ſpeaker, and asketh him of the Viſion; the Syriack Interpreter here calleth him Meltha, the Word uttered; and the Chaldee, Pithgam Adonai, the Lord, the Word.

Iſa. 6. 1.

Dan. 8. 13.

And the Word was with God] Which ſweetly ſets forth his co-eternity and co-exiſtency with the Father, ſaith Chryſoſtom. Moſcopulus renders it, ſecundum Deum, as being the expreſs Image of the Father. Others, ad Deum; as importing a deliberation and conference of the Father and the Son. τὸ συνεῖναι δὲ καὶ ἐνυπόστατον, Chryſoſt.

And the Word was God] Θεὸς without an Article: Hence the Arrians cavil, that the Son is not God co-equal, but a ſecondary God, inferior to the Father. But Gal. 1. 3. The Father is alſo called Θεὸς without an Article; therefore this follows not. This whole Goſpel Selnec. Pædag. Chriſt. par. 2. pag. 150.

Digitized by Google

Euseb. Hyeronim. Gospel is a continuate demonstration of Christs Deity, which began to be denied, while this Evangelist lived, by Ebion, Cerinthus, and other odious Antichrists.

Verse 2. The same was in the beginning] In the instant of Creation, as Gen 1.1. therefore also before the Creation, therefore from eternity, Ephes. 1.4. 1 Pet 1.10. *Prov.*8.22,23. † The Lord possessed me (saith Christ, the essential Wisdom of God there) in the beginning of his way. Arrius corrupted the Greek text, reading it thus; The Lord created me in the beginning, &c. and therehence blasphemously inferred, that Christ was no more then a creature. But he was set up * from everlasting, from the beginning, or ever the earth was, vers. 23. Hence he is called the Ancient of days, Dan. 7.9. And Thales, one of the seven Sages of Greece, stileth him, The most ancient of any thing that hath being.

† Hinc Iohannes augustum illud & magnificum Evangelii sui initium assumpsit. Mercer. in loc. Προέκοπτε sub. stituit ἔκτισε. * Unctа sum in reginam & dominatricem oleo lætitiæ. Psal.45.7. περισβυτερον. των ὄντων. Laert. in vit.

With God.] Being alius from his Father, not aliud; a distinct person, yet co-essential and co-eternal; for he was with him in the beginning of the creature which God created, as himself speaketh, Mark 13. 19.

Verse 3. All things were made by him.] So he was not idle with the Father (though he were his darling, sporting always before him, Prov.8.30.) but by him, as by a principal efficient and co-agent with the Father, and the holy Ghost, all things were made; as some shadow and obscure representation of his Wisdom, Power, Goodness, &c. seen in the Creature, as the Sun is seen in water, or as letters refracted in a pair of spectacles are beheld by a dimm eye. We can see but Gods back-parts, and live; we need see no more, that we may live.

Exod.33.28.

And without him was nothing made.] This is added for the more certainty: it being usual with the Hebrews, thus by negation to confirm what they have before affirmed, where they would assure, that the thing is so indeed; as *Psal.*92.15. *Ioh.*7.18.

Verse 4. In him was life.] As he created, so he quickneth and conserveth all, being the Prince and principle of life, Acts 3.15. both of natural life, Acts 17.28. (The Heathen could say as much) and of spiritual, 1 *Ioh.*5.12. Hence his members are called heirs of the grace of life, 1 Pet.3.7. and all others are said to be dead in trespasses and sins, Ephes.2.1. living carcasses, walking sepulchers of themselves. In most families (as in Egypt, Exod.12.40.) there is not one, but many dead corpses, as being alienated from the life of God, through the ignorance that is in them.

Est Deus in nobis, agitante calescimus illo.

Ephes.4.18.

Verse 5. And the light shineth,] The light both of nature, and of Scripture. The former is but a dim half-light, a rush candle, that will light a man but into utter darkness. The latter is a clear thorow-light: The Commandment is a lamp, & lex, lux, and the Law is light, Prov. 6.23. As for the Gospel, it is set up as a Beacon on an hill, Tit. 2.11. or as the Sun in the firmament, *Luk.*1.78,79 bringing life and immortality to light, 2 Tim.1.10. Where God by his holy Spirit illightneth, Organ and object, Acts 26.18. and shineth on the heart, in the face of Jesus Christ, 2 Cor 4.6.

ἐπιφάνη.

And the darkness comprehendeth it not.] Nor will be comprehended by it, Phil. 3.12. but repels it, rebels against it, Iob 24.13. imprisons it, as those wizards did, *Rom.*1.18. spurns at it (as Balaam the Devils spelman did, *Numb.*24.1,2. when he set his face toward the wilderness, and resolved to curse howsoever;) execrates it as the Ethiopians do the rising Sun. The morning is to such as the shadow of death; for being born in hell, they seek no other Heaven.

Herodot. Iob 24.17.

Verse 6. There was a man sent from God.] As he ran not, till sent, *Ier.*23.32. (St. Paul holds it not only for incredible, but for impossible, that men should preach that are not sent, *Rom.*10.15. So he declined not his Embassage, as did Ionas; who was therefore met with by another messenger of God, and sent into the Whales belly, to make his Sermon for Nineveh; and in his prayer before, to acknowledge out of sad experience, that they that hunt after lying vanities (as he had done) forsake their own mercies.

Ἀπαλθεν Θ τὴν ἀποστολὴν.

Ion. 2.8.

Verse 7. The same came for a witness.] This he performed with a witness, verbis non solum disertis, sed & exertis. He witnessed plainly, and plentifully, with a clear and punctual pronunciation, profession, indigitation, ver. 26. 29, 32, 36.

That all men through him might believe.] Our Saviour expected, that men should have come as far to hear his fore-runner and him, as the Queen of Sheba came to hear Solomon, Mat.12.42. But the one thing necessary lies (alas) neglected. Men will run to hel as fast as they can: and if God cannot catch them (saith one) they care not, they will not come to Christ, that they might live, *Ioh.*5.40.

Bl. Sheph.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 8. He was not that light.] As ſome ſiniſterly conceited, which therefore occaſioned that moſt neceſſary digreſſion, ver. 6. to 10. and drew afterwards, from the Baptiſt himſelf, that moſt vehement profeſſion, *ver.*20. He confeſſed and denied not, but confeſſed, &c. He knew well the danger of detracting in the leaſt degree from Gods glory. To look upon it only, and luſt after it, is to commit ſpiritual fornication with it in our hearts; for it is Gods beloved Spouſe, and he being jealous, cannot bear a corrival. Look upon it therefore, but with a ſingle eye, *Mat.*6.22. and in all addreſſes to God, give the honor to him; take humility to thy ſelf, as Auſtin well adviſeth; let that be thy motto that was his, Propter te, Domine, propter te. Study Gods ends, and we may have any thing of him, as Moſes, Exod. 32.

Illi da claritatem, tibi humilitatem. Aug. *ad Bonifac. epiſt.*205.

Verſe 9. Which lighteth every man, &c.] Or, that coming into the world, ligheth every man. All, with the light of reaſon, Job 35.11. his own, with a ſupernal and ſupernatural light, (To know heavenly things, is to aſcend into Heaven, Prov. 30.3,4.) an affecting, transforming light, 2 *Cor.*3.18. ſuch as maketh a man to be a child of light, Eph. 5.8. partaker of the inheritance of the Saints in light, *Coloſ.*1.2. Any created underſtanding at moſt is (but as Æſchylus ſaith of fire ſtollen by Prometheus) παντὸς πυρὸς στελὰς a beam of that light eſſential.

Verſe 10. He was in the world] Here the Evangeliſt goes on where he left; reſumes, and proceeds in his former argument, *ver.*5.

And the world was made by him.] This is the ſecond time here ſet forth, and re-inforced, that we may the better obſerve and improve it. See the like, Rev.4.11. For thou haſt created all things, and by thee they are, and were created, without help, tool, or tireſomneſs, Iſa. 40. 28. That one word of his, fiat, made all: ſhall we not admire his Architecture?

And the world knew him not.] Man is here called the world, and *Mar.*16.15. he is called every Creature. This little World knew not Chriſt, for God had hid him under the Carpenters Son; his glory was inward, his Kingdom came not by obſervation. And becauſe the world knew not him, therefore it knoweth not us, 1 John 3. 1. Princes, the Saints, are in all Lands, *Pſal.*45.16. but they lye obſcured, as did Melchiſedech. The Moon (ſay Aſtronomers) hath at all times as much light as in the full; but oft, a great part of the bright ſide is turned to heaven, and a leſſer part to the earth. So it is with the Church.

Verſe 11. He came unto his own,] His peculiar pickt people; as touching the Election, beloved for the fathers ſake (Ownneſs maks love) though the more he loved, the leſs he was beloved. This may be the beſt mans caſe, 2 *Cor.*12.15. Learn we to deſerve well of the moſt undeſerving. God ſhines upon the unthankful alſo, *Luk. 6.*35. Chriſt came to the ſtiffe-necked, and uncircumciſed in heart and ears, Act. 7.51. His comfort was (and may be ours) Though Iſrael be not gathered, yet I ſhall be glorious, &c. Iſa. 49. 5. Rom. 11 28.

And his own received him not.] Nay, they peremptorily and pertinaciouſly denied the holy one, and the juſt; and deſired a murtherer to be given unto them. For the which their inexpiable guilt, they are, as it were caſt out of the world by a common conſent of Nations, being a dejected and deſpiſed people. Howbeit, we long, and look daily for their converſion, their reſurrection, as Saint Paul calleth it. And Auguſtine argueth out of the words, Abba, Father; that there ſhall one day be a conſent of Jews and Gentiles, in the worſhip of one true God. There are that ſay out of Dan. 12. 11. That this will fall out, Anno Dom. 1650. Fiat, Fiat. Acts 3. 14. Rom. 11. 15. Mr. Hunt. Mr. Caſe.

Verſe 12. To them he gave power,] Or, priviledge, preferment, prerogative royal, heavenly honor, as Nonnus here rendereth it, and fitly. For if ſons, then heirs, *Rom.*8.17. Hence that Ecce admirantis, 1 John 3. 1. and that Who am I? 2 Sam. 7. 18. with 14. Kings can make their firſt born only heirs, as Jehoſaphat, 2 Chron. 21. 3. But here all are heirs of God, and co-heirs with Chriſt. ἐξουσίαν πρωτοτοκίας Non.

Even to them that believe in his name.] Though with never ſo weak a faith, ſuch as may ſeem to be rather unbelief, then faith, Mark 9.24. The leaſt bud draws ſap from the Root, as well as the greateſt Branch. The weakeſt hand may receive a ring. Credo languidâ fide, ſed tamen fide, ſaid Dr. Cruciger on his death bed. A weak faith is a joynt poſſeſſor, though no faith can be a joynt purchaſer of this precious priviledge here ſpecified. Selnecter. paedag. Chriſt.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verse 13. But of God.] Whose sons therefore they are, and so higher then the Kings of the earth, Psal. 89.27. as those that prolong the days of Christ upon earth, being begotten by the travel of his soul, Isa. 53 10,11. Hence faith is said to adopt us, ver. 12. in like sort as it justifies us, viz. by vertue of its object, Christ. Hence, Psal. 72. 17. there is said to be a succession of Christs name; it is begotten, as one generation is begotten of another. This is true nobility, where God is the top of the Kin, Religion the root. Beatus Ludovicus, would be called Ludovicus de pissiaco, rather then take greater Titles; because there he became a Christian. He thought no birth to a new birth in Christ, no Parentage to that of God to his Father.

Τετιμήμενον ἐν Διὸς ἕρκει. Hom. Filiabitur nomine ejus. Arem.

Verse 14. And the word was made flesh,] Put himself into a lowsie leprouse suit of ours, to expiate our pride and robbery, in reaching after the Deity, and to heal us of our spiritaal leprosie; for ἀνάλειπτον ἀθεραπεύτου if he had not assumed our flesh, he had not saved us. Induit ergo sordes nostras, saith one. He therefore condescended to our raggs; and so dwelt among st us] Dwelt as in a Tent or Booth. He alludes to soldiers pitching their Tents: or rather to the feast of Tabernacles, in or near the time of which celebrated, by consent of many Authors of best note, our Saviour was born.

Nazianz.

ἐσκήνωσεν.

Verse 15. John cryed, saying,] He entred upon his calling in the year of Jubilee, which was wont to be published by the voice of a Crier, with the sound of a Trumpet. And hitherto allude the Prophets and Evangelists, that say he cried, and call him, the voice of a Crier, &c.

Rolloc in loc.

Verse 16. Of his fulness,] Which is both repletive, and diffusive; not only of plenty, but of bounty: not a fulness of abundance only, but of redundance too. In Christians is plenitudo vasis; but in Christ, Fontis: these differ (say the Schoolmen) ut ignis, & ignita. Take a drop from the Ocean, and it is so much the less; but the fulness of the fire is such, that light a thousand torches at it, it is not diminished.

D. Preston.

And grace for grace,] That is (say some) the grace of the new Testament, for the grace of the old. And so in the next verse, Grace shall answer to the Moral Law, Truth to the Ceremonial. Or (as others,) Grace for grace: that is, a latitude answerable to all the Commands, a perfection answerable to Christs own perfection. As the father gives his child limb for limb, part for part, &c. so doth this Father of Eternity (Isa. 9.6.) There are that render it, Grace against grace, as in a glass is face against face; See 2 Cor. 3.18. Or Grace upon grace; that is, one grace after another, a daily increase of graces.

Beza. D. Preston.

Gratiam novâ gratiâ cumulatam. Pasor.

Verse 17. For the Law, &c.] Lex jubet, gratia juvat. Petamus ut det, quod ut habeamus jubet, saith Augustine. We have his promise ever going along with his precept. The Covenant of grace turns precepts into promises, and the Spirit of grace turns both into prayers.

Aug. in Exod. quæst. 55.

Verse 18. The only begotten Son,] In the year of Grace, 1520. Michael Servetus a Spaniard, taught, that there is no real generation or distinction in God; and was therefore worthily burnt at Geneva, in the year 1555. He would not recant; and yet feeling the fire, could not with patience endure it, but kept an hideous roaring, till his life was exhausted; crying out to the beholders, to dispatch him with a sword.

Alsted. Chron.

Bellarm. lib 1. de Christo. c. 1. Calvin Opusc.

He hath declared him,] In a divine and extraordinary manner, as the word here used imports.

ἐξηγήσατο.

Lege Bez. Annot. major.

Verse 19. Jews sent Priests.] Whose proper office it was to enquire into new Doctrines, and by preserving, to present knowledge to the people, who were to seek the Law at the Priests mouth, Mal. 2. 7. Cicero complains of his Roman Priests, that they were good honest men, but not very skilful. And Varro upbraids them with their ignorance of much, about their own Gods and Religions.

Bonos illos quidem viros, sed certè non perèruditos. Cic. 20. de Fin. Vives in Aug. de Civ. Dei. 4. cap. 1.

Verse 20. He confessed and denied not, but confessed] Sincerely and studiously: he put away that honor with both hands earnestly, as knowing the danger of wronging the jealous God in his glory, that is as his wife. All the fat was to be sacrificed to God. It is well observed, that nineteen times doth John use this kinde of double affirmation. First, To strengthen our belief. Secondly, To shew how sparing he was of an oath. Thirdly, For the greater certainty of the thing.

Verse 21. Art thou Elias? And he saith, I am not.] scil. That Elias that you imagine; Elias the Tishite, by a transanimation. As neither was he an Angel, as some in Chrysostoms time would gather out of Mal. 3. 1. They that wrest the Scriptures, are blinded; as Papists, and other brainsick hereticks.

μετεμψυχώσις. Pythagorica.

Verse

Verſe 22. Who art thou, that we may give anſwer] They would not be ſoon ſaid or ſatisfied. How much more ſhould Gods meſſengers go through-ſtitch with their errand, and Embaſſage; binding mens ſins upon their conſciences if they be ſtubborn or ſtupid; and having in a readineſs to revenge all diſobedience? 2 Cor. 10. 6. When the Æqui and Volſci (a certain people in Italy) bad the Roman Embaſſador in ſcorn ad quercum dicere, ſe interim alia acturos, tell their tale to the Oak that ſtood by, they had ſomewhat elſe to do then to hear him: He preſently replied, Et hæc ſacrata quercus audiet, fœdus à vobis eſſe violatum. Let this conſecrated Oak hear and bear witneſs, that you have broke your Covenant, and ſhall dearly anſwer it. Liv.

Verſe 23. I am the voice of one crying] Chriſt ſpake not a word to Herod, ſaith one; becauſe Herod had taken away this voice of his in beheading the Baptiſt. See the Note on Mar. 1. 3. Reverend Mr. Sam. Crook was wont to ſay to his friends, rejoycing with him, and bleſſing God for him, I am nothing but a voice.

In the wilderneſs.] Not in the Temple; to ſhew that the legal ſhadows were now to vaniſh. Chryſologus calls John Baptiſt, fibulam legis & gratiæ.

Verſe 24. Were of the Phariſees] Men of renown in the Congregation, for more Authority ſake: and ſuch as by their office were to enquire into new Doctrines, and their Authors.

Verſe 25. Why baptizeſt thou then?] Why doſt thou innovate any thing in the rites of Religion? A change they looked for under the Meſſiah, and had learned it out of Ier. 31. But this teſtimony brought by John Baptiſt out of Iſaiah, to prove his own calling; either they did not, or would not underſtand; nor yet do they ſeek to be better informed by him.

Verſe 26. I baptize with water] The Baptiſt here meaneth the ſame that St. Paul doth, 1 Cor. 3. 6, 7. See the Note on Mat. 3. 11. Chriſt rains down righteouſneſs upon all his baptized; to whom it is not only a ſign, but alſo a ſeal, as Circumciſion is called, not only by St. Paul, Rom. 4. but alſo by a Jew-Doctor, more Ancient then their Talmud. Of Wilfride firſt Biſhop of Chicheſter, Anno Dom. 700. it is ſtoried, that he converted to the faith many Pagans in thoſe parts. And a day being appointed for their baptiſm, they had no ſooner received the ſame, but immediatly it rained plentifully, the want whereof had cauſed a dearth the ſpace of three years before; ſo that many died daily for hunger, and divers joyning hand in hand (forty or fifty in a company) threw themſelves headlong into the Sea. Zohar Gen. 17. Godw. Catal. pag. 465.

Verſe 27. I am not worthy,] Yet Chriſt held him worthy to lay his hand upon his head in Baptiſm. And there is one that tells us (but who told him?) that for his humility on earth, he is preferred to that place in heaven, from which proud Lucifer fell.

Verſe 28. In Bethabara,] That is, by interpretation, the place of paſſage, or Trajectum, where Iſrael paſſed over Iordan. So the Acts of Joſhua and Jeſus begin both at a place. Baptiſm alſo is firſt adminiſtred, where it was of old fore-ſhadowed. Chriſt is the true Bethabara, Epheſ. 2. 18. we ſail to Heaven on his bottom.

Verſe 29. Taketh away,] Or, that is taking away, by a perpetual act, as the Sun doth ſhine, as the Spring doth run, Zech. 13. 1. This ſhould be as a perpetual picture in our hearts. As we multiply ſins, he multiplieth pardons. ὁ αἴρων. Iſa. 55. 7.

Verſe 30. Preferred before me, for he was before me] Much ado the Baptiſt had to perſwade this, the Vulgar did ſo admire him for his ſtrict and holy life: For John did no Miracle, John 10. 41. Holineſs hath reverence. Of God himſelf it is ſaid, Holy, and therefore reverend is his name.

Verſe 31. And I knew him not,] By face not at all; leſt the people ſhould think that this was done and ſaid by conſent, or compact afore-hand betwixt them. Nor did John ever know Chriſt ſo fully, till now: his former knowledge was but ignorance, in compariſon; none are too good to learn. The very Angels know not ſo much of Chriſt, but they would know more, Epheſ. 3. 10. and therefore look intently into the myſterie of Chriſt, as the Cherubims did into the Ark. 1 Pet. 1. 12.

But that he ſhould be manifeſted,] Miniſters muſt hold up the Tapeſtry, as it were, and ſhew men Chriſt. They are the mouth of the holy Ghoſt, whoſe office it is to take of Chriſts excellencies, and hold them out to the world, John 16. 14.

Verſe 32.] See the Note on Mat. 3. 16. Mar. 1. 10.

Verſe 33. And I knew him not] i. e. Not ſo perfectly, till I heard that teſtimony from from heaven. Christ is not known all at once: but as by steps and stairs men went up to Solomons temple: and as the trumpet in the mount sounded lower at first, and then louder and louder, till at last it was hard all the Camp over: So is it here. The path of the just is as the shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day, Prov.4.18.

Digitized by Google

Verse 34. And I saw and bare Record] They that would perswade others, must be strongly perswaded themselves (We believed, therefore have we spoken, 2 Cor.4.13. And knowing therefore the terror of the Lord, we perswade men, 2 Cor.5.11.) Or at least they must seem so to be, as those odious Apostates, Judas, Demas, Ecebolus, Speiser, Pendleton, Harding (Bishop Jewels adversary) who was one-while a thundering Preacher, wishing he could cry out against Popery as loud as the Bells of Osney: and exhorting the people after this sort (as Mr. Fox testifieth) a little before King Edward the sixth died; that if trouble come, they should never shrink from the true Doctrine of the Gospel which they had received: But take it rather for a trial sent of God, to prove them, whether they would abide by it or no: All which to be true (saith mine Author) they can testifie that heard him, and be yet alive: Who also foreseeing the plague to come, were then much confirmed by his words.

Act. and Mon. 1292.

Verse 35. John stood] Ready prest to preach Christ, as Paul did at Athens in the market, to every one that met with him. Act. 17.17. Christ must be Preached in season, out of season, volentibus, nolentibus. If the Cynicks thought it their duty to admonish all they met: And if men would not listen, they counted it an easie loss, to cast away a few words upon them: How should Christians (and especially Ministers) much more do so.

Verse 36. Behold the Lamb of God] Eximius ille Agnus & singularis, that notable Lamb, typed out by the Paschal-Lamb, and by that Lamb that was the daily morning and evening Sacrifice in the Temple: that Lamb without blemish of Original corruption, and without spot of actual transgression, 1 *Pet.*1.19. A Lamb in his Passion, but a Lion in his Resurrection, *Rev.*5.5. to whom every man is bound to send a Lamb (in token of homage) as unto the Ruler of the whole earth, Isa.16.1.

Verse 37. And they followed Jesus,] So powerful is a word or two (many times) touching Christ and his Cross, to change the heart. Paul sheweth, that the very report of his bonds, did a great deal of good in Cæsars Court. Bilneys confession converted Latimer. Galeacius Caraccielus (that Italian Marques) was wrought upon by a similitude used by Peter Martyr, reading on the 1. Epist. to the Corinthians. So were Earl Martinengus, and Hieronimus Zanchius (both of them Canonici Lateranenses) by some seasonable truth, falling from the same mouth. Luther having heard Staupicius say, that that is kind repentance, which begins from the love of God; ever after that time, the practice of repentance was sweeter to him. Also this speech of his took well with Luther, The Doctrine of Predestination begins at the wounds of Christ.

Phil. 1.13. Act. and Mon. fol. 920.

*Zanch. Miscel. Epist. ad Lantgrav. p.*3,4.

Verse 38. What seek ye?] He saith still in effect as much as all this to all his suitors: and infinitely scorns that it should be said, that any one seeketh him in vain, *Isa.*45.19. He is found of them that sought him not, and saith, behold me, to every passenger, Esa. 65.1. Here he offers himself to these two Disciples, and speaks first. He of his own accord (without any Monitor) is wont to ayd us. His eyes are upon the righteous, as well as his ears are open to their prayers, Psal. 34.15. Should he not see as well as hear, and prevent as well as follow us with his favors, we should want many things, and it would go full ill with us.

Melch. Adam. in vita Luth.

Verse 39. Came and see] A most gratious invitation. That self-seeking Scribe, Mat. 8.19. met with far other entertainment. Let men bring to Jesus Christ but lawful petitions and honest aims, and they may have what they will of him.

Verse 40. One of the two] See here how mean and slender the Catholick Church was at first. Two poor men only follow Christ, who yet had the promise of the Heathen for his inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for his possession, Psal. 2. 8. Despise not therefore the day of small things, Zech. 4. 10. The Cloud of an hand-bredth may shortly muffle the whole heaven: The little stone cut out without hands, may bring down the huge image, and break it to pieces: the dry root of Jesse prove a tree so tall, that, like that of Nebuchadnezzar, the height thereof shall reach unto heaven, and the sight thereof to the end of all the earth, Dan. 4.11. Nec minor ab exordio nec major incrementis ulla, said he of Rome, say we of the Church.

Dan.2.45.

Eutrop. hist. lib 1.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 41. He firſt findeth] Yet afterwards Peter out-ſtript Andrew in faith, and forwardneſs for Chriſt; as likewiſe Luther did Staupicius, &c. So the firſt become laſt, and the laſt firſt. But charity is no churl, Andrew calleth Simon, and Philip Nathaniel, &c. as a Load-ſtone draws to it ſelf one Iron ring, and that another, and a third, So, &c.

We have found the Meſſias,] Little it was that he could ſay of Chriſts perſon, office, value, vertue, &c. but brings him to Chriſt. So let us do ours to the publike Ordinances. Do the office of the Sermon-bell at leaſt, we know not what God may there do for them. Bring them as they did the palſie-man upon his bed, and lay them before the Lord for healing.

Verſe 42. Cephas, Which is by interpretation, a Stone] Not a head, as ſome Popiſh buzzards would needs have it (not knowing a difference between Cephas and κεφαλὴ) and all to prove Peter head of the Church. Some of them have ſaid, that the damnation of us Proteſtants is ſo plainly ſet down in our own Bibles, that there needs no more for convincing us thereof, but that we have our eyes in our heads, (when we open the Book) and be able to read it. But he that firſt interpreted Cephas an head (againſt this clear text, calling it a ſtone) either had not his eyes in his head, or elſe muſt needs be as perfect a ſtranger to the Bible, as that Biſhop of Dunkelden in Scotland, that thanked God he knew neither the old Teſtament, nor the new: Or as that other Dutch Biſhop Albertus Vindelicorum Epiſcopus, of whom Luther writeth, that lighting upon a Bible, and being asked (after that he had read awhile in it) what Book it was? I know not, ſaid he, what Book it is: But this I know, that there is nothing in it that I can find to make for our Religion.

Gages of the New Goſpel, Preface.

Act. and Mon. 1153.

Verſe 43. Follow me,] Together with Chriſts word, there went out a power. His words are operative and efficacious. This Porphyry the Atheiſt, and Julian the Apoſtate underſtood not; and therefore lighting upon this and the like places of the Goſpel, they blaſphemouſly affirmed, that either the Evangeliſts were lyars, or the Apoſtles fools; that with one word only of our Saviour, would be drawn to follow him. So the Papiſts blaſpheme aſſurance, which they have not, as if it bred ſecurity and looſneſs. They may aſwell ſay, the Sea burns, or Fire cools.

Verſe 44. Now Philip was of Bethſaida,] So was Andrew and Peter, who would not be wanting to preach to this Town, and pray for it. But all in vain: whence that, Wo to thee Bethſaida, Mat. 11. 21. Chriſt would not ſuffer ſo much as the blind man he had cured to go thither, Mar. 9.

Mark. 9. 27.

Thou art the ſon of God] For elſe thou couldſt never have known me ſo throughly at ſo great a diſtance. The Samariteſs Joh. 4. believed on the ſame ground (Come ſee a man that told me all that ever I did) but not ſo ſoon: Diſcrimen eſt à Deo, non natura. God and not nature made the difference. That meſſage, that God had accepted a ranſome, had a preſent effect upon that diſtreſſed man, Iob 33. 24. in reviving his ſpirit: Not ſo upon David, though it were delivered to him by the mouth of Nathan, 2 Sam. 12. 13. with Pſal. 51. 8. God is a free Agent, and gives grace and peace at his own pleaſure.

Verſe 45. Philip findeth Nathaniel,] Whom ſome make to be the ſame with Bartholomew, I affirm nothing.

We have found,] The Greek word imports, the ſudden and unexpected finding of ſuch a commodity as he looked not for. See Iſa. 65. 1.

εὑρήκαμεν. Inventum lucrum inſperatum, & repente oblatum.

Verſe 46. Can there any good, &c.] When men take a toy in their heads againſt a place or perſon, they are ready to reaſon in this manner. Good Nathaniel was in the common error, as was likewiſe Philip, in the former verſe, with his Jeſus of Nazareth, the Son of Joſeph. Four words only, and ſcarce ever a true one. Epidemical diſeaſes are ſoon caught.

Verſe 47. Behold an Iſraelite, &c.] Here Chriſt wondereth at his own work of Renovation, as wonderful, doubtleſs, as that of Creation. Or, the upright perſon hath here an ecce for imitation, as the Hypocrite, for deteſtation, Pſal. 52. 7.

Verſe 48. Before that Philip, &c.] Chriſt thinks of us, when we little think of him. See Rom. 5. 10.

Verſe 50. Thou ſhalt ſee greater things] Strange ſights, marvellous light, matchleſs myſteries, multivarious wiſdom, even the wiſdom of God in a myſterie: heaven opened,

Digitized by Google

1 Pet. 1. 12. and Angels of God ascending and descending, vers. 51. and curiously prying into that great mysterie of godliness, God manifested in the flesh, &c.

γεφυρώσας. Verse 52. Upon the Son of man.] The Iacobs Ladder, the bridge that joyneth Heaven and earth together, as Gregory hath it.

CHAP. II.

Verse 1. There was a Marriage]

WHether St. Johns marriage, I have not to say: Some will have it so.

Verse 2. Iesus was called.] That was the way to have all sanctified, 1 Tim. 4. 3. and disorders prevented. Cave, Spectat Cato, was the old watch-word.

Mendicato pane hic vivamus, annon hoc pulchrè farcitur, in eo quod pascimur pane cum angelis? &c. Luther.

Verse 3. And when they wanted wine,] Wine then may be wanting, though Christ be at the Wedding: yea bread, though Christ be at the Board. But the hidden Manna is ever ready; and anon in our Fathers house will be bread enough, and wine, Gods plenty. What though we beg our bread here, heaven will make up all: and it is but winking, and we are there presently, said that Martyr.

The Mother of Iesus saith unto him,] To shew her Authority belike over him. Howsoever, she was too hasty with him, and is taken up for halting. It is not for us to set the Sun by our dyal.

Verse 4. What have I to do with thee? &c.] Is it fit to prescribe to the only wise God? to send for the King by a Post? The Chinois whip their gods, if they come not at a call.

Iob 40. 5. Ion. 4. Verse 5. His Mother saith to the servants,] Not a word to her Son, though he had publikely reproved her. Once I have spoken, but I will not answer, saith Iob. Ionah, reprehended by God, shuts up his Propheſie in silence, in token of his true repentance. David was dumb, because it was Gods doing, Psal. 39. 9. Bring God into the heart, and all will be hush't.

Verse 6. After the manner of the purifying, &c.] But who required these things at their hands? Men are apt to over-do in externals. The Devil strove to bring this superstition into the Christian Church, by the Heretick Ebion, and hath done it by the Pseudo-Catholicks, with their lustral water. and sprinkling of sepulchres: for the rise Baron. Annal. whereof Baronius refers us, not to the Jews, but to Iuvenals sixth Satyr.

Containing two or three firkins] For ostentation sake. Superstition is pompous and ambitious.

Nimirum ad libras mille octingentas: quod pertinet ad miraculi magnitudinem. Gaudentius. Casaubon. Plautus. Heyl. Geog. 379. Hinc pergraecari: and as merry as a Greek. Verse 7. Up to the brim.] God permits his people an honest affluence. Christ supplies them here with great store of wine, to the quantity of a thousand and eight hundred pounds, as Beza computes it: No small gifts fall from so great a hand, Jam. 1. 5.

Verse 8. The Governor of the Feast.] The Jews had a sort of Officers at their feasts, called praefecti morum, Οινόπται, Οφθαλμοί, the Eyes and Overseers of the feast, that took care that none should drink too much. The Latines called them Dictators; the Greeks, Sympoſiarchs: Howbeit, among the Greeks, those Officers power extended no further, then to see, that at feasts or banquets, men drank small draughts only at first, which by degrees they encreased, till they came to their height of intemperancy: At which point, when they were arrived, they kept no rule, nor order: whereas before, to drink out of ones turn, or beyond his allowance, was counted incivility.

Verse 9. The Water that was made wine.] Doth not Christ daily turn water into wine; when of water falling upon the Vine, and concocted by the heat of the Sun, he produceth the grape, whence wine is expressed? His love (that is better then wine, Cant. 1. 2.) turned brown bread and water into Manchet and wine, to the Martyrs in prison.

Verse 10. Every man at the beginning,] Ingenium hominum adumbrat, naturâ fallax & sophisticum. Sic Satan nos ad se allicere solet, Pantheris in morem: Christus contrà. His work is worst at first; the best is behind: the sweetest of honey lies in the bottom.

Verse 11. This beginning, &c.] For as for his miraculous disputation with the Doctors,

Digitized by Google

Doctors, and fasting fourty days; these were rather miracles wrought upon Christ, then by him. He works his first Miracle for confirmation of God the Fathers first Ordinance.

His Disciples believed on him.] So they did before, but now more. So 1 Joh. 5. 13. The Apostle writes to them that believed on the name of the Son of God, that they might believe on the name of the Son of God. i. e. that they might be confirmed, continued, and increased in it. Faith is not like Jonahs Gourd, that grew up in a night; or like a bullet in a mould, that is made in a moment, &c. But as the sound of the trumpet grew louder and louder; and as they went up to Solomons throne, by steps and stairs: so men proceed from faith to faith, till they come to full assurance.

Verse 12. To Capernaum] Where he had hired him an house; for Foxes had holes, &c. but the Son of man had not a house of his own to put his head in. Mat. 8.

Verse 13. And Jesus went up to Jerusalem] In obedience to the Law, and to Preach the Gospel in the great Congregation.

Verse 14. And found in the Temple.] The Talmudists tell us, that it was grown to a custom to set up tables in the Temple, and money-changers at them; that those that ought to offer half a shekel, might have those at hand that might change their bigger money, or take to pledge what else they brought. Here also they might buy Oxen, Sheep, Doves for sacrifice, which the covetous Priests oft received, and then sold them again to others.

Sitting,] The Jews at this day being great Usurers, and thorow much sitting, and not stirring about, are thought to stink, so as they are said to do: Sedentary lives, are subject to diseases.

Plerique omnes mensarii sunt, fœneratoriam exercentes, idcò fœtent. Ber. Annot.

Verse 15. And when he had made a scourge,] Here he put forth a beam of his Deity; whiles, as another Sampson, he lays heaps upon heaps (yet without bloodshed) with the jaw-bone of an Ass. Zeal is attended by revenge, 2 Cor. 7. 11.

The changers money,] Gr. Small money, Κέρμα ἀπὸ τὸ κείρειν, in minuta frusta concidere.

Non expecto plenam perfectamq; reformationem Ecclesiæ, &c. Rolloc. in loc.

Verse 16. And said to the Dove-sellers,] These (belike, as more tractable, and not so gross offenders) he deals more gently with, but bids them be packing. I expect not (saith Reverend Rolloc) a plenary and perfect reformation of the Church, after so horrible an Apostacie under Antichrist, till Christ come again to judgement. And yet that Church of Scotland is said to have this rare priviledge above many others; that since the Reformation there wrought, they have, without heresie, or so much as schism, retained unity, with purity of Doctrine.

Nota. Est Ecclesiæ Scoticanæ, præ multis, præ vilegiũ rarum, quod sine schismate, nedum hæresi, unitatem cum puritate doctrinæ retinuerit. Sic in Elog. præfator; de confess. in princip. Syntag. Confess. p. 6. edit. Genev.

My house shall be called an house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves, Novem. 6. 1635.

Verse 17. The zeal of thine house.] Apostates, on the other side, eat up their zeal of Gods house. But as in falling forward is nothing so much danger, as backward: So the zealot, though not so discreet, is better then the Apostate: Howbeit, zeal should eat us up (saith * one,) but not eat up our wisdom, nor should pride eat up our zeal. Mr. † Greenham had this saying of David oft in his mouth: and well he might. He also usually prayed, that he might keep up his young zeal with his old discretion.

* Mr. Vines.
† In his life.

Verse 18. What sign,] They might have seen sign enough, in his so powerful ejecting of those money-merchants. But Church-Reformations are commonly thus diversly entertained. The Disciples call it zeal, the Jews rashness.

Verse 19. Destroy this Temple,] This was the same in effect, with that sign of the Prophet Jonas, Mat. 12. 39, 40. His resurrection was a plain demonstration of his Deity, Superas evadere ad auras, hic labor, hoc opus est, befitting a God. Rom. 1. 4.

Verse 20. Forty and six years,] All, save what lacks; for it was six years work only, but they reckon the interim of interruption, Ezra 3. to the 7. to aggravate the matter. So they are not only blinded, but hardned.

Verse 21. The Temple of his body,] Wherein the God-head dwelt bodily, Colos. 2. 9. that is, personally, as he dwelt in the material Temple, sacramentally, and doth dwell in the hearts of his people, spiritually. This Tabernacle of Christs body was not made with hands, not built by the power of nature. Heb. 9. 2.

Digitized by Google

Verse 22. His Disciples remembered,] In the mean time they murmured not, much less opposed. We can do nothing against the truth; when at worst, but for the truth, 2 Cor 13. 8. They laid up what they understood not: and as the water casts up her dead, so did their memories, that which seemed dead therein, by the help of the holy Ghost.

Verse 23. Many believed] Fides fuit minimè fida, quippe historica, ex miraculis nata. These thought they had laid hold on Christ: but they did but as children, that think they catch the shadow on the wall. Ther's a great deal of this false faith abroad. The sorcerers seemed to do as much as Moses.

Verse 24. Did not commit himself unto them] Who yet would needs obtrude upon him. None are so impudent as hypocrites; they deceive themselves, they would do others; God too. I read not (saith one) in Scripture of an hypocrites conversion; and what wonder? for whereas, after sin, conversion is left as a means to cure all other sinners; what means to recover him, who hath converted conversion it self into sin?

Pract. of piety, p. 161. Nihil corde ac venibus magis intimum; adeo ut per multos meatus atque recursus anfractus deferri elaborati cibi debeant, antequam cò possint perduci. Lemnius de complex. l. 1. pag. 26.

Verse 25. For he knew what was in man,] Artificers know the nature and properties of their works; and shall not Christ of the heart? He searcheth mens hearts, and tryeth the reins, which of all their inwards are the most inward: besides, that they are the seats and springs of all our thoughts and lusts. Deus intimior nobis intimo nostro, saith one, God is neerer to us then we are to our selves, and knows our thoughts long before; as a Gardiner knows what flowers he shall have at spring, because he knows the roots.

Chap. III.

Verse 1. A Ruler of the Jews]

Ne si solos simplices vocasset, credi posset quod fuissent ex simplicitate decepti. Δαιμων quasi Δαήμων. Plato.

Either a chieftain of the Pharisees, as he was, Luk. 14. 1. Or one of the Sanhedrin, one of the seventy Seniors, whose learning hung in their light, 1 Cor. 2. 8. Yet was neither learned Nathaniel, nor Nicodemus a Master of Israel excluded from Christs Discipline (saith Joan. de Turrecremata;) lest if he had admitted simple men only, it might have been thought they were deceived through their simplicity.

Verse 2. We know] But will not know. Hence they became sinners against the holy Ghost, Mat. 12. 23, &c. The Devil that commits this sin every day, is full of Objective knowledge, and thence hath his name.

Miracula à diabolo edita sunt præstigiæ, impostura, mantasmata, ludibria. Bucholc. τοῖς ἁμαρτίαις ἐπιγενόμενοι 1 Pet. 2. 24. 2 Pet. 1. 3.

No man can do these miracles] Those juglers of Egypt, Jannes and Jambres, did but cast a mist, and beguile the sight of Pharaoh, and his followers. How Tindal hindred the Jugler of Antwerp, that he could not do his feats, see Acts and Monuments, fol. 985.

Verse 3. Except a man be born again,] E supernis, Erasm. Except a man be first un-made (as St. Peter expounds our Saviour) and new-made up again; except the whole frame of the old conversation be dissolved, and a better erected, ther's no heaven to be had. Heaven is too hot to hold unregenerate persons; no such dirty dog ever trampled on that golden pavement, it is an undefiled inheritance.

Verse 4. How can a man, &c.] He understands no more of the Doctrine of Regeneration (though he could not but have often read of it in Ezekiel, and elswhere) then a common cowherd doth the darkest precepts of Astronomy, 1 Cor. 2. 14. All this is gibbrish to him. Water ariseth no higher then the spring whence it came; so the natural man can ascend no higher then nature.

Verse 5. Be born of water, and the holy Ghost] That is, of the holy Ghost working like water, cooling, cleansing, &c. In allusion, belike, to that first washing of a new-born babe from his blood, Ezek. 16. 4. Or else to those Levitical washings, and not without some reference to Nicodemus, and his fellow-Pharisees, who placed a great part of their piety in external washings, as do also the Mahometans at this day. Every time they ease nature (saith one that had been amongst them) they wash those parts, little regarding who stands by. If a dog chance to touch their hands, they wash presently; before prayer they wash both face and hands, sometimes the head and privities, &c.

Blunts voyage into Levant. pag. 100.

Verse 6. That which is born of the flesh, &c.] Whole man is in evil, and whole evil in in man. Quintilian saw not this; and therefore said, that it is more marvel that one man sinneth, then that all men should live honestly; sin is so much against mans nature. Many also of the most dangerous opinions of Popery (as justification by works, state of perfection, merit, supererogation, &c.) spring from hence; that they have sleight conceits of concupiscence, as a condition of nature. Yet some of them (as Michael Bains professor at Lovain, &c.) are found in this point.

Digitized by Google

Verse 7. Marvel not, &c.] Viz. Through unbelief, for otherwise it is a just wonder, far beyond that of natural birth; which, but that it is so ordinary, would surely seem a miracle. Miracula assiduitate vilescunt.

Verse 8. The wind bloweth, &c.] Libero & vago impetu. Watch therefore the gales of grace: we cannot purchase this wind (as Saylers in Norway are said to do) for any mony. This Hawk, when flown, will not easily be brought to hand again.

Verse 9. How can these things be?] Christ had told him that the manner of the Spirits working is incomprehensible, and yet he is at it, How can these things be? Sed scribo haec frustra (saith Luther in a certain Letter of his to Melanchthon) quia tu secundum philosophiam vestram, has res ratione regere, hoc est, ut ille ait, cum ratione insanire pergis. Luth. apud Scultet. in Annalib.

Verse 10. Art thou a master, &c.] The Pharisees and Philosophers, for their learning, are called, Princes of this world, 1 Cor. 2. 8. And yet, had they known, they would never have Crucified the Lord of Glory. Indocti rapiunt calum, &c. The poor are Gospellized; not only receive it, but are changed by it. But Bellarmine cannot find in all the Bible, where remission of sin is promised to such as confess their sins to God. εὐαγγελίζονται. Mat. 11. 5. Promissio de remittendis peccatis eis qui confitentur Deo non videtur ullis extare in divinis literis. Bell. de Justif. lib. 1. cap. 21.

And knowest not these things] Carolostadius was eight years Doctor when he began to read the Scriptures, whereof he had very little understanding: and yet at the taking of his degree, he had been pronounced Sufficientissimus.

Verse 11. Ye receive not our Witness,] Our Saviour joyns himself with the Prophets (whose writings Nicodemus had read so negligently) and takes it for a dishonor, that he should have written for men the great things of his Law, and they continue strangers thereto, Hos. 8. 12.

Verse 12. If I have told you earthly things,] That is, spiritual things, under earthly gross similitudes, of wind, water, &c. In the Mysterie of Christ, the best of us are acutè obstusi. But for the natural man, that cannot tell the nature of the wind, or enter into the depth of the flower, or the grass, &c. how should he possibly have the wit to enter into the deep things of God, especially if darkly delivered?

Verse 13. And no man hath ascended, &c.] Object. Therefore all but Christ are shut out of heaven. Sol. The Church and Jesus make but one Christ, 1 Cor. 12. 12. He counts not himself full without his members, who are called the fulness of him that filleth all, Ephes. 1. ult. Caput & corpus unus Christus.

Verse 14. And as Moses lifted up the serpent,] There it was, vide & vive: here, crede & vive. And as there, he that beheld the serpent, though but with a weak squint-eye, yea, but with half an eye, was cured. So here, if we look upon Christ with the eye, though but of a weak faith, we shall be saved. Doctor Cruciger when he lay a dying, cryed out, Credo languidâ fide, sed tamen fide. I believe with a weak faith, but with a faith, such as it is. Selneccer. in paedag. Christ. pag. 321.

Verse 15. That whosoever believeth,] Faith is the souls hand, (fidei mendica manus; saith one) foot, whereby we come to Christ, mouth (hic credere est edere, saith Austine) wing, whereby we soar up, and fetch Christ into the heart. Luther. Ioh. 6. 35, 36.

Verse 16. God so loved the world,] This is a sic without a sicut, there being nothing in nature wherewith to parallel it. The world, that is, all mankind fallen in Adam. This the Apostle fitly calleth Gods Philanthropy, Tit. 3. 4. it being a sweet favour to the whole kinde of us, that any are saved by Christ.

Verse 17. Not to condemn the world,] Unless it be by accident, because they will not be saved; they will not have heaven upon Christs terms, they will not part with their fat and sweet (with the Vine in Jothams Parable) no not for a Kingdom; they will not be constrained to live happily, raign eternally. Iudg. 9. At Paris ut vivat regnet, beatus Cogi posse negat. Hor. epist. 2.

Verse 18. Is condemned already] The sentence is passed, the halter about his neck; there wants no more then to turn him off the ladder of life, and he is gone for ever. In the mean while, he hangs but by one rotten twined thread, over hell-fire.

Because

Digitized by Google

συγκεκλεισμένοι. Gal. 3 23.

Becauſe he hath not believed] He ſaith not, becauſe he hath committed adultery, murther. There is no righteouſneſs now but of faith; no ſin (ſaith one) but from unbelief; for thy ſins againſt the Law are not imputed unto thee, if thou do but believe the Goſpel. It is unbelief that ſhuts a man up cloſe priſoner in the Laws dark dungeon, whence faith only can fetch us out.

Verſe 19. This is condemnation] This is hell above ground, and aforehand. Affected ignorance is the leproſie in the head, which makes a man undoubtedly unclean, and utterly to be excluded, Levit. 13.44.

Herodot. ἐπιφάνη. Tit. 2. 12.

Verſe 20. For every one that doth evil] As the Ethiopians are ſaid to curſe the Sun for its bright and hot ſhining. Chriſt came a light into the world; his Goſpel hath appeared as a Beacon on a hill, or as the Sun in heaven; his Saints ſhine as lamps, &c. Now when men hate theſe, as thieves do a torch in the night, and flie againſt the lights as Bats do, this is condemnation.

Rex Platon.

Verſe 21. But he that doth truth] Tenebriones Papiſtæ malè ſibi conſcii, Æternùm atri, & tetriſunto, & habentor, qui non tam cute, quam corde Æthiopici, Solem quò magis luceat, eò magis execrentur. But our hearts (as our climate) have more light then heat. Sir Philip Sidney uſed to ſay of Chaucer, that he wondred how in thoſe miſty times he could ſee ſo clearly; and how we in theſe clearer times go on ſo ſtumblingly. If any be 1 Cor. 14. 38. ignorant, let him be ignorant, ſaith Paul. And ſo much any one knows, as he does of 2 Cor. 5. 21. Gods will, as the Apoſtle intimates, when he tells us, that Chriſt knew no ſin, that is, he did none.

Aug.

Wrought in God] Right. 1. Quoad fontem, a pure heart. 2. Quoad finem, the glory of God. Elſe they are but ſplendida peccata, ſins in a ſilken ſuit.

Malim mihi malè eſſe quàm molliter. Sen.

Verſe 22. And baptized] Where ever we are we muſt be doing. If Moſes may not do juſtice in Egypt, he will do it in Midian, Exod. 2. 14, 17. I had rather be ſick, ſaid Seneca, then out of imployment.

D. Ward Colum. lib. 1. in præfat. Cic. de Orat. ad Brut.

Verſe 23. And John alſo was baptizing] Here Miniſters may learn not to be wanting to their duties, though God ſtir up others about them of greater parts, and better ſucceſs, to obſcure them. Verbi miniſter es, hoc age, was Mr. Perkins his Motto. Summum culmen affectantes, ſatis honeſtè vel in ſecundo faſtigio conſpiciemur, ſaith Columella. And, Prima ſequentem, honeſtum eſt in ſecundis, tertiiſve conſiſtere, ſaith Cicero. Every man cannot excel, nor is it expected.

Act. and Mon. fol. 1565. Μετὰ Κάτωνος ἐν εἱρκτῇ, μᾶλλον ἢ μετὰ σοῦ ἑστάναι βούλομαι. Dio Caſſ.

Verſe 24. Caſt into priſon] The Primitive Biſhops were found more frequently in Priſons, then Palaces. Bocardo became a Colledge of Quondams, as the Marian Martyrs merrily called it. If Petronius could tell Cæſar, that he had rather be with Cato in the Priſon-houſe, then with him in the Senate-houſe: why ſhould it grieve any to ſuffer bonds with, and for Chriſt? Chryſoſtom had rather be Paul a priſoner of Jeſus Chriſt, then Paul rapt up into the third Heaven. Homil. in Epheſ. 3. 1.

About purifying] That is, Baptiſm; called elſewhere, the Laver of regeneration, Tit. 4. 5. and by a Father, Ἀλεξιτήριον καθάρσιον, a purging preſervative. Not the putting away of the filth of the fleſh, ſaith Peter, but a better thing, 1 Pet. 3. 21.

Verſe 25. And the Jews] Who joyned themſelves to Johns Diſciples, craftily, and maliciouſly, that they might both ſet againſt Chriſt Like as the Jeſuits at this day, will cunningly comply with the Lutherans, and ſeem to ſide with them, that they may both ſet againſt the Calviniſts.

Verſe 26. Rabbi, he that was with thee] They envied for Johns ſake, as Joſhua did for Moſes, and with as little thank. John would have been glad they had gone after Chriſt, as Andrew did. Howſoever, it was good news to John, that Jeſus was ſo frequented and buſied.

Videtur hominis appellatio magnum habere momentum, &c.

Verſe 27. A man can receive nothing] There is much in this word [Man] as Beza thinks, to ſet forth the moſt miſerable indigency of all mankind by nature. The Greeks, when they ſet forth one miſerable indeed, they call him τρισανθρωπον, thrice a man.

Equidem pluris fecerim juſtam commendationem, &c. 3 Joh. 12.

Verſe 28. Ye your ſelves bear me witneſs] I ſhould rather chuſe the juſt commendation of one good man (ſaith Rolloc upon this Text) then the fooliſh admiration of a whole multitude. Demetrius hath good report of the truth it ſelf; that's enough for him.

Verſe 29. The friend of the bridegroom] Such is every faithful Miniſter, 2 Cor. 11. 2. whoſe office is to wooe for Chriſt, and not (as ſome) to ſpeak one word for him, and two for himſelf. This is foul-play.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 30. He muſt encreaſe, but, &c.] And this was Johns great joy. That man hath true light, that can be content to be outſhined by others; and nothing will more try a mans grace, then queſtions of emulation. Ezekiel can commend Daniel his Contemporary, matching him with Noah, and Job, for his power in prayer. And Peter highly praiſeth Pauls Epiſtles, though he had been publikely reproved by him at Antioch. Yea, Plato called Ariſtotle ἀνεγνωσμένον & νοῦν the intelligent Reader. And Ariſtotle is ſaid to have ſet up an Altar in honor of Plato, with this inſcription. Ezek. 14. 14. 2 Pet. 3. Gal. 2. Diogen. Laert. in Hermip. lib.

Nulla ferent talem ſecla futura virum.

But Luther ſhewed himſelf ſo much diſcontent at the Reformation wrought at Wittenberg in his abſence, by Caroloſtadius, becauſe it was done without him, that he doubted not to approve thoſe things, that till then he had diſapproved, and to diſapprove what before he had approved of. So hard it is for a man willingly, and gladly to ſee his equals lifted over his head in worth, and opinion. Self-love makes men unreaſonable, and ever teacheth them to turn the glaſs, to ſee themſelves bigger, others leſſer then they are, &c. Cum Lutherus ex ſua eremo Witenbergam rediſſet, &c. Alſted. Chro. pag. 520.

Verſe 31. He that cometh, &c.] Hitherto Chriſt hath been compared with John: In the reſt of the Chapter, he ſtands compared; Firſt, with all men. Secondly, with the faithful, and infinitely preferred before them all. He is the chief of ten thouſand; or the Standard-bearer, which ever are the goodlieſt. Cant. 5. 10.

Is earthy] Terra eſt, ſo Auguſtine renders it in the ſame ſenſe, as he is fleſh, ver. 6. God will ſmite this earth with the rod of his mouth, Iſa. 11. 6.

Speaketh of the earth] As Ducklings have always their bills in the mud, as Swine are ever rooting in the mire; Like that fiſh in the Goſpel, either dumb, or nothing but gold in their mouths.

Verſe 32. No man receiveth] i. e. None to ſpeak of: Comparatively none. Rari quippe boni, ſaith the Poet. Rari ſunt qui Philoſophantur, ſaith Ulpian the Lawyer. Perraro grati reperiuntur, ſaith the Orator. All men have not faith, ſaith the Apoſtle; No, not of thoſe that profeſs the faith. Though a Gun be diſcharged at a whole flight of birds, there are but a few killed. Though the Net be ſpred over the whole pond, but a few fiſhes are taken: Many thruſt their heads into the mud, and the Net paſſeth over them: So moſt hearers do buſie their heads with their own ſenſual or worldly thoughts, and ſo eſcape the power of the word. Iuvenal. ſat. 13. p. de excuſ. Leg 5. Cicer. 2 Theſſ. 3. 2.

Verſe 33. Hath ſet to his ſeal, &c.] Hath given God a teſtimonial, ſuch as is that, Deut. 32. 4. After which, God alſo ſets his ſeal (quaſi in redhoſtimentum) to the believer, Epheſ. 1. 13.

Verſe 34. Speaketh the words of God] This the true believer is convinced of; and therefore ſets to his ſeal, as to an undoubted truth. He is fully perſwaded, as Saint Luke was. Luk. 1. 1.

Verſe 35. The Father loveth the Son] Therefore faith may have firm footing. God hath laid help upon one that is mighty, Pſal. 89. 19. that our faith and hope may be in God, 1 Pet. 1. 21.

Verſe 36. Hath eternal life] 1. In promiſſo. 2. In pretio. 3. In primitiis. He ſtands already on the Battlements of heaven, he hath one foot in the porch of Paradiſe.

He that believeth not] There is a two-fold unbelief, one in the underſtanding, and is oppoſed to faith: the other in the will and lives, and is oppoſed to obedience. For cure of both, God hath promiſed to write his Laws, both in the minds of his people, and in their hearts too. ἀπιστία ἀπειθεία. Heb. 8. 10.

The wrath of God abides upon him] μένει, as in its manſion-place, as upon its baſis, tanquam trabali clavo fixa, ſaith one; there it neſtles, ſettles, and never will away. The unbeliever can neither avoid it, nor abide it.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

Chap. IV.

Verſe 1. Baptized more Diſciples]

Broughton on Dan. 9.

BAptizing was uſed by the Jews, before John, or Chriſt took it up, from which cuſtom, though brought in without Commandment, our Saviour authorizeth a ſeal of entring into his Reſt; uſing the Jews weakneſs, as an allurement thither.

Verſe 2. Jeſus himſelf baptized not] A ſweet comfort, that Chriſt is ſaid to baptize thoſe whom the Diſciples baptized. The Sacraments adminiſtred by Miniſters are no leſs effectual, then if we had received the ſame from Chriſts own hands.

Verſe 3. He left Judea] God muſt be truſted, not tempted.

Malim præſente Chriſto eſſe in inferno, quàm abſente eo in cœlo. Luther. in Gen. c. 30.

Verſe 4. He muſt needs go] Happy for them, that they lay in our Saviours way, to be lookt upon; his feet drop fatneſs. Luther had rather be with Chriſt in hell, then in heaven without him.

Gen. 48. 22.

Verſe 5. Jacob gave to his ſon Joſeph] Having firſt wonn it with his ſword and his bow; that is, with his prayer and ſupplication (ſaith the Chaldee paraphraſt:) which as Sauls ſword, and Ionathans bow, never return empty, 2 Sam. 1. 22.

μετριοπαθεῖν, Proportionatè ad miſeriam condolere. Heb. 5. 2. Heb. 13. 3. Englands Elizab. p. 186.

Verſe 6. Jeſus therefore being wearied] And in that he himſelf had ſuffered, he was the more able and apt to help this poor Samariteſs. So the Apoſtle bids us pity thoſe in adverſity, as being our ſelves in the body, i. e. in the body of fleſh and frailty, ſubject to like miſery. He that hath had the tooth-ake, will pity thoſe that have it. Non ignara mali, &c. We are Orphans all (ſaid Queen Elizabeth, in her ſpeech to the children of Chriſts Hoſpital) let me enjoy your prayers, and ye ſhall be ſure of mine aſſiſtance.

Berman. de Originib.

Verſe 7. A woman of Samaria] A poor Tankerd-bearer, ſuch as Feſtus calls Canalicolas, quòd circa canalem fori conſiſterent, becauſe they were much about the Conduits.

Verſe 8. To buy meat] For our Saviour lived not upon alms: but although he became poor to make us rich, 2 Cor. 8. 9. Yet had he a bag, and that ſo big as that it required a bearer, Ioh. 12. 6. his friends and followers ſupplying him with money for his neceſſary uſes, and for relief of the poor.

Verſe 9. Askeſt drink of me?] The Samaritans knew that they were ſlighted of the Jews, and took it ill, Gens hæc (ſaith Giraldus Cambrenſis, of the Iriſh) ſicut & natio quævis barbara, quanquam honorem neſciant, honorari tamen ſupra modum affectant. No man would be ſlighted, how mean ſoever.

Antiq. lib. 12. cap. 7, 8.

For the Iews have no dealings, &c.] Ioſephus writeth, that at Samaria was a Sanctuary opened by Sanballat, for all Renegado Jews, &c. The Jews therefore hated the preſence, the fire, the faſhion, the books of a Samaritan. Neither was there any hatred loſt on the Samaritans part; for if he had but touched a Jew, he would have thrown himſelf into the next water, clothes and all; both of them equally ſick of a noli me tangere.

Epiphan.

ἐυεργέτης.

Verſe 10. The gift of God] That is, Chriſt himſelf, called by St. Paul, the benefit, 1 Tim. 6. 2. Let him not be to us as Iethers ſword to him, which he drew not, uſed not; but as Goliahs ſword to David, none to that; None but Chriſt, none but Chriſt, ſaid that Martyr.

ἀπωθεῖσθε.

Verſe 11. Sir, thou haſt no Bucket] See how witty we are naturally, with our armed dilemma's, to reject grace offered, and with both hands as it were, to thruſt away from us eternal life, Act. 13. 46.

Verſe 12. Our father Iacob] Ioſephus tell us, that theſe Samaritans, whiles the Jews proſpered, would needs be their dear Couſens; but when they were in adverſity (as under Antiochus) they would utterly diſown, and diſavow them. They wrote to Antiochus, becauſe he tormented the Jews, to excuſe themſelves as none ſuch; and they ſtiled Antiochus, the mighty God; Oh baſeneſs!

Verſe 13. Shall thirſt again] So ſhall all they, quibus avaritiæ aut ambitionis ſalſugo bibulam animam poſſidet. He that ſeeks to ſatisfie his luſts, goes about an endleſs buſineſs. Give, give, is the Horſleeches language. The worldling hath enough to ſink him, not to ſatisfie him.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 14. Shall never thirſt] His lips water not after homely proviſion, that hath lately taſted of delicate ſuſtenance.

Clitorio quicunq; ſitim de fonte leváerit,
Vina fugit, gandetq; meris abſtemius undis. Ovid Metamor. lib. 15.

Verſe 15. Sir, give me this water] We would all have immortality, but here on earth. Some think ſhe jeers our Saviour here; who therefore in the next words arrouſeth her conſcience.

Verſe 16. Go call thy husband] It was a great favour in Chriſt to receive that ſinful woman, that waſhed his feet with her tears, and wiped them with her hair, and not to kick her out of his preſence, as the Phariſees expected. How much greater is this, to fetch in an idolatrous harlotry that fled from him, to entertain her that had rejected him? &c. Well might St. Paul ſay, that the grace of our Lord is exceeding abundant, or doth abound to flowing over, as the ſea eaſily over-floweth mole-hils. ὑπερπλεόναζεν. 1 Tim 1. 14.

Verſe 17. I have no husband] Lucretius ait, quaſdam mulieres effugere unius viri torum, ut omnium fiant torus. Sphinx Philoſ.

Ieſuita etiam ſunt
Connubiſanctifuga, clammeretricitega.

Verſe 18. He whom thou now haſt, &c.] Here he comes home to her conſcience; ſo muſt all that will do good on it, ſtriving not ſo much to pleaſe, as to profit. Bees are killed with honey but quickned with vineger. The Eagle though ſhe love her young ones dearly, yet ſhe pricketh and beateth them out of the neſt; ſo muſt Preachers drive men out of the neſt of pleaſure. John Speiſer, preacher at Auſborough in Germany, did his work ſo well at firſt, that the common ſtrumpets left the Brothel-houſes (then tolerated) and betook themſelves to a better courſe, Anno 1523. Yet afterwards he revolted to the Papiſts, and miſerably periſhed. Sculter. Annal. 118.

Verſe 9 Sir, I perceive that thou art a Prophet] To the hid man of the heart, the plain ſong ever makes the beſt muſick. The Corinthian Idiot, convinced of all, and having the ſecrets of his heart ript up by the two-edged ſword, falls down upon his face, worſhiping God, and reporteth that God is in the Miniſters of a truth. 1 Pet. 3. 4. 1 Cor. 14. 24, 25.

Verſe 20. Our fathers, &c.] No ſooner doth ſhe acknowledge him a Prophet, but ſhe ſeeks to be ſatisfied in a caſe of Conſcience. Proh ſtuporem noſtrum! Woe to our dulneſs.

Verſe 21. The ſhall neither in this mountain, &c.] Herods temple at Jeruſalem was ſo ſet on fire by Titus his ſouldiers, that it could not be quenched by the induſtry of man. And at the ſame time Apollo's Temple at Delphi was utterly overthrown by earthquakes, and thunderbolts, and neither of them could ever ſince be repaired. The concurrence of which two miracles (ſaith mine Author) evidently ſheweth, that the time was then come when God would put an end both to Jewiſh Ceremonies, and heatheniſh Idolatry: that the Kingdom of his Son might be the better eſtabliſhed. Godw. Antiq. Heb.

Verſe 22. We know what we worſhip] Chriſt alſo, as man, worſhippeth, being leſs then himſelf as God: Chriſt is worſhipped by Angels, as God, being greater then himſelf as man.

Ye worſhip ye know not what] And yet theſe Samaritans thought themſelves the only right worſhippers: As Turks hold themſelves the only Muſulmans, that is, true believers: as Hermotimus the Stoick in Lucian, thought his Sect the beſt of all other; as being ignorant of any other himſelf.

Verſe 23. The Father ſeeketh ſuch] Oh how ſhould this fire up our hearts to ſpiritual worſhip! that God ſeeks for ſuch, with, Let me ſee thy face, hear thy voice, &c. He ſolliciteth ſuitors. Cant. 2. 14.

Verſe 24. God is a Spirit] Omnes nominis Iehova litera ſunt ſpirituale, ut denotetur Deum eſſe ſpiritum. Though, to ſpeak properly, God is not a ſpirit. For firſt, ſpirit ſignifies breath, which indeed is a body; but becauſe it is the fineſt body, the moſt ſubtile, and moſt inviſible; therefore immaterial ſubſtances, which we are not able to conceive, are repreſented unto us under this name. Secondly, God is above all notion, all name. Afri dicunt Deum ignotum Amon. i. e. Heus tu, quis es? One being asked what God is; anſwered, Si ſcirem, Deus eſſem. That which Auguſtine ſaith concerning time (the meaſure of all our motions) may much more be ſaid concerning God, in whoſe hands are Alſted. Plut. lib. de Iſid. & Oſirid.

Digitized by Google

Conf. 11. cap. 14. are all our times and motions: Si nemo ex me quærat, scio: Si quærenti explicare velim nescio. When I am not asked, methinks I know somewhat of him: But let me go about to say what he is, and I find I know nothing at all.

In spirit and truth] As opposed to formality and hypocrisie.

Verse 25. I know that Messias, &c.] As who should say, we are not altogether so ignorant as you would make us, vet. 23. A dead woman must have four men to carry her out, as the Proverb is: we are apt to think our peny good silver.

Verse 26. I that speak unto thee, &c.] No sooner do we think of Christ with any the least true desire after him, but he is presently with us. He invited himself to Zacheus his table, &c. Tantum velis, & Deus tibi præoccurret, said a Father.

Beza. Verse 27. That he talked with the woman] Solum cum sola. He might do that we must beware of, lest concupiscence kindle. Abraham may see Sodom burning, Lot may not.

Yet no man said] All ill thoughts, and sinister surmises, of superiors especially, are to be presently suppressed, and strangled in the birth.

Verse 28. Left her water-pot] She had now greater things in hand, better things to look after. As Alexander, hearing of the riches of the Indies, divided his Kingdom among his Captains.

Verse 29. Come see a man, &c.] Weak means may, by Gods blessing, work great matters. He can make the words of Naamans servants greater in operation, then the words of great Elisha, and by a poor captive girl bring him to the Prophet.

Verse 30. Then they went out] More to see the news, then else: as Moses his curiosity led him nearer the bush, where-hence he was called. It is good to come to the Ordinances, though but for novelty: absence is without hope. What a deal lost Thomas by being out of the way but once.

Verse 31. Master, eat.] Animantis cujusq; vita in fuga est, and must be repaired by nutrition, in a natural course. Only, we must eat to live, and not live to eat only, as belly-Gods.

1 Cor. 3. 3. Verse 32. I have meat to eat, &c.] Abrahams servant would not eat, til he had dispatcht his errand, Gen. 24. 33. When we are to wooe for Christ, we should forget our own interests and occasions, Quærite primum, &c.

Verse 33. Hath any man brought, &c.] Are not these yet carnal, and talk as men? How dull and thick brain'd are the best, till God rent the vail, and illighten both Organ and Object?

Job 23. 12. Mat. 21. 17. 23. Verse 34. My meat is to do the will,] Job preferred it before his necessary food, that that should keep him alive. So did Christ, when disappointed of a break-fast at the barren fig tree, and coming hungry into the City, he went not into a victualling-house, but into the Temple, where he taught the people most part of that day.

Verse 35. Say ye not, there are yet three moneths.] As who should say, ye so long for the time, that ye count how many moneths, weeks, days it is to harvest: Should ye not be much more sollicitous of such an heavenly harvest? These Samaritans do but hang for mowing, &c.

Verse 36. That he that soweth, &c.] That is, that both the Prophets that sowed, and the Apostles that reaped, &c. for the people were prepared by the writings of the Prophets to be wrought upon by the Apostles. The Samaritans also had the Bible, agreeing for most part, with that we have from the Jews The Copy of this Samaritan Bible was first brought from Damascus into Christendom by one Petrus de Valle, An. Dom. 1626.

Verse 37. That saying true, &c.] Camerarius recites the Senary at large.

Ἄλλοι μὲν σπείρει· ἄλλοι δ' ἄμητον ἀμήσουσι.

κεκοπιάκασι κοπιάω of κόπτω. Verse 38 Other men have laboured] Laboured even to lassitude, as the word signifies. The Ministry is not then an easie trade, an idle mans occupation. Luther was wont to say, Sudor Oeconomicus est magnus, Politicus major, Ecclesiasticus maximus: The householder hath somewhat to do, the Magistrate more, but the Minister most of all.

Verse 39. For the saying of the woman.] An unlikely means to effect so great a matter. But what's that to the Almighty? So Junius professeth, that the very first thing that turned him from Atheism, was conference with a Countrey man of his, not far from Florence. The next was, the Majesty of the Scriptures, which he observed in Joh. 1.

Act. and Mon. fol. 767. So for our fore-fathers in times of Popery, Mr. Fox observeth, that by the reading of Chaucers books, some were brought to the knowledge of the truth. And in that rarity of or books, and want of teachers, this one thing I greatly marvel at (ſaith he) to note in the Regiſters, and conſider how the word of God did multiply ſo exceedingly, as it did amongſt them. For I find that one neighbour reſorting to, and conferring with another, eſtſoons, with a few words of their firſt or ſecond talk, did win and turn their minds to that, wherein they deſired to perſwade them, touching the truth of Gods word & Sacraments. Ibid. 750.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 40. Were come unto him.] We no ſooner believe, but we would fain ſee, and be brought à ſpe ad ſpeciem.

Verſe 41. Becauſe of his own word.] This is it alone that is the foundation of faith, and converts the ſoul, Pſal. 19 7. That of good wives winning their husbands, 1 Pet. 3. 1. is meant by way of preparation only in general. And that of winning a ſoul by private admonition, Jam. 5. ult. is meant of perſwading them to ſome good duty, or to receive ſome truth, or to forſake ſome one evil or error.

Verſe 42. Not becauſe of thy ſaying.] Properly, becauſe of thy prittle-prattle. So perhaps it ſeemed to ſome of them at firſt, who believed indeed when they heard him. Plato gives a good rule, Conſider not ſo much τὶς as τὶ, who ſaith, as what is ſaid. Prejudicate opinion bars up the underſtanding: muddy water in a veſſel cauſeth the beſt liquor to run over. Διὰ τὴν σὴν λαλίαν, propter loquacitatem tuam. Intùs exiſtens prohibet alienum.

Verſe 43. After two days he departed.] Though never ſo much made of, we muſt away, when there is ſomething elſewhere to be done for God.

Verſe 44. Jeſus himſelf teſtified.] Had teſtified, when he was caſt out at Nazareth: therefore he came no more there. A Miniſter that can do no good on't in the place where he lives, is bound to remove, though the fault be not in him, but the people, ſaith an Interpreter here, otherwiſe (if for ſelf-reſpects he there abide) it is to be feared that he wil loſe his gifts, and either fall into errors and hereſies, or prove but a dull and dry Doctor. Metuendum eſt ne donum quod acceperis, amittas vel degeneres in errores, vel hæreſes, vel ſi rectineas puritatem doctrinæ, evadis tamen frigidus & aridus doctor Rolloc. in loc.

Verſe 45. The Galileans received him.] Though thoſe of Nazareth would not, others did. He that is ſent and gifted by God, ſhall have one where or other to exerciſe his gifts, as the Engliſh exiles at Geneva, Zurich, &c. as Zanchius, when he could not reſt at Argentina, was received at Clavenna. Zanch. Miſcel. epiſt. dedicat.

Having ſeen all the things he did, &c.] Chriſts miracles were as the Sermon-bell, that called them together. Theſe the men of Nazareth alſo had ſeen, but with prejudice, and therefore to no profit.

Verſe 46. A certain Nobleman.] One that belonged to the King: for ſo the vulgar flatteringly ſtiled Herod the Tetrach. Few Noble-men came to Chriſt: this, not till he was driven to him, by his ſons ſickneſs: Not many noble are called: if any, they are as black Swans, and thinly ſcattered in the firmament of a State, even like Stars of the firſt magnitude. Βασιλικὸς. A Royaliſt. 1 Cor. 1. 20.

Verſe 47. Beſought him that he would, &c.] Even Darius King of Perſia, can give order for prayers to be made at Jeruſalem, for the Kings life and his ſons (Ezra 6. 10.) when he had ſeen divers of his children die before him, as Cteſias relateth.

Verſe 48. Except ye ſee ſigns, &c.] Our Saviour firſt chides him, and upon his welbearing of that, accommodates him. He ſaw the Courtiers unbelief more dangerous to his ſoul, then the diſeaſe could be to his ſons body.

Verſe 49. Sir, come down.] He fumes not at reproof (as many great ones would have done, Tange montes, & fumigabunt) but ſuffers the word of exhortation, being ſubdued thereunto by affliction. Heb. 13.

Verſe 50. Thy Son liveth.] Is in very good health: for non eſt vivere, ſed valere vita: So God is better to us oft-times, then our prayers, then our hopes. Martial.

Verſe 51. Thy ſon liveth.] So the ſon was reſtored by his fathers faith. It is a benefit to be born of good parents. Perſonal goodneſs is profitable to poſterity.

Verſe 52. Then enquired he, &c.] By a ſweet providence, that God might be the more glorified, and the mans faith confirmed. All things co-operate, &c. Rom. 8. 28. So at the ſame time, wherein the States of Germany, (after long debate) concluded for the truth of the Goſpel. Luther came leaping out of his cloſet where he had been praying (though many miles diſtant) with vicimus, vicimus in his mouth So Muſcleborough field was woon by the Engliſh, the ſelf-ſame day and hour, wherein thoſe Balaams-blocks (idolatrous images) were burnt at London, by order of Parliament. Act. and Mon. fol. 663.

Verſe 53. And he himſelf believed.] With a juſtifying faith, introduced at firſt by a common faith.

Digitized by Google

Verse 54. This is again the second miracle] God keeps count of what he doth for us, and will call us to a reckoning. Should not we keep a regiſter? Write up the noble acts of the Lord? Make a Catalogue of them, ſuch an one as was that Judg. 10. 11, 12? Did not I deliver you from the Egyptians, and from the Amorites, and from the children of Ammon, and from the Philiſtims? The Zidonians alſo, and the Amalekites, and the Maonites did oppreſs you, and ye cried unto me, and I delivered you out of their hand. According to this form, and many the like in ſacred Scripture, we ſhoulld Poliſh and Garniſh, Embroyder and Embelliſh the Magnalia Dei, great works of God: For elſe we undervalue them, which he will not bear with.

Chap. V.

Verſe 1. A feaſt of the Jews.]

This was the feaſt of Pentecoſt. Others ſay, the Paſſeover, which came but once a year. The true Chriſtians (for whom the true Paſſeover was ſacrificed, 1 Cor. 5. 9.) keep a continual feaſt, or holy-day, with the unleavened bread of ſincerity and truth, ver. 8. Diogenes could ſay, That a good man keeps holy-days, and hath gaudies all the year about, Exod. 5. 1. Let my people go, that they may hold a feaſt unto me, In other meſſages it is, that they may ſerve me.

τὴν ἑορτὰν ἄγομεν

πᾶσαν ἡμέραν ἑορτὴν ἡγεῖται. Laert.

Verſe 2. Having five porches,] Built, belike, by ſome well-affected perſons, at the motion of Gods Miniſters, for the uſe of ſuch impotent folk, as here lay looking and languiſhing at Hopes Hoſpital: Like as King Edward the ſixth, was moved by a Sermon of Biſhop Ridleys, touching works of Charity, to grant his two Houſes in London, Bridewell and the Savoy, for ſuch like good uſes: together with lands and monies for their maintenance.

K. Edward 6. his life, by Sir I. Heyw. p. 169. &c.

Verſe 3. Of impotent folk.] That had tried all other ways, and could not otherwiſe be cured, Omnipotenti medico, nullus inſanabilis occurrit morbus.

Iſidor.

Verſe 4. For an Angel went down.] The miracle of this pool was granted to the Jews, partly to ſtrengthen them in the true worſhip of God under the perſecution of Antiochus, in the fail of Prophecie: partly to retain them in their religious courſe of Sacrificing to the true God, againſt the ſcoffs of the Romans (that were now their Lords.) Such a vertue being given to that water, wherein their Sacrifices were wont to be waſhed. See a more Soveraign bath then this, Zech. 13. 1. an ever-flowing, and over-flowing fountain, not for one at once, as here, but for all that come, they may waſh and be clean, waſh and be whole.

At a certain ſeaſon,] Once a year only, ſaith Tertullian. Others (more probably) at all their great feaſts, when the people met out of all parts at Jeruſalem, taking κατὰ diſtributively, as Mat. 27. 15.

Semel quotannis. Terd.

Troubled the Water] Not in a viſible ſhape, likely; but as it appeared by a viſible troubling of the waters, and a miraculous healing of the diſeaſed. But that troubled waters ſhould do cures, was the greater wonder: ſith holy-wells (as they call them) and waters that heal, are commonly moſt calm and clear. It was a witty alluſion hereunto of him that ſaid, Angels trouble the clear ſtream of Juſtice at certain times.

Verſe 5. Thirty and eight years.] A long while to be in miſery: but what is this to eternity of extremity? We need have ſomething to mind us of God, to bring us to Chriſt. King Alured prayed God always to ſend him ſome ſickneſs, whereby his body might be tamed, and he the better diſpoſed and affectioned to God-ward.

Verſe 6. And knew that he had been, &c.] Chriſts eye affected his heart, he could not but ſympathize, and ſuccor this poor creeple, out of his meer Philanthropy, which moveth him ſtill μετριοπαθῶν, to ſhew mercy according to the meaſure of our miſery, whereof he bears a part, Heb. 5. 2.

Lam. 3.

Verſe 7. I have no man, &c.] He looked that Chriſt ſhould have done him that good office; and could not think of any other way of cure. How eaſie is it with us to meaſure God by our model, to caſt him into our mould, to think we muſt needs go our way to work?

verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 8. Riſe, take up thy bed, &c.] A ſervile work upon the Sabbath day. This our Saviour here commends, not as a ſervile work, but for confirmation of the truth of a miracle, greatly tending to Gods glory: like as another time, he bad them give meat to the Damoſel he had raiſed, not for any neceſſity, but to enſure the cure.

Verſe 9. And immediatly the man.] Chriſts words are operative (together with his commands there goes forth a power, as Luk. 5. 17.) So they were in the Creation, Gen. 1. So they are ſtill in Regeneration, Iſa. 59. 21. Dei dicere, eſt officere.

Verſe 10. It is the Sabbath, it is not lawfull, &c.] Verè, ſed non ſincerè, It more troubled them, that Chriſt had healed him, then that the Sabbath had been broken by him. The poorer Swedes always break the Sabbath; ſaying, that its only for Gentlemen to keep that day.

Verſe 11. He that made me Whole, &c.] So it ſeems, Chriſt had healed him, in part, on the inſide alſo: and given him a ready heart to obey, though it were contrà gentes, as they ſay.

Verſe 12. What man is he.] Not that made thee whole, but that bad thee take up thy bed, &c. They diſſembled the former, and inſiſted only upon the later, which ſhews the naughtineſs of their hearts.

Verſe 13. Had conveyed himſelf away.] Leſt by his preſence, that work ſhould be hindered. True goodneſs is publick-ſpirited, though to private diſadvantage; and works for moſt part unobſerved, as the engine that doth all in great buſineſſes, is oft inward, hidden, not taken notice of.

Verſe 14. Findeth him in the Temple,] Praiſing God, likely, for his unexpected recovery. So Hezekiah; the firſt work he did when off his ſick-bed, Iſa. 38. 22.

Behold thou art made Whole, &c.] Here is, 1. Commemoratio beneficii. 2. Commonitio officii. 3. Comminatio ſupplicii. Ingentia beneficia, ingentia flagitia, ingentia ſupplicia. Magdeburgenſ. præf. ad cent. 4.

Verſe 15. Told the Jews.] Of a good intent, ſurely, to honor Chriſt: however it were taken by the ſpiteſull Jews, Probi ex ſuâ naturâ cæteros fingunt. The Diſciples could not imagine ſo ill of Judas, as it proved. Mary Magdalen thought the Gardner (who ever he were) ſhould have known as much, and loved Jeſus as well as ſhe did.

Verſe 16. Therefore did the Jews perſecute Jeſus.] This he fore-knew would follow, and yet he forbore not. In the diſcharge of our conſciences (rightly informed and regulated) we muſt not ſtand to caſt perils: but do our duties zealouſly, what ever come of it. This courage in Chriſtians, Heathens counted obſtinacy, but they knew not the power of the Spirit, nor the privy armor of proof that Saints have about their hearts.

Verſe 17. My Father worketh.] Yet without labor or laſſitude, in conſerving the whole Creature. This he doth every day, and yet breaketh not the Sabbath; Ergo nec ego.

Verſe 18. The Jews ſought the more.] Perſecution is (as Calvin wrote to the French King) Evangelii genus, the bad genius, the Devil that dogs the Goſpel. Eccleſia hæres crucis (ſaith Luther.) Truth breeds hatred, ſaith the Heathen, as the fair Nymphs did the ill-favoured Fauns and Satyrs. Veritas odium parit. Ter.

Verſe 19. The Son can do nothing, &c.] He denies not himſelf to be the Son, though they quarrelled him: but ſweetly ſets forth the Doctrine of his Deity, which they ſo much ſtomacked, and ſtumbled at.

Verſe 20. For the Father loveth the Son] This noteth that eternal power of doing miracles, that is in Chriſt. As that which follows, He will ſhew him greater works, &c. is to be referred to the declaration of that his power.

That ye may Wonder] Though ye believe not; for ſuch was the hardneſs of their hearts grown; as neither miniſtery, miſery, miracle, nor mercy could poſſibly mollifie: Behold, ye deſpiſers, and wonder, and periſh, Act. 13. 41.

Verſe 21. Raiſeth up the dead] Bringing them from the jaws of death, to the joys of life: which none can do but God alone.

Verſe 22. The Father judgeth no man] viz. The Father alone, but by the Son, to whom all judicatory power is committed.

Verſe 23. He that honoreth not the Son] As Jews and Turks do not. Nor Papiſts, that (upon the matter) deſpoil him of his threefold office, and ſo deny the Lord that bought them.

Verſe 24. He that heareth my Word] As death came into the world by the door of the the ear, so doth life eternal, *Isa.*55.3. God was in the still voice, and the Oracle bad, Hear ye him, Mat. 17.

Digitized by Google

Verse 25. The dead shall hear the voice] The dead in sins shall believe the promises, and shall live the life of grace here, and of glory in Heaven.

Verse 26. So hath he given to the Son] What wonder then, if faith, apprehending the infinite fountain of life, derive thence some rivolet of life, and apply the same to us, for spiritual quickning?

ὅτι id est καθότι, Beza.

Verse 27. Because he is the Son of man] Or, as he is the Son of man. By vertue of the hypostatical union, his manhood came as neer to God as could be. He had the best natural parts both of mind, Isa. 11. 2,3. and body, Psal. 45. 2. and the best supernatural, whereby he found favour also with God, Luk 2.52. for he had more neer familiarity with the Godhead, then ever had any creature; together, with a partner-agency with his Godhead, in the works of mediation, 1 *Tim.*2.5. In the state of exaltation, the Manhood hath, 1. Excess of glory. 2. The grace of adoration together with the Godhead. 3. Judiciary power, as here, and *Act.*17.30.

Mirari decet, non rimari.

Verse 28. Marvel not at this] And yet who can but marvel at this great mysterie of godliness, whereat Angels stand amazed? yea, whereat he himself wonders: and therefore cals his own name Wonderfull, *Isa.*9. 6. It is truly affirmed of Christ, that he is created, and uncreated, without beginning, and yet began in time, a Jew according to the flesh, and yet God blessed for ever, &c. The manner hereof is to be believed, not discussed; admired, not pried into, &c.

1 Thes.4. 16. His voice] Put forth by the Ministry of mighty Angels, and called by the Apostle κέλευσμα; a metaphor from Water-men, who call upon one another, and strike oars together, as it were with one consent.

Verse 29. They that have done good] In die judicii, plus valebit conscientia pura, quàm marsupia plena. Bern. Dan. 12. 1, 2. Though other things be darkly delivered; yet when the Jews were to lose land, and life, the Resurrection is plainly described. So Heb. 11. 35.

Cic. quartà in Verrem.

Unto the resurrection of damnation] As Pharaohs Baker came forth to be hanged, when the Butler was exalted. Good therefore is the counsel given us by the heathen Orator, Ita vivamus, ut rationem nobis reddendam arbitremur. The wicked shall come forth of their graves like filthy Toads, against that terrible storm, *Psal.*9. The Elements shall melt like scalding lead upon them, &c. 2 Pet. 3.

Verse 30. I can of mine own self do nothing] But by the power communicated unto me, in that eternal generation.

As I hear] So *ver.*19. as I see, which Beza understandeth to be spoken in respect of his humane nature, as it is hypostatically united to the Divine.

Verse 31. My witness is not true] That is, fit, firm, valid, foro humano. Concessio Rhetorica. Beza.

Virtutis stragulam pudefacis, said Diogenes, to Antipater; who being vicious, wore a white cloak.

Verse 32. There is another that beareth witness] God the Father, by this miracle wrought upon the impotent man. Give we real Testimony to our profession by our practice. Mallem obedire quam miracula facere, said Luther. Profligate professors, do put Religion to an open shame.

Verse 33. Ye sent unto John] As unto an Oracle: But when his answer pleased you not, you rejected it, of meer obstinacy and malice to my person and office. There is an odious unthankfulness in unbelief: For it rebelleth against the light, rejecteth the medicine, refuseth to be reformed, hateth to be healed. Wine is a strong remedy against hemlock: Yet mingled with it, doubleth the force of the poison: So it is with the word of life when mingled with unbelief.

Verse 34. That ye might be saved] This was that he sought in all his Oracles and Miracles. Salvation properly notes the privative part of our happinness; because it is easier to tell from what we are saved, then to what.

Nazianz.

Act. and Mon. fol. 1782.

Verse 35. He was a burning, &c.] Burning in himself, and shining to others: or as it was said of Basil, thundering in his Doctrine, and lightning in his life. And of Rogers and Bradford, that it was hard to say, whether there were more force of eloquence and utterance in preaching, or more holiness of life and conversation to be found in them. Like Aaron, they had Pomegranates for savour, as well as Bells for sound.

For a season to rejoyce] But he soon grew stale to them; so that they made no more reckoning reckoning of him, then of a reed shaken with the wind Mat. 11. 7. Principes favebant Luthero, sed jam iterum videtis ingratitudinem mundi erga ministros, &c. said good Melancthon, in the year of Grace, 1559.

Digitized by Google

Verse 36. The works which the Father hath given me] Loe, Christ accounts his work a gift: So Joh. 17. 4.

The works that I do, bare witness] Let our works likewise speak for us, Mat. 5. 16. as they did for the Primitive Christians; of whom Athenagoras (their Embassador to the Emperor) boldly saith; No Christian is evil mannered unless it be such as dissemble themselves to be Christians. And Justin Martyr confesseth of himself; that beholding the piety of Christians life, and constancy in death; he gathered, that it was the true Religion that they professed. Non aliunde noscibiles quam ab emendatione vitiorum, saith Tertullian of the Christians of his time. And Chrysostom speaketh of some in his days, whose lives were Angelical, they so walked up to their principles.

Verse 37. Hath born witness of me] By the voice from Heaven, and the descending of the holy Ghost in the shape of a Dove, Mat. 3. yet ye have neither heard his voice, nor seen his shape. Who so blind as he that will not see?

Verse 38. And you have not his Word abiding in you] As an ingraffed Word: ye have heard it, but with your bodily ears only, with those gristles that grow upon your heads: ye have not drawn up the ears of your minds, to the ears of your bodies, that one sound piercing both, ye might believe; ye have not mixt the word with faith in your hearts, as in a Vessel, &c.

Verse 39. Search the Scriptures] Audite sæculares, comparate vobis Biblia, animæ pharmaca, saith Chrysostom. But Bibles lye (like old Almanacks) moulding in corners, whiles play-books (the Devils Catechisms) are even worn out with over-diligent perusal. It is a sad complaint which Reverend Moulin makes of his Countrymen, the French Protestants; whiles they burned us, saith he, for reading the Scriptures we burnt with zeal, to be reading of them. Now with our liberty, is bred also negligence and disesteem of Gods Word. Is it not so also with us?

They are they which testifie of me] The Babe of Bethlehem is bound up in these swathing bands. He is both Author and Matter of the Scriptures, and is therefore called the Word. The dignity of the Scriptures (saith one) and the Majesty of Christ mutually look on one another; as the Sun doth on the Stars, and the Stars on the Sun. For as the excellency of the Sun appears by the glory of the Stars, to whom it giveth light: So the Majesty of Christ is manifest by the Scriptures, to whom he giveth credit. On the otherside, as the glory of the star is magnified, because it is the light of the Sun: so the credit of the Scripture is exalted, because they concern the Son of God.

Verse 40. Ye will not come to me] Though clearly convinced by the Scriptures. See their obstinacy and malice. Amos compareth such untamable, untractable, masterless monsters, to horses running upon a rock, where first they break their hoofs, and then their necks.

Verse 41. I receive not honor from men] q. d. I need you not, though I complain you come not to me. It is for your sakes that I seek to you; Christ could be happy, though all men should miscarry: as the Sun would shine, though all the world were blind. He seeks not ours, but us.

Verse 42. Ye have not the love of God] Though ye pretend zeal for his glory, to your opposing of me, yet there is aliud in titulo, aliud in pyxide. Hypocrites are like Egyptian Temples, beautiful without, but within, some Cat or such like thing to be worshipped.

Verse 43. Him will ye receive] As they did Barchochab; and that Pseudo-Moses (the Devil he was) that cozened so many of them in Crete, An. Dom. 434. perswading them to cast themselves after him into the Sea, which should part, and make them way into their own Countrey again, whereby many of them perished.

Verse 44. Which receive honor one of another] Faith empties a man of himself, purgeth upon ambition, and is an act of the will; else the seeking of praise with men, could be no impediment to the act of believing. Surely, as Pharaoh said of the Israelites, they are entangled in the Land, the wilderness hath shut them in: so may we say of many, they are entangled in the Creature, the world hath shut them in, they cannot come to Christ. They are shut up in the Cave of the world, as those five Kings in a Cave, Josh. 10.

Ego ad Choros, to dance a galliard. It was a formal toy, or jollity rather. Joh Manl. loc. com. 698.

Οὐ δεῖ τοὺς Χριστιανοὺς ἀπὸ τῶν λόγων ἐπιγινώσκεσθαι ἀλλὰ τῶν ἔργων. Athan. Tert. ad Scapulam.

Isa. 42. 19.

Jam. 1. 21.

Moulins Theophilus, p. 278.

Amos 6. 12.

Func. Chron.

Josh. 10. 18.

have

Digitized by Google

have hardneſs of heart, as a great ſtone, rolled to the mouth, and honors, riches, and pleaſures, as ſo many keepers, &c.

Verſe 45. Do not think that I] That is, that I only.

Even Moſes] So your faithful Miniſters (whom men pretend to love and reverence, but obey not their Doctrine) theſe ſhall judge you.

Verſe 46. For he wrote of me] Both clearly and myſtically, in the many ſacrifices and ceremonies of the Law. Whence Theodoret calleth Moſes, the main Ocean of Divinity, out of whom all the Prophets and Apoſtles have watered their ſeveral gardens. And Pareus cloſeth up his Commentary upon Geneſis, with theſe words, Quicquid Scripturarum ſacrarum deinc ſequitur, hujus eſt Commentarius.

τὸν τῆς Θεολογίας Ὠκεανὸν, ἐξ ὅπερ πάντες πόταμοι καὶ πάσα θάλαττα. Serm. 2. de prin.

Verſe 47. But if ye believe not his writings] He that will not take Gods word in one place, will take it in no place.

Chap. VI.

Verſe 1. After theſe things]

i. e. A Good while after; Herod having beheaded the Baptiſt, and being perplexed at the fame of Jeſus, whom therefore he deſired to ſee, but for an evil purpoſe, Luk. 9. 8, 9.

Verſe 2. And a great multitude followed him] Though he went privately into a deſert place belonging to Bethſaida, Luk 9. 10. The Sun of righteouſneſs could not be hid, for he had healing in his wings, Mal. 4. 2.

Verſe 3. And Jeſus went up into a mount] See the Note on Mat. 5. 1. He would have been private till the Paſſeover, and refreſhed himſelf with his Diſciples: But ſeeing God had now put a new opportunity into his hands of benefiting many, he would not neglect it.

Verſe 4. And the Paſſeover] The third Paſſeover (likely) after his Baptiſm. And this might occaſion him to ſpeak of the ſpiritual eating of himſelf the true Paſchal: For even Chriſt our Paſſeover was ſacrificed for us, 1 Cor. 5. 7.

Verſe 5. He ſaith unto Philip.] The People took no thought for food. Chriſt doth it for them. And ſurely if he ſo far provided for thoſe, that out of a ſudden motion, and no great good intention came out after him, can we think he will be wanting to thoſe that ſeek him conſtantly, and with full purpoſe of heart adhere unto him?

Verſe 6. And this he ſaid to prove him] To diſcover him to himſelf: For that a man is in truth that he is in a temptation. See the Note on Mat. 14 17.

Verſe 7. Two hundreth penny-worth] And where will you have half the money? Send them away therefore, rid your hands honeſtly of them, and let us reſt and refreſh our ſelves, as we reſolved to do when we firſt retired hither. Thus He.

Verſe 8. One of his Diſciples] He uttered the ſenſe of all the twelve, (Mar. 6. 37. being no whit wiſer then the reſt, though the eldeſt Diſciple of them all, Joh. 1.

Via tuta by Sir Hump. Linde. p. 164. Heyl. Geo. p. 533.

Verſe 9. Five Barley loaves, and two ſmall Fiſhes] Was not Tyraboſco hardly driven; when, from theſe five loaves, and two fiſhes, he concluded ſeven Sacraments? So in the ſecond Council of Nice under Irene, John (one of the Legates of the Eaſtern-Churches) proved the making of Images lawful, becauſe God had ſaid, Let us make man after our own Image. A ſound argument to overthrow one of Gods Commandments, and yet it prevailed.

Verſe 10. Make the men ſit down] And they did ſo, though they ſaw no ſenſe for it. This kind of blind obedience is very acceptable: Clauſis oculis Deum ſequi debemus ducem. We muſt wink and put our ſelves into Gods hand to be led whither he pleaſeth.

Verſe 11. He diſtributed to the Diſciples] Theſe five loaves, (by a ſtrange kind of Arithmetick) were multiplied by diviſion, and augmented by ſubſtraction. The Macedonians found, that not getting, but giving, is the way to thrive, 2 Cor. 9. 8. Ex fame quæſtum captabat Joſephus; & benignitate ſua emit Egyptum: Nos etiam cœlum. So in ſpiritual alms and good offices: Gods gifts grow in the hands of them that employ them, to feed many. Salienti aquarum fonti undas ſi tollas, nec exhauritur, nec extenuatur, nuatur, ſed dulceſcit. Scientia, docendi officio, dulcedinem ſentiat, non minutias.

D. Beddingf.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 12. When they were filled] See the Note on Mat. 14.20.

Verſe 13. Filled twelve baskets] See 1 King. 17.15,16. and Mat. 14.20. with the Note.

Verſe 14. This is of a truth, that Prophet] Yet anon they are at it, what ſign ſhewest thou? that you may know them to be the Phariſees Diſciples. Of whoſe ſour leaven alſo, that in the next verſe ſavours; where they would needs take him by force, to make him a King. They could not imagine a Meſſias, that had not an earthly Kingdom. Verſe 30.

Verſe 15. Take him by force] Superſtition will needs obtrude upon Chriſt will worſhip, whether he will or no, and deſpite him with ſeeming honors, as the Lycaonians would needs have ſtollen a Sacrifice upon Paul and Barnabas; and the Salvages of Nova Albion, upon Sir Francis Drake, and his company, at their parting with them. They had ſet it on fire ere we were aware, ſaith he; we laboured by all means to with-hold, or with-draw them, but could not prevail; till at length we fell to prayers, and ſinging of Pſalms, whereby they were allured immediatly to forget their folly, and leave their ſacrifice unconſumed, ſuffering the fire to go out; and imitating us in all their actions, they fell a lifting up their hands and eyes to heaven, as they ſaw us to do. The world encompaſſed by Sir Francis Drake, p. 81.

Verſe 16. His Diſciples went down to Sea] By Chriſts own command, Mat. 14.22. Mar. 6.45. yet they met with a ſore ſtorm. So may the beſt with trouble, in their moſt lawfull employments, Pſal. 34.18. But theſe make them look to their tackling, patience; to their anchor, hope; to their helm, faith; to their card, the Word; to their Captain, Chriſt, who is ever at hand.

Verſe 17. Jeſus was not come to them] This was worſe to them then the ſtorm. It was woful with Saul, when the Philiſtims were upon him, and God would not come at him, nor anſwer him. So when danger or death is upon a man, and God is far from him. That doom, Jer. 16.13. I will not ſhew you favor, was worſe then their Captivity. 1 S. m. 28.15.

Verſe 18.] See the Note on Mat. 14.24.

Verſe 19, 20. They were afraid] See Mat. 14.26,27.

Verſe 21. Immediatly the ſhip was at land] A dying Saint hath no ſooner taken death into his boſom, but he is immediatly landed at the Key of Canaan, at the Kingdom of heaven. Fugiendum eſt ad clariſſimam patriam: ibi pater, ibi omnia, ſaid Plotinus the Platoniſt. Aug. de civ. Dei. lib. 9 c. 16.

Verſe 22. On the other ſide of the Sea] The Lake of Genazareth: over the which thoſe were ſaid to paſs, that paſſed ſome Creeks or Bays to go the nearer way.

Verſe 23. After that the Lord had given thanks] See the Note on Mat. 14.19.

Verſe 24. Seeking for Jeſus] But not for Jeſus ſake. See ver. 25.

Verſe 25. Rabbi, when cameſt thou hither?] This queſtion they moved, not ſo much to learn what they knew not, as to make ſhew of what they knew before. But two things make a man truly vertuous: Good actions and good aims. Finibus non officiis à vitiis diſcernuntur virtutes, ſaith Auguſtine: The end maketh or marreth the act. Chriſtus opera noſtra non tam actibus quam finibus penſat, ſaith another. The glory of God ſhould conſume all ſiniſter ends, as the ſun-light puts out the fire, or as Moſes his Serpent ſwallowed up the Sorcerers Serpents. Ambroſ. Zanch.

Verſe 26. Becauſe ye did eat of the loaves] More then for love, Vix diligitur Jeſus propter Jeſum, Aug. But as the mixt multitude came out of Egypt with Iſrael for a better fortune, and as he Mat. 20.13. Agreed for a penny. As the Harlot looks to the love-tokens more then to the Donor; ſo was it here. Worldlings, Ubi non vident quæſtum, rident Chriſtum: Ubi datur ut edant, adduci poſſunt, ut credant: they ſerve not the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, but their own bellies.

Haud facilè invenias multis è millibus unum
Virtutem pretium qui putet eſſe ſui.

Verſe 27. Labour not for the meat, &c.] When Baſil was tempted with money and preferment, he anſwers, Pecuniam da quæ permaneat, ac continuò duret, gloriam quæ ſemper floreat. The faſhion of this world paſſeth away, as the water of a River that runs by a City, or as a fair picture drawn upon the Ice that melts away with it. Men come to the worlds felicities, as to a Lottery, with heads full of hopes, but return with hearts full of blanks.

Digitized by Google

Labour for the meat that endureth] We may not dream of a delicacy in Gods ways, or think that good things will drop out of the clouds to us, as Towns were said to come into Timotheus his toyls, whiles he slept. We must be at pains for Heaven. Laborandum was one of the Emperors Motto, and may be every Christians. Strive they must even to an agony, ere they can get into the strait gate: together with our stooping, there must be a certain stripping of our selves.

Plut. in Sylla. Reuss. Symb. Ἀγωνίζεσθε Luk. 13. 24.

Verse 28. That we might work] We would still be working, weaving a Web of righteousness of our own, spinning a thred of our own to climb up to heaven by; that we might say with the Spider, Nulli debeo; and with that Popish merit-monger, Cœlum gratis non accipiam. I will not have heaven of free-cost. Men would have heaven as a Purchase. I would swim through a Sea of Brimstone, said one, that I might come to heaven at last. But those that cry Hæc ego feci, Luther wittily calls the Devils Faces: as those that seek to be saved by their good works, He fitly calls the Devils Martyrs: because they suffer much, and take much pains to go to hell. Let us all take heed of this peece of natural Popery: and learn to be in duty in respect of performance, and yet out of duty in respect of dependance. We are all apt to do otherwise: and like broken chapmen, we would still be chaffering, if but for small matters: and think to be saved for a company of poor beggarly businesses.

Verse 29. This is the work of God] The τὸ ἔργον. It is an easie matter to believe (thinks the worldling) but he that goes about it, shall find it as hard a work to believe the Gospel, as to keep the Law. For God must enable to both. Non minus difficile est nobis velle credere (saith Beza) quam cadaveri volare. We believe with much conflict, saith another. The combat was not so great betwixt Michael and Satan, about Moses dead body, as between Satan and the believer, concerning Christs living body. Faith is fain to tug and wrestle for it, till it sweat again.

Rogers of Faith. Bez. Confess. pag. 22. Dike of the deceitf. heart.

Verse 30. What sign shewest thou?] sc. From heaven; Such as Manna was (see the Notes on Mat. 12. 38.) for otherwise, they wanted for no signs. But Christ Doctrine discontented them: And hence these peevish questions, or cavils rather, all to slip coller: In the Kingdom of Congo in Afrike, the Portugals, at their first arrival, finding the people to be heathens, and without God, did induce them to a profession of Christ, and to be baptized in great abundance, allowing of the principles of Religion: untill such time as the Priests pressed them to lead their lives according to their profession: Which the most part of them in no case enduring, they returned back again to their Gentilism, forgetting also soon after the very names they received, when they were baptized.

Abbots his Geog. Breerw. Enq.

Verse 31. Our Fathers did eat Manna in the Desart] Here they bewray themselves, and confirm what our Saviour had said of them, ver. 26. viz. that they followed him only for provender. Sic sorex suo perit indicio. So the fish Sepia is discovered and taken by the black colour that it casteth up, purposely to conceal it self.

Verse 32. I am the true bread] Whereof Manna was but a type: Manna is said to have all sorts of good tasts in it: Christ hath so to his. Manna descended in the dew: so doth Christ in his word Preached. See Exod. 16. 14, &c. Num. 11. 7, &c. with the Notes.

Verse 33. Which came down from heaven] From the highest heaven, (not out of the middle region of the air only, as Manna) and is the true Ambrosia.

Verse 34. Lord evermore give us this bread] This they speak jearingly, as the woman of Samaria did in like case, Joh. 4. 15.

Verse 35. I am that bread of life] Christ, passing by that bitter scoff of theirs, proceeds to teach them. The servant of the Lord must not strive, but be gentle unto all men, apt to teach, patient, in meekness, instructing those that oppose themselves, &c. 2 Tim. 2. 24.

Shall never hunger] That is, shall never be painfully or despairingly hungry, utterly destitute of grace and glory: But shall continually feed at the feast of a good conscience, and at length sit down with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the Kingdom of Heaven.

Verse 36. Ye have seen me] But not savingly. Your understandings have been gilded over with a common kind of supernatural light, Heb. 6. 4. but not to a transmentation. You have seen me as a traveller seeth the Pomp and Splendor of a forrain Court,

Digitized by Google

Court, or as men see far Countries in Maps, with an intuitive insight, &c.

Verse 37. All that the Father giveth me] Gr. All things, that is the whole community of Christians, all the Elect, of which number you plainly shew your selves to be none by your want of the faith of Gods Elect, that distinctive Character. Wisdom is justified of all her children. πάντα.

I will in no wise cast out] Gr. I will not not, cast out out. A powerfull speech, and a most comfortable consideration. Who would not come to Jesus Christ, upon such sweetest encouragement? Surely as all that were in debt and distress came to David, and he became their Captain: So should all afflicted spirits come to the Son of David, the Captain of our Salvation. Non autem pedibus itur ad Christum, sed affectibus, &c. where this life-giving carcass is, thither let the Eagles resort. οὐ μὴ ἐκβάλω ἔξω.

Verse 38. Not to do mine own will] As man he did his fathers will: As God, he hath the same will with the Father.

Verse 39. I should raise it up again] By vertue of the union, a substance is preserved, and shall be raised up again to glory: Yea, the dead in Christ shall rise first by vertue derived from Christs Resurrection, and by the mighty influence thereof. For he was raised to be a Root and Fountain of all supernatural life, both of our souls and bodies. 1 Thes. 4.

Verse 40. Which seeth the Son and believeth] This, these Jews did not, ver. 36. Some slight knowledge of Christ they had; but it amounted not to a saving faith. See the Note on ver. 30. Meteors hang awhile in the air, but are not of strength enough to ascend to the upper Region: hence they soon vanish.

And I will raise him up] This is four several times repeated, that we may rest secure of it, and be comforted. Fiducia Christianorum Resurrectio mortuorum, saith Tertullian.

Verse 41. The Jews therefore murmured] They were as good at this, as ever their Fathers had been in the wilderness, and afterwards, Zach. 7.12. Act. 7.51.

Verse 42. The Son of Joseph] Who was Christi pater putativus, Politicus, secundum dici, non secundum esse.

How is it then] Wretched men dare reprehend what they do not comprehend.

Verse 43. Murmur not among your selves] q. d. I give you no just cause so to do: You carry your galls in your ears, as some creatures are said to do, hence you are so imbittered: your mouths are out of tast, and hence you so distrelish my Doctrine.

Verse 44. No man can come to me, except, &c.] Down then goes the Dagon of Free-will, with all that vitreum acumen of all the Patrons thereof; whether Pagans or Papagans, Pelagians, or Semipalagians. Let them say never so much Ignavis opus est auxilio Divino: Quod vivimus Deorum munus est; quod bene sanctèque vivimus, nostrum. A wiser then the wisest of them tells us here another tale: And elsewhere, Joh. 15.5. without me ye can do nothing. Where Austin observes that our Saviour saith not perficere, but facere; Nor doth he say, without me ye can do no hard thing, but nothing. And the same Father noteth that sub laudibus naturæ latent inimici gratiæ. The friends of free-will, are enemies to free-grace. Sen.

God the Father draw him] By a merciful violence, ex nolentibus volentes facit. See the Note on Cant. 1.4. The Father draweth, and the man cometh: that notes the efficacy of grace, and this the sweetness of grace. Grace works strongly, and therefore God is said to draw: and it works sweetly too, and therefore man is said to come.

Verse 45. And they shall be all taught of God] i.e. All the children of the Church: and why not the Infants of believing Parents also? Sith they are Disciples, Act. 15.10. taught of God from the least to the greatest, Esa. 54.13. Dedicated in their baptism to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost by their Parents promise, purpose and Prayer, and so put under Gods teaching; whereof they are capable, as also of the operation of the Holy Ghost, even from their mothers womb, Luk. 1.15. God also hath promised to pour his spirit upon them, Joel 2.28. Esa. 59.21. And after our Saviour had here said, They shall be all taught of God, he presently subjoyneth, Every one that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me. Where note, that he saith not whosoever hath heard and learned of the Preacher, but of the Father, cometh unto me. Now Infants can come unto Christ, and none must forbid them. They have also the full sight of Gods face in heaven: they may therefore have a glimpse of it here: they being his children, Ezek. 16.20,21. his servants, Levit. 25.41,42. in Covenant with him, Deut. 26.10,11,12. Jer. 31.34.

Digitized by Google

Verse 46. He hath seen the father] And hath it in commission to manifest him to all his, by working faith (either actual, or (at least) virtual, as in Infants) in their hearts, whereby they see him that is invisible, being well seen in Moses his Opticks.

Verse 47. Hath life Eternal] sc. In Christs Purchase, in Gods Promise, in the first fruits of the Spirit, who resteth upon the Elect as a Spirit of Glory, and of God. 1 Pet. 4. 14.

Verse 48. I am that bread of life.] That not only uphold and maintain spiritual life, but do also begin and beget it. And this our Saviour often inculcateth, here, as most needful to be known, and most comfortable to be considered.

Verse 49. Did eat Manna] They fed upon Sacraments, and yet many of them perished eternally. A man may go to hell with Font-water on his face, and be haled from the Table to the tormentor, as he, Mat. 22. 13.

Your Fathers did eat, &c.] They sought only the satisfying of their bodily hunger, and they had it, but yet are dead. Manna could not Immortalize them as the Poets fain their Ambrosia did their dunghill deities. Meats for the belly, and the belly for meats, but God will destroy both it and them. These mentioned in the text, fed upon Sacraments, and yet they died in Gods displeasure, 1 Cor. 10. 3, 5. The Carcass of the Sacrament cannot give life, but the soul of it, which is Christ: Neither do the Sacraments work as Physick, whether men sleep or wake, by vertue inherent in them, ex opere operato, sed ex opere operantis, i. e. According to the disposition and qualification of the party that partaketh.

Verse 50. This is the bread] Δεικτικῶς, pointing to himself. So David, This poor man (meaning himself) cried, and the Lord heard him, &c. Psal. 34. 6. So Hic sat lucis, said Oecolampadius on his death bed, laying his hand on his breast.

Verse 51. If any man eat, &c.] Hic edere est credere, saith Augustine: Faith being the souls hand, mouth, stomack, &c. The Fathers commonly expounded this part of our Saviours Sermon, as spoken of the Sacrament of the Lords Supper; and so fell into that error, that none but Communicants could be saved: Wherefore also they gave the Sacrament to Infants, and put it into the mouths of dead men, &c. We are not to think that either our Saviour spake here properly, and ex professo, of the Sacramental eating of his flesh, and drinking of his blood; or that this discourse pertains nothing at all thereunto. The Papists have expunged a great part of Origens Commentary upon this Chapter, as directly making against their monster of Transubstantiation. And Cardinal Campeius affirmed against Luther, that faith is not necessary to him that receiveth the Sacrament. As for Bellarmine, although we believe, saith he, that all vertues are found in the Church, yet that any man may be absolutely said to be a member of the true Church, we do not think that any inward vertue is required, but only an external profession of the faith, and such communion of the Sacraments, as is received by the outward man. This mark very well agrees to the Church of Rome, wherein if any be truly vertuous, it is by meer accident, as Cicero wittily said of the Epicures, that if any one of them were good, he was meerly overcome by the goodness of his nature; for they taught a licentious looseness.

Act. and Mon. fol. 772.

Bell. lib. 3. c. 2. de Eccles. milit.

Si quando viri boni sint, vinci bonitate naturæ.

Verse 52. Strove among themselves] They tumultuously contradicted, murmured, mutinyed which was a sign of their obstinacy and contempt. For otherwise it is not only lawful but needful, modestly to make enquiry how we may eat Christ spiritually.

Verse 53. Except ye eat the flesh, &c.] Fulbert Bishop of (Chartres (who lived in the eleventh Century) speaking upon the Eucharist, hath these words; Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, &c. Facinus vel flagitium videtur jubere. Figura ergo est, præcipiens passioni Domini esse communicandum tantum, & suaviter & utiliter recondendum in memoria, quod pro nobis caro ejus crucifixa & vulnerata est. Now in the year of Christ 1608. there was set out an edition of him in Paris, where we have interserted, after Figura ergo est, these words, Dicit Hæreticus, to make what Fulbert spoke assertivè from Augustine, to speak recitativè of the Heretick, as if the Heretick should say, This is a figure, &c. which if admitted, then ther's no Transubstantiation. The words produced by Fulbert, are indeed St. Augustines. And the Publisher of Fulbert being told hereof, that the words were Augustines, that he had branded with heresie, he put afterwards his Dicit Hæreticus amongst his Errata, as ye may read in Bishop Ushers answer to the Jesuites challenge, pag. 15.

Pol. 168.

De doct. Christ. lib. 2. cap. 16.

Except

Digitized by Google

Except ye eat the flesh] That is, except ye spiritually apprehend Christ by faith, Crede & manducasti, saith Austine, Believe and thou hast eaten. By the actuation of our faith we even lean on Christs bosom, as that beloved Disciple did: Cruci haremus, sanguinem fugimus, & intra ipsa Redemptoris, nostri vulnera fugimus linguam, saith Cyprian.

Verse 54. Who so eateth my flesh] Because this was an hard point to believe, therefore it is so oft repeated and inculcated. Verba toties inculcata vivasunt, verasunt, sanasunt, planasunt.

Verse 55. For my flesh is meat indeed] That that will do the deed. It is neither painted meat, nor enchanted, but real and substantial: Yet not Corporal, but Spiritual. Our Richard the third was starved at Pomfret-castle by being Tantalized: For his diet being served in, and set before him in the wonted Princely manner, he was not suffered either to tast or touch thereof. The great Chaliph of Babylon was used in like manner by Haalon brother to Mango, great Cham of Tartary; saving that he had not meat set before him; but Gold, Silver, Precious-stones, whereof he was, by way of derision, willed to eat, and make no spare, &c. True believers meet with meat indeed, and by a Crapula Sacra, as Luther calleth it, feeding hard thereupon, they are nourished infallibly to eternal life. Speed. 766. Turk. hist. fol. 113.

Verse 56. He that eateth my flesh, &c.] That is, that partaketh of my person, Merits, Passions, Priviledges: He that receiveth me in all mine Offices and Efficacies.

Verse 57. So he that eateth me, liveth by me] All out of Christ then, though they seem to have the only life of it (as Nabal, 1 Sam. 30. 6. Thus shall ye say to him that liveth) yet in true account they are no better then living Cartasses, walking Sepulchres, of themselves. Christ is the onely Principle, and Prince of life: and his people only are heirs together of the grace of life, 1 Pet. 3. 7.

Verse 58. This is that bread] Here our Saviour returns to that comparison he had made before betwixt Manna and his flesh: and so concludes as he began. A pattern for Preachers.

Verse 59. These things said he in the Synagogue.] In a set Sermon, and yet to little purpose: For many made defection. Vultures unguento fugantur, & scarabei rosâ, say Pliny and Ælian. When we have spent all our wind on our people, their hearts will be still apt to be carried away with every wind of contrary Doctrine, or Satanical suggestion.

Verse 60. This is an hard saying] The hardness was in themselves, not in the word; but that must bear the blame howsoever: as she in Seneca that was stricken with sudden blindness, and then cried out of the light. An hypocrite is not discovered, till upon some critical point. If it come to a matter of cost, he cries, What needs this waste? if of pains, This is an hard saying.

Verse 61. When Jesus knew in himself] For they had not yet discovered what pinched them: but onely muttered it among themselves, aversantium more, in a discontented manner. They had done much better if they had opened their minds to Christ, and sought satisfaction. But men will sooner talk against a Preacher by the walls and in the doors of their houses, Ezek. 33. 30. (taking every thing with the left hand, and by the left handle) then either candidly interpret, or let him be his own Interpreter.

Verse 62. What and if ye shall see the Son of man ascend] Then you shall not be scandalized (so some sense it:) or then you shall much more be scandalized, so Maldonat, who saith he could like the other sense well enough, but that it is the Calvinists. So George Duke of Saxony said, he could have thought well of a Reformation, if Luther had not wrought it. Grineus in Hagg. præfat.

Verse 63. It is the spirit that quickneth] Had those carnal Capernaites but staid out our Saviours Sermon, they might have been satisfied for the sense of his words, that they so stumbled at, and had not patience to hear him here expounding himself. Quoniam Christiani (Pontificii) manducant Deum, quem adorant, sit anima mea cum Philosophis, said Averroes; who, had he consulted with sound Divines, might have known more.

It is the Spirit that quickneth] i. e. The Godhead united to the humane nature conveyeth life to the believer: That being the Fountain, this the Conduit: and union being the ground of Communion. Wicked men want the spirit and life of Christ, who though though he took every mans flesh, yet that of it self profiteth them nothing. A communione naturæ ad communicationem gratiæ non valet argumentum.

Digitized by Google

Verse 64. But there are some of you that believe not] And hence it is that you so grosly mistake me, and that you find no more benefit by me and my words; Unbelief rejects the remedy, frustrates the means, holds a man in an Universal pollution, Heb 3. 12. and leaves him under a double condemnation; one from the Law wherein Christ found him, and another from the Gospel for refusing the remedy, that blessed Bath of Christs blood, Zech. 13. 1. whereunto even the Princes of Sodom are invited, Esa. 1. 10. and for despising it, doomed, Ezek. 24. 13. as a Malefactor dead in Law, and yet rejecteth the offer of a pardon. In Kets sedition, when King Edward the sixth his pardon was offered the Rebels, by an Herald, a lewd boy turned toward him his naked posteriors, and used words suitable to that gesture. One standing by, discharged an Harquebuz upon the boy, and struck him dead in the place. How shall those escape that neglect so great Salvation, which at first began to be spoken by the Lord? &c. Heb. 2. 3.

Life of Edw. sixth by S. John Heywood.

Verse 65. Therefore said I unto you] Here some may object, if faith be not in mans power, why doth he yet complain? and why are any destroyed for lack of faith? Hereunto I might answer with the Apostle. Nay but O man, who art thou that replies't, or chattes't against God? But for further satisfaction, know, 1. That faith was once in mans power. 2. That no Unbeliever doth what he might do to believe. 3. That unbelief is in a mans power, who wittingly and willingly, and by his own Election, forsaketh his own mercies, Joh. 2. 8. Mat. 23. 37. there is an uncountellable obstinacy in it.

Unless it be given him] That Divine traction then, ver. 44. is a free gift: there is no meritum ex congruo. Our effectual conversion is gratuita & inopinata, Eph. 1. 11. We cannot concur or contribute toward it. Nothing can prepare for grace but grace: Neither can we bring forth good things any otherwise, then as Sarah dead womb brought forth a child; it was not a child of nature, but of the meer promise.

Verse 66. Many of his Disciples] They stumbled at the word and fell backward: This is reckoned by St. Peter a note of a Reprobate, 1 Pet 2. 8. And indeed few sins are more dangerous then that of picking quarrels at Gods word, taking up weapons against it, and snuffing at it. Mal. 1. 13. replying against it, Rom. 9. 19, 20. casting Reproaches upon it, Jer. 20. 8, 9. enviously swelling at it; Act. 13. 45. gathering odious consequences from it, Rom. 3. 8. such are in the ready road to Apostasie, and so to perdition, Heb. 10. ult.

Verse 67. Will ye also go away?] q. d. This general defection of those temporaries may possibly tempt you to it. Evil men indanger good men, as weeds the Corn, as bad humors the blood, or an infected house the neighbourhood. Nemo errat sibi ipsi, sed dementiam spargit in proximos. No man falls single, but draws company along with him: as the Dragon with his tail drew down the Stars of Heaven: As tall Cedars bear down with them the shrubs that grow under them: As when Hymenæus and Philetus (two such eminent Professors) fell away, the Apostle, for the better setling of such as were shaken thereby, was fain to caution, Nevertheless the Foundation of God standeth sure, &c. And, in a great house (such as Gods is) there are vessels of all sorts, some to honor, and some to dishonor, 2 Tim. 2. 19, 20.

Seneca.

Verse 68. Thou hast the words of eternal life] In going from thee therefore, we shall go out of Gods blessing; Nay, we shall go upon our own death, upon hell-mouth. The Roman Law was, Transfugas, ubicunq; inventi fuerint, quasi hostes interficere licet. Runagates and Renegadoes are sure to die for it: when those that live by those lively Oracles of the Gospel, shall live for ever.

Verse 69. We believe and have known] In matters of Divinity, we must first believe, and then know; not know, and then believe. In humane Sciences it is otherwise: Men are brought to assent and believe by experience, knowledge, and sense; as to believe that fire is hot, &c. But here, believe, and assent, go before experimental knowledge, sense and use.

Verse 70. Have not I chosen you twelve, &c.] q. d. If ye believe and will abide by it, look well to your footing: it will shortly be tried what stability is in you, when such an Angel as Judas shall shew himself to be a Devil. Stand fast: For you are like to be shaken, as he in the History said, when he whipt the Pillars and publike statues before the Earth-quake, which he had, by a Prophetical spirit, foretold.

Simeon Monach.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verse 71. He spake of Judas Iscariot] Which some derive of the Syriack word, signifying strangling, as if he were so named by an anticipation; like as our roaring boys will needs be so called now, by a woful Prolepsis, Here for Hereafter. But what an hard heart had Judas, and how fearfully was he Satanized and transformed into a breathing Devil, that could hear all this, and not be affected therewith? Hypocritis nihil stupidius, Nothing is more stupid or more stubborn then an Hypocrite. David fitly compareth him to the deaf Adder: which although, by spitting out his poyson, he might renew his age; Yet he stoppeth both his ears, lest he should hear the voice of the Charmer.

Chap. VII.

Verse 1. For he would not walk in Jury]

The Romans rule in Battle was, Nec fugere, nec sequi, Neither to flye dangers, nor to follow them. The Christians Motto is, Nec temere, nec timide, Neither timorous, nor temerarious. As we must not basely desert the cause of Christ, when called out to defend it, but ἢ τὰν ἢ ἐπὶ τᾶν as she said to her son, either vanquish or dye, as the Black-Princes father said to him; Either live with the Gospel, or die for it, so we may not rashly run our selves upon unnecessary dangers, but decline them where we can with a good conscience. He that flieth may fight another time, said Demosthenes. Christians also are permitted to flye, when they are sought for to the slaughter, so it be with the wings of a Dove, and not with the pinnions of a Dragon: It was a masculine resolution of that good woman celebrated by Hierom. Non ideo negare volo, ne peream: sed ideo mentiri nolo, ne peccem. I will rather dye then lie. Plutarch. φίλαπτοις.

Verse 2. The Feast of Tabernacles] The Jews at this feast dwelt without doors, in boothes and bowers, in remembrance of their wandring of old thorow the wilderness. This gave occasion to Plutarch, and other prophane Heathens, to devise and broach so many base lyes of the Jews, as if they were worshippers of Bacchus. Florus calls the Temple of Jerusalem, impiæ gentis arcanum. Another tells us, that the Jews were forced to rest every seventh day, for an evil disease they had cleaving unto them. Plut. συμπος. cap. 5.

Verse 3. Depart hence] Sawcily enough, and sarcastically too: prickt on by ambition, likely, which ever rideth without reyns, and cares not whose ruines it buildeth upon.

Verse 4. For there is no man, &c.] Here they proceed to charge Christ with folly; And presume to lesson him with their Vile latent virtus: quid enim submersa latebris Claudi.

Proderit? Obscuro velati sine remige puppis:
Vel lyra quæ reticet, vel qui non tenditur arcus.

Verse 5. For neither did his brethren believe] This the Jews at this day read with much wonderment; and take occasion from this Text, to slander our Saviours miracles, as nothing so manifest as we conceive them, sith his own kinred believed not in him. Blunts voyage into Lev. 115.

Verse 6. My time is not yet come] Sc. My time of journying to Jerusalem: I must take my best opportunity, when I may go up with most safety. You may take your own time: You can hardly take amiss, sith the world loveth his own, Joh. 15. 19. and huggeth them to death, as the Ape doth her young.

Verse 7. But me it hateth, because I testifie] Obsequium amicos, veritas odium parit, Truth breeds hatred, as the fair Nymphs are fained to bring forth the ill-favoured Fauns and Satyrs. An expectes ut Quintillianus ametur? said He: Canst thou expect that I with my plain-dealing should be favoured? Quintilian saith of Vespasian the Emperor, that he was patientissimus viri, one that could well endure to be told his own. And of Gerson (that great Chancellor of Paris) it is Recorded, that he rejoyced in nothing so much as in a round reprehension by some faithful friend. But few such to be found now-adays. Prædicare jam nihil aliud est, quam totius orbis furorem in se derivare, said Luther out of his own daily experience. They hate him that reproveth in the gate. Preachers are called Lights, which sore eyes cannot look upon without offence. Salt also also they are called, which cast upon wounds, maketh them smart grievously. Hence the worlds hatred: as Zech. 1. 11. all the earth was at rest, and desired not to be disquieted by the sound of a Trumpet.

Digitized by Google

Verse 8. I go not up yet] q. d. I will ere long: lest haply they should think that he disliked the publike services, and would not come at them, because of the manifold corruptions that were then crept into them. All which notwithstanding Christ never separated, nor commanded others so to do, but the contrary, Go shew thy self to the Priest: the Scribes and Pharisees sit in Moses Chair, hear them, &c. It is noted as a great fault in Elies time, that men abhorred the offering of the Lord, though the sin of the Priests was very great before the Lord, and all was out of order: Yet in abhorring the sacrifice, they transgressed, even to a cry, 1 Sam. 2. 17.

Mat. 8. Mat. 23.

Verse 9 He abode still in Galilee] Which he needed not to have done, could he but have complied with the world, as his Kinsmen did. But that man purchaseth his peace at too dear a rate, that payeth his honesty to get it.

Verse 10. Not openly, but as it were in secret] To kindle the desire of seeing and hearing him so much the more: Or to discover whether there were any numbers disposed by his first preachings to receive him, to the end he might not shew himself in vain. He had lost most of his hearers, who thenceforth walked no more with him, chap. 6. 66. Yet might haply afterwards have a better mind to him.

Verse 11. Where is he?] Not, where is Jesus? Thy could not find in their hearts to call him by his Name, they were so full of malice against him. So Josephs brethren called him not Joseph, but the Dreamer: Saul asked not for David, but the Son of Jesse.

Act. and Mon. fol. 820. After Stephen Brune the Martyr was put to death, his adversaries commanded it to be cried, That none should make any more mention of him, under pain of heresie. And ubicunque invenitur nomen Calvini, deleatur, saith the Index expurgatorius. But what saith our Saviour, Blessed are ye, when men shall hate you, and cast out your name as evil, for the Son of mans sake. The wise Historian observed, that he Statues of Brutus and Cassius, Eo præfulgebant, quod non visebantur. And Cato said, he had rather men should question why he had no Statue or Monument erected to him, then why he had?

Luk. 6. 22. Tacit. Annal.

Verse 12. For some said] All men were not of a mind concerning Christ. Sooner shall the fingers of their hands be all of a length, then men will be all of a judgement in matters of Religion. Nullum bellum citius exardescit, nullum deflagrat tardius quam Theologicum, ut Sacramentarium.

Buchole.

Verse 13. For fear of the Jews] Who had made an order (it seems) somewhat like that of the Jesuites edict at Dola in the Countrey of Burgundy, that for prevention of heresie, no man should speak of God, either in good sort, or bad. This the Jews did, 1. To save themselves a labor of confuting our Saviours Doctrine. 2. To perswade the people that it was such horrible blasphemy, as was not fit to be named. So the Papists debar the people all sound of the Religion, in prohibiting the books of the reformed Writers, and hiding their own Treatises, wherein the Tenet of the Protestants is recited, only to be confuted: so that you shall seldom in all Italy meet with Bellarmines works, or any of the like nature to be sold.

Heyl. Geo. p. 125.

Heyl. Geo. p. 189.

Verse 14. About the middest of the feast] That he might have the better audience.

Went up into the Temple and taught] Sacerdotum tunc ferè muta officia, populi cæca obsequia, ut jam apud Pontificios.

Verse 15. And the Jews marvelled] As well they might: but this marvail of theirs came to nothing. Look how a Swine, finding a precious jewel, grunts only, and goes his wayes: so here.

Verse 16. My Doctrine is not mine] As if he had said, this should not be scandalum, sed scala. Not a stumbling-block, but a ladder to lift you up to see the Divine handy-work, and to make you say, as Ezek. 3. 12. Blessed be the glory of the Lord from his place: sith, I have my learning from above, and am (as Nicodemus acknowledged) a teacher sent from God.

Verse 17. If any man will do his will] Let knowledge and practise run parallel, and mutually transfuse vigor and vivacity, the one into the other. Keep open the passage between your heads and hearts, that every truth may go to the quick.

Verse 18. Seeketh his own glory] All seducers are self-seekers, and drive on their own Interests, how to set up themselves in the hearts of the people: They study their own share ſhare more then Gods, and yet they would ſeem to do otherwiſe: as thoſe proud boaſters that cryed out, Let the Lord be Glorified, Iſa. 66. 5. and the Swenckfeldians (ſtenck-feldians Luther calleth them, from the ill ſavour of their opinions) entituled themſelves with that glorious name. The Confeſſours of the glory of Chriſt. Schuſſerib.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 19. Did not Moſes give you the Law] q. d. You bear me ſtill an old grudge, an aking tooth, for healing the impotent man upon the Sabbath day, Joh. 5. But Quis tulerit Gracchos, &c. Your ſelves are greater Sabbath-breakers a fair deal. P. Clodius (the moſt irreligious of all the Romans) religionem in Ciceronis domo neglectam queſtus eſt, complained of Cicero's family, for neglect of religion. Who ſo forward to cry Treaſon, treaſon, as Athaliah the Arch-traytour alive? and who cry out ſo much Perſecution Perſecution, as Papiſts and other fierce Perſecutors? Juvenal. Cic. de haruſp. reſponſ.

Verſe 20. Thou haſt a Devil] This he paſſeth by as a frontleſs ſlander, not worth refuting: but proceeds to maintain the lawfulneſs of that he had done on the Sabbath-day. Sincerity throws off ſlanders, as Paul did the Viper; yea, in an holy ſcorn, it laughs at them, as the wilde aſs doth at the horſe, and his rider. Wicellius and Cochleus ſay, that we betrayed the Rhodes (ſaith Melanchon) and ſome other ſuch foul buſineſſes they lay to our charge. Theſe are ſuch groſs lyes, that we need not diſprove them: let them tell as many ſuch lyes of us as they will, &c. our names are oyled, they will not ſtick. Dicant ipſi talia quoniam volunt.

Verſe 21. And ye all marvell] i.e. ye all murmur: but he ſpeaks the beſt of them, as not willing to enrage them.

Verſe 22. Moſes therefore] Tam ſeverus ſabbati exactor, As ſtrict as he was for the obſervation of the Sabbath, yet he was not againſt circumciſion, and the healing again of the childs wound upon that day. And if any object that Circumciſion was a Sacrament, and ſo a Sabbath-days work: It may be anſwered, 1. That this cure alſo was much to the Glory of God. 2. That the man was cured on both ſides, and received both ſanitatem in corpore, & ſanctitatem in corde.

Verſe 22. Ye on the Sabbath day circumciſe] q. d. If you may wound a man on the Sabbath day, may not I heal one? If you may heal on the Sabbath one member of the circumciſed, may not I make a man whole every whit? If you be at pains to cure ſuch a one with your hand, may not I without pains cure a man with my word only? What if circumciſion be a Sacrament? ſo was this that I have done a ſpecial means of bringing much glory to God.

Verſe. 23. That the Law of Moſes might not be broken] Gr. Looſened, ſhattered. The Law is one entire copulative: ſo that he that offendeth in any point, is guilty of all. Jam. 2. 10. Hence when the ſabbath was broken, Exod. 16. 28. The Lord ſaid to Moſes, How long refuſe ye to keep my Commandments and my laws?

Verſe 24. Judge not according to the appearance] Nothing is more ordinary with many, then to precipitate a cenſure, to exerciſe their criticks, and to reprehend that which they not comprehend. I ſuppoſe, ſaith Auguſtine, that divers in reading ſome places in my books, will think that I thought, that which never came into my minde to think, and the contrary. This was his fear, and this befel him, as Baronius witneſſeth. Compertum eſt, ſaith Eraſmus; It is well known, that many points are condemned as heretical in Luthers books; which in Auſtins and Bernards books are read and received for good and orthodox. Hill in his quartern of reaſons, ſaith, the Catholikes follow the Bible, but the Proteſtants force the Bible to follow them. And the author of the Gagg for the new Goſpel, aſſures his Catholikes, that our condemnation is ſo expreſly ſet down in our own Bibles, and is ſo clear to all the world, that nothing more needs hereto, then that they know to read, and to have their eyes in their heads, at the opening of our Bible. This is their judgement of us. But what among themſelves? He that taſts an egg, ſaith Eraſmus, at an undue time, is caſt in priſon, and made to anſwer for his hereſie: but he that ſpends all the Lords-day in drinking, drabbing, dicing, is called a good fellow, and paſſeth unpuniſhed. Arbitror non-nullos opinatiros me ſenſiſſe quod non ſenſi, aut non ſenſiſſe quod ſenſi, Aug. de Trin. l. 1. c. 3. Annal. tom. 6. ad An. 450. n. 17. Eraſm. epiſt. ad Cardinal. Maguntin. Reaſ. 8. pag. 41. Pref. to the Cathol. Reader. Qui totam diem Dominicam vacat temulentiæ ſcortis, & alcæ audit bellus homo, &c. Eraſ. Schol. in Epiſt. ad Epiſc. Baſil. de delectu ciborum.

Verſe 25. Then ſaid ſome of them of Jeruſalem] That knew more of the Rulers mind then the vulgar, who believed not that there was any ſuch deadly deſigns. (verſe 26.) Howbeit theſe wits of Jeruſalem take no notice at all of Gods hand in Chriſts deliverance, and his preſent boldneſs, in ſo extreme a danger.

Verſe 26. But lo he ſpeaketh boldly, and they ſay nothing to him] God reſtrained them, putting his bit in their jaws, his hook in their noſtrils. In the year 1159. lived John Biſhop

Digitized by Google

Iacob. Revius, page 145. Biſhop of Saliſbury, qui & præſens præſentem Pontificem redarguit, & Polycraticon conſcripſit, in quo clerum liberè flagellat, who reproved the Pope to his face, and wrote his Polycraticon, wherein he freely ſcourgeth the Clergy. After this, Robert Groſthead Biſhop of Lincoln, called the Pope in a letter, Antichriſt ſitting in the chair of Peſtilence, and next to Lucifer himſelf. As in battle, they that ſtand it out do uſually ſpeed beſt: ſo here, many times.

Verſe 27. No man knoweth whence he is] This errour might ariſe out of ſome Texts Pſal. 119. of Scripture miſ-underſtood, as Iſa. 53. 8. Pſal. 110. 4. We ſhould, whenever we open the Bible, pray, Lord open mine eyes, that I may ſee the wondrous things of thy Law.

Verſe 28. Ye both know me] Either this is an Ironie, or elſe a heavy aggravation of their ſin; a proof that they ſinned that ſin unto death 1 Joh 5.16. for which there remains no more ſacrifice, Heb. 10. 26 Two ſorts of men in our times are in danger of this ſin. 1. Hypocritical Profeſſours. 2. Thoſe they call the Wits of the World, your moſt knowing men.

Verſe 29. But I know him] And am known of him. I will not therefore be baffled or beaten out of my confident boaſting by any your frontleſs affronts, or baſeſt buffooneries.

Verſe 30. Becauſe his hour was not yet come] i. e. God would not ſuffer them. Thoſe that bandy and bend their forces againſt the Lord and his Anointed are bounded by him, in whoſe hands alone are the iſſues of death, with the manner and time.

Verſe 31. Many of the people believed on him] Some fruit followed his doctrine, theſe leſſer fiſhes began to bite. They are ſaid to believe that were not altogether averſe, but began to be better affected. The very firſt ſtirrings in the womb of grace are accepted of God, Eph. 2. 1. he bleſſeth our buds, Iſa. 44. 5.

Verſe 32. The Phariſees heard] They had their ſcouts, and lay perdu to liſten, and to keep down Chriſt. Like unto theſe are the Jeſuits at this day, who give out that the Devil ſtirred up Luther to trouble the Church; and God hath ſent them forth, to withſtand and hinder him.

Verſe 33. Yet a little while am I with you] Chriſt is but a while with men in the opportunities of grace. There is a prime of mans life, ye a prime of every mans miniſtery. Chriſt ſtands (not ſits at the door) and knocks. Now while one is ſtanding, he is going.

Verſe 34. Ye ſhall ſeek me, &c.] Becauſe ye ſhall dye in your ſins, which is worſe then to dye in a ditch.

Verſe. 35. Teach the Gentiles] Which the Jews could not endure to think on. They Goi. Mamzer. profeſs at this day, that rather then the Heathen-baſtards ſhould have benefit by their Meſſias, they would crucifie him over and over, Luke 4. 25. The ruſticks of Nazareth underſtood our Saviour of preaching to the Gentiles, which put them into an anger, and him into a danger.

Verſe 36. What manner of ſaying is this?] He would not tell the Jews what he meant Pſal. 25. by this dark ſaying. His Diſciples he told afterwards, chap. 13 and 16. The ſecret of the Lord is with them that fear him: when the wicked ſhall be neither of his Court, nor Councel.

Verſe 37, 38. In the laſt day] In this eighth day (which the Iews called Hoſanna Rabbah) they read the laſt ſection of the Law, and likewiſe began the firſt; leſt they Tremel. ex Talmud. might otherwiſe ſeem more joyful in ending their ſections, then willing to begin them. Upon this day alſo, by the inſtitution (ſay they) of Haggai and Zechary, (but more likely, by their own ſuperſtition) they did, with great ſolemnity and joy, bring great ſtore of water from the River Shiloah to the Temple; where it being Godw. Antiq. Heb. delivered unto the Prieſts, it was poured upon the Altar, together with wine; and all the people ſang that of the Prophet, Iſa. 12. 3. with joy ſhall ye draw water out of the Wels of ſalvation. Hereunto our Saviour is thought to allude, Verſ. 38. Out of his belly ſhall flow Rivers of water; provided, that he believe in me, ſo as the Scripture ſaith he ſhould. For ſo (after Chryſoſtom) Heinſius, De-dieu, and others expound it.

He that believeth on me, as the Scripture hath ſaid,] ſc. that men ſhould believe on me, to ſuch I make a promiſe, that out of his belly, that is (by a Catachreſis) out of the boſom and bottom of his ſoul ſhall flow rivers, &c. he ſhall not onely have ſufficient for himſelf, but wherewith to refreſh others.

Verſe 39. But this ſpake he of the Spirit] Which is many times compared (as to fire, ſo)

Digitized by Google

so) to water for its properties of cooling, cleansing, quenching, thirst, fructifying, &c.

Should receive] Princes at their inauguration use to receive great gifts of their subjects. Christ also received gifts, not of his subjects, but of his Father, Psal. 76. 19. and it was for men, and on men he bestowed on them, Eph. 4. 8. as holding it a more blessed thing to give then to receive. Act. 20.

Because that Jesus was not yet glorified] As the Sun, the nearer it runs to the earth, the weaker (as in winter;) but the higher in heaven, the hotter and more effectual: so this Sun of righteousness.

Verse 40. Of a truth this is the Prophet] This was somewhat, but not enough: this was well, but not all. The Bustards wings serve him to get up a little from the earth; but not to bear him up far toward heaven.

Verse 41. Shall Christ come out of Galilee?] Satan (that subtile Sophister,) though he confessed Christ to be the holy One of God, Mark. 1. 24. Yet he calleth him Jesus of Nazareth, to nourish the errour of the multitude, that thought he was born there, and so not the Messias. Neither did his cunning deceive him, as here appeareth. Satan etsi semel videatur verax, millies est mendax, & semper fallax, saith one. Diabolus capite blanditur, ventre oblectat, & caudâ ligat, saith another. Bucholcerus. Rupertus.

Verse 41. Others said, This is the Christ] Why, this was somewhat like: and if they held them to this, no man can say with the fiducial assent of his heart, that Jesus is the Christ, but by the holy Ghost. He was Christ before he was Jesus, Joh. 6. 27. Jesus is nothing else but Christus protensus & effusus. Cant. 1. 5. Christ shews him to be a sealed Saviour, anoynted and appointed by the Father to that blessed office. 1 Cor. 12 3.

Shall Christ come out of Galilee?] Galilee of the Gentiles, whose manners likely they had learned by so near neighbourhood: Some countreys have an ill name: Can any good come out of Nazareth? Hesiod complains of Ascre where he was born, that it was good for nothing: In meâ patriâ, saith Hierome, Deus est venter, & in diem venitur, & sanctior est ille qui ditior. In my country, they are neither temperate, nor provident, nor godly-given. And Buchanan cryes out that he was born, nec cœlo, nec solo per saeculo erudito, where learning was not in fashion. But as little Hippo was better known by great Austin who was Bishop of it, then he by Hippo: so was Galilee by Christ, then he by Galilee: And as hardly as it was thought of, he is not ashamed to call himself Jesus of Nazareth, Acts 22 8. which yet was commonly cast as a reproach upon him. Ἀγαθὸν οὐδὲν ἐκ κακῆς, Θρέψας ἀρετὴν ἀλκήν, &c. Epist. ad Chromat.

Verse 42. Hath not the Scripture said] See the Note on Mat. 2. 5.

Verse 43. So there was a Division] And yet these were the visible Church, and favourers of Christ. That's no just cause of offence then that some take at our dissensions. Rarò enim abit sine aliquibus dissensionibus etiam inter bonos & sanctos haec vita, still Satan is thus busie: and Christians are thus improvident, that as if they wanted enemies, they deal blows among themselves, and fly in one anothers faces. It was never well since the Church was all of one heart, and one soul, neither was there any controversie at all amongst them, as one ancient Greek Copy hath added to that text, Act. 5. 32. Bucholc.

Verse 44. Some of them would have taken him] Semper crudelis est superstitio. There can be no greater argument of an ill cause, then a bloody persecution: Whereas truth upholds her self by mildness, and is promoted by patience.

Verse 45. Why have you not brought him] Out of the pride of their power they wonder what should hinder. But the Lord knoweth how to deliver his, 2 Pet. 2. 9. and wherein the enemies deal proudly, he is above them. Exod. 18. 11.

Verse 46. Never man spake like this man] It is good to come to the Word, though with ill intent; they that come to see fashions only, as Moses came to the Bush, may be called as he was. They that come but to sleep may be taken napping, as Father Latimer saith. They that come to catch, may be caught, as these in the Text. The Serpent that comes forth to sting, may be charmed ere he go back. When Henry Zutphen was preacher at Breme, the holy Catholikes could not be idle, but sent their Chaplains to every Sermon, to trap him in his words. But God (whose foot-paths are in the midst of the flood) would have his marvellous power to be seen in them, for he converted many of them: insomuch, that the greater part of them that were sent to hearken, did openly witness his doctrine to be Gods truth, against which no man could contend, and such as in all their life before they had not heard: perswading them likewise; Act. and Mon. fol. 802.

Digitized by Google

wiſe, that they forſaking all impiety, ſhould follow the Word of God, and believe the ſame, if they would be ſaved. But the chief Prieſts, Canons and Monks were ſo indurate and hardened with Pharoah, that they became the worſe for theſe admonitions.

Verſe 46. Never man ſpake] For he ſpake with grace, Pſal. 45. 2. and with gravity, Mat. 7. 29. E cujus ore nil temerè excidit, ſaith Scaliger of Virgil, may we much more of Chriſt: they were all oracles that he uttered, hony-drops that fell from him. Of Chriſt it might better be ſaid then ever it was of M. Craſſus the Romane Oratour, Cæteros à Craſſo ſemper omnes, illo autem die etiam ipſum à ſeſe ſuperatum. Cic. de Orat. lib. 1.

Verſe 47. Are ye alſo deceived?] As the rude rabble are? we looked that you ſhould have ſtuck to us. How ill taken was Englands defection from the Popes devotion? England was the firſt that took upon it the Popes yoke, and the firſt that ſhook it off again. What wondering was there at Luther, Vergerius, Caracciolus, and other ſtiff Papiſts, when they made eſcape out of Babylon? Apoſtates they were called for ſo doing, and Luther confeſſeth the action: but withall addeth, that they were holy Apoſtates, and had made defection only from the Devil; who therefore ſet up his briſtles at them, and purſued them with ſo much ſpite. Prorſus Satan eſt Lutherus, ſaith he in a certain Epiſtle, ſed Chriſtus vivit & regnat, Amen. Ep. ad Spalat.

Verſe 48. Have any of the Rulers, &c.] Argumentum ſtultum, ſaith Theophylact. Sapientes ſapienter in infernum deſcendunt, ſaith one. And Potentes potenter torquebuntur, ſaith another. None ſo deep in hell, as knowing men; they are too wiſe to be ſaved by the fooliſhneſs of Preaching. But Paul the babler muſt be heard, ere heaven can be had.

Verſe 49. But this people, &c.] He howled and wept (ſaid D. Story concerning Philpot) in the Convocation-houſe, and made ſuch ado as never man did, even as all the hereticks do when they lack learning to anſwer. When as yet M. Philpot diſputing in the Convocation-houſe againſt the Sacrament of the Altar, made this offer: If I ſhall not be able to maintain by Gods Word that I have ſaid, and confound any ſix of you, let me be burned with as many fagots as be in London, before the Court-gate; and this he uttered with great vehemency of ſpirit, which the cankered Doctor haply called howling and weeping. Act. and Mon. fol. 1631. Ibid. 1285.

Verſe 50. Nicodemus ſaith unto them] Good blood will not belye it ſelf: love, as fire, will not long be hid. Cræſus his dumb ſon could not but ſpeak, to ſee his father ready to be ſlain. Nicodemus, though hitherto a night-bird, now ſhews himſelf for Chriſt in a Counſel. How far had Judas out-ſtripped Nicodemus till it came to the upſhot? Nicodemus was only a night-profeſſour, Judas in the ſight of all. Nicodemus a ſlow-ſchollar, Judas a forward Preacher. Yet at laſt, when Iudas betrayed Chriſt in the night; Nicodemus faithfully profeſſed him in the day, &c. Ἀνθρωπε, μὴ κτεῖνε Κροῖσον Herodor.

Verſe 51. Doth our Law condemn any man] This was no great matter to ſay, and yet it did the deed; ſo God would have it. Now, he is ever like himſelf: and whenſoever he pleaſeth, he both can and will diſſipate all our enemies endeavours, and that in the very nick of time. This we have had plain and plentiful experience of in this land alate, when we were at ſuch an under, that our enemies ſeemed to be above fear, and we below hope: when there was not faith in earth to believe, then were there bowels in heaven to turn our captivity like ſtreams in the South.

Before it hear him, and know what he doth?] Humphrey Duke of Gloceſter was condemned before heard: and murthered by the Popiſh Biſhop. So was the Lord Cromwell, whoſe enemies durſt not bring him to his anſwer, nor try him by his Peers, but procured an Act of Attaindre, and ſo put him to death unheard.

Verſe 52. Art thou alſo of Galilee] They thought to mock him out of his Religion, as the Devil doth many at this day. But Nicodemus was well reſolved: and if we can bear reproach for Chriſt, its an argument we mean to ſtick to him; as the ſervant in the Law, that was brought to be boared in the ear. And Cajetan gives the reaſon, Ut ſi non horreret ſervitutem, horreret ſaltem ignominiam publicam, ut multos habeat inſpectores & teſtes.

Verſe 35. And every man went, &c.] Nicodemus, with one word ſeaſonably put in, diſſolves the Council, and keeps them, for this time, from attempting againſt Chriſt. See what one man may do againſt a miſchievous multitude other whiles: Ille regit dictis animos, Virgil.

Digitized by Google

animos, & pectora mulcet. What a ſtickler was Nehemiah at Ieruſalem, Paphnutius at the Nicene Council, Wickliffe, Hus, Luther, in their generations: Its good to be doing, though there be few or none to ſecond us: and though we be asked, as that good Biſhop Liberius was by the Arian Emperour Conſtantius, Quota pars es tu orbis terrarum? It is ſaid of Luther, quod unus homo ſolus totius orbis impetum ſuſtinuerit. Theodoret. l. 2. cap. 16.

Chap. VIII.

Verſe 1. Jeſus went unto the Mount of Olives]

His uſual Oratory. There he prayed by night, and then early in the morning he came again into the Temple to preach. Thus he divided his time betwixt praying and preaching. So did the Miniſters of the old Teſtament, Deut. 33. 10. and of the New, Acts 6. 2. So muſt all that will do good of it; ſith Paul may plant, Apollos water, but God only gives increaſe. 1 Cor. 3. 6.

Verſe 2. And taught them] See the Note on verſe 1.

Verſe 3. And the Scribe, &c.] Deeſt hæc hiſtoria apud quamplurimos interpretes, Beza. ἐπ' αὐτοφώρῳ. Capell of Tempt.

Verſe 4. In the very act] Gr. In the very theft: perhaps to intimate the great theft that is in adultery; whiles the childe of a ſtranger carries away the goods or lands of the Family: which therefore the adultereſs is bound in conſcience to confeſs. Saint Paul gives charge, that no man go beyond, and defraud his brother in the matter: that is, in the matter of the marriage bed; but that every one poſſeſs his veſſel, that is, his wife, the weaker veſſel, in ſanctification and honour, as ſome interpret it. Defraud. l. e. in re Veneria, in adulterio. Sic intelligunt. Hieron. Chryſoſt. Heinſius.

Verſe 5. Such ſhould be ſtoned] Adultery was to be puniſhed with death. Society and the purity of poſterity could not otherwiſe continue amongſt men: which is well obſerved by Divines to be the reaſon, why adultery is named, under it all uncleanneſs being forbidden; when yet other violations are more hainous, as Sodomy and beſtiality: Nevertheleſs, other ſins do not ſo directly fight againſt ſociety, which the Law mainly reſpects. Huet of Conſ. p. 153.

Verſe 6. And with his finger wrote on the ground] That he wrote downward (as the Syrians then did, and as the Chinois now do, and ſo their lines at the top do begin again) is very probable. But what he wrote (whether thoſe words Ier. 22. 29. Or thoſe Mat. 7. 3.) nothing certain can be determined; the Scripture is ſilent: and where the Scripture hath not a tongue, we need not have ears: write he did (like himſelf we may be ſure, as Quintilian ſaith of Iulius Cæſar, illum eodem animo ſcripſiſſe, quo bellavit, that he wrote with the ſame ſpirit he fought) and perhaps he thus wrote on the ground, to ſhew that ſin, which is written before God, Iſa. 65. 6. and graven as it were with a pen of iron, and with the point of a diamond, is pardoned and blotted out by Chriſt as eaſily, as a writing ſlightly made in the duſt. Maſius in Gram. Syr. Abbats his Geog. p. 97. Ambroſ. Greenham. Quintil. li. 10. ad fi. Ier. 17. 1.

Verſe 7. He that is without ſin amongſt you] Not that is impeccable, and not ſubject to ſin (as the Greek may here ſeem to ſound) but that allows not himſelf, wallows not in ſome groſs ſin, yea perhaps in this very ſin, Clodius accuſat mœchum. Thus our Saviour wrings thoſe ſupercilious and cenſorious hypocrites, who hated virum, non vitium: as it is ſaid of Craſſus the Roman, that he was very ſevere againſt covetouſneſs in others, when there was not a more covetous perſon then himſelf. Carere debet omni vitio qui in alterum paratus eſt dicere, ſaid an Heathen. He had need be unblamable that blameth another. And therefore the Apoſtle, after that he had ſaid, Have no fellowſhip with the unfruitful works of darkneſs, but reprove them rather; he ſoon after addeth, Walk circumſpectly, not as fools, &c Eph. 5. 11, 15. ἀναμάρτητος. Iuvenal.

Verſe 8. And again he ſtooped down] In ſign of ſlighting, or that he might give them the more confidence of going out, See verſe 6. Our Saviour dealt by this adultereſs ſomewhat like as the Areopagites dealt by the dame of Smyrna, whom they appointed to appear ſome hundred years after, to ſhew that they would neither condemn, nor acquit her. Rons Arch. Att. p. 128.

Verſe 9. Convicted by their own conſcience] Which is Gods ſpie, and mans overſeer, index, judex, vindex: ſo that ſinners are ſelf-condemned, and oft betrayed by their own blushing, αὐτοκατάκριτοι.

Digitized by Google

blushing, and heart beating, when yet the offence is secret. Yea a man feels an inward shame in his own heart, disgracing aud abusing him, though he make no outward shew of it. For albeit an innocent person, upon the foulness of an aspersion may conceive shame, as did David, Psalm 44. 15. Yet it is usually the effect of an ill conscience.

Verse 10. Where are those thine accusers?] She might have answered as Tertullian in another case not unlike, Facti sunt à corde suo fugitivi, they are fled before their own consciences, which convicted them, as it were by argument, verse. 9.

ἐλεγχόμ.

Verse 11. Neither do I condemn thee] Hence an Anabaptist will argue, that adultery is not to be punished (as they did from that Text, Whoremongers and adulterers God will judge, therefore men ought not to meddle with them.) But they may as well say, that inheritances are not to be divided between brethren, because our Saviour refused to divide them, Luke 12. 14. it being without the lists of his calling, no proper employment of his.

Anabaptistæ scripserunt adulteria non esse punienda per homines, &c. Iob. Manl. loc. com. p. 487. Iul. Scal. De Subtilitat.

Verse 12. I am the light of the world] Αυτόφως, ut Plato loquitur, quia Αὐταυτῷ, ut Scaliger.

The light of life] Light in good and bad men differs as the light of the Sun (wherein is the influence of an enlivening power) and the light of torches.

Verse 13. Thy record is not true] i. e. it is not sure and sufficient. There is the same Hebrew word for veritas & firmitas, truth and certainty.

אֱמֶת

Verse 14. Yet my record is true] For I am Amen the faithful and true witness, Rev. 3. 14. yea the God of Amen, Isa. 65. 16. and so the the onely sufficient witness concerning my self.

Verse 15. I judge no man] viz. After the flesh, as ye do. Christians are Antipodes to the world; yea, they have their feet there, where other mens heads are; they go not only another, but an upper way to work. Like Eagles, they delight in high flying.

Prov. 15. 24.

Verse 16. For I am not alone] But all one with the Father.

Verse 17. It is also written in your Law] He calleth it their Law, because he was above law: and needed not (but for their weakness) to have confirmed thus his doctrine by Scripture; as being to be believed upon his bare word.

ἀυτόκτω

Verse 18. I am one that bear witness, &c.] Christ is Alius from his Father, not Aliud. Another person, not another thing. As in the person of Christ there is aliud & aliud (against Eutyches) not alius & alius (against Nestorius.) In this Text. the Divinity of Christ is plainly distinguished from his humanity: how else should he and the Father be two witnesses to himself?

Verse 19. If ye had known me, &c.] For milk is not so like milk, as Christ is like his Father.

Verse 20. For his hour was not yet come] And they could neither hasten it nor prevent it. No man hath power over the life of another. My times are in thine hand, saith David. See the Note on chap. 7. 44.

Verse 21. Ye shall dye in your sins] A heavy doom, the very door to damnation. It is a sad thing to dye in prison, to dye in a ditch, but far worse to dye in your sins. This is to be slain with death, according to that, Revel. 2. 21. I will kill her children with death. All men dye, but wicked men only are killed with death. As a godly man said, that he did ægrotare vitaliter: so do all the righteous, mori vitaliter, because they have hope in their death; which to them is as the valley of Achor, a door of hope to give enterance into Paradise. Whereas to the wicked, it is as a trap-door to let them into hell: so that it is a just wonder, that foreseeing their danger, they go not roaring and raving out of the world. Nothing should be done (we say) to trouble a dying person, no shreeking or crying out. Oh take heed and prevent the shreekings of conscience at that hour, &c. Take heed ye dye not in your sin, in that your sin of unbelief. In hoc peccato (as Beza here rendereth it) for unbelief shuts a man up close prisoner in the Laws dark dungeon, till death come with a Writ of Habeas corpus, and hell with a Writ of Habeas animam, &c.

ἐν τῇ ἁμαρτίᾳ.

Verse 22. Will he kill himself] q. d. Them indeed we cannot, because we will not bear him company in so vile an act. A scurrilous jear: so little did the heart-piercing Sermons of our Saviour work upon them.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 23. Ye are from beneath] Vos infernales eſtis, Ego Supernas, Beza. So the wicked are called the inhabitants of the earth, and of the ſea, in oppoſition to the Church, which is ſaid to be in heaven, and called Jeruſalem, which is above. Rev. 12. 12. Gal. 4. 26.

Verſe 24. For if ye believe not, &c.] And yet Venator the Arminian ſaith, Nego hanc propoſitionem, Nemo poteſt ſalvus fieri, qui Chriſto per veram fidem non eſt inſitus. Is not this to contradict Chriſt to his face? what an os durum is this?

Verſe 25. Even the ſame that I ſaid, &c.] To wit, The way, the truth, and the life. Some render it thus; Prorſus id quod loquor vobiſcum, I am the very ſame Word that I ſpeak with you.

Verſe 26. I have many things to ſay] But I ſee I do but loſe my ſweet words upon you. I ſhall therefore turn you over to my Father with a Non-convertentur, that he may take an order with you, and make you hear the rod, ſith you would not the word. Thoſe that tremble not in hearing, ſhall be ground to pieces in feeling, ſaid bleſſed Bradford. Mic. 6. 9.

Verſe 27. They underſtood not] Though he cited them to Gods dreadful tribunal, and threatned them with his judgement. The Devil had ſtrangely ſtupified them: like the Smiths dog, whom neither the hammer above him, nor the ſparks of fire falling round about him, can awake: like birds in a belfree, or fiſhes in the ſea, not affrighted at any ringing or roaring made there.

Verſe 28. When ye have lift up the Son &c.] 1. Upon the Croſs, as the brazen Serpent was upon a pole. And 2. By the Croſs to the Crown, though they intended no ſuch thing. If there be any way to Heaven on horſeback (ſaid that Martyr) it is by the Croſs. Bradford.

Verſe 29 And he that ſent me is with me] So that I ſhall not labour altogether in vain, but accompliſh the work that he hath given me to do. So ſhall all Gods faithful Miniſters (though they may think all their labor loſt, and be ready to cry out, Eheu quam pingui macer eſt mihi taurus in arvo) Yet if they ſtrive to do always thoſe things that pleaſe him, he will both protect and proſper them. Virgil.

Verſe 30. Many believed on him] See the Note on chap. 7 31.

Abideth not in the houſe] Is not heir of the promiſes: though it be ordinary with ſuch præſumendo ſperare, & ſperando perire, (as one ſaith) to preſume and periſh.

Verſe 31. If ye continue in my Word] Non quæruntur in Chriſtianis initia, ſed finis, ſaith Hierom. And that which is but almoſt done, is not done, ſaith Baſil. It is the evening that crowns the day, and the laſt act that commends the whole ſcene. Temporaries flaſhings, are but like Conduits running with wine at the Coronation, that will not hold: or like a Land-flood, that ſeems to be a great ſea, but comes to nothing. τὸ σαρ' ἑλίγον χεῖρον ὂς, ἢ μέγα μὲν, Baſil.

Verſe 32. The truth ſhall make you free] From the tyranny of ſin, and terrour of hell. Pauls freedom ſaved him from whipping; this, from periſhing. Acts 22. 29.

Verſe 33. Were never in bondage] When yet they were ſcarce ever out of bondage to one enemy or another. At this time they were vaſſals to the Romans. But brag's a good dog. Pride will bud, Ezek. 7. 10. Spaniards are ſaid to be impudent braggers, and extreamly proud, in the loweſt ebb of fortune. There is not a more vainglorious people this day under Heaven, then the Jews (ſaith Alſted.) Antiquum obtinent, they are no changelings, they fill up the meaſure of their fathers ſins. Heyl. Geog. pag. 30. Alſted. Chron. 432.

Verſe 34. Is the ſervant of ſin] Hath as many Lords as luſts: That as Auguſtine ſaid of Rome, in her pride: She conquered countries, but was vanquiſhed of vices: And as the Perſian Kings commanded the whole world, but were commanded by their wives and concubines; ſo is it with ſins ſlaves. This ſlavery they may eaſily ſhake off, ſaith Seneca: wherein the wiſe man was utterly out, heavenly-wide, as Sir Philip Sidney Eniſheth, Toto errat cœlo. Servitus gravisſima eſt ſibi ipſi ſervire. Sen. Victrix Gentium, captiva vitiorum. Aug. Captivarum ſuarum captiv. Plutarch.

Verſe 35. But the ſon abideth ever] This is a part of that ſpiritual birth-right, Joh. 1. 12. God hath charged Chriſt to ſee to the ſafe-keeping of the body and ſoul of every true believer, Joh. 6. 39, 40.

Verſe 36. Free indeed] Not ſeemingly ſo, or in conceit only, as thoſe loſt Libertines, 2 Pet. 2. 1. 19. Ahaz thought himſelf helpt or hurt by the gods of Syria: but he onely thought ſo, 2 Chron. 28. 23. and all ſuch fond thoughts periſh, Pſal. 146. 4.

Verſe 37. I know that ye are Abrahams ſeed] But that will not bear you out: nay, you will fare the worſe for it, Rom. 2. 9. the Jew is firſt in puniſhment, becauſe firſt in priviledge.

Digitized by Google

priviledge. It was cold comfort to Dives, in flames, that Abraham called him son: to Judas, that Christ called him Friend, or to the rebellious Jews, that God calleth them his people: sith they were the people of his wrath, and the people of his curse, and should speed no better then the children of the Æthiopians, Am. 9. 7.

Because my word hath no place] This was worse then the former, because the root of it; even an evil heart of unbelief, which holds a man in an universal pollution, and maketh him a Kill-Christ.

Verse 38. And ye do] Or, Do ye that which ye have seen with your Father, and so shew your selves the Devils Imps, brats of fathomless perdition: Do so.

Verse 39 Abraham is our father] But it ill appeareth by your practise. Degenerate plants ye are, and such as shame your father, as much as Augustus his three children did him, whom he usually called his tres vomicas, tria carcinoniata, three botches and carbuncles. Sueton.

Verse 40. A man that hath told you the truth.] Yea, but you tell them not toothless truth, but such as breeds hatred. He that prizeth (preacheth) truth, shall never prosper by the possession or profession thereof, saith Sr Walter Rawleigh. And, Truth is a good mistress, saith another; but he that followeth her too close at heels, may hap have his teeth struck out. The hearing of truth gals; as they write of some creatures, that they have fel in aure. Prædicare, nihil aliud est, quàm derivare in se furorem mundi, said Luther, who had the experience of it. Hist. lib. 1. cap. 1.

Verse 41. We have one father, even God.] Yet God is not in their heads, Psal. 10. 4. nor heart, Psal. 14. 1. nor words, Psal. 12. 4. nor ways, Tit. 1. 16. In such a posture of distance, nay defiance, stand wicked men. And yet none so forward to call God Father. Jer. 3. 4, 5.

Verse 42. If God were your father] so that there is no true piety nor fear of God, where Christ is rejected. Frustra utitur, qui Christo non innititur, saith Bernard. If the Historian could say, Ut quisque Sejano intimus, ita ad Cæsaris amicitiam validus: contrà, quibus inoffensus esset, metu & sordibus conflictabantur. No man could be inward with the Emperour but by the favour of Sejanus; and to be out with him, was to be utterly unhappy: How much more may we say the same of Christ, who is all in all with the Father? If any will be Christless, they must be comfortless. Tacit.

Verse 43. Why do ye not understand my speech?] Any more then if I spake to you in a strange language. So, many of our hearers.

Verse 44. Ye are of your father the Devil.] Who hath set his limbs in you: so that ye are as like him, as if spit out of his mouth. Satan is called the God of this world; because as God at first did but speak the word, and it was done: so if the Devil do but hold up his finger, give the least hint, they obey him.

The lusts of your father ye will do.] If the fruits of the flesh (said that Martyr) grow out of the trees of your hearts, surely, surely, the devil is at Inne with you: You are his birds, whom when he hath well fed, he will broach you and eat you, chaw you, and champ you, world without end, in eternal wo and misery, &c. Bradford Serm. of Rep. p. 70.

And abode not in the truth] Si Satan in conspectu Dei tantas res ausus est, quid apud nos non audebit? Bucholc.

When he speaketh a lye, he speaketh of his own.] And so when we do evil, we work de nostro, & secundum hominem, 1 Cor. 3. 3. It is as impossible for us naturally to do good, as for a toad to spet cordials.

For he is a lyar, and the father of it.] The devil did only equivocate to our first parents, and yet is here called a lyar, and 2 Cor. 11. 3. a cozener. A lye hath been always held hateful: but equivocation is now set forth of a later impression. The Jesuites have called back this pest from hell, alate, for the comfort of afflicted Catholicks, as Arch-Preist Blackwell, and Provincial Garnet shamed not to profess. Est autem Satana pectus semper fœcundissimum mendaciis, saith Luther. He began his kingdom by a lye, and by lyes he upholds it, as were easie to instance. See my Notes on Genesis, chap. 3. verse 5.

Verse 45. And because I tell you the truth] See the Note on verse 40.

Verse 46. Which of you convinceth me of sin] q. d. Have you any thing against my life, that ye thus stiffly refuse to receive my doctrine? Do I not (as every Minister should do) vivere concionibus, concionari moribus, live sermons, as well as preach them?

Paul

Digitized by Google

Paul knew nothing by himself. 1 Cor. 4. 4. And Chrysostom saith, that the souls and lives of Ministers should be purer then the Sun-beams.

Verse 47. He that is of God, heareth Gods word] with attention of body, intention of mind, and retention of memory. And this is Gods ear-mark.

Ye therefore hear not] But either refuse, or rage at what you hear, as Tygers do at the sound of a drum. And this is a sore sign of a reprobate goat.

Verse 48. That thou art a Samaritan.] And why a Samaritan, trow, but that they thought the worst word in their bellies good enough for him? Malice cares not what it saith, so it may kill or gall: and these dead dogs (as he calleth Shimei) will be barking. 2 Sam. 16. 9. The Primitive Persecutors used to put Christians into bears and dogs skins, or other ugly creatures, and then bait them; so do the wicked put the Saints into ugly conceits, and then speak against them.

Verse 49. I have not a Devil] This crime touched his doctrine (as the other his person onely) therefore he makes answer to it; but no otherwise then by a simple denyal, which in some cases is sufficient. Didicit ille maledicere, & ego contemnere, saith he in Tacitus. If a wise man speak evil of thee, endure him: if a fool, pardon him, saith Another. If Genebrard rail upon Calvin, if Bolsecus or Baldwin call him twenty Devils, he can slight or pitty them: As, if Luther call me Devil, saith He; yet I will honour him, as a servant of God. A reviler, as he affirmeth without reason, so he may be dismissed without refutation.

Verse 50. There is one that seeketh and judgeth] The less a man strives for himself, the more is God his champion: Those that honour him, he will honour. Those that drown all self-respects in his glory, and study his share, more then their own, shall be found to praise, and honour, and glory, in that great Amphitheatre at the last day. 1 Pet. 1. 7.

Verse 51. Verily I say unto you] This he speaketh for the comfort of the better sort among those refractory Jews, whom he had so sharply handled. So Zuinglius when in his sermons he had thundred out Gods judgements against the wicked, he would commonly conclude with these words, Probe vir, hoc nihil ad te: This is not spoken to thee, thou good soul.

He shall never see death] That is, shall never taste of death, as the Jews interpret it, verse 52. Chrysostom distinguisheth between seeing and tasting death. Sed hallucinatur: eodem enim recidunt, saith Drusius: But Chrysostom is out here, for they are the same. And Our Saviour meaneth, that such an one shall not die eternally; he shall mori vitaliter, as one saith, live though he die. Drus. Praeter. p. 82. See M. Dugards Death and the Grave, p. 4.

Verse 52. Now we know thou hast a Devil] Thus whether Christ pipe or weep to these froward children, he prevails nothing. Neither promises nor menaces affect reprobates, neque duci ad Christum, neque trahi possunt, as Calvin here noteth, they will neither be led unto Christ, nor drawn to him.

Verse 53. Art thou greater then our father Abraham which is dead?] They rise no higher then to a natural life. Our life is hid with Christ in God, as the Pearl is hid in the shell, as Christ was hid under the Carpenters son; so as that the Buzzards of this world could see no beauty in him. Col. 3. 3.

Verse 54. It is my father that honoureth me.] According to that, Them that honour me I will honour: this is a bargain of Gods own making. Fame follows vertue, as the shadow the body: or if not, yet she is proprio contenta theatro, content with her own applause. 1 Sam. 2. 30.

Verse 55. Yet ye have not known him.] There is a twofold knowledge of God. 1. Apprehensive. 2. Affective, or cognoscitiva, standing in speculation, and directiva vitæ.

Verse 56. Your Father Abraham rejoyced to see] He saw it afar off, and saluted it, Heb. 11. 13. His good old heart danced Levalto's within him, as Children use to dance about a bonefire (so the word signifies) with an exuberancy of joy, that joy of Faith. The Fathers say, that he saw Christs birth at the valley of Mamre, Gen. 18. and his passion in the mount Moriah, Gen. 22. ἀσπασάμ. ἠγαλλιάσατο

Verse 57. Thou art not yet fifty] No nor much past thirty: and yet he had so spent himself in winning souls, and weeping over the hardness of mens hearts, that he seemed to the Jews to be much elder then he was, as some conceive. Sure it is that Mr. John Fox the Martyrologue, by the infinite pains that he took in compiling that elaborate work, (which he finiſhed in eleven years without the help of any other man) grew ſo lean and withered, that his friends knew him not.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 58. Before Abraham was, I am] I am that I am, in regard of mine eternal generation. And as Mediatour, I am Jeſus Chriſt, yeſterday, to day, and for ever. Heb. 13. 8.

Verſe 59. Then took they up ſtones] This is merces mundi, the worlds wages. Let us look up, with Stephen, and ſee Heaven, as he did, through a ſhowr of ſtones, &c.

Chap. IX.

Verſe 1. He ſaw a man which was blinde]

THis was enough to move Chriſt to mercy, the ſight of a fit object. When God ſets us up an Altar, be we ready with our ſacrifice.

Imbutierant Iudæi dogmate. μετεμψυχωσεως. Beza.

Verſe 2. Who did ſin, this man?] How could he ſin before he was born? But the Diſciples dream't of a Pythagorical tranſanimation; hence this fooliſh queſtion.

Verſe 3. But that the works of God, &c] Hinc Alexander Ales, Pœna, inquit, duplicem habet ordinationem, Unam ad culpam, quæ præcedit; alteram ad gloriam, quam præcedit. God ſometimes afflicts for his own glory, but ſin is ever at the bottom. And though God doth not always afflict his for ſin, as Iob: yet Iob ſhall do well to conſider, Job 11. 6. that God exacteth of him leſs then his iniquity deſerveth, as Zophar telleth him.

Verſe 4. Whiles it is day.] As other men do, Pſal. 104. 22. None can ſay he ſhall have twelve hours to his day: And night (death) is a time of receiving wages, not of doing work. On this moment depends eternity; on the weakeſt wyer hangs the greateſt weight.

Verſe 5. I am the light of the world] See chap. 12. 46. He is Light eſſential, the Father of Lights, the Sun of righteouſneſs; who at his nativity was as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber: in his life, rejoyced Pſal. 19. 5. as a ſtrong man to run his race: in his paſſion he was clouded: brake forth in his reſurrection, darts out his beams of grace ſince his Aſcenſion, and ſhall finiſh all at his return to Judgement.

Verſe 6. Made clay.] As he did at firſt in making Man, (the Poets tell us ſome ſuch thing of their Prometheus) to ſhew that this cure was done by that Almighty power that he put forth in the Creation.

Verſe 7. He went his way and waſhed.] He obeyed Chriſt blindling. He looked not upon Siloam with Syrian eys, as Naaman did upon Iordan: but, paſſing by the unlikelihood of a cure by ſuch a means, he believeth, and doth as he was bidden, without ſciſcitation.

Verſe 8. Is not this he that ſat and begged] As once blind Belliſarius did with da obolum Belliſario.

Verſe 9. I am he] Thus their doubting (by divine diſpoſition) made much for the manifeſtation of Chriſts power in the forementioned miracle.

Verſe 10. How were thine eyes opened] It is good to ask Chriſts illuminates ſuch ſavory queſtions, how they were called out of darknneſs into his marvellous light? what diſcoveries of himſelf Chriſt hath made unto them? &c. Auſtin confeſſeth, that before his converſion, he was of this opinion, that it was impoſſible for him to find ſuch comfort, as now he did, in a Chriſtian life. Cyprian ſaith as much of himſelf to his friend Donatus, beginning his Epiſtle thus, Accipe quod ſentitur, antequàm dicitur.

Aug. Confeſ. lib. 6. c. 12. Cyp. Epiſt. l. 1.

Luth. Verſe 11. I went and waſhed and received ſight] His blind obedience made him ſee. Let God be obeyed readily without reaſoning or wrangling: and ſucceſs ſhall not be wanting. God calleth for Curriſtas non Quæriſtas.

Verſe 12. I know not] For Chriſt diſappeared, as Ioh. 5. 13. See the Note there.

Verſe 13. They bring him to the Phariſees] who ſhould have been moved with the miracle to think the better of him that wrought it; and have better informed thoſe that brought the man to them, with what minde ſoever. But they had conceived ſuch an incurable prejudice, ſuch a deadly hatred againſt Chriſt, that what he did, they preſently condemn, as George Duke of Saxony did Luthers reformation, as the Monks of Ments did the Reformation begun there by Hermannus their Archbiſhop: profeſſing that they would rather receive Mahometiſm, then ſubmit to that new religion,

as

Digitized by Google

as they called it : as Phillip King of Spain would chuſe rather to have no ſubjects then Lutheran ſubjects; and out of a blind and bloody zeal ſuffered his eldeſt ſon Charls to be murdered by the cruel Inquiſition, becauſe he ſeemed to favour the truth.

Verſe 14. It was the ſabbath-day] And our Saviour knew it would be as ill reſented at that other Miracle on the ſabbath-day done, Joh. 5. for which they ſought to kill him. Men, be they pleaſed or diſpleaſed, duty muſt be diſcharged. Tenenda regula, cœcos ac duces cœcorum negligendos eſſe.

Verſe 15. How he had received his ſight] Gr. how he had recovered his ſight. It may be that (to leſſen the miracle) they would have had it, that the man had not been born blind, but onely recovered that ſight that once he had enjoyed. Malevolence ever ſtrives to deteriorate and deprave that good, which it cannot for ſhame abſolutely deny. An ungodly man diggeth up evil, Prov. 16. 27. and a froward fellow forgeth ſtrife, verſe 28. he digs, and then ſows the ſeed of ſedition in every furrow, where he can find footing.

Aristoteles recte proprietatem oculorum qui videndi facultatem aliquando habuerunt.

Verſe 16. This man is not of God.] True, if he had indeed made no conſcience of keeping the Sabbath. Sanctifying the Lords day in the primitive times was a badge of Chriſtianity. When the queſtion was propounded, Servaſti Dominicum? Haſt thou kept the Sabbath? the anſwer was returned, I am a Chriſtian and may not do otherwiſe. The enemies and hinderers of ſanctifying the Sabbath, are called unbelievers, vagabonds and wicked fellows, Acts 17. 2, 5. That late great Antiſabbatarian Prelate, ſo much caſt off by the reſt, after he had ſerved their turns, might well have cryed out with Cardinal Wolſey, Surely, if I had been as careful to ſerve God as I was to pleaſe men, I had not been at this paſs.

Chriſtianus ſum, inter mitterere non poſſum.

B. White. Act and Mon.

How can a man that is a ſinner] Yes that he may, by divine permiſſion, or at leaſt he may do ſomething like a miracle; as the falſe Prophets, and Antichriſt. Suetonius tels us, that Veſpaſian cured a blind man by ſpitting upon his eyes. And Dio teſtifieth that he healed another, that had a weak and withered hand, by treading upon it. And yet Veſpaſian lived and died a Pagan. This therefore was no convincing argument, that the Jews here uſed.

Semetipſum detectatus eſt, quòd Regi potiùs quàm Deo ſtuduiſſet placere. Scultet. Sueton. Dio in Veſpaſ.

Verſe 17. He is a Prophet] The more the Phariſees oppoſed the truth, the more it appeared. Veritas abſcondi erubeſcit, ſaith Tertullian. The Reformation was much furthered in Germany by the Papiſts oppoſition. Among many others two Kings wrote againſt Luther, viz. Henry the 8th of England, and Ludovicus of Hungary. This Kingly title being entred into the controverſie, made men more curious; And as it happeneth in combats, that the lookers on are ready to favour the weaker, and to extoll his actions, though they be but mean: ſo here it ſtirred up a generall inclination toward Luther, ſaith the Author of the hiſt. of the Council of Trent. Luther alſo in an epiſtle to the Elector of Saxony, triumpheth, and derideth the fooliſh wiſedom of the Papiſts, in cauſing him and the other Proteſtant Princes, to rehearſe the confeſſion of their faith in a publike Aſſembly of the ſtates of Germany, and in ſending copies thereof to all the Courts of Chriſtendom for advice: whereby the Goſpel was more propogated, and the cauſe of Chriſt more advanced, then if many preachers had been ſent out and licenſed.

Hiſt of Coun. of Trent, fol. 16.

Scultet. Annal. 274.

Verſe 18. But the Jews did not believe] The Phariſees who held themſelves the onely Jews, that is, true Confeſſors : like as the Swenckfeldians entituled themſelves the Confeſſours of the glory of Chriſt; The Anabaptiſts ſtile themſelves the Meek of the Earth, the Antinomians will needs be called the Hearers of the Goſpel, and of free Grace, &c.

Verſe 19. Is this your Son] Here they try another trick to obſcure the Miracle : but it would not be. God taketh the wiſe in their own craftineſs. Again, The Lord knoweth the thoughts of the wiſe, that they are vain. 1 Cor. 3. 19, 20.

Verſe 20. We know that this is our ſon] They anſwer obliquely and over-warily; but Chriſt had better deſerved of them. Squirrels ever ſet their holes to the Sunny-ſide. Politick Profeſſors, Neuter-paſſive Chriſtians will be ſure to keep on the warmer ſide of the hedge : neither will they launch further into the ſea, then they may be ſure to return ſafe to the ſhore. Cyprian calleth ſuch double minded men, palpatores temporum, in lenitate tantum conſtantes, giddy-brains.

Verſe 21. He is of age.] ἡλικίαν ἔχει. Fœlix ab ἥλιξ ἡλικία, ſay the Etymologiſts, ut fœlix ſit homo florida & vegeta ætatis, corpore & animo valens.

Beeman.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 22. Put out of the Synagogue.] This was that kinde of excommunication they called Niddui, or ſeparation; and ſuch were by the Greeks called Ἀποσυνάγωγοι, and Ἀνάθεμα ἔστω. There were two other more heavy kind of excommunications in uſe among the Jews, Cherem, and Samatha or Maranatha, which they derive as low as from Henoch, Jude 14. The Heathens alſo had their publike execrations, not raſhly to be uſed againſt any: Eſt enim execrationes triſtis, & mali Ominis, ſaith Plutarch: who therefore highly commends that Athenian Prieſt, that being commanded by the people to curſe Alcibiades, refuſed to do it. That Archflamen of Rome, The Pope, is like a waſp: no ſooner angry but out comes a ſting (an excommunication) which, being once out, is like a fools dagger, ratling and ſnapping without an edge, &c. It was grown to a Proverb among our fore-fathers, In nomine Domini incipit omne malum. John Cornford, (one of the ſix laſt that were burnt in England for the true Religion) when he heard himſelf, and his fellows excommunicated, ſtirred with a vehement zeal of God, and proceeding in a more true excommunication againſt the Papiſts, in the name of them all, pronounced ſentence againſt them in theſe words, In the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and by the power of his holy Spirit, and the authority of his holy Catholike and Apoſtolike Church, we do give here into the hands of Satan to be deſtroyed, the bodies of all thoſe blaſphemers and hereticks, that do maintain any errour againſt his moſt holy word, or do condemn his moſt holy truth for hereſie, to the maintaining of any falſe Church, or feigned Religion: ſo that by this thy juſt judgement moſt mighty God, againſt thine adverſaries, thy true Religion may be known, to thy glory, and our comforts, and to the edifying of all our Nation. Good Lord ſo be it.

Cum Pontifex Rom. diras in Ludovic. 12 Gall. Regem evomeret; Atqui (ait rex) Precandi ille, non imprecandi conſuetudinem Pontifex conſtitutus eſt. Fir. ron. lib. 2. de Geſtis Gallor.

Act. and Mon. fol. 1862.

Verſe 23. He is of age] See ver. 21, 22.

Verſe 24. Give God the glory.] It appears Joſh. 7. 19. and 1 Sam. 6. 5. that this was ſome ſolemn form, in uſe among that people when they required an oath of delinquents: This the hypocrites made uſe of, as when the Devils adjured Chriſt by the living God not to caſt them out. So their forefathers would perſecute godly men, and moleſt them with Church Cenſures, and then ſay, Let the Lord be glorified. Iſa. 66. 5. With like honeſty, as the Conſpiratours in K. Richard the ſeconds time here in England indorſed all their Letters, with Glory be to God on high, on earth peace, good will towards men: This poor man might have anſwered as Rob. Smith, the Martyr did, when Bonner began the ſentence of death againſt him, In Dei nomine, Ye begin in a wrong name, ſaid he.

Act. and Mon.

Verſe 25. Whether he be a ſinner or no, &c.] That is, a notorious impious man, as you affirm him. And this is an Ironical ſpeech; as if he ſhould ſay, You may make of him what you will, and call him at your pleaſure; he is as he is. And this one thing I know, and will teſtifie, that whereas I was blind, now I ſee; yea and I ſee day at a little hole too. If this man were not of God, he could do nothing. verſ. 33.

Verſe 26. What did he to thee? how opened he thine eys?] How fain would envy here have faſtened her fangs, and have found ſomewhat to ſay, whereby to caſt a ſlur on the miracle. They are even queſtion-ſick, as thoſe 1 Tim. 6. 4. Et ſi non aliqua nocuiſſent, &c. They feed upon their own hearts, becauſe they cannot come at Chriſts.

Verſe 27. Will ye alſo be his Diſciples?] A bold ſpeech of ſo mean a man, ſo little inlightned, to the Chief-Prieſts and Phariſees. Such was that of Dirick Carver Martyr, to Bonner; Your doctrine is poiſon and ſorcery. If Chriſt were here, you would put him to a worſe death, then he was put to before. You ſay you can make God, you can make a pudding as ſoon, &c. And that of Henry Lawrence, who being to ſubſcribe the Bill of his examination, wrote, Ye are all Antichriſt, and him ye follow, &c. And that of Anthony Parſons; Thou calleſt us thieves, ſaid the Biſhop of Salisbury. I ſay, quoth Anthony, ye are not only thieves, but murtherers, ye are rather biteſheeps, then true Biſhops, &c.

Act and Mon. fol. 1517.

Ibid. 1533.

Ibid. 1111

Verſe 28. Then they reviled him] As an Apoſtate from the Law, a noveller, a Nazarite, a diſciple of Chriſt, Thou art his Diſciple, ſay they, and therefore a dolt, a dunſe; as at this day in Italy, and at Rome, the muſt honourable name of Chriſtian is uſually abuſed to ſignifie. The Primitive Perſecutors painted Chriſt with an Aſſes head, and a book in his hand (as Tertullian ſaith) to ſignifie, that all his diſciples, though they pretended learning, yet they were ſilly and ignorant People. Eſt enim Satanæ pectus mendaciis fœcundiſſimum, ſaith Luther. The baſeſt can revile (as the abjects did David) & every black mouth caſt dirt upon Chriſts diſciples, as the off-ſcouring of all things, 1 Cor. 4. 13.

D. Fulk.

Pſal. 35. 15.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 29. We know not whence he is] i. e. Whence he had his miſſion and commiſſion to act the part of a Prophet. His Parents they knew, but doubted of his authority, as Papiſts and Sectaries do of ours. To whom we anſwer, that we received our miniſtery immediately from Jeſus Chriſt, whoſe Embaſſadours we are: and that his inward call is the main, whether it be that of approbation, as of godly Miniſters, or the other of Providence as of evil, ſuch as were Judas, Demas, Nicolas, thoſe that preached Chriſt of envy, Phil. 1. &c.

Verſe 30. And yet he hath opened mine eyes] Which was a foretold ſign of the Meſſiah, Iſa. 35. 4, 5. and an office whereto Paul was ſent of God, Act. 26. 18. And ſurely if God ſet ſuch a ſeal to a mans miniſtery, as to make him inſtrumental to the converſion of others, it is a ſweet and ſingular confirmation. Jer. 23. 22. 1 Cor. 9. 2, 3.

Verſe 31. We know that God heareth not ſinners.] Their incenſe ſmells of the hand that offers it: The lepers lips ſhould be covered according to the Law: the wicked compaſs God with lies, when they cry, My father, my father, &c. This is one of thoſe natural notions that the Devil could never blot out of mans minde, that God heareth not ſinners, he will never accept of a good motion from a bad mouth, as that ſtate in ſtory would not. He ſilenced the Devil acknowledging him: and of witches good prayers one ſaith, Si magicæ, Deus non vult tales: ſi piæ, non per tales. Hoſ. 11. 12. Hinc Achilles Homericus, Οὐκ ἐκ Θεοῖς ἐπιπείθεται μαλὰ τ' ἐκλυε ἀυτῆ. Dio in Veſpaſ.

Verſe 32. Since the world began was it not heard] Thoſe Hiſtorians then that have aſcribed ſuch a power to Veſpaſian, as to cure men that were born blind, are in no wiſe to be believed. Vopiſcus (who himſelf was one of them) ingenuouſly confeſſeth neminem hiſtoricorum non aliquid eſſe mentitum, that they are all lyars more or leſs, eſpecially in ſetting forth the lives and acts of their Emperours. In vita Aureliani.

Verſe 33. If this man were not of God, he could do nothing] i. e. Nothing of this nature, he could not work a true miracle. The Devils miracles, ut plurimum, ſunt præſtigiæ, impoſturæ, phantaſmata, ludibria. Bucholc.

Verſe 34. Thou waſt altogether born in ſins] Becauſe born blinde: ſo they upbraid him with his miſery, as if therefore a notorious offender: This is harſh and raſh judgement.

And doſt thou teach us?] Oh, take heed of that. But a mortified man will yield to learn of any body: a little child ſhall lead him, Iſa. 11. 6. Learned Apollos was better inſtructed by a couple of poor tent-makers. Acts 18. 26.

Ver. 35. And when he had found him.] So when the Pope had excommunicated Luther, and the Emperor proſcribed him, Chriſt Jeſus was with him, and carried on the work. Longe majora parturit mihi jam calamus, ſaith he: Neſcio unde veniunt iſtæ meditationes. And in his book of the Babyloniſh captivity, he profeſſeth, ſe quotidie, velit, nolit, doctiorem fieri. Luth. Epiſt.

Verſe 36. Who is he, that I might believe on him?] A man of God, he held Chriſt, verſe 33. The Son of God he yet knew him not to be: but was willing to be further informed, as appeareth by this queſtion. They that hold faſt what they have already received till Chriſt come, ſhall have more light: and a little ſtrength well improved, may have a great door, and effectual, opened. Rev. 2. 25. Rev. 3. 8.

Verſe 37. Thou haſt both ſeen him.] This ſeems to have been but ſome part of the diſcourſe that paſſed betwixt them, to make the man believe. Or if it were all, then we ſee as in a mirrour, the mighty power of Chriſts word. Well might he ſay chap. 6. 63. The words that I ſpeak unto you, they are ſpirit, and they are life. Well might Mr. Fox ſay in his Acts and Monuments, ſpeaking of the people of God here in England, in the reign of Henry the eighth, when they began to lift up their heads out of the puddle of Popery; This one thing I greatly marvel and muſe at, to note in the regiſters, and conſider how the word of God did multiply ſo exceedingly as it did amongſt them. For I find that one neighbour reſorting and conferring with another, eft-ſoons with a few words of their firſt or ſecond talk, did win and turn their minds to that wherein they deſired to perſwade them, touching the truth of Gods Word and Sacraments. Act. and Mon. fol. 750.

Verſe 38. And he worſhipped him] ſc. as the Son of God, with Divine Adoration. This our Saviour would not have ſuffered, had he not been of God. And being ſo, and to us ſo good a God, we muſt not only adorare Chriſtum, ſed & adulari, as Tertullian hath it, do him all the honour we can deviſe.

Verſe 39. For judgement I am come.] To judge, much otherwiſe then thoſe unjuſt judges judges have done, that have caſt out this poor ſervant of mine, for a blaſphemer. B. Bonner having a blind harper before him, ſaid, that ſuch blind abjects, that follow a ſort of heretical preachers, when they come to the feeling of the fire, will be the firſt that will flie from it. To whom the blind man ſaid, that if every joynt of him were burnt, yet he truſted in the Lord not to flie. A blinde boy, that bad ſuffered impriſonment at Gloceſter not long before, was brought to Biſhop Hooper, the day before his death: Mr. Hooper after he had examined him of his Faith, and the cauſe of his impriſonment, beheld him ſtedfaſtly, and the water appearing in his eyes, ſaid unto him: A poor boy, God hath taken from thee thy outward ſight, for what conſideration he beſt knoweth, but hath given thee another ſight much more precious: for he hath endued thy ſoul with the eye of knowledge, and faith, &c. It is a worthy ſpeech of Mr. Beza upon this Text, Prodeant omnes Phariſæorum noſtri temporis Academiæ. Let all our Univerſity-Phariſees come forth together: That blind and heretical Church (as they call it) hath, by the bleſſing of God, children of ſeven years old, that can before all the world, confute and confound their erroneous doctrines: witneſs the children of Merindal and Chabriers, John Fettyes child of eight years old, that told Bonners Chaplain (who ſaid Fetty was an heretick) My father is no Heretick, but you are an heretick, for you have Balaams mark. This child they whipt to death, &c. Alice Driver Martyr, nonpluſt all the Doctours that examined her: and then ſaid, God be honoured; you be not able to reſiſt the ſpirit of God in me a poor woman. I was never brought up in the Univerſity as ye have been: but I have driven the plow many a time before my father, and yet I will ſet my foot againſt the foot of any of you all, &c.

Digitized by Google

Act. and Mon. fol. 1821.

Ibid. 1321.

Habet eccleſia illa cæca & hæretica ſeptennes pueros, qui teſte univerſo mundo, &c.

Act. and Mon. fol. 1864.

Ibid. 1857.

Verſe 40. Are we blind alſo?] Yes, none more: for who ſo blind, as he that will not ſee? who is blind as he that is perfect, and blind as the Lords ſervant? Thou blind Phariſee, ſaith our Saviour, Mat. 23. 26. And again, ye blind guides, verſe 24. And ye fools and blind, oft in that chapter. And yet theſe paſſed in thoſe days for the onely wiſe men, (1 Cor. 1. 20. Where is the wiſe? where is the Scribe?) and had as good a conceit of themſelves (a ſure argument of their ſpiritual blindneſs) as the Chineſes have at this day: when they uſually ſay, that all other nations of the World ſee but with one eye, they onely with two. Saint Paul (who knew them, intus & in cute, as well as one man could know another) ſpeaks out their conceits. Thou art confident, ſaith He, that thou thy ſelf art a guide of the blind, a light to them that are in darkneſs, an inſtructer of the fooliſh, &c. Rom. 2. 19. And hence their ſwelth, their ruth, and their ruine. For as ſwelling is an ill ſymptom to the body, ſo is pride in the ſoul: and as the body may die of an inward bleeding, ſo may the ſoul of ſpiritual pride. And as none more often miſcarry in the waters then your moſt skilful ſwimmers, ſo neither do any ſooner fall into the condemnation of hell, or lie deeper therein, then the moſt knowing men, and thoſe of greateſt parts, which they uſually overween, and are too too well conceited of. Raram facit ſcientia cum modeſtia mixturam. Learning with modeſty, as it is rare, ſo it is καλὸν καλῶς (ſaith One) moſt amiable and attractive. It is like the coupling of a Muſe and a Grace —— aut ubi flavo

Argentum, Pariuſve lapis circundatur auro.

Iſa. 42. 19.

Virg.

Verſe 41. But now ye ſay, we ſee] If, after conviction, men run away with the bit in their mouths, the ſin is the greater: But their caſe is deplorable, qui quod verum ſit neque ſcient, neque ſuſtinent dicere, as Baſil complains of the Weſtern Church in his time.

Baſil in ep. ad Evag.

Chap. X.

Verſe 1. Verily, Verily, I ſay unto you]

AMen is in holy Scripture either prefixed to a diſcourſe, and then it is a particle of certain and earneſt aſſeveration, when it is doubled eſpecially, as here: or elſe affixed; and then it is either of aſſent or aſſurance, or both, as in the end of the Lords prayer.

Verſe 2. But he that entreth in by the door] That is, called by Chriſt to the office of his under-ſhepherd. In phyſicis aër non facit ſeipſum ignem, ſed fit à ſuperiori, ſaith Aquinas.

Aquin. ad Heb. 15.

It

Digitized by Google

Is the ſhepherd of the ſheep] To the which is required, that he be both learned and loving. This note ariſeth out of the notation of the word here uſed.

Ποιμὴν quaſi ἐπιμὴν, of ἐπὶ a ſheep: and μάω to deſire earneſtly.

Verſe 3. To him the porter openeth] That is, God approveth ſuch, and uſually ſeals to their miniſtery. Jer. 23. 22. giving them a teſtimonial, 2 Cor. 3. 2.

Verſe 4. He goeth before them] According to the cuſtom of ſhepherds in that countrey, not to drive their ſheep, but to lead them, as David ſhews in his divine Bucolicon, Pſal. 23. 2.

Verſe 5. A ſtranger will they not follow] For they have ſenſes exerciſed to diſcern good and evil; yea they have a ſpirit of diſcerning, 1 Cor, 12. 10. the mind of Chriſt, 1 Cor. 2. 16. and though ſimple to evil, yet are wiſe in that which is good. They are ſheep, but rational: their ſervice, a reaſonable ſervice, Rom. 12. 1. their obedience the obedience of faith, Rom. 16. 26. they try before they truſt, they look before they leap, and ſo grow to ſuch a certainty in that truth they hold, ſuch a plerophory of knowledge, Col. 2. 3. that it is impoſſible for them, to be fully or finally deceived, Mat. 24. 24. Falſe and heterodox doctrines they hate, Pſal. 119. 104. and all ſuch impoſtors as ſeek to buzz doubts into their heads, Rom. 16. 17.

Heb. 5. 14.

Verſe 6. But they underſtood not] So thick-brain'd and uncapable we are, till that vail be rent, Iſa. 25. 7. Thoſe that have a blemiſh in their eye, the more wiſhly they look into any thing, the leſs they ſee of it, as Vives hath it. So it is here.

Luſcioſi, ſi quando oculorum aciem intendunt, minus vident. Vives in Ang. de civ. Dei. l. 81. c. 6.

Verſe 7. I am the door] Heaven-door: ſo Chriſt is pleaſed to call himſelf, becauſe through him we have an acceſs by one Spirit unto the Father, Eph. 2. 18. And, In him we have boldneſs and acceſs with confidence by the faith of him, Eph. 3. 12. Why our Saviour compares himſelf to theſe ordinary and obvious objects of our ſenſes, See the Note on chap. 15. ver. 1.

Verſe 8. All that ever came before me, &c.] Manes (that mad heretick) made an argument from this text againſt Moſes and the Prophets, as going before Chriſt. But Auſtin anſwereth: Moſes and the Prophets came not before Chriſt, but with Chriſt. Intruders, whether before or ſince our Saviours days, are theſe thieves and robbers. Ah whoreſon-thieves, rob God of his glory! ſaid D. Taylor Martyr, in a dream, of the Scribes and Phariſees of his time.

Verſe 9. And ſhall go in and out, &c.] That is, ſhall live ſecurely, and be fed daily and daintily, as David ſhews, Pſal. 23. where he ſweetly ſtrikes upon the whole ſtring thorow the whole hymn.

Verſe 10. The thief cometh not but for to ſteal] How ſlily ſoever hereticks ſeek to inſinuate, with their Pithanology and feigned humility, whereby they circumvent and beguile the ſimple, it is deadly dealing with them. Shun their ſociety as a ſerpent in your way, as poiſon in your meat. Spondanus (the ſame that Epitomized Baronius) gives his Reader Popiſh poiſon to drink ſo ſlily, ſaith one, as if he were doing ſomewhat elſe, and meant no ſuch matter. And learned Billius obſerves the like of Socrates, the Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtorian, a cunning Novatian. Swenck-feldius, who held many dangerous hereſies, did yet deceive many by his preſſing men to an holy life, praying frequently and fervently, &c. by his ſtately expreſſions, ever in his mouth, as of Illumination, Revelation, Deification, the inward and ſpiritual man, &c. Some are ſo cunning in their cogging the die, as S. Paul phraſeth it, Epheſ. 4. in the conveyance of their colluſion, that like ſerpents, they can ſting without hiſſing; like cur-dogs, ſuck your blood only with licking; and in the end kill you and cut your throats without biting. Muzzle them therefore ſaith S. Paul, and give them no audience. Placilla the Empreſs, when Theodoſius Senior deſired to conferr with Eunomius the heretick, diſſwaded her husband very earneſtly; leſt, being perverted by his ſpeeches, he might fall into hereſie. Anaſtaſius the ſecond, Biſhop of Rome, in the year 497. whiles he ſought to reduce Acacius the heretick, was ſeduced by him. A little leaven ſoon ſowreth the whole lump. One ſpoonful of vineger will quickly tart a great deal of ſweet milk: but a great deal of milk, will not ſo ſoon ſweeten one ſpoonful of vineger. Errour (ſaith a Noble writer) is like the Jeruſalem-Artichoak: plant it where you wil, it over-runs the ground, and choaks the heart.

Pernicioſiſſimum Hildebrandinæ doctrinæ venenum lectoribus cibendum, quaſi aliud agens propinat. Deg. Whear. Bill. Obſerv. ſacr. l. 1. c. 26, Sculter. Annal. 279.

ἐν τῇ κυβείᾳ Epheſ. 4. 14.

ἐπισόμιζε Tit. 1. 11.

Tit. 3. 10. Sozomen. lib. 7. cap. 1. Iac. Rev. de vitis pontif. p. 42. L. Brooks.

Verſe 11. I am the good ſhepherd] So he is by an excellency: for he left his glory to ſeek out to himſelf a flock in the wilderneſs: He feeds them among the lillies, Cant. 2. 16.

gives

Digitized by Google

gives them golden fleeces, and shepherds to keep them, after his own heart; watcheth
Gen 35. 21. over them night and day in his Migdal-Eder, or tower of the flock: seeks them up, when lost, bears them in his bosom, and gently leads those that are with young, Isa. 40. 11. pulls them out of the power of the Lion, and the Bear: punisheth such as either push with the horn, or foul with the feet, Ezekiel 34. 19. Washeth them in his own blood, and so maketh them Kings and Priests to God, Rev. 1. 5. &c. so that they need not fear the spiritual Assyrian. Micah 5. 5.

Verse 12. The woolf scattereth] To Non-residents and other unconscionable Ministers, Christ will say as once Eliab did to David; With whom hast thou left those poor few sheep in the wilderness? Vare, redde legiones, said Augustus, sighing. The like will this good shepherd say, judging: Pan curet oves, oviumque magistros, say many of our Pluralists, and Idol shepherds. About Hildebrands time, so great was the negligence and wickedness of the Clergy, that some set forth letters, as dated from the devils of Math. Paris. Hist. Anno Dom. 1072. hell to them; wherein they give them many thanks for the souls they had sent to hell, in such abundance as never was known before.

Verse 13. The hireling fleeth] Yet is not every one that fleeth to be judged an hireling presently. There is a lawful flight, as when the quarrel is personal, &c. Christ fled oft, when persecuted: so may we. God hath made us not as butts to be perpetually shot at: but as the marks of rovers, moveable, as the wind and Sun may best serve. Fuge, fuge, Brenti, citò, citiùs, citissimè: So friendly did a Senatour of Hala advise Melch Adam. in vit. Brentii. Brentius. He embraced the advice, and saved his life by it.

Verse 14. And know my sheep] With a knowledge of approbation and delight. Verba notitiæ apud Hebræos secum trahunt affectum. Psal. 1 6.

Æsop. Fab. Verse 15. I lay down my life] Yet as man he was ζῶον φιλόζωον. Quis vitam non vult? saith Augustin: And, Quis enim vult mori? prorsus nemo, saith another.
Iob 2. 4. And, Skin after skin, or skin upon skin, and all that a man hath will he give for his life, said that old deceiver, truly. Yet our Saviour held not his life dear for his sheeps safety. Because he saw we should fall sore (said that Angel John Bradford) therefore he would suffer sore: Yea, if his once suffering had not been enough, he Bradf. Serm. of Repent. 63. would yet once more come again. God the father, I am sure, saith he, if the death of his Son incarnate would not serve, would himself and the holy Ghost also become incarnate, and die for us.

Verse 16. And other sheep I have] viz. The elect Gentiles, whose conversion to Christ was, among other types, not obscurely fore-shadowed, Levit. 19. 23, 24, 25. as some Divines think. The first three years in Canaan the Israelites were to cast away the fruits of the trees, as uncircumcised: So our Saviour planted the Gospel in that land for ther first three years of his publike ministery: But the uncircumcisions are cast away: that is, to the uncircumcised Gentiles, the doctrine of Christ is not declared by general and publike preaching. The fruit of the fourth year was consecrated to God: That is, Christ in the fourth year from his baptism, laid down his life for his sheep, rose again, ascended, and sent his holy Spirit: whereby his Apostles and others were consecrated as the first fruits of the promised land. But in the fifth year, the fruit of the Gospel planted by Christ began to be common, when the same doctrine was not shut up in the
Rom. 16. 26. strait bounds of Judæa, or walls of the Temple, but was made known (and shall be more and more) to all Nations, for the obedience of faith.

There shall be one fold] Of Jews and Gentiles. The full and final restauration of the Jews will fall out in the year 1650. as some have calculated out of Dan. 12. 11. I wait and wish it.

Verse 17. Therefore doth my Father love me, because] This because, is not a consecutionis, non causæ, saith Beza.

I lay down my life] I do it even now: for he suffered many a little death all his life long, and at length the cursed death of the cross.

That I might take it again] For Christs being life essential, swallowed up death in victory, as the fire swallows up the fuel, as Moses his serpent swallowed up the sorcerers serpents, &c.

Verse 18. I lay it down of my self] A necessity there was of our Saviours death, but it was a necessity of immutability (because God had decreed it, Acts 2. 23.) not of coaction; He died willingly. Therefore, when he gave up the ghost, he cried with a loud loud voice; which shews that his life was not then spent; he might have retained it longer if he would: and thereupon the Centurion concludes him to be the Son of God.

Digitized by Google

Verse 19. There was a division, therefore, &c.] This our Saviour foresaw, and yet forbears not. Gods truth must be spoken, however it be taken. Men, be they pleased or displeased, God must be obeyed, and his whole will declared. If men refuse to receive it, we must turn them over to God, with a Non convertentur, and then let him alone with them.

Verse 20. He hath a devil, and is mad] It was wonder if the heavens did not sweat, the earth melt, and hell gape at the hearing of these horrid blasphemies. Tygers rage at the fragrancy of sweet spices: so did these monsters at our Saviours sweet Sermons.

Verse 21. These are not the words, &c.] Wisdom is ever justified of her children. They fitly argue from his oracles and miracles both which this Evangelist doth more largely relate; purposely to prove our Saviours Divinity, and is therefore stiled John the Divine.

Verse 21. The feast of the dedication] viz. Of the temple newly purged from the pollutions of Antiochus, that little Antichrist. So when the Christian Temple, the Church, was purged from the popish abominations (called the tramplings of the Gentiles Rev. 11. 2.) by those two witnesses, that is, by Luther and other Heroical Reformers, there was great joy among Gods people And in the year 1617. as the Pope proclaimed a Jubilee for the peace of Italy and Austria, &c. so the Reformed Churches in Germany did the same, for Gods mercy in restoring to them the Gospel, a just hundred years before: for in the year 1517. Luther began to decry the Popes indulgences. In like sort, at same time, when the Greeks were busie in their Olympick games, the Prophet Isaiah saw that glorious vision of God in his Majesty, Isa. 6. 1, 2. (as the Divine Chronologer observes it.) singing with Seraphims, that sweetest Trisagion, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God of hosts. The new Jerusalem, which signifies the state of the Church in this world (saith a Reverend Divine) when it shall be refined to the utmost, is all of fine gold and precious stones, &c. to shew the excellency of Reformation: which golden times are yet to come, and will prove very festival.

Ἐγκαίνια, Initialia, sive Renovalia.

Iacob. Revius. de vit. Pontif. pag. 306.

Buchol. Chron. pag. 541.

D. Sibbs on Cant. 5 p. 330.

Verse 23. And Jesus walked in the Temple] Taking the opportunity of that publike meeting to do good; as the Bee is abroad so soon as the Sun ariseth. The Greeks were great walkers, as the Stoicks in their porch, &c. But the Turks wonder to see a man walk to and fro: and usually ask him, whether he be out of his way, or out of his wits? Pliny said to his Nephew, when he saw him walk out some hours without studying, Proteras has horas non perdere.

Biddulph. l. 3. c. 5.

In Solomons porch] So the Jews called that porch (for honours sake) which they built again after the captivity; and which, together with the whole Temple, was beautified by Herod the great, to curry favour with the people; which yet would not be, for they hated him extreamly.

Partim ambitione diuitus, partim Iudæorum benevolentiam captans, &c. Bez. Annot. in Joh. 1. 26.

Verse 24. How long dost thou make us to doubt?] They lay the blame upon him, as if (Heraclitus-like) he were a dark Doctour: when themselves were blind and did shut the windows, lest the light should come in unto them. Gods Ministers must look for the like measure. Howbeit God darkens their doctrine sometimes (as he dealt by Ezekiel) for the sins of the people.

Verse 25. I told you, and ye believed not] q. d. Your malice lyes in the way, that neither mine oracles nor miracles can work upon your hearts. Therefore also Christ chargeth them with a double unbelief: Ye believe not, saith He; and again, Ye believe not: This is the damming sin against the Gospel: yea this some will have to be that sin against the Holy Ghost. For which there is no pardon.

Verse 26. Ye believe not, because ye are not, &c.] Reprobates cannot believe, yea, they cannot but resist the external offers of Gods grace. The Word, Sacraments, and all Gods common temporal favours are, in respect of external participation, communicated to them by way of concomitancy only, because they are intermixed with the elect.

Verse 27. My sheep hear my voice] Buxtorf. in his Tiberias noteth, that the seventh ver. of the one and twentieth of Jeremy, consisteth of two and fourty words, & of an hundred and sixty letters. I am not at leasure to count the words & letters of this & the following verses: but it is easie to observe in them those five links of that golden chain of Gods grace Constat. ex 41. vocibus literis 160.

Digitized by Google

in our ſalvation, My ſheep, there's Election; hear my voice, there's Vocation; And I know them, there's Juſtification; And they follow me, there's Sanctification: and I give unto them eternal life, there's Glorification.

Paſtor oves ſpondet ſe abſolutè ſervaturum, nunquid liberabit fidem? &c. D. Pride. aux de Perſev. ſancto.

Verſe 28. They ſhall never periſh] This is the good ſhepherds promiſe: Is he now as good as his word, if he ſuffer his ſheep to wander and periſh, whom by promiſe he was tyed ſo to keep, as that they ſhould not wander, as they are naturally apt to do to their deſtruction?

Απο τ παν.

Verſe 29. No man is able to pluck them] Impoſtures ſeek to thruſt us from God, Deut. 13.5. and to drag diſciples after them, with ſuch violence, as if they would pluck them limmeal (as the word ſignifies. Act. 23.30.) ſo to deceive, if it were poſſible, the very elect, Mat. 24.24. A thing is ſaid to be poſſible, vel reſpectu Dei, vel reſpectu Rei. True grace, in it ſelf conſidered, is eaſily ſeparable from him that hath it, who, left to himſelf alſo, would ſoon loſe it. But with reſpect to God, by whoſe power the Saints are kept (as in a ſtrong guard or garriſon) through faith unto ſalvation, it is impoſſible that any of his ſhould finally miſcarry.

φρουρουμενοι. 1 Pet. 1.5.

Verſe 30. I and my father are one] Both for nature or eſſence, and for one conſent, both in willing and working. Out of the harbour of Goodwines ſands the Pilot cannot make forth, they ſay, without ſinking in thoſe ſands, unleſs he ſo ſteer his ſhip. that he bring two ſteeples, which ſtand off, ſo even in his ſight, that they may ſeem to be but one. So is it here.

Verſe 31. Then the Jews took up ſtones] This is the worlds wages to faithful Miniſters. Many conceit diſcharge of their duty without perſecution: they would pull a roſe without pricks. Non decet, ut ſub capite ſpinis coronato; vivant membra in deliciis. Zanch.

Verſe 32. From my Father] i.e. Ejus authoritate fretus. Bez. All our works muſt be done in God, and for God: then they are of the right ſtamp, and carry heaven in them, Heb. 6.9 Beſides that, they are unanſwerable ſyllogiſms, invincible demonſtrations, to confute and convert even Pagans, ſaith Chryſoſtom.

Chriſtianum ſanguinem Diis victimam eſſe graviſsimam. Tertul.

Verſe 33. But for Blaſphemy] Theſe were holy perſecutours, in pretence at leaſt. So Maximinian thought the blood of Chriſtians would be an accceptable ſacrifice to his gods So Francus the 2d of France, and Philip the 2d of Spain, held the ſame opinion of the Lutherans in their dominions. Zeal without knowledge is like mettle in a blinde horſe.

Αυτοματος.

Verſe 34. In your law] So he calls it, to ſhew that there was no neceſsity on his part to prove what he delivered by any Scripture, ſith he was to be believed on his bare word; but for their ſakes only he did it.

Aquin. 2. 2. q. 10. ar. 10.

Verſe 35. Unto whom the word of God came] That have their authority from God, whoſe ſubſtitutes and vicegerents Princes are, and of whom they have their Patent. With what face then can the Schoolmen defend Thomas in that Paradox, Dominium & Prælatio introducta ſunt ex jure humano?

Verſe 36. Hath ſanctified and ſent] Sanctified, that is anointed, and that in both his natures, as whole Chriſt. For his anointing imported; 1. His conſecration or ordination to the office of a Mediatour; and ſo the God-head alſo was anointed. 2. Qualification or effuſion of fulneſs of graces: as the holy oyl was compounded of divers ſpices, ſo the man-hood, and that without meaſure, as far a as fiinte nature was capable of.

Verſe 37. If I do not the works of my father, believe me not] Thus ſaid Chriſt, but ſo ſaith not Chriſts Vicar, as the Pope will needleſly be called. His Placits muſt be obeyed, not examined: and though by his evil example he draw thouſands to hell, none muſt mute, or ſay ſo much, as what doeſt thou?

Verſe 38. But if I do, though ye, &c.] q.d. Stumble not at the meanneſs of my perſon, condition, followers, &c. When it was ſometime diſputed among the Romans in the Council, uſing to deifie great men, whether Chriſt, having done many wonderful works, ſhould be received into the number of the Gods? it was at length concluded (ſaith the Hiſtorian) quod non deberet recipi inter Deos, pro eo quod non haberet cultores, propter hoc quod paupertatem prædicaret & eligeret, quam mundus contemnit.

Verſe 39. Therefore they ſought again to take him] They could not anſwer his arguments, they turn them therefore to a courſe of violence, wherein they doubted not but to be too hard for him. Thus they dealt with Ridley and Latimer at Oxford: thus with other Martyrs, who yet overcame them by the blood of the Lamb, yea, were more then conquerours, Rom. 8. A fagot will make you recant, ſaith the Biſhop to Mr. Hawks Martyr.

Digitized by Google

tyr. No, no, said he; a point for your fagot; you shall do no more, and your Master to help you, then God permits you. In the year 1166. the Synod at Oxford burned in the foreheads, and afterwards banished out of the realm, thirty Dutch doctours, that taught here the right use of wedlock, and the Sacraments. Act. and Mon. Alsted Chronol. pag. 357.

Verse 40. And went again beyond Jordan] The further from Jerusalem, the safer. Jerusalem was then, as Rome is now, the Saints slaughter-house. Roma radix omnium malorum.

Into the place where Iohn first baptized] As well for his own comfort (for there he had heard at first from Heaven, This is my beloved Son, &c.) as for the peoples conversion and confirmation, who there called to mind Johns testimony of Jesus, and believed.

Verse 41. John did no miracle] Lest he should be mistaken for the Messias. But how got he then so much credit? by his mortified conversation especially. Holy and reverend is Gods Name, saith the Psalmist: therefore reverend, because holy. Holiness hath honour in the consciences of the very worst.

But all things that John spake] The word works not sometimes, till many years after it hath been preached, as here: and as they say of the Elephant, that she goes with young thirteen years after she hath conceived.

Verse 42. And many believed on him there] Place is no prejudice to the powerful operation of the word, when by the Spirit it is made prolifical and generative.

CHAP. XI.

Verse 1. Bethany the town of Mary, &c.]

NOt the tower of Mary and Martha, as some Monks have doted; digni sanè qui ad Grammatices elementa remittantur, saith an Interpreter. Bethany was a small town or village nigh to Jerusalem, where dwelt these three, Lazarus and his two sisters, all in one house (though fratrum concordia rara) to whom our Saviour joyns himself a fourth in their friendship. Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity. Surely there the Lord commands the blessing, even life for evermore. Castellum. Psal. 133. 1, 3.

Verse 2. It was that Mary which anointed] This makes her name as an ointment poured forth. And she spared for no cost, being of her minde, it seems, that said, Ego si bonam famam servasso, sat ero dives. Cant. 1. Plaut.

Verse 3. Behold, he whom thou lovest is sick] This was enough to say to a loving Saviour. We need not be careful in any thing, more then to make our wants known to God, and let him alone to help us, how, and when he pleaseth. So, to mind and move Christ for the labouring Church, it shall suffice to say, She whom thou lovest is sick, is in ill case, &c. But Saint Austin asketh, Si amatur, quomodò infirmatur? Oh, wel enough: Afflictions are Christs love-tokens. As many as I love, saith he, I rebuke and chasten. See my Treatise upon that Text. Phil. 4. 6. God may give the dearly beloved of his soul into the hand of her enemies; Ier. 12. 7. Ἀπειρα εγκακια Verse 4. But for the glory of God] Happy Lazarus, though sick and dead, to be an instrument of glory, to be given to God. Saint Paul stood atiptoes (as it were) to see which way Christ might be most magnified in his body, whether by life or by death. Phil. 1. 20.

Verse 5. Iesus loved Martha] The Saints are all round about his throne, Rev. 4. 4. because he is alike near to them, for solace and tuition. Howbeit, as man, living amongst men, he was affected to some more then some, as to these three, and the beloved Disciple. These were his Jedidiahs, his singularly affected, and this was an high prerogative. Plato commendeth his countrey of Athens for antiquity of the people, &c. but chiefly for this, that they were beloved of the Gods. τὸ φῶτον χῆ μὴ μόνον δὲ ὅτι πρεσβύτατον ἀλλὰ θεοφιλὲς Plato.

Verse 6. He abode two days] Waiting to be gracious, but as a God of judgement, he knows best when to deal forth his favours, Isa. 30. 18. To prescribe to him, is to set the Sun by our dial. This Cæsar terms sauciness in his souldiers.

Verse 7. Then after that saith he, &c.] When help is seasonable, his fingers itch, as the mothers breast akes, when it is time the child had suck.

Verse 8. And goest thou thither again?] Yea; with the hazard of his life, to the help of his friend. The Ancients painted friendship, a fair young man bare-headed, in a poor garment, at the bottom whereof was written, Death and Life, in the upper

Digitized by Google

Wilkius Com. in Muret. orat. 1. de laud. lit. part, Summer and Winter; his boſom was open, ſo that his heart might be ſeen, whereupon was written, Longè, propè, a friend at hand and afar off.

Verſe 9. Are there not twelve hours?] q. d. Is there not an appointed time to man upon earth? Shall I not live out my ſtint? The Turks ſhun not the company of thoſe that have the plague: but pointing upon their foreheads, ſay, It was written there at their birth when they ſhould die. A Prieſt indeed might enter without danger into a leprous houſe, becauſe he had a calling from God ſo to do. A man may follow God dry-ſhod through the red ſea. This our Saviour cals here [to walk in the day] by an excellent and elegant ſimilitude. But he that keeps not within Gods precincts, may not look for his protection. I commend the charity, but I queſtion the diſcretion of Mr. Stafford, publike Profeſſour of Divinty in Cambridge, who hearing that a certain Prieſt, called Sir Henry Conjurer (in K. Henry the eights days) lay ſore ſick of the plague, was ſo moved with pity to the poor Prieſts ſoul, that he came to him, exhorted, and ſo laboured him, that he would not leave him, before he had converted him, and ſaw his conjuring-books burnt before his face. Which being done Mr. Stafford went home, and immediately ſickened, and ſhortly after moſt Chriſtianly deceaſed. He might have, I confeſs, an extraordinary call to this work. But Zanchius ſomewhere maketh mention of a colleague of his in the Miniſtery, that by the like means took his death, and much bewailed upon his death-bed, that he had not yielded to Zanchius, adviſing him to the contrary.

Iob 7. 1.

Blunts voyage into Levant, 81.

Act. and Mon. fol. 924.

Verſe 10. But if any man Walk in the night] As good Joſiah did, in that raſh expedition againſt Pharoah-Necho: either hoping to ingratiate with the Aſſyrian, or fearing to have an over-heavy neighbour of the Egyptian; he went up to battel, not ſo much as asking leave of the Lord: though he had Jeremy at hand, and Zephany, and a whole Colledge of Seers beſides. The beſt are ſometime miſcarried by their paſſions to their coſt.

Verſe 11. Lazarus ſleepeth] The Saints are ſaid to die in Chriſt, to ſleep in Jeſus. The Greeks call their Church-yards dormitoryes, ſleeping-places. The Germans call them Godſacre, becauſe their bodies are ſown there, to be raiſed again. The Hebrews Beth-chaym, the houſe of the living.

Rev. 14. 13. 1 Theſ. 4. 14. κοιμητήρια.

Verſe 12. If he ſleep, he ſhall do well] Sleep (ſaith one) is the nurſe of nature, the ſweet parentheſis of all thy griefs and cares.

Verſe 13. Jeſus ſpake of his death] Which profane Writers alſo do call a ſleep, but only becauſe the functions of the faculties are extinct by death: therefore they call it an iron ſleep, an eternal ſleep, &c. Chriſtians call death a ſleep, becauſe it is to them a ſweet reſt in their beds, warmed and perfumed for them by Chriſts body, laid in the grave; with whom alſo they look to riſe to life eternal. Thy dead men ſhall live, With my dead body ſhall they ariſe.

Ut ſomnus mortis, ſic lectus imago ſepulchri.

Verſe 14. Then ſaid Jeſus unto them plainly] Becauſe they underſtood him not. Miniſters muſt be gentle to all men, apt to teach, patient, in meekneſs inſtructing the ignorant, yea the inſolent, 2 Tim. 2. 24, 25. Auſtin confeſſeth he was glad to uſe ſome words ſometimes, to his hearers, that were not Latine; to the end that they might underſtand him.

Iſa. 26. 19.

Breerw. enquiries, page 29.

Verſe 15. I am glad for your ſakes] If the confirmation and increaſe of faith in his, be ſo great a joy to Chriſt, how acceptable muſt it needs be unto him, that we believe at firſt in his name? we cannot do him a greater honour, a more pleaſing ſervice. None greater in the fathers houſe then the prodigal returned. And what an high price did our Saviour ſet on the Centurions faith?

Verſe 16. Let us alſo go that We may die With him] A blunt ſpeech, and (as ſome think) over-bold. He would die with Chriſt, and ſo would Peter: yet none ſo ſhamefully forſook him, when it came to the proof, as theſe two. Thomas was to ſeek, when he ſhould have ſeen Chriſt riſen: he had not yet recovered his fright at our Saviours apprehenſion.

Verſe 17. That he had lien in the grave four days] So that he might ſeem now to come too late. The faith of the two ſiſters muſt needs be much ſhaken, to ſee their brother dead, though Chriſt had ſent them word he ſhould not die. Hold out faith and patience, God will be ſeen in the mount: he uſually reſerves his hand for a dead lift, when our faith begins to flag and hang the wing, when our ſtrength is gone, and we have have given up all for loſt. Now will I ariſe, ſaith the Lord, now will I be exalted, now will I lift up my ſelf. Iſa. 33. 10.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 18. About fifteen furlongs] Not full two miles: A ſhort walk, and hence ſo great a reſort to the place; not without a ſpecial providence of God, who ordereth all to his own glory. The Jews came only to comfort the ſiſters, and to condole with them (it is a mercy in miſery to find ſuch friends, qui mœroris & funeris pondera luctuoſa participabunt, as Cyprian hath it, that will ſet to their ſhoulders, and bear a part) but God had a further end in that meeting, ne obſcura eſſet Lazari reſurrectio, that there might be many witneſſes of Lazarus his reſurrection: who might alſo thereby be made partakers of the firſt reſurrection. Rev. 20. 6.

Verſe 19. To comfort them] A pious office, and yet never thought of by the ſuperſtitious Papiſts, amidſt all thoſe vain fopperies they preſcribe to be done about the dead. Only, what the Ancients uſed for the comfort of the living, is perverted by them to the pretended ſervice and help of the dead.

Verſe 20. But Mary ſat ſtill in the houſe] So, while faith ſits at the centre, love walks the round. Dicit Fides, Parata ſunt mihi omnia: Dicit Spes, Mihi iſta ſervantur: Dicit Charitas, Ego curro ad illa, ſaith Bernard.

Verſe 21. Lord if thou hadſt been here, &c.] Was ſhe ſure of that? but why was he dead, if Chriſt would not, though he were not there? We are all too much faſtened to his bodily preſence: howbeit we never come to believe indeed, till we are well perſwaded of his omnipotency. But how fitly may many a poor ſoul ſay to the bloody Non-reſident; Sir, if thou hadſt been here, my brother, childe, husband had not been dead in his ſins?

Verſe 22. Whatſoever thou wilt ask] This is our comfort, that our Advocate is all in all with his Father; and may have what he will of him. What need we any other Maſter of requeſts then Chriſt? If David will hear Joab for Abſalom; and Herod, Blaſtus for the Tyrians, what may not we hope? Acts 12.

Verſe 23. Thy brother ſhall riſe again] Let this conſideration comfort us in the deceaſe of our deareſt friends: they are not loſt, but laid up with Chriſt, who will bring them back with him at his coming. As the ſame divine hand that buried Moſes, that lockt up this treaſure and kept the key of it, brought it forth afterwards glorious in the tranſfiguration. The body that was hid in the valley of Moab, appeared again in the hill of Tabor. 1 Theſ 4.

Verſe 24. In the Reſurrection] The Syriack hath it Benuchama, in the Conſolation. So the Reſurrection was ever, to the diſconſolate believers of both Teſtaments, Dan. 12. 2. Heb. 11. 35. In the Primitive Church, when they repeated that Article of the Creed, I believe the reſurrection of the fleſh, they would point to their bodies, and ſay, etiam hujus carnis, even of this very fleſh.

Verſe 25. He that believeth in me, though, &c.] O the wonderful force of faith? Queſtionleſs (ſaith a Reverend man) juſtifying faith is not beneath miraculous in the ſphere of its own activity, and where it hath warrant of Gods word, &c. M. Sa. Ward.

Verſe 26. Believeſt thou this?] He ſaith not, Underſtandeſt thou this? For the myſteries of Chriſtian Religion, ſaith Rupertus, are much better underſtood by believing, then believed by underſtanding.

Verſe 27. I believe that thou art the Chriſt] What could Peter ſay more? Mat. 16. 16. Damaris may be as dear to God as Dionyſius, a woman (of no note otherwiſe) as an Areopagite, Acts 17. ult. Rupert. Abbas Tuccienſis.

Verſe 28. Called Mary her ſiſter ſecretly] By Chriſts command: and ſecretly, belike ſhe did it, leſt any ſhould tell the Phariſees, and Chriſt thereby be brought into danger. Be wiſe as ſerpents.

Verſe 29. She aroſe quickly] Love is winged, and a ready heart makes riddance of Gods work. His people are free-hearted. Pſal. 110. 3. Where the carkaſs is, there will theſe Eagles be: they ſcour to his preſence, as the Doves to the columbary, they flee as the clouds, &c. Iſa. 60. 8.

Verſe 30. Was not yet come in to the town] To eat and refreſh himſelf after his long journey, he would do his work firſt, as Abrahams ſervant. Gen. 24. 33.

Verſe 31. She goeth unto the Grave] That, Niobe-like, ſhe might weep her ſelf into a tomb-ſtone. Such a heatheniſh cuſtome it ſeems they had amongſt them, and many Ex eorum more qui luctus ſui irritamenta quærunt. Calv.

Digitized by Google

many other funeral rights, forbidden by the Law. But what should dropsie-men do eating salt-meats?

Verse 32. She fell down at his feet] Giving him divine honour, before all the Jews that were present. So did not Martha, that we read of. Mary had been more diligent in hearing and meditation of the word: hence her greater love and respect to Christ.

Verse 33. When Jesus saw her weeping] Tears are most effectual oratours to Christ: when he was going to the cross, he could find time to look back and comfort the weeping woman.

And was troubled] So as for the present he could not utter himself. Yet these passions in Christ were, as clear water in a christal glass, without sin.

Verse 34. Where have you laid him?] He could tell well enough: but yet would be told by them. So, He knows our wants before we open them, and sometimes is pleased to prevent us with a supply: but usually he will hear from us. Come he will to our relief and succour, but he will have his peoples prayers lead him. I came for thy words, saith the Angel, Dan. 10. 12. and chap. 9. 21. whilest he was speaking in prayer, Gabriel came with weariness of flight, and touched him about the evening oblation, which was the hour of prayer.

Verse 35. Jesus wept] He wept with those that weep. And the same tenderness he retains still toward his afflicted. As Aaron, though he might not lament his two sons slain by Gods hand in the sanctuary: yet he had still the bowels of a father within him: So hath Christ now, in the heavenly sanctuary: he hath lost nothing by heaven. Levit. 10.

Verse 36. Behold how he loved him] What? for shedding some few tears for him? O how then did he love us for whom he shed the deerest and warmest blood in all his heart? Ama amorem illius, &c. saith Bernard.

Verse 37. And some of them said] Thus our Saviour is diversly interpreted and censured: and so it is still with his Ministers. When we see our Auditors before us, little do we know with what hearts they are there, nor what use they will make of their pretended Devotion. Doeg may set his foot as far within the Tabernacle as David. If some come to serve God, others come to observe their teachers, and pick quarrels: yea, if conscience might be judge, many a hearer would be found to have an Herods heart toward his Minister.

Mihi experto credite, quòd apertis sepulchris in capitibus invenietis bufones saltantes generatos ex cerebro, &c. Serm. 48. ad fratres in eremo.

Verse 38. Groaning in himself] To consider, belike, the woful effects of sin, that brought death into the world, even on the best; and makes them a ghastly and loathsome spectacle: so that Abraham desires to bury his beloved Sarah out of his sight. Believe me who have made trial of it, saith Agustine, Open a grave, and in the head of the dead man ye shall find toads leaping, that are begotten of his brain, serpents crawling on his loins, that are bred out of his kidneys, worms creeping in his belly, that grow out of his bowels: Ecce quid sumus, & quid jam erimus: Ecce in quod resolvimur: En peccati originem & foeditatem! saith that Father.

Verse 39. By this time he stinketh] Ey, the better for that; Christs power will be the more manifested. As S. Austin said of one that hit him in the teeth with the sins of his youth; The more desperate was the disease, the greater honour redounded to the Physician that cured me. Beza's answer to one that did the like to him, was, Hic homo invidet mihi gratiam Christi.

Verse 40 Said I not unto thee, &c.] A foul fault in her to be so incredulous; and enough, without the greater mercy of Christ, to have marr'd all. For unbelief is so vile and venemous an evil, as that it transfuseth a kind of dead palsey into the hands of omnipotency, Mark 6. 5. Christ that can do all things by his absolute power, can do little or nothing by his actual power, for unbelievers. He cannot, because he will not.

Verse 41. Father I thank thee that, &c.] Beginning to pray, he brings his thanks in his hand, as sure to speed. So must we, Phil. 4. 6. And therefore in the Law, whatever request they had to God, they must be sure to come with their peace-offerings, in token of thankfulness: that they might sing with the Psalmist, Praise waiteth for thee, O God, in Sion. It is said of Tiberius the Emperour, that he never denied his favourite Sejanus any thing, and oftentimes prevented his request, so that he needed only to ask and give thanks. All Gods people are his favourites, and may have any thing that heart can wish or need require. Psal. 65. 1. Tacit.

Verse 22. And I knew that thou hearest me always] And he always liveth to make interinterceſſion for his; who therefore may boldly believe, that they ſhall want nothing that is good for them, ſith he is All in All with the Father, and may have what he will. In any ſtrait go but to God, and cry as he did, Conqueror tibi lachrymis Jeſu Chriſti, and doubt not of a gracious return of thy prayer.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 43. Lazarus, come forth] If this voice of Chriſt had been directed to all the dead, they had preſently riſen; as ſure as they ſhall riſe, when the Lord himſelf ſhall deſcend with a ſhout, with the voice of an Archangel, crying, Surgite mortui, venite in judicium. Pliny reports of the Lioneſs, that ſhe brings forth her whelps dead, and ſo they remain for the ſpace of three days until the Lion coming near to the place where they lie, lifts up his voice and roars ſo fiercely, that preſently they are raiſed from death to life. The Prophet Ieremy tels us the like of this Lion of the Tribe of Judah, Ier. 25.30,31. See the place.

Veref 44. And he that was dead] But where was his ſoul therewhile? In manu Dei: not in Purgatory, as Papiſts ſay, for that is againſt their own principles: They ſend none to Purgatory, but men of a middle-make, betwixt juſt and unjuſt Now Lazarus was ſurely a very good man: elſe had he not been ſo dear to Chriſt. But that Purgatory is the Popes invention, as Tindal hath it: hear S. Auguſtine, Nemo ſe decipiat, fratres: duo enim loca ſunt, & tertius non eſt viſus. Qui cum Chriſto regnare non meruit, cum diabolo, abſque dubitatione peribit. Aug. de ebriet.

Verſe 45. Believed on him] And ſo God had his honor, and Chriſt his end in this, according to verſ. 4

Verſe 46. But ſome of them, &c.] Lo, reprobates will not believe, though one roſe from the dead to them.

Verſe 47. Then gathered the chief Prieſts] Like unto this was the Council of Trent, gathered on purpoſe to ſuppreſs Chriſt in his true worſhippers, and carried by Antichriſt with ſuch infinite guile and craft, without any ſincerity, upright dealing and truth, as that themſelves will even ſmile in the triumphs of their own wits, (when they hear it but mentioned) as at a maſter-ſtratagem.

Verſe 48. The Romans ſhall come, &c.] And ſo they did: the thing that they feared came upon them, for their inexpiable guilt in killing the Lord Jeſus. Demades, when the Emperor ſent to his country-men of Athens to give him divine honour, and they were loth to yield unto it, but conſulted about it: Take heed, ſays he, you be not ſo buſie about heavenly matters, as to loſe your earthly poſſeſſions. Theſe refractory Iews loſt both.

Verſe 49. Ye know nothing at all] Why no: you know all (Caiphas) all the Aſſeſſours are but Aſſes to you. Hoc eſt ſuberbire, quaſi ſuper alios ire. This fellow would have made a fine Duke of Ruſſia, by whom it is cautionated that there be no ſchools, leſt there ſhould be any ſcholars but himſelf. So the Gnoſticks bragged that they were the only knowing men. And the Ieſuites at this day tell us, that the Empire of Learning is confined to their territories. Heyl. Geog. Pag. 343. Irenæus. Penes nos eſt imperium literarum. Eudæm.

Verſe 50. That one man ſhould die for the people] A brutiſh and bloody ſentence: as if evil might be done, that good may come thereof. So, when Farellus, that worthy Reformer, came firſt to Geneva, and was convented there by the Biſhop, as a diſturber of the publike peace, one of the Popiſh Aſſeſſors cried out, Away with this peſtilent Lutheran; better he periſh then the town he diſquieted. To whom Farellus anſwered, Noli Caiaphæ voces, ſed Dei verba proferre, Speak not in the language of Caiphas, but in the word of God, &c. Scultet. Annal. tom. 2. p. 384.

Verſe 51. This he ſpake, not of himſelf] God ſpake through him, as through a trunk; or as the Angel ſpake in in Balaams Aſs. Wholeſome ſugar may be found in a poiſoned cane, a precious ſtone in a Toads head, a flaming torch in a blinde mans hand.

Verſe 52. Gather together in one] In one ſpiritual body, though in place never ſo diſtant one from another. Epheſ. 4. 4. My dove is but one, the daughters ſaw her and bleſſed her, Cant. 6.9. No ſuch oneneſs, entireneſs, any where elſe: Other ſocieties may cleave together as the toes of clay in Nebuchadnezzars image, but not incorporate.

Verſe 53. Then from that day forth] So baneful is evil counſel, from the mouth of a man of mark eſpecially, to ſet men agog upon miſchief.

Verſe 54. Into a city called Ephraim] Not elſewhere mentioned; built, perhaps, in honour honour of their father Ephraim, by the posterity of those rash sons of his, that had brought grief to his heart, and to make amends for their miscarriage. See 1 Chron. 7. 21, 22.

Digitized by Google

Verse 55 Before the Passeover, to purifie themselves] They had their Paraſceve, and Proparaſceve, their Preparation, and Fore-preparation. We must also purifie our selves before the Sacrament from all filthiness of flesh and spirit, cast all the baggage into the brook Kidron (that is, the town ditch) and then kill the Passeover, 2 Chron. 30. 14. The very Heathens had their cœnam puram before their sacrifices.

1 Cor. 7. 1.

Godw. Antiq.

Verse 56. Then sought they for Iesus] Whether these were his friends or enemies, the Doctors are divided.

Verse 57. Had given a commandment] So diligent were they, and earnest to execute that cruel decree of the Council. This is c heck to our ofcitancy in the best things. What a shame is it, that they should outwork the children of light, in a through-dispatch of their deeds of darkness? and be at more pains to go to hell, then we will be to go to heaven.

Chap. XII.

Verse 1. Came to Bethany]

TO covert some, confirm others, and to refresh himself with his fast friends, ere he fell into the hands of his bloody enemies. So Cromwell Earl of Essex going to his death, first called for his breakfast, and chearfully eating the same, and after that meeting the Lord Hungerford going likewise to his execution, and perceiving him to be all heavy and doleful, with chearful countenance and comfortable words asking him why he was so heavy, he willed him to pluck up his heart, and to be of good comfort: For, said he, there is no cause for you to fear, for if you repent and be heartily sorry for that you have done, there is for you mercy with the Lord, who for Christs sake will forgive you: therefore be not dismaid: And though the breakfast we are going to be sharp, yet trusting to the mercy of the Lord, we shall have a joyful dinner. And so went they together to the place of execution, and took their death chearfully.

Acts and Mon. fol. 1096.

Verse 2. That sat at table] Being invited by Simon the Leper, at whose house this feast was kept, as some will have it.

Verse 3. Of spikenard, very costly] Herodotus reckons an Alabaster box of oyntment among the precious gifts that Cambyses sent for a present to the King of Ethiopia. Mary thinks nothing too good for him, whom her soul loved. She will honour him with the best of her substance: she knew there was nothing lost; but though it took from the heap, yet it encreased the heap: as it is said of tythes and offerings, Mal. 3. This made David so free and frolick, that he would not serve God of that which cost him nothing: and that he made such plentiful preparation for the Temple-work. It is both love and good husbandry, to make our service to God costly: His retributions are bountiful. This ointment in the text was a costly confection, like that of the Church, Cant. 4. 14. Spikenard and saffron, calamus and cynamon, &c. Now Galen writes, that in his time Cynamon was very rare, and hard to be found, except in the store-houses of Princes. And Pliny reports that a pound of Cynamon was worth a thousand denarii, that is 150 crowns of our money. This good woman held, as Tertullian afterwards did, that Pietatis nomine sumptum facere, est lucrum facere, to spend upon pious uses, was the way to greatest gain.

μυρῷ ἀλάβαστρον. In Thalia

Lib. 1. Antidot.

Verse 4. Then said one of his disciples] S. Matthew tels us, that all the Disciples said thus. Judas was of so great esteem and authority amongst them, that what he did, they are all said to do. So cunningly he had carried his conspiracy, that they all suspected themselves rather then Judas; every one said, Is it I?

Verse 5. Sold for three hundred pence] He, the thief, had quickly computed and cast it up. Pliny tels us, that a pound of ordinary ointment might be had for ten pence; but the best was worth three hundred and ten pence. So that Judas was much about the good, as they say: And Mary spared for no cost; as neither did Justinian in his rich Com-

Digitized by Google

Communion-table, offered up by him in the Temple of Sophia in Conſtantinople, that had in it (ſaith the author) all the riches of land and ſea. Cedren hiſt. ad annum 32. Iuſtin. p. 317.

Verſe 6. He was a thief] It's the conceit of Tertullian, that even Judas carried himſelf honeſtly and right, uſq; ad loculorum officium, till he bare the bag. When once he came to be maſter of the money he grew into ſuch a deviliſh humor of covetouſneſs, that rather then he would be out of taking, he would ſell his very Saviour: And a fair match he made: For as Auſtin ſaith, Iudas ſold his ſalvation, and the Phariſees bought their damnation.

And had the bag, and bare] Our Saviour then had a bag for ſtore, and ſo big that it had need to have one ſpecially deputed to bear it: This was Iudas; who could be well content to bear the croſs on his back, ſo he might bear the bag in his hand; which he thought (as all covetous men do) to be the beſt tongue a man can uſe for himſelf, as the Greek word here uſed importeth. But what an odious piece of hypocriſie is that in the Cappucine Friars, that none of them may take or touch ſilver? at the offer thereof they ſtart back, as Moſes from the ſerpent: yet have they ever a boy with a bag in their company, that takes and carries it, and never complains of either metal or meaſure. γλωσσόκομον. D. Hals Epiſt. 5. Decad. 1.

Verſe 7. Let her alone] Chriſt croſſed the traytour in his covetous deſire of fingering ſuch a ſum. Hence his diſcontent put him upon that deſperate deſign of contracting with the chief Prieſts. He is reſolved to have it, however he come by it: Rem, rem, quocunque modo rem. Take heed of diſcontent. It was the devils ſin, that threw him out of heaven. Ever ſince which, this reſtleſs ſpirit loves to fiſh in troubled waters, to dwell in a darkened ſoul: as in Saul, envious at David: and as ſome hereticks miſſing of preferment, have invented their hereſies, ut ſe conſolarentur, as Epiphanius obſerved. Horat.

Verſe 7. Againſt the day] Being at a feaſt he ſpeaketh of his funeral.

Verſe 8. The poor ye have always with you] To give to when you pleaſe; and in gratifying whom, ye may glorifie God, and ſecure your ſubſtance: for Manus pauperum gazophilacium Chriſti, ſaith an Ancient.

But me have ye not always] And yet we have in his poor members, the family of faith. Hence Salvian ſticks not to ſay, that Chriſt is maximus mendicorum, the greateſt of beggers: and addeth, Non eget miſeriâ, ſed eget miſericordiâ: non eget deitate pro ſe, ſed eget pietate pro ſuis. Salv. ad Eccleſ. Catholi. l. 4.

Verſe 9. And they came, &c.] Do the Phariſees what they could to the contrary. Truth may be oppreſt, not ſuppreſt. Impii ſunt piorum ἐφυβρισταί. This people (like thoſe branches of palm-trees born by them, ver. 13.) ſpred and ſprang up, the more they were held under by the High-Prieſts. Βαΐα, ἀπὸ τὸ βαίνειν, a ſcandendo.

But that they might ſee Lazarus] And fiſh ſomewhat out of him concerning the future eſtate of the dead. But here they loſt their labour.

Verſe 10. That they might put Lazarus alſo to death] In malice is ſteeped the venome of all vices. What a giant-like madneſs was this, to take up arms againſt heaven it ſelf? to ſeek to kill a man, only becauſe God had made him alive? was it not becauſe they were even acted and agitated by the devil? Si videris aliquando perſecutorem tuum nimis ſævientem, ſcito quia ab aſcenſore ſuo dæmone perurgetur, ſaith Bernard. Theſe Phariſees had ſinned that ſin to death; which made another, in the ſame caſe, wiſh that his wife and children, and all the world might be damned together with him. Hacket at the gallows cryed out, O heavenly God——ſhew ſome miracle out of the cloud to convert theſe Infidels, and deliver me from mine enemies: But if not, I will ſet the heaven on fire, and with theſe hands, pluck thee out of thy throne: and other ſpeeches he uſed, more unſpeakable. Mr. Burr. his Moſes choice, pag. 34. Camd. E. 403.

Verſe 11. Becauſe that by reaſon of him] This was it that imbittered the Phariſees, as it doth now their ſucceſſors, the Papiſts. Bellarmine bewrays his grief, and tels us; That ever ſince we proclaimed the Pope to be that Antichriſt, his Kingdom hath not only not increaſed, but daily more and more decreaſed. And Eraſmus being asked by the Elector of Saxony, why Luther was ſo hated by the Popiſh Clergy? For two great faults that he had committed, ſaid he, For medling with the Popes tripple Crown, and the Monks fat paunches. Ab eo tempore quo per vos Papa Antichriſtus eſſe cœpit, non modo non crevit ejus imperium, &c. D. Papa Rom. l. 3. c. 21.

Verſe 12. On the next day much people] The envious Phariſees feeding the while upon their own hearts. Iſrael never increaſed ſo faſt, as when Pharoah moſt oppreſſed them. Plures efficimur, quoties metimur, ſaith Tertullian. Scultet. Annal. page 25.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 13. Took branches of palm-trees] Plutarch writeth, that the Babylonians make 360 benefits of the Palm-tree, and therefore do highly honour it. Pintus upon Daniel telleth us, that the Palm-tree will not grow in a fat ground, but in a light and ſandy: And if the ſoyl be ſtrong and fertile, they muſt caſt ſalt and aſhes at the root, to qualifie the ſtrength of the ground. Sure it is, that if proſperity be not ſeaſoned with the ſalt of grace, it will be unfruitful and unprofitable.

πάντων ἀγαθῶν διδασκάλων τὸν τυφλισσον. Chryſoſt. Spec. belli ſacri, p. 240.

Hoſanna, Bleſſed is the King, &c.] This ſhews they were well ſeen in Davids Pſalms, which are, ſaith Chryſoſtom, a rich ſtore houſe of all good doctrines: And they are ſo penned, ſaith Athanaſius, that every man may think they ſpeak de ſe, in re ſua, of himſelf, & for his particular purpoſe; which, of other parts of Scripture, cannot be affirmed.

Verſe 14. When he had found a young Aſs] To make religion dance attendance upon policy (ſaith one) is to ſet the Aſs upon Chriſt, and not Chriſt upon the Aſs. Theſe three things ſaith Luther, will be the ruine of religion, unthankfulneſs, ſecurity & carnal policy.

Sapientia mundi, quæ vult omnia redigere in ordinem, &c. Melch. Adam in Luth.

Verſe 15. Sitting upon an Aſs] Not upon a ſtately palfrey, as an earthly Potentate; but upon a ſilly Aſs, without pomp, to comfort the pooreſt, and to teach us humility, tolerance, patience. An Aſs is a beaſt profitable (whence he hath his name in the Original) but born to bear burdens. Oneramus aſinum, ſaith Bernard, & non curat, quia aſinus eſt. But what notorious aſſes are thoſe ſuperſtitious Papiſts, that ſhew the aſſes tayl at Genua in Italy, whereon our Saviour rode, for a relique, and give it divine worſhip? Are not theſe given up to the very efficacy of errour?

ὅτι, πρὸς τὸ ὀνηλατεῖ. Hinc Heraclidæ Sophiſtæ, πῶς ἐγκωμιον, ὄνε dixit ἐγκώμιον. Ptolom. Sophiſta. Wolph. Mem. Lect.

Verſe 16. Theſe things underſtood not, &c.] They only beheld it as a pretty Pageant. They had read it often, in the Prophet, and now ſaw it acted; yet were never the wiſer, for preſent. Read, or hear, though thou underſtandeſt not: God may drop in divine light, when thou leaſt looketh for it.

Verſe 17. When he called Lazarus, &c.] This notable miracle, the Evangeliſt, as he had punctually deſcribed it, chap. 11. ſo he cannot but again & again recite it. We ſhould ſet forth Gods noble acts, and not be ſated. David never lins talking of what God had done for his ſoul. Thoſe in heaven have no reſt (and yet no unreſt neither) crying, Rev. 4. 8. Holy, holy, holy, &c.

Verſe 18. For this cauſe alſo the people met him] To the Phariſees extreme grief and regret: to ſhew that there is neither Wiſdom, nor underſtanding, nor counſel againſt the Lord, Prov. 21. 30.

Verſe 19. Perceive ye how ye prevail nothing?] Thus they ſtir up one another to more madneſs, as if hitherto they had been over-milde, and uſed too much gentleneſs. So

Act. & Mon. fol. 1461. Steven Gardiner, being charged of cruelty by Bradford, anſwered, I for my part have been challenged for being too gentle oftentimes. Which thing Bonner confirmed, and ſo did almoſt all the audience, that he had been ever too mild and moderate. So Bonner in

Ibid. 1537. open Court to the Lord Major: They report me (ſaid he) to ſeek blood, and call me Bloody Bonner, whereas God knows, I never ſought any mans blood in all my life. But a certain unknown good woman, in a letter to Bonner, told him his own in theſe

Act. and Mon. fol. 1672. words: Indeed you are called the common cut-throat, and general ſlaughter-ſlave to all the Biſhops of England. And therefore it is wiſdom for me and all other ſimple ſheep of the Lord, to keep us out of your butcherly ſtall, as long as we can: eſpecially ſince you have ſuch ſtore already, that you are not able to drink all their blood, leſt you ſhould break your belly; and therefore ye let them lie ſtill, and die for hunger, &c. Thus ſhe to Bonner. As for D. Story who was hang'd, drawn and quartered, for his treaſon in

Ibid. 1925. Q. Elizabeths raign: I ſee (ſaid he in open Parliament) nothing to be aſhamed of (though he had been a furious perſecutor under Queen Mary) ſo leſs I ſee to be ſorry for, but rather becauſe I have done no more: wherein he ſaid there was no default in him, but in them, whom he oft and earneſtly had exhorted to the ſame: being not little grieved, therefore with them, for that they laboured only about the young and little ſprigs and twigs, while they ſhould have ſtricken at the root (the Lady Elizabeth he meant) and clean rooted it out. The Lord Paget in a certain conſultation ſaid, that King

Ibid. 1899. Philip ſhould never have any quiet common-wealth in England, unleſs the Lady Elizabeths head were ſtricken from her ſhoulders. Whereunto the Spaniards anſwered, God forbid that their King & Maſter ſhould have ſuch a minde, to conſent to ſuch a miſchief. A Writ came down, whiles ſhe was in the Tower, ſubſcribed with certain hands of the Engl. Elizab. pag. 109. Council, for her execution, Steven Gardiner being the engineer. M. Bridges Lieutenant nant of the Tower, miſtruſting falſe play, preſently made haſte to the Queen, who renounced and reverſt it. And yet of her, that was true that Joſephus writeth of Alexandra, Ipſa ſolum nomen regium ferebat, cæterum omnem regni poteſtatem Phariſæi poſſidebant. Engl. Eliſab. pag. 109.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 20. Greeks] That is, Proſelytes or tranſmarine Jews, that read the Greek Verſion, and were called Helleniſts.

Verſe 21. Sir, we would ſee Ieſus] That is, We would have private conference with him; for they had ſeen him, likely, as he came riding into the City. Our Saviour ſeems not to have yet admitted them, becauſe the time appointed for their calling was not yet come. Every thing is beautiful in its time: but as fiſh and fleſh, ſo other things too, are naught out of ſeaſon. Eccleſ. 3. 11

Verſe 22. Andrew and Philip told Jeſus] Therefore we may deſire the Saints departed to mediate for us to Chriſt, ſay the Papiſts. A pittiful poor argument. Illi ſic garriant, nos aliter credamus. Auguſt.

Verſe 23. That the Son of man ſhould be glorified] That is, crucified: but he looked through death, and ſaw heaven beyond it: ſo muſt we: then ſhall we ſay, Surely the bitterneſs of death is paſt. This made Simeon ſing out his ſoul: Hilarion chide it out; Taylor fetch a friſk, when he was come near the place where he was burned; Bradford put off his cap, and thank God, when the Keepers wife brought him word he was to be burned on the morrow: Roper ſtand in the fire with his arms ſtretched out like a rood: Hawks clap his hands over his head three times, when they were all on a light fire, &c. 1 Sam. 15. Egredere, ô anima mea. Act & Mon

Verſe 24. Except a corn of wheat, &c.] The Apoſtles thought Chriſt ſhould have been preſently glorified. He lets them here know, that he muſt firſt ſuffer, before he enter into his glory; bear the croſs, before he wear the crown; paſs the ſtroke of deaths flaming ſword, before he come into Paradiſe. Ne Ieſum quidem audias glorioſum, niſi videris prius crucifixum, Luth. epiſt. ad Melanct.

Verſe 25. He that loveth his life] As Chriſt loved not his life to the death for us, ſo neither muſt we for him. If every hair of my head were a man, I would ſuffer death in the opinion and faith that I am now in, ſaid John Ardley Martyr, to Bonner. God be praiſed, ſaid D. Taylor, ſince my condemnation, I was never afraid to die: Gods will be done: If I ſhrink from Gods truth, I am ſure of another manner of death then had Judge Hales, &c. Act. & Mon. fol. 1438. Ibid. 1382.

Verſe 26. If any man ſerve me, let, &c.] Art thou not glad to fare as Phocion? ſaid he to one that was to die with him. How much more to die with and for Chriſt? Οὐκ ἀγαπᾷς μετὰ Φωκίωνος ἀποθανεῖν; Plut.

Verſe 27. Now is my ſoul troubled] Chriſti perturbatio non tranquillat, & infirmitat firmat, ſaith Auguſtine.

Father, ſave me from this hour] As man, he naturally feared and deprecated death; ſuch a dreadful death eſpecially, as he was to ſuffer. Διὰ τὴν ἀγωνίαν σου, παθήματων, ſaith the Greek Letany; by thine unknown ſufferings, Good Lord deliver us. Howbeit this was but with his ſenſitive will; for his rational will was ever the ſame with that of his Father.

Verſe 28. Then came there a voice from Heaven] God ſometimes gives a ſenſible anſwer to the prayers of his people, as they are praying, or immediately after, as Dan. 9. 21. Acts 4. 31. And Luther praying for the good ſucceſs of Gods cauſe in Germany, came leaping out of his ſtudy, with Vicimus, vicimus, in his mouth.

Verſe 29. That it thundered: others ſaid, an Angel, &c.] But the Apoſtles and ſome few others underſtood, that it was neither Thunder nor an Angel, but God that ſpake. In like ſort nowadays God ſpeaks by his Word, but few hear him in it. The word of God (ſaith Forbs on Rev. 14.) hath three degrees of operation in the hearts of men. Firſt, it falleth to mens ears, as the ſound of many waters; a confuſed ſound, which commonly bringeth neither terrour nor joy, but yet a wondring and acknowledgement of a ſtrange force, and more then humane power, Mark. 1. 22. 29. Acts 13. 41. The ſecond effect is, the voice of thunder; which brings not only wonder, but fear: Theſe two may be in the reprobate, as Fœlix, and the multitude in our text. The third effect, proper to the elect, is the ſound of harping; whiles the word not only raviſheth with admiration, and ſtriketh the conſcience with terrour, but alſo filleth it with ſweet peace and joy. Fuerunt præter Apoſtolos etiam aliqui minus ſiniſtri interpretes. Calvin.

Verſe 30. But for your ſakes] That ye might believe: which if ye do not, how ſhall ye eſcape, that neglect ſo great ſalvation, ſuch a heavenly preacher? See then that ye refuſe refuſe not, that ye ſhift not off him that ſpeaks from heaven: ſee that ye turn not from him, whoſe voice once ſhook the earth, but now heaven too, &c.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 31. The Prince of this world] Gratian ſaith, The devil is called Prince of this world, as a King at cheſs, or as the Cardinal of Ravenna, only by deriſion. The power he hath is meerly uſurped, and becauſe the world will have it ſo, which even lieth down in that wicked one, as S. Iohn hath it, that is, under the power and vaſſallage of the Devil. It is wholly ſet upon wickedneſs, as Aaron ſaith of the people, Exod. 32.22.

Verſe 32. And if I be lifted up, &c.] Pope Urban the ſixth ſaid, that theſe words, Give unto Cæſar the things that are Cæſars, were aboliſhed when Chriſt was lifted up from the earth, and drew all things to him; that is (as he expounds it) when Chriſt aſcended, he drew to the Popes Empire all Kings and their Kingdoms, making him King of Kings, and Lord of Lords. Is not this a ſweet Interpreter?

I will draw all men unto me] As the wind called Cæcias, being a North-Eaſt wind, contrary to the nature of the North-wind, drives not away clouds, but draws them to him.

Verſe 33. Signifying what death, &c.] Be lifted up betwixt heaven and earth, as Abſolom was, who therein ſaith Gretſer the Jeſuite, became a lively figure of Chriſt crucified. Sed ô mirum & delirum figurativæ crucis fabrum!

Verſe 34. We have heard out of the Law] But had they never heard out of the Law, that Chriſt muſt firſt ſuffer, and then enter into his glory? Iſa. 53.2. Dan. 9.26. There's none of us Jews, ſaith Joſephus, but being asked of any point of the Law, can anſwer to it more readily, then tell his own name. It is then ignorance or malice that they thus cavil and quarrel our Saviour?

Verſe 35. Yet a little while is the light, &c.] The day of grace, which is very clear and bright, is uſually a ſhort one. Therefore break off your ſins by repentance: be abrupt in the work: for life is ſhort, opportunities headlong, and once paſt, irrecoverable. He is the wiſe man that prefers opportunity before time, in laying hold upon eternal life: but fools are ſemper victuri, ſaith Seneca, they will, and they will, &c. ſo they trifle, and by futuring, fool away their own ſalvation. Amend before the draw-bridge be taken up. Charls King of Sicily and Ieruſalem was called Cunctator: not in the ſenſe as Fabius, becauſe he ſtayed till opportunity came; but becauſe he ſtayed till opportunity was paſt. Too many ſuch. Manna muſt be gathered in the morning, or not at all: and not kept till the morrow, leſt it ſtink.

Verſe 36. Whiles ye have the light] God is but a while with men in the opportunities of grace: and this wil be a bodkin one day at the hearts of unbelievers, that they loved darkneſs rather then light: viz. when they are caſt into outer-darkneſs.

Verſe 37. But though he had done, &c.] The Evangeliſt being now by courſe of the hiſtory to paſs on to the deſcription of Chriſts Death and Paſſion, thinks good firſt to remove this dead Amaſa (the Jews unbelief) out of the way (that none might ſtop or ſtep aſide for it) by aſſigning the true cauſe thereof, their own unmalleable obſtinacy.

Verſe 38. That the ſaying of the Prophet] Theſe unbelievers were not ſuch, becauſe the Prophet had ſo foretold it; but the Prophet therefore foretold it, becauſe they ſhould be ſuch. Like as Ioſephs foretelling the famine, was no cauſe of it, but an antecedent only.

Verſe 39. Therefore they could not believe, &c.] They could not, becauſe they would not, ſaith Theophylact out of Chryſoſtom, who yet extolleth mans free will more then is meet. Pelagianis nondum litigantibus, Patres ſecuriùs loquebantur, ſaith Auguſtine.

Verſe 40. He hath hardened their hearts] With a judiciary hardneſs. This is in ſome reſpect worſe then hell: ſith (beſides that God inflicts it as a puniſhment of former obſtinacy) it is one of the greateſt ſins, and ſo far greater an evil then any of the greateſt puniſhments. Hence it was the ſaying of a Reverend man, If I muſt be put to my choice, I had rather be in hell with a ſenſible heart, then live on earth with a reprobate mind.

Verſe 41. When he ſaw his glory] His train only in the Temple. Iſa. 6.1. where the Seraphims are ſaid to hide their faces with two wings, as with a double ſcarf before Gods glorious brightneſs, that would put out their eyes elſe: they clap their wings on their faces, as men do their hands, when the lightning flaſheth in their eyes.

Verſe 42. Leſt they ſhould be put out, &c.] Which would redound to their diſgrace: and this, theſe Ambitioniſts could not away with. But what ſaith a Reverend Divine? Bravely.

Heb. 12.25,26. Ignatius his Concl. 43.

1 Iohn 5.10. Quomodò Plautus. In fermento tota jacet uxor.

Jacob. Rev. de vit. Pon. p. 213.

Plin.

Abſlon Marte furens penſilis arbore obit.

Quilibet noſtrùm de lege interrogatus, facilius quam nomini ſuo reſpondet. Joſ.

Contra Julian. l. 1. c. 2.

Digitized by Google

Bravely contemn all contumelies and contempts for thy conſcience, taking them as crowns, and confirmations of thy conformity to Chriſt.

Verſe 43. They loved the praiſe of men] Which what is it elſe, but a little ſtinking breath? Theſe have their reward, Mercedem ſuam, non Dei, ſaith Hierom. How much better Luther? Haud velim, Eraſmi, gloriâ aut nomine vehi: Major eſt mihi timor in laudibus, gaudium verò in maledictis & blaſphemiis. Epiſt. ad Nic. Hanſm.

Verſe 44. Jeſus cryed, &c.] As being now to cry his laſt to them, and is therefore ſo earneſt in his conteſtation. This was the Conclamatum eſt to this perverſe people, his farewel-Sermon, &c.

Verſe 45. Seeth him that ſent me.] For God was in Chriſt reconciling the world to himſelf, and in him the God-head dwelt bodily: So that in all our addreſſes, we muſt fix the eye of Faith on the humane nature of Chriſt, and there ſpeak as to our God. Like as where I ſee the body of a man, there I know his ſoul is, and therefore I ſpeak to his underſtanding, when and where I ſee his body, becauſe they are not ſevered: ſo, viewing by Faith Chriſts manhood now glorified, I there ſee and ſpeak to the great God, becauſe I know he is there perſonally united. Col. 2.

Verſe 46. I am come a light into the world] Not by participation only (as the Apoſtles were the lights of the world, Mat. 5. 14.) but by nature. How prodigiouſly blaſphemous then was that Biſhop in the Council of Trent, that (in his oration there made) applied this text to the Pope, who at that time was Paul the Third, an odious hypocrite? Cornel. Epiſcop. Bipontin.

That whoſoever believeth in me, &c.] And he that this way ſeeks the Kingdom of Heaven, muſt, with him in Juſtin, look for this Sun of righteouſneſs in the Weſt; that is, dying upon the Altar of his croſs: ſo ſhall he become King of Heaven. Stratonis ſervus, ap. Iuſtin. l. 18.

Verſe 47. I judge him not] Viz. Whiles I am here on earth. I ſuſtain another perſon now, that men may come apace to me without fear. Some ancient hereticks held, That God in the time of the Law, was a ſevere Judge: and now, in the days of the Goſpel, he was all made of mercy and mildneſs. But the Apoſtle ſaith ſomewhat otherwiſe. Heb. 2. 1, 2, 3. God is more peremptory in his judgements now, then ever of old. And chap. 12. 29. he telleth us that even our God alſo, as well as the God of the Jews is a conſuming fire.

Verſe 48. The word that I have ſpoken] If the word ſhall judge us, then ought it much more to be a judge of our doings now, ſaid M Philpot Martyr. Therefore let it be Preſident in all Aſſemblies and judgements, ſaith Beza: as in the Nicene Council, Conſtantine cauſed the Bible to be ſet upon a desk, as Judge of all controverſies.

Verſe 49, 50. For I have not ſpoke of my ſelf] The divine authority of Goſpel-doctrine, is here, in the cloſe of this laſt Sermon ad populum, moſt gravely aſſerted by our Saviour; as that which is undoubtedly authentick, becauſe it comes from the Father, è cujus ore nil temerè excidit. David (ſaith one) ſets the 119. Pſalm as a Poem of commendation afore the book of God. The ſon of David (ſay I) ſets this text as his Imprimatur, his authoritative Licenſe, at the end of the Goſpel. And as a friend once wrote to Egidius Abbot of Noringberg, concerning the 119. Pſalm, that they were, verba vivenda, non legenda, words not to be read, but lived: The ſame may I affirm of our Saviours Sermons, and I know that his commandment is life everlaſting. Sic de Virgilo Scaliger de Tacito Peacham.

CHAP. XIII.

Verſe 1. That he ſhould depart, &c.]

THis definition of death, ſaith Calvin, pertains to the whole body of the Church. It is to the Saints no more then a paſſage to the father, an in-let to eternal life. Whether a Chriſtians death be a burnt-offering (of Martyrdom) or a peace offering (of a natural death) whether it be by a ſudden change, as Eliahs, or a lingring ſickneſs, as Eliſhas, its a ſweet ſacrifice aſcending to God, as Manoahs Angel aſcending in the ſmoke. This made Baſil, when the Emperors Lieutenant threatned to kill him, cry out, εἴθε θεὸς ἐν ἐκείνῳ γένοιτο μοι, I would he would: for ſo ſhould he ſoon ſend me to my heavenly Father, to whom Calv. in loc. εἴθε θεὸς ἐν ἐκείνῳ μᾶς πορέψειεν. Baſil.

Digitized by Google

whom I now live, and to whom I desire to hasten. This made Velcurio a Dutch Divine, when he lay upon his death-bed, break out into these sweet words, Pater est amator, Filius Redemptor, Spiritus Sanctus Consolator; quomodo itaque tristitiâ affici possim? The Father loves me, the Son redeemed me, the holy Ghost comforts me; how then can I be cast down at the approach of death? And the like triumphant words were uttered to me, by my late Reverend good friend and father, M. John Iackson, Pastor of Binton in Warwick-shire, when he lay a dying, and laid his last charge upon me, to preach Christ, who had swallowed up death in victory.

Ioa. Manll. loc. com.

Plato. To the end he loved them] Such fast friends are hard to find. φίλος ἐυμετάβλητον ζῶον, A friend is a very changeable creature, saith one; as soon on, and as soon off again: as soon in, and as soon out, as Ioabs dagger was; clear at the top, and muddy at the bottom, as ponds are; white at the waxing of the Moon, and black at the waning of it, as the fish Scolopidus in the river Araxis is said to be. Andronicus the Greek Emperour, whom but yesterday he had used most kindly, and enrolled among his best friends, upon them to day he frowned and tyrannized most cruelly: so that you might have seen (saith the Historian) the same man the same day (as is reported of Zerxes his Admiral) to be crowned and beheaded, to be graced and disgraced. So of Tiberius, and Mahomet, the first Emperour of Turks, it is said, that in their love there was no assurance; but their least displeasure was death. Christ, whom he loves once, he loves ever, and though we break off with him, yet he abides faithful, 2 Tim. 13. and his foundation standeth steady, having this seal, The Lord knoweth them that are his, vers. 19.

Turk. hist.

Verse 2. The devil having now put] He is likely, at one end of every temptation to sin: as the hand of Ioab was in the tale of the woman af Tekoah. He rubs the fire-brand of evil concupiscence, and makes it send out sparkles

Verse 3. Iesus knowing, &c.] This is prefaced to the washing of his Disciples feet; to shew that he did it not rashly, or out of baseness of spirit, as forgetting the dignity of his person and place, as Ahaz did, 2 Kings 16. 7. and those, Isa. 57. 9 and David also in the Court of Achish. There is a τὸ πρέπον, a comelinesse to be kept in every condition.

Verse 4. He riseth from Supper] So the rite of the Paschal supper required: as Beza sheweth in his Annotations upon Mat. 26. 20.

Verse 5. After that he poureth water, &c.] So doth the Pope once a year, in an apish imitation of our Saviour. As likewise, when he is new elected, in his solemn Lateran procession, he takes copper out of his Chamberlains lap, and scatters it among the people, and (Lye and all) saith, Silver and Gold have I none.

D. Hall on Mat. 5. 20.

Verse 6. Then cometh he to Peter] He came first to him, (for the former verse sets forth his intent, rather then his act of washing) And yet S. Chrysostom tels of some, that would needs have it, that he began with Iudas. Like as the Papists say, that our Saviour appeared first, after his resurrection, to the Virgin Mary: though the text be plain, that he first shewed himself to Mary Magdalen. These are like him in Aristotle, that thought that every where he saw his own shape and picture going before him.

Antipheron Orietes apud Aristot.

Verse 7. But thou shalt know hereafter] Different degrees of knowledge are bestowed at several times. Our hearts are like narrow-mouthed vessels: but then shall we know, if we follow on to know the Lord, Hos. 6. 3. and take heed that we leak not, Heb. 2. 1.

Verse 8. Thou shalt never wash my feet] This was an immoderate modesty, a proud humility: so is it in them that refuse Gospel-comforts, because they are unworthy, Domine, non sum dignus, at sum indigens, said Pomeran. Tibi adest nimia humilitas, Thou hast too much humility, said Luther to Staupicius. So the Baptist was as much to blame in refusing to wash Christ, as Peter here to be washed by him. Luther said of Melanchons self-denying humility, Soli Deo omnia deberi tam obstinatè asserit, ut mihi planè videatur in hoc saltem errare, quod Christum ipse fingat longius abesse cordi suo quam sit revera: Certè nimis nullus in hoc est Philippus. Philip is worse conceited of himself then is fit.

Mat. 3. 14.

Verse 9. Lord, not my feet only] Here he seems to be as far out on the other side. How hard is it to hold a mean? Vertue is placed between two extreams, as the Planet Iupiter between cold Saturn and fiery Mars.

Medio tutissimus ibis. Ovid. lib. 1. 2. c. 8.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 10. Needeth not, ſave to waſh his feet] For though bathed in that bleſſed fountain, Zech. 13. 1. and fully juſtified, yea, and freed from the ſtain and raign of ſin, yet not from the reliques, to keep us humble; that when we look upon our feathers, we may withall look upon the feet ſtill defiled, and ſo be ſtill cleanſing our ſelves from all filthineſs of fleſh and ſpirit. The inwards and the feet in a ſacrifice were to be waſhed above the reſt; becauſe the intrails contain the excrements: and the legs, becauſe they tread in the dirt. Anſwerable whereunto, we are called upon to waſh our hearts, Jer 4. 14. and our feet, here. The compariſon ſeems to be taken from thoſe that are waſhed in baths: for though their whole bodies beſides are waſhed; yet going forth, they touch the earth with their feet, and ſo are fain to waſh again. 2 Cor. 7. 1.

Verſe 11. He knew who ſhould betray him] And yet he vouchſafed to waſh his feet. This was ſtupenda dignatio, a wonderful condeſcenſion, an unparalleld patience.

Verſe 12. Know ye what I have done to you?] This was our Saviours uſual order to catechiſe his Diſciples, after he had ſaid or done any thing for their inſtruction. So did the Apoſtles, Gal. 6. 6. 1 Cor. 14. 19. and the Primitive Paſtors: They had their Credis? Credo: Abrenuncias? Abrenuncio, as it were by an Eccho, as the word importeth. Κατηχέω Sicut in Eccho una vox bis audiri debet, tam ex Catechumeno, quam ex ipſo Catechiſta. Paſſor. Aſſted Chronol. pag. 429.

Verſe 13. Ye call me maſter, and Lord] A little before our Saviour came in the fleſh; the Jewiſh-Doctors had taken up divers titles in this order: Rabbi, Rabban, Rab, Rabba, Gaon, Moreh, Morenu, and Morehtſedeck. Theſe they did arrogantly appropriate to themſelves: But Chriſt was the true owner of them all.

Verſe 14 Ye ought alſo to waſh one anothers feet] What ſo great matter is it then to ſalute others? to ſeek reconciliation with them, &c? Angels think not themſelves too good to ſerve the Saints: Kings and Queens ſhall bow down to them with their faces toward the earth, and lick up the duſt of their feet, Iſa. 49. 23.

Verſe 15. For I have given you an example] ὑπόδειγμα. This S. Peter calls ὑπογραμμον, a copy for us to write after. And in the ſame chapter ſaith, that we ſhould preach forth Chriſts vertues: our lives ſhould be as ſo many Sermons upon Chriſts life, whileſt we ſtrive to expreſs him to the world in all his imitable graces. This is to walk in Chriſt, Col. 2. 6. to walk as Chriſt walked, 1 John 2. 6. The meditation of Chriſts meekneſs, converted the Eunuch, Acts 8. 32, 33, &c. And we read of an Earl, called Eleazarus, that being given to immoderate anger, was cured of that diſordered affection, by ſtudying of Chriſt, and of his patience. This meditation he never ſuffered to paſs from him, before he found his heart transformed into the ſimilitude of Jeſus Chriſt. Crux pendentis, cathedra docentis. 1 Pet. 2. 21. Ibid. ver. 9. ἐξαγγείλητε. In vita ejus apud Surium.

Verſe 16. The ſervant is not greater, &c] This anſwers all our exceptions againſt brotherly offices I am his elder, better, greater then he, &c. But which of us can ſay, I am a God? Chriſt waſht his Diſciples feet, though he knew that the Father had given all things into his hands, &c. as is expreſly, and for this very purpoſe noted here by the Evangeliſt, verſ. 3.

Verſe 17. If ye know theſe things, &c.] Knowledge without practice, is but as rain in the middle region: or as a horn in the Unicorns head, which if it were in a wiſe mans hand, would be very uſeful and medicinable, but as now is hurtful.

Verſe 18. I know whom I have choſen] Iudas he had not choſen, but to the Apoſtleſhip only. All this Judas hears, and is not moved at it: ſuch a ſtupifying ſin is hypocriſie. The Germans have a Provreb, Quem Deus excæcaturus eſt, huic primum oculos claudit. And the Latines ſay, Deus quem deſtruit, dementat. God beſots the man, whom he means to deſtroy. Bucholcer.

Verſe 19. Ye may believe that I am he] And that ye may not ſtumble or ſtagger, though ye ſee Iudas play the traitour. 2 Tim. 2. 18, 19. The apoſtaſie of Hymenæus and Philetus, a pair of eminent profeſſors, was like to have ſhaken many: Inſomuch as the Apoſtle was fain to make apology. Nevertheleſs, the foundation of God remaineth ſure, &c.

Verſe 20. Verily, verily I ſay, &c.] Here our Saviour ſeems to go on where he left, ver. 17. That between, being a digreſſion. Digreſſions ſaith one, are not always & abſolutely unlawful. Gods Spirit ſometimes draws aſide the doctrine, to ſatisfie ſome ſoul, which the Preacher knows not: and ſparingly uſed, it quickeneth the attention. But God may force it, yet man may not frame it: and it is a moſt happy ability, to ſpeak punctually, directly to the point. Bifield on the Coloſſ.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verse 21. He was troubled in spirit.] The Stoicks then were out, in holding, that passions befall not a wise man: and Jesuited Gonzaga, was not so much to be magnified, who would not permit any man to love him: and when his Father dyed, all the grief he took was no more then this; Now, said he, there is nothing hindreth me to say, Our Father which art in Heaven. Christ was throughly troubled here, that any one so highly advanced by him (as in the former verse, He that receiveth whomsoever I send, receiveth me, &c.) should be so ill-minded towards him, as to betray him. Ideò deteriores sumus, quia meliores esse debemus, saith Salvian. We are therefore the worse, because we should be better. It was no small aggravation to Solomons sin, that he forsook that God, that had appeared unto him twice. Our offences are increased by our obligations.

Caeterum σωτὴρ & videtur vester Gonzaga, &c. D. Prid. contra Eudemon.

1 King. 11. 9.

Verse 22. Looked one upon another doubting, &c.] Our Saviour sifted them; and hereby put them upon the duty of self-examination; ever seasonable, but especially afore the Sacrament, as here, Let a man examine himself, (and do it exactly, as the word signifies) though the heart hang off never so much. Men are as loth to review their actions, and read the blurr'd writing of their hearts, as school-boys are to perse their lessons, and false-latines they have made. But this must be done, or they are undone for ever. And sparing a little pains at first, doubles it in the end: As he who will not cast up his books, his books will cast him up, at length.

δοκιμαζέτω. 2 Cor. 11. 28.

Verse 23. Now there was leaning on Jesus bosom] So must we do at the Sacrament, by the actuation of our faith, ascending up into heaven, and fetching down Christ into the heart, that we may have intimate and entire communion with him. By the force of our faith at the Lords table, cruci hæremus, sanguinem fugimus, & intra ipsa Redemptoris nostri vulnera figimus linguam, saith Saint Cyprian.

Calceis exuti, & pulvinis innixi, in lectulis semi supine jacebant. Calv. in loc.

Cyp. de cœna Dom.

Verse 24. Simon Peter therefore beckned:] Peter, that heretofore could not think his heart so unsound as to deny his master, now feareth the ugly monster of fearless betraying. In mans heart, as in the sea, there is that Leviathan, therefore also creeping things innumerable, Psal. 104. 26.

Verse 25 He then lying on Jesus breast] Ad pectus allapsus, as laying his ear to our Saviours mouth, that he might whisper him who it was: for things were as yet secretly carried, and the traitour not discovered, save to John only, who knew Christs soul-secrets, and afterward received his Revelation.

In accubitu mos ille ut accumberent uxores in sinu virorum, Lipsi. ad Tacit. l. 11.

Verse 26. He it is to whom I shall, &c.] Here our Saviour not only feeds his hungry enemy, but shews him like curtesie as we do to one we drink to at table; yea though he knew the traitor would make an ill use of it. Thus should a Christian punish his persecutors. No vengeance but this is heroical, and fit for Christs followers. Thus Bradford saved Bourn, that helped to burn him. Saunders sent to prison by Steven Gardiner, gave God thanks that had given him at last, a place of rest and quietness, where he might pray for the Bishops conversion. It was grown to a Proverb concerning Cranmer, Do my Lord of Canterbury a shrewd turn, and then you may be sure to have him your friend while he liveth. Henry the Seventh, Emperour of Germany, feeling himself poisoned in the Sacramental bread by a Monk, called him, and said unto him. Domine, recedatis, &c. Be gone, Sir, for if my followers find you, you will die for it.

Act. & Mon. fol. 1456. Ibid. 1358. Ibid. 1692. Domine recedatis: nam si percipiunt Teutonici, & nostri devoti, morte morientur. Func. Canon 14.

Verse 27. Satan entred into him] Gat more full possession of him. Let them that depart the publike assemblies ere all be done, as Judas did, take heed they meet not the devil at the door. The fourth Council of Carthage excommunicated such, and so delivered them up to Satan; which is a grievous punishment; for then they lie open to all wickedness, as Ananias, whose heart Satan had filled from corner to corner. Luther when he had read certain letters sent to him from Vitus Theodorus, fetcht a deep sigh, and said, Heu quam furit Satan, & impellit securos homines ad horrenda flagitia, quæ corpus & animum perdunt! O how the devil rageth and driveth on secure persons, to horrible and damnable wickedness! That which moved Luther to say so, was a sad relation made in that letter, of a certain widow, who being with childe by a young scholar, could not have her childe baptised, unless she would tell the Priest who was the childes father: Whereat she being grievously vexed, first killed her childe, and then hang'd her self. Which when the scholar heard of, he likewise stabbed himself to death. The Priest understanding what tragedies had follow'd, upon his refusing to baptise the child, hang'd himself also. Now, who can doubt but all this was done by the instigation of the devil?

Melancter. Paedag. Christ.

Men

Digitized by Google

Men usually defie him and spet at his name: but they spet not low enough, they spet him out of their mouths, but not out of their hearts: there he plays Rex, and so long cares no more for their cursing of him, then he doth for holy water.

That thou doest, do quickly] This is no command, but a prediction by way of detestation; like as when God said to Balaam, Go, for I know thou wilt go after the wages of wickedness. Some note here, that, even to Judas, Christ saith, That thou doest, do quickly, so odious is dulness unto him. Wards Serm.

Verse 28. Now no man at the table knew, &c.] For John had not told Peter the secret committed to him by Christ, though he were very desirous to have known it; Si sapis, arcano vina reconde cado. A friend, that can both keep counsel, and give counsel, is worth his weight in gold. When one desired to see Alexanders treasure, he bade one of his servants shew him, not his talents of silver, but his trusty friends. οὐκ ἀργυρεία πάλαι τὰ, ἀλλὰ τοὺς φίλους. Liban. Exemp. Prog. Ch. 1.

Verse 29 For some of them thought] An example of Christian simplicity. As bad men muse as they use, so good men measure others by themselves; and so are often deceived, as here. Charity thinketh no evil, 1 Cor. 13. 5.

Or that he should give something to the poor] Christ had not much, yet had somewhat for the poor: so must the poor day-laborer, Ephes. 4. 28. the necessitous widow, Mar. 12. 42.

Verse 30. He then having received the sop] So many, having received the Supper of the Lord, eat their bane, and drink their poison: that they eat is sawced, and that they drink is spiced with the bitter wrath of God: their hearts are wofully hardned, and their dispositions to sin seven times more inflamed then ever before.

Verse 31. Therefore When he was gone out] The room being rid of the traitor, Christ deals more freely and familiarly with the rest: and arming them against the scandal of the cross, he cals his death his glory, esteems his crown of thorns more precious then Solomons diadem; looks upon his wales as spangles, his blows on the face as ingots, his wounds as gems, his spittings on as sweet ointment, his cross as his throne. This is a paradox to flesh and blood: Jews and Gentiles jear at it; as Lucian the Atheist, who rails upon Christ blasphemously, calling him the crucified Impostor; And as for Christians, they foolishly believe, saith he, that they shall enjoy immortality, and live in bliss for ever: therefore they set light by life, yea many of them offer themselves voluntarily to be slain for their superstition. Thus he. And another Heathen Proconsul, when he had tyred himself with killing Christians, and saw no end of it, but that they came thicker upon him crying out, We are Christians, &c. he cursed them, and cryed out, O miseri, si libet perire, num vobis rupes aut restes desunt? O wretches, can you find no other way to die, but I must be troubled with you? ἀνασχολοποδάμενον σοφισήν. Luc. in vita Peregr. Persuaserunt sibi infœlices se immortalitate fruituros, &c. Ibid.

Verse 32. And shall straightway] Thus for the joy that was set before him, he endured the cross, despising the shame, as being shortly to sit down at the right hand of the throne of God, Heb 12. 2. Look we on him, and do likewise. There were in Greece certain fields called Palæstræ, where young men exercised themselves in wrestling. In these were set up statues of some valiant champions, that the young wrestlers might fix their eyes upon them, and so be encouraged. Can we chuse a better Champion then Christ to eye and imitate, should we be called to resist unto blood, striving against sin? He did not only sanguinem suffundere, sed effundere: And how did he support himself under the cross, but by the fore-thought of the crown? Actius Antonius in Asia cum persequeretur Christianos, &c. Tertul.

Verse 33. Little children, yet a little while] Here our Saviour useth the self-same words to his Apostles, which before he had used to the Jews, with whom he was angry: so to cut off all hope from them of his corporeal presence. The fiction of the Ubiquity began about the time of Berengarius; was fostered and furthered by Gerson Chancellor of Paris, who first taught the real communcation of properties, by means whereof the humane nature of Christ received this prerogative said he, that at his Supper (and then only) it might be in many places at once, wheresoever the Supper was celebrated. But in the year of Christ 1524. Iacobus Faber Stampulensis taught at Paris, that by the same reason Christ might be as well corporally present in all places at once, as he was at the Supper. For which doctrine of the Ubiquity, he was opposed the year following, by one Natalis Beda, and, by the Sorbonists, banished out of France. This is the nativity of that famous Ubiquity, which being cast out of France, Luther brought back into the Churches of Germany; Brentius furbished it over, and Smidelinus obtruded it upon many places and persons, whether they would or no: whence he is sirnamed, Ubiquitatis quitatis Apoſtolus. How much better that good woman in the book of Martyrs, that being asked by the Biſhops, Doſt thou believe that the Body of Chriſt is in the Sacrament really and ſubſtantially? I believe, ſaid ſhe, that that is a real lye, and a ſubſtantial lye. Domitius Calderinus the Italian, who flouriſhed in the year 1442. when he was called by his friends to go to Maſs, was wont to ſay (as Vives tels us) Eamus ad communem errorem.

Digitized by Google

Act. & Mon.

L. Vives.

Verſe 34. A new Commandment, &c.] New, ratione claritatis & facilitatis; for now there is abundance of ſpirit given by Chriſt, who writes this affection in our hearts, as of old the Law was written in ſtone. Beſides that, he is become a new pattern and example of the rule: and ſo, it is become a new commandment, not in reſpect of the matter of the duty, but of the form of obſerving it. For the old rule was, Thou ſhalt love thy neighbour as thy ſelf. But now that form (as I have loved you) hath ſomething in it that is more expreſs; and, for the incomparable ſufficiency of the preſident, is matchleſs, and more full of incitation to fire affection: there being far more incentives and motives to love, ſince Chriſt came, and gave himſelf for us. And this is appointed here, for the Diſciples and our ſolace in the want of Chriſts bodily preſence, as loving fellow-members to ſtrive by all means to delight in the loving ſociety one of another.

Verſe 35. By this ſhall all men know] Other mens diſciples are known by their titles, habits, ceremonies, &c. as the Popes ſhavelings (which yet is grown ſo bald a buſineſs, that now they begin to be aſhamed of it:) but love is Chriſts cognizance, acknowledged by very Heathens, who could ſay, that no people in the world did love one another, ſo as Chriſtians did. As the Curtains of the Tabernacle were joyned by loops, ſo are true Chriſtians by love. Philadelphia is blamed for nothing, Rev. 3. 18.

Vide ut invicem ſe ament Chriſtiani! dixerunt Pagani, referente Terulliano in Apologet.

Verſe 36. Whither goeſt thou?] That deep conceit he had drunk in of an earthly Kingdom, ſo hung in his light, that he could not ſee whither Chriſt was aſcending. A little ſawcer held cloſe to the eys, hinders the ſight of a huge hill.

But thou ſhalt follow me] Perhaps, in the ſame kind of death; but to heaven, moſt certainly.

Petrus ſe Chriſto oppoſuit, ſe Cæteris præpoſuit, ſibi totum impoſuit. Chryſoſt.

Verſe 37. I will lay down, &c.] Peter was melius ſemper animatus quam armatus, better affected then appointed. His heart deceived him, as did Davids, Pſal. 39. 1, 2. He ſaid he would look to his ways, bridle his tongue, &c. But ſoon after he brake his word; My heart was hot, &c.

Verſe 48. The cock ſhall not crow.] Chriſt mentioneth the cock, quia tam ſtrenuum pugnatorem decebat tale præconium. So, Rev. 6. 13 Paſtors revolt, as green figs fall off, with no ado. In the Palatinate they fell to Popery, as faſt as leaves fall in Autumn.

Chap. XIV.

Verſe 1. Let not your heart, &c.] ἐυφωνότατον ᾄδει θνήσκων. Hiſt. var. lib. 1. Mortis articulo inſtante, & ſanguine malè affecto valdè horridè mugiunt, Sirenes.

OUr Saviour ſweetly proceeds in his ſwan-like ſong. Ælian tels us, that he once heard a dying ſwan ſing moſt heavenly and harmoniouſly. The Poet ſhews the manner of it, when he ſaith ---longa canoros Dat per colla modos---. Of the Sirens, (on the contrary) it is reported, that how ſweetly ſoever they ſang before, yet at death they make a horrid noiſe, and unpleaſant roaring. Semblably, good men utter their beſt uſually at laſt; the wine of the ſpirit being then ſtrongeſt and livelieſt in them. Whereas wicked men are then uſually at worſt, and go out with a ſtench, as the devil is ſaid to do: And as Melanthon ſaid of Eccius his laſt wicked work, written of Prieſts marriage, Non fuit cygnea cantio, ſed ultimus crepitus: & ſicut felis fugiens pedit, ſic ille moriens hunc crepitum cecinit. So of Baldwine the apoſtate, one ſaith that vivere ſimul & maledicere deſiit, he died curſing, as that wretch did ſwearing, who deſperately alſo deſired the ſtanders by to help him with oaths, and to ſwear for him.

Jo. Manl. loc. com. Melch. Adam. in vita Calv. M. Boltons Aſſize, Ser. 27.

Verſe 2. I would have told you] And not have fed you with falſe hopes of an Utopian happineſs, as the devil deals by his, whom he brings into a fools paradiſe: as Mahomet by his, to whom he promiſes in Paradiſe delicious fare, pleaſant gardens, and other ſenſual delights eternally to be enjoyed, &c. Chriſt is no ſuch Impoſtor.

Blunts voyage, pag. 9.

Verſe 3. I will come again, &c.] O look up and long for this conſolation of Iſrael; ſay as Siſera's mother, Why are his chariots (thoſe clouds) ſo long in coming?

Hen

Digitized by Google

Heu pietas ubi prisca? profana ô tempora! Mundi
Fax! Vesper! prope Nox! ô mora! Christe veni.

Blunts voyage, page 6.

There may ye be also] Christ counts not himself full, till he have all his members about him: hence the Church is called the fulness of him that filleth all things, Eph. 1. 23.

Verse 4. And whither I go ye know] Some little knowledge they had, such as Thomas in the next verse denies to be any at all; yet Christ acknowledgeth it. The tenour of the new covenant requires no set measures of grace. The first springings in the womb of grace, are precious before God, Eph. 2. 1. he blesseth our buds, Isa. 61. 11. and in our dunghil of ignorance, can find out his own part of knowledge, as here.

Verse 5. Lord, we know not whither thou goest, &c.] No, Thomas? what, are ye also ignorant? They knew, but knew not that they knew: their knowledge was yet but confused and indistinct; they saw men, but as it were walking like trees, till their eyes were better anointed with the eye-salve of the Spirit. A man (saith one) may have grace, and yet not know it, (as the Embryo hath life, and yet knoweth it not) yea, he may think he hath it not, as we seek for keys that are in our pockets; or think we have lost a jewel, that we have locked up in our chest: yea, as the butcher looketh for the candle that sticketh in his hat, by the light of that he seeketh.

M. Gatak Just mans joy, p. 91

Verse 6. I am the way and the Truth, &c.] As if he should say, Thou hast no whither to go but to me, nor which way to go but by me, that thou mayst attain eternal life. Which made Bernard say, Sequemur, Domine, te, per te, ad te: Te, quia Veritas per te, quia Via, ad te, quia Vita. And this was one of those sweet sayings, that old Beza had much in his mouth, a little afore his death.

Melch. Adam, in vitis exter. pag 235.

No man cometh unto the Father, but by me.] Christ hath paved us a new and living way to God, with his own meritorious blood: and his flesh stands as a skreen betwixt us, and those everlasting burnings, Isa. 33. 14. Let Papists say of their Saints, Per hunc itur ad Deum, sed magu per hunc. Let us say of all their Hee and Shee Saints, as that Heathen, Contemno minutos istos Deos, modò Jovem (Jesum) propitium habeam.

Verse 7. And from henceforth ye know him] Or else the more shame for you, having had me (his express image) so long amongst you. Christians have a priviledge above the Church of the Old Testament. The sea about the Altar was brazen, 1 King. 7. 23. & what eyes could pierce through it? now our sea about the Throne is glassie, Rev. 4. 6. like the Chrystal, clearly conveying the light and sight of God in Christ to our eys.

Verse 8. Lord, shew us the Father] They would have seen the Father face to face with their bodily eyes, as they saw the Son. But that no man can do and live, Exod. 33. We cannot see the Sun in rota, as the Schools speak, in the circle wherein it runs, but only in the beams. So neither can we see God in his essence: in his Son we may, who is the resplendency of his Fathers glory.

ἀπαύγασμα. Heb. 1. 3.

Verse 9. Have I been so long, &c.] May not Christ justly shame and shent us all for knowing no more of him all this while? Ignorance under means of knowledge is a blushful sin, 1 Cor. 15. 34.

Verse 10. The words that I speak.] Our Saviour alledgeth for himself the Divinity both of his word and works. He was mighty, saith Peter, both in word and deed. Ministers also must, in their measure, be able to argue and approve themselves to be men of God, by sound doctrine and good life. And not be, as our Saviour saith, the Pharisees were, and as Epictetus saith, many Philsophers were such, ἄνευ τὰ πρᾶγμα, μεχὶ τῦ λέγειν. that is, as far as a few words would go.

Verse 11. Believe me that I am, &c.] Take my bare word without any further pawn or proof. This is an honour due to Christ only, that he is, ἀυτόπιστος, He is Amen, the faithful and true witness.

Revel. 3. 14.

Verse 12. And greater works then these.] Greater in regard of the matter, as converting three thousand souls at a Sermon, reducing a great part of the world to the obedience of Christ, &c. But yet less then those Christ did, for the manner. For, 1. They did not them in their own name, but in his. 2. They preached not that they were Gods, as he, but they preached Christ the only Lord, and themselves the Churches servants, for Jesus sake. They were the white horses on which Christ rode abroad the world, conquering and to conquer, Rev. 6. 2. In memory whereof, as it may seem, the Saxon-Princes, having born a black horse till then, in their military Ensigns did, after they had received the faith, and were baptized, bear a white horse, and gave it for their Arms. And Tertullian could say in his time, that, Britannorum inaccessa Romanis loca, Christo tamen subdita.

Cranzius in Saxon.

Digitized by Google

Verse 13. That I will do.] An undoubted argument of Christs Divinity, that he hears and grants prayers. When the people, in Ahabs time, saw God answering Elijah by fire from heaven, they cried out, The Lord he is God, the Lord he is God. O thou that heares Prayers, is a description the Psalmist gives of God.

1 King. 18. 39. Psal. 65. 2.

Verse 14. If ye shall ask any thing, &c.] This is not a vain repetition. Nunquam satis dicitur, quod nunquam satis discitur. When God spake but once, David heard it twice: O that we would once hear and believe, what Christ for our comfort hath said over so often!

Seneca.

Verse 15. If ye love me, keep my commandments.] No better way to seal up love, then by being obedient. How canst thou love me, said she, when thy heart is not with me? Hushai, to shew his love to David, set upon that difficult and dangerous service for him, of insinuating into Absolom counsels, and defeating them.

Iudg. 16.

Verse 16. And he shall give you another Comforter.] Or, Pleader, Deprecator, Advocate. Properly it signifies such an one as we send for, when we are in any danger, to advise and counsel us. The Devil is called the Accuser, in full opposition to this name and title given here to the holy Spirit; whose office it is (as this Attribute here imports) to make intercession in our hearts to God for us; and upon our true Repentance to make our Apology, 1 Cor 7. 11. to comfort us, by discovering our graces, 1 Cor. 2. 12. and by pleading our evidences, Rom. 8. 18. which they that refuse to read over and rest upon, they help Satan, the Accuser, taking his part against themselves, and pleading his cause against the Spirit their Comforter.

παράκλητον. Κλῆτος.

D. Sibbs.

That he may abide with you for ever] The Spirit (saith one) is Christs Vicar-General, with whom he leaves us, and, by whom, he is with us to the end of the world.

Verse 17. For he dwelleth with you] Next to the love of Christ in dwelling in our nature, we may wonder at the love of the holy Ghost, that will dwell in the dark dog-hole of our defiled souls; and be there as those two golden Pipes, Zech. 4. through which the two Olive branches empty out of themselves the golden oyls of all precious graces; which are, therehence, called the fruits of the Spirit, Gal. 5. 22. yea, the Spirit, vers. 17. God also in giving us his Spirit, is said to give us all good things, Mat. 7. 11. with Luke 11. 13.

Verse 18. I will not leave you comfortless.] Orphans, or darkling. I your Lord am taken indeed from your head for a while, but you shall have the supply of my Spirit, Phil. 1. 19. And I, even I, will come again to you ere long; yea, I am now upon the way: I come to fetch you, I come to meet you, I come, I come.

ἐρφάνους ab ὀρφνη, tenebræ. ἔρχομαι, Dedit me in viam.

Verse 19. But ye see me.] The spiritual man hath the mind of Christ, and those things revealed unto him that natural eye never saw, carnal ear never heard, neither hath it entred into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for them that love him; neither prepared only, but imparted to his aforehand, even in this life. For he reserves not all for the life to come, but gives a grape of Canaan in this wilderness, such as the world never tasted of.

1 Cor. 2. ult.

Verse 20. That I am in my father, and you in me] O happy union, the ground of commnnion! Interest! the ground of influence! Hence we have communication of Christs secrets, 1 Cor. 2. 16. the testimony of Jesus, 1 Cor. 1. 5. Consolation in all afflictions, 2 Cor. 1. 5. Sanctification of all occurrences, Phil. 1. 21. Participation of Christs merit and Spirit, and what not?

Verse 21. And I will love him, and manifest, &c.] Encrease of the saving knowledge of Christ is promised as a singular reward of our love to him, and fruit of his love to us. This is, saith Agur, to ascend into Heaven, Prov. 30. 3. 4. This is, saith our Saviour elsewhere, the great talent of all others. There is a (Much) in it, Luke 12. 48. This is, saith S. Paul, the Christians riches, 1 Cor. 1. 5. & David reckons of his wealth by it, Psa. 119. 32.

ἐμφανίσω, tacitè & clam indicabo. Eras. Imò palam & in mediâ luce. Beza.

Verse 22. How is it that thou wilt manifest, &c.] Many a wise Question the Disciples ask him in this Chapter; and yet our Saviour bears with their rudeness, and gently instructs them, preaching as they were able to hear, Mark 4. 33. So did Paul, 1 Cor. 9. 22. So must all Ministers, 2 Tim. 2. 25. if they mean to do good on it.

Verse 23. Jesus answered and said unto him] Our Saviour passing by that frivolous Question, proceedeth in his discourse. Some follies are best confuted by silence. One having having made a long and idle discourse before Aristotle, concluded it thus; I doubt I have been too tedious unto you, Sir Philosopher, with my many words. In good sooth, said Aristotle, you have not been tedious to me, for I gave no heed to any thing you said. Plutar. de garrulitate.

Digitized by Google

Verse 24. But the Fathers] Therefore to be obeyed, because of divine authority. Gods impress makes authentick, and binds every good heart to obedience Veniat, veniat verbum Domini, & submittemus ei, sexcenta si nobis essent colla, said Baldassar, a godly Dutch-Divine. In epist. ad Oecolamp.

Verse 25. These things have I spoken unto you] And truly I may seem to have spoken to small purpose (verba quid incassum non proficientia perdo?) by any thing that you have yet profited. But cast not away your confidence that hath so great recompence of reward. For the Comforter shall be your Remembrancer, and cause your Memories (as the sea doth) to cast up your dead notions, &c. as vers. 26.

Verse 26. But the Comforter, &c.] The Spirit teacheth only things consonant to Scripture, and is thereby discerned from a spirit of delusion: He is not novarum revelationum architectus, as Papists, Mahometans, Anabaptists, and Libertines would make him. The Jews also had many traditions and unwritten verities (as they called them) wherewith they believed their Scribes and Doctors were inspired, for the peoples better direction in observing the law. These they called Mashlamnuthoth, Completiones, Perfectiones, because they thought that the written law was perfected and completed by them. These were those our Saviour cried down, Mat. 15. 3. And the Prophet tels us, that in vain shall we look to hear the voice behind us, where our eyes see not our teachers, Isa. 30. 20, 21. Buxt. Tiberias.

Verse 27. Peace I leave with you] As a farewel or legacy; Sacrosancta ejus pax nobis committitur, non ἐφετὴς, aut ἔρις: Christ is the Prince of Peace, yea, he is our peace, saith the Apostle, and brings true peace, which is a piece of his Kingdom, Rom. 14. 17. Of him it may be more truly said, then it was of our Henry the Seventh, that he came in, Ut cum pacem exulantem exul, extorremque extorris concomitatus esset, reducem quoque redux apportaret. Twinus Comment. de rebus Brittann.

Not as the world, &c.] They cry peace when there is no peace, and make fair weather, when such a storm of Gods wrath is ready to burst out, as shall never be blown over. They complement, and wish peace, when war is in their hearts: as the Pope sent away Henry the Third Emperour in peace, but it was (saith the Historian) Qualem scilicet pacem Judas simulavit, non qualem Christus reliquit: i.e. such as Judas, counterfeit, not such as Jesus left his people. Auth. Apolog. de unit. Eccles.

Verse 28. My Father is greater then I] To wit, as I have voluntarily submitted my self to the office of a Mediatour. Lo, here this Sun of righteousness is gone back ten degrees in the dial below his Father. Thou hast made him little less then the Angels; there (as man) he is gone back ten degrees below the Angels. I am a worm and no man: there he is gone back then degrees below men. A living dog is better then a dead lion: there he is gone back ten degrees below worms. For he was not so much as a living worm, but was laid in the grave as a dead Lion, there to have been meat for worms, but that it was impossible for Gods holy one to see corruption. See how he emptied and humbled himself; that he might exalt and fill us with his fulness. Psal. 8. Psal. 22. Eccles. ἐκένωσεν. ἐταπείνωσεν.

Verse 29. And now I have told you before] Which none besides God himself could do, but by divine revelation. The knowledge of future contingents is of God only, and of such as to whom he is pleased to communicate it; as he did to the Prophets: who when they foretold things only as in their causes, they might fall out or not, as Isa. 38. 1. Jonah 3. 4 and 1 King. 21. 20. But when they foretold things, ut futura in seipsis, then they fel out infallibly. The devil also may come acquainted with such things, and be able to foretel them, if God reveal them to him, as he did Ahabs death: and as Trithemius the Abbot, and Cusanus the Cardinal, foretold a change of religion to fall out in the year 1517. which was the year wherein Luther began to stickle for Christ against the Pope. Weems. his exercitat. Cusanus obiit, anno Do. 1464. Alfred. Chron. pag. 472. Trithem. scripsit an. 1508.

Verse 30. Hereafter I will not, &c.] Make we the best of our Christian friends while we have them: as we would do of a borrowed book or tool, that we know not how soon they may be sent for, by the right owner. Genius verò qui Trithemio hæc dictavit, albus an ater fuerit, ego non facilè dixerim. Bucholcer.

The Prince of this world cometh] In his limbs and instruments, those breathing devils that put Christ to death. Persecutors are set awork by Satan; The Devil shall cast some of you into prison, Rev. 2. 10. Why? Is he become a Justice of peace, to send send men to prison? Yes, by his Agents. But why would Christ be so used by him and his? Hear the next words.

Digitized by Google

Verse 31. But that the world may know] Not you only, but all must take notice of my ready obedience to the will of mine heavenly Father, even to the suffering of death. Christs passion must shine as a perpetuall picture in our hearts: therefore it is so accurately described by all the four Evangelists; whereas his birth is recorded but by two of them only.

Chap. XV.

Verse 1. I am the true Vine, &c.]

Our Saviours way lying (as it is thought) by the vineyards, he takes that occasion of comparing himself to a vine, as he doth elsewhere, to many other creatures, every where obvious; that therein, as in so many optick glasses, we may see him, and be put in mind of him. Tam Christi meminisse opus est, quam respirare, saith a Father. A Bee can suck hony out of a flower, that a Flie cannot. Fire will be aspiring; so will true grace.

2 Pet. 2. 1. Heb. 10. 20. 2. Pet. 2. 22.

Verse 2. Every branch in me] That thinks himself to be in me, and is so thought to be by others, but proves not to be so. These are said to deny the Lord that bought them, to trample on the blood of the Covenant, wherewith they were sanctified, to wallow in the mire from which they had been washed, &c. So here, to be branches in Christ, and yet unfruitful. Not that they ever were in Christ, but seemed to be so: as a pole fixed in the earth, but not rooted: as a rotten leg cleaves to the body, but is no part of it: or, as wens and ulcers, which are taken away without loss to it.

Αἴρει, καθαίρει Amputat. putat.

He purgeth it] Of all possessions, saith Cato, none requires more pains about it, then that of vineyards. Corn comes up and grows without the husbandmans care, Mark 4. 27. he knows not how. But vines must be dressed, supported, sheltered, pruned every day almost: lopt they must be ever and anon, lest the juice be spent in leaves. And if it be painful to bleed, it is worse to wither. Better be pruned to grow, then cut up to burn.

Vinitoris cultellus ad sordes purgandas. Cal.

Verse 3. Through the word, &c.] Which is the pruning knife, to lop off our luxuriances, rotten boughs, raw grapes, to pare off our gum of pride, moss of formality, &c. The word hid in the heart keeps from sin, as an amulet, Psal. 119. 11. and keeps youth from uncleanes, vers. 9. mixt with faith, it purgeth upon corruption, Act. 15. 9. and will not suffer men to rest in sin.

Verse 4. As the branch cannot bear fruit, &c.] All our sap and safety is from Christ. The bud of a good desire, the blossom of a good resolution, and the fruit of a good action, all comes from him, Gratia prævenit nos ut velimus, & subsequitur ne frustra velimus. Aug.

Verse 5. The same bringeth forth much fruit] Christ is a generous vine, a plant of renown; and all his, are filled with the fruits of righteousnes, Phil. 1. 11. have hearts full of goodnes, as those Rom. 15. 14. and Lives full of good works, as Tabitha, Act. 9. 33. In Bucholcero vivida omnia fuerunt; vivida vox, vividi oculi, vivida manus, gestus omnes vividi. Melch. Ad. in vita. Nehemiah never rested doing good for his people; he was good all over. Like the Ægyptian fig-tree, that bears fruit seven times a year: or the Lemon-tree, which ever and anon sendeth forth new Lemmons, as soon as the former are fallen off. Or the plain of Campania, now called Terra de lavoro, which is extolled for the most fruitful plat of earth that is in the universe. Sol in Polyhist.

For without me ye can do nothing] This is point blank against the doctrine of Free-wil, Sub laudibus naturæ latent inimici gratiæ, saith Augustine. These will needs hammer out their own happines, like the Spider, climbing by a thred of her own weaving, with Motto accordingly, Mihi soli debeo. Whereas the Apostle demandeth, Who made thee to differ? Grevinchovius the Arminian boldly answers, Ego meipsum discerno, I make my self to differ. This he had learned from Heathens belike, That we live, is from God:

But

Digitized by Google

but that we live Well, is from our ſelves, ſaith Seneca. And this is the judgement of all men (ſaith Cicero) that proſperity is to be ſought of God, but wiſdom is to be taken up from our ſelves S. Auguſtine was of another judgement, and ſaith, Ciceronem, ut faceret homines liberos, feciſſe ſacrilegos.

Quod vivamus deorum munus eſt; quod bene vivamus, noſtrum. Judicium hoc omnium mortalium eſt, &c. Cic. de nat. D. Aug de civit. Dei, l. 5.

Verſe 6. Caſt them into the fire, and they are burned] So they muſt needs be, may ſome ſay; but his meaning is, that temporaries, of all others, make the fierceſt, hotteſt fire, becauſe they are trees moſt ſeared, and fuell fully dry. Nahum tell us, that ſuch are but as ſtubble laid out in the Sun a drying, that it may burn the better, Chap. 1. 10. or like grapes, let to hang in the Sunſhine, till they be ripe for the wine-preſs of Gods wrath, Rev. 15. 16.

Verſe 7. Ask what ye will, and it, &c.] Either in money or moneys worth. If ye ask and miſs, it is becauſe ye ask amiſs. One was wont to ſay of Luther, that he could have of God what he would. And being one time very earneſt with God for the recovery of a godly uſeful man, he cryed out, Fiat voluntas mea, let my will be done; and then he fals off ſweetly, My will, Lord, becauſe thy will.

Vir iſte potuit quod voluit.

Mea voluntas, Domine, quia tua.

Verſe 8. Herein, is my father glorified, &c.] There is not (ſaith one) ſo much of the glory of God in all his works of Creation, and Providence, as in one gracious action that a Chriſtian performs; how much more in a life full of good fruits? This makes others ſay, Surely God is in them. God alſo accounts that he receives a new being, as it were, by thoſe inward conceptions of his glory, and by thoſe outward honours that we do to him, eſpecially, when we ſtudy Gods ends more then our own, and drown all ſelf-reſpects in his glory. Surely, they that do thus, may have what they will (ſaith one) and God even think himſelf beholden to them.

Verè magnus eſt Deus Chriſtianorum, ſaid one Calocenius a Heathen. meditat. devot. cap. 5.

Verſe 9. Continue ye in my love] In the love wherewith I do dearly love you. As who ſhould ſay, Suffer your ſelves to be loved by me: lo, the Lord Chriſt even makes love to the good ſoul, and wooes entertainment.

Verſe 10. Even as I have kept my Fathers.] Chriſts obedience muſt be our pattern of imitation. All his actions were either Moral or Mediatory. In both we are to imitate him. In the former, by doing as he did. Mat. 11. 29. 1 Pet. 2. 23. In the later, by ſimilitude, tranſlating that to our ſpiritual life, which he did as Mediatour: as to die to ſin, to riſe to righteouſneſs.

Verſe 11. Theſe things have I ſpoken, that, &c.] Sound joy is wrought in the heart by the hearing of the Word: Make me to hear joy and gladneſs, that the bones which thou haſt broken (with the ſenſe of ſin, and fear of wrath) may rejoyce, Pſal. 51. 8. And God creates the fruit of the lips to be peace, Iſa. 45.

That my joy may remain in you.] The Temporaries joy, as it is groundleſs, like weeds that grow on the top of the water, ſo is it but frothy and flaſhy, ſuch as may wet the mouth, but not warm the heart, ſmooth the brow, but not fill the breaſt; like a ſlight daſh of rain, or an handful of bruſh wood, &c. Eccleſ. 7. 6. The true Chriſtians joy is full and firm, ſolid and ſubſtantial, Gaudium in re, gaudium in ſpe, gaudium de poſſeſſione, gaudium de promiſſione. He hath ſtill enough to make him everlaſtingly merry under whatſoever miſery. He can turn into his counting-houſe, and find there ſufficient to ſuſtain him, as David did, 1 Sam. 30. 6.

Verſe 12. This is my commandment] Love is the complement of the Law, and the ſupplement of the Goſpel.

Verſe 13. Greater love then this, &c.] Of any ſuch love, but in Chriſt, we ſhall hardly read. David in a paſſion may wiſh, Would God I had died for thee: but in cold blood I doubt whether he would have done it. A certain Citizen of Toledo, being condemned to die, his ſon ceaſed not by prayers and tears to intreat that he might die for his Father; which accordingly he did. But this is rare, for life is ſweet, and love is cold in this caſe. Every man is his own next neighbour.

B. Vulg. l. 1.

Verſe 14. If ye do whatſoever, &c.] In deſire and endeavour lifting at the latch, though ye cannot open the door: and looking to both the magnalia and minutula of the Law: Boni Catholici ſunt (ſaith Auguſtine) qui & fidem integram ſequuntur, & bonos mores. And they are written in the book of Life, (ſaith Bernard) that do what they can, though they cannot do what they ſhould.

Qui quod poſſunt, faciunt, etſi quod debent, non poſſunt.

Verſe 15. I call you not ſervants] And yet it was the top of Davids titles, to be the ſervant of the Lord; and the height of his Ambition, to be a door-keeper in his houſe. All his ſervants are ſons, and all his ſons, heirs.

But

Digitized by Google

But I have called you friends.] It was an high honour of old, to be the Kings friend. Such honour have all his Saints: Christ doth freely unbosom himself unto them.

Verse 16. And ordained you, that you should go, &c.] Not that ye should Lord it over your brethren (as the Pope ordains his Caterpillars) and get up the best of the land for your private use and pleasure. The Pope, when he maketh his Cardinals, useth these words, Estote confratres nostri, & principes mundi. The Archbishoprick of Toledo is said to be worth an hundred thousand pounds a year: a greater revenue then some Kings have.

That whatsoever ye shall ask, &c.] Bernard in his Meditations giveth divers rules of strictness, of purging the heart, of being faithful and fruitful, Et cum talis fueris (saith he) memento mei: Intimating, that then they might have what they would of God, for themselves or others, that were so qualified. Medit. de not. cap. 5.

Verse 17. That ye love one another] That ye hold together, because the world will hate you. A spirit of perversities made way for the ruine of Ægypt, Isa. 19. 14, 16, 17. Si collidimur, frangimur, If we clash, we break. Of the ancient Britains, Tacitus tels us, that nothing was so destructory to them, as their dissensions, Dum singuli pugnant, universi vincuntur. And of the Thracians, Herodotus saith, that if they had been all of one minde, they had been invincible. Keep therefore the staff of binders unbroken, Zech. 11. 7. 14. Keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace, Ephes. 4. 3. In the cause of Religion every subdivision is a strong weapon in the hand of the enemy: as in the disagreement of Luther and Zuinglius. The Jesuites have a practice of running over to the Lutherans, pretending to be converts; but it is only to keep up that bitter contention that is between the Calvinists and Lutherans; the virulency whereof is much fomented by these renegado Jesuites.

Verse 18. If the world hate you, &c.] As it will, because it is condemned by your contrary practice, and is carried on by a contrary principle. Moab was irked because of Israel, or, did fret and vex at them, Numb. 22. 3, 4. Bats fly against the light. Some barbarous Nations curse the Sun, when it shines hot upon them, and shoot up their arrows against it.

Ye know that it hated me first] Shall we think to speed better then our betters? Elias is not better then his fathers. Luther was angry with those that set forth his sufferings, sith they were nothing to the sufferings of Christ. All our troubles are but as the slivers and chips of his cross.

Verse 19. If we were of the world, &c.] They jangle among themselves, and intertear one another as dogs fighting. For though there be not a disagreement in hell (being but the place of retribution, not of action) yet on earth there is no sound peace among the wicked. Howbeit, let Ephraim be against Manasseh, and Manasseh against Ephraim, they will be soon against Judah: as if a Hare run by dogs that are fighting, they will agree to pursue the Hare.

Therefore the world hates you] As inhospital salvages do those that land on their coasts; as the Cyprians, for an old grudge, slay all Jews they meet with, though, but cast upon their coasts by contrary winds. Odio humani generis, & per flagitia invisi, saith Tacitus of Christians. Davids adversaries sought not only his life, but his soul, his damnation too; as that monster of Milain, mentioned by Bodinus. Now we commit thy soul to the Devil, said the persecutors to John Huss. And Hierom of Prague could hardly obtain a Confessour, being it seems conscientious that way. Tac. l. 15. Tanti non est bonum, quanti est odium Christianorum Ter. Bodin. de rep. l. 5. cap. 6.

Verse 20. Remember the word, &c.] Else all is lost, 1 Cor. 15. 2. Naturally the Word runs through us, as water through a riven vessel: Pleni rimarum sumus, huc atq; illuc diffluimus. Our memories are as seives that retain the chaff, let go the good corn: or as nets that keep the pelf, let go the clean water: or as hourglasses, that are no sooner full, but running out again. Beseech we God to put his finger upon the hole, and to make his word an engraffed word unto us, to settle it upon our souls, &c. μὴ πῶς παρα. ῥυῶμεν. Heb. 2. 1.

If they have kept my saying, &c.] But they will do neither. Holy Melanthon, being himself newly converted, thought it impossible for his hearers to withstand the evidence of the Gospel: But after he had been a Preacher awhile, it is said he complained, that old Adam was too hard for young Melanthon.

Verse 21. Because they know not him, &c.] For had they known, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory. S. Paul thanks his ignorance for all his cruelties to Christians. Ignorance is a breeder, and great-bellied. Aristotle makes it the mother of all misrule and mischief. Arist. Ethic. l. 3.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verse 22. If I had not come, &c] Here our Saviour shews that their ignorance was affected, as theirs is with us. Qui ut liberius peccent, libenter ignorant, they shut the windows lest the light should come in, Sic fit, ubi homines majorem vitæ partem in tenebris agunt, ut novissime solem quasi supervacuum fastidiant. This is the ignorance to which mercy is denied, Isa. 27. 11. Bern. Seneca Epist.

Verse 23. He that hateth me] 'Tis wonder how any should; yet we read of God-haters, Rom. 1. 30. and all sin is a kind of God-slaughter: the wicked wish there were no God, when David cries out, vivat Deus, &c. Omne peccatum est Deicidium. Psal. 18. 46.

Verse 24. Works, which none other man did] More stupendious, because by my own power, and all to the peoples profit. These were of use in the Churches infancy, and Papists boast of them still; but those are the Devils lying Wonders, 2 Thes. 2. 9. As for our Religion, Pudet diabolum Lutheri doctrinam miraculis confirmare, saith Gretser the Jesuit. But we answer with Augustine, He that now looks for a miracle, is himself a great miracle. Christ was the onely Thaumaturgus, or Wonder worker. This is attested by Josephus the Jew, and confessed by Mahomet. Qui adhuc prodigia quærit magnum est ipse prodigium.

Verse 25. They hated me without a cause] So they dealt by David, so by Christ, and so still by his members. There is but the same Pageant acted over again, as of old. In moribus compositi, & modesti sunt, was the worst the Persecutors could say of the Waldenses, those ancient Protestants: They are good in their lives, true in their speeches, hearty in their affections, &c. Sed fides eorum est incorrigibilis & pessima, saith the Dominican Inquisitor concerning the Hussites. So the Bishop of Aliff in the Trent-Council said, That as the faith of the Catholikes was better, so the Hereticks exceeded them in good life. Hominis vita magno omnium consensu probatur, said Erasmus of Luther: And yet a Fryer of Antwerp wished that Luther were there, that he might bite out his throat with his teeth, as the same Erasmus testifieth. B. Usher. Hist. of Coun. of Trent. 738. Tanta est morum integritas, ut nec hostes reperiant quod calumnientur. Eras. de Luth.

Verse 26. Whom I will send unto you from, &c.] Christ hath satisfied the wrath of the Father: and now the Father, and Christ both, as reconciled, send the Spirit, as the fruit of both their loves, and as an earnest, which is part of the whole sum.

Verse 27. And ye also shall bear witness] Thus word and spirit go together, according to the promise, Isa. 59. 21. The Manna of the Spirit comes down from Heaven, in the dews of the Ministery of the Gospel, Numb. 11. 2. 1 Pet. 1. 22.

Chap. XVI.

Verse 1. That ye should not be offended.]

As with a thing unexpected and intolerable. Darts foreseen are dintless. Crosses coming on the sudden, find weak minds secure, make them miserable, leave them desperate.

Verse 2. Whosoever killeth you, &c.] Maximinian the persecutor thought that the blood of Christians would be a well-pleasing sacrifice to his gods. Budæus thinks that the Apostle, 1 Cor. 4. 13. alludes to those Heathenish expiations, wherein certain condemned persons were brought forth yearly with garlands upon their heads, and offered up as sacrifices to their gods, in time of any contagious infection especially: and these they termed καθάρματα and περιψήματα. At Colen certain Divines preached, that the death of certain heretikes, (as they called them) should pacifie the wrath of God which then plagued Germany grievously with a strange kind of sweating sickness. In the sixth Council of Toledo, it was enacted that the King of Spain should suffer none to live in his dominions, that professed not the Roman Catholike Religion. King Philip, accordingly having hardly escaped shipwrack, as he returned from the Low-Countries, said, He was delivered by the singular providence of God to root out Lutheranism, which he presently began to do, professing that he had rather have no Subjects, then such. Another Catholike King said, That if he thought his shirt were infected with that heresie, he would tear it from his own back, and rather go woolward: nay, if any member of his body had caught the contagion, he would cut it off, that it might creep no further. O sancta simplicitas! said John Huss, when at the stake he observed a plain countrey fellow, busier then the rest, in fetching fagots. Christianorum sanguinem Diis gratissimam, esse victimam. Tertul. Budæus in Pandect. Act. & Mon. fol. 808. Heyl. Geog. p. 33. Hist. of Coun. of Trent. 417. Si quam sui corporis partem ista contagione, &c. Sleid. comment. l. 9.

Verse 3. Because they have not known] Through blinde zeal. The dark corners of the earth are full of cruelty, saith the Psal. And they shall not destroy in all mine holy mountain; For knowledge shall cover the earth, as the waters do the sea. See the Notes on Chap. 15. 21.

Digitized by Google

Psal. 74. 20. Isa. 11. 9.

Verse 4. Ye may remember, &c.] And act, what I have foretold and taught you. The difference between Divinity and other Sciences is, that it is not enough to know, but you must do it: as Lessons of musick must be practised, and a copy not read only, but written after.

Non est hæc umbratilis philosophia, sed quæ ad usum & praxin aptanda. Calv.

Verse 5. None of you asketh me &c.] This they had asked him, but not, as well apaid of his going: this he would have of them, and of us, when we part with friends that die in the Lord, say as he, Tulisti liberos quos ipse dederas: non contristor, quod recepisti: ago gratias, quod dedisti.

Hieron. ad Iulian.

Verse 6. Sorrow hath filled your hearts] So that you are, for the time, not more uncomfortable then uncounsellable. Thus also it fared with those Israelites in Ægypt: Their ears were so full of gall, that meek Moses even lost his sweet words upon them. Passions are headstrong, and can hear no counsel:

Exod. 6. 9.

Fertur equis auriga. nec audit currus habenas.

Verse 7. I will send him unto you.] This our Saviour oft repeats, that they might once take notice of it, as an inestimable favour, that God should pour forth his Spirit upon all flesh. What so precious as spirit? What so vile as flesh? It is received among the Turks that when Christ said, That though he departed, he would send them a Comforter, it was added in the Text, And that shall be Mahomet; but that the Christians in malice toward them, have razed out those words. Is not this the efficacy of error?

Ioel 2. 28.

Verse 8. And when he is come, &c.] This Text had been easie, had not Commentators made it so knotty.

He will reprove] Or undeceive the world, by refuting those odd conceits and erroneous opinions, that men had before drunk in, and were possest of. He shall clearly convince them of the hatefulness of sin, of the necessity of getting righteousness, both imputed and imparted: both that of justification inherent in Christ, imputed to us, and that of sanctification also, imparted by Christ inherent in us: This latter is here called judgement, as it is likewise Mat. 12. 20. Till he bring forth judgement to victory; that is, weak grace (called before a broken reed, smoaking weeck) to perfect conquest over corruption. Compare with this Text that of the Apostle, 1 Cor. 6. 11. Such were some of you (scilicet, mundus immundus) but ye are (in general) washed from your sins, of the hatefulness whereof ye are now clearly convinced: And (in particular) ye are sanctified by the Spirit of our God, and ye are justified in the Name, that is, by the merit of the Lord Jesus the Righteous, who is the propitiation for our sins.

ἐλέγξει. Ita ut nihil habeat, quod prætexat.

ἐκβάλλ. Mat. 12. 20. Cum vi quadã, frustra obsistente Satana, &c.

Verse 9. Of sin, because they believe not in me] Our Saviour instanceth in the greatest of sins, unbelief; which was the first sin, and is still the root of all the rest Heb. 3. 12. It is a sin against the Gospel, and rejects the remedy, that Bath of Christs blood, to the which even the Princes of Sodom are invited, Isa. 1. 10. It gives God the lye, and subjects a man to the rigor, coaction, and curse of the Law.

Verse 10. Of righteousness, because, &c.] What strength is there in that reason? This: Christ took upon him to be our surety, and he must acquit us of all our sins, ere he can go to his Father.

Verse 11. Of Judgement, Because the Prince, &c.] Satan is, by the mighty work of the holy Ghost cast out of his Trenches, Forts, Cages, Castles, Heaven of mens hearts: corruption is dejected, though not utterly ejected. The Spirit lusteth against the flesh, &c. So that as we cannot do what good we would, because of the flesh; so neither what evil we would, because of the Spirit.

ἐχυρώματα. 2 Cor. 10. 4. Luke 10. 18.

Verse 12. But ye cannot bear them now] Because your spirits are dulled with worldly sorrow. But the spirit shall be unto you a powerful Removens, prohibens.

Verse 13. He will guide you into all truth] Many are the benefits that we receive by the Spirit. The fruit of the Spirit is in all goodness, and righteousness, and truth. This our Saviour delivers to his disciples at several times, and by degrees, as they could bear it. Here he represents him as a guide to godliness. Simeon was brought into the Temple by the instinct of the Spirit. Paul would have gone to a certain place, but the Spirit would not suffer him. Lo, such is the working of the holy Ghost still in good mens hearts, The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord, and he delighteth in his way. Kings suffer their children to ride with them, but yet set Tutors and governours to over-rule them.

Ephes 5. 9.

Psal. 37. 23.

Digitized by Google

them. So here. And becauſe Delicatures eſt Spiritus Dei, Therefore we muſt obſerve and obey his motions, which are the ſound of his goings, the foot-ſteps of his anointed, Pſal. 89. 51. We ſhould lay our ſelves (as inſtruments) open to the Spirits touch, ſubmit to his diſcipline, as Paul did, Gal. 2. 20. And this requires a great deal of ſelf-denial.

Verſe 14. He ſhall glorifie me, &c.] And if the holy Ghoſt could not uſe any better means to glorifie Chriſt, then to take of his excellencies, and hold them out to the world, what ſhould Miniſters, the mouth of the holy Ghoſt, do rather?

Verſe 15. All things that the Father hath, &c.] So that if we can but marry the heir, we have all. The Father ſaith unto him, as he did to his eldeſt Son, Luke 15. 31. Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have it thine: therefore we may go boldly to him for all things needful for life and godlineſs. When Joſeph ſent to Jacob, that Pharoah had put all into his hands, he was not a little comforted, that one ſo near to him in nature was ſo able to accommodate him. Let us alſo come boldly to the throne of grace, ſith our fleſh and blood hath all power to do us good. Chriſt, as Mediatour, is able to make all grace abound toward us, that we always, having all ſufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work, 2 Cor. 8. 8. Well might Ignatius ſay, Ignis, crux, & diaboli tormenta in me veniant, tantummodò ut Jeſum nanciſcar.

Verſe 16. A little while, and ye ſhall not ſee me.] This little ſeemed a long while to them, ſo that they began to doubt (though it were but the third day after his death) whether or no it were he that ſhould redeem Iſrael. Luke 24 21. Gods help ſeems long, becauſe we are ſhort. A ſhort walk is a long journey to feeble knees. It is but for a moment in his anger, that God hides his face from his, though it ſhould be during life; he hath an eternity of time to reveal his kindneſs in. And to ſay that God hath caſt you off, becauſe he hath hid his face from you, is (ſaith one) a fallacy fetcht out of the devils Topicks. When the Sun is eclipſed, fooliſh people think it will never recover light, but wiſe men know it will: and at ſuch a time, though the earth want the light of the Sun, yet not the influence thereof: So neither are the Saints at any time without the power, heat and vigorous influence of Gods grace, when the light and comfort of it is intercluded.

Dubitò, à duo & tito, Beccman. Sic Δισεις.

Iſa. 54. 7 8. Mr. T. Goodw. Child of light, &c.

Verſe 18. We cannot tell what he ſaith] We know here but in part: the greateſt part of our knowledge is the leaſt part of our ignorance, ſaith one. Mans heart, ſaith another may be compared to a veſſel, the means to a pipe, the Spirit of God to the wheel that beats the water into the pipe: the Miniſter is the ſervant that opens the cock. And then the reaſon why we know but in part, is, either the cock always runs not, or not always in the ſame meaſure: And ſometimes our veſſels are filled with other things, (as the Apoſtles here were with worldly grief, and the conceit of an earthly Kingdom) & ſo they run over: and uſually our veſſels run over, and loſe what we received by the means.

Auguſt.

Verſe 19. Now Jeſus knew that they were, &c.] He graciouſly prevents their requeſts, ſo he doth ours often; And uſually in ſcripture, the anſwer is given, the queſtion concealed. God thereby providing for mens infirmity, who are ready to ask ſuch odd queſtions, as the Diſciples here do, to the diſcovery of their own dulneſs.

Verſe 20. Ye ſhall weep and lament] So long as ye abide in this valley of tears, as the Septuagint render hat, Pſal. 84. 6. In hoc exilio, in hoc ergaſtulo, in hac peregrinatione, in hac valle lachrymarum, as Bernard hath it. My tears have been my meat, ſaith David, Pſal. 42. 3. alluding to the Hart, which being purſued, ſheds tears. Theſe inſtead of gems, were the ornaments of Davids bed, ſaith Chryſoſtom. The Churches eyes are as the pools of Heſhbon, ever glazed with tears of compunction or compaſſion. Tertullian ſpeaketh of himſelf, that he was born to nothing elſe but ſorrow and mourning. Athanaſius, by his tears, as by the bleeding of a chaſt vine, cured the leproſie of that tainted age. Hierom writing of his own life, ſaith, that there were furrows in his face, and iceicles from his lips with continual weeping, &c.

ἐν τῇς κοιλαδι τὸ κλαυθμῶνος.

Cant. 7. 5.

But the world ſhall rejoyce] The merry Greeks of the world laugh themſelves fat, and are ſo afraid of ſorrow, that they can never finde time to be ſerious; counting it no ſport, unleſs they may have the Devil their play-fellow; no mirth but madneſs; no veniſon ſweet, but that which is ſtolen. Theſe are forbidden to rejoyce in any thing, Hoſ. 10. 1. But if they do, there is a ſnare or cord in the ſin of the wicked, to ſtrangle their joy with: but the righteous ſing and rejoyce, Prov. 29. 6. Wo be to mirth-mongers, that ſhall fear, when they ſhould fear, Luke 6. 25.

Etiamſi læta tibi obvenian: omnia, non eſt tamen quod læteris. Rſbert. in Hoſ. 10. 1.

Digitized by Google

But your ſorrow ſhall be turned into joy] God ſhall ſoon give you beauty for aſhes, the oyl of gladneſs for the ſpirit of heavineſs, &c. he ſhall turn all your ſighing into ſinging, all your laments into laughter, your ſackcloth into ſilks, your aſhes into oyntments, your faſts into feaſts, your wringing of hands into applauſes, &c.

Verſe 21. A woman when ſhe is in travel, &c.] The ſorrow of a Saint is oft compared to that of a travelling woman, Iſa. 26. 17. Jer. 6. 24, &c. 1. In bitterneſs and ſharpneſs: which made Medea ſay, that ſhe had rather a thouſand times be ſlain in battle, then once bring forth a childe. 2. In utility, it tends to a birth. 3. In hope and expectation, not only of an end, but alſo of fruit. 4. In that there is a certain ſet time for both. And Finis edulcat media.

Millies in bello perire malim quam ſemel parere. Keckerman.

Verſe 22. And ye now therefore have ſorrow,] No ſorrow like to that, when we ſee not Chriſt in his favour. He hides his love oft as Joſeph did, out of increaſement of love; and then we cannot ſee him for crying: as Mary Magdalen could not, ſhe was ſo bleared: But when he ſeemeth fartheſt from us, his heart is with us: and he muſt needs look through the chinks, as in the Canticles to ſee how we do, as that Martyr expreſſeth it. There is a preſence of Chriſt that is ſecret, when he ſeems to draw us one way, and to drive us another. Cant. 5. 6.

Saunders in a Letter to his wife and friends.

Verſe 23. And in that day ye ſhall, &c.] q. d. Ye ſhall be ſo exact and ſo expert, that you ſhall not need to ask ſuch childiſh queſtions, as hitherto ye have done. This is like that of the Prophet, They ſhall not each man teach his neighbour, ſaying, Know the Lord, for they ſhall all know me, from the leaſt to the greateſt. They ſhall be all taught of God. Cathedram in cœlo habet qui corda docet, ſaith Auguſtine. And Quando Chriſtus docet, quàm citò diſcitur quo docetur? So S. Ambroſe, Neſcit tarda molimina ſpiritus ſancti gratia. When the ſpirit undertakes to teach a man, he ſhall not be long a learning. Now all Gods people have the Unction that teacheth them all things: And as in pipes, though of different ſounds, yet there is the ſame breath in them: ſo is there the ſame ſpirit in Chriſtians of all ſizes.

Jer. 31. 34.

1 Joh. 2.

Verſe 24 Hitherto ye have asked nothing] To what ye ſhould have asked, and might have obtained. Prayer, as thoſe arrows of deliverance, ſhould be multiplied; the oftner we come to God, the better welcome: neither can we anger him worſe, then to be ſoon ſaid or ſated. It was more troubleſome to Severus the Emperor to be asked nothing, then to give much. When any of his Courtiers had not made bold with him, he would call him, and ſay, Quid eſt cur nihil petis? &c. what meaneſt thou to ask me nothing? So Chriſt here.

2 King. 13. 19.

Moleſtius erat ei nihil peti, quam dare.

Ask, that your joy may be full] Pray that ye may joy: Draw water with joy out of this well of ſalvation. David was excellent at this: His heart was oft more out of tune then his harp; He prays, and then cries, Return to thy reſt, O my ſoul, &c. In many of his Pſalms, the beginnings are full of trouble; but by that time he hath prayed a while, the ends are full of joy and aſſurance, ſo that one would imagine, ſaith Peter Moulin, that thoſe Pſalms had been compoſed by two men of a contrary humour. Hudſon the Martyr, deſerted at the ſtake, went from under the chain; and having prayed earneſtly, was comforted immediately, and ſuffered valiantly.

As Pſal. 6. & 22. & 51. Moulin. de l'amour divin.

Verſe 25. Theſe things have I ſpoken, &c.] He ſpake plain enough, but they were ſo ſlow of heart, and dull of hearing, that they thought he ſpake to them in riddles and parables. So though the Prophet dealt with the people as with little ones newly weaned, mincing and maſticating their meat for them, laying before them precept upon precept, line upon line, &c. yet was he to them (through their ſingular ſtupidity) as one that liſped half words, or ſpake in a ſtrange tongue.

Legum obſcuritates non aſſignemus culpæ ſcribentium, ſed inſcitiæ non aſſequentiũ. Sex. Cecil. apud Gell.

Iſa. 28. 10, 11, 12.

Verſe 26. At that day ye ſhall ask, &c.] Chriſt had promiſed them further light, but yet expects they ſhould pray for it. Prayer is a putting the promiſes in ſuit; we muſt pray them over, ere we get the performance, Ezek. 36. 37. Chriſt himſelf was to ask of his Father the world for his inheritance, &c. Pſal. 2.

Ac ſi bleſis eſſet labiis.

Verſe 27. For the Father himſelf loveth you] We ſay, Majeſty and love cannot dwell together: becauſe love is the abaſing of the ſoul to all ſervices. But it is otherwiſe in God; Majeſty and love meet in his heart; ſo that of his own free accord, he will give us any thing we ask, and as it were prevent a Mediatour, crowning his own graces in us.

Non benè conveniunt, nec in una ſede morantur Majeſtas & amor.——

Verſe 28. Again I leave the world, &c.] So Plotinus the Philoſopher, when he died, ſaid, ſaid, τὸ ἐμοὶ θεὸν ἀναγὼ ὅτι τὸ πρωτόγονον θεῖον: Nay, Iulian the Apoſtate (if Marcellinus may be credited) went out of the world with theſe words in his mouth, Vitam repoſcenti naturæ, tanquam debitor bonæ fidei, redditurus exulto. Sponte ejus, non rogante me. Ut apud Hom. σπεύδουσι ἀπὸ αὐτὴν ὀφεῖλει, Syneſ. epiſt 9. Am. Marcell. lib. 25.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 29. His diſciples ſaid unto him] How apt are we to over-ween our little-nothing of knowledge or holineſs? to ſwell with big conceits of our own ſufficiency? and, when we ſee never ſo little, to ſay preſently, with her in the Poet, Conſilii ſatis eſt in me mihi? to think we underſtand (as S. Paul hath it) all myſteries, and all knowledge? How truly may it now be ſaid of many, as Quintilian ſaith of ſome in his time, that they might have proved excellent ſcholars, if they had not been ſo perſwaded of themſelves already? Conceitedneſs cuts off all hope of proficiency. Arachne ap. Ovid. 1 Cor. 13. 1. ἡ ὄψις ὃς τῆς προσοπῆς ἐγκοπή.

Verſe 30. Now we are ſure, &c.] What? not till now? Nicodemus was afore you then, Ioh. 3.2. But better late then never: Nunquam ſerò, ſi ſerìò.

Verſe 31. Do ye now believe?] I now, ere trouble comes, you are jolly fellows. But it is eaſie to ſwim in a warm bath: and every bird can ſing in a ſun-ſhine day. We ſhall ſee ſhortly what you can do. If ye faint in the day of adverſity, your ſtrength is ſmall. Hard weather tryes what health: hot ſervice, what courage. Prov. 24. 10.

Verſe 32. Behold the hour cometh, &c.] So bladder-like is the ſoul, that filled with earthly vanities, though but wind, it grows great and ſwels in pride: but if prickt with the leaſt pin of piercing grief, it ſhriveleth to nothing.

Verſe 33. Theſe things have I ſpoken,] This Sermon of our Saviour then would be read in time of trouble. It hath virtutem pacativam, if mixt with faith.

That in me ye might have peace] Though ſurcharged with outward troubles. Joſiah died in peace, according to the promiſe, though ſlain in war. True grace, like true gold, comforts the heart: Alchymy gold doth not.

In the world ye ſhall have tribulation] There is no avoiding of it: 'tis not a paradiſe, but a purgatory to the Saints. It may be compared to the ſtraits of Magellan, which is ſaid to be a place of that nature, that which way ſoever a man bend his courſe, he ſhall be ſure to have the winde againſt him. Heyl Geog. pag 802.

I have overcome the world] Therefore we are more then conquerors, becauſe ſure to overcome afore-hand. We are triumphers, 2 Cor. 2. 14 We need do no more then, as thoſe in Joſhuah, but ſet our feet on the necks of our enemies, already ſubdued unto us by our Jeſus. Rom. 8. 37.

CHAP. XVII.

Verſe 1. And lift up his eyes to Heaven.]

THis and the like outward geſtures in prayer, as they iſſue from the fervency of the good heart, ſo they reflect upon the ſoul, whoſe inviſible affections by theſe viſible actions, in the Saints, are the more inflamed. Howbeit hypocrites, though they have their hands elbow-deep in the earth, will ſeem to pierce Heaven with their eyes lift up in prayer, Videntur torvo aſpectu cœlum ad ſe attrahere, ſaith Calvin ſomewhere: they ſo fix their eyes in publike prayer, as if they would leave them on the roof of the Church; when as all is but hiſtrionical, theatrical, counterfeit. The eagle, when ſhe ſoareth higheſt, hath ever an eye to the prey below: ſo hath the hypocrite to profit, credit, &c. πρὸς τὸ θεαθῆναι, to be ſeen of men, Matth. 6.

The hour is come] q. d. I ask not before the time is come, I ripe and ready for thy kingdom. Some would be in Heaven, ere they have done their work upon earth. But what ſaid that Ancient? Domine, ſi tibi ſim neceſſarius, non recuſo vivere: Lord if thou haſt any further ſervice for me to do, I am willing to live longer. When we come to Heaven, the reward will be ſo large, that we ſhall repent us (if it were poſſible there to repent for any thing) that we have done no more work. It is not lawful, (ſaith one) to wiſh for death ſimply, neither to be ſet free from the troubles, fears, and cares of ſin, nor that we would not conflict, nor wreſtle any longer (for this were to ſerve our ſelves, and ſeek our own eaſe and ends) but in hatred to ſin, as it is ſin, &c. Capel of Tempt. par. 3.

Verſe 2. That he ſhould give eternal life] And what more free then gift? Note this this against our Merit-mongers, who not only cry with Novatus, Non habeo, Domine, quod mihi ignoscas; I have done nothing that thou shouldest forgive me: but with Vega, Vitam aternam gratis non accipiam. I will not have heaven for nothing. How much Act. & Mon. better S. Augustine, Homo agnoscat, saith he, ut Deus ignoscat. And William Wickam, founder of New-Colledge, who though he did many good works, yet he professed that he trusted to Jesus Christ alone for salvation.

Digitized by Google

Verse 3. That they may know thee] To know God in the face of Christ, is Heaven Bucholcer. afore-hand: Qui non habet Christum in horoscopo, non habet Deum in medio Cœli. By his knowledge shall my righteous servant Justifie many, saith God concerning Christ, Isa. 53. 11. that is, by faith; which infolds assent of the judgement, consent of the will, and affiance or assurance of the heart. Papists place faith in the will only, and exclude knowledge. Nay, Bellarmine affirmeth that faith may be better defined by ignorance (that mother of devotion) then by knowledge. They dig out mens eyes (as they dealt by Sampson) and then make sport with them: they confine faith to the will, that they Heyl. Geog. 288 may do what they will with the understanding and the heart; as the Friars send men on pilgrimage, that they may lie with their wives the while.

Verse 4. That thou gavest me to do.] Our Saviour counts his work a gift: So should we take it for a favor, that he imploys us, that we may have any office about him, that we may magnifie him with our bodies, whether by life or death, Phil. 1. 19. As an heretike I am
Act. & Mon. condemned (said Mr. Bradford) and shall be burned, whereof I ask God heartily mercy, that I do no more rejoyce then I do, having so great cause as to be an instrument, wherein it may please my dear Lord God and Saviour to suffer. And the greatest pro-
Ibid. 1565. motion (said Latymer) that God giveth in this world, is, to be such Philippians to whom it is given, not only to believe, but also to suffer. Ignatius professed he had rather be a Martyr then a Monarch. John Noyes took up a fagot at the fire, and kissed Ibid. 1831. it, saying, Blessed be the time that ever I was born to come to this. The Apostles rejoyced that they were graced so, as to be disgraced for Christ, Acts 5. 41.

Verse 5. With the glory which I had, &c.] Our Saviour then is no upstart God, and of a later standing, as the Arians & Mahometans would make of him. Mahomet speaks very honourably of Christ, except only in two things. First, he denied that he was crucified, but that some other was crucified for him. Secondly, he took up the opinion of the Arians, to deny his Divinity. Arius at Constantinople, sitting upon the close stool, purged out his guts. Mahometism is now there in that place, as it were the excrements of Arius.

Verse 6. I have manifested thy name] The Jews seek to detract from the glory of our Saviours miracles, by giving out, that he did them by I know not what superstitious
Bern. or Magical use of the name Jehovah. But that name of God that he is here said to manifest, is that nomen Majestativum, that holy and reverend name of God, set down Exod. 34. 6. 7. A name that would fill our hearts with heaven, and answer all our doubts, had we but skill to spell out all the letters in it.

Verse 7. Now they have known, &c.] That the Gospel is a plot of Gods own contriving, and no device of man, as that Evangelium regni was, set out by the Family of Love: and those Fanaticks mentioned by Irenæus, that were besotted with an opinion of themselves, that they accounted their own writings to be Gospels. In the year 1226. cer-
Bee-hive of Rome. p. 30. tain Monks at Paris set out a Gospel full of all filthiness and blasphemy, naming it Evangelium æternum. And in the book called Conformitates S. Francisci, made in the year 1389. it is written, that the same book is better then the Gospel, and S. Francis Caranz. sum. Concil. sess. 13. set in Lucifers chair above Angels. The Council of Constance comes in with a non obstante against Christs institution, withholding the Cup from the Laity. And when the Pope sets forth any Buls, commonly he concludes thus; Non obstantibus constitutionibus & ordinationibus Apostolicis, cæterisq; contrariis quibuscunq;. And the Popes interpretation of Scripture, be it what it will, seem it never so contrary to the Scripture, is, Ipsissimum Dei verbum, the very word of God, saith Hosius.

Verse 8. For I have given unto them] A sweet and precious gift. It was the Jews πρῶτον, Primarium quiddã & res magni momenti. primary priviledge, that unto them were committed the oracles of God. There is a (chiefly) set upon it, Rom. 3. 2. See my True Treasure.

Verse 9. I pray for them.] Christ hath left us this prayer here recorded, as a pattern of that intercession he uncessantly maketh for us at the right hand of his heavenly Fa-
1 King. 2. ther. Joab was heard for Absolom: shall not Christ for us? Solomon denied his mothers

Digitized by Google

thers requeſt: God will not deny Chriſts. The Prodigal came without a mediatour to his Father, and was embraced: Much more ſhall we, preſented by Chriſt.

Verſe 10. And I am glorified in them, It will be a ſingular prop to our prayers, if we ſo carry our ſelves, that Chriſt in his daily interceſſion may give this teſtimony of us to the Father. He undertakes for us, as it were, and gives his Word, that we being mindful of our reconciliation by him, ſhall ſhun ſin by his grace, and not provoke him as before. This ſhould cauſe us to live ſo, as Chriſt may have credit by us, and we may have courage to come to God by Chriſt.

Verſe 11. Keep through thine own Name] The Name of the Lord is a ſtrong tower, Prov. 18. 10. A munition of rocks, Iſa. 33. 18. Hither the Saints run for the ſecuring of their comforts, and ſafeguarding of their perſons, as Conies do to their burroughs, all creatures to their refuges, as the Shechemites fled to their Tower, when their City was beaten down to the ground, Judg. 9. The lame and blinde, the moſt ſhiftleſs Creatures, when they had gotten the ſtrong hold of Sion over their heads, thought then they might ſecurely ſcorn David and his hoſt, and yet their hold failed them. So doth not God, thoſe that flee to his Name. Pray, to be kept by it. 2 Sam. 5. 6, 7.

Verſe 12. But the ſon of perdition] This exception ſhews that Judas was never of Chriſts body: for can he be a Saviour of a ſon of perdition? But why is he then excepted? Firſt, by reaſon of his office he ſeemed to be of his body. Secondly, our Saviour ſpeaketh here in particular of the twelve; and to be an Apoſtle, was in it ſelf but an outward calling.

Verſe 13. And theſe things I ſpeak in the world] Not for his own or his Fathers ſake, but for the comfort of his Diſciples; to cure them of their anxiety and anguiſh, when they heard him praying and providing ſuch things for them. For this alſo it was, that he prayed thus in their preſence, (when at other times he went apart) for their conſolation doubtleſs and inſtruction. Mr. Bradford Martyr, when he ſhifted himſelf in a clean ſhirt, made for his burning, he made ſuch a prayer of the Wedding-garment, that ſome of thoſe that were preſent, were in ſuch great admiration that their eyes were as truly occupied in looking on him, as their ears gave place to hear his prayer. Act. and Mon. fol. 1548.

Verſe 14. I have given them thy Word, &c.] I have put my word into their mouth, therefore the world hateth them: Perſecution being the black Angel (as Calvin ſaid) that dogs the Goſpel. When our Saviour preached at Nazareth, ſo long as he was opening his Text, they admired him; but when he came to apply it cloſe to their conſciences, they pulled him out of the Pulpit, and would have broken his neck down the hill. Luke 4. The book that the Angel gave John to eat, was ſweet in his mouth, but bitter in his belly; to note, that the knowledge of divine truths is pleaſant, but the publiſhing of them, whereby the fruit thereof might come to the reſt of the members (like the concoction and diſtribution of meat digeſted in the ſtomack) is full of trouble. Revel. 10. 9. Brightman. Pareus.

Verſe 15. That thou take them out of the world.] Many godly men, weary of the worlds ill uſages, are found oft ſitting under Elias his Juniper, and wiſhing to die: for what are they better then their Fathers? Oh that I might have my requeſt ſaith Job, and that God would grant me the thing that I long for: And what was that, trow you? Even that it would pleaſe God to deſtroy me: that he would let looſe his hand, and cut me off. Job 6. 8, 9. But was that well pray'd, Job? Or was that wiſely done, Jonas? to fret one while at Gods goodneſs to the Ninevites? to faint another while at the loſs of the gourd? and both times to wiſh to die, ſaying, It is better for me to die then to live? Were it not better to ſerve out your time, with David? to finiſh your courſe, with Paul? to wait till your change ſhall come, well aſſured that that wicked one ſhall not touch you, as S. John hath it, that is, tactu qualitativo (as Caietan ſenſeth it) with a deadly touch? Jon 4. 3, 8. Act. 13. 2 Tim. 4. Iob 14. 1 Ioh. 5. 18.

Verſe 16 They are not of the world, &c.] Here indeed they have their commoration, but their converſation is in heaven: they are cloathed with the Sun of righteouſneſs, and have the Moon (all earthly things) under their feet. Pearls, though they grow in the ſea, yet they have affinity with the heaven, the beauty and brightneſs whereof they reſemble: ſo here. It is Chryſoſtoms compariſon. πολίτευμα. Phil. 2. 21. Revel. 12. 1.

Verſe 17. Sanctifie them by thy truth.] Affect their hearts therewith, that they may the better affect others: ſpeaking à corde ad cor, which is the life of preaching. Quod inſſit & geſſit ſaith Bernard, of one, ἡ ἕδρᾳξις, ἡ ἁδρότης, ſaith Baſil, of another. A Miniſter had need to pray, as Eliſha did, for a doubled and trebled ſpirit, that he may Bern. epiſt. 42. Baſil in Pſ. 63.

out

Digitized by Google

out of the good treaſure of his heart bring forth good things, new and old, for the peoples uſe.

Verſe 18 Even ſo have I ſent them, &c.] Therefore they have need that there be put upon them of my ſpirit, that they may be fit for the work. This boon none are to expect, but they that are ſent of Chriſt, and ſuch are ſure to be gifted.

Verſe 19. And for their ſakes do I ſanctifie] As both Prieſt, Altar and Sacrifice: and this Chriſt did from the womb to the tomb; at his death eſpecially when this Paſchal lamb was roſted in the fire of his Fathers wrath, that his people might be made partakers of his holineſs, Heb 10. 10. Here alſo it is worth the noting, that theſe Petitions in our Saviours prayer, do ſo ſweetly depend one upon another, that if you take away one, you deface the other. Phavorinus in Gellius, comparing between the ſtile of Lyſias and Plato, obſerves this difference; Quod ſi ex Platonis oratione aliquid demas minuſq; de elegantia tantum detraxeris; ſi ex Lyſia, de ſententia.

Verſe 20. Neither pray I for theſe alone] Lo here a ſure and ſweet haven for all believers to have recourſe to, where they may ſit and ſing away care of miſcarrying; for here Chriſt doth as much as if he ſhould ſolemnly ſwear to ſecure and ſet them ſafe from danger, ſith the Father denies him nothing

Joh. 11. 42.

Verſe 21. That they all may be one] Though not by the ſame kind of union whereby the Father and the Son are one yet by an union every way as real and indiſſoluble; ſuch, as whereby the world may be convinced that Chriſt is the very Meſſiah, and the faithful, the true Church. So it was acknowledged in the Primitive times, Act. 4. 32. But what a ſad thing was it, that a Heathen ſhould ſoon after have cauſe to ſay, Nulla infeſtæ hominibus beſtiæ, ut ſunt inviſi ſibi pleriq; Chriſtiani; No beaſts are ſo miſchievous to men, as Chriſtians are one to another They had not ſo learned Chriſt. Love and humility are his cognizances. Why then ſhould the Turk have occaſion to ſay, that he ſhould ſooner ſee his fingers all of a length, then Chriſtian Princes all of a mind? Why ſhould the Jew ſtumble at our diſſentions, which is one of the main ſcandals they take from Proteſtants?

Am. Marcellinus, l. 2. c 2. Triſtiſſima illa perſecutio ſub Diocletiano, poſtſquam orta eſt à pertinantia ſuperbia & ritus ſacerdotum, Euseb.

Verſe 22. And the glory which thou, &c] That is, the grace, which is glory begun, as glory is grace perfected: we are here transformed into the ſame image from glory to glory; and ſet together in heavenly places in Chriſt Jeſus. Such honour have all his Saints. Such things are found in them as do accompany or comprehend ſalvation.

2 Cor. 3. ult. Epheſ. 2. 6. Heb. 6. 9.

Verſe 23. I in them, and thou in me] Chriſt was the only fit Mediatour: as being God for the buſineſs with God; and man for the buſineſs with man. He is the bridge that joyneth Heaven and Earth together, ſaith Gregory. He is that ladder of aſcenſion to God: faith firſt lays hold upon Chriſt as man, and by it, as by a mean, makes way to God; and in it embraceth the Godhead, which is of it ſelf fire conſuming. We may ſafely ſail through Chriſts blood into the boſom of the Father.

ἐχόμενα, τὰ τ' ὄντα καὶ ἐχόμενα Scholiaſt.

Verſe 24. Father I will, &c] Every word is full of life and joy. I would not (ſaith One) for all the world that one verſe had been left out of the Bible. And again the ſame Author elſewhere ſaith, There is more worth in thoſe four Chapters, John 14, 15, 16, 17. then in all the books in the world beſides.

Mr. Baxter his Saints Everl Reſt, page 14. Ibid. 708.

Verſe 24. Be with me, where I am.] It is part of Chriſts joy, that we ſhall be where he is. He will not therefore be long without us. David is ſent by God to Hebron to be crowned: he will not up alone, but takes with him all his men, with all their houſholds. They ſhall take ſuch part as himſelf, notwithſtanding their late mutiny at Ziglag. So dealeth the Lord Chriſt with all his; and this ſhould digeſt all their ſorrows. Chriſt will not be happy alone: as a tender Father, he can enjoy nothing, if his Children may not have part with him.

Verſe 25. O righteous Father.] Gods righteouſneſs is either, 1. Of equity to puniſh offences. Or, 2. Of fidelity, to make good his Promiſes. In which reſpect it is no arrogancy nor preſumption (ſaid Maſter Glover Martyr) to burthen God, as it were, with his Promiſes; and of duty to claim his aid, help and aſſiſtance.

Act. & Mon. fol. 1553.

Verſe 26. That the love, &c.] Claritas in intellectu parit ardorem in affectu. Ignoti nulla cupido.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

CHAP. XVIII.

Verſe 1. Over the brook Cedron.]

This was the Town-ditch, 2 Chron. 30. 14. and had its name from its darkneſs or muddineſs: for it received the baggage, as a common ſink. Not far from hence was the valley of Hinnom, wherein there was kept a continual fire for the burning of dead carcaſes and other garbage, as Kimchi notes upon Pſal. 27. Hence Hell is called, Gehenna.

Verſe 2. And Judas alſo which betrayed him.] No ſuch danger to Chriſts Church by any as by Apoſtates and falſe brethren Gal 2. 4. Julian of a forward Profeſſor became a furious perſecutor, & drew more from the faith by fraud and craft, then all the Heathen Emperors before him had done, by their force and cruelty. He perſecuted by his perſwaſions, as Nazianzen witneſſeth, and called back the Biſhops that were baniſhed by Conſtantine, that, by their mutual wranglings amongſt themſelves, they might imbroyl and overthrow the Church. About the year of grace, 1240. One Robert a Bulgarian fell off from the Waldenſes, and turning to be a Dominican, he proved to be a ſore enemy to the Church of Chriſt, in Flanders eſpecially. Biſhop Bonner was at firſt advanced by Cromwell, and ſeemed much to diſlike Stephen Gardiner for his Popery. His words to Grafton at Paris when he was newly made biſhop of London, were theſe, Before God, the greateſt fault that I ever found in Stokeſly (who was his Predeceſſor) was for vexing and troubling of poor men for their Religion, as Lobly the Bookbinder, and others, for having the Scripture in Engliſh: And (God willing) he did not ſo much hinder it, but I will as much further it, &c. Baldwin the renegado, and Boſſecus (that was hired by the Papiſts to write Calvins life) were deſperate enemies to the truth they had formerly profeſſed. Harding, that had conference with Jewell, was once a zealous Proteſtant, and Chaplain to Lady Jane Gray, Champian of S. Johns Colledge in Oxford, Proctor of the Univerſity, 1568. diſſembled the Proteſtant Religion, which he afterwards oppoſed to his utmoſt. So did Parſons, who was of Baliol Colledge, til he was for his diſhoneſty expelled with diſgrace; and fled to the Papiſts. Chriſts greateſt enemies are uſually thoſe of his own houſe. He was of the ſociety of Jeſus, that betrayed him.

Eo tantum fine ut ipſi obmutuerint inter ſe contentionem bello inteſtino oppugnarent eccleſiã. Zozom. la Rev. de vit. Pontif. p. 176.

A&. & Mon. fol. 1087.

Camd. Eliz. fol. 215.

Verſe 3. Judas having then received a band.] Theſe are the enemies beſt arguments, and thoſe they fly to when all is done. So the Jeſuites, thoſe ſworn ſword-men of Satan, give out that their weapons are only preces & lachrymæ, prayers and tears; and that it is unlawful for them to uſe any other, even then when they are about their moſt bloody deſigns. A late King of France (after his revolt to Popery) being perſwaded by a great Duke about him not to re-admit the Jeſuites, which had been juſtly baniſhed the Realm, he anſwered ſuddenly, Give me then ſecurity for my life. He therefore admitted them, even into his boſom, giving them his houſe for a Colledge; and in a publike ſpeech ſaying, That they were Timothies in the houſe, Chryſoſtoms in the Chair, Auguſtines in the Schools, &c. But what came of it? One of the Popes ſlaughter-ſlaves, by the inſtigation of the Jeſuites, ſtabbed him to the heart: Theſe Timothies proved Judaſſes; theſe Chryſoſtoms, Catalines: theſe Auguſtines, Aſſaſſines.

Camd. Eliz. Epiſt. to Read.

Vita David Paret, operib. præfix.

Cometh thither with lanterns, &c.] Hypocrites may be compared (ſaith one) to thoſe ſouldiers in the Goſpel, which came to ſeek Chriſt with lights and lanterns, as if they meant not to miſs of him; yea they brought clubs and ſtaves, as if they would fight for him: Yet, when he ſaith, Here I am, take you up my Croſs, they ſtumble at the Croſs, and fall backwards.

Eſſaies divine and moral.

Verſe 4. Went forth and ſaid unto them] Met his enemy in the face, after he had prayed; whereas till then, he feared. See the power of prayer. So Eſther, when ſhe had faſted and prayed, found her heart fortified againſt the fear of man: and putting her life in her hand, went boldly to the King. So Hudſon the Martyr, of whom afore.

Verſe 5. Jeſus of Nazareth. Jeſus ſaith, I am he] They called him Jeſus of Nazareth zareth by way of reproach. He takes it upon him, and wears it for a crown: And ſhould not we do likewiſe?

Digitized by Google

And Judas alſo, &c.] With what face could the Traitor ſtand there? But being full of the devil he was paſt grace, & could bluſh no more then a ſack-but. Effrænis & effrons.

Verſe 6. Aſſoon then as he had ſaid, &c.] Here our Saviour let out a little beam of the Majeſty of his Deity, and five hundred men fell before him. Quid autem judicaturus faciet, qui judicandus hoc fecit? ſaith Auguſtine. Pſal. 1. 7. The wicked ſhall not ſtand in Judgement, ſaith David. Chriſt ſhall ſmite the earth with the rod of his mouth, ſaith Iſaias; Iſa. 11. 4. and with the breath of his lips ſhall he ſlay the wicked. Godly men (who have but a drop of Chriſts Ocean, a ſpark of his flame) have a daunting preſence. When Valens the perſecuting Emperor came to S. Baſil, while he was in holy exerciſes, it ſtruck ſuch a terrour into him, that he reeled, and had fallen, had he not been upheld by thoſe that were with him. And another time, when he ſhould have ſubſcribed an order for S. Baſils baniſhment, ſuch a ſudden trembling took his right hand, that he could write never Tripart. hiſtor. a good letter, whereupon he tore the order for anger, and there was an end of the buſineſs. When an Officer was ſent to apprehend a godly Deacon at Miltenberg (a Town in the territory of Ments) the Deacon embracing him, ſaid, Salve, frater, frater enimverò meus es, en adſum, transfode me, ſuffoca me, Here I am brother, ſtab me, hang me, do what you will with me. The Officer, as if changed from heaven, anſwered, Sir, you ſhall receive no hurt from me. And when the Boars ran in to kill the Deacon, he delivered him, and ſet him ſafe out of danger. Judas dealt not ſo by Jeſus, but as he fell with the reſt, ſo roſe with the reſt, who deſperately went on with their deviliſh deſign, nothing daunted by their late diſaſter.

Domine, à me quidem nihil mali expectes. Scultet. Annal. page 174.

Verſe 7. Then asked he them again.] Though ſtruck to the earth, they deſiſt not: So the Sodomites, ſmitten with blindneſs grope for the door. Pharoah in that palpable darkneſs, rageth againſt God, and menaceth Moſes. Monoceros interimi poteſt, capi non poteſt: Stubborn men will ſooner break then bend. Man, ſaith Polybius, is held the wiſeſt, but to me he ſeemeth the moſt fooliſh of all creatures: for they where they have miſcarried once, will not eaſily be driven thither again, Solus homo ab ævo ad ævum peccat fere in iiſdem: Only man will not be warned, though he have ſoundly ſmarted. We load an Aſs (ſaith Bernard) and he cares not, becauſe he is an Aſs, and born to bear burdens: But if you would drive him into a ditch, or thruſt him into the fire, he ſhuns it as well as he can, becauſe he loves life, and fears death. Yet ſilly man fears not his eternal bane.

Solinus.

Cavet quantum poteſt, quia vitam amat, & mortem timet.

Verſe. 8. Let theſe go their way] This he ſeems to indent with the Jews ere he yielded himſelf their priſoner. As a good Shepherd, he interpoſeth between the Wolf and the Flock: as an heavenly Eagle, he hath ever an eye to his neſt, when he flyeth higheſt from it.

Verſe 9. That the ſaying might be fulfilled, &c.] Chriſt ſpake it of their ſouls, it is here applied to their bodies. God hath a fatherly care of both, and will not lay more upon the outward man, then the inward ſhall be enabled to undergo. Hence Iſa. 48. 10. that of the Prophet, Behold, I have tried thee, but not as ſilver. Why ſo? Becauſe Gods weak children having far more droſs in them, then good oar, would never be able to abide a ſtrict trial.

Verſe 10. The ſervants name was Malchus] A buſie fellow belike in ſurprizing our L. Brock. Saviour. But it was a ſad Omen (ſaith a noble and renowned Writer) that Peters ſword ſhould cut off the ear of Malchus, which ſignifies a King or kingly authority. How the Pope hath lifted up himſelf, ὑπὲρ πᾶν σέβασμα, above all that is called Auguſtus, or, Emperor, is better known, then that it need be here related. And if Biſhops forbear (ſaith he) to touch the Scepter (which they ſtrive to ſway) it is but as once Mercury ſpared Jupiters thunderbolts, which he durſt not ſteal, leſt they ſhould roar too loud, or at leaſt burn his fingers.

Verſe 11. Put up thy ſword.] Our Saviour checks him for his inordinate zeal; wherein to be over-carried, is eaſie and ordinary. The memorable ſtory of William Gardiner Martyr in Portugal, who in the very preſence of the King and his Nobles could not forbear, but fell upon the Cardinal, as he was acting a Maſs. See Act. and Monum. fol. 1242. So William Flower, upon an Eaſter-day at Weſtminſter, ſeeing a Prieſt miniſtring the Sacrament of the Altar to the people, ſtruck and wounded him upon the head, head, and also upon his arm and hand with a wood-knife: In the which so doing, as indeed he did not well, nor Evangelically: so being afterwards examined by Bishop Bonner, he did no less confess his not-wel-doing in the same, submitting therefore himself willingly to punishment, when it should come. Howbeit touching his belief in the Sacrament and Popish ministration, he neither did, nor would submit himself: But when he was tempted to turn, and also threatned, he answered, Do what ye will, I am at a point: for the heavens shall as soon fall, as I will forsake mine opinion, &c. At his execution, first his hand being held up against the stake, was stricken off: At the which, some that were present affirmed, that he shrunk not, but once a little stirred his shoulders. Act. and Mon. fol. 1430.

Digitized by Google

Verse 12. Took Iesus, and bound him.] This was done τὸν λόγον ἡσυχάζοντα, as Irenæus hath it, whiles the Deity rested: for he could as easily have delivered himself as he did his Disciples, but this Sacrifice was to be bound with cords to the Altar: he was pinnioned and manacled, as a malefactor. So was not Abner: His hands were not bound, nor his feet put into the fetters, 2 Sam. 3. 34. But Christ was bound for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities. Paul by his priviledge was freed from whipping; but we by Christs bondage, from those chains of darkness, 2 Pet. 2. 4. from those scourges and scorpions in hell. σειραῖς ζόφου ταρταρώσας.

Verse 13. And led him away to Annas first.] Who would not go to bed (late though it were) till he had seen Christ brought bound before him, and then cried out, likely, as Hannibal did, when he saw a pit full of mans blood, O formosum spectaculum! So Stephen Gardiner would not sit down to dinner, till the news came of the good Bishops burnt at Oxford. Then he came out rejoycing, and saying to the Duke of Norfolk, Now let us go to dinner: but it wat the last that ever he eat for it. Shall they escape by iniquitie? No: In anger cast them down ô God, Psal. 56. 7. Act. & Mon. fol. 1622.

Verse 14. Now Caiaphas was he, &c.] So Balaam, the devils Spelman, spake excellently of the Star of Iacob, See the Notes on Chap. 11. 51, 52.

Verse 15. That Disciple was known to the high Priests] Perhaps for that he and his father Zebedee were wont to serve the fat Priests with the best and daintiest fish: (for this other Disciple was Iohn, who had first fled with the rest, and now came sculking in, to see what would become of his Master.) Of the Ass-fish, Aristole affirmeth, that he of all other creatures, hath his heart in his belly: Such a thing was this Priest. De nat. animal.

Verse 16. But Peter stood at the door] Better he had kept him further off. He that will not fall into the ditch, must not walk too near the brim. Peter might better have bestowed himself somewhere else. Longè utilius fuisset, gemere, & precari in obscuro aliquo angulo, saith Musculus. It had been better for him to have been praying in a corner, then thus to put himself upon a danger, unless he had known himself the stronger. Luther comforteth the men of Miltenberg by an Epistle; and because they were forbidden to meet and talk together, about matters of Religion, upon pain of death he adviseth those of them that were strong in the spirit, to do their duty, notwithstanding the danger. But for the weaker sort, he exhorteth them to rejoyce secretly in the Lord, and to pray to him for further strength, that they may be able to make a bold and wise profession of his truth. Qui infirmiores sunt, tacitè in Domino gaudeant, Deumq; rogent, ut se quoq; animet ad publicam veritatis professionem.

Verse 17. He saith, I am not.] False dissimulation is true denial. A silly wench is too hard for this stout stickler, who was alway, Melius animatus quam armatus, as one observeth of him: Sic Elias fulminator ad Iesubelis minas trepidat, factus seipso imbecillior. Thou also standest by faith: be not high-minded, but fear. Rom. 11.

Verse 18. And warmed himself.] But whiles he warmed without, he cooled within. Evil company is a great quench-coal, an ill air for zeal to breath in, it casts a damp. For the abundance of iniquity, the love of many waxeth cold. Peters evil example was a compulsion to other good people, Gal. 2. 14. What marvel then if the swearing, cursing souldiers compelled him to do the like? They were the trunks, through which the devil delivered himself, jeering at, and railing upon Christ, no doubt, &c. Mat. 24.

Verse 19. Asked Iesus of his Disciples] Questioned him in the spiritual Court first, as an heretick; as afterwards in the temporal Court, for a seditious person. So the Papists condemned married Priests for Nicolaitans, in the Synod of Millain, Anno 1067. Virgilius a Germane Bishop, and a great Mathematician, they condemned for an heretick, for affirming that there were Antipodes. Paulus 2. Pope, pronounced them Alfred. Chron. Aventin. Annal. l. 3. Cade of the Church.

Digitized by Google

Iac. Rev. de vit. Pontif. p. 139. them hereticks that did but name the name Academy, either in jest or in earnest. Innocent. 2. condemned Arnoldus Brixius of heresie, for saying that the Clergy should have their temporalties taken away, and be tied to their spirituals only.

Act. & Mon. fol. 1550. Bonner objected to Philpot the Martyr, that he found written in his book, In me Joanne Philpot- ubi abundavit peccatum, superabundavit & gratia.

Ibid. 1637. And when the Bishop of Worcester exhorted Philpot before he began to speak, to pray to God for grace: Nay, my Lord of Worcester, said Bonner, you do not well to exhort him to make any prayer; for this is the thing these hereticks have a singular pride in, that they can often make their vain prayers, in the which they glory much: For in this point they are like to certain arrant hereticks, of whom Pliny makes mention, that they sing Antelucanos hymnos, &c.

Plin Epist. Was not this well aimed? Those he spoke of were the Primitive Christians, whom Pliny excuseth to Trajan the Persecutor. But it is easie for malice to make heresie what it pleaseth, when it is armed with power, and can make havock at pleasure.

Veritas abscondi erubescit. Verse 20. I spake openly to the world.] Truth is bold and barefaced: when heresie hides it self, and loaths the light. What said John Frith Martyr, to the Archbishops men, that would have let him go and shift for himself? If you should both leave me here, and go to Croydon, declaring to the Bishops, that you had lost Frith, I would Act. & Mon. fol. 1927. surely follow as fast after as I might, and bring them news that I had found and brought Frith again. Do ye think that I am afraid to declare my opinion to the Bishops of England in a manifest truth?

Verse 21. Why askest thou me?] We are to be ready always to give an answer to those that ask us a reason of our hope. so they do it to learn of us, and not to ensnare us.

Act. & Mon. fol. 1575. Thus I kept the band-dogs at staves end (said Nicolas Shetterden, Martyr) not as thinking to escape them, but that I would see the Foxes leap above ground for my blood, if they can reach it (so it be the will of God) yet we shall then gape and leap for it. Mr. Hawks, Martyr, asked a Parson that examined him, what kin he was to the weather-cock of Pauls?

Ibid. 1445. And told one Miles Huggard a Hosier in Pudding-lane, who began to question him, that he could better skill to eat a pudding, and make an hose, then in Scripture either to answer or oppose

Verse 22. One of the Officers.] Because our Saviour gave not the high Priest his usuall titles, but dealt freely with him, this Officer, to curry favour, Veluti pontificii honoris vindex, beats our Saviour with his hand, or stick, and is the better thought of. Like

Dispioso sclopeto à Vicarii famulo, sed frustrà impetitur, Sculter. Master, like man. So the Bishop of Geneva's servant discharged his Pistol at Farellus (that faithful man of God) when he was convented before his Lord; but by Gods good providence, missed him. Great mens vices go as seldom unattended, as their persons: they shall be sure of such about them, as will lick up their spettle, and load the Ne leonum laudibus murem obruas. Mouse with the Lions praises.

Verse 23. If I have spoken evil.] Christ bears with the Officers insolency, but forbears not to clear his own innocency. We must, when aspersed, labour as the eclipsed Moon, by keeping our motion, to wade out of the shaddow, and recover our former splendor.

Verse 24. Bound to Caiphas the high-Priest] Who should have done our Saviour better justice, then to have suffered him bound and uncondemned, to be injuriously beaten before his face. But the times were then lawless & licentious for the sins of the people. Tales sunt principum mores, quales subditorum humores, ut malo nodo non desit malus cuneus.

Verse 25. He denied it, and said, I am not.] Take heed by this example, Patres nos instruunt tum docentes, tum labentes, saith Augustin. Seest thou such as Peter to make

Act. & Mon. fol. 1904. shipwrack? Look well to thy tackling. They that will not profess Christ (unless they repent with Peter, which Stephen Gardiner said at his death, that he could not) shall be sorted with such in participation of plagues, as through excess of pain, and defect of patience, gnaw their own tongues, Rev. 16. 10.

Verse 26. Whose ear Peter cut off.] A great mercy it was, that Peter had not been then hewed in an hundred pieces, by the ruffianly souldiers. But God had designed him to a further service. My times are in thy hand, saith David. They were deceived, that swore to kill Paul by such an hour, Act. 23. 12.

Verse 27. Peter then denied again.] He that is fallen down one round of hells ladder, knows not where he shall stop or stay, till he come to the bottom. Sin is of an encroaching nature, modest, and maidenly at first; but yield to it once, and there is no ho with it.

Digitized by Google

The

The cock crew.] And withall Christ looked back upon him, as a piece of his suffering, with ὑπὸ τύχον Πέτρε, what thou my friend, Peter? Scipio had rather Annibal should eat his heart with salt, then Lælius give him a cross word.

Verse 28. Lest they should be defiled.] Putid hypocrisie! they stand upon legal defilements, and care not to defile their consciences with innocent blood. What is this, but to strain at a gnat, and swallow a Camel? So Saul seemed to make an hainous matter of eating the flesh with the blood, 1 Sam. 14. 33. when it was nothing with him to spill the blood of innocent Jonathan. Nay, he was so scrupulous, that he would not so much as name a guilty man, or sinner but in casting of lots, instead of saying, shew the nocent or guilty, he said shew the innocent or upright person, as Tremellius reads it; yet at the same time (as is well observed) he made no conscience of bloody oaths. So Doeg was detained before the Lord, either because it was the Sabbath, or his vow was not finished, &c. But when he went thence, he became deaths-man to the Lords Priests. τὸν ἀιδ ςιεντα πεφαμμενον.

Verse 29. Pilate then went out unto them.] It was much he would gratifie them so far in their stand further off, for I am holier then thou; that ye would yield to their superstition, which he could not but contemn. But the very Turk, so the Christians pay him his yearly tribute (which is one fourth part of their encrease, and a Sultan for every poll) permitteth them the liberty of their religion. Breer. Enquir. p. 68.

Verse 30. If he were not a malefactour] Why? What evil had he done them? Might he not have said to them as Themistocles to his Athenians? Are ye weary of receiving so many benefits by one man?

Verse 31. It is not lawful for us.], That is, upon this or any such like day, upon an holy-day, or holy-day-Eve. Or otherwise they had power, or at least took it at their pleasure; as when they stoned Stephen Acts 7. and would have killed Paul, Acts 24. But note, that they would seem to do all according to Law by any means; so would their successors, the Catholikes. Which, if it be so (saith Mr. Fox) how did they then to Ann Askew, whom they first condemned to death, and then set her on the rack? By what Law did they call up Master Hooper, and imprison him for the Queens debt (when the Queen in very deed did ow him fourscore pound) and kept him a year and an half in prison, and gave him never a penny? By what Law did Bishop Bonner condemn and burn Richard Makins, a lad of fifteen years, when the first Jury had quit him, and at the stake he revoked all heresie, and praised the said Bonner to be a good man: and also having him in prison, would not suffer his father and mother to come to him, to comfort their own child? What Law had they to put Mr. Rogers our Protomartyr in prison, when he did neither preach nor read lecture, after the time of the Queens inhibition? And when they had kept him in his own house half a year, being not deprived of any living, yet would not let him have one half penny of his own means to relieve him, his wife and eleven children? By what Law was Thomas Tompkins hand burned, and after his body consumed to ashes? What good Law or honesty was there to burn the three poor women at Garnesie, with the infant-child falling out of the mothers womb, when as they all before recanted their words & opinions, & were never abjured before. So, what right or order of Law did Stephen Gardiner follow in troubling and imprisoning Judge Hales, when he had done nothing neither against Gods Law or mans, proceeding in order of Law against certain presumptuous persons, which, both before the Law, and against the Law then in force, took upon them to say their Mass? Act. & Mon. fol. 1392.

Verse 32. Signifying what death he should die] This shews that the Jews had power to put to death, but by a providence he was brought to Pilate, that according to the manner of the Romans he might be crucified: that kind of death being not, otherwise, in use among the Jews. Hence our Lord is said to have been crucified at Rome, Rev. 11. 8.

Verse 33. Entred into the judgement-hall again.] For without, among the people, there was nothing but clamour, and confusion: much like to that regnum Cyclopum, ubi ἀρὴς ἀρὴν ἀρὸς ἀκεῖ. Pilate therefore retires himself into the Palace, that he might more sedately set himself to sift the business.

Verse 34. Sayest thou this of thy self,] As who should say; If thou dost this of thy self, what reason is it that thou shouldst be both Judge and witness? if others have done it, why are not mine accusers brought face to face? If to be accused be enough to make a man guilty, none shall be innocent. Judges are to proceed secundum allegata & probata.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 35. Am I a Jew?] This he asketh in ſcorn of that Nation; hateful among the Heathens for their difference from them in Religion. Caius the Emperor caſt them out with their Oratour Philo, who came to make Apology for them againſt Apion of Alexandria, their adverſary and accuſer. Strabo of meer ſpite, ſaith, that Judea is a dry and barren Countrey, when the Scripture calleth it a Land flowing with milk and honey, plenty and dainty; and Tacitus cannot but grant as much. Florus calleth the Temple at Jeruſalem, impiæ gentis arcanum, a Sanctuary for rogues, as the Papiſts ſay of Geneva. Seneca jeers them for caſting away the ſeventh part of their time upon a weekly Sabbath. Juvenal plays upon their circumciſion. Plutarch tels a long Story of their Feaſt of Tabernacles, which ſaith he, they keep in honour of Bacchus. Tacitus ſaith, they were called Aſinarii, becauſe they worſhipped the golden head of an Aſs, &c. No wonder though profane Pilate diſdain to be held a Jew, when they were thus traduced.

Stab. Geog. Heyl. Geog. Aug de civ. Dei Lib. συμπω. cap. 5. Tacit. Annal. l. 21.

Verſe 36. My Kingdom is not of this world.] Chriſt could not be received as a God into the Pantheon at Rome, for that he wanted worſhippers, preached poverty, and choſe mean men for his Diſciples. Domitian the Emperor, after he had baniſhed John into Pathmos, and Domicillia Flavia his own ſiſters daughter, with many more, into Pontus, and put divers to death for that they were Chriſtians, he commanded all ſuch Jews as he could finde, to be put to death that were of the ſtock of David. Amongſt whom, meeting with ſome Chriſtians alſo, that were allied to Chriſt, and underſtanding that they were poor harmleſs people, he diſmiſſed them, and by Proclamation forbad any more to be martyred.

Euſeb. l. 3. 20.

Verſe 37. That I ſhould bear witneſs of the truth.] Our Saviour ſpeaketh religiouſly to a profane perſon: So doth Iacob to Eſau. Each Countrey-man is known by his language. God will turn to all his people a pure lip, Zeph. 3. 9 They are none of his, that can ſhift their ſails to the ſitting of every winde, tune their fiddles to other mens baſe, and, as the Planet Mercury, be good in conjunction with good, and bad with bad.

Gen. 33. 5.

Verſe 38. What is truth?] In a ſcornful profane manner. As indeed profane ſpirits cannot hear ſavoury words, but they turn them off with a ſcorn. What is truth? Faſtidientis atque irridentis vox, non interrogantis, ſaith Beza. Some think it is vox admirantis: As if Pilate wondered at Chriſt, that when his life was in queſtion, he ſhould talk of truth, q. d. Your life is in danger, and talk you of truth? Polititians think Religion niceneſs. However it was, or with what minde ſoever, out he goes, and ſtaies not an anſwer: As Saul bade the Prieſt bring to him the Ark, but, ere that could be done, draws forth his Army, 1 Sam. 14.

Verſe 39. But ye have a cuſtome] An ungain, ungodly cuſtome it was, Prov. 17. 15. What ever were the ground of it. Some think it was in memory of Jonathan, reſcued from his father by the people. Others, that the Feaſt might be celebrated with the greater joy and gladneſs. Others, more probably, in remembrance of their deliverance from the Ægyptian bondage. But why ſhould any Barabbas ſcape by it? A bloody man ſhall flee to the pit, and no man may ſtay him.

In iſta conſuetudine turpe & craſſum fuit vitium. Calv. Godw. Antiq. Heb. p. 139. Prov. 28. 97.

Verſe 40. Now Barabbas was a robber] And a murtherer too, Act. 3. 14. yet preferred before Chriſt, who was alſo crucified in the midſt of two thieves, as the worſt of the three. Thus he was peccatorum maximus, both by imputation, for he bore our ſins, which were all made to meet upon him, Iſa. 53. 6. and by reputation, for he was numbred with the tranſgreſſors, ver. 12. and made his grave with the wicked, verſ. 9.

Chap. XIX.

Verſe 1. Took Jeſus and ſcourged him.]

SO God ſcourgeth every ſon whom he receiveth, Heb. 12. 6. One ſon he had that was ſine corruptione & flagitio, but none that was ſine correptione & flagello. In him therefore that rule held not, Flagitium & flagellum, ſicut acus & filum, Puniſhment follows ſin, as the thred follows the needle.

Ακωθὴ videtur ortum à voce ἀκὴ, cuſpis, acies, mucro. Paſor.

Verſe 2. And the ſouldiers platted a crown of thorns] Prickly and ſharp as the point of a ſword (ſo the word ſignifieth) And our Saviour being of the fineſt conſtitution, muſt must needs be extreme ſenſible. The ſouldiers did this (it's thought) by the command of Pilate, to give content to the Iews, and to move them thereby (if it might be) either to contemn him, or commiſerate him. But nothing would do but his death; theſe blood-hounds would not otherways be ſatisfied. Godfrey of Bullen, firſt King of Hieruſalem, refuſed to be crowned with a crown of gold, ſaying that it became not a Chriſtian there to wear a crown of gold, where Chriſt, for our ſalvation had ſometime worn a crown of thorns. Some report, that he would not be otherwiſe crowned, then with a crown of thorns, as he kneeled at our Saviours ſepulchre: To teſtifie (perhaps) that he did dedicate his head and life to Chriſt crucified, and deſpiſed not for his ſake a crown of thorns here, ſo he might wear a crown of glory with him in Heaven. Canutus, for like purpoſe, ſet his Crown upon the Crucifix. It is not fit, ſith the head was crowned with thorns, that the members ſhould be crowned with roſe buds, ſaith Zanchius.

Digitized by Google

Turk hiſt. f. 24.

Tradunt Coronã ſpineam ei eſſe impoſitam flexis genibus ad ſepulchrum Dominicum procumbenti, &c. Buchol. cer. ἐν τῷ ἁγίῳ τάφῳ.

Verſe 3. And ſaid, Hail, King of the Iews] They ſcoff at him, as a ridiculous and ſtage-play-King, whom therefore they clothed with purple, which was a colour affected by the Emperors and Nobility of Rome: as Herod, for like cauſe clothed him in white, a colour much worn by the Nobility of the Jews, Jam. 2. 2.

And they ſmote him with their hands.] So do hypocrites ſtill by their unchriſtian practice, when they bend the knee to Chriſt with ludibrious devotion. They have the voice of Iacob, but the hands of Eſau. Their words are Gods, theirs deeds the devils, as John Capocius told Pope Innocent the Third, preaching peace, and ſowing diſcord.

Verba tua Dei plane ſunt, facta vero diaboli videantur.

Verſe 4. That ye may know that I find no fault] But why did he not then deliver him out of their hands? Puſillanimity and popularity would not ſuffer him: but howſoever he ſhall give teſtimony to his innocency. So when Doctor Weſton was gone from Mr. Bradford Martyr, (with whom he had had conference) the Keeper told Bradford that the Doctor ſpake openly that he ſaw no cauſe why they ſhould burn him. This Weſton being Prolocutor in the Divinity Schools at Oxford, when Cranmer was brought forth to diſpute, thus began the diſputation, Conveniſtis hodiè, fratres, profligaturi deteſtandam illam hæreſin de veritate corporis Chriſti in Sacramento, &c. At which, divers learned men burſt out into a great laughter, as though even in the entrance of the diſputation he had bewrayed himſelf and his Religion. God will have ſuch words fall ſometimes from the mouths of perſecutors, either wittingly, or by miſtake, as ſhall one day riſe up in judgement, and out of their own mouths condemn them.

Act. & Mon. fol. 1469.

Ibid. 1300.

Verſe 5. Pilate ſaith, Behold the man.] Q. d. If ye be men, take pity upon a man ſo miſerably miſuſed: and if ye be good men, let him go that is innocent. But theſe monſters, like thoſe beaſts at Epheſus, had put off man-hood: And for good men amongſt them, it fared with Pilate, pleading for Chriſt, as it did with him at Nola in the ſtory, who, when he was commanded by the Romane Cenſor to go and call the good men of the City to appear before him, went to the Church-yards, and there called at the graves of the dead, O ye good men of Nola, come away, for the Romane Cenſor cals for your appearance: for he knew not where to call for a good man alive.

Anto. di Guevara in Retor. de les princip. l. 1. c. 1.

Verſe 6. Crucifie him, crucifie him] So afterwards the primitive perſecutors cryed out, Ad beſtias, ad beſtias, Chriſtianos ad leones, imputing the cauſe of all publike calamities to them, as Tertullian teſtifieth. So they cryed out at Geneva againſt Farellus, when the Biſhop firſt convented him, In Rhodanum, in Rhodanum, as the Papiſts ſtill cry out againſt the Profeſſours of the truth, ad ignem, ad ignem, to the fire with them, to the fire with them. Indeed in the form and ſtile of their own ſentence condemnatory, they pretend a petition to the ſecular power, In viſceribus Ieſu Chriſti ut rigor juris mitigetur, atque ut parcatur vitæ: So they will ſeem outwardly to be lambs, but inwardly they are ravening wolves: witneſs that Chancellor of Saliſbury D. Ieffery, who was not only contented to give ſentence againſt certain Martyrs, but alſo hunted after the High Sheriff, not ſuffering him to ſpare them, though he would. So Harpsfield Archdeacon of Canterbury, being at London, when Queen Mary lay a dying, made all Poſthaſte home, to diſpatch thoſe ſix, whom he had then in his cruel cuſtody: and thoſe were the laſt that ſuffered for Religion in Queen Maries raign.

Tertul. Apol. cap. 40. Tollantur ſacrilegi, tollantur.

Act. & Mon. fol. 1804. Ibid. 1862.

I finde no fault in him] No wonder! For he was (as Peter ſaith) A lamb without blemiſh (of original ſin) and without ſpot (of actual ſin.) Neither was it without a ſweet providence of God that he ſhould be ſo often abſolved from the deſert of death, that thereby we might eſcape the manifold deaths that we had ſo well deſerved.

1 Pet. 1, 18.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verse 7. The Iews answered him, &c.] When they saw that the treason they laid to his charge would not do the deed, they accuse him of blasphemy another while, that by some means or other they might take away his life. Thou, and such as thou (said Bonner to Thomas Brown, Martyr, report I seek your blood: To whom he answered, Yea my Lord, indeed ye be a blood-sucker; and I would had as much blood as is water in the sea, for you to suck. Another unknown good woman, told this Bishop in a letter, That he had such store of Christs Lambs already in his Butchers stall, that he was not able to drink all their blood, lest he should break his belly, and therefore he let them lie still, and die for hunger. My Lord (said M. Saunders to Bonner) you seek my blood, and you shall have it: I pray God you may be so baptized in it, that you may hereafter loath blood-sucking, and become a better man.

Act & Mon. fol 1685

Ibid. 1672.

Ibid. 1358.

Verse 8. He was the more afraid,] Christs innocence did before triumph in Pilates conscience. But now, that he hears that he made himself the Son of God, he was in a mighty maze, He was afraid, saith the text, of lifting up his hand against God. The greatest men, if not utterly debauched and satanized, cannot but quake at the apprehension of God, and as the worms, when it thunders wriggle into the corners of the earth. Caligula (that dared his Jove to a duel with that Hemistich. in Homer, ὴ ἐμὲ πάϊε, ἢ ἐγὼ σέ, Either kill me, or I will kill thee) when it thundered, covered his eyes with his cap, running under the bed or any bench-hole.

Sueton. in Calig.

Verse 9. Whence art thou?] He questioneth not Christ of his countrey, but of his condition, q. d. Art thou a man, or a God? Such a dunghill Deity he meant, as the Heathens worshipped: And therefore our Saviour would not once answer him. Especially since if he should have asserted his Deity, Pilate likely would have acquitted and dismissed him; whereas Christ knew that he was now, and here to be condemned. There are that think that Pilates wives dream was from the Devil, who sought thereby to have hindered the work of our redemption, which could not be wrought but by the death of Christ.

Verse 10. Speakest thou not unto me] No, and yet S. Paul saith, he witnessed a good confession before Pontius Pilate, because he had said sufficient before, and was now ready to seal up the truth with his blood. But to be delivered he would not once open his mouth to Pilate. So M. Saunders had so wholly devoted himself to the defence of Christs cause, that he forbad his wife to sue for his delivery: and when other of his friends had by suit almost obtained it, he discouraged them, so that they did not follow their sute. I pray you let me make labour for you, said one Creswell to Master Bradford. You may do what you will, said Bradford. But tell me what sute I shall make for you, quoth Creswel. Forsooth said the other, that you will do, do it not at my request; for I desire nothing at your hands. If the Queen will give me life, I will thank her; if she will banish me, I will thank her: if she will burn me, I will thank her; if she will condemn me to perpetual imprisonment, I will thank her. Life in Gods displeasure is worse then death: and death in his true fear, is true life.

1 Tim. 6. 13.

Act. & Mon. fol. 1359.

Ibid. 1467.

I have power to crucifie thee] To crucifie an innocent man? Who gave him that power? But profane persons bear themselves over-bold upon their power, as if they were little Gods within themselves. So Cæsar told Metellus he could as easily destroy him as bid it be done. So Caligula speaking to the Consuls, I laugh, said he, to think that I can kill you with a nod of my head, and that this fair throat of my wives shall be presently cut if I but speak the word.

Rideo quod uno nutu meo jugulare vos possim, & uxori tam bona cervix, si mihi ac jussero, demetur.

Verse 11. Except it were given thee from above.] Therefore be good in thine office, lest thou give a dear account to him that is higher then the highest, as Solomon hath it: who therefore cals the judgement seat, the holy place, Eccles. 8. 10. Pilate was afterwards kickt off the bench by Caius, for his perverting of justice, and, for grief and shame became his own death-man.

Verse 12. But the Jews cried out saying, &c.] They return again to their former accusation, and enforce it. One way or other they are bent to have his blood. In K. Edward the Sixths daies, when the Duke of Sommerset was cleared of the treason laid to his charge, yet he must suffer (so his potent enemies would have it) for I know not what slight suspitions of felony. At which time also, Sr Thomas Arundel was, among others, with some difficulty condemned. Unhappy man (saith the Historian) who found the doing of any thing, or of nothing, dangerous alike.

Sir Joh. Heyw. life of Edw. 6. p. 143.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 13. When Pilate therefore heard that ſaying] That ſaying, and the baſe fear of being ſhent by Cæſar makes him warp and go againſt his conſcience. But ſhould not Judges be men of courage? Should not the ſtandard be of ſteel? the chief poſts in the houſe be heart of Oak? Solomons tribunal was underpropt with Lions, to ſhew what metal a Magiſtrate ſhould be made of. It is a Mercy to have judges, Modò audeant quæ ſentiunt, ſaith the Oratour, ſo they dare do their conſciences. Cic. pro Milo.

Verſe 14. Behold your King.] Q. d. A likely matter that this poor man ſhould affect the Kingdom; and not rather that he is like to loſe his life, by forged cavillation. Chriſt himſelf was miſreported and falſely accuſed (ſaith father Latymer) both as touching his words and meaning alſo, &c. Core and his complices object to the meekeſt of men with one breath, pride, ambition uſurpation of authority, Invenies apud Tacitum frequentatas accuſationes majeſtatis: unicum crimen eorum qui crimine vacabant. Act. & Mon. fol. 1590. Lipſ. in Tacit.

Verſe 15. We have no King but Cæſar.] Why but, Is there no King in Sion? is her Counſellor periſhed? ſaith the Prophet, Mica. 4. 9. Did not theſe men look for a Meſſiah? Or if not, will they reject the Lord from being their King? Oh how blind is malice, how deſperately ſet upon its ends and enterprizes! But in Chriſts kingdom this is wonderful, ſaith Zanchius, that this King willeth and cauſeth that the Kingdoms of the world be ſubject to his Kingdom: and again he willeth and cauſeth that his Kingdom be alſo ſubject to the kingdoms of the world. In regno Chriſti hoc mirabile eſt, quod iſte rex vult & efficit, &c. Zanch. Miſcel.

Verſe 16. Then delivered he him, &c.] Overcome by their importunity, and over-awed by the fear of Cæſar to condemn the innocent. It was Cato's complaint, that private mens thieves are laid by the heels, and in cold irons; but theſe publike thieves that wrong and rob the Common-wealth ſit in ſcarlet, with gold chains about their necks. Siniſterity is an enemy to ſincerity. All ſelf-reſpects and corrupt ends muſt be laid aſide by men in authority and juſtice, as Moſes ſpeaks, that is, pure juſtice without mud muſt run down, Deut. 16. 20. Dureſcite, dureſcite, ſaid the Smith to the Duke, that durſt not do juſtice. Privatorum fures in nervo & compedibus vitam agunt: publici in auro & purpura viſuntur. Cato ap. Gell. 11. c. 18.

Verſe 17. And he, bearing his croſs, &c.] This was the Roman faſhion (as Plutarch relates it) that every condemned perſon ſhould bear that Croſs, that anon ſhould bear him. Hence grew that expreſſion of our Saviour, He that will be my Diſciple, muſt take up his Croſs, and ſo fill up that which is behind, Col. 1. 24. τὸ σῶμα τῆς κολαζομένων ἕκας & ἐκφέρει ὁ ἑαυτὸν σταυρόν. Plut.

Into a place called the place of a ſkull.] Where his tender heart was pierced with grief, no doubt, at the ſad ſight of ſuch a ſlaughter of men made by ſin: like as it could not but be a ſore cut and corroſive to Mauritius, to ſee his wife and children ſlain before him, when himſelf was alſo to be next ſtewed in his own broth. St. John is exact in ſetting down our Saviours ſufferings, and this for one.

Verſe 18. Where they crucified him,] An ignominious, accurſed, and dolorous death: for he was nailed to the tree in the hands and feet, which are the moſt ſenſible parts, as fulleſt of ſinews; and therefore (in ſo fine a body, as his eſpecially) of moſt exquiſite ſenſe. Look wiſhly upon ſin in this glaſs, and love it if thou canſt. For our ſins were the nails, and our ſelves the Traitors, that faſtened him to the tree. Pilate and his ſouldiers, Judas and the Iews were all ſet awork by us. Learn to lay the blame on thy ſelf, and ſay, It was my gluttony that reached a cup of gall and vineger to his mouth; mine incontinency that provided ſtripes or his back; mine arrogancy that platted a crown of thorns upon his head; mine inconſtancy that put a reed into his hand; my treachery that nailed his hands and feet; my vanity that grieved his ſoul to the death; my ſelf-love that thruſt a ſpear into his ſide, &c. Adſum ego qui feci. Virgil.

Verſe 19. Jeſus of Nazareth, &c.] To perſwade the people to bow ſuperſtitiouſly at the Name of Ieſus. Papiſts commonly (but ridiculouſly) teach in their Pulpits, that Chriſt himſelf on the Croſs bowed his head on the right ſide, to reverence his own name, which was written over it; as Sir Edwin Sands relates from his own experience. Europ. Spec.

Verſe 20. In Hebrew Greek and Latine.] In Hebrew, for the Iews who gloried in the Law: in Greek, for the Grecians who gloried in wiſdom: in Latine, for the Romans who moſt gloried in Dominion and power. As if Pilate ſhould have ſaid, this is the King of all Religion, having reference to the Hebrews; of all wiſdom, to the Greeks: of all power, to the Romans. The holy Ghoſt would alſo hereby commend unto us the dignity and ſtudy of theſe three languages, to be retained for ever in the Church of Chriſt.

Digitized by Google

Verse 21. Write not of the King of the Iews.] They would needs be mending Magnificat, as they say; and this, of pure spite, that the disgrace might rest only upon Christ, and not at all reflect upon their Nation. Whereas in truth, nothing so enobleth, as any the least relation to Christ. Bethlehem, where he was born, is, though the least, yet therefore, not the least among the Cities of Iudah. Among those that were marked, Revel. 7. Iudah is reckoned first, of all the Tribes by Leah's side, because our Lord sprang out of Iudah: and Nepthali is named first among those that came by Rachels side, because at Capernaum (in that Tribe) Christ dwelt: which therefore also is said to be lifted up to heaven, Mat. 11. Ut utrobique supereminеat Christi prærogativa.

Mat. 2. Mic. 5.

Verse 22. What I have written, I have written] i. e. I am unchangeably resolved it shall stand. So God saith, I am that I am; that is, I am yesterday, and to day, and the same for ever. Learn we may of Pilate to be constant to a good cause. Marcellus the Pope would not change his name, according to the custom, to shew his immutability, that he was no changeling Non retractat homo profanus quod vere licet sine mente & consilio de Christo scripsit. Cal.

Verse 23. Took his garments.] Christ, as Elias, being now to ascend into heaven, did willingly let go his garments: and the rather, that he might cloath us with his righteousness. Let us suffer with ov the spoyling of our goods, as knowing in our selves (not only by books or relation of others) that we have in heaven a better and more enduring substance. But what a wise fool was Sir Thomas Moor, who being brought to the Tower, a malefactour; and one of the Officers demanding his upper garment for a fee, meaning his gown, he said he should have it; and took him his cap, saying, it was the uppermost garment that he had? So, when he was to be beheaded, he said to the hangman, I pray you let me lay my beard over the block, lest you should cut it. He thought it no glory, unless he might die with a mock in his mouth. These be the worlds wizzards.

Heb. 10. 32.

Act. & Mon. fol. 970.

Inexpiabilis discordiæ macula martyrii sanguine ablui & passione purgari non potest. Cypr. de unit. eccles. Chrysost. Hom. 11. ad Ephes. Oecol. ad fratres in Suevia.

Now the Coat was without seam.] Christi tunica est unica: They that rent it by schisms, are worse then the rude souldiers. There can be no greater sin committed, saith Cyprian, then to break the unity of the Church: Yea, though one should suffer martyrdom, yet cannot he expiate thereby his sin of discord. This, saith Chrysostom, is a bold, but a true speech of Cyprian. And like to this, is that of Oecolompadius to the Lutherans in Swethland; Our error may be pardoned, so that Christ by faith be apprehended, Discordiam, neque si sanguinem fundamus, expiabimus, but the blot of our discord we cannot wash off with our heart-blood.

Verse 24. That the Scripture might be fulfilled.] So exactly is the old Testament fulfilled in the New: The testimonies whereof are cited not only by way of accommodation, but because they are the proper meaning of the places. The souldiers could not cast the dice upon our Saviours garments, but it was foretold. This shews that our Redemption by Christ, is no imposture, but a plot of Gods own contriving. Let this settle us against all doubtings.

Act. 18. 18. Rom. 16. 3. 2 Tim. 4. 19 Act. 16. 13.

Verse 25. Now there stood by the Cross, &c.] The men were fled, the women stood to it. Souls have no Sexes. Manoah's wife was the more manly of the two. Priscilla is sometimes set before Aquila. When S. Paul came first to Philippi, he had none that would hear him, but a few women.

Act. & Mon.

Verse 26. When Iesus therefore saw his mother.] In the midst of his miseries he thinks of his mother, and takes care for her wel-doing after his decease. Doctor Tailor the Martyr, among other things he said to his son at his death, laid this charge upon him: When thy mother is waxed old, forsake her not, but provide for her to thy power, and that she lack nothing: for so will God bless thee, and give thee long life upon earth and prosperity. The Athenians punished such with death, as nourished not their aged Parents. And S. Paul saith, that to requite parents is good and acceptable before God, 1 Tim. 5. 4.

καλὸν, sc. coram hominibus. Scult.

Verse 27. The Disciple took her, &c.] A precious depositum; the house was the better she abode in: yet dare we not deifie her, as the Papists: as neither will we vilifie her, as the Author of the Female Glory basely slanders some of us, that we rudely call her Mall, Gods maid. Os durum! Our Parents, saith the Heathen, are our Houshold Gods. Honour them we must both in word and deed. That our Saviour here cals her Woman, and not Mother, was either because he would not add to her grief, who was now

Θεοὶ ἑφέστιοι. Hierocles. Luke 2. 35.

Digitized by Google

peirced

pierced to the ſoul with that ſword Simeon ſpake of; or, leſt he ſhould create her further trouble, if ſhe had been known to be his mother; or, for that, being now in his laſt work, and ready way to heaven, he knew none after the fleſh. Thomas Wats, Martyr, ſpake thus at his death to his wife and ſix children. Wife; and my good children; I muſt now depart from you: therefore henceforth, know I you no more, &c. But whereas Chriſt commends the care of his mother to his beloved Diſciple, with, Behold thy mother, the Samians uſed the like ſpeech, when to the richer of the Citizens, the mothers of thoſe who died in the wars, were given to be maintained by them.

2 Cor. 5. Act. & Mon. fol. 1450.

Σὶ τὸν τὴν δίδωμι τὸν μητέρα.

Verſe 28. That the Scripture might be fulfilled.] it is a high point of heavenly wiſdom to do our ordinary buſineſs in obedience to Gods command, and with an aim at his glory; to go about our earthly affairs with heavenly mindes, and in ſerving men to ſerve God to taſt God in the creature, and whether we eat or drink, or what ever elſe we do to ſet up God. Every action is a ſtep, either to heaven or hell. The poor ſervant in being faithful to his Maſter, ſerves the Lord Chriſt, Col. 4. who was more careful here of fulfilling the Scripture, and working out our ſalvation, then of ſatisfying his own moſt vehement thirſt.

1 Cor. 10. 31.

Verſe 29. Now there was ſet a veſſel full of vinegar.] Cold comfort: they uſed to give others wine to comfort them: according to Prov. 31. 6. and mingled myrrhe with the wine, that might attenuate their blood, and ſo help to diſpatch them: as alſo to cauſe a giddineſs in them, that they might be the leſs ſenſible of their pain. But they dealt much worſe with our Saviour, mingling for him, in mockery, vinegar and gall, to add to his other miſery. This he drank that we might drink of the heavenly Nepenthes, that torrent of pleaſure, Pſal. 16.

Granum thuris in calice vini.

They might go no further on the preparation day, then three parſæ, i.e. twelve miles, leſt coming home too late, they might not have leiſure to prepare. Buxt. Synagog. Iudaica.

Verſe 30. It is finiſhed.] Chriſt would not off the Croſs till all were done, that was here to be done: that which remained being rather a play then a work to him. The conſideration whereof ſhould caſt us into a real extaſie of joy and admiration nothing like that counterfeit extaſie, whereinto Rondeletius ſaw a Prieſt at Rome to fain himſelf to fall whenever he heard thoſe words of Chriſt, Conſummatum eſt, it is finiſhed. But the Phyſitian, obſerving this Counterfeit careful in his fall to lay his head in a ſoft place, he ſuſpected the diſſimulation: and by the threats of a cudgel quickly recovered him.

In Meth. curandi, cap. de catal. p. 98.

Verſe 31. Becauſe it was the Preparation.] Their preparation to the Sabbath began at three of the clock in the afternoon. The beſt and wealthieſt of them, even thoſe that had many ſervants, did with their own hands further the preparation: ſo that ſometimes the Maſters themſelves would chop herbs, ſweep the houſe, cleave wood, kindle the fire &c. Our Anceſtors alſo were wont to give over work on the Saturday, when it rang to even ſong. And uſually as men meaſure to God in preparation, he remeaſureth to them in bleſſing. K. Edgar ordained, that Sunday ſhould be ſolemnized in this Land from Saturday nine of the clock, till Munday morning. The Iews before their preparation had their fore-preparation: And before their Sabbath, their fore-ſabbath, their ſabbatulum ante ſabbatum. Thoſe of Tiberias began the Sabbath ſooner then others: thoſe at Tſepphore continued it longer, adding De profano ad ſacrum. We are now ſo far from this that we trench upon the holy time & ſay, When will the Sabbath be over? yea in too many places Gods ſacred Sabbath is made the voider and dunghill for all refuſe-buſineſſes: As by others, it is made as Bacchus his Orgies, with Ales, May-games, &c. So that it ſhould be named according to theſe mens obſerving of it, Damoniacus potius quam Dominicus, as Alſted hath it.

Act. & Mon. παρασκευὴ Mat. 27. 62. προσάββατον. Mark 15. 42. Ante ſabbathū Vetus eccleſia vigiliam vocabat. Buxtorf. Alſted. Encycloped.

Verſe 32. Brake the legs of the firſt.] The good thief alſo had his legs broke, and his life taken away: though by his repentance he made his croſs a Iacobs ladder, whereby Angels deſcended to fetch up his ſoul.

Verſe 33. And ſaw that he was dead already.] He took his own time to die: and therefore, ver. 31. it is ſaid. That he bowed his head, and gave up the Ghoſt; whereas other men bow not the head, till they have given up the ghoſt. He alſo cried with a loud voice and died, which ſhews that he wanted not ſtrength of nature, to have lived longer, if he had liſted.

Verſe 34. But one of the ſouldiers with a ſpear.] What an odd conceit is that of the Papiſts, that from the Greek word, λόγχη, have made this ſoldiers name Longinus? and to make up the tale, they tell the people, that whereas before he had been blind, by Notetur turpis Pontificiorum lapſus in Longino, & inſcitia Græcæ linguæ. Carew.

Digitized by Google

the anointing of his eyes with the watery blood that came out of Chriſts ſide, he received his ſight, became a Chriſtian, a Martyr, a canonized Saint, and that his reliques were afterwards worſhipped. The lance and nails that tormented Chriſt were graced with an holy day by Pope Innocent the ſixth, and this Elogy, Ave ferrum triumphale, Intrans pectus tu vitale Cœli pandis oſtia, &c.

In Deorum numerum relatus ut de Franciſ. Bembus. Hiſt. Ven.

There came out blood and water.] The pericardium being pierced, which nature hath filled with water to cool the heat of the heart. Hereto S. John alludes, when he ſaith, that Chriſt came by water and blood, to teach us, that he juſtifieth none by his merit, but when he ſanctifieth by his Spirit. Poſſumus etiam hinc aſſeverare ex latere Chriſti fluxiſſe noſtra ſacramenta, ſaith Calvin, We may ſafely ſay that our Sacraments iſſued out of Chriſts ſide.

1 John 5. 6.

Verſe 35. And he that ſaw it, &c.] Nothing ſo ſure as ſight. One eye-witneſs is more then ten ear-witneſſes. It is probable that the Apoſtles that were ſo converſant with our Saviour, had their Day-books, wherein they recorded his daily Oracles, and other occurrences, and out of which they compiled the Goſpels.

Plus valet oculatus teſtis unus quam auriti decem. Ex quibus poſtica Hiſtoria Evangelica eſt contexta. Scult. Annal. ep dicat.

His record is true] The Goſpel is called the Teſtimony, Iſa. 8. 20. becauſe it beareth witneſs to it ſelf. The Law is called light (Lex, Lux) becauſe by it ſelf it is ſeen to be of God, as the Sun is ſeen by its own light.

Verſe 36. Not a bone of him was broken.] So he appeared to be the true Paſchal Lamb, that was roaſted whole in the fire of his Fathers wrath, to deliver us from the wrath to come. The ſouldiers could not break his legs, becauſe God had otherwiſe ordered it. Voluntas Dei, neceſſitas rei.

Verſe 37. They ſhall look upon him] This is not a threat, but a promiſe, Zech 12. 10. fulfilled Act. 2. 37. when Peters hearers felt the nails, wherewith they had crucified Chriſt, ſticking faſt in their own hearts, and piercing them with horror.

κατάνυξις.

Verſe 38. A Diſciple of Jeſus, but ſecretly for fear.] A Diſciple he was, though a daſtard. Infirmities, if diſclaimed, diſcard us not. Uzziah ceaſed not to be a King, when he began to be a leper. Jehoſhuah the high-Prieſt, though ill-clothed, yet ſtood before the Angel; Chriſt did not abhor his preſence, nor reject his ſervice. The Church calleth her ſelf black, Cant. 1. 5. but Chriſt cals her fair, &c. In Peace-offerings they might offer leavened bread, to ſhew that God will bear with his peoples infirmities.

Zech. 3. 2.

Verſe 39. And there came alſo Nicodemus.] Another night-bird; a chieftain in the Eccleſiaſtical State, as Joſeph of Arimathea (or Ramath, Samuels country) was in the Civil. The faith of theſe two now breaks out, though it had long lain hid, as the Sun under a cloud, as ſeed under a clod: now they manifeſt their love to Chriſt, ſo cruelly handled; as the true mother did hers to her child, when it was to be cut in two.

Verſe 40. With the ſpices, as the manner of the Jews] To teſtifie their hope of a reſurrection. In an Apiſh imitation of whom, the Gentiles alſo, though they had no ſuch hope, kept a great ſtir, and made much ado about the decent burial of their dead. Habent & veſpæ favos, & ſimiæ imitantur homines, ſaith Cyprian.

ἵνα μὴ συκοφαντῶσιν οἱ ἀναστάσεως ἀντίδικοι. Theod.

Verſe 41. A new ſepulchre.] Fit for him that was the firſt-born from the dead, the firſt-fruits of them that ſleep. Beſides elſe it might have been ſaid, that ſome other had riſen, and not he, (ſaith Theodoret) as Mahomet ſaith, that Chriſt was not crucified, but another for him.

Verſe 42. Becauſe of the Jews.] That they might not do ſervile work on the Sabbath, though it were to inter Chriſts body. See Luke 23. 56.

Chap. XX.

Verſe 1. The firſt day of the Week.]

NOw the Chriſtian Sabbath in honour of Chriſts reſurrection, and therefore called The Lords day, Rev. 1. 10. as the holy Supper is called The Lords Supper, 1 Cor. 10. as the Saints are called κυριακὴ Kirk, Church. The title of the 24 Pſalm is, A Pſalm of David. To this the Greek addeth, Of the firſt day of the week, meaning that this Pſalm was wont to be ſung in the Temple every firſt day of the week, which now is the Chriſti-ans

Digitized by Google

ans Sabbaah; and of Christ, his Church and Kingdom, and the entertaining of his Gospel doth this Psalm intreat. Let every one of us keep Sabbath, saith Ignatius, in a spiritual maner, rejoycing in the meditation of the law, not in the rest of the body. And in those Primitive times when the Question was asked, Servasti Dominicum? Hast thou kept the Lords day? the answer was returned, Christianus sum, intermittere non possum: I am a Christian, and may not do otherwise. The Jews gave that honour to their Sabbath, that they named from it all the other days of the week, as the first, second, third day, &c, of the Sabbath, which we from the Heathens (a worse pattern) name Munday, Tuesday, Wednesday, &c. Ex instituto Mercurii Trismegisti.

ἐκεῖνος δὲ ἑβδόμην ἡμέραν σαββάτου τουτέστιν παρασκευὴν &c. Ignat. ep 3. ad Magnes

See Verstegan. Alii numerant, Feria prima, secunda, &c. tia, &c.

Verse 2. Then she runneth.] Amor addidit alas, Love is impatient of delaies. Christ cometh leaping over the Mountains of Bether, all manner lets and impediments. And the Church, as impatient as he, bids him Make haste my beloved, and be like to a Ro, or to a fawn of the Harts, which when it fleeth, looketh behinde it, saith the Chaldee Paraphrast there. She affects not only an union, but an unity with him.

Cant. 2. 17. Cant. 8. 4.

Verse 3. Peter therefore went forth.] He despaired not, though he had grievously fallen. The Saints cannot fall so far, but that Gods supporting hand is ever under them They may be dowzed over head and ears in the waters of iniquity, yea, sink twice to the bottom, yet shall rise again and recover; for the Lord puts under his hand; yea, as he that stumbleth, and yet falleth not, gets ground by his stumbling: So it is here.

Verse 4. So they ran both together.] But the swifter of foot they were, the slower in faith: for he that believeth maketh not haste, Isa. 28. 6. They believed not fully the resurrection: when they heard the news of it, and from the Angels too, they stirred not, but rejected it as a fable. Now that they hear (though but by a woman onely) that the Lords body was removed to another sepulchre (though that were but a rash report, and nothing so) they run amain. Oh the dulness that is found in the best!

Verse 5. Yet went he not in.] He durst not: so some fearful are afraid of every step, saying, as Cæsar at Rubicon, yet we may go back: and as the King of Navar told Beza, That he would launch no further into the sea, then he might be sure to return safe to the haven.

Pelago se non ita commissurus esset quin quando liberet, pedem referre posset.

Verse 6. Following him and went in.] John came first, Peter entred first: Soft and fair goes far: Soft fire makes sweet malt: Leap Christians are not much to be liked; such as quickly step out of profaness into profession. Hot at hand seldom holds out. The stony ground immediately received the seed with joy, and started up suddenly: but the good ground brings forth fruit with patience or tarriance. Walk deliberately, & ponder the paths of thy feet, as Solomon bids. A Christians progress is as the Sun, which shines more and more to the perfect day: and as the Trumpet in Mount Sion, Exod. 20. which sounded louder and louder, till it was heard all the country over.

εὐθέως. ἐν ὑπομονῇ. Mat. 13. Prov. 4. 26. Prov. 4. 18.

Verse 7. And the napkin that was about his head] These grave-cloaths were evidences of our Saviours resurrection, and are therefore mentioned by the Evangelist. But what shift made Paleottus Archbishop of Bonony for matter, who wrote a great book of the shadow of Christs dead body in the sindon or linnen-cloth, wherein it was wrapped? This book was also commented upon by the Professor of Divinity there. Had not these men little to do? Did they not, as one saith, Magno conatu magnas nugas agere?

Tenet insanabile multo——Scribendi Cacoethes.

Verse 8. And he saw and believed.] i. e. He believed his own eyes, that the Lords body was not in the Sepulchre; but, as Mary Magdalen had told them, so they misbelieved, that it was taken away to some other place, further from Calvary, for honors sake, that he might not lie buried with the wicked. Hence it is that in the next verse it is added, that as yet they knew not the Scripture.

Verse 9. For as yet they knew not the Scripture.] Which yet was clear enough in this point, Psal. 16. 10. & 110. 1. Isa. 53. 10, 11. The Resurrection of our Saviour was not obscurely shadowed out in Adam waking out of sleep, Isaac received after a sort from the dead, Joseph drawn out of prison to be Lord of Egypt, Sampson bearing away the gates of Gaza, David advanced to the Kingdom, when there was but a step betwixt him and death, Jonah preserved in the Whales belly, &c.

Verse 10. Went again to their own home.] Waiting till God should further enlighten both organ and object, as Mary also did, Luke 2.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verse 11. Mary stood at the Sepulchre, weeping.] Some think it was because she conceived that the Jews had gotten away our Saviours dead body to dishonour it: as the Popish persecutors digged up Bucers, and many other good mens bones to burn them. She wept, where she had no such cause; so do too many, women especially, who should do well to keep their tears for better uses, and not wash foul rooms with sweet waters. Needless tears must be unwept again.

Verse 12. And seeth two Angels.] Sent for her sake, and the rest, to certifie them of the resurrection. It is their office (and they are glad of it) to comfort and counsel the Saints still, as it were by speaking and doing after a spiritual manner, though we see them not, as she here did. The Philosopher told his friends when they came into his little and low cottage, The Gods are here with me: sure it is that God and his Angels are ever with his people, when they are weeping especially.

ἐντεῦθεν γὰρ ἄνθρωποι θεοί.

Verse 13. Woman, why weepest thou?] Angels pity humane frailty, still, and secretly suggest comfort. But Mary had no such cause to cry, if she had known all, but to rejoyce rather: so hath a Christian, in what condition soever, all things reckoned. Had Elizabeth known she should have been Queen, she would not have wisht her self a milk-maid. Saints are heirs of the kingdom, saith James, heads destinated to the diadem, saith Tertullian; what mean they then to be at any time in their dumps?

Iam. 2.

Verse 14. She turned her self back.] As not able to abide the brightness of those glorious Angels any longer. To the Gardiner therefore she addresseth her self for further direction. See what a happiness it is to be taught by the ministry of men, like our selves, and to have Angels about us, but invisible.

Verse 15. Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou?] Where the Angels left, the Lord begins. God hath for our sakes taken the preaching of the Gospel from the Angels, and given it to Ministers, who have thenceforth also changed names: for Ministers are called Angels, Rev. 2. 1. and Angels, Ministers, Heb. 1 14.

Verse 16. Jesus saith unto her, Mary.] Christ is neerest to such, as with Mary cannot see him for their tears, if with her, in humility they seek after him. He cals her but by her name, and she acknowledgeth him. The ear, we say, is first up in a morning: and nothing so soon awakes us, as to be called by our names. How easily can Christ call up our drousie hearts, when he pleaseth: and (when we are even turned away from him, as Mary here was) make us reciprocate and cry Rabboni? Mary! saith Christ; Master! saith Mary; and presently she claspes about his feet, having her heart as neer to his heart, as her hands were to his feet. What a meeting of love (saith a Divine hereupon) will there be between the new glorified Saint, and the glorious Redeemer?

Verse 17. Touch me not, &c.] She had caught him by the feet (as the Shunamite did Elisha, as the Shulamite did her Spouse) and there she would have held him longer, out of inconsiderate zeal: but that he takes her off this corporal conceit, that she may learn to live by faith, and not by sense: to be drawn after him to heaven, whither he was now ascending, and to go tell his brethren what she had seen and heard.

Mat. 28. 2. Cant. 3. 4.

Ne morare, sed ad perturbatos discipulos accurre & quod vidisti renuncia, Pet. Martyr

Verse 18. Mary Magdalen came and told] She had told them and troubled them before with a conceit that they had (but to what end, or whether, she knew not) removed the Lords body: fitly therefore is she sent to assure them of the resurrection. And though loth to depart, yet she bridles her affections, though never so impetuous, and brings them to be wholly at Christs beck and check.

Verse 19. When the doors, &c. for fear of the Jews] The sheep had been scattered, but now were by the great Shepherd recollected (according to the promise, Zech. 13. 7. I will turn my hand upon the little ones) yet sensible of their late fright, they shew some trepidation. Afterwards, when the Spirit came down upon them, they not only set open the doors, but preached Christ boldly in the Temple, without dread of danger. So did Basil: when the Emperor threatned him with bonds, banishment, &c. he wisht him to affright babies with such bugbears, his life might be taken away, but not his faith: his head, but not his crown. So Luther, at first so fearful and faint-hearted, that in the year 1518. he wrote thus to Pope Leo the tenth: I lay my self prostrate at your Holiness feet, together with all that I am, and have: quicken me, kill me, call me, recall me, approve me, reprove me, I shall acknowledge your voice to be the very voice of Christ, ruling and speaking in you, &c. Yet afterwards he took more courage, witness among many Puerilla terriculamenta proponenda. Vivifica, occide voca, revoca, approba, reproba, vocem tuam vocem Christi in te præsidentis & loquentis agnoscam.

Digitized by Google

many other things, that brave answer of his to one that told him, that both the Pope & the Emperor had threatned his ruine, Contemptus est à me Romanus & favor & furor. And when Spalatinus had sent unto him, to enquire whether he would go to Worms, & appear in the Gospels cause, if Cæsar summoned him? Go, said he, I am resolved to go, though I were sure to encounter so many devils there as are tiles upon the houses. Omnia de me præsumas præter fugam & palinodiam. Fugere nolo, multò minus recantare. Luth. Epist.

Verse 20. He shewed unto them his hands, &c.] For their further confirmation: so he doth unto us every time we come to his table. But oh, how should our hearts long to look for ever upon the humane nature of Christ, clothed with an exuberancy of glory, at the right hand of his heavenly Father? And to consider that every vein in that blessed body bled, to bring us to heaven? Augustin was wont to wish that he might have the happiness to see these three things, Romam in flore, Paulum in ore, & Christum in corpore, But I should take venerable Bedes part rather, and say with him; Anima mea desiderat Christum regem meum videre in decore suo: Let me see my King Christ in his heavenly beauty.

Verse 21. Then said Jesus to them again, Peace] The common salutation amongst the Jews (the Turks at this day salute in like sort, Salaum aleek; the reply is, Aleek salaum, that is, Peace be unto you) This our Saviour purposely redoubleth, to perswade them of pardon for their late shameful defection from him, and their backwardness to believe his resurrection. Sin is soon committed, but not so easily remitted: or, if in heaven, yet not in our own consciences, till which there is little comfort. Christ, to confirm them, is pleased again to imploy them, and to count them faithful, putting them again into the ministery. A calling not more honourable then comfortable: the very trust that God commits to a man therein, seals up love and favour to him. Blunts voyage into Levant. 1 Tim. 1. 13.

Verse 22. He breatheth on them, and saith, &c.] Otherwise, who had been sufficient for these things? The Ministry is a burden to be trembled at by the Angels themselves, saith Chrysostom. Father Latimer when at the coming in of the six Articles, he, to keep a good conscience, resigned up his Bishoprick, putting off his rochet, he suddenly gave a skip in the floor for joy, feeling his shoulders so light, and being discharged, as he said, of such an heavy burden. Now the Spirit where he is bestowed by Christ, heaves at one end (as S. Pauls word imports) and takes off the brunt of the business from us. He oyls our wheels, and makes us drive merrily. He helps our infirmities, edgeth our spirits, steeleth our faces, filleth us with matter, furnisheth us with words, doth all our work for us. When I first came into this City (said Calvin upon his death-bed, in his speech to his fellow Ministers) I found all out of frame, & met with many malicious Opposites. But our Lord Christ so settled and strengthened me, who by nature (to speak truth) am easily daunted, ut nullis illorum conatibus cesserim, that I stoutly withstood them. Onus ipsis [illegible] Angelis [illegible] metuendum. Act. [illegible] Est magnum, ut ait Calenus Melch. Ad. in vita Calv.

Verse 23. Whosoevers sins ye remit, &c.] Remission of sin is the chief benefit of the Gospel: And for the Creed (which is the sum of the Gospel) all the former Articles are perfected in that of Remission of sins: and all the following Articles are effects of it. Now none can remit sins, but God; to speak properly: Papists tell us of one that could remove mountains: but to remit sins is peculiar to God alone. Man may remit the trespass, but God only the transgression. Howbeit Ministers may, and in some cases must declare unto man his righteousness; pronounce in Christs name, the truly penitent, righteous in Gods sight, by Christs righteousness freely imputed, and given unto them. They must also retain, by the same authority, and binde upon impenitent sinners (so continuing) their sins to destruction, Having in a readiness to revenge all disobedience. This we may do, as Ministers, and more we claim not. Rhem. Test. Iob 33. 23. 2 Cor. 10. 6.

Verse 24. But Thomas one of the twelve.] A man cannot be wilfully absent from the publike Assemblies but once, without great danger and damage. Thomas was absent perhaps about some weighty cause. It may be he lurkt and lay close for fear of the Jews: or it may be he was providing, and setling his own private affairs, now his Master was slain: but what ever the cause was, the effect was grievous; he was wofully hardened.

Verse 25. I will not believe,] Ah wilful Thomas (quoth Mr. Bradford Martyr) I will not, saith he: so adding to his incredulity, obstinacy. But yet Christ appeared unto him, and would not lose him, &c. Sermon of repent. 56.

Verse 26. The doors being shut.] Although it be said, that when Christ came to his Disciples,

Digitized by Google

Act. & Mon. fol. 1536.

Diſciples, the doors were ſhut, yet have I as much to prove that the doors opened at his coming, as ye to prove that he came through the door, ſaid Robert Smith, Martyr, to the Doctour that diſputed with him.

Verſe 27. Then ſaith he to Thomas] Who was not excommunicated by the reſt, but gently born with, till Chriſt ſhould cure him. Neither did he forſake their meetings, though he believed not their relation. It is good to ſtand in Chriſts way, to be found at the foddering place, Cant. 1. 8. But ſome, like ſpiritual vagabonds, as Cain, excommunicate themſelves from Gods preſence, in the uſe of the means: we may write, Lord have mercy upon ſuch, as utterly deplored.

ἡ πίστις ἰδιοποιεῖται τὸ Θεῖον. Chryſoſt.

Verſe 28. My Lord, and my God.] This is true faith indeed, that individuates God, and appropriates him to it ſelf. Were it not for this poſſeſſive (Mine) the devil might ſay the Creed to as good purpoſe as we. He believes there is a God and a Chriſt: but that which torments him, is, he can ſay (My) to never an Article of the faith.

Verſe 29. Bleſſed are they that have not ſeen.] We ſee Chriſt in the fleſh by the eyes of the Apoſtles; like as the Iſraelites ſaw Canaan by the eyes of the Spies: and this is ſufficient unto faith, as the Evangeliſt ſheweth in the next verſes.

Verſe 30. And many other ſigns, &c.] If Cicero could ſay of Socrates (whoſe words Plato had recorded) and could requeſt the like of his Readers, concerning Lucius Craſſus, that they would imagine much more good of them, then they found written; how much more might S. John do the ſame concerning Chriſt?

De orat. l. 3.

Verſe 31. Theſe things are written.] He ſpeaks this of the writ of the other three Evangeliſts alſo. Matthew wrote his Goſpel eight years after Chriſt. Mark ten, Luke fifteen, and John fourty two, in the days of Trajan. He died in the 101. year of his own age.

Chap. XXI.

Verſe 1. After theſe things Jeſus ſhewed himſelf.]

SOme have been of opinion that this Chapter was not written by John (becauſe he concluded his hiſtory in the end of the laſt chapter) but added by ſome other, as the laſt chapter of Deuteronomy was to Moſes his writings. Theſe ſhould have obſerved, that in the former chapter thoſe arguments only are ſet down by the Evangeliſt, that fell out at Jeruſalem for the manifeſtation of Chriſts reſurrection: as in this chapter, thoſe, whereby he approved the truth of his reſurrection in Galilee alſo, according to his promiſe, Mat. 26. 32. that they might believe and remember that Jeſus Chriſt of the ſeed of David was verily raiſed from the dead according to the Goſpel: this being a doctrine of greateſt conſequence and comfort, 1 Cor. 15. 5 &c. Peter thought himſelf ſufficiently aſſured of it, and therefore ſaid, I go a fiſhing; but he was deceived, and needed further confirmation.

2 Tim. 2. 8.

Verſe 2. There were met together Simon, &c.] When good and Godly men meet, when chaſt and honeſt people aſſemble together, it is not to be called to a faction, but a Court rather, ſaith Tertullian. Thoſe are a faction, that conſpire againſt good men: The ſociety of ſuch is like the ſlime and filth that is congealed, where many toads and other vermine joyn together. God dwels in the Aſſembly of Saints: ſhall we, like Stoicks ſtie up our ſelves, and not daily run into their company? He that comes, when ointments and ſweet ſpices are ſtirring, doth carry away ſome of the ſweet ſavour, though he think not of it: ſo here, See Prov. 13. 10.

Cum boni, cum probi coeunt, cũ pii, cum caſti congregantur, non eſt factio dicenda ſed curia, & è contrario illis nomen factionis accommodandum, &c. Tert. Apol. adver. gent. c. 39.

Verſe 3. I go a fiſhing, &c.] Being not yet employed in the publike Miniſtery, he would not be idle, and that he might not be chargeable to the Church. This life is in Iſaiah called, The life of our hands, becauſe it to be maintained by the labour of our hands. We are to earn ere we eat, 2 Theſ. 3.

Res age tutus eris. Ovid.

And that night they caught nothing.] Labour we never ſo hard, unleſs God bleſs it, and ſtop that hole in the bottom of the bag, Hag. 1. 1. thoſe ſecret iſſues and drains of expence, at which mens eſtates run out, we ſhall be forced to ſay with Severus the Emperor, Omnia fui, & nihil profuit.

Spartian.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 4. But When the morning] Mourning laſteth but till morning. Flebile principium melior fortuna ſequetur, ſaid Q. Elizabeth, when ſhe was to be ſent to the Tower. Pſal. 30. 5. Ovid.

Verſe 5. Children, have ye any meat?] This he ſaith as ſeeming to be ſome houſkeeper, who paſſing by fiſhermen, cals to them, as willing to buy their fiſh for the uſe of his family. Galeacius Caracciolus, that noble Marqueſs of Vico (that left all for Chriſt, preferring the bleſſing of God before the worlds warm Sun) would go into the market at Geneva and cater for his houſhold; grieving for nothing more, then that he had not wherewithall to keep a better houſe, for the relief of the poor: And in that reſpect only, he wiſhed himſelf as great a man at Geneva, as he was in Italy. His life by Crafhaw.

Verſe 6. Caſt the net on the right ſide, &c.] This counſel he gives as a ſtranger, who haply might ſee a confluence of fiſh there, being on the ſhore, which they in the ſhip ſaw not. They obey him therefore, as content to loſe one labour more, if it muſt be ſo: they knew not what another draught might produce. It is good to be doing in Gods way: ſooner or later ſucceſs will enſue. Binde not the Lord to a day, wake not my Beloved, till he pleaſe: he will pay us for all our pains and patience. Conſider but our 1. diſtance, 2. dependance, and we will wait.

Verſe 7. Therefore that Diſciple, &c.] Now they ſee the cauſe why, till then, they caught nothing, was, that they might the better know him to be the Lord. God will one day let us ſee, that he in very faithfulneſs afflicts us: and that however it ſeem ſo for a ſeaſon, it is not in vain to have ſought his face. John knew not our Saviour by ſight here, but by the multitude of fiſhes that came to hand by his direction. The Rochellers might eaſily ſee as much, when they were miraculouſly relieved by that ſhoal of ſhel-fiſh caſt upon their ſhore in a ſtrait ſiege, whereby their City was miraculouſly preſerved. Acts & Mon.

Verſe 8. And the other Diſciples came, &c.] They came all to Chriſt, but Peter ſooner: he caſt away all care of his fiſh, having the Lord to go to. It is beſt to be firſt & forwardeſt in a good matter; not only to make a ſhift to get to heaven, but to have an abundant entrance thereinto, to come bravely into the haven, by adding one grace to another, as Peter hath it. It is a low and unworthy ſtrain in ſome (ſaith One) to labour after no more grace then will keep life and ſoul together, that is, ſoul and hell aſunder. But that man for heaven, and heaven for him, that ſets up for his mark, The reſurrection of the dead, Phil. 3. 11. that is, by a metonymie of the ſubject for the adjunct, that perfection of holineſs that accompanieth the ſtate of the reſurrection. Paul was Inſatiabilis Dei cultor, ſaith Chryſoſtom. 2 Pet. 1. 2, 11.

Verſe 9 And fiſh laid thereon, and bread.] A feaſt of Chriſts own providing; to aſſure them that they ſhould never want neceſſaries: ſuperfluities they may want without prejudice. Nature is content with a little, Grace with leſs. Luther dined oft with an herring, Junius with an egg; as knowing, that they were not to live to eat, but eat to live. Ill doth it become a ſervant of the Higheſt, to be a ſlave to his palate. Epicurus dum palato quid ſit optimum judicat, cœli palatium non ſuſpexit, ſaith Ennius.

Verſe 10. Which ye have now caught.] He ſaith not, which I have cauſed you to catch. God is pleaſed to ſay, for our encouragement, that we do ſuch and ſuch good works, when it is he that doth all our works, in us and for us. Certum eſt nos facere quod facimus, ſed ille facit ut faciamus, The bowls of the Candleſtick had no oyl, but that which dropped from the olive branches. Aug.

Verſe 11. Yet was not the net broke.] When God will bleſs a man, all ſecond cauſes ſhall co-operate and contribute their help. As when he will croſs us, the ſtrongeſt ſinew in the arms of fleſh ſhall crack, our likelieſt projects miſcarry: he will curſe our bleſſings, blaſt our proceedings, as King John confeſſed, Ever ſince I was aſſoyled, and ſubject to the ſea of Rome, I never proſpered. Otto, one of the Popes Muſcipulatores, Mice-catchers, as the ſtory calls them, ſent hither by Gregory the Ninth, after three years raking together of money by moſt deteſtable arts, at laſt departing hence, he left not ſo much money in the Kingdom, as he either carried with him, or ſent to Rome before him. Such notable fiſhers are Peters pretended ſucceſſours: all is fiſh with them, that comes to net. Poſtquam Deo reconciliatus me ac mea regna (prob dolor) Rom. ſubjeci eccleſiæ, nulla mihi proſpera, ſed omnia contraria advenerunt. Joh. Rex.

Verſe 12. None of the Diſciples durſt ask him.] They were aſhamed to move further Queſtion in that that was to them all ſo evident. Neither yet may we imagine that they ſate ſilent all dinner while in their Maſters preſence, as Monks and Turks uſe to do; but Turcæ perpetuum ſilentium terrent, ut muti. Cuſp. de Cæſario. p. 475.

Digitized by Google

that although they were abaſhed to ask him who he was, yet they both asked and anſwered many other more profitable Queſtions. Our Saviour never came to any mans table, but he beſprinkled the diſhes with the ſalt of ſavoury diſcourſe; So ſhould we, but ſo (alas) we do not. Plato and Xenophon thought it fit and profitable, that mens ſpeeches at meals, ſhould be written. And if Chriſtians ſhould ſo do, what kind of books would they be?

Verſe 13. Taketh bread and giveth them.] As his manner was before his death, and with his uſual form of Grace before meat by the which thoſe two, that had his company to Emaus, knew him. Thoſe that receive not the creatures with thanksgiving, are worſe then Heathens. The Greek word for a dinner comes of another word that ſignifieth prayers, which they uſually premiſed to their repaſts. Heſiod gives this precept, Eat not of a diſh that hath not firſt been offered in ſacrifice. An elegant and pious precept, ſaith Melanchthon, drawn no doubt from the holy Patriarchs. The people would not taſte of their good chear, till Samuel had bleſſed it. And Moſes bade them Eat and drink before the Lord. Mine oxen and fatlings are prepared, ſaith that King, Mat. 22. 4. It is in the orginal, are ſacrificed. So was Nebuchadnezzars good chear, which therefore Daniel would not taſte of.

Luke 24. 35. 1 Tim. 4. 4. Αριστον ἀπὸ τῶν ἀρῶν à precibus quas præmittebant. Μηδ ἀπὸ χυ. τροπόδων ἀνεπιῤῥήκτων ἀνόλουλα ἔδεται 1 Sam. 9. 13 τεθυμένα.

Verſe 14. This is now the third time, &c.] Adam died, and we hear no more of him: not ſo the ſecond Adam. If a man die, ſhall he live again? Job 14. 14. Not till the general reſurrection ſurely. Many devices there are in the minds of ſome, that there ſhall be a firſt reſurrection of the Martyrs only, and that they ſhall raign on earth a thouſand years Alſted ſaith, this thouſand years ſhall begin in the year 1694. But theſe, ſaith a Divine, are but the miſtakes of ſome high expreſſions in Scripture; which deſcribe the judgements poured out upon Gods enemies in making a way to the Jews converſion by the pattern of the laſt judgement.

Iohnſt de nat. Conſtant. Cotton upon the 7. vials.

Verſe 15. Loveſt thou me more then theſe?] As thou haſt not ſpared to profeſs and promiſe (for when the reſt ſaid nothing, Peter ſaid he would lay down his life for him) and as thou now pretendeſt, by caſting thy ſelf into the ſea, to come firſt to me.

Thou knoweſt that I love thee.] Being asked of the meaſure, he only anſwereth of the truth, q. d. for the quantity I can ſay little, but for the truth I dare affirm. The upright are perfect in Gods account. And Peter had now turned his crowing into crying.

Feed my Lambs.] Theſe were his firſt care. The Syriack addeth, לי li, mihi, feed them for me. And Druſius reckons this amongſt the Eaſtern Apothegms, Quicquid agas, propter Deum agas. Whatſoever thou doſt, do it for Gods ſake. Propter te Domine, propter te, was a godly mans Motto, it ſhould be every Miniſters eſpecially.

Verſe 16 Feed my ſheep] That is, Supremum in Eccleſia Dominium tibi aſſere. Lord it over the Church, ſaith Baronius. Regio more impera, Raign as a King, ſaith Bellarmine. Chriſt on the contrary ſaith, The Kings of nations exerciſe dominion over them, but ye ſhall not do ſo. And Peter himſelf ſaith to his fellow Elders, Feed the flock of God, not as lording it over Gods heritage, &c. Indeed ποιμαίνω here uſed, ſometimes ſignifies to govern (uſually to feed) but βόσκω, the other word twice uſed here in this text, always ſignifies to feed. But they catch at government, let go feeding It is as rare a thing to hear a biſhop preach amongſt them, ſaid D^r Baſſinet, as to ſee an Aſs flee. Fiſco potius apud multos conſulitur quam Chriſto: attonſioni potius gregis quam attentioni.

1 Pet. 5. 2, 3. Epiſc. Winton.

Verſe 17. Jeſus ſaith unto him the third time.] To confirm him doubtleſs againſt the conſciouſneſs of his three-fold denial, and to re-authorize him in his Apoſtleſhip.

Loveſt thou me?] A Miniſter had need have his heart inflamed with a moſt ardent affection to Chriſt: for elſe he will never ſuffer that hardſhip devour thoſe difficulties, and get over all thoſe impediments that he is ſure to be encombred with. The Miniſtery, believe it, is not an idle-mans occupation: he muſt preach the word, be inſtant in ſeaſon, out of ſeaſon, &c. Cry in the throat, (Clamare ut Stentora vincat) lift up his voice like a trumpet, ſpeak till he ſpet forth his lungs, and yet to no more purpoſe many times, then Beda did when he preached to an heap of ſtones. Now this he will never do, unleſs the love of Chriſt conſtrain him, 2 Cor. 5. 14. with 1 Cor. 16. 22.

Pſal. 58. 1.

Peter was grieved.] Either in remembrance of his former falſe play: or elſe, as thinking our Saviour ſomewhat diſtruſted his fidelity; or elſe ſurely, he was as much to blame to be grieved, as David was to be angry, when God had made a breach upon Uzzah.

2 Sam. 6. 8.

Feed my ſheep] My ſheep with golden fleeces, with precious ſouls: every ſoul being more more worth then a world, as our Saviour reckons it, who only went to the price of it Can that be wholsome meat then that is sawced with the blood of souls? Will it not be bitterness in the end? Mat. 16. 16.

Digitized by Google

Verse 18. Another shall gird thee] That is, cord thee, manacle and pinion thee, carry thee prisoner whether thou wouldst not. Peter would, and he would not suffer. Every new man is two men, hath two contrary principles in him, flesh and spirit. The spirit is willing, the flesh weak and wayward. This made the Martyrs many of them, chide themselves, and crave prayers of others. B. Ridly said to the Smith, as he was knocking in the staple, Good fellow, knock it in hard, for the flesh will have its course. So, Rawlins White, Martyr, going to the stake, and meeting with his wife and children, the sudden sight of them so pierced his heart, that the very tears trickled down his cheeks. But he soon after, as though he had misliked this infirmity of his flesh, began to be as it were angry with himself, insomuch that in striking his breast with his hand, he used these words, Ah flesh staiest thou me so? Wouldst thou fain prevail? Well, I tell thee, do what thou canst, thou shalt not, by Gods grace, have the victory. So Latimer in a letter to B. Ridley, Pray for me, I say: pray for me I say; for I am sometimes so fearful that I would creep into a Mouse-hole; sometimes God doth visit me again with his comforts: so he cometh and goeth, to teach me to feel and know mine infirmity. Act. & Mon. fol. 1605. ibid. 1413. ibid 1563.

Verse 19 By what death he should glorifie God.] Martyrdom is the lowest subjection that can be to God but the highest honour. Verè magnus est Deus Christianorum, The God of the Christians is a great God indeed, said one Calocerius a Heathen, beholding the patient sufferings of the Primitive Martyrs. Justin Martyr confesseth of himself, that seeing the piety of Christians in their lives, and their patience in death, he gathered that that was the truth that they so constantly professed and sealed up with their blood. And of one Adrianus it is reported, that seeing the Martyrs suffer such grievous things, he asked the cause? One of them named that text, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, &c. The naming of which words, and seeing of such sufferings, so converted him, that afterwards he became a Martyr. To account Christ precious as a tree of life, though we be fastened to him as to a stake to be burned at, this is the greatest honour we can do him upon earth. This is to magnifie Christ, as Paul did, Phil. 1. 20. to follow Christ close at heels, as Peter did here, who also had the manner of his death foretold him, 2 Pet. 1. 14. As had likewise Bishop Hooper, when he had given him for his Arms, a Lamb in a fiery bush, and the Sun-beams from heaven descending down upon the Lamb, rightly purporting by what death he should glorifie God. Act. & Mon. fol. 366.

Verse 20. Then Peter turning about.] Peter, though restored and resettled in his Apostleship, is not without his infirmities. They that are cured of a phrensie, are not without their mad tricks sometimes No pomgranate so sound, but hath one rotten kernel in it. No book so well printed, but hath some Errata's. David saw so many in himself, that he cries out Who can understand the errors of his life, ah purge me, &c. they that dream of perfections here, suffer a merry madness. Quisq; aliquid fatuitatis habet adjunctum. Melanct. Psal. 19.

Verse 21. And what shall this man do?] When Peter considered that John was dearly beloved, and yet not alike forewarned of suffering death, as himself was, he began to doubt whether Christ spake this of love to him or not. Nothing is more ordinary with us, then to question Gods affection, when we are in affliction: to conceive hard things of God, and heavy things of our selves, as if no children, because chastized. Whereas we should learn to look through the anger of Gods corrections, to the sweetness of his loving countenance, as by a rain-bow we see the beautiful Image of the Suns light in the midst of a dark and watersh cloud. See my Love-Tokens, Doct. 2. Use 1.

Verse 22 If I will that he tarry.] Si eum volo manere. This the vulgar corruptly reads, Sic eum volo manere. Ambrose, Austin, Bede, Lyra, Rupert, &c. retain this reading Trapezuntius defends it, Bessarion opposeth it, the Greek text refutes it. Yet is the vulgar translation so extolled and idolized by the Papists, that if the Originals differ from it any where, they must be corrected by it, and not it by the Originals. Sed Hebræi bibunt fontes, Græci rivos, Latini paludes, saith Reuchlin.

Verse 23. Among the brethren.] So are all Christians. Sanctior est copula cordis quam corporis.

That that Disciple should not die.] Some to this day deny that he is dead. Beza tels us us of a certain Impoſtor in his remembrance, that gave out at Paris that he was John the Evangeliſt: and was afterward burnt at Tholouſe. Some have fabled, that after he had commanded his grave to be made, and had laid himſelf down in it, the next day it was found empty, & he rapt up alive into paradiſe, whence he ſhall come together with Enoch and Elias at the laſt day to confound Antichriſt, O quantum eſt in rebus inane! It is not for us to follow cunningly deviſed fables, 2 Pet. 1.16. but to attend to that ſure word of truth, as unto a light ſhining, &c. v. 19. accounting every particle of it precious, ſith the change of one letter may breed ſo much error, and cauſe ſo much contention.

Digitized by Google

Muſcul. in loc.

Verſe 24. This is the Diſciple.] Not the Doctor, the Maſter, as Magiſtri noſtri Pariſienſes. So the Sorboniſts will needs be ſtiled. The School-men have their Doctor Angelicus, Doctor Seraphicus, Doctor reſolutiſſimus: So Bacon the Carmelite was called, becauſe he would endure no gueſſing or maybe's. The Italian Friers, as they encreaſe in their ſuppoſed holineſs, ſo they proceed in their titles, from Padre Benedicto, to Padre Angelo, then Archangelo, Cherubino, and laſtly, Cerephino, which is the top of perfection. Our Evangeliſt delights not in any of theſe ſwelling titles. He doth not ſo much as name himſelf in all this work of his, takes no other ſtile then the beloved Diſciple, makes no more of himſelf then a witneſs to the truth, a recorder of what he had heard and ſeen. The proud perſon ſpeaks great ſwelling words of vanity; he loves uppermoſt rooms, and to be called Rabbi Rabbi, to be cried up and pointed at for a nonſuch. I hear, ſaith Tertullian (ſpeaking of the Pope, who then began to peep out) that there is a Decree publiſhed in peremptory terms. Pontifex ſcilicet Maximus, Epiſcopus, epiſcoporum, &c. ever hated the pride of that Roman Church, ſaith Baſil. Ambition, like the Crocodile groweth while it liveth; like the Ivy, which riſing at the feet, will over-peer the higheſt wall: Or, like the Mary-gold (a flower of no good ſmell) which opens and ſhuts with the Sun. Humility, on the contrary, is like the Lilly, ſaith Bernard, or Violet, which grows low to the ground, hangs the head downward, and hides it ſelf with its own leaves. It prefers the Euge of conſcience, before the Hic eſt of the world: and were it not that its fragrant ſmell betrays it to the obſervation of others, would chuſe to live and die in its well contenting ſecrecy.

Præf. in 1. ſent.

Sands his Survey, &c.

2 Per. 2 18. Mat. 23. 6.

Odi faſtum illius eccleſiæ. Hunc ὀρθὸν λογὸν appellare ſolitus eſt.

Verſe 25. I ſuppoſe that even the world it ſelf, &c.] Nec Chriſtus, nec cœlum patitur hyperbolen, ſaith one. In ſpeaking of Chriſt or his Kingdom, a man can hardly hyperbolize. Much had Saint John ſaid of our Saviour, yet nothing to what he might have ſaid. All that ever he did was divine, and deſerved to be chronicled. That commendation that Paterculus falſely gives to Scipio, that he never in all his life did, ſpoke, or thought any thing, but what was praiſe-worthy, is true only of Chriſt. That which the Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory relates of Brennus, that he was never ſeen or heard by any to ſwear, lie, or be raſhly angry to ſpeak or do any thing that beſeemed not Gods ſervant, is a praiſe proper to Chriſt, even as he was man. But, conſider him as God, and then that of Gratian the Emperour is true in his Epiſtle to S. Ambroſe, We ſpeak of God, not ſo much as we ought, but ſo much as we can. Nemo ſapientiam Dei immenſam in omnem eternitatem exhauriet. He is indeed like the pool Polycritus writes of, which in compaſs, at the firſt, ſcarce ſeemed to exceed the bredth of a ſhield; but if any went in it to waſh, it extended it ſelf more and more. Tantum recedit, quantum capitur, ſaith Nazianzen. When therefore the Apoſtle ſaith, That the world it ſelf could not contain the books that ſhould be written, Hoc non vult, ſaith Auguſtine, de mole librorum, nec de locali capacitate, ſed quod Spiritus ſanctus noſtri habuerit rationem, & ea ſelegerit conſcribenda, quæ in hac infirmitate credentes capere poſſint.

Nihil in vita niſi laudandum aut fecit, aut dixit aut ſenſit, Velleius. Sozom. l. 6. c. 28.

Loquimur de Deo, non quantum debemus, ſed quantum poſſumus

Citat. ab Ariſt. de mirabil. auſc.

A

Digitized by Google

A Table of such Texts of Scripture, as occasionally are explicated and unfolded in this Comment upon St. JOHN.

	Page.		Page.		Page.
Geneſis 48. 22.	440	Ier. 25. 30.	479	*Heb.*5.2.	440
Exodus 5. 1.	444	*Dan.*12.2.	446	*Heb.*8.10.	444
*Lev.*19. 23, &c.	472	*Dan.*12. 11.	429	*Heb.*12.25,26.	437
Numb. 22. 3,4.	496	*Hoſ.*6.3.	486	Heb. 13. 3.	440
Joſhua 7.19.	468	*Hoſ.*10.1.		Iames 5. 20.	443
1 Sam. 6. 5.	Ibid.	Amos 6.12.	447	1 Pet. 1.5.	473
1 Kings 7.23.	491	Nah. 1. 10.	495	1 *Pet.*2.21.	487
Ezra 6. 10.	443	*Zeph.*3.9.	510	1 Pet. 3. 1.	443
Job 2.4.	472	Mat. 5. 14.	485	1 *Ioh.*5.10.	484
Pſalm 72.17.	430	*Mat.*12.20.	498	1 Iohn 5.13.	453
Pſalm 42.3.	499	*Mat.*24.24.	474	Rev. 2.10.	493
Pſalm 150. 8.	495	Acts 20. 30	Ibid.	Rev. 2. 21.	462
Prov 8.22.	428	1 Cor. 4. 13.	497	*Rev.*4.4.	475
Cant. 5.10.	439	1 Cor. 6. 11.	498	*Rev.*4.6.	491
Iſa. 6. 1,2.	473	1 Cor. 11. 28.	488	Rev. 6.2.	Ibid.
Iſa. 8.20.	516	Galat. 3. 23.	438	Rev. 11.2.
*Iſa.*27. 11.	497	*Epheſ.*3.10.	431	*Rev.*11.2.	473
Iſa. 30. 18.	475	Phil. 3. 11.	521
Iſa. 53. 11.	502	1 Tim. 1. 14.	441

FINIS

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

A COMMENTARY OR EXPOSITION Upon the ACTS of the Apostles.

CHAP. I.

Verse 1. Of all that Jesus began, &c.]

IF Hen. Stephanus could say of Laertius, that he wrote the lives of the Philosophers aureo libello illo in that golden book of his: And (as another hath it) opere utilissimo, & auro contrà non charo: How much better may the same be said of the Holy Evangelists setting forth the Oracles and Miracles of Christ and his Apostles? If Julius Scaliger thought twelves verses in Lucan better then the whole German Empire, what high thoughts ought we to have of these divine Records? In the Monastery at Ratisbon is a new Testament written all in letters of gold, saith Melanchon, who saw it. Gold was not good enough for such a purpose. Vos. de Hist. Grec l. 2. c. 13. Ioh. Manl. loc. com.

Verse 2. Had given commandments] As the Churches Lawgiver, Isa. 33. 22. 1 Cor. 11. 23.

Verse 3. Speaking of the things] Those that are leaving the world, should leave wholesome counsel to those that survive them.

Verse 4 Wait for the promise] And put it in suit by their daily prayers, Luke 11. 13.

Verse 5. Shall be baptized] See Mat. 3. 11.

Verse 6. Restore again] They dreamt of a distribution of honours and offices here on earth, as in the days of David and Solomon.

Verse 7. It is not for you] This key God carries under his own Girdle.

Verse 8. After that the holy Ghost is come upon you] Montanus the Heresiarch wickedly

Digitized by Google

Beza in loc. edly affirmed, that, next unto the Apoſtles, this Scripture was fulfilled upon him and his curtezan Philumena. Prodigious blaſphemy! And ejuſdem farinæ a loaf of the ſame leaven it is, that the Turks believe, that when Chriſt ſaid, that although he departed, he would ſend the Comforter, it was added in the text, And that ſhall be Mahomet: but that the Chriſtians in malice toward them, have razed it out.

Abbots his Geog. 149.

Verſe 9. And a cloud] Look not therefore for revelations from heaven (ſaith an Interpreter) but ſearch the Scriptures, for thoſe are they that teſtifie of Chriſt.

Aret.

Verſe 10. Looked ſtedfaſtly] Or intently; wiſhtly, as taken with that ſweet ſight. See the Note on Mat. 28. 7.

ἀτενίζοντες.

Verſe 11. Shall ſo come] De tempore nec gry, not a word of the time when, in anſwer to that over-curious queſtion Verſe 6. Solomons temple was finiſhed in the year of the world 3000. whether Chriſts ſhall be conſummated in 3000. more, I have not to ſay.

Verſe 12. From the mount] Neer unto which he had been apprehended, viz. at Bethany, and from whence he had thus triumphantly aſcended up on high, leading captivity captive, &c. Eph. 4. 8. and making an open ſhew of his conquered enemies, as a publike ſpectacle of ſcorn and deriſion. Col. 2. 15. In which reſpect, how well might this Mount Olivet have received that name of Nicatorium, which Alexander the Great gave to a certain Mountain not far from Arbela. as a conſtant trophy of that famous victory, that he there gat over Darius, with whom he fought for the Empire of the world.

παραδείγματι.

Νικητήριον ὄρος. Strabo.

Verſe 13. They went into an upper room] As moſt remote from company, and ſo fitteſt for Gods ſervice. In Madrid it is a cuſtome, that except ſome compoſition be made, all the upper rooms of their dwellings belong to the king. Let the ſpirits of our minds be reſerved for God.

ὦον ſuperior pars domus Spartanorum lingua, Euſtath. Heyl. Geog. p 59.

Verſe 14. With the women.] Who might make maſculine prayers, having eyes like the pools in Heſhbon, Cant. 7 4.

Zeph 4. 23.

Verſe 15. The number of names] Nominum, id eſt, hominum, or of the cheiftains that were fit to act in the election.

Verſe 16. Brethren] Not underlings, as Popiſh Biſhops, who muſt ſay Placet to that which in the Popes name is propoſed to them.

Verſe 18. And all his bowels guſht out] Becauſe he had no bowels of compaſſion toward his Maſter, he burſt in the midſt with a huge crack, (as the word ſignifieth) by a ſingular judgement of God. So Foxford, Chancellour to the Biſhop of London, a cruel perſecutor in Henry the Eighths time, died ſuddenly in his Chair; his belly being burſt, and his guts falling out before him. So Arius voiding out his bowels, ſent his ſoul as an harbinger to the devil to provide room for his body. Papias (that ancient Millenary, ſcholar to Saint John) tels us, that Judas having hanged himſelf, the rope broke, and he lived ſome time after, and was cruſht to death by the fall of a cart that was to paſs by him: But this is a meer fiction of his, and it gives us cauſe to credit Euſebius, who ſaith that this Papias, though much reverenced for opinion of his holineſs and learning, yet was homo ingenii pertenuis, a ſlender-witted man.

ἐλάκησε.

Act. & Mon. fol. 962.

In Traditionibus quas vocant Apoſtolicis.

Euſeb. Hiſt.

Verſe 19. In their proper tongue.] i. e. In the Seriack tongue: for the Jews in the Babyloniſh captivity, loſt their language.

Verſe 20. In the book of Pſalms] That common Magazine of wholeſome leſſons, as Baſil hath it.

κοινὸν ταμεῖον ὠφελίμων διδαγμάτων.

Verſe 21. Wherefore of theſe] To make up the breach again: like as the crowned Saints fill up the room in heaven of the Apoſtate Angels.

Verſe 22. Muſt one be ordained] To anſwer the ancient Types.

Verſe 23. Joſeph called Barſabas] The Centuriſts think that this Joſeph Barſabas was the ſame with that Joſes called Barnabas afterwards by the Apoſtles, Acts 4. 36. This Joſeph ſeeing it was Gods mind not to make choice of him now to ſucceed Judas in the Apoſtleſhip, was content with a lower condition: therefore afterwards God called him to that height and honourable office of an Apoſtle.

Verſe 24. Which knoweſt the hearts] Thales Mileſius, qui ſapientiſſimus inter ſeptem fuiſſe creditur, interrogatus num lateret Deos injuſte agens? reſpondit, Ne cogitans quidem. Thales being asked whether evil deeds are hidden from God? anſwered; No, nor evil thoughts neither.

Verſe 25. Go to his own place] A place of his own providing: and that he had purchaſed chaſed with, that wages of wickedneſs, verſ. 18. Bellarmine tels us of a deſperate advocate in the court of Rome, who being exhorted on his death-bed to make his peace with God, made this ſpeech to him: Lord, I have a word to ſay to thee, nor for my ſelf, but for my wife and children: Ego enim propero ad inferos, neque eſt ut aliquid pro me agas: For I am haſting to hell, neither is there any thing that I would beg of thee in my own behalf. And this he ſpake, ſaith Bellarmine (who was by the while, as boldly and without fear, as if he had been but to take his journey onely to ſome neer neighbouring Village. Bellarm. de arte moriendi, l. 2. cap. 10.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 26. They gave forth their lot] Either into the boſom, Prov. 16. 23. or lap, or pot, or ſome other veſſel in uſe for that purpoſe.

Chap. II.

Verſe 1. And when the day of Pentecoſt.]

THis feaſt was inſtituted in remembrance of the Law delivered to Moſes in the Mount, fifty days after their departure out of Ægypt. Anſwerably whereunto the holy Ghoſt (and Gods love thereby Rom. 5. 5.) is ſent out and ſhed abroad the fiftieth day after that Chriſt our paſſeover was ſacrificed for us. 1 Cor. 5. 7.

Verſe 2. As of a ruſhing mighty wind] Neſcit tarda molimina gratia Spiritus ſancti, ſaith Ambroſe. The Spirit of God is a ſpirit of power. 2 Tim. 1. 7.

Verſe 3. Cloven tongues] Teaching them both ὀρθοτομεῖν to divide the word aright, and alſo ὀρθοποδεῖν, as ſome will have it; their tongues being cloven, as their feet were intoes, teaching them too to foot it aright. Diodorus Siculus tels us of a certain Iland beyond Arabia, the Inhabitants whereof have cloven tongues ſo that therewith they can alter their ſpeech at their pleaſure, imitate the tunes of divers birds, and (which is more ſtrange) they can perfectly ſpeak to two perſons and to two purpoſes at once; to one with one part of their tongue, and to another with the other part; Sed fides ſit penes Authorem; believe it, who will. Diod. Sic. Antiq. l. 3.

Verſe 4. As the Spirit gave them utterance] ἀποφθέγγεσθαι to utter divine Apothegms, grave and gracious ſentences, or rather oracles; thoſe Magnalia Dei, verſ. 11. Mirabilia legu, Pſal. 119. 18. (See 2 Pet. 1. 21.) cedro digna & Cerite cerâ. Horat.

And they were all filled With the holy Ghoſt] And ſo gifted for their offices and employments in the Church. The Heathens tell us that Heſiod being filled with a ſudden inſpiration by the Muſes, became of a ſordid neat heard a moſt skilful Poet. And Tully ſaith, No man ever grew famous ſine aliquo afflatu divino, without ſome inbreathing from one high.

Verſe 5. And there Were dwelling, &c.] Even in Jeruſalem (for their ancient Idolatries, and latter unthankfulneſs) there be not to be found at this time an hundred houſholds of the Jews. Breerwoods enquiries.

Verſe 6. Were confounded] Or troubled, tranſported, amazed and amuſed, as ver. 7. συνεχύθη. Martial.

Verſe 7. Galileans] —— craſſoque ſub aere nati.

Verſe 8. Every man in our own tongue] Cleopatra was ſo skilful in the Eaſtern tongues that ſhe could readily anſwer the Ethiopian, Hebrew, Arabian, Syrian, Median, Parthian, Embaſſadors that came unto her; turning and tuning her tongue with eaſe (as an inſtrument of many ſtrings, ſaith Plutarch) to what dialect ſoever ſhe liſted. ὥσπερ ὄργανον πολύχορδον.

Verſe 9. Parthians and Medes, &c.] Thoſe ſtrangers of the diſperſion. 1 Pet. 1. 1.

Verſe 10 Proſelytes] Jethro was the firſt Proſelyte to the Jewiſh Church, that we read of in Scripture.

Verſe 12. The wonderful works] The Magnifical Majeſtical things of God: they praiſed him according to his excellent greatneſs. Pſal. 150. 2.

What meaneth this?] Gr. What will this be, or come too? And here began their converſion. Let none deſpiſe the day of ſmall things: God put little thoughts into Ahaſhuereſh his head, but for great purpoſes. The word fals oft upon men ears as the ſound of many waters at firſt, working wonder onely. Next, as the voice of thunder, working fear alſo, as it did on theſe here, verſ. 37. Laſtly, as the harmony of harpers, filling the heart πῦ ἂν θέλοι τοῦτο εἶναι. Zach. 4. Eſth. 6.

Digitized by Google

heart with peace and joy through believing, as One obſerveth from Revelations 14.

Verſe 13. Others mocking, ſaid, Theſe men, &c.] χλευάζοντες contumeliouſly cavilling, as thoſe Epicures at Athens did, Acts 17. 32. And that Mocker, Doctor Morgan, who being ſet to examine Mr. Philpot Martyr, asked him, How know you that you have the ſpirit of God? Philpot anſwered; By the Faith of Chriſt which is in me. Ah, by Faith, do you ſo, (quoth Morgan)? I ween it be the ſpirit of the Buttery, which your fellows have had, that have been burned before you, who were drunk before they went to their death, and I ween went drunk unto it. Philpot replyed: It appeareth by your communication, that you are better acquainted with the ſpirit the of Buttery, then with the ſpirit of God. Thou haſt the ſpirit of Illuſion, and Sophiſtry, which is not able to countervail the ſpirit of truth. And God, I tell thee, ſhall rain fire and brimſtone upon ſuch ſcorners of his Word, and blaſphemers of his people as thou art, &c.

Act. & Mon. vol. 1653.

Verſe 14. But Peter ſtanding up] Buckling cloſe to them, and not ſuffering them to carry it away ſo: Conſtantem & præſentem Petri animum declarat. Beza.

ſta Petrus conſiſtens.

Verſe 15. Seeing it is but the third hour] This was then an argument more then probable. Now men are grown ſuch husbands, as that by that time they will return their ſtocks, and have their brains crowing before day.

Mr. Harris.

Verſe 16. But this is that] Thus the old Teſtament is fulfilled in the New.

Verſe 17. In the laſt days] God keeps his beſt till laſt. Not ſo the Devil.

I will pour out of my ſpirit upon all fleſh] The beſt thing upon the baſeſt. Oh wonderful goodneſs!

Verſe 18. And on mine handmaids] Souls have no Sexes. Gal. 3. 28.

Verſe 19. Wonders in heaven] See Joel. 3. 15. Mat. 24. 29. Mar. 13. 24. Luke 21. 25.

Verſe 20. The Sun ſhall be turned] He ſeems to ſet forth the great troubles of the world under the Goſpel.

Verſe 21. Shall be ſaved.] Therefore to be able to pray is better then to be able to propheſie. Mat. 7. 22.

Verſe 22. A man] From Adam, but not by Adam.

Verſe 23. And by wicked hands, &c.] Facinus vincire civem Romanum, ſaith the Oratour. It was much (may we ſay) for the Son of God to be bound, more to be beaten, moſt of all to be ſlain. Quid dicam in crucem tolli? &c.

Cicero in Ver.

Verſe 24. It was not poſſible] For he was Life eſſential, and therefore ſwallowed up Death in victory. 1 Cor. 15. 54.

Him being delivered by the determinate counſel of God] Quod dum devitatur impletur, ſaith Gregory. The wickeds intenſed rage carries on Gods decree againſt their wils; For whiles they ſit backward to his command, they row forward to his decree; dum ſua cuique Deus fit dira libido.

Verſe 25. Be moved] Toſſed as a ſhip by tempeſt.

Verſe 26. My tongue] Heb. My glory. With the tongue bleſs we God. Jam. 3. 9. which is the beſt way of ennobling it.

Verſe 27. My ſoul in hell] That is, My body in the grave. So Rev. 20. 13. Death and Hell. i. e. the grave, are caſt into the burning lake. To the three degrees of our Saviours humiliation, are anſwerable the three degrees of his exaltation; To his Death, his Reſurrection: to his Burial, his Aſcenſion: to his abode a while in the grave, his ſitting at the right hand of his heavenly Father.

Verſe 28. Thou haſt made known] i. e. Thou giveſt me experience, or thou haſt made me partaker of.

Verſe 29. His ſepulchre is with us] Repaired, likely, when the City was rebuilt. See Mat. 23. 29.

Verſe 30. Out of the fruit of his loyns] That is out of the Virgin Mary: the ſon of whoſe ſecundines Chriſt was, being hewen without hands out of that Mountain. Dan. 2. 45.

Mat. 16. 1.

Verſe 31. Neither his fleſh] It was a pious error in thoſe good women that embalmed his body to preſerve it from corruption.

Verſe 32. Hath God raiſed up] Adam died, and we hear no more of him; but the ſecond Adam roſe, and reigneth for ever.

Verſe 33. Exalted] See the note in verſ. 27.

Verſe 34. Is not aſcended] viz. Bodily, and to ſit at Gods right hand as King of the Church: thats Chriſts Royalty.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verse 35. Thy footstool] They that will not bend shall break: Christ will fetch in his Rebels, and set his feet of fine brass on the necks of them. Rev. 1. 15.

Verse 36. Lord and Christ; Messiah the Prince. Dan. 9. 25.

Verse 37. They were pricked] Punctually pricked and pierced. They felt the Nails wherewith they had crucified Christ, sticking fast in their own hearts, as so many sharp daggers, or stings of Scorpions. 2 Cor. 12. 7. Sin is set forth by a word that signifieth the head of a bearded arrow sticking in the flesh. After that Socrates was put to death at Athens, Aristophanes rehearsed a Tragedy of his concerning Palamedes, who had been executed by the Grecians long before, at the siege of Troy. In this Tragedy were these Verses,

Ye have slain, ye have slain of Greeks the very best, (Ay me) that never any did resist.

The people at the hearing of these lines were so moved that they presently fell upon the authors of Socrates his death, and drew them forth to punishment. Oh that we could be as nimble to apprehend, and be avenged upon our sins, the cause of Christs death, &c.

κατεύγησαν. σκόλοψ. Ἐκτάνετε ἐκτάνετε ἄριστον τῶν Ἑλλήνων, Τὸν οὐδὲν ἦρ᾽ ἀνδρὸς βλαπτα.

Verse 38. Peter said unto them, Repent] Belike then they had not yet repented, for all they were pricked at heart. Nay, Peter prescribes it for a remedy; which taxeth their folly that take the disease for the remedy and are over forward to minister comfort or ere men have sorrowed after God, and to a transmentation. The English are not sick soon enough (saith One) and they are well again too soon. Tis true of their minds, as well as of their bodies: Curret ergo pœnitentia tua, ne præcurrat sententia: and let our fasts be according to an old Canon, which defines their continuance usque dum stellæ in cœlo appareant, till stars be seen in the sky. It is not for men to scarse up their wounds, till they are throughly searched: nor to get out of the furnace of Mortification, till their hearts melt, as Josiahs did, and fall asunder in their bosomes, like drops of water. Pœnitency and pain are words of one derivation, and very near of kin. Never was any wound cured without sensible pain: never any sin healed without soaking sorrow. Let none dream of a delicacy in the ways of God: nor hope for sound comfort, till they have throughly repented. The Hebrews, as they express sin and punishment by the same word, so do they Repentance and Comfort.

μεταροήσατε. יהם

Verse 39. Even as many] The Devil sweeps all (of maturity) that are not called, as out of the Covenant.

Verse 40. With many words did he testifie] In Gods name, for his sake, and by his authority, as Paul charged Timothy 2 Tim. 2. 14. and as Bradford bespake his friend; I beseech you, I pray you, I desire you, I crave at your hands with all my very heart. I ask of you with hand, pen, tongue, and mind: in Christ, through Christ, for Christ: for his name, blood, mercy, power, and truths sake, that you admit no doubting of Gods final mercies toward you, howsoever you feel your self, &c.

διεμαρτύρετο. Acts & Mon. fol. 1490.

Verse 41. Were baptized] They gave up their names to Christ, and took his mark upon them.

Verse 42. Doctrine and fellowship] So the Philippians, Chap. 1. 5. See the Note.

Verse 43. Fear came upon] The enemies were over-awed, and durst not mute, or attempt against the Church.

Verse 44. Were together] There is a special tye to constancy in the communion of Saints, and community of supplies.

And had all things common] This was voluntary, not necessary. Non fuit præceptum, sed susceptum, saith Piscator.

Verse 45. And sold] So Tyrus when once converted, Isa. 23. 17, 18.

Verse 46. Breaking bread] Friendly feeding together, and (after their love-feasts) celebrating the Lords Supper every Lords-day at least: Whence it was anciently called Panis Hebdomadarius. That of George Tankerfield, a Martyr in Queen Maries days, was singular and extraordinary. For when the hour drew on that he should suffer, he called for a pint of Malmsie and a loaf, that he might eat and drink that in remembrance of Christs Death and Passion, because he could not have it ministred unto him by others, in such manner as Christ commanded. And then he kneeled down, making his confession to the Lord, with all which were in the chamber with him. And after that he had prayed to the Lord, and had read the Institution of the holy Supper by the Lord Jesus, out of the Evangelists, and out of Saint Paul he said; O Lord, thou knowest, I do not this Mos erat convesci & convivari & celebrare cœnam Dom. Tertul.

Digitized by Google

this to derogate authority from any man, or in contempt of those which are thy Ministers; but onely because I cannot have it ministred according to thy Word. And when he had so spoken, he received it with thanksgiving, &c.

Verse 47. Such as should be saved] Heirs of the Kingdom, Iam. 2. Head destinated to the Diadem, saith Tertullian.

Chap. III.

Verse 1. At the hour of prayer.]

THe Jews had their stata precibus tempora, set hours of prayer: See Psal. 55. 17. Dan 6. 10. Act. 10. 3. 30.

Verse 2. To ask alms] This ought not to have been suffered: Deut. 15. There might not be a begger in Israel. But all was out of order, at it useth to be among a people nigh to destruction.

Verse 3. Asked an Alms] The Dutch beggers ask not, but look pitifully.

Verse 4. Look on us] Together with this word there went forth a power; as Luke 5. 17.

Verse 5. Expecting] God was better to him then his expectation. God presseth kindness upon his suitors, and heapeth it upon them, as Naaman upon Gehezi, 2 King. 5.

Verse 6. Silver and gold have I none] The new elected Pope in his solemn Lateran Procession, must take Copper out of his Chamberlains lap, and scatter it among the people, saying, Gold and silver have I none. When as Petrarch writeth that when Pope John 22. dyed, his heirs found in his treasury 250. tuns of Gold. And when Pope Boniface the eighth was taken, and plundred by Philip the Fair, King of France, there was more store of Treasure carried out of his palace, then all the Kings of the earth could shew again, saith the Historian. Every Pope hath the sign of the Cross on his Pantofle shining gloriously with Pearls and precious stones ut plenis faucibus crucem Christi derideat, saith mine Author in derision of Christs cross.

D. Halls Epist. Petrarch. Heidelfield.

Verse 7. His feet and anclebones] The Lord raiseth them that are crooked, but (as a further favour, and far better then that former) he loveth the righteous, Psal. 146. 8. as he did this Cripple, whom he healed on the inside also.

Verse 8. Into the Temple] There to hang up his crutches, as it were.

Walking and leaping] Weak Christians are commonly most affectionate: as this cripple when first cured leaped for joy.

Verse 9. Praising God] Not the Apostles. We may pay the Messenger, but return thanks chiefly to the Sender.

Verse 10. And they knew] There could be therefore no collusion.

Verse 11 Held Peter and John] Fearing perhaps lest if he should lose them, he should lose his limbs again. So that demoniack, Mark. 5. 18.

Verse 12. Why look ye] We are ready to pay our rent to a wrong Landlord.

Verse 13. Denyed him] Crying out, We have no King but Cæsar, Joh. 19.

Verse 14 But ye denied] This he again beats upon, and drives home to the head.

Verse 15. And killed] Wherein they were but our work-men, Zech. 12. 10.

Verse 16. And his Name] That is Christ himself, as Gods name is oft put for Gods self.

Verse 17. I wot that through ignorance] Peter excuseth not their fact, but thus far forth mitigateth it, that it was not the sin against the holy Ghost, which can never be forgiven. This must be carefully cautioned, and the weak informed that they despair not. This irremissible sin, is wilful blaspheming of God, and the work of his Spirit, out of revenge, Heb. 10. 29. A will to crucifie Christ again.

Verse 18. By the mouth of all his Prophets] All the Prophets spake but with one mouth: such a sweet concent, and happy harmony there is in all their writings, as if done by one onely.

Verse 19. Repent and be converted] The first word comprehendeth Contrition and Confession. The second, Faith and Reformation. The first, Repentance for sin: The second, second, Repentance from sin. Da pœnitentiam, & postea indulgentiam, said dying Fulgentius.

Digitized by Google

Verse 20. Preached unto you] Or handed to you, or put into your hands. προχειρισμένον.

Verse 21. Whom the Heavens must receive until, &c.] Note this against the Ubiquitaries: whose error was first broached by Gerson, about the time of the Council of Constance. Afterwards, defended at Paris by Jacobus Faber Stapulensis, An. Dom. 1524. who was therefore banished the next yeer out of France. But Luther brought it into Germany, Brentius tickled for it, and Smidelinus obtruded it upon many even against their wills; and was therefore called the Apostle of the Ubiquity. The Author of the Practice of Piety thus distinguisheth. Secundum esse naturale Christus non est ubique, secundum esse personale Christus est ubique, even the body of Christ. It was objected as an Heresie against Thomas Man, Martyr, that he had affirmed, That the Father of Heaven was the Altar, and the second Person the Sacrament: and that upon the Ascension day, the Sacrament ascended upon the Altar, and there abideth still. But what an audacious heretick is he that writes of the Mortality of the soul, to interpret this place thus, The Heavens must contain him, that is, he must be in the Sun: for he holds that there is no heaven, till the Resurrection? Scultet. Annal. Pract. of Piety p. 15. Act. and Mon. fol. 746.

Until the times of restitution] This Plato hammered at in his great Revolution; when, after many thousands of yeers all things shall be again statu quo prius, as they were at first.

Verse 22. Like unto me] 1. A man, as I am. 2. A Prophet, and more then a Prophet, the Arch-prophet, to whom Moses must vail bonnet Verse 23. Shall be destroyed] As it justly befell the refractory Jews; wrath came upon them to the utmost. 1 Thes. 2. 16.

Verse 24. All the Prophets] The Prophet Isaiah especially, who speaks more like an Evangelist then a Prophet, and is therefore called the Evangelical Prophet. Hierom.

Verse 25. Ye are the children] Here he comforts them, being now cast down.

Verse 26. To bless you] Ephes. 1. 3.

Chap. IV.

Verse. 1. The Captain of the Temple]

The Jews had a band of Garrison-Souldiers deputed for the service and safety of the Temple. Mat. 27. 65. These Forces had many officers. Luke 22. 4. and one Chieftain, here called their Captain: As in their wars with the Romans afterwards, Eleazar the son of Ananias the High-Priest was in this office; a bold and proud youth, as Josephus describeth him. στρατηγὸς.

Verse 2. Being grieved] Being sick of the Devils disease, as Moab was, Num. 22. 3, 4. fretting and vexing at Gods Israel, and eating up their own hearts, because they could not tear out theirs.

Verse 3. Put them in hold] In the Sergeants-ward, not in the gaol or dungeon. τήρησιν. God doth by degrees inure his to suffer hardship Pauciores (saith Cajeto in an Epistle to the brethren of Basilea) vobiscum perimuntur, quod ità Domino visum est, ut stabiliantur seu lenibus pluviis, & sementis mollioribus plantula in arbores maximas proditura. God tempteth not his above what they are able, 1 Cor. 10. 13. Plin.

Verse 4. And the number] A goodly increase. The Lilly is said to be increased by its own juyce that flows from it. So the Church.

Verse 5. On the morrow] Malice is restless. Stephen Gardiner would not sit down to dinner till he had heard of the Bishops burnt at Oxford. Act. & Mon. fol. 1622.

Verse 6. And Annas] The same old man, still no changeling, ὁ παλαι γύνη as it was said of Helena.

Verse 7. By what power] Gods? or the Devils? in Gods name, or by the black art?

Verse 8. Filled with the holy Ghost] i. e. with wisdom and fortitude, according to Christs promise, Mat. 10. 19. 20. Luke 21. 15. See the Notes there.

Verse 9. If we this day be examined of the good deed] q. d. Evil times we must needs say they

Digitized by Google

they are, when good deeds and evil are dangerous alike; when to cure or to kill, is equally criminal. Should I not visit for these things, saith the Lord, &c? Bede said of the ancient Britains, immediately before their destruction by the Saxons, that they were come to that height of wickedness, as to cast an odium upon pious and profitable persons, tanquam in adversarios, as if they had been publike enemies, not fit to be endured

Verse 10. Be it known unto you all] Here was spiritual mettle, steeling the soul against whatsoever opposition. When a mans strength would fall loose, the spirit hems him about, comprehends and keeps him together, Acts 20. 22. and makes him more then a man: as it did the Apostles here, and afterwards Athanasius, Luther and others, qui totius orbis impetum sustinuerunt, who stood out against a world of Adversaries.

Tertul. Verse 11. You builders] Such you should be, and profess to be, sed ad ficatis in Gehennam, ye build backward.

Verse 12. For there is no other name] We have no co-saviour, we need no other Master of Requests in Heaven, but Christ. Say we of Popish Saints and Mediators, as that Heathen did, Contemno minutulos istos deos modo Jovem propitium habeam. William Tracy Esq. in Hen. the eighths time, made it in his Will, That he would have no funeral pomp at his burial, that he passed not upon a Mass, that he trusted in God onely, and hoped by him to be saved, and not by any Saint, &c Herenton his body was taken up and burnt, as an Heretick, Anno 1532. Some Schoolmen (saith Acosta) promise salvation without the knowledge of Christ And Aleid. telleth us, that at the Council of Trent, the salvation of Heathens by the sole strength of Nature without Christ, was much talked of. And Venator the Arminian saith, I deny this Proposition, No man can be saved that is not set into Christ by a lively faith. The Divines of Colen set forth a Book De salute Aristotelis. And Erasmus (whether in jest or earnest I know not) useth this Letany, Vix possum me continere quin dicam Sancte Socrates ora pro nobis. But if any do seriously fancy any other way to salvation besides Christ, that proverb mentioned by Aristotle in his Meteorology, is verified of him, viz. καὶ ᾧ ἑαυτὸν ἔλκει, ὡς ὁ κακὸς νέφος, he is a wicked and wretched miscreant.

A. & Mon. fol. 953.

Erasm in Praefac. ad Tusc. Cic. quaestiones.

Verse 13. Unlearned and ignorant men] Indoctos elegit Christus & idiotas, sed oculavit in prudentes: simulque dona dedit & ministeria. The primitive persecutors slighted the Christians for a company of bard illiterate fellows: and therefore they used to paint the God of the Christians with an Asses head, and a book in his hand, saith Tertullian, to signifie, That though they pretended learning, yet they were silly and gnorant people Bishop Jewel in his Sermon upon Luke 11. 15. cites this out of Tertullian, and applyes it to his times. Do not our Adversaries the like, saith he against all that profess the Gospel? Oh say they, Who are those that favour this way? None but Shoomakers, Taylors, Weavers, and such as never were at the University. These are the Bishops own words. Bishop White said in open Court, some few years since, That the Puritans were all a company of Blockheads. The Jesuites say the same of all the Protestants; and that the Empire of learning is within their dominion onely. But have they not pickt up the best of their crums under our tables? and have not our English Fugitives exceeded all their fellow-Jesuites, in shew of wit and learning?

Penes se esse literarium imperium Eudæm. in Casaub.

Verse 14. They could say nothing] The Arabian Interpreter adds, Ut authoritas exterentur in eos, That they might punish them. They were cleerly convinced, and yet ran away with the bit between their teeth, they would hold their own howsoever, lest they should be taxed of lightness Verse 15. They conferred] Sic festucam quaerentes unde oculos sibi eruant, as Bernard hath it. They sought straws to put out their own eyes withall.

Verse 16. A notable miracle] A signal sign that all the Countrey rang of.

Verse 17. That they speak henceforth to none] They must cut out their tongues then, for as new wine, they must vent or burst. When Valens the Arrian Emperor threatned Basil with banishment, torment, death, &c. Let him fright babies, said he, with such bug-bears, and not me. He may take away my life, But not my love to the Truth.

Verse 18. Command them not to speak at all] So in the year of grace 494. Anastasius the Emperor persecuted those that would not obey an Edict of his, That no man should commend or condemn the Council of Chalcedon. So Heraclius commanded that none should say, That there was either one or two Wils in our Saviour Christ. So, the Jesuites not long since set forth an Edict at Dola, that none should speak of God, either in good sort, or in bad.

Alsted. Chron.

Heyl. Geogr.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verse 19. Whether it be right, &c.] This was a principle held very fast by the Heathens. Antigona in Sophocles saith, Magis obtemperandum est Diis apud quos diutius manendum erit, quam hominibus, quibuscum admodum brevi tempore vivendum est. Better obey God with whom we must ever live, then men with whom we have but a while to continue. And Euripides saith well: Should we not obey the commands of Princes? Non, si impia, injusta, & male imperata sint: No, if they command evil things. And in Iphigenia, Obediemus, inquit, Atridis honesta mandantibus: sin vero inhonesta mandabunt, non obediemus. In Phœnissis.

Verse 20. For we cannot but speak] As Crœsus his dumb son did for his father. Strong affections if they find no vent, the heart will cleave; as the waters undermine when they cannot overflow. Ἀνέφξε μὲν κτείνε τὸν Κροῖσον.

Verse 21. Finding nothing how] With what face they could do any thing against them, though their fingers even itched to be doing something. Bucer so carried himself here in England, that neither his friends could sufficiently praise, nor his foes find any fault with him. And for Luther, Non leve præjudicium est, said Erasmus, tantam esse morum integritatem, ut nec hostes reperiant quod calumnientur. His life is so unblameable that his greatest enemies cannot blemish him. Act. & Mon.

Because of the people] Those that are most terrible to others, are not without their terrors. Dionysius the tyrant durst not be be barbed but by his own daughters. Masinissa King of Numidia, committed the guard of his body to dogs; which he could sooner trust, then men, whom he had by his cruelty displeased and provoked.

Verse 22. Above fourty years old] An old cripple, therefore the greater miracle: so it is to convert an old sinner (that is habituated and long accustomed to evil courses) from the error of his way: sith it is true of many others as well as of Flemmings, that quo magis senescunt, eò magis stulteſcunt, they grow crooked and aged with good opinions of themselves without cause; and can seldom or never be set straight again. Erasm. Moriæ Enc.

Verse 23. And being let go] For there was no hope of altering them. The Heavens shall sooner fall then I will renounce my religion, said One Martyr. And if I had as many lives to lay down as I have hairs upon mine head, I would lose them every one rather then change my mind, said another. This courage in Christians the persecutors counted obstinacy: but they knew not the power of the Spirit, nor the as triplex circa pectus, the privy armour of proof that the Saints have about their hearts. Act. & Mon.

Verse 24. Lord] Master Controuler, Thou that madest and managest all things. Pitch upon fit attributes of God in prayer. Δέσποτα.

Verse 25. The Heathen rage] Or. make a stir. The devil being cast out of heaven makes ado, so do unruly spirits led by him.

Verse 26. Gathered together] Heb. Took counsel together. They plot and plow mischief to the Church: but all in vain, Psal. 37. 12. Job 4. 8.

Verse 27. Both Herod and Pontius Pilate, &c.] So of old, Psal. 2. 1, 2. &c. & Psal. 83. 5, 6, 7. So a late against Luther, the Emperour, the Pope, the Kings of Spain, France, England, Hungary, which two last wrote against him, as did also Eckius, Roffensis, Cajetan, Sir Tho. Moor, Johannes Faber, Cochlæus, Catharinus, Pighius, Summo conatu acerrimo desiderio, non vulgari doctrinâ (as an Author saith) with all eager desire, utmost endeavour, and extraordinary learning: But what said He to all this? Agant quicquid possunt Henrici, Episcopi, atque adeo Turca, & ipse Satan: nos filii sumus regni, &c. Let the Henries, the Bishops, the Turk, and the devil himself do what they can, we are the children of the Kingdom, worshipping and waiting for that Saviour, whom they and such as they spit upon and crucifie. Præter vitam hanc miſellam, Satanas & mundus eripere nobis nihil potest. At vivit & in sempiternum regnat Christus, &c. with many like golden sentences, which a man would fetch upon his knees (saith a Reverend man) from Rome or Jerusalem. Patei med. hist. prof. Mr. Samuel Clark in his Lives, tom. 1. pag. 92. Greg.

Verse 28. For to do whatsoever, &c.] Divinum consilium dum devitatur, impletur. Humana sapientia dum reluctatur, comprehenditur.

Verse 29. Behold their threatnings] The Church fares the better for the menaces and blasphemies of their enemies. Quo magis illi furunt, eo amplius procedo, saith Luther.

Verse 30. And that signs and wonders] Etiamsi rumpantur adversarii, & toti inferi in rabiem ebulliant, saith Calvin here: though earth and hell both burst with envy.

Verse 31. The place was shaken] So God testified to his Church that he shook them, as men do young trees, to ſettle them, Hag. 2.7. God ſhaketh all Nations not to ruine, but to refine them: as by rotting he refineth our dead bodies, Phil. 3.21.

Digitized by Google

Tertul. Verſe 32. Were of one heart] In primitiva Eccleſia, ſaith one, Chriſtiani animo animaque inter ſe miſcebantur, & omnia præter uxores, indiſcreta habebant. Sed fraternitas omnis hodiè extincta eſt, & unanimitas primitiva non tantum diminuta (de quo Cypria-Paric. Iun. in Not ad Clem. nus ſuis temporibus queritur) ſed è medio penitus ſublata eſſe videtur. One ancient Greek copy hath theſe words added to the ordinary reading, Neither was there any Beza ex Beda. controverſie at all amongſt them.

Verſe 33. Great grace was upon them all] Dropped down, as it were, upon them from heaven. God it is that faſhioneth mens opinions, and maketh them think well of us. He gave Solomon honour as well as wiſdom. And of him it was, that whatſoever David did, pleaſed the people. Paul goes to God for acceptance of his ſervice, which yet was the bringing of alms. And ſuch are uſually very welcome.

Verſe 34. Neither was there any] This got them ſo much favour among all. Heathens acknowledged that there was no ſuch love as among Chriſtians.

Verſe 35. According as he had need] The diſtribution was done with diſcretion. See Pſal. 112.5. King Edward the Sixth moved thereto by a Sermon of Biſhop Ridley, gave Chriſts-Hoſpital, the Savoy, and Bridewel for the uſe of the poor 1 by impoten-
Speeds Chron. cy; 2 by caſualty; 3 by ill-husbandry; with ſingular diſcretion. Doctor Taylor Martyr
Act. & Mon. took the ableſt of his pariſhioners once a fortnight to the Almeshouſe, and among other poor men, that had many children or were ſick, to ſee what they lacked in meat, drink, bedding, or any other neceſſaries, and procured a ſupply for them.

Verſe 36. Sirnamed Barnabas] See the Note on Chap. 1.23. with Phil. 7.

Verſe 37. At the Apoſtles feet] As the fitteſt place. Do we tread upon the minerals, and cannot we contemn them?

Chap. V.

Verſe 1. With Sapphira his wife]

HEr name ſignifieth Beautiful, or Specious. She might be ſo on the outſide, as thoſe apples of Sodom, the Egyptian temples or Jewiſh ſepulchres: but her heart was rotten, and not right with God. Hypocrites are called Vipers (Mat. 3.7.) which are outwardly ſpecious, inwardly poyſonous. The Swan is white in feathers, but of a black skin: and was therefore reputed unclean, and unmeet for ſacrifice.

Verſe 2. And kept back part] Interverted, purloyned, nimm'd it away. Here was ἐνοσφίσατο. a concurrence of hypocriſie, ſacriledge, diffidence, and ambition: for he would be thought as good as the beſt, and therefore laid that he brought at the Apoſtles feet, &c. Hypocrites ſhall be uncaſed: No goat in a ſheepskin ſhall ſteal on Chriſts right hand at the laſt day.

Verſe 3. Why hath Satan] The firſt motion of ſelling his poſſeſſion was of the holy Ghoſt: but Beelzebub had ſoon fly blown and corrupted it.

Verſe 4. Was it not thine own] Wicked men have a right to earthly things as their portion, Pſal. 17.14. God gave Tyrus to Nebuchadnezzar.

Vere 5. Fell down, and gave up] So did Nightingal, Parſon of Crondal by Canterbury: who, on a Shrove-ſunday reading to the people the Popes Bull of pardon ſent into Act. & Mon. England by Cardinal Pool, fell ſuddenly down dead out of the Pulpit, and never ſtirred fol. 1417. hand nor foot: witneſſed by all the countrey round about. Philbert Hamlin Martyr, had inſtructed in the truth a certain Prieſt his Hoſt, who afterwards revolted. Hamlin prophecyed to him that nevertheleſs he ſhould dye before him. He had no ſooner ſpoke the word, but the Prieſt going out of the priſon was ſlain by two Gentlemen who had a quarrel to him. Whereof when Hamlin heard, he affirmed he knew of no ſuch thing:
Ib. 834. but only ſpake as God guided his tongue. Whereupon immediately he made an exhortation of the providence of God, which, by the occaſion thereof, moved the hearts of many, and converted them to God. Patrick Hamilton a Scotch Martyr, being in the fire, cited and appealed the black-Frier called Campbel that accuſed him to appear before fore the High God as general Judge of all men, to answer to the innocency of his death betwixt that and a certain day of the next moneth, which he there named. The Frier died immediatly before the day came without remorse of conscience, &c. The Judge of the earth keepeth his petty Sessions now, letting the Law pass upon some few, reserving the rest till the great Assizes. 1 Tim. 5.24. Some flagitious persons he punisheth here, lest his providence, but not all, lest his patience and promise of a general judgement should be called in question. Very remarkable was Gods hand upon Mistris Hutchinson (that Jezabel of New-England) and her family, all slain (some say burnt) by the Indians. One of her disciples falling into a lie, God smote him in the very act, that he sunk down into a deep swoun. And being by hot waters recovered, and coming to himself, he said, Oh God, thou mightest have struck me dead, as Ananias and Sapphira, For I have maintained a lye.

Digitized by Google

lb. 889. Aug in Ps 30. Mr. Welds preface to his Story.

And great fear came on all] God takes some malefactors, and hangs them up in Gibbets, as it were; that others warned thereby, may hear, and fear, and do no more so. Alterius perditio tua sit cautio. Cavebis autem si pavebis. Seest thou another suffer shipwrack? look well to thy tackling.

Vers. 6. And the young men arose] Decent burial this hypocrite had, though he deserved it not. Temporaries enjoy many outward priviledges per consortium.

Vers. 7. Not knowing what was done] And thinking to finde her husband in highest honour among the Apostles. But the eyes of the wicked shall fail, and their hope shall be as the giving up of the Ghost, Job 11.20.

Vers. 8. Tea, for so much] Sin had woaded an impudency in her face. How much better that brave woman in St. Hierome, who being upon the Rack, said, Non ideò negare volo, ne peream; sed ideò mentiri nolo, ne peccem. I will rather die then lye.

Vers. 9. To tempt the spirit] That is, to make tryal of him whether he be Omniscient, and able to detect and punish your hypocrisie. No man is a gross hypocrite, but he is first an Atheist.

Vers. 10. Then fell she down] Melancthon makes mention of a cursing woman, that had her neck writhed by the Devil, as her mouth was full of cursing and bitterness, Anno 1551.

Vers. 11. And great fear] See the Notes on ver. 5. Laudo Venetos, apud quos unicum publicæ pecuniæ intervertisse denarium, non infame solum est, sed & capitale. Among the Venetians, it is death to diminish a peny of the publick stock. Zenecat. in observat. politic. cap. 14.

Vers. 12. Were many signs and wonders] Which were as so many Sermon Bells to bring men to the Church; and as so many wings to carry the Gospel abroad the world.

Vers. 13. Durst no man joyn himself] None of the powerfull enemies of the Church durst insinuate (for fear of the danger) as Sanballat and Tobiah would have done in Nehemiahs days: and as the Jesuites now-adayes have a practice of running over to the Lutheran Church, pretending to be converted, and to build with them: but it is only to keep up that bitter contention between the Calvinists and Lutherans.

Vers. 14. And believers were the more added] So little lost the Church by that dreadfull doom that befell Ananias and Sapphira. Hypocrites are but the wens, or rather botches of the Church. When Gods judgements are upon them, the inhabitants of the earth will learn righteousness: they will wash their feet in the blood of the wicked, Psal. 52.6. Let the Lord but kill Jesabels children with death, and then all the Churches will take knowledge, that it is He that searcheth the reins and heart, and that giveth unto every man according to his works. Isa. 26. 9. Rev. 2. 23.

Vers. 15. The shadow of Peter passing by] Upon these stupendious miracles, as upon so many Eagles (or rather Angels) wings, was the Gospel carried abroad the world then. And the establishing of the Reformation begun alate by Luther, &c. to be done by so weak and simple means, yea, by casual and cross means, against the force of so potent and politick an adversary as the Pope, is that miracle which we are in these times to look for.

Verse 16. And they were healed every one] Christ is Jehovah the Physician, Exod. 15 26. He hath a most happy hand, and was never foiled by any disease, Psal. 103.3. Omnipotenti medico nullus insanabilis occurrit morbus; To an Almighty Physician no disease can be incurable. Isidor.

Digitized by Google

Ver. 17. With indignation] Gr. With Zeal; but it was that bitter Zeal, Jam. 3. 14. that grows not but in Satans garden.

Verse 18. Put them in the common prison] Becardo (when the good Bishops were there in Queen Maries dayes) was called a Colledge of Quondams: And almost all other prisons in England were become right Christian Schools, and Churches, saith Mr. Fox.

Act. & Mon. fol. 1382.

Verse 19. But the Angel of the Lord] There was one Laremoth, Chaplain to the Lady Anne of Cleve, a Scotchman, to whom, being in prison in Queen Maries dayes, it was said, as he thought, once, twice, thrice, Arise and go thy wayes. Whereupon he arising from Prayer, a piece of the prison-wall fell down, and he escaped beyond Sea.

Act. & Mon. 1943.

Verse 20. Stand and speak] Stand close to the work, stir not a foot, start not a hairs breadth.

Verse 21. They entred into the Temple early, &c.] True obedience is prompt and present, ready and speedy, without delays and consults, Psal. 119. 60. Mar. 1. 18. Zech. 5. 9. they had Wings, and wind in their wings, to note, as Junius observs, their ready obedience.

Verse 22. But when the officers came] As at a Lottery, they came with heads full of hopes: but returned with hearts full of blanks.

Verse 23. We found no man within] This might well have made them to desist. But what said the Prophet long before? Lord when thy hand is lifted up, they will not see: Howbeit, they shall see and be ashamed for their envy at thy people, &c. Isa. 26. 11.

διηπόρων. Verse 24. They doubted of them] Conturbabantur, & ad angustias inexplicabiles deinde hæsitabant, they were at their wits end, and could not tell what in the world to do with them. Herod was troubled in like sort, Luk. 9. 7. So was Diocletian, who therefore laid down the Empire, because he could not conquer the Christians, meerly out of discontent; so did Charles the fifth, &c.

Greg. Verse 25. Behold the men whom ye put in prison] Surely there is neither wisdom, nor understanding, nor counsel against the Lord, Prov. 21. 30. Gods minde is fulfilled by them that have least minde to it: humane wisdom, whilest it strives for masteries, is shamefully foiled and overmastered.

Verse 26. And brought them without violence] The Apostles made no resistance, but shewed themselves patient and peaceable, blameless amidst a perverse generation, and harmless as Doves, that neither provoke the Hawk, nor project revenge; but when pursued, they save themselves, if they can, by flight, and not by fight.

Verse 27. They set them before the Council] Where the High Priest might well have done, as the Prolocutor here in the Convocation held at London, Anno 1553 did: he confessed, that those dejected Ministers before them had the word on their side; but the Prelates in place had the possession of the sword.

Speed 1145. ex Grafton. Hollinsh. Fox.

Verse 28. And intend to bring this mans blood upon us] They pretend the doctrine, but this was the thing that most troubled them; they should be counted Kill Christs.

Eurip. Tis but just that οἱ πράξοντες τὰ μὴ καλὰ, πλήσωσι τὰ μὴ φιλά: they that do things not honest, should both hear and bear things not delightfull. But wicked men love not to

Deut. 26. 41. be told their own; neither accept they of the punishment of their iniquity. They report me to suck blood (said Bonner in open Court) and call me bloody Bonner: whereas, God

Act. & Mon. 1536. knows, I never fought any mans blood in all my life. The very same day wherein he had burned good Mr. Philpot, being drunk with blood, and not well knowing what he did, he delivered Rich. Woodman with four more (whom but two days before he had threatned to condemn, and the very morrow after he sought for again, yea and that earnestly) requiring of them but to be honest men, Members of the Church Catholick (which they promised) and to speak good of him: And no doubt (saith Woodman) he was worthy to be praised, because he had done the Devil his Master such doubty service. A cer-

Ibid. 1800.

Ibid. 1670. tain unknown good woman in a Letter to him did him right. Indeed said she, you are called the common cut-throat, and general slaughter-slave to all the Bishops of England, &c.

Verse 29. We ought to obey God rather then men] This is a principle granted and grafted in us by Nature. I love and embrace you, O Athenians (said Socrates, in his Apologie) but yet I will obey God rather then you. See more in the Note on chap. 4. ver. 19. Mat 22. 21. The Article is twice repeated when our Saviour speaks of God, more then when of Cæsar: to shew that our special care should be to give God his due.

Verse 30.

Digitized by Google

Verse 30. Ye slew and hanged on a tree] Constantine the great, in honour of our Saviour, took away, by a Law, that custom of crucifying men, in use, till then, among the Romans. A lingring and cruel kinde of death: As was likewise that of Impaling, very usual (saith Illyricus) among the Ancients: The Malefactors had a stake or pale thrust in at their fundament, and it came out again at their shoulders: So that if the stake did not pierce their hearts or vitals, as it was thrust up, they lived sometimes two or three days in exquisite pain and torment. And to this kind of cruel death, saith he, St. Paul seemeth to allude, 2 Cor. 12. 7. Hist. tripart. lib. 1. cap. 10. Illyr. in clav. Script. σκόλοψ. παιδαγχάσιν πιέυσαι.

Verse 31. To be a Prince and a Saviour] Σωτῆρα. Hoc verò quantum est? saith Cicero. Ita magnum, ut Latino uno verbo exprimi non possit. Is nimirum soter est qui salutem dedit. The Greek word for Saviour is so emphatical, that other Tongues can hardly finde a fit word to expresse it. Antigonus Σωτὴρ ἐκλήθη, Antigonus (for liberty restored to the Lacedemonians) was counted and called a Saviour: so was the Roman Fabricius at Athens, Hunniades in Hungary, &c. Before them all, Joseph was called by Pharaoh Thaphnath Paaneath, that is, (as Hierome interpreteth it) the Saviour of the World. Several Kings of Syria, who had the name Antiochus common to them, were distinguished by glorious Epithites. One was called Antiochus ὁ Μέγας the Great, another Antiochus Ἐπιφανὴς or Illustrious; a third Antiochus Θεὸς, which signifies God; a fourth Antiochus Σώτης, that is, Saviour; a fifth Antiochus Εὐπάτωρ, a most indulgent Father. Christ is all these more truly and by an excellency. A great God above all Gods, an illustrious Prince and Saviour (as the Apostle here stileth him) a most tender-hearted Father, who could not only wish with David to die for his Absoloms, but did it in very deed, and all to purchase repentance, and thereby remission of sins: according to that holy Petition of an Ancient; First give Repentance, and then Pardon. Cic in ver. Act. 4. Hilar.

Verse 32. To them that obey him] The Syriack and Arabick have it, To them that believe in him. It comes all to one pass; for neither is Faith without Obedience, nor obedience without Faith: and both are from the Spirit.

Verse 33. They were cut to the heart] They were so vexed, as if they had been cut with a saw. Or the gnashing of their teeth sounded as the reciprocation of a saw.

Verse 34. Named Gamaliel] Who was, say the Jews, the son of Simeon, Luk. 2. 25. the son of Hillel. See chap. 22. 3.

Verse 35. Take heed to your selves] Anger is an evil Councellor; do nothing rashly. Alexander slew those in his heat, whom afterwards he would have revived with his heart-blood. Ambrose absolving Theodosius the Emperour, enjoyned him to stay the execution of whatsoever Statute, till thirty days were over. προσέχετε.

Verse 36. Rose up Theudas] See Joseph. Antiq. l. 18. c. 20. & l. 17. c. 12.

Verse 37. Rose up Judas of Galilee] Or Judas Gaulonites. It was the blood of his followers, that Pilate mingled with their Sacrifices, Luk. 13. 1. To his faction belonged those Hacksters or Murtherers, Act. 21. 38. who might very well be of the Sect of the Essenes, called by some Hasshom, that is, Rebels: because, under pretence of asserting the publique liberty, they taught the Jews not to acknowledge the Roman Empire: choosing rather to endure the most exquisite torments, then to call any man living Lord. Ioseph. lib. 18. cap. 2.

Verse 38. Let them alone, for if, &c.] Perilous counsel, but profitable to the Church: God so ordering it, as he doth all, for the best to his.

Verse 39. Ye cannot overthrow it] Neither you, nor Kings and Tyrants to help you: So one ancient Greek copy readeth it. Diocletian laid down the Empire in great discontent, because he could not, by any persecution, suppress the true Christian Religion. So did Charles the fifth; a politick Prince, and a sore enemy to the Church. He when he had in his hand Luther dead, and Melancthon, Pomeran, and other Preachers of the Gospel alive, he not only determined not any thing extreamly against them, or violated their graves, but also entreating them gently, sent them away; not so much as once forbidding them to publish openly the Doctrine that they professed. For it is the nature of Christs Church, That the more that Tyrants spurn against it, the more it flourisheth and increaseth. Beza. Act. & Mon. fol. 1784.

Verse 40. And to him they agreed] So did the enraged people to the Elders, alledging the example of Micah the Morashtite: Jer. 26. 18. See the use and efficacy of History, which hath its name, say some, ἀπὸ τοῦ ἱστάναι τὸ ῥεῦν, of stopping the stream of violence.

Digitized by Google

Act. & Mon. fol. 1553. Verſe 41. Worthy to ſuffer ſhame] That they were graced ſo, to be diſgraced for Chriſt, Elegantiſſimum oxymoron, ſaith Caſaubon. So Philip. 1.29. To you it is given (as an honourary) to ſuffer. Which (ſaith Father Latimer) is the greateſt promotion that God gives in this world. Martyr etiam in catena gaudet, ſaith Auſtuſtine. Maſter Glover Martyr wept for joy of his impriſonment. And God forgive me (ſaid Maſter Bradford) my unthankfulneſs, for this exceeding great mercy, that among ſo many thouſands he chuſeth me to be one in whom he will ſuffer, &c. The Martyrs in Severus the Emperors days, releaſed for a ſeaſon, ſeemed to come, è myrotheca non ergaſtulo, ſaith Euſebius, out of a perfuming-houſe rather then a priſon-houſe; merry they were, and much cheared, that were ſo much honoured, as to ſuffer for Chriſt.

Ibid. 14.

Lib. 5. cap. 2.

Ver. 42. They ceaſed not] Creſcit igitur animus cum adverſis. The more outragious the one, the more couragious the other party.

Chap. VI.

Verſe 1. Of the Grecians.]

Ἑλληνιστῶν Græciſts; ſuch (ſay ſome) as were by birth and Religion Hebrews, but diſperſed among the Gentiles. Thoſe to whom Iames and Peter wrote their Epiſtles. Others think they were Greek Proſelytes, that were circumciſed, and read the Septuagint.

Verſe 2. It is not reaſon] ἀρεσὸν an arreſt, or order, ſaith Eraſmus: a plea, judgement, or ſentence, ſaith Budæus.

Serve tables] And do other ſuch offices for the relief of the poor. Biſhop Hooper is famous for his board of Beggers, who till they were ſerved every day with whole and wholſom meats, he would not himſelf ſit down to dinner. Laudent te eſurientium viſcera, non ructantium opulenta convivia, ſaid Hierome to Demetrius, Charity is better then courteſie.

Verſe 3. Full of the Holy Ghoſt and Wiſdom] i.e. Civil wiſdom to manage the publike ſtock, and to put all to the beſt, for the relief of the neceſſitous Saints. I Wiſdom dwell with prudence, and finde out knowledge of witty inventions, Prov. 8. 12.

Verſe 4. To prayer, and to the miniſtery] Between theſe two they divided their time. An argument of their integrity in the Miniſtery. If we were to preach onely, ſaith the Apoſtle, we could then wait upon tables: but the one half of our time is to be taken up in Prayer, the other in Preaching. So the Prieſts of old: They ſhall teach Jacob thy judgements, ſaith Moſes, they ſhall alſo put incenſe before thee, Deut. 33. 10. So Paul begins, continues, and endeth his Epiſtles with Prayer. So Luther profeſſeth, That he profited more in the knowledge of the Scriptures by prayer, in a ſhort ſpace, then by ſtudy in a longer; as John by weeping got the ſealed book opened.

Verſe 5. Prochorus, Nicanor, and Timon] Hi tres celebrantur ſeduli in lectitandis ſacris. Malcolm. Theſe three (as Davids firſt three Worthies) are famous for their unweariableneſs in Gods work.

Verſ. 6. They laid their hands] So putting the bleſſing upon them. A very ancient rite, borrowed from the Church of the old Teſtament.

Verſe 7. A great company of the Prieſts] Deſpair not therefore of the worſt: God hath his time to call them. Wicliff was a great enemy to the ſwarms of begging Friers, with whom it was harder to make War then with the Pope himſelf; whom he pronounced Antichriſt, and made him loſe in England his Tenths and Peter-pence; Howbeit ſundry of the Friers fell to him, and embraced his opinions; amongſt whom, One that was the Popes Chaplain: profeſſing that he came out of his Order, and out of the devils Neſt.

Speed.

Verſe 8. And Stephen full of faith] He uſing the office of a Deacon well, did purchaſe to himſelf a good degree, and great boldneſs in the faith which is in Chriſt Jeſus, 1 Tim. 3. 13. A diligent man ſtays not long in a low place.

Verſe 9. Certain of the Synagogue] There were Colledges at Ieruſalem, as now at our Univerſities, whither Foreigners came for learning-ſake. Theſe withſtood Stephen: like like as in the beginning of the Reformation, Eckius, Roffensis, More, Cajetan, Faber, Cochlæus, Catharinus, Pighius, all these wrote against Luther, (besides the two Kings of England und Hungary) summo conatu, primo desiderio, non vulgari doctrinâ, as one faith. In like sort Rochester, Rastal, More, set at once against John Frith Martyr: whereof the one by the help of the Doctors, the other by wresting the Scriptures, and the third by the help of natural Philosophy, had conspired against him. But he, as another Hercules, fighting with all three at once, did so overthrow and confound them, that he converted Rastal to his part. Pareus in Medul. hist. Act. & Mon. 943.

Digitized by Google

Verse 10. By which he spake] Because he convinced them with great boldness, neither could they withstand the truth. These words are found in one very ancient Copy, as Beza witnesseth.

Verse 11. Then they suborned] This they had learned of that old man-slayer, John 8. 44.

Verse 12. Caught him, and brought him] Sic vi geritur res; The Adversaries best arguments. In the conclusion of the disputation at Oxford with Cranmer, Ridly, and Latimer, Weston the Prolocutor triumphed with Vicit veritas: He should rather have said, Vicit potestas. Not right but might hath carryed it. Act. & Mon.

Verse 13. Blasphemous words] So was Athanasius accused.

Verse 14. Shall destroy this place] sc. Unless they repent.

And shall change the rites] But shall change them for the better. This they cunningly concealed, and made the worst of things, therefore they are counted false witnesses: like as Doegs tongue was a false tongue, (though he spake but the truth) Psal. 120. 3. and deceitful, Psal. 52. 4. condemned to be broyled on coals of Juniper, which burn very fiercely, and are a great while ere they go out. A report or testimony may be false, either by denying, disguising, lessening, concealing, misconstruing things of good report: Or else by forging, increasing, aggravating, or uncharitably spreading things of evil report: Which though they be true, yet if I know them not to be so: or knowing them to be true, if I divulge them not for any love to the truth, nor for respect to justice, nor for the bettering of the hearer, or the delinquent; but only to disgace the one, and incense the other: I cannot avoid the imputation of a slanderer and false witness. Dr. Hakew.

Verse 15. As it had been the face of an Angel] Such was the purity of his conscience, the goodness of his cause, and the greatness of his courage. There is an history of a Dutch Martyr, who calling to the Judge that had sentenced him to the fire, desired him to lay his hand upon his heart; and then asked him whose heart did most beat, his, or the Judges? Many of the Martyrs went with as good cheer to dye as to dine. Cromwel going to his death, eat an hearty breakfast. Ridley called it his wedding-day. And another, clipping the stake he was burned at, said, Welcome mine own sweet wife: Welcome the Cross of Christ. Colonus.

Chap. VII.

Verse 1. Are these things so?

A Fair hearing Stephen should have, but his death was aforehand resolved on.

Verse 2. The God of Glory] Before whom Seraphims (those heavenly Salamanders) clap their two wings as a double scarf, on their faces, as not able to bear his brightness; or as men are wont to clap their hands on their eyes, in a sudden flash of lightning. Sol reliqua sidera occultat, quibus & lumen suum fœnerat, saith Pliny. Isa. 6. 2. Lib. 2. cap. 6

Verse 3. Get thee out, &c.] Both Abrahams great temptations began thus; See the Note on Gen. 12. 1, 2, &c.

Verse 5. No not so much as] An holy Proverb, Deut. 2. 5. Even to the treading of the sole of the foot. The first purchase that Abraham made, was for a burial-place.

Verse 6. Four hundred years] Beginning at the birth of Isaac.

Verse 7. And serve me in this place.] Servati sumus ut serviamus; Luke 1. 74. The redeemed (among the Romans) was to be at the service of the Redeemer all his dayes.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 8. And he gave him, &c.] See the Note on Gen. 17. 11.

Verſe 9. Sold Joſeph] See the Note on Gen. 37. 28.

Verſe 10. Gave him favour] See the Note on Gen. 41. 37.

Verſe 12. 1. But when Jacob] See the Note on Gen. 42. 1.

Verſe 11, 12. 13, 14, &c.] See my Notes upon Geneſis ad loca ſingula.

Verſe 19. Dealt (subtilly) *Let us deal wiſely (ſaith he) Exod.* 1. 10. ſubtilly ſaith this Text. The worlds wiſdom is but ſubtilty, ſophiſtry, fallacy. And God took this wizard in his own craftineſs. 1 Cor. 3. 19. for your labouring men have the luſtieſt children.

κατασοφισάμενος.

Verſe 20. Exceeding fair] Paſſing pretty, a proper child, as the Apoſtle hath it, Heb. 11. 23. Juſtin maketh mention of his beautiful perſonage: and by this, as by an Inſtrument, God moved his parents firſt, and then the Princeſs to pity and preſerve him. The greek word here rendered fair, ſignifies fine, trim, elegant, ſo as Citizens are, when trimmed up in their bravery upon days of feſtivity.

Juſtin. Hiſt. 36.

ἀστεῖος.

Verſe 21.] See Notes on Exod. 2. 5.

Verſe 22. And Moſes was learned] See my Common-place of Arts. Lactantius ſaith of Tertullian, that he was in omni genere doctrinæ peritus, skilful in all kind of learning. Hierom ſaith of him, that his works contained cunctam ſeculi doctrinam, all the learning of the world: Better may this be ſaid of Moſes and his writings.

Verſe 23. [See Heb. 11. 24. with the Note.

It came into his heart] ſc. By an impulſe of the holy Spirit: for till then, it ſeems he had ſlighted them: but now he began to be ſick of the affliction of Joſeph, whereby he was even broken to ſhivers, as the Hebrew word Shevarim ſignifies, Amos 6. 6.

Verſe 24. And avenged him] Wherein haply he was too haſty to do juſtice afore his time: which might coſt him, and cauſe him fourty years exile in Midian.

Verſe 25. But they underſtood not] For by this time they through long and hard oppreſſion (which makes even a wiſe man mad) had well nigh forgotten the promiſe of deliverance out of Egypt; and having been born in hell (as the proverb is) they knew no other heaven.

Eccleſ. 7. 7.

Verſe 26. Sirs, ye are Brethren] In this Egypt of the world, all unkinde ſtrifes ſhould eaſily be compoſed, did we but remember that we are brethren.

Verſe 27. He that did the wrong] None ſo ready to except and exclaim, as the wrong-doer: the patient replies not.

Verſe 28. Wilt thou kill me? &c.] If this Hebrew had been well-pleaſed, Moſes had not heard of his ſlaughter, now in choler all will out. If this mans tongue had not thus caſt him in the teeth with blood, he had been ſurprized by Pharaoh, ere he could have known the fact was known: Now he grows jealous, flies and eſcapes. No friend is ſo commodious in ſome caſes as an Adverſary.

Verſe 29. Then fled Moſes] And by being baniſhed, was the better fitted to be King in Jeſhurun.

Verſe 30.] See Exod. 3. 2.

Verſe 31. He wondered at the ſight] How many come to the ordinances to ſee and to be ſeen? they may hear that with Moſes here, that may do them good for ever.

Verſe 32.] See Exod. 3. 6.

Verſe 33. Put off thy ſhoes] Thy fleſhly affections, and be wholy at my diſpoſe, in the buſineſs whereabout I ſhall ſend thee.

Verſe 34. I have ſeen, I have ſeen] To my grief and regret. God is ſaid to ſuffer in the ſufferings of his people. The Father, Iſa. 63. 9. The Son Act. 9. 4. The holy Ghoſt, 1 Pet. 4. 14.

Verſe 35. By the hands] That is, by the Authority and Conduct. Hands are not here taken for ſervice, but ruledome: and Chriſt is ſet above Moſes, as Heb. 3. 5.

Verſe 36. And in the wilderneſs] Where their garments were no whit the worſe for wearing. Why then ſhould we queſtion the incorruptibility of our bodies at the Reſurrection?

Verſe 37. Like unto me] See the note on Acts 3. 22.

Verſe 38. Lively Oracles] That is, Life-giving Oracles. The Law is ſaid to be the ſtrength of ſin, 1 Cor. 15. But this is by accident, through our corruption.

Verſe 39. Thruſt him from them] The preſent government is alway grievous, as Thucydides

Digitized by Google

cydides observeth. Alleva jugum, Alleva jugum, said those in Rehoboham's dayes, that were all for a relaxation. Ἀπὸ τοῦ πολλὰ βαρύ. Thucyd Verse 40. Make us Gods] That is, an image, or representation of God. This was not to keep their promise, Exod. 19. 8.

Verse 41. And offered sacrifice to the Idoll,] That is, to the Devil (Psal. 106.37.) Who is εἰδωλοχαρὴς as Synesius cals him. Howbeit the Idolaters pretended herein to worship Jehovah, Exod. 32. 4, 5. See the Note there. Their Mawmet, if it would not make a God, would make an excellent Devil: as the Maior of Dancaster told the wise-men of Cockram concerning their ill-shaped rood. Act. 8

Verse 42. Of the Prophets] The twelve small Prophets were in one volume.

Verse 43. Of your god Remphan] Amos 5. called Chijun. These are but divers names of the same Idoll; The Hebrews calling it by one name, the Egyptians by another. See Selden de Diis Syris.

Verse 44. Our Fathers had the Tabernacle] He had made answer to their first accusation touching blaspemous words against the Law. Now for the Tabernacle and Temple, he takes off that too; and sheweth that Gods worship is not now to be tyed to any one place more then another.

Verse 45. Brought in] This argued, and aggravated their levitatem plus quam desultoriam, monstrous giddiness in running after strange Gods, having the true God so near them, as never any people had; it might be said of them as it was once of Baldwin the Apostate, that he had religionem Ephemeram, for each day a new religion: Or as Lactantius writeth of some Idolaters in his time, that they feigned what they pleased; and then feared what they feigned. Beza.

Verse 46. Who found favour] This he made more account of, then of his Crown and Scepter, Psal. 4.6. Like as when he gave Ziba the Lands of Mephibosheth, Ziba begged a further and better boon: I humbly beseech thee that I may find Grace in thy sight, my Lord, O King. What is air without light: or dayly bread without pardon of sin? Gods favour suggars all Comforts. 2 Sam. 16.4.

Verse 47. But Solomon built him an house] A stately house indeed; one of the seven Wonders of the world: (how basely soever Florus writeth of it, out of his deep and desperate hatred of that nation, and their religion) far beyond that Ephesian temple of Diana, built all of Cedar, in an apish imitation of it: or the Turks Moschee's, which yet are very magnificent; the great Turk also never comes into them, but (for reverence sake to his God) he laies aside all his state and attendance.

Verse 48. Howbeit the most high dwelleth not] This he subjoyneth, because the Jews bore themselves so bold upon the Temple, and made such ado about it, as if God were tyed to it (as the Chinois chain their gods, that they may be sure of them) crying, the Temple of the Lord, the Temple of the Lord, when they little respected the Lord of the Temple. The Disciples also were tackt with this error, Mat. 24. and thought that the Temple and the world must needs end together: quasi absque stationibus non staret mundus. But our Saviour undeceiveth them there.

Verse 49. Heaven is my throne, and Earth my footstool] And accordingly there are Bona throni, and bona Scabelli, as the Schools distinguish. God and his graces are the good things of his throne: earth and outward comforts are the good things of his footstool: These we may have, but not love (God hath put all things under our feet, Psal. 8. 6.) Those we must covet and aspire unto. But with most men nowadays the word and the world may seem altered and inverted; Earth is their throne, and heaven is their footstool; so little they look after this, and so much that. The Duke of Alva said, he had so much to do on earth, that he had no time to look after heaven.

Verse 50. Hath not mine hand made all these things?] Therefore I need not your handy work, though I am pleased to accept of it; which you are to look upon as a wonderful condescension. God humbleth himself to behold the things that are in heaven, and in earth, Psal. 113. 6. If he look out of himself upon the Saints and Angels, (how much more upon us?) it is a condescension.

Verse 51. Ye stiff-necked, &c.] Henry Lawrence Martyr, being required to put his hand in subscribing to his answers, he wrote these words under the bill of their examination, Ye are all Anti-Christ, and him ye follow, and here his hand was staid, and sentence read against him. Act & Mon. 1533.

Digitized by Google And

And uncircumcised in heart] Ye that to your sinews of Iron have added brows of brass; to your natural hardness, that which is habitual: being more tough then timber that hath long lain soaking in the water, having brawny breasts, and horny heart-strings.

Verse 52. Of whom ye have been now the betrayers, &c.] This was to deal plainly and freely with them: this was Mordaci radere vero, to tell them the naked truth, whatever it cost him. Let those Tygers tear him with their teeth which now they were whetting; he hath but a life to lose, and lose it he cannot in a better cause, &c.

ἀυτόνομοι. Verse 53. And have not kept it] The Jews were so far from being a Law to themselves (as the Thracians are said to be) that (more like the Athenians) whereas they

Val. Max. had excellent Laws, but naughty natures, Moribus suis quàm legibus uti mallent, they lived not by their Laws, but by their lusts rather.

Act. & Mon. fol. 914. Verse 54. They were cut to the heart] But that I believe that God and all his Saints will take revengement everlasting on thee, I would surely, with these nails of mine, be thy death, said Frier Brusierd in a conference with Mr. Bilney Martyr. Another Frier of Erasm. Epist. lib. 16. Antwerp, preaching to the people, wished, that Luther were there, that he might bite out his throat with his teeth. Plutarch relateth of the Tygers, that if any one do but strike up a drum in their hearing, they grow stark mad, insomuch as at length they tear their own flesh. So, many savage people are extreamly disquieted at the hearing of the Word, and that meerly through their own corruption: Like as it is not the tossing in a ship, but the stomack that causeth sickness; the choler within, and not the waves without.

Verse 55. And Jesus standing] As ready to revenge the injuries done to his Proto-martyr. Christus stat ut Vindex, sedet ut Judex.

Verse 56. Behold I see, &c.] Christ as man could see as far into heaven as Stephen now did, who could not therefore but stand stoutly to it. Creatures of an inferiour nature will be couragious in the eye of their masters. A believer by the eye of his Faith, through the perspective of the promises, may also see into heaven. But what a tale is that which the Monkish Writers tell of Muffin Bishop of Salisbury? whom (because he displaced secular priests, and put in Monks) they make to be a very holy man; and Speed 335. report of him, that when he lay a dying, he cryed out suddenly, I see the heavens open, and Jesus Christ standing at the right hand of God, and so died.

Standing on the right hand] Shewing by that posture how ready he is to appear for his people. And surely if it could be said of Scipio, that Rome could not fall while Scipio stood, neither would he live to see Rome fall: How much more truly may it be said of Christ, that neither shall the Church fall while Christ standeth at the right hand of his Father; neither can Christ stand there, his Church falling.

On the right hand of God] As Christ is at the right hand of the Father, so is the Church at the right hand of Christ, Psal. 45.

Verse 57. Ran upon him] Being acted and agitated by the Devil, who had now wholly possessed them: so that they were even Satanized, and transformed into so many breathing devils.

Act. & Mon. Verse 58. And stoned him] As a blasphemer. Our Proto-martyr in Queen Maries day was Mr. Rogers: As in Germany Henry and John, two Augustinian Monks, were Scultet. Annal. the first that were burnt for Lutheranism. They suffered at Bruxels, Anno 1523. and sang in the flames. He was a bold Israelite that first set foot into the Red-sea, saith one. These Proto-martyrs shall be renowned to all posterity.

Verse 59. And they stoned Stephen] Bembus wrote a dainty Poeme concerning Stephen, and therein hath this Verse, much admired by Melancthon.

Ibat ovans animis, & spe sua damna levabat.
He saw Heaven thorow that shower of stones.

Beckets Friends advised him to have a Mass in honour of St. Stephen, to keep him from the hands of his enemies. He had so, but it profited him not.

Lord Jesus receive, &c.] Luthers last prayer was this: "My Heavenly Father, thou "hast manifested unto me thy dear Son Jesus Christ, I have taught him, I have known "him; I love him as my life, my health and my Redemption, whom the wicked have "persecuted, maligned, and with injury affected: Draw my soul to thee. After this he said; I commend my spirit into thy hands, thou hast redeemed me, O God of truth, &c.

Lord

Digitized by Google

Lord, lay not this ſin, &c.] Ne ſtatuas. Set it not upon their ſcore, or accompt. Saint Auguſtine is of opinion, that this prayer of Saint Stephens was of avail for Saint Pauls converſion. He ſtood when he prayed for himſelf, he kneeled when he prayed for his enemies: to ſhew (ſaith one) the greatneſs of his piety, and of their impiety, not ſo eaſily forgiven. He was more ſorry for their riot, then for his own ruine.

Chap. VIII.

Verſe 1. And Saul, &c.]

IT is all one to hold the ſack, and to fill it, to do evil, or to conſent to it.

And Saul Was conſenting to his death] Gr. To his murther; for it was no better. Act. 12. 2. & 5. 33. Damnari, diſſecari, ſuſpendi, decollari, piis cum impiis ſunt communia. Varia ſunt hominum judicia; ille fœlix qui judice Deo abſolvitur, ſaith Eraſmus concerning Berquin the Martyr, burnt in Germany. Dorotheus witneſſeth, That when Stephen was ſtoned, there were two thouſand other Believers put to death the ſame day. Certain it is, that after Mr. Rogers had broken the Ice here under Queen Mary, there ſuffered in like ſort one Archbiſhop, four Biſhops, twenty one Divines, eight Gentlemen, eighty four Artificers, an hundred Husbandmen, Servants, and Labourers, twenty ſix Wives, twenty Widows, nine Virgins, two Boys and two Infants; In all 277. Some ſay, a great many more. Eraſm. Epiſt.

And they were all ſcattered] To the Churches great advantage; which like the Sea, what ground it loſeth in one place, it getteth in at another. So at Melda in France, (ten Miles from Paris) Briſſonet the Biſhop thereof, deſirous of a Reformation, put away the Monks, and called in the help of divers godly Miniſters. But being perſecuted by the Sorboniſts, he ſoon fell off from the profeſſion of the truth; and thoſe good Miniſters (Faber, Farellus, Ruffus, and others) were driven into divers other places of France, where they planted ſeveral Churches; the deſtruction of one being the edification of many. Farellus, one of thoſe forementioned Miniſters, was Gods inſtrument of gaining the inhabitants of Geneva, Lauſanna, Novocoma, &c. Unius Eccleſiæ deſtructio multarum fuit ædificatio. Sculter. Annal.

Verſe 2. Carried Stephen] On their ſhoulders, lamenting, with knocking their breaſts, &c. as the word imports: no whit afraid of thoſe mad murtherers. So the primitive Chriſtians would not be kept from viſiting the Confeſſours in priſon, Tametſi multis terroribus, minis, & periculis interdictum erat, as Chryſoſtom witneſſeth in his Oration of the two Martyrs; ſo certain good people took up and buried the bodies of Urſula and Mary, two noble Virgins, burnt at Delden in lower Germany, which the Executioner could in no wiſe conſume with fire, but left them lying on the ground. And the like is reported touching the hearts of Zuinglius and Cranmer. συνελκύσαν κοπετόν. Acts & Mon. 813. Ib. 797.

Verſe 3. Made havock of the Church] Being (as ſome think) that ravening Wolf of the tribe of Benjamin, propheeyed of by Jacob, Gen. 49. 27.

Verſe 4.] See the Notes on ver. 1. Trucidabantur & multiplicabantur, ſaith Auſtin. They were never the fewer for being ſlain. Plures efficimur quoties metimur, ſaith Tertullian. Eccleſia totum mundum ſanguine & oratione convertit, ſaith Luther; The Church converts the whole world by her ſufferings and prayers.

Verſe 5. Then Philip] Not Philip the Apoſtle (for they all abode at Jeruſalem, ver. 1.) but Philip the Deacon. He that is faithful in a little, ſhall be made maſter of more.

Verſe 6. And the people, &c.] A corrupt place, and bewitcht by the ſorceries of Simon Magus; yet even there God had a people; Juſtin Martyr was of this City.

Verſe 7. Crying with a loud voice] To ſhew that they went out perforce, and with a very ill will.

Verſe 8. And there was great joy] So there was at Bern: for when the Reformation was firſt received they pardoned (for joy) two condemned perſons, and called home all their baniſhed. So there was at Geneva: the Inhabitants whereof, upon the like occaſion, ſtamped new money, with this Inſcription, Poſt tenebras lux. So alſo there was among the Helvetians, who cauſed the day and year when Reformation began amongſt them, to be engraven in a pillar, in letters of gold, for a perpetual memory to all poſterity, Anno 1528. Sculter. Annal. Ibid Acts & Mon.

Digitized by Google

προϋπῆρχεν. Verſe 9. Which before time, &c.] Or, which was maſter of the Magicians. Sed quæ traduntur de modo diſceptationis Petri cum Simone Mago δεγματικὰ potius quam ἱστορικὰ eſſe videntur.

ἐξίστων. Bewitched the people] Gr. Carried them out of themſelves, as in an extaſie, ſo that they were more his then their own.

Some great thing] Such a blab the Devil had blown up there; as a ſmall wind may blow up a bubble.

Ver. 10. This man is the great power of God] Epiphanius ſaith, that this Varlet called himſelf God the Father and the Son, and his Harlot Helena (an horrible thing to be ſpoken) the holy Ghoſt. Juſtin Martyr witneſſeth, that he had neer unto Rome, a ſtatue erected, with this inſcription, Simoni Deo ſancto, To Simon the holy God. Prodigious boldneſs and baſeneſs!

Verſe 11. He had bewitched them with ſorcery] It fell out in the yeer of Grace 434. that a certain Seducer, who called himſelf Moſes, perſwaded the Jews in Creet, that he was ſent from heaven with commiſſion to repoſſeſs them of the promiſed Land. Him therefore they gladly followed (a great ſort of them) with their wives and children, to the Sea ſide; Where he bade them to caſt themſelves after him, from a ſteep Rock into the Sea. This they did, and there periſhed many of them; and many more had done, but that (by a providence) ſundry were caught up by Chriſtian Fiſhermen there preſent at that time, and carried ſafe to land. Theſe, after they were recovered, carried notice to their fellows, how fearfully they had been deluded by the Devil, who had perſonated Moſes: and divers of them moved by their late calamity, became Chriſtians. In the year 759. certain Perſian Magicians perſwaded themſelves and many others, that if they ſold all they had, and caſt themſelves naked from the town-wall, they ſhould fly up to heaven immediately; perierunt hac inſaniâ permulti, ſaith the Hiſtorian: Many periſhed by believing this ſenſeleſs lye.

Funccius in Chronol.

Ibid. Verſe 12. They were baptized both men and women] Who were admitted to baptiſm on this condition, that their Infants alſo, and their whole families ſhould be conſecrated to God; for ſo runs the Covenant, Gen. 17.7. If any ask why Chriſt and the Apoſtles did not ſet down plainly, that infants were, or might be baptized? It is anſwered, that none (then) queſtioned the lawfulneſs of it, becauſe it was generally done. Again, if when Infants were brought to be baptized (as they were brought to Chriſt to be bleſſed) the Apoſtles had rejected them, the believing Jews (and others) would have excepted and demanded why they might not as well be baptized, as once they were circumciſed? and the Apoſtles would have given them an anſwer. S. Peter ſpeaking of baptiſm, limiteth it thus. 1 Pet. 3. 21. Baptiſm ſaveth; not the putting away of the filth of the fleſh, but, &c. Would not the Evangeliſt here as well have ſaid, Men and Women were baptized, only Infants were not? If it be further objected, that it is in vain to give the Sacrament to Infants, that underſtand not what is done to them: We anſwer, that the ſame may be ſaid touching the Sacrament of Circumciſion, which yet was done to Infants, by Gods appointment. Iob 1. Thus to object therefore, is, to charge God fooliſhly. Again, were Chriſts parables uttered in vain, becauſe not preſently underſtood? Or was it to no purpoſe that he laid his hands upon infants, and bleſſed them? is it in vain to give phyſick to children, fools, or mad men, that know not what we do to them?

Verſe 13. Simon himſelf believed] As the Devils alſo believe, with an hiſtorical faith, a meer flaſh, which therefore ſoon came to nothing.

And when he was baptized] Pity that that fair water was ſpilt upon ſo foul a face. But circumciſion avails nothing without Faith that works by Love; unregenerate Iſrael is to God as Ethiopia, Amos 9.7. Baptiſm to ſuch is not Gods mark, but the Devils brand.

Verſe 14. They ſent Peter and John] Thoſe Pillars, Gal. 3. Gal. 2. 9. to confirm Philips Doctrine, and fonnd a Church by their Apoſtolike authoritie.

Verſe 15. The holy Ghoſt] That is, thoſe extraordinary gifts of tongues, healing &c.

Verſe 16. For as yet he was fallen upon none of them] Sc. In thoſe extraordinary gifts of tongues and miracles.

Verſe 17. Then laid they their hands on them] After the manner of the Prieſts, who laid their hands on the beaſt that was to be ſacrificed, and ſo conſecrated them to God.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verse 18. He offered them money] As Simoniacks still do their corrupt Patrons, so crucifying Christ afresh between two thieves. Benefices are now bestowed, saith one, non ubi optimè, sed ubi quæstuosissimè. As if a man should bestow so much bread on his horse, because he is to ride on him, &c.

Verse 19. Give me also this power] Base spirits have low conceits of the high things of God. The stream riseth not above the spring. Omnia Romæ venalia: All things at Rome are soluble and saleable.

Verse 20. But Peter said unto him] Philip took him for a right honest man, and baptized him: But Peter soon smelt a Fox, and drew him out of his den into the open light. Hypocrites shall be sooner or later detected: their name must rot.

Thy money perish with thee] So said that noble Italian Marquess Caracciolus, to the Jesuite that tempted him to revolt for money. Let their money perish with them, said he, that esteem all the gold in the world worth one days society with Jesus Christ, and his holy Spirit: And cursed be that Religion for ever, that goes that way to work. His life by Crashaw Verse 21. Thou hast neither part nor lot] Neque pars, neque sors, no manner of interest in this faith, much less in this sacred office of preaching, and laying hands upon others: The Jews boast, that in Portugal and Spain they have millions of their race to whom they give compleat dispensation to counterfeit Christianity, even to the degree of Priesthood; and that none are discovered but some hot spirits, whose zeal cannot temporize. Are not these perfect Simoniacks? Dictio proverbialis. Spec. Europ.

Verse 22. Repent therefore] Repentance is post naufragium tabula, it is the fair daughter of a foul mother, i. e. Sin, which (if not repented of) will soon work our ruth and ruine. ἐνθὲ πατρὸς φίλταλον τέκνον. De Pompeio Romani.

If perhaps the thought] Ἐπίνοια to be cured by μετάνοια. Thought is not free; but if evil, must be reversed by repentance, or will undo us for ever, Jer. 4. 14.

Verse 23. Thou art in the gall, &c.] The Apostle alludeth to Deut. 29. 18. Sin is a bitter potion, a deadly poyson, which therefore we must quickly cast up again by confession, ere it get to the vitals. Simon Magus is here convinced by the very shew of godliness, under which he hoped to have lurked: as the fish Sepia is bewrayed by the black colour which she casteth out to cover her.

Verse 24. Pray for me] Some from these words conclude his effectual conversion. He trembleth at Gods Justice, and imploreth his mercy. Hæc certè non minima sunt pœnitentiæ signa, saith judicious Calvin: these were no small signs of sound repentance.

Verse 25. When they had testified] That is, with great gravity and liberty declared. διαμαρτυράμενοι.

In many villages of the Samaritans] Accounting with Luther, that vilissimus pagus est palatium eburneum in quo est pastor & credentes aliqui: the meanest Village may become an ivory Palace, by having in it a faithful Pastor, and some few Believers.

Verse 26. Which is desart] Which way is desart, that is, less frequented, because up-hill and down-hill. So is the way to heaven, and therefore little travelled.

Verse 27. Candace] This saith Pliny was a common name to the Ethiopian Queens, as Cæsar was to the Roman Emperors. Her country might haply be that large region of Nubia, which had from the Apostles time (as tis thought) professed the Christian faith: but hath again above an hundred years since, forsaken it, and embraced instead of it, partly Mahumetanism, and partly Idolatry: and that by the most miserable occasion that might befal, namely, famine of the word of God, through lack of Ministers. Alvarez hist. Ethiopic. c. 137

Verse 28. Sitting in his chariot, read] Time is to be redeemed for holy uses. Pliny seeing his Nephew walking for his pleasure, called to him, and said, Poteras hasce horas non perdidisse: you might have better bestowed your time then so. Nullus mihi per otium dies exit, saith Seneca. And Hierom exhorted some godly women, to whom he wrote, not to lay the Bible out of their hands, until being overcome with sleep, they bowed down their heads, as it were to salute the leaves below them, with a kiss. Plin. l. 3 c. 5. Sen. Epist. Her. ad Eustach. de custod. virg.

Verse 29. Then the Spirit said] Sc. By revelation, or secret inspiration.

Verse 30. And heard him read] He read as he rode. Pliny was always reading or writing, or doing something, quo ad vitam communem aliquem fructum ferre posset, whereby he might benefit himself or others. Mr. Bradford the Martyr held that hour of his life lost, wherein he had not done some good with his hand, tongue, or pen. Seneca saith, I have no time to spare, or spend idly: I see men do not so much want Plin. lib 3 c. 5.

Digitized by Google

Non parum habemus temporis, ſed multum perdimus.

time, as waſt it. This they would not do, if they conſidered that upon this little point of time hangs the Crown of eternity. O make much of time, ſaid Thomas Aquinas, eſpecially in that weighty matter of ſalvation. O how much would he that now lies frying in hell rejoyce, if he might have again but the leaſt moment of time, wherein to make his peace with God!

Verſe 31. How can I, except ſome man] The Mathematicks are ſo called, becauſe they cannot be learned without a teacher. No man is αὐτοδίδακτος, in heavenly literature. He that here is Scholar to himſelf, hath a fool to his maſter.

פמיקא הפטרה Goodw. Catal. pag. 109.

Verſe 32. The place of the Scripture] The Parcel, ſaith the Syriack: The Partition or Section, ſay the Hebrews. Amongſt us, Stephen Langton Archbiſhop of Canterbury, firſt divided the Bible into Chapters in ſuch ſort as we now account them: Robert Stephens into verſes, imperitiſſime plerunque textum diſſecans, ſaith Scultetus, not doing ſo well as he might.

Verſe 33. His Judgement was taken away] That is, he was ſet ſafe from his enemies, that judged and executed him. He roſe, and reigneth in deſpite of them.

Seculum ejus Beza.

And who ſhall declare his Generation?] Or can tell how long his Kingdom ſhall laſt? for being raiſed from the dead, he dyeth no more. He may as well die at the right hand of his Father, as in the hearts of his children.

Verſe 34. I pray thee of whom] Incredible gain is to be got by conference in all arts: ſo here; All Chriſts ſcholars are ζητητικοὶ, Queſtioniſts, though not queſtion-ſick, as thoſe triflers in Timothy, 1 Ep. 6. 4.

Verſe 35. And preached unto him] Of preaching we may ſay in compariſon of other Ordinances, for the getting of knowledge, as David did of Goliah's ſword, There's none to that.

Verſe 36. What doth hinder] He ſtood not upon the reproach of Chriſtian Religion, what the Courtiers at home would cenſure of him. He would hardly ſuffer death for Chriſt, that cannot ſuffer little breath for him.

Verſe 37. Is the Son of God] Both by eternal generation, Prov. 8. and by hypoſtatical union, Mat. 3. ult.

Breerw. Enquir. 153.

Verſe 38. And he baptized him] Set Chriſts mark upon him, that ſeal of the new Covenant. The Jacobites (a kind of mongrel Chriſtians in Aſia) ſign their children, many in the face, ſome in the arm, with the ſign of the Croſs, imprinted with an hot burning Iron, at or before baptiſm; But we have not ſo learned Chriſt.

Goſſ. in vita Bern. Cypr. Epiſt. lib. 1. conſeſſ. l. 6. c. 12.

Verſe 39. Went on his way rejoycing] Bernard, for a certain time after his converſion, remained, as it were, deprived of his ſenſes, by the exceſſive conſolations he had from God. Cyprian confeſſeth to Donatus his friend, that before his converſion, he thought it was impoſſible for him to change his manners, and to find ſuch comfort as now he did in a Chriſtian life. He beginneth thus, Accipe quod ſentitur antequam diſcitur. Auguſtine ſaith the ſame of himſelf, &c.

Verſe 40. At Azotus] A City of Paleſtine, called anciently Aſhdod, whence the Anakims could not be driven out, Joſh. 11. 22.

Chap. IX.

Verſe 1. And Saul yet breathing]

As a tyred Wolf, that wearied with worrying the flock, lies panting for breath. See the Note on chap. 8. verſ. 3.

Verſe 2. Letters to Damaſcus] The High-prieſt, it ſeems, then had power at Damaſcus, and elſewhere out of Judea, to binde and beat his Jews, for miſdemeanour in point of their Religion. See Act. 18. 15.

Anno 1548. Buchole.

Verſe 3. And as he journeyed] So Petrus Paulus Vergerius, the Popes Nuntio, Dum confutationem Evangelicorum meditatur, fit Evangelicus; Moved, perhaps by the fearful example alſo of Francis Spira, whereof he had been an eye-witneſs.

Verſe 4. Fell to the earth] Chriſt unhorſt him, but did not deſtroy him. He is not ſuch ſuch a Monarch as loves to get authority by ſternneſs, as Rehoboam, but by gentleneſs. And though gone to heaven, yet hath he not changed his nature with change of honour; but together with beams of glory, there are ſtill in him the ſame bowels of pity that he had here upon earth.

Digitized by Google

Why perſecuteſt thou me?] As unskilful Hunters, ſhooting at wild beaſts, may kill a man: So thoſe that ſhoot at the Saints, hit Chriſt. Their ſufferings are held his, Col. 1.24. their reproach his, Heb. 13.13. God is more provoked then Nehemiah, Nem. 4 3,5. Chriſt retaineth ſtill compaſſion, though free from perſonal Paſſion: and, though freed from feeling, he hath ſtill yet a fellow-feeling. Let ſuch namongſt us take heed what they do, who whiles they pronounce our Church Antichriſtian, &c. ſtrike at the beaſt, but wound the Lamb. Manet compaſſio etiam cum impaſſibilitate. Bernard.

Verſe 5. To kick againſt the pricks] A metaphor from Oxen puſhing back upon the goad, when they are pricked wherewith: as Beza ſheweth out of Æſchilus.

Verſe 6. It ſhall be told thee] Chriſt teacheth him not immediately, but ſendeth him to a Preacher; ſo to grace his own ordinance.

Verſe 7 Hearing a voice] Not Chriſts voice, but Sauls onely, Chap. 22.9.

Verſe 8. He ſaw no man] This bodily blindneſs was a means to open the eyes of his mind, as Gehezie's leproſie cured his ſoul.

Verſe 9. And he was three dayes] In this three dayes darkneſs, ſome gather by computation of time, that he was now rapt up into the third heaven, and heard thoſe wordleſs words, 2 Cor. 12.4. after that he had been thorowly humbled. Luther likewiſe lay (after his converſion) three dayes in deſperation, as Mr. Perkins remembreth in his book of Spiritual deſertion: His temptations were ſo violent, ut nec calor, nec ſanguis, nec ſenſus, nec vox ſupereſſet, as Juſtus Ionas reporteth of Luther, that was by, and ſaw it. The like is recorded concerning Mr. Bolton, by Mr. Bagſhaw. ῥήματα ἄῤῥητα. Perkins. Epiſt. ad Melancthon, In his life.

Verſe 10. And there was a certain] See here the neceſſity and uſe of the Miniſtery: If there be a meſſenger with a man, an interpreter, one among a thouſand, to ſhew unto man his uprightneſs, &c. Iob 33.23. Unus è millibus. The vulgar tranſlation corruptly hath it unus è ſimilibus.

Verſe 11. The ſtreet called ſtraight] Gods people are ſo dear to him, that their wals are ever before him. Eſay 49.16. he loveth the ſtreets the better they dwell in, the air the better they breath in, Pſal. 87.5,6.

For behold he prayeth] He never prayed till now, though a ſtrict Phariſee. So Dan. 9. 13. The Captives in Babylon prayed not in thoſe 70 yeers, becauſe they faſted to themſelves, and prayed more to get off their chains then their ſins, Zech. 7.5,6. Prayer is the breath of the ſpirit. Rom. 8.26. Iude 20. And prayer without the ſpirit is but an empty ring, a tinckling Cymball.

Verſe 12. And hath ſeen in a viſion] It is not certain whether theſe be Chriſts own words, or Saint Lukes: neither is it much material.

Verſe 13. Then Ananias anſwered] The beſt have their unneceſſary fears, and think they have reaſon on their ſide; but convinced, they ſoon ſubſcribe to God. Veniat, veniat verbum Domini, ſaid one, & ſubmittemus ei ſexcenta ſi nobis eſſent colla.

How much evil he hath done] And is therefore not lightly to be truſted. It is a rule in the Civil Law, Semel malus ſemper præſumitur eſſe malus: but God can ſoon alter a mans mind and manners, as he did Sauls.

Verſe 14. And here he hath Authority] Therefore he was more then twenty years old (as Ambroſe and Theodoret make him to be) at his firſt converſion. For here he hath Authority committed unto him, not incident to ſo very a youth.

Verſe 15. A choſen veſſel to bear] In matters of holyneſs we are rather patients then agents, that we may aſcribe all to Gods grace; therefore he compares us not to active inſtruments, as tools in the hand of a workman, but to paſſive inſtruments, ſuch as diſhes or veſſels (as here) that bear and carry treaſure, meat, or ſuch like, 2 Cor. 4. 7. Act. 13. 15. Ye men and brethren, if there be in you (as in ſo many veſſels of honour) any word of exhortation, ſay on. But what a mouth of blaſphemy opened Quintinus the Libertine, who ſcoffing at every of the Apoſtles, Paulũ vocabat vas fractum (as Calvin teſtifieth) called Paul a broken veſſel: ſo in the year 1519. Scioli quidam Tiguris jactabant hac tria ſcitiſſimi, &c. Quis tandem Paulus? nonne homo eſt? Apoſtolus eſt ſed ſuburbanus tantum, &c. Ego tam cuivis Thomæ vel Scoto credo quam Paulo. Some, no wiſer then they ſhould be, caſt Inſtruct. adv. Libert. c. 9.

Digitized by Google

cast out slighting speeches to this purpose: what was Paul more then another man? an Ap. stle indeed, but of an inferiour order; none of the twelve that conversed with Christ; neither made he any one of the Articles of the Creed. I would as soon believe Thomas or Scotus, as Paul, &c. I tremble to relate how basely some Jesuits have spoken of Saint Paul, as savouring of heresie in some places; and better perhaps he had never written, &c.

Zuing tom. 1. oper. p. 132.

Spec. Europ.

Before the Gentiles and Kings, &c.] Μεγίστη τῶν κηρυγμάτων σάλπιγξ ὁ Παῦλος, saith a Greek Father. Paul was Gods chief herald, the Gospels loudest trumpet.

Verse 16. How great things he must suffer] Opposition is (as Calvin wrote to the French King) Evangelii genius, the evil Angel that dogs the Gospel. And prædicare, said Luther, nihil aliud est quam derivare in se furorem totius mundi: To preach, is to get the evil will of the world.

Verse 17. Putting his hands] Partly so to consecrate him to the Lords work, and partly to obtain for him the gifts of the holy Ghost.

Verse 18. There fell from his eyes] God also at the same time tore the covering, rent the vail that was spread over the eyes of his understanding, Isa. 24. 7. See the Blind eye opened in a discourse on Eph. 5. 8. by my entire friend Mr. Dugard.

Verse 19. With the disciples] For as he desired to cleave perpetually to the head, so to joyn himself to his Members, to incorporate with the Church.

Verse 20. And straightway he preached] He conferred not with flesh and blood, Gal. 1. 16. but fell presently to work, and followed it close, as afraid to be taken with his task undone. Chrysostom saith of Paul, that he was Insatiabilis Dei cultor: An unsatiable server of God.

Verse 21. Is not this he?] It is, and it is not: It is not Ille ego qui quondam, but Ego non sum Ego, He is another man then he was, and this the whole Church shall soon hear of: like as a bell cannot be turned from one side to another, but it will make a sound, and report its own motion.

Συμβιβάζων. Verse 22. Proving that this, &c.] Proving it by comparing Scripture with Scripture, by laying one place to another, as Joyners fits all the parts of their work together, that each part may perfectly agree with the other, &c. Nehem. 8. 8. The Levites read the Law, and gave the sense, causing the people to understand the reading, dabant intelligentiam per scripturam ipsam; So Tremelius rendereth it. Parallel texts, like glasses, set one against another, cast a mutual light. The Lapidary brightens his hard Diamond with the dust shaved from it self: so must we cleer hard Scriptures.

πολλαὶ ἡμέραι diebus sufficientibus. Verse 23. And after many days] Sc. After three years. So long he had to settle, ere God called him forth to suffer. The skilful Armourer tryeth not an ordinary piece with Musket-shot. The wise Lapidary brings not his softer stones to the stithy: The Isa. 28. 26. good husband turns not the wheel upon his Cummin, nor his flail upon his Fitches, &c.

Verse 24. But their laying await] Some friend likely had advertised him, as a Senatour of Hala did Brutius, when some had conspired his death, fuge, fuge, Brenti, cito, Melch. Adam. citius, citissime. Flee speedily, away for thy life.

Verse 25. Let him down, &c.] It is not unlawful then to fly in some cases. Tertullian was too rigid in condemning all kind of flight, in time of persecution; God hath not set us as standing marks, or bu ts, to be shot at, &c.

Verse 26. They were all afraid of him] Open-heartedness is an Argument of folly, Fide, diffide. Our Saviour would not lightly commit himself to any, John 2. 24. Try whom you mean to trust. Paul was somewhile a Probationer, ere he could be admitted.

Verse 27. And how he had preached boldly] See the Notes on verses 21. & 29.

Verse 28. And he was with them] Sc. with Peter and James, Gal. 1. 18, 19. For the other Apostles were then absent, about their Lords business.

Verse 29. And he spake boldly] The soul, by the witness of the spirit, finds increase of spirirual mettle, and is steeled against opposition.

Disputed against the Grecians] These had been St. Stephens greatest adversaries, Acts 6. 1, 9. and then Saul was very forward to joyn with them. Now that he was turned Christian, they sought his death, having first given out (as Epiphanius testifieth) that he turned meerly out of discontent, because he could not obtain to wife the high-priests daughter. Truth (saith one) hath always a scratcht face. The Devil was first a lyar, and and then a murderer. Thoſe that kill a dog (ſaith the French Proverb) make the world believe he was mad firſt. The credit of the Church muſt firſt be taken away, and then ſhe is wounded, Cant. 5.6. Before the French Maſſacre, it was given out, That the Huguenotes in their night-meetings committed moſt abominable uncleanneſſes.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 30. To Tarſus] His own country, that he might there break the bread of life, where he firſt drew the breath of life, as Biſhop Juel deſired to do; Phyſician heal thy ſelf, that is, thine own native Country, ſaid they to our Saviour, Luk. 4.23.

Verſe 31. Then had the Churches reſt] As when Paul was converted, the Churches reſted: ſo, much more, when ſin and Satan ſhall be deſtroyed, ſhall the ſtate of the Saints be moſt reſt-full, and bliſs-full in heaven.

Verſe 32. As Peter paſſed through all quarters] Being notably active for Chriſt: according as it was charged upon him, Luk. 22.32. When thou art converted, ſtrengthen thy brethren. The moſt that the Saints can do for Chriſt, is not the one half of that they could beteem him.

Verſe 33. Had kept his bed eight years] A long while ſurely: but what was this to an eternity of extremity in Hell? O take heed, & be forewarned to flee from that wrath to come. And mean while, every man that ſeeth another ſtricken with ſuch Chronical diſeaſes as the Palſie, and himſelf ſpared, is bound to keep a Paſſeover.

Verſe 34. And Peter ſaid] After he had prayed for him, likely. It is the prayer of Faith that healeth the ſick. Thus Epaphroditus was given in as an anſwer to St. Pauls prayer: and Miconius to Luthers, after he had been almoſt ſpent with a Conſumption. Melch. Adam in vit. Luth.

Verſe 35: And Saron] Alias, Aſſaron, the ſame perhaps with Acheron or Ekron, counted by the very Heathens the Devils houſe: for there Beelzebub the Prince of Devils was worſhipped, 2 Kin. 1.3. Flectere ſi nequeo ſuperos, Acheronta movebo. Virg.

Verſe 36. Full of good works and almſ-deeds] For there are other good works beſides Almſ-deeds; though many Papiſts, and ſome as ſilly, have ſhrunk up charity to an handbreadth, to giving of alms. Let our works be done in God, Joh. 3.21. and for God, 1 Cor. 10.31. Let there be good actions and good ayms; and then they ſhall be the works of God, Joh. 6.28.

Verſe 37. When they had waſhed] This they did to ſhew their hope of a joyful Reſurrection. The Heathens alſo, though their lives and hopes ended together, yet they waſhed their dead, in an epiſh imitation of this Church-cuſtom. Faciunt & veſpa favos; ſimiæ imitantur homines.

Verſe 38. They ſent unto him] As loth to loſe ſo uſefull a member, ſo dearly miſſed among them. Some when they die are no more miſſed then the ſweepings of an houſe, or the parings of the nails. But when good people die, there is a general loſs and lamentation.

Verſe 39. They brought him] Love is officious, and thinks not too much of any labour.

And ſhewing him the coats and garments] A worthy employment for a wealthy woman. The like is reported of Queen Anne Bullen. And I knew a very gracious Matron (one Miſtris Alice Smith of Stratford upon Avon) that found her ſelf thus uſually buſied; being one of thoſe few, that both lived and died with honor.

Verſe 40. Put them all forth] That he might pray with more privacy and freedom. For he knew well that the prayer of Faith could not heal the ſick only, as Æneas, verſe 34. but raiſe the dead too, Heb. 11.35.

Verſe 41. Preſented her alive] To her own loſs for a little while; but ſo God might be glorified, and the Church gratified, ſhe was well contented.

Verſe 42. And many believed] So when Lazarus was raiſed, Joh. 11.45. See the Note there.

Verſe 43. With one Simon a Tanner] Of mean rank and deſpicable, but religious and hoſpitable. Of ſuch, and not of great ones, conſiſted this Church of Chriſt at Joppa. The poor are Goſpellized, Mat. 11.5. The leſſer fiſhes bite ſooneſt. Grandior ſolet eſſe Deus in parvulis, quam in magnis. See the note on chap. 10.6. εὐαγγελίζονται.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

Chap. X.

Verse 1. A Centurion of the band.]

HE might well have been a Commander in the thundring legion, qui plus precando quam præliando potuerunt. Preces sunt bombardæ & instrumenta bellica Christianorum, said Luther: who also spared not to tell the Elector of Saxony, his Protector and Patron, That he by his prayers would secure his Highness, his soul, body and estate engaged in the Gospels cause, Sive id credat Celsitudo vestra, sive non credat. Imo Iudico (saith he) C. V. plus à me præsidii & tutelæ habiturum esse quam mihi præstare, &c. Yea, I am of the mind that your Highness hath more safety from me, then I have from you. χειμαρρόλος.

Verse 2. A devout man, &c.] Not of the Kings-religion what ever it be, as those Melchites in Nicephorus. And as Tertullian tels us in his Apologie, That the people were bound to worship those gods onely that the Senate decreed should be worshipped. Cornelius was a right worshipper. Apol. lib. 5. εὐσεβὴς.

With all his house] A man is really that he is relatively. David would shew his sincerity by being good at home, Psal. 101. 2.

Verse 3. About the ninth hour] Which was the time of the evening sacrifice, when the joynt prayers of the Church were ascending as incense.

Verse 4. Thy prayers and thine alms] Dr. Powel relateth this saying of Leotinus Prince of Wales, that when he was moved by some to make war upon our Henry the third; Ego inquit, formido ejus Eleemosynas magis certè multo quam ejus copias. And the Queen mother of Scotland was heard to say, that she more feared the fastings and prayers of John Knox, and his disciples, then an army of twenty thousand men. Hist. Cambr. Spec. bel. sacri.

For a memorial before God] How did the Angel know this? Angels have a threefold knowledge. 1. Natural. 2. Revealed, as Dan. 9. and here, 3. Experimental, Ephes. 3. 10.

Verse 5. Call for one Simon] Though an Angel certifies Cornelius his prayers were accepted, yet he reads not to him the Doctrine of redemption, but referrs him to Peter. The Office of preaching the Gospel is taken from the Angels (who first preached it to the Shepherds) and given to the Ministers.

Verse 6. With one Simon a Tanner] God knoweth all his by name, and condition of life.

Verse 7. A devout Souldier] Cornelius had either found him, or made him so. Nero complained that he could never find a faithful servant: And no wonder; for those that were good, cared not to come about him: and those that were bad, he cared not to make better, as being himself desperately wicked. Qualis herus, talis servus. The Masters faults go as little unattended as their persons.

Of them that waited on him] The Syriack hath it, Of them whom he esteemed highly. Good servants are rare and precious.

Verse 8. And when he had declared] He knew well the worth of a faithful messenger, Prov. 25. 13. Howbeit the more to affect their hearts, and the better to effect his design, he sets God before them, and shews them the whole matter. Gods commands carry a divine authority, and soon prevail with the religious. Dicto citius dicta peragunt. They say with him in the Poet, Lucan.

Jussa sequi, tam velle mihi, quam posse, necesse est.

Verse 9. Upon the house to pray] He got upon the Leads, as well to avoid distraction, as to excite devotion, by a full view of heaven above.

Verse 10. He fell into a trance] His soul was sundred, as it were, for a season, from his body, whilest he talked with God. So our Saviour was transfigured, as he was praying. John was in the spirit on the Lords day, when he received his Revelation; Paul was rapt up into the third heaven. Giles of Bruxelles (a Dutch Martyr) in his prayers, was so ardent, kneeling by himself, in some secret place, whiles he was a prisoner, that he seemed to forget himself: Being called many times to meat, he neither heard, nor saw saw those that stood by him, till he was lift up by the arms, and then gently he would speak unto them, as one awaked out of a sweet sleep. Act & Mon. 811.

Digitized by Google

Verse 11. And saw heaven opened] Sc. The visible heaven, the air: for, as for the third heaven, it openeth not without a miracle, as some think.

Verse 12. Were all manner of fourfooted] Gr. All, that is, some of all sorts: so, omne animal, every living creature is said to be in Noahs Ark: and in the like sense, Christ is said to dye for all. πάντα

Verse 13. Kill and eat] Peter was hereby taught not to kill and slay in battail, as many of his warlike pretended successors have done, but to kill that corruption that he found in the Gentiles, by the sword of the spirit, &c. Julius the second can turn him either way, to Peters keys, or Pauls sword. Cum Petri nihil efficiant ad prælia claves, Auxilio Pauli forsitan ensis erit.

Verse 14. Common or unclean] By commonness there is contracted an uncleanness. It is hard to deal in the world and not be defiled with the corruption that is in the world through lust.

Verse 15. That call not thou common] Or profane thou not. See the Note on ver. 14. σὺ μὴ κόινου Verse 16. Received up again into heaven] The Church her original is from heaven, Apoc. 21. and thither she shall be taken up again. As in the mean space, our commoration is on earth, our conversation in heaven, Phil. 3. 19.

Verse 17. Stood before the gate] They pressed not in, till licensed: they knew that Jews would not easily converse with them being Gentiles. This was their modesty, not not oft seen in Soldiers. Deut 7.

Verse 18. And called and asked] Whether death will use so much manners as these did, viz. to call and ask for us, or ere he seizeth us, tis uncertain. Senibus mors in januis, adolescentibus in insidiis, saith Bernard. The yong man hath death at his back, the old man before his eyes, saith Aquinas. And that is the more dangerous enemy that pursues thee, then that which marcheth up toward thy face. Be sober, be vigilant: Of Doomesday there are signs affirmative and negative, not so of death; and yet every mans deaths day is his doomesday.

Verse 19. While Peter thought on] Gr. thought in his mind: cogitabat quasi coagitabat. He was busily plodding, and the Spirit came in to help him. Divine meditation is a studious act of the mind, searching the knowledge of an hidden truth, by the discourse of reason. Or, it is a stedfast and earnest bending of the mind upon some heavenly matter, for the setling of our judgments, and bettering of our heart and lives. διενθυμεῖτο Verse 20. Doubting nothing] Or, not arguing the case, but readily yielding the obedience of faith. μηδὲν διακρινόμ.

Verse 21. Peter went down] He sent not for them up, much less made he them to wait three days at the gate (as that Pope did Henry the Emperour) before they could have a hearing.

Verse 22. That feareth God] Not with a base fear, as those Mongrels 1 Kings 17. 32. that feared the Lord for his Lions sent amongst them (like as some Indians at this day fear the Devil, because he beats them) but with an amicable, filial, reverential fear: which gat him a good report among all the nation of the Jews, such as Saint Paul thus bespeaketh, Men of Israel, and ye that fear God, Act. 13. 16. Duo sunt timores, servilis & amicalis. Beda.

Verse 23. Certain Brethren from Joppa] Who were well paid for their curteous pains, when (for confirmation of their faith) they beheld the Kingdom of Christ propagated and preached to the Gentiles also.

Verse 24. Cornelius waited for them] So the people waited for Zacharias, Luke 1. Its fit the people should wait for the Minister, not the Minister for the people, Zach. 8. 21.

Verse 25. Worshipped him] Not as God, with divine worship: yet with too much humilty, which Peter correcteth. The word must be glorified, the Ministers not over-admired. Act. 13. 48.

Verse 26. But Peter took him up] Longe aliter Papa, The Pope (Diocletian-like) holds forth his toe to be kissed, and suffers his Parasites to deifie him.

Tu verè in terris diceris esse Deus.

I my self also am a man] We must glorifie the word, not the Preacher, Acts. 13. 48.

Verse 27. He found many that were come together] With good and honest hearts, hungring and thirſting after righteouſneſs, reſolved to be ruled by God, and to paſs into the likeneſs of the heavenly pattern. Lord, ſaith Nazianzen, I am an inſtrument for thee to touch. I am only thy clay and wax, ſaid another.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 28. Not call any man unclean] Scilicet, quoad communem vitæ uſum: Nam alioqui omnes naturâ impuri: i.e. in regard of civil converſation. By nature ('tis true) we are all unclean.

Verſe 29. Without gainſaying, aſſoon as ſent for] Hoc eſt ſanctum fidei ſilentium, ſaith Calvin, this was the holy ſilence of Faith: this was to preach Chriſt the Lord: and himſelf the Churches ſervant, for Jeſus ſake. A ſervant is not αὐτόματος, One that moveth abſolutely of himſelf: he is ὑπηρέτης & ὄργανον, ſaith Ariſtotle, the Maſters inſtrument, and wholly his. Peters pretended Succeſſor ſtileth himſelf the Servant of Gods ſervants; but is nothing leſs.

ὅλως ἐκείνου. 1 Cor. 4. 5.

For what intent] This he deſireth to know of them, that he might not ſhoot at revers, run at uncertainty; but be able to conclude his diſcourſe, as he did, Det Deus, ut ſermo meus adeo commodus ſit, quam ſit accommodus, God grant my ſpeech may be as profitable, as it is ſeaſonable.

Verſe 30. I was faſting until, &c.] Fulneſs breeds forgetfulneſs; but faſting maketh a man capable of heavenly viſions, of divine glory. The three great Faſters, Chriſt, Moſes, and Elias met gloriouſly in Mount Tabor.

Verſe 31. Cornelius, thy prayer is heard] This was a ſingular happineſs, and a ſure ſeal of his good eſtate to God-ward, Pſal. 66. 18, 19. Joh. 9. 31. Every acceſs to God with ſucceſs, every gracious return of prayer ſealeth up this comfort to the ſoul, that ſith He that hath the keys of David, hath once opened unto us not only a door of utterance, but a door of entrance to the throne of grace, it ſhall never be ſhut again any more.

Verſe 32. He is lodged, &c.] God takes notice of every circumſtance of his peoples affairs: their very walls are ever before him, Iſa. 49. 16. He thinks the better of the houſes they lodge in; and looks upon all that favor them, with ſpecial content: I will bleſs them that bleſs thee, Gen. 12. 3. See the Note there.

Verſe 33. Now therefore we are all, &c.] All of a minde to ſerve the Lord with one ſhoulder: as Hezekiahs ſervants joyned together in that laudable work of copying out thoſe Proverbs of Solomon, for the Churches uſe.

Zeph. 3. 9. Prov. 25. 1. ἐνώπιον.

Preſent before God] Whom we look full in the face, ſeeing him by faith who is inviſible, and ſetting our ſelves to receive the Law at his mouth, to hear the word, not of a mortal man, but of the everliving God.

To hear all things] Sc. With due reverence and diligence; not to jear at any thing that is commanded thee of God, that hath the ſtamp and impreſs of God upon it, that comes cum privilegio and appears to be Cor & anima Dei (as Gregory calleth the word) the Counſel and Minde of God. Lo, theſe were right hearers: Oh for ſuch now-adays! Ours (alas) have Corpora in ſacellis, animos in ſaeculis, as Ezekiels had chap. 33. 31. and as Serpents have their bodies in the water, but their heads out.

Greg. in Reg. 3.

Verſe 34. No reſpecter of perſons] That is, of their outward ſtate and condition, as country, ſex, wealth, wiſdom, &c. Outward things neither help, nor hurt, pleaſe, nor diſpleaſe God, but as they are in a good or bad man: As a Cipher by it ſelf is nothing, but a figure being ſet before it, it increaſeth the ſum.

His duobus membris comprehenditur totius vitæ integritas. Calv.

Verſe 35. He that feareth him and worketh righteouſneſs] This is the whole duty of man, as Eccleſ. 12. 13. See the Note there.

Verſe 36. Preaching Peace] For God ſpeaks peace to his people: he creates the fruit of the lips to be peace: he, by his promiſes powerfully applyed, lodgeth a bleſſed calm in the conſcience, and ſaith to the diſtempered affections, Peace and be ſtill, huſhing all; for he is Lord of all.

Luk. 1. 3.

Verſe 37. After the baptiſm] See how orderly Peter preacheth (like as Luke writeth κατεξῆς Sigillatim) giving his hearers a diſtinct and punctual Narrative of the life and death of Jeſus Chriſt, of his offices and efficacies. To ſpeak clearly and coherently, to caſt his matter into a good Mold and Method, as it is not every mans happineſs, ſo it is no ſmall commendation to him that can skill of it: and muſt be indeavoured by all that would win upon their peoples affections, and draw them to duty, as the Athenian Orators, who were there-hence called Δημαγωγοι, People-Leaders.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 38. Oppreſſed of the devil] The Devil complained in the days of Dioclesian, that he could not give right Oracles, becauſe of the Chriſtians. And thoſe that conſpired againſt Athanaſius, cryed out, that by his prayers he hindred their proceedings. The Souldiers that went againſt the Angrognians, told their Captain, that the Miniſters of that place, with their prayers, ſo conjured and bewitched them, that they could not fight. Euſeb. lib. 2. Ruffin. l. 1. c. 33 Act. & Mon. 883.

Verſe 39. And we are witneſſes] Eye-witneſſes (which are far better then Ear-witneſſes) and ancient witneſſes, ſuch as of whom Ariſtotle ſaith, πιστόταται εἰσὶ πλείω ἐνιαυτῶν γεγονότες; the more ancient the more credible. Plus valet oculatus teſtis unus quam auriti decem Plaut. Ariſt. Rhetor. lib. 1.

Verſe 40. Him God raiſed] Chriſts death he diſpatcheth in a word, as a thing well known. His reſurrection (becauſe more queſtioned, and of greater moment to beget Faith) he more largely diſcourſeth.

Verſe 41. Eat and drink with him] In nihilum abiit cibus poſt reſurrectionem ſumptus.

Verſe 42. Ordained of God] Gr. determined, and by definitive ſentence concluded.

Verſe 43. Shall receive remiſſion of ſins] Together with all the purchaſe of his paſſion. But this is inſtanced as a principal piece thereof, and worthily. David had a crown of pure gold upon his head, Pſal. 21. but he bleſſeth God for a better crown, Pſal. 103. 3, 4. viz. pardon of ſin. ἄφεσιν λήψεσθαι.

Verſe 44. While Peter ſpake, &c.] As Manna deſcended in the dew, ſo doth the Holy Ghoſt in and by the preaching of the word, Gal. 3. 2. Iſa. 30. 20, 21.

Verſe 45. See the note on verſe 23. of this Chapter.

Verſe 46. Speaks with tongues] This diverſity of tongues laid at firſt on mankinde as a curſe, Gen. 11. God turned into a bleſſing to his Church, which yet ſome of the Chriſtian Corinthians abuſed to pomp and oſtentation. 1 Cor. 14. which as Copreſs, will turn Milk into Ink; or as Leaven, which turns a very Paſſeover into pollution.

Verſe 47. Can forbid water] Plain water, without oyl, ſalt, ſpittle, cream, or other Popiſh additaments.

Verſe 48. To be baptiſed] The uſe of the Sacraments is to ſeal up adoption in infants, and faith in thoſe of riper years.

Verſe 48. And he commanded them to be baptized] And ſo to be incorporated into Chriſts body the Church: that they might be ſaved by the waſhing of regeneration, and the renewing of the Holy Ghoſt, Tit. 3. 5. It is a noble queſtion in Divinity, Seeing Regeneration is attributed both to the Word and to Baptiſm, how the one worketh it differently from the other? Or, if both work it, why is not one ſuperfluous?

Chap. XI.

Verſe 1. Had alſo received the Word]

NOt only informed, but reformed: yea, ſo transformed the Churches were into the ſame image of the word from glory to glory, that they became at length conformed to Chriſt in holineſs and righteouſneſs.

Verſe 2. Contended with him] They ſhould rather have commended him: ſo hard it is to part with a rooted error: ſo ordinary it is for faithfull Miniſters to meet with ſuch as will dare to reprehend what they do not comprehend; and precipitate a Cenſure.

Verſe 3. Saying, Thou wentſt in, &c.] This was now no fault, but in their conceit only. Ignorance is the mother of many miſtakes, and miſcarriages thereupon. How exceedingly was Job miſ-cenſured by his Friends; Gideon and Jephtah by the Ephramites; the two Tribes and half by their brethren? Joſh. 22. Athanaſius paſſed for a Sacrilegious perſon, a profane wretch, a bloody perſecutor, a blaſphemer of God, &c. Cyril and Theodoret excommunicated one another for Hereſie, Poſtea comperti idem ſentire, upon a meer miſtake. Baſil complains that he was hardly dealt with by brethren that were of the ſame judgement with himſelf, but underſtood him not. Auguſtine had ſuffered ſo long in this kinde, that at length he thus reſolves, Non curo illos cenſores qui vel non intelligendo Iudg. 8. 1. & 12. 1.

Digitized by Google

Cont. Fauſt. l. 22. c. 34. telligendo reprehendunt, vel reprehendendo non intelligunt: I care not for thoſe blinde Cenſurers that ſpeak evil of that they know not, and of thoſe they underſtand not. Charity would teach them to take every thing the beſt way; and not, as Logicians do, ſequi partem deteriorem, to pick out the worſt.

Verſe 4. But Peter rehearſed] with ſingular modeſty he ſeeks to ſatisfie them (if reaſon will do it) and to quench their wild-fire, by caſting milk upon it. Zuinglius and Oecolampadius endeavored to do the like by Luther and his diſciples, but could never effect it. In the year 1533. he wrote a very bitter Epiſtle to the Senate of Franckford, Scultet Annal. Qua Zuinglianos Archi-diabolos appellat, è ſuggeſtu repellendos, ditione ejiciendos, wherein he calleth the Zuinglians Arch-devils; and judgeth that they ought to be kept out of the Pulpit, driven out of the Country &c. In the year 1567. at Antwerp the Lutherans joyned themſelves to the Papiſts againſt the Calviniſts. Still Satan is thus buſie, and Bucholcer Chronol. Chriſtians are thus malicious, that, as if they wanted enemies, they flie in one anothers faces; yea cut one anothers throats: as the Engliſh and Scots do at this day, to the unconceiveable grief of all the godly on both ſides. Deus meliora.

Verſe 5, 6, 7, &c. See the Notes on that part of the former Chapter, whereof this is but a repetition.

Verſe 16. Then remembred I] very ſeaſonably; the holy Spirit ſuggeſting, as a Remembrancer: like as the evil Spirit did to thoſe cankerd Kill-Chriſts, Act. 27. 63.

Verſe 17. What was I that I could withſtand God? Whoſe power is irreſiſtible, whoſe will is a Law, yea Voluntas Dei, neceſſitas rei: and God hath put a ſecret inſtinct (as into the Bee, the Stork and other Creatures to do their kind: ſo) into all his children to ſubmit to his will, to ſay, Amen to Gods Amen, and to put their Fiat and Placet to his, Act. 21. 14.

Verſe 18. They held their peace] And by their ſilence ſhewed they were ſatisfied: as did Jonah by ſhutting up his propheſie in ſilence, and giving God the laſt. It is eaſier to deal with twenty mens Reaſons then with one mans Will. Convince an humble man of his error or paſſion, and he will yield preſently; whereas a proud Opinioniſt ſtands as a ſtake in the midſt of a ſtream: lets all the good reaſon you can alledge paſs by him, but he ſtands where he was. Nay, but we will have a king, &c. The word that thou ſpeakeſt unto us in the name of the Lord, we will not hear.

Verſe 19. Now they which were ſcattered abroad] See the Note on Act. 8. 1.

Verſe 20. Spake unto the Grecians] Not the Grecizing Jews (as chap. 6. 1.) but the Grecians which were Gentiles, to whom the light now began to break forth, and the partition-wall to be broken down.

Verſe 21. And a great number believed] God ſealing his approof of that they did, by an extraordinary ſucceſs. He hath a mighty hand and can fetch in multitudes at his pleaſure. We hope he is doing ſome ſuch great work in New-England. He can make a Law, to bring forth in one day, a Nation to be born at once, Iſa. 66. 8.

Verſe 22. And they ſent forth Barnabas] A very fit man; for he was a ſon of conſolation, and would handle thoſe young Plants with all tenderneſs. Wring not mens Dr. Sibs. Conſciences (ſaith One) you may hap to break the Wards of them if you do.

Verſe 23. That with purpoſe of heart] As it is recorded of Caleb, that he fulfilled after God: Numb. 14. 24. Caleb implevit poſt me. It ſtands men upon to ſee that their work, though it be but mean, yet it may be clean, though not fine, yet not foul, ſoyled and ſlubbered with the ſlur of a rotten heart. Let them conſent to take whole Chriſt in all his Offices and Efficacies, and that pro termino interminabili, never to part more.

Verſe 24. For he was a good man] Few ſuch now adays, Rari quippe boni——— Juvenal. Jam nec Brutus erit, Bruti nec avunculus uſquam. Anthony de Guevara tells a merry ſtory of the Hoſt at Nola: who when he was commanded by the Roman Cenſor to go and call the good men of the city to appear before him, went to the Church-yard, and Relax. de los principi. l. 1. cap. 2. there called at the graves of the dead, Oh ye good men of Nola, come away, for the Roman Cenſor calleth for your appearance: for he knew not where to call for a good man alive. The Scripture complains that there is none that doth good, that is, none in compariſon, none to the mad multitude, that like Jeremiahs figs, are naught, ſtark naught. Phocion was ſirnamed Bonus; but the excellency of a godly man is (Barnabas-like) to Rom. 15. 14. Act. 9. 33. be full of the Holy Ghoſt and of Faith, to follow God fully as Caleb, Numb. 14. 24. to have a heart full of goodneſs, as thoſe Romans, a life full of good works, as Tabitha, ſhining shining full fair, as a right orient and illustrious Star with a singularity of heavenly light, as good Noah did in his generation: and as holy Joseph, whose life, saith One, was a constellation, yea a very heaven bespangled with brightest stars of glorious graces. Buchol.

Digitized by Google

Verse 25. Then departed Barnabas to Tarsus, for to seek Saul | Not fearing to be outshined by him (who was now grown an admirable preacher, and an unsatiable worshiper of Christ) but seeking the setting up of Christs kingdome by all means possible. To rejoyce in and to improve the good parts of others for a publike benefit (though it ecclipseth thy light) and that from the heart; this is indeed to get above others: this is more then to excell others in any excellency if this be wanting. Insatiabilis Dei Cultor. Chrysost.

Verse 26 Called Christians | Called so by divine direction, as the word signifieth. There were (saith a learned Antiquary) certain Hereticks, who (as the Samaritans joyned Jewish Ceromonies with heathenish rites, so they) joyned Christ and Moses, Law and Gospel, Baptism and Circumcision. Of their beginning read Act. 15.2. These were called Nazarites; either of malice by the Jews, to bring the greater disgrace upon Christian Religion: or else because at first they were true, though weak Nazarites, that is, Christians misled by Peters Judaising at Antioch, Gal. 2. 11. Hence its thought, that the Church at Antioch, in detestation of this new-bred Heresie, fastned upon them by the name of Nazarites, forsook that name, and called themselves Christians. But what a shameful thing is it, that the most honourable name of Christian, is at this day in Italy, and at Rome a name of reproach, and usually abused to signifie a fool, or a dolt? χρηματίσαι. Godwins Antiq. Heb. Junius in parallel. l. 1 8. Fulk. Not. on Rhem Test. Act. 11. sect. 4.

First in Antioch | Which had been the residence, and bare the name of Antiochus, that bloody persecutour. Here then that Prophesie was most sweetly fulfilled, Esay 60. 14. The sons of the afflicters shall come bending to thee, &c. And so it was, somewhat above an hundred years since, at Spira in Germany: where those of the Reformed religion were first called Protestants. Howbeit some have observed that this name is not so new, but of an ancienter standing; For they fetch it from 2 Chron. 24. 19 Yet he sent prophets to them to bring them again unto the Lord, and they testified against them, but they would not give ear: which latter clause the Vulgar Interpreter (and the Doway-Doctors in their English Translation of the old Testament follow him) rendereth thus, Quos Protestantes illi audire nolebant. Dr. Poyns also (a Papish writer) tels us, that it was foretold in the old Testament that the Protestants were a malignant Church, and he alledgeth for proof this place in the Chronicles, though little to his purpose. A better Divine tels us Englishmen, that we were never Protestants indeed, till we took the late protestation, that brought us into the band of the Covenant, and is to us as circumcision once to the Israelites, a Gilgal, the rolling away of our reproach: there being nothing, as some could hit us in the teeth (but untruly and uncharitably) that made us differ from Rome, but a bare Proclamation. Parei Medul. Pref. to his Book of the Sacraments.

Verse 27. From Jerusalem unto Antioch] The Church whereof was now grown so famous by the pious labours of Paul and Barnabas, that many holy and learned men resorted thither, as to a common school or Academy. So did divers, in our forefathers dayes, to Zurich, Basil, Geneva, but especially to Wittengberg, where Luther and Melanchthon laboured in the Lords work, to the good of many; Κοινὸν παιδευτήριον τῶν πάντων ἀνθρώπων. Sic de Athenis. Thucyd.

Divisæ hic operæ, sed mens fuit unica; pavit
Ore Lutherus oves, flore Melanchthon apes.

Hob. Hessus.

Verse 28. And there stood up one] So Bishop Hooper prophesied, long before, of his own death. For taking Mr. Bullinger by the hand, at his return from Zurick, There (said he) where I take most pains you shall hear of me to be burnt to ashes. And being made Bishop, he took for his Arms a Lamb in a fiery bush, and the Sun-beams descending down upon the Lamb: Rightly denoting, as it seemeth, the order of his suffering, which afterward followed. So Father Latimer ever affirmed of himself, that the preaching of the Gospel would cost him his life: to the which he no less cheerfully prepared himself, then certainly was perswaded, that Winchester was kept in the Tower (in King Edward the 6. dayes) for the same purpose: And it proved so. In November 1572. appeared a new Star in Cassiopeia, and continued sixteen moneths. Theodor Beza wittily applyed it to that star at Christs birth, and to the infanticide then; and warned Charls 9. Author of the French Massacre, to beware, in this Verse; A. & Mon. fol. 1366. Ibid. 1578.

Tu vero Herodes sanguinolente time.

The

Digitized by Google

Camd. Eliz. fol. 1631.

Myst. of Iniq. p. 17.

The fifth moneth after the vaniſhing of this ſtar, the ſaid Charles, after long and grievous pains, dyed of exceeding bleeding. Spotſwood Arch-Biſhop of St. Andrews, a deep and ſubtile diſſembler, who had diſcouraged, and by degrees extirpated moſt of the faithful Miniſters of Scotland, thought it ſeaſonable Anno 1639. to repair into England, where he died a Martyr, to the deſign of bringing in Popery and ſlavery. And ſo was the prediction of Mr. Walſh, a famous Scotch Miniſter, fulfilled upon him, who in a a letter to the Biſhop, writtien 1604. told him he ſhould dye an outcaſt.

Suet in Claud. Joſeph Antiq. lib. 20 c. 2.

Great dearth thorowout the world] Suetonius and Joſephus make mention of this Famine. It went hard when this voice was uttered in the Market place at Rome, Pone pretium humanæ carni. At Antioch in Syria, many of the Chriſtians engaged in the holy-War (as they called it) were glad, through famine, to eat the dead bodies of their late ſlain enemies. This was that Antioch here mentioned in the text.

Turk Hiſt. fol. 18.

In the dayes of Claudius Cæſar] Who was an arrant ſlowbelly, counted for a fool by his own mother Antonia, judged unworthy of the Empire by his own ſiſter Livilla, poyſoned at length by his own wife Agrippina, and her ſon Nero, qui dixit boletos θεῶν κρέωμα εἶναι, quod Claudius boleto in numerum Deorum relatus eſſet. The times were then ſo bad when he ruled the Empire, ut nihil amplius virtus eſſe putaretur quam τὸ γενναίως ἐνδαιμονεῖν, ſaith the Hiſtorian. What marvel then, though God ſcourged the world with extream famine: wherein the Church alſo was inwrapped, but graciouſly provided for; as ever ſhe is in a common calamity.

Dio. in vita Claud.

Dio. Ibid.

Verſe 29. Every man according] For to ſtretch beyond the ſtaple is to marr all. A good man ſheweth mercy, but yet ordereth his affairs with diſcretion, Pſal. 112. 5.

Verſe 30. Which alſo they did] Nos non eloquimur magna, ſed vivimus, ſaid the primitive Chriſtians. This age aboundeth with mouth mercy. (Go, and be fed, warmed, &c. Jam. 2). which is good cheap. But a little hand-full were better then a great many ſuch mouthfuls.

By the hands of Barnabas and Saul] Paul prays hard, that this their ſervice might be accepted of the Saints, Rom. 15. 31. though one would think they ſhould be very welcome, comming on ſuch an errand.

Chap. XII.

Verſe 1. Now about that time.]

That the famine lay ſore upon the Church. Afflictions ſeldome come ſingle. The Saints uſually fall into divers temptations at once, Jam. 1. 2. Fluctus fluctum trudit. Job's meſſengers tread one upon the heels one of another.

Herod the King] Nephew to Herod the Great, brother to Herodias, and father to that Agrippa, Act. 25. & 26.

Cryſoſt. hom. 33. in Act.

Verſe 2. And he killed James the brother] So ſtiled, to diſtinguiſh him from the other James, called James the leſs kinſman to Chriſt, and Biſhop of Jeruſalem, as the antients ſtile him. It was wonder that Herod killed no more, ſeeing this took ſo well with the people, whoſe favour he coveted. When Stephen the Protomartyr of the Church was ſtoned, Dorotheus teſtifieth that two thouſand other believers were put to death the ſame day: but God hath ſet bounds to that ſea of malice that is in perſecutors hearts, which they cannot go beyond, Pſal. 76. 10. The remainder of wrath ſhalt thou reſtrain.

Verſe 3. And becauſe he ſaw, &c.] Sejanus ferox ſcelerum, quia prima provenerunt, ſaith Tacitus. It is an old trick of Tyrants, to curry Favour with the wicked, by ſhedding the the blood of the godly.

Verſe 4. To bring him forth to the people] But God had otherwiſe determined. Sciat Celſ. Veſtra (ſaith Luther in a Letter to the Elector of Saxony) et nihil dubitet longe aliter in cœlo quam Norimbergæ de hoc negotio concluſum eſſe. i. e. God in heaven hath decreed otherwiſe of this buſineſs, then the Emperour hath at Norimberg: and the will of the Lord muſt be done, when all's done. Yet have I ſet my King, &c. Pſal. 2. 6.

Verſe 5. Earneſt prayer was made] Oratio ſine malis, eſt ut avis ſine alis. Theſe good ſouls souls strained and stretched out themselves in prayer, as men do that are running in a race, Puriores cœlo afflictione facti, as Chrisostom saith of them. extentis.

Digitized by Google

Verse 6. Peter was sleeping] As having cast himself into Gods everlasting arms. So did David, Psal. 3. So did Mr. Rogers our Proto-martyr, in Queen Maries dayes, when he was warned suddenly to prepare for the fire, he then being found asleep scarce with much shogging could be awaked: at length, being raised, and bid to make haste, Then (said he) if it be so, I need not to tye my points. Act. & mon. fol. 1556.

Verse 7. And a light shined in the prison] Gr. in the habitacle or conclave. So Solon first called the prison at Athens. So Petronius told Cæsar, he had rather be with Cato in the prison house, then with him in the Senate-house. Solonium. Plut. in Solon. Dio. Cass.

And he smote Peter on the side &c.] Cuthbert Simson a Martyr in Queen Maries days, about midnight, being in prison (whether in a slumber or awake, I cannot tell, saith Mr. Fox) heard one coming in, first opening the outward door, then the second, afterward the third, and so looking into the said Cuthbert having no candle or torch that he could see, but giving a brightness or light most comfortable to his heart, saying Ha unto him, and departed again. Who it was he could not tell, nor I dare define. This that he saw he declared oft to many: at the sight whereof he received such joyful comfort, that he also expressed no little solace in telling and declaring the same. Act. & mon. fol. 1844.

His chains fell off from his hands] Prisoners were bound with one or two chains to one or two Souldiers, who (as keepers) were also bound with the same chains.

Verse 8. And follow me] See here how by degrees (and not all at once) God oftentimes sendeth forth his prisoners (his afflicted ones) out of the pit wherein is no water, Zach. 9. 11. He is a God of judgement, and waits a fit time to deal forth his favours, Esa. 30. 18. he crumbles his mercies, as the cloud dissolves drop-meal upon the earth: we have his blessings by retail, to maintain commerce and communion between him and us. Have patience therefore, and wait for full deliverance. We know not what we lose by making haste, and not holding up our hands, as Moses did to the going down of the Sun. If God have begun to enlarge us, he will in due time do it to the full. If we should not be in straits sometimes, God should have no tribute from us: as those Malignants suggested against those returned Captives, Ezra. 4. 13.

Verse 9. And wist not that it was true.] So Psal. 126. 1. God is oft better to his then their hopes, and doth exceeding abundantly for them, above all that they can ask or think. He will do so much more, when they come to heaven: for then, oh the unutterable extasies! At first sight, surely Eph. 3. 20.

Claudicat ingenium, delirat linguaque, mensque. Lucret.

Verse 10. When they were passed] God could have delivered him all at once: but he knew, that citò data citò vilescunt, Lightly come by, is lightly set by. He would have us also to weigh well the several passages and circumstances of our deliverance, that he may have the honour of all. Hence those catalogues in Scripture, with an enumeration of particulars. See the note on Verse 8.

Verse 11. Now I know of a surety] Faith cannot be idle, or ungreatful for benefits received. If Peter have none else to tell it to, he will tell himself what God had done for him by his Angel; and what great cause he had to be really and substantially thankful. So doth David, Psal. 103. 1, 2, 3, 4, &c. A good man can never be alone: for, in defect of other company, he can fruitfully converse with himself, and commune with his own conscience, and thereupon lift up many an humble, joyful, and thankful heart to God.

Verse 12. Where many were gathered together praying] Great is the force of joynt prayer, when Christians set upon God quasi manu factâ, as in Tertullians time, they sackt and ransackt heaven by their prayers. Preces fundimus, cœlum tundimus, misericordiam extorquemus, saith he. We beseech not God only, but we besiege him too: we beg not barely, but bounce at heaven gates, &c.

Verse 13. To hearken] Before she opened, lest some pursuivant or such like evil Angel at that time of the night should have haunted them. Opposition is Evangelii genius, saith Calvin. Piety is no Target against Persecution

Verse 14. She opened not the door for gladness] For fear and great Joy, as those other good women. Mat. 28 8. who had their passions; which Stoicks allow not in their wise-man, nor Popish Padres in their wretched Novices.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verse 15. It is his Angel] Or, It is his messenger, or one come from him. See a like place Luke 7 24. Angels use not to stand at door and knock, and wait for an opening. Cornelius (holding that each Saint hath his Angel-guardian) tels us out of the Rabbins, that Adams Angel was called Raziel, Abrahams Zachiel, Isaacs Raphael, Jacobs, Peliel, and Moses his Metraton. But this may as well pass for a Jewish fable.

Verse 16. But Peter continued knocking] He flang not away in displeasure, because not at first knock admitted. We must also continue instant in prayer. The hand of faith never knockt in vain at the gate of grace: but then, it maketh not haste, it can willingly wait in hope of a good use and issue of all; yea, it can be content to want that particular blessing it would have: as knowing that Gods people shall reap if they faint not; they shall certainly have their prayers out, either in money or moneys worth.

Verse 17. And he departed and went] Cedendum quidem interdum furori. sed ita ut nihilo negligentius fiat opus Domini, saith Beza here; who also proves that he went not now to Rome, as the Papists would have it: though Bellarmine holds it not de fide, that he was ever there.

τὰ ἅγια. Ver. 18. There was no small stir] Huddle or hubbub, with fear and care how they should answer it; but this was but part of their punishment, and the least part too; There was a worse matter followed, vers. 19. Lo, so it fareth with all graceless persons. They are not without their crosses here, but the worst is behind. What they feel here, is but a typical hell, a foretast of eternal torment. All their present sufferings are but as drops of wrath forerunning the great storm, a crack foregoing the ruine of the whole house. The leaves only of the Tree fall upon them here: the tree it self will shortly fall upon them, and crush them to pieces.

Verse 19. That they should be put to death] This was just in God, but unjust in Herod. He is safest that hath least to do with tyrants.

Verse 20. Because their Countrey, &c.] Should not Gods manifold mercies move us to make peace with him? will he not else curse our blessings, and destroy us after that he hath done us good? Josh. 24. 20.

Verse 21. And upon a set day] When there were solemn shews and Plays acted in honour of Cæsar. God picks out his time to be avenged on his enemies, then when it may be most for his glory and their utter confusion.

Herod arrayed in royal apparrel] In cloth of silver, saith Josephus, which being beaten upon by the Sun-beams, dazled the peoples eyes, and drew from them that blasphemous acclamation: Hunc homines decorant, quem vestimenta decorant. ἱμάτια ἀνήρ. The most (as it is said of the Bohemian curr) fawn upon a good suit. It was a fault of old, Iames 2. 3.

Verse 22. It is the voice of a god] ἦ θεοῦ φώνημα ἐπαινῶ, saith Xenophon. Men naturally hear nothing with more delight then their own commendation Fair words make fools fain, put them into their paradise. How much better Charls the Fifth, who coming to Paris, and entertained with a Speech by one of the Kings Counsellours, that tended much to his commendation; Answered, Ideò sibi gratam esse orationem quòd eum commonefecisset quòd talis esse deberet. i e. That the oratour rather taught him what he ought to be, then told him what he had been.

Joh. Manl. loc. com. pag. 595.

Verse 23. Because he gave not glory] Joseph is trusted with all Potiphars goods, not with his wife: Glory is Gods beloved Spouse; in the enjoying whereof he is a jealous God, admitting no corrival, in heaven or earth, Isa. 42. 8 To look upon it, and lust after it, is to commit spiritual adultery with it in our hearts.

σκωλήκοβρωτός. And he was eaten of worms] Or with lice, as his grand-father Herod had been before him; as the tyrant Maximinus (who had set forth his proclamation engraven in brass, for the utter abolishing of Christ & his religion) was after him. So was Philip the 2d King of Spain, who swore he had rather have no Subjects, then Lutheran Subjects. And when he had very narrowly escaped drowning in a shipwrack, he said he was delivered by the singular providence of God to root out Lutheranism; which he presently began to do &c: But God was even with him soon after. See Scriban. de institut. Princip. cap. 20. An evil end also befel Diagoras the Atheist; who when he had made a famous oration against a Deity, the people came applauding him and said he had almost perswaded them, but only they thought, that if any were God, he was for his eloquence sake: whereupon this wretch, like Herod, was content to be thought a God; which soon wrought his ruine.

Sic & Sylla pediculari morbo perit. Plutar.

Hist. of Council of Trent. 417.

Digitized by Google

ruine. Good therefore is the counsel of the Apostle, Let us not be desirous of vain glory, of popular applause; which what is it else but a blast of stinking breath, a Meteor that liveth in the ayr, a Magnum nihil, a glorious fancy, Gal. 5. 26. and if derogatory to Gods honour, as here, it proves pernicious and destructive.

And gave up the Ghost] His death was precationis opus potius quam morbi, as it was said of Arrius the heretick, who was brought to confusion by the prayers of Alexander the good Bishop of Constantinople. Josephus saith, Herod at his death much complained of the peoples vanity in deifying him. But no man is flattered by another, that hath not first flattered himself. Socrat. lib. 1. cap. 15.

Verse 24. But the word of God] The Church is invincible: and Truth may be oppressed a while, but not utterly suppressed. The Israelites never increased so, as when Pharaoh kept them under. Fish thrive best in salt waters. The ground that is most harrowed, is most fruitful. Camomile, the more you tread it, the more you spread it, and the Palm-trees posie is, Nec premor nec perimor. All the power of the Empire could not prevail against Luther.

Chap. XIII.

Verse 1. Now there were, &c.]

Bishop Ridly expounded the Acts and Pauls Epistles every morning in his family, giving to every man a new Testament, hiring them besides with mony to learn by heart certain principal Chapters, but especially this thirteenth Chapter of the Acts. Act. & Mon. 1570.

Herods foster-brother] Puer Collactaneus. One that had sucked of the same milk with Herod Antipas, who beheaded the Baptist. The love of foster-brothers in Ireland, (saith Camden) far surpasseth all the loves of all men. But Manaen hated all for Christ. σύντροφος. Camd. Eliz. fol. 483.

Verse 2. As they ministred] The Greek Scholiast hath it, As they preached, which is the chief office of a Minister, and his highest honour. Others interpret it, As they prayed, so the Syriak, and Arabick. The Papists only, As they sacrificed, to countenance their abominable Idol of the Mass. λειτουργούντων. κηρυσσόντων.

Verse 3. Laid their hands on them] So separating and consecrating them to the work, as they did of old the beast for sacrifice, by laying their hands thereon.

Verse 4. Sailed to Cyprus.] This Iland was anciently for its wealth called Macaria, that is, The blessed. The people therein generally lived so at ease and pleasure, that thereof the Iland was dedicated to Venus, who was at Paphos especially worshipped, and much filthiness committed: Yet thither are these Apostles directed by the Holy Ghost, and a great man (with many others) converted to the Faith. The Romans were invited by the wealth of the place to over-run it, Ita ut jus ejus insula avarius magis quam justius simus assequuti, saith Sextus Rufus. But Christ (of his free grace) without any such motive, seized upon it by his Gospel, and gathered a Church in it. Turk. H. 843.

Verse 5. At Salamis] A City of Cyprus, at the East side of it, over against Syria.

Verse 6. Whose name was Barjesus] The son of Jesus: so he had called himself, as if of neerest alliance to our Saviour. The Syriack hath it Barshuma, the son of name or renown.

Verse 7. Which was with the Deputy] The greater opposites to the truth have been ever the greatest Courtiers. The Arrians in their age. And of them the Jesuites learned it, and of them the Arminians, as Utenbogardus in the Low-Countries, and Canterbury here.

Verse 8. But Elymas] Elymais is a part of Persia; the proper Country of the Magicians, given to devillish arts. The Devil daily commits the sin against the holy Ghost, by opposing the known truth.

Verse 9. Who also is called Paul] Here Saul is first called Paul, for memory (it is probable) of the first spoils he brought into the Church, not the head, but the heart of this Sergius Paulus. The Popes likewise change their names at their inthronization, to shew, saith the Gloss, ad permutationem nominis, factam mutationem hominis. But if they change at all, it is for the worse, as Pius secundus, Sextus Quintus, &c. Pope Marcellus would needs retain his old name, to shew his constancy, and that in his private estate he had thoughts worthy of the Popedome.

Digitized by Google

Hist of Counc. of Trent.

Set his eyes on him] As if he would have looked through him. After which lightning, followed that terrible thunder-crack, vers. 10. Bajazet, of his fiery looks, was sirnamed Gilderim or Lightning. In Tamerlanes eyes sat such a rare majesty, as a man could hardly endure to behold them without closing of his own: And many with talking with him, and often beholding of them, became dumb. The like is reported of Augustus. And of Saint Basil it is reported, that when Valens the Arrian Emperour came unto him, while he was in his holy exercises, it struck such a terror into the Emperour, that he reeled and had fallen, had he not been upheld by those that were near him. Godly men have a daunting presence.

Turk. H. 203. Ibid. 236.

Greg. orat. de laud. b. Basilii

Verse 10. O full of all subtilty, and all mischief] Gr. Maleficiency, thou that by long dealing hast gotten a dexterity in evil doing, &c. This was plain dealing, such as Master Philpot Martyr used to Morgan, and other Popelings that set upon him: Such as Maris, the blind Bishop of Bithynia, used to Julian the Apostate. For when Julian had said to him, Behold thou art blind: thinkest thou that the Galilean thy God careth for thee? Maris replyed, O tu impie Apostata! gratias ago, Deo meo, qui me cæcum reddidit, ne vultum tuum videam ita ad impietatem prolapsum. O thou wicked Apostate! I bless my Lord Christ who hath made me blind, that I might not see thy cursed countenance. When Servetus condemned Zuinglius for his harsh handling of him, he answers; In aliis mansuetus ero, in blasphemias in Christum non ita. In other things I will use mildness, but not in dealing with those that blaspheme Christ. Mihi sanè Auxentius erit diabolus quamdiu Arrianus, said Hilary, I shall think Auxentius to be no better then a devil, so long as he continues an Arrian.

ἐμπληγίε.

Epist. in Servet.

Enemy of all righteousness] The adulterer is an enemy to chastity, the drunkard to sobriety, &c. but he that hindereth others from heaven, is an enemy to all righteousness.

To pervert the right wayes] To dig them up, to ditch them over, so as they are not passable. The conversion of great men is of great consequence. Hence Paul was so loth to lose the Proconsul.

Διαστρέφων.

Verse 11. Not seeing the Sun] A Philosopher being asked whether it were not a pleasant thing to see the Sun? Answered, That is a blind mans question. Life without light is a life-less life.

τυφλὸς τὸ ἡλιωτικὸν.

Verse 12. Being astonished, &c.] The word worketh not kindly, till it be received with admiration.

Verse 13. John departing from] Being weary of the work, he shewed them a slippery trick. Many will do something for God, that will suffer little or nothing for him. The King of Navarr told Beza he would launch no further into the Sea, then he might be sure to return safe to the haven: Though he shewed some countenance to Religion, yet he would be sure to save himself.

Pelago non ita commissurus esse, quin quando liberet, pedem referre posset.

Verse 14. They sat down] Bullingers note here is very good. Non importunè nec impudenter se ingerunt Paulus & Barnabas, nec more Anabaptistarum clamitant, Audite verbum domini, pœnitentiam agite: sed silentes expectant dicendi occasionem. Paul and Barnabas do not importunately and impudently thrust themselves into the Pulpit, nor do they cry out (after the manner of the Anabaptists) Hear the word of the Lord, repent of your sins, &c. but they wait in silence for a fit opportunity, and till they are called to speak.

Verse 15. And after the reading] In the Synagogues, the Scripture was first read, and then opened and applyed: so it ought to be in the Christian Churches.

If ye have any word of exhortation] See the Note on Acts 9. 15.

Verse 16. And ye that fear God] This is the proper character of an Israelite indeed.

Verse 17. Chose our fathers] Separating them by a wonderful separation, as the Hebrew word signifieth, Exod 33. 16.

Verse 18. Suffered he their manners] As a mother bears with her childs frowardness: or as a husband bears with his wives crossness, which yet he liketh not. Uxoris vitium, aut tollendum aut tolerandum, saith Varro in Agellius.

ἐτροποφόρησεν.

Verse 19. And when he had destroyed seven nations] Who had filled the Land from one end to another with their uncleanness; so that God was forced to sweep it with the besom

Ezra. 9. 11.

Digitized by Google

beſom of deſtruction: like as before that, the face of the old world was grown ſo foul, that God was fain to waſh it with a flood.

Verſe 20. About the ſpace &c.] It was not all out ſo long: therefore he ſaith, About the ſpace: thereby teaching us in doubtful things to deliver our ſelves doubtfully, and not to be over-confident. See Joh. 4. 6. ὡσεὶ.

Verſe 21. By the ſpace of fourty years] Taking in to the account the days of Samuels Govermnent.

Verie 22. Fulfil all my will] Gr. All my wills, to note the univerſality and ſincerity of his obedience. We ſhould therefore ſtrive to do all the wills of God, becauſe we have done heretofore all the wils of the fleſh, Epheſ. 2. 2. θελήματα.

Verſe 23. A Saviour Jeſus] The Greek word here rendred Saviour, is ſo emphatical, that other tongues can hardly find a fit word to expreſs it, as Cicero noteth. Sotera inſcriptum vidi Syracuſis. Hoc quantum eſt? Ita magnum ut latino uno verbo exprimi non poſſit. Σωτῆρ. In Verrem Actio 4.

Verſe 24. The baptiſm of repentance] See the note on Luke 3. 3.

Verſe 25. John fulfilled his courſe] From this word rendered courſe, the Dromedary hath his name, who is marvellous ſwift, and will run an hundred miles a day. But the Germans call a dull and ſlow man a Dromedary, per Antiphraſin. δρόμον. Minſhew.

Verſe 26. The word of this ſalvation] Salvation is potentially in the Word, as the harveſt is in the ſeed.

Verſe 27. Read every Sabbath] Many live in places of great knowledge, and yet remain groſly ignorant, underſtand no more what they read or hear, then a Cow-herd doth the moſt abſtruſe precepts of Aſtronomy.

Verſe 28. See the Note on Mat. 27. 22.

Verſe 29. And when they had fulfilled] Though no thank to them, no excuſe to their wickedneſs. Divinum conſilium dum devitatur, impletur. But whereas all is fulfilled that was foretold, that plainly proves that Jeſus was the Chriſt, and that our redemption by Chriſt was a plot of Gods own laying.

Verſe 30. See the Note on Mat. 28. 6.

Verſe 31. Who are his witneſſes to the people] Of our Saviours Reſurrection there were many witneſſes, both living (as the Angels, the Women, the Souldiers, the Apoſtles, thoſe 500 Brethren at once, 1 Cor. 15. 6.) and dead (ſuch as were the Earthquake, the empty grave, the ſtone rolled away, the clothes wrapt up together, &c.) and all little enough. But why ſhould it be thought a thing incredible that God ſhould raiſe the dead? Acts 26. 8. See the Note there.

Verſe 32. And we declare unto you gladtidings] Even the ſum of all the good news in the world, and that which ſhould ſwallow up all diſcontents. The old Church had ἐπαγγελίαν the Promiſe onely; but we now have εὐαγγελίαν the joyful tidings, good news from heaven.

Verſe 33. In the ſecond Pſalm] Eraſmus teſtifieth, That ſome antient copies here, have it, In the firſt Pſalm: Either becauſe the firſt and ſecond were of old but one Pſalm: Or becauſe the firſt is not properly a Pſalm, but a preface to the Pſalms: Like as the 119 Pſalm is ſet (ſaith one) as a Poem of commendation afore the Book of God, mentioning it in every verſe, Teſtimonies, Laws, Statutes, Word, &c.

This day have I begotten thee] That is, I have this day of thy manifeſtation in the fleſh made known that thou art my ſon, as well by my teſtimony of thee, as by thine aſſumption of humane nature.

Verſe 34. To return to corruption] That is, to the grave, that houſe of corruption: which yet the Hebrews call Beth chajim, the houſe of the living, becauſe of the promiſe thy dead men ſhall live, &c. The Germans call the place of burial Godſaker, becauſe the dead body, though ſown there in corruption, yet riſeth again in incorruption.

Verſe 35. See the Note on Act. 2. 31.

Verſe 36. After he had ſerved] Martinus decumbens, domine dixit, ſi adhuc populo tuo ſum neceſſarius, non recuſo laborem. Lord ſerve thy ſelf upon me, and then let me depart in peace. Sever. Epiſt. 3.

Verſe 37. Saw no corruption] No conſumption of the fleſh, much leſs of the bones too: onely he ſaw διαφθοράν, a ſeparation of ſoul and body for a ſeaſon; though neither ſoul nor body was at all by death ſundered from the Deity. But as a man that draws a knife, and holds ſtill the knife in one hand, and the ſheath in the other, the knife and διαφθοράν. καταφθοράν.

Digitized by Google

ſheath are ſeparated the one from the other, but neither of them is ſundered from him that holdeth them: ſo here.

Verſe 38. Be it known unto you therefore] q.d. Its a ſhame for any not to take knowledge of this which is ſo fundamental. Of other things a man may be ignorant without danger of damnation: but not of this. This is a principal piece of Quicunque vult.

Verſe 39. And by him all that believe are juſtified] This ſaying of St. Paul is the more to be heeded, ſaith an Interpreter, becauſe it is the very baſis, foundation and ſtate of Chriſtian Religion, whereby it is diſtinguiſhed from all other Religions whatſoever. Jews, Turks, Pagans, and Papiſts explode an imputed righteouſneſs; as if we could not be juſtified by the righteouſneſs of Chriſt apprehended by Faith. The Papiſts (as Saul) forbid us to eat of this hony, this precious comfort in Chriſt (viz. Juſtification by faith alone) as if hereby we ſhould be hindered in our purſuit againſt ſin: whereas indeed it is the onely ſtrength, and help againſt it. Hold faſt therefore the faithfull word; and tranſmit this doctrine ſafe and ſound to poſterity. It was Luthers great fear, that when he was dead, it would be loſt again out of the world.

Fox. Chriſt. triumph epiſt. nuncup.

Verſe 40. Beware therefore leſt] Miniſters muſt mix Law and Goſpel together in their diſcourſes. Sowr and ſweet make the beſt ſawce.

Verſe 41. Behold ye deſpiſers] Theſe the Scripture makes to be the worſt ſort of men; thoſe that jear when they ſhould fear, and deſpiſe what they ſhould give greateſt regard unto; Hell even gapes for ſuch, though they will not be perſwaded ſo, till it be all too late; as Pliny ſaith of Moales, that they begin not to ſee till pangs of death are upon them. He that deſpiſeth his way, ſhall periſh, ſaith Solomon.

Verſe 42. The Gentiles beſought] Where a powerful Miniſtery is ſetled, there ſome ſouls are to be converted. A Maſter that ſets up a light, hath ſome work to be done thereby.

Be preached to them the next Sabbath] Or in the Interim betwixt the two Sabbaths. A warrant for Week-day-lectures, Intra proximè ſequens Sabbatum: Interjectum tempus ſignificatur, ſaith Beza.

Verſe 43. To continue in the grace] The end is better then the beginning, ſaith Solomon. Non quæruntur in Chriſtianis initia ſed finis, ſaith Hierom.

Verſe 44. And the next Sabbath-day] The Apoſtles had been buſie with them on the foregoing week days, the better to prepare them to hear with profit on the Sabbath, that Queen of days, as the Hebrews call it.

Verſe 45. Contradicting and blaſpheming] Intemperate tongues cauſe God many times to take away the Word.

ἀπωθεῖσθε. Verſe 46. But ſeeing ye put it from you] Gr. Ye ſhove and thruſt it from you, as it were with ſides and ſhoulders: noting their deſperate incredulity and obſtinacy. And this was the very period of that day of grace ſpoken of by our Saviour, Luk. 19. 42. Oh if thou hadſt known at the leaſt in thy day, &c. Now, that the offer was made ſo fully and clearly, how could they eſcape, that neglected ſo great ſalvation?

Optimè mereris qui in luto hæreas, ſaid the Prince to the Cripple whom he would have taken into his coach.

Verſe 47. I have ſet thee] This ſpoken at firſt to Chriſt, is here applied to his Meſſengers and Miniſters, who are laborers together with Chriſt, 1 Cor. 3. 9. and are in Scripture called both Lights, and Saviours.

Mat. 5. 14. Obad. 21. 1 Tim. 4. 16.

Verſe 48. Glorified in the Word] that is, Received it into their hearts (as ſome Copies read this Text) ſuffering it to indwell richly in them (as becometh ſuch a gueſt) Col. 3. 16. yea to rule and bear ſway, yielding thereunto the obedience of faith; which is the greateſt honour that can be done to the word: as the contrary is, to deſpiſe propheſying, 1 Theſ. 5. 19. to caſt Gods word behinde our backs, Pſal. 50. 17. to trample on it: which the very Jews and Turks are ſo far from, that they carefully take up any Paper that lyeth on the ground, leſt it ſhould be any part of the Scripture, or have the name of God written in it.

ἐτάχθησαν. Paræus prolog. in Gen.

As many as were ordained, &c.] Election therefore is the fountain, whence Faith floweth: Men are not elected of faith foreſeen, and becauſe they believe, as the Arminians would have it.

Verſe 49. And the word of the Lord] It ran and was glorified, as the Apoſtle hath it. So fitly is it compared to leaven, for its ſpreading property. Mat. 13. 33. See the Note there.

Gregor. Verſe 50. The devout and honourable Women] Satan per coſtam tanquam per ſcalam ad ad cor aſcendit. The Devil breaketh many a mans head with his own rib. When the hen is ſuffered to crow, much evil enſueth. Satan makes uſe of women ſtill to hinder men from heaven.

Digitized by Google

But the Jews] Stirred up by Satan, who cannot brook the dilatation of Chriſts curtains.

Verſe 51. See the Note on Mat. 10. 14.

Verſe 52. With joy, and with the Holy Ghoſt] These muſt needs be muſick in the Spirits Temple, and at that continual Feaſt: the Sweet-meats whereof is the aſſurance of heaven, as Father Latimer phraſeth it. 2 Theſ. 3. 1. Prov. 15. 15.

Chap. XIV.

Verſe 1. And it came to paſs in Iconium.]

SEE the Note on Act. 8. 1.

Verſe 2. Made their minds evil and affected] Envenomed their minds with rage againſt the brethren, but God made peace, as the ancient copies add here. His peace that paſſeth all underſtanding guarded their hearts and minds in Chriſt Jeſus. ἐκάκωσαν. Beza ex Beda.

Verſe 3. Which gave teſtimony to the Word] It is uſual with St. Luke to oppoſe the good ſucceſs of the Goſpel to the malicious actings of the mad world againſt it: that Gods people might not be diſcouraged.

Verſe 4. But the multitude was divided] Scinditur incertum ſtudia in contraria vulgus. Chriſt came not to ſend peace, but a ſword. Yet is not he the cauſe of diviſion, but the occaſion only, and that by accident. (So ſin is the occaſion, not the cauſe that grace aboundeth.) They that quarrel at Gods ordinances for this, may as well quarrel at the Lords Supper; which, though a Sacrament of love, a Communion, yet hath occaſioned much diſſention: witneſs that bellum Sacramentarium, then the which never any kindled ſooner, is quenched ſlowlier. ἐφίλει.

Verſe 5. And to ſtone them] Stephen had the Maidenhead of this kind of death: as that Martyr, who was threatned with whipping, wiſhed that he might have the Maidenhead of that kinde of ſuffering (for he had not heard of any that had been ſo ſerved:) and as Baſil, threatned by Valens with death, cryed out, εἴθε γένοιτο μοι, I would it might be ſo. Act. & Mon.

Verſe 6. Fled unto Lyſtra] They had their Lords good leave to do ſo, Mat. 10. 23. He had made them, not as Butts, to be perpetually ſhot at: but as the Marks of Rovers, moveable, as the wind and Sun may beſt ſerve.

Verſe 7. And there they preached the Goſpel] Which ſhews that their flying proceeded from prudence, and not from inconſtancy, lightneſs, or cowardiſe.

Verſe 8. And there ſat a certain man] This was (likely) one of thoſe many miracles done at Lyſtra; a ſignal one, and therefore inſtanced.

Verſe 9. Perceiving that he had faith] Not by any skill he had in Phyſiognomy, but by ſpecial revelation: without the which, ſtrong confidence one may have of another mans true grace, but no certainty either of ſenſe or of ſcience.

Verſe 10. And he leaped and walked] Together with Pauls word there went forth a power: ſo there doth in all holy ordinances, Pſal. 146. 8. The Lord giveth ſight to the blind, he raiſeth up the crooked, he loveth the righteous. This Cripple might be very well one of thoſe righteous, whom God out of his ſpecial love reſtored to the uſe of his limbs. A favour that he granteth ſometimes to the wicked, whom yet he loveth not.

Verſe 11. The gods are come down] See the force of an evil cuſtom, and of a vain converſation, received by tradition from the Fathers: Theſe Lycaonians had heard out of the Fables of their Poets, that Jupiter and Mercury came down of old to viſit Lycaon their progenitor, and that for the diſcourteſie he offered them, they transformed him into a Wolf. Hereupon they uſed to offer ſacrifice to thoſe dunghil-deities, and now they ſuppoſe they have them in humane ſhape amongſt them. 1 Pet. 1. 18.

Verſe 12. He was the chief ſpeaker] Gr. A maſter of ſpeech. Paul was another Pericles, ἡγεμὼν τῆς λόγου.

Digitized by Google

Intonabat, fulgurabat, totam Græciam permiscebat. Cicero. Plutar. in Pyrrho.

ricles, who thundred and lightned in his Orations; another Phocion, who was εἰπεῖν δυνατώτατος saith Plutarch, a most powerful speaker: another Cyneas, who conquered more Cities by his eloquence, then his Master Pyrrhus did by his puissance. In Rogers and Bradford Martyrs, it was hard to say whether there were more force of eloquence and utterance in preaching (saith Mr. Fox) or more holiness of life and conversation. Paul was eminent in both.

Act & Mon. fol. 1782.

Verse 13. And would have done sacrifice] So the Salvages of Nova Albion, as they were very much taken with our singing of Psalms, and other holy exercises (saith Sr. Francis Drake) whiles we were among them: so when they could not prevail with us to stay longer there, they stole upon us a sacrifice, and set it on fire ere we were aware, We laboured by all means to with-hold or with-draw them; but could not prevail, till at last we fell to prayers and singing of Psalms, whereby they were allured immediately to forget their folly, and leave their sacrifice unconsumed (for they supposed us to be gods indeed) suffering the fire to go out, and imitating us in all our actions, they fell a lifting up their hands, and eyes to heaven, as they saw us to do.

The world encompassed by Sir Francis Drake. p. 81.

Verse 14. They rent off their clothes] In token of their holy indignation, and utter detestation; they knew the Lords Jealousie would soon smoke against any that shall but cast a lustful look at his glory (wich is as his wife, and which he will by no means give unto another) By this act of theirs therefore they shew how they abhorred the motion or mention of any such matter.

Esa 42. 8.

Verse 15. Of like passions, &c.] Passions are here put for whatsoever differenceth man from the divine nature.

Verse 16. Suffered all nations, &c.] That we walk not as other Gentiles, in our own wayes, but know and serve the true God, is of his singular grace and favour. The ancient Inhabitants of this land were as barbarous and brutish as any under heaven. Cicero parallels the Brittons and Scythians. Hierom ever sets them in opposition to some other nation that is most tamed and civilized. Sed Britannorum inaccessa Romanis loca Christo tamen subdita, saith Tertullian. Christ subdued those whom the Romans could never come at to conquer.

De nat. deorum.

Verse 17. He left not himself] Here they might object, that God in suffering men so to wander, shewed not himself so kind and bountiful. The Apostle answers, that God had sufficiently sealed up his general love and goodness, in doing good, giving rain from heaven, &c. Stars are the Store-houses of Gods good treasure, which he openeth to our profit, Deut. 28. 12. By their influence they make a scatter of riches upon the earth, which good men gather, bad men scramble for. Every of the heavenly bodies is a purse of gold, out of which God throws down riches and plenty upon the earth.

And fruitful Seasons] If St. Paul had thought well of the Sybilles Oracles (saith learned Beza) it was wonder he had not here mentioned them. Casaubon and Obsopæus reckon them for no better then officious lyes.

Verse 18. Scarce restrained they the people] See Verse 13. Mans nature is marvelous prone to Idolatry, and the devil helps after; for he is εἰδωλοχαρὴς, saith Synesius: for he knows that creature-worship is Devil-worship. Psal. 106. 37. Rev. 9. 20.

Verse 19. And there came thither] The Devil, when he is driven to his last shift, stirs up his instruments to use violence, which yet prevaileth not.

And having stoned Paul] At Athens, if the Comedians pleased not the people, they were over-whelmed with stones. This was hard measure: yet such as Ministers many times meet with. But what a strange change was here on a suddain! was there no mean betwixt deifying and stoning? how soon turns the wind into a contrary corner? Varium & mutabile Vulgus. Neutrum modò; mas modò vulgus.

Rous Archæ Attic. p 88.

Verse 20. He rose up] He starts up when stoned with a sic, sic oportet intrare, so heaven is gotten by pains, by patience, by violence, persecution being our inseparable companion. Sic petitur cœlum.

Verse 21. They returned again to Lystra] The love of Christ constrained them to imperil themselves for his glory: for the promoting whereof they loved not their lives unto the death. Rev. 12. 11. The loadstone, we know, draweth iron: yea sendeth forth his attractive vertue to the absent needle, through the box of wood, wherein it is inclosed; and pierceth through the Table, to the iron under it. Let our love to Jesus Christ break through all.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 22. We muſt through much tribulation] Plana via ad patriam cœleſtem eſt crux, ſaith one. If there be any way on horſeback to heaven, ſurely this is the way, ſaid another Martyr. If any think to go to heaven without tribulation, he muſt (as the Emperour Conſtantine told the Heretick Aceſius) erect a ladder, and go up alone. Some there are that take up a delicate profeſſion; they would divide betwixt Chriſt and his Croſs, but they are fairly miſtaken. Some think to go to heaven in a whirl-wind, or as the paſſengers at Sea be brought to the haven, ſleeping. But what ſaith Zanchy, Non decet ut ſub capite ſpinis coronato vivant membra in deliciis. Neque frumenta in horreum reponuntur, niſi flabellis benè à paleis, ariſtis, & glumis repurgata. Neque lapides in templo Solomonis collocantur, niſi ſcalpellis & malleis benè cæſi. If the head were crowned with thorns, the members muſt not dream of a delicacy. The ſtones were not ſet into Solomons Temple, till hewen, neither is the corn brought into the garner, till winnowed.

Malcolm. Bradford.

Erigito ſcalam & ſolus aſcendite.

Zanch. miſcell. Epiſt. dedicat.

Verſe 23. Ordained them Elders] Giving their voices by lifting up their hands, after the faſhion of the Greeks: whence that of Tully, porrexerunt manus, pſephiſma natum eſt. Or elſe laying on their hands, as the Apoſtles uſed to do in ordaining of Miniſters. Stephanus ſaith, that this word when it governeth an accuſative caſe (as here it doth) ſignifies not to give ſuffrage, but to create, ordain, elect.

χειροτονήσαντες.

In theſ. ling. Græca.

Verſe 24. And after they had paſſed through Piſidia] At Antioch in this country they had planted a Church before (See chap. 13, 14, 15, &c.) Now being to return to the other Antioch in Syria (whence they had been ſent out at firſt) they paſs through Pamphylia, a country that lay toward the mountain Taurus.

Verſe 26. Recommended to the grace of God] This ſhews that they ſet not upon the work in their own ſtrength, but wholly depended upon the free grace of God, quâ nolentem prevenit ut velit, volentem ſubſequitur, ne fruſtrà velit, ſaith holy Auguſtine, who was a great advancer of grace, and abaſer of nature; as being wholy of St. Pauls ſpirit, for which the Papiſts ſharply cenſure him.

Aug. Enchirid. cap. 32. Stapleton. Sixt. Senenſ.

Verſe 27. Preached the word in Perga] A City of Pamphylia, much addicted to the worſhip of Diana, who was therehence called Pergea. Gratia nullo modo eſt gratia, quæ non eſt gratuita, ſaith Auguſtine. Note this againſt the doctrine of Merits foreſeen, and free-will.

And how he had opened the door of faith] Indeed of heaven; by the preaching of the doctrine of faith: there being no other ordinary way of attaining ſalvation either for Jews or Gentiles, as St. Paul proves in his Epiſtle to the Romans; as in that to the Coloſſians he determineth, that the ſoul is ſpoiled by Philoſophy, if it be not after Chriſt. Thoſe ſchool-Divines therefore qui ſalutem ſpondet abſq; Chriſti cognitione (as Acoſta hath it) who open a door to heaven without Faith in Chriſt, were much miſtaken. And ſo were thoſe Collen-Divines too, that wrote a book of the Salvation of Ariſtotle; whom they make to be Chriſts forerunner in naturals, like as John Baptiſt was in ſupernaturals.

Cant. 8. 9. If ſhe be a door, i.e. If ſhe have faithful Miniſters, which, as a door, open the way to Chriſt. Col. 2. 8. Corn. Agrip. Balæus.

Verſe 28. There they abode] As in a Receptacle of reſt, a place of free profeſſion; ſuch as Geneva hath been for many years to the perſecuted Proteſtants; which makes the wicked Papiſts give out, that it is a profeſſed ſanctuary of all manner of roguery; that the people there are blaſphemers of God and all his Saints; yea, that they are grown barbarous, and eat young Children, &c. And this the common people are taught to believe as Goſpel.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

Chap. XV.

Verse 1. And certain men, &c.]

CErinthus, the Heretick, with his complices, saith Epiphanius. These are said to subvert the Gospel, Gal. 1. 7. A little thing untowardly mingled, marrs all, saith Chrysostom.

Verse 2. No small dissention] We must earnestly contend for the faith of the Gospel, accounting every parcel of truth precious, Jude 3. How zealous was Paul in this case, Gal. 2. 5. & 1. 7. & 5. 12. He wisheth them not onely circumcised, but served as the Turks do their Eunuchs, whom they deprive of all their genitals, so that they are forced to supply the uses of nature with a silver quill.

Non circumcidantur modo, sed & abscindantur, Chrys. Heyl. Geog. p. 598.

Verse 3. By the Church] That is, by the community of Gods people, who therefore (as it may seem) sided with Paul and Barnabas, against those disturbers.

They passed through Phenice and Samaria] They took a long journey for a publike good. Calvin was wont to say, that he would gladly sayl over ten seas, to settle a general peace and good agreement in the reformed Churches. Terentius (that Noble General under Valens the Emperour) when he was bidden ask what he would, and it should be done, asked nothing but that the Church might be freed from Arrians. And when the Emperour tore his Petition, he said that he would never ask any thing for himself, if he might not prevail for the Church: This that he might, he would undertake any pains, undergo any peril by sea or land.

Ne decem quidem maria, &c. Beza.

Theodoret. l.b. 4. cap. 32.

Verse 4. They were received of the Church] i. e. By the body of the people: for the Apostles and Elders have a peculiar place assigned them.

Verse 5. But there rose up] These are not Lukes words, but the Apostles continuing their speech: They declared all things that God had done with them, and how they had been opposed by certain of the Pharisees sect, &c.

Verse 6. And the Apostles and Elders, &c.] This was the first Christian Council. The four following General Councils Gregory the great held of equal authority almost with the four Gospels. In posterioribus Conciliis (saith Luther) nunquam de fide, sed semper de opinionibus & quæstionibus fuit disputatum: ut mihi Conciliorum nomen pene tam suspectum & invisum sit quam nomen liberi arbitrii. He fitly compareth the late Popish Councils to the meeting of Foxes, which going about to sweep a room with their tails, raise dust, but rid none.

Nicen Constantinopol. Ephesinum, & Chalcedonense.

Verse 7. And when there had been much disputing] Each part striving for victory, till the Apostles stood up and determined. It was no matter between Austin and Hierom, in their disputations, who gained the day; they would both win, by understanding their errours. But Basil in his latter time grew to a great dislike of Councils and Conferences: because men usually met in their own strength there, and strove not so much for verity as victory; for truth as for triumph.

Verse 9. Purifying their hearts by faith] Faith (as a neat hus-wife) sweeps clean, and suffers never a sluts-corner in the soul. It is ever purging upon corruption, and lets out the life blood of it: for it shews a man a better project, then to lie sucking at the botches of carnal pleasures, or, to be basely affixed to earthly profits. Every true believer beareth a brush at his back, as we say of a trim man. His faith consecrateth his heart, and maketh it, of the Devils through-fare, Gods enclosure.

Verse 10. Now therefore, why tempt ye God] Or (as Hierom in a certain Epistle to Augustine reads this text, and so it runs more smoothly) Why attempt ye to put a yoak upon the neck of the Disciples, &c. Ceremonies were abolished by Christ, and had no use after his death, but by accident: as he who buildeth a vault, letteth the centrels stand, till he put in the key-stone, and then pulleth them away: So here.

Verse 11. That through the grace] We sail to heaven all upon one bottom: we climb up all by one ladder. If any conceit another way, he must erect a ladder and go up alone: he shall (as Aristotle somewhere saith) καὶ ἐξ' ἑαυτοῦ ἑλκύσας ὁ κακίας γέρος, plunge himself into remedilesse misery.

In Meteorol.

Verse 12. Then all the multitude kept silence] See here the picture of a lawful ouncil, guided by the Word and Spirit of God. It was not a Cyclopical Assembly, ubi

Digitized by Google

ubi οὐδεὶς οὐδεὶ οὐδενὸς ἀκούει, nor as in Alcibiades his army, where all would be Leaders, no Learners, &c. Or as the Jews at this day in their Jeshiboth, or Academies meet to dispute, but talk all together confusedly, The Rabbins with their Scholars, &c.

Verse 13. James answered] Who seemed to be a pillar, Gal. 2. 9. and was so, both of the Colledge of Apostles, and of the Church at Jerusalem.

Verse 14. Simeon hath declared, &c.] q. d. He hath done it very well, onely he hath not alledged any text of Scripture for confirmation; which therefore I will add. In Popish Councils the holy Scripture is in a manner set aside; and the decrees of Fathers, Schoolmen, and former Councils brought in place thereof. At the Council of Basil, when the Hussites refused to admit of any doctrine that could not be proved by Scripture, Cardinal Cusan made answer, that the Scriptures pertained not to the being of the Church, but to the wel-being onely: and that they were to be expounded according to the current rite of the Church, qua mutante sententiam, mutetur & Dei Iudicium. Iac. Rev. de vit. pont. page 235.

Verse 15. And to this agree, &c.] The Scriptures must over-rule: as Cyril saith in a Synod at Ephesus, upon an high throne in the Temple there lay sanctum Evangelium, the holy Gospel.

Verse 16. Which is fallen down] Christ came when all seemed to be lost and laid on heaps. He still reserveth his holy hand for a dead lift, and delighteth to help those that are forsaken of their hopes. This Branch grew out of the roots of Jesse; when that goodly family was sunk so low, as from David the King to Joseph the Carpenter, Isa. 11. 1.

Verse 17. May seek the Lord] All Saints are seekers in this sense. Psal. 24. 6. They seek not his omnipresence, but his gracious presence. Psal. 105. 4.

Verse 18. Known unto God, &c.] And consequently the calling of the Gentiles is foreknown, and fore-appointed by him, as a thing to be done, in due time, though they be never circumcised.

Verse 19. That we trouble not] Gr. Trouble them more then needs: they will meet with trouble enough otherwise in the way to heaven. I would they were even cut off, that thus trouble their consciences. παρενοχλεῖν. Gal. 5. 12.

Verse 20. And from fornication] Which is here reckoned among things indifferent, καὶ δόξαν, ἃ καὶ ἔσται, because the Gentiles esteemed it (falsely) a thing indifferent. Non est flagitium (mihi crede) adolescentulum scortari, potare, foreseffringere, said he in Terence. So in the Turks Alchoran, the Angel being demanded concerning venery, is brought in, answering, that God did not give men such appetites to have them frustrate, but enjoyed, as made for the gust of man, not for his torment, wherein his Creatour delights not. But what saith the Scripture? Whoremongers and adulterers God will judge. Terent. Adelp. Act. 1. Scen. 2. Blunts voyage.

Verse 21. For Moses of old time, &c.] This is alledged as a reason why they should as yet abstain from those indifferents, because the Jews, having been accustomed to Moses his writings, could not quickly be drawn to let go the legal ceremonies, which were now to have an honourable burial, by degrees to be abolished. The Ceremonies before Christs passion were neither deadly nor dead: After his Passion they were not deadly for a time, (whiles The Temple stood) though dead after a sort. Bnt from that time forward, they were both dead and deadly, saith Aquinas.

Verse 22. Chief men among the Brethren] For authority-sake: and that the false Apostles might not say that those Letters were counterfeit or surreptiously gotten.

Verse 23. And wrote letters by them] For the better confirmation of the weak, and confutation of the wilful, to be as a standing monument.

Verse 24. Subverting your souls] Pulling down that which had been set up, ravelling out that which had been well knit before. The word signifiesunvesselling them, unpacking them (as ware packt up in a Fatt to be sent beyond sea) scattering them, and bringing all into a confusion. ἀνασκευάζοντες.

Verse 25. To send chosen men with our beloved] Delectos cum dilectis. See vers. 22. & 27.

Verse 26. Men that hazarded their lives, &c.] One ancient Copy adds εἰς πάντα πειρασμὸν, to all sorts of tryals and tribulations. Love, as it is a passion, so it is tryed rather by passions then actions.

Verse 27. We have sent Judas and Silas] Men skilful in comforting consciences, and resolving reſolving caſes, as verſ. 32. Conſcience is a Diamond, and will be wrought on by nothing but duſt of Diamond, ſuch as contrition hath ground it to. How like the motion of a Puppet, the language of a Parret, is the beſt diſcourſe, in this ſubject of Conſcience, of the not intereſſed-man? He is one of a thouſand, that can declare unto man his righteouſneſs, Job 33. 23. Thoſe that would have oyl for their lamps, comfort for their conſciences, muſt repair to them that ſell it, Mat. 25. 9.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 28. For it ſeemed good to the holy Ghoſt] That's only a lawful Synod, wherein the holy Ghoſt is preſent and preſident. Nothing was reſolved by the Trent-fathers, but all in Rome: ſo that a ballſphemous proverb was generally uſed, which I forbear to relate: Let him that liſt read it in the Hiſt. of Counc. of Trent, fol. 497. See alſo fol. 822.

Then theſe neceſſary things] Not always and every way neceſſary (except that of fornication to be avoided) but neceſſary for preſerving the peace of the Church as then it was, by bearing with the weaker Chriſtians. Things inconvenient, even in matters of Religion, may be done in ſome caſes to redeem a far worſe inconvenience. Theſe burthens are here called neceſſary things, and they are ſaid to do well, if they obſerved them, verſ. 29.

See the Note on Chap. 16. 3.

Verſe 29. And from fornication] Some Greek copies add, And whatſoever ye would not ſhould be done to you, that ye do not the ſame to others: which is a general rule, and a foundation of the former. As for fornication, it is here reckoned among things indifferent, becauſe the Gentiles held it ſo: as the Papiſts now account it a very ſmall ſin: but ſo did not the Council. See 1 Cor. 10. 8. and Heb. 13. 4. with the Notes. A learned man telleth us, that that Impoſtor Mahomet hath (in an apiſh imitation of this decree of the holy Synod) forbidden his followers the ſelf-ſame things, ſaving that he nameth ſwines-fleſh in the place of fornication. See the Note on Verſe 20.

Verſe 30. And when they had gathered the multitude] This was fair-dealing indeed. Among Papiſts, the people are held in groſs ignorance; and taught to believe as the Church believes: which what it is, they muſt neither underſtand nor enquire after. One of their Biſhops boaſted, that if Luther had not ſtarted up when he did, and ſtood in their way, they could have perſwaded the common people to eat graſs as horſes, or do any thing elſe they had enjoyned them. Sculter. Annal.

Verſe 31. They rejoyced for the conſolation] How ſhould we rejoyce in Chriſt our Saviour, who bare our ſins, &c. and freed us from the burden and brunt of both crime and curſe?

Verſe 32. See the Note on verſe 27.

Verſe 33. They were let go in peace] i.e. Judas was, but not Silas, upon ſecond thoughts, verſ. 34. After their office put upon them by the Synod was faithfully diſcharged, they did not give over the Lords work, and take their eaſe; but ſet themſelves to do further ſervice. The Roman Generals, after they had once triumphed over their enemies, did no more ſervice to the State. But Cato (of whom Lucan witneſſeth that he did ——— toti natum ſe credere mundo) is worthily commended, for that after the honour of a triumph, he was no leſs ſedulous and ſollicitous of a weal-publike, then before: we muſt never think we have done enough for God. Pomp. Læt. Ro. hiſt. l. 2.

Verſe 34. To abide there ſtill] Upon ſecond thoughts, after he had leave to depart, he ſtaid there a while longer. This Silas is thought to be the ſame with Sylvanus, as Joſhua is the ſame with Jehoſhua, Hag. 2. 2. Zach. 3.

Notwithſtanding it pleaſed Silas] Sc. Upon better deliberation and more probability of being there ſerviceable to God, and uſeful to his Church. Martinus decumbens, Domine, dixit: ſi adhuc populo tuo ſum neceſſarius, non recuſo laborem, &c. Choice ſpirits are all for God: they ſtill ſtudy his ends more then their own. Sever. epiſt. 3.

Verſe 35. Teaching and preaching] i.e. Being inſtant and earneſt, non frigidi docent, ſed inſtant & urgent, ſaith Calvin here: they laid their bones to the Lords work, they ſet their ſides and their ſhoulders to it, as thoſe that would do the deed.

With many others alſo] "In the primitive times (ſaith a late Writer) Every Church "had many Miniſters, whereof the ableſt Speakers did preach moſt in publike: and the "reſt did the more of the leſs publike work. But now ſacrilege and covetouſneſs will "ſcarce leave maintenance for one in a Church, &c." Mr Baxters pref. to Saints everlaſting Reſt. ὁ πανηγύρις. Mat. 13.

Verſe 36. And ſee how they do] Whether that wicked one (or Troubler) hath not caſt cast his club amongst them, or corrupted their minds from the simplicity that is in Christ: 2 Cor. 11. 3. How soon were the Galatians unsetled by seducers, and sect-makers, chap. 1. 6? What ill work made those deceitful workers at Corinth, in Saint Pauls absence? and the Hereticks in the primitive Church, and the Anabaptists in Germany, &c. While Moses was but a while in the Mount, the people had gotten them a golden Calf. When Calvin was cast out of Geneva, but for a short space, Sadoletus wrote a very smooth and subtile Epstile to the Inhabitants, to perswade them to return back to Popery. We Ministers seldom find our work as we left it: we had need therefore visit often, and handle our sheep, &c. to see how they do, and whether, (as Gainsses) their souls as well as bodies be in health and prosper. 3 Ioh. 2.

Digitized by Google

Verse 37. To take with them John] Who was Barnabas his sisters son, Colos. 4. 10. Hence Barnabas might be so desirous to promote him. Paul was also afterwards better conceited of him, as may be seen, Colos. 4. 10.

Verse 38. Who departed from them] Providing for his own ease: for they were then to take a tedious and dangerous journey over the high hill Taurus; This John liked not, but left them, and went his ways.

Verse 39. And the contention, &c.] The Paroxysm or fit of a feaver, so great was the commotion, the perturbation. St. Luke being a Physitian (saith Brentius) useth here a physical expression. Heed must be taken that we overshoot not in the best causes, lest if we be over-hot, Gods wrath be kindled against us. There is a most sad story of the dissentions between Luther and Carolostadius, both good men. And another as sad of those that fled to Frankford, hence in Queen Maries days: yet among them there were such grievous breaches, that they sought the lives one of another, picking out some words against the Emperour, in a Sermon that Master Cnox had preached in England long before; and now accusing him for them to the Magistrates of Frankford, upon which, divers of them were fain to fly. παροξυσμος.

That they departed asunder] And we read not that they joyned any more together after this. Barnabas we find halting together with Peter, Gal. 2. 13. rather then he would walk uprightly together with his old associate Paul, vers. 14. for the which Paul reproved Peter, who yet maketh honourable mention of Paul, 2 Pet. 3. 15. which was his holy ingenuity. But much to be commended were Basil and Eusebius, who perceiving the Arrians to improve a difference betwixt them to the prejudice of the Orthodox, were soon reconciled, and united their forces against the common enemy.

Verse 40. Being recommended by the Brethren] Whereby it appeareth, that the Church took Pauls part; and God blessed his labours wherever he came: whereas Barnabas lies buried, as it were, and little more is henceforth recorded of him, unless it be that his temporizing with Peter, Gal. 2. So Lot is no more heard of after his incest. Gen. 19 36. If we commit such things, we deserve but a short story. Babington in locum.

Verse 41. And he went] Being unceasing and unsatiable in his Masters Christs service.

Chap. XVI.

Verse 1. But his Father was a Greek]

Both by Nation and Religion. This was an unlawful maariage. Exod. 34. Deut. 7. and might be a means to humble the good woman, when once she came to a sight of her sin. David had his best children by Bathsheba, as Solomon, Nathan, of whom came Christ, &c. God can turn our sins to our good and comfort; as the skilful Apothecary can make of a poysonful Viper a wholesome triacle.

Verse 2. Which was well reported of by the brethren] This is part of the reward of vertue: and follows it, as the shadow doth the body. See the Note on Eccles. 7. 1. and on 3 Joh. 12.

Verse 3. Took and circumcised him] Paul circumcised Timothy, as a Gentile: in that, for a Jew to be circumciſed was no yieldance: And thoſe words, They all knew his Father to be a Greek, demonſtrate, he went in eſtimation for a Gentile. Calvin refuſing to adminiſter the Communion in Geneva, and to uſe therein unleavened bread, or wafer-cakes, was compelled to depart the City; and was not received thither again, until he had allowed of the ſame kind of bread. De quo poſteà reſtitutus, nunquam contendendum putavit: minimè tamen diſſimulans quid alioqui magis eſſet probaturus. See the Note on Chap. 15, 28.

Digitized by Google

Beza in vita Calvini.

Verſe 4. They delivered them the Decrees] Which were agreeable to the Scriptures; And if Gregory thought that the decrees of the four firſt General Councils were to be received with like reverence and reſpect as the four holy Goſpels, how much more theſe? But what a Tyrant is the Pope to obtrude his Decretals, and the decrees of his Councils (though directly oppoſite to the revealed will of God) upon the Conſciences of the miſled Multitude, to be obſerved, with a Non-obſtante? The Council of Conſtance (for inſtance) comes in with a Non-obſtante againſt Chriſts inſtitution; withholding the Cup from the Sacrament; ſo for prayers in an unknown tongue, ſinging of Pſalms, Miniſters marriage, &c. When the Pope ſets forth any Bulls, commonly he concludes thus, Non obſtantibus & ordinationibus Apoſtolicis, cæteriſque contrariis quibuſcunque.

Caranza Sum. Concil. ſeſſ. 13.

Verſe 5. Eſtabliſhed in the faith, and increaſed in number] Some were converted by their Miniſtery, others confirmed. This is ſtill the fruit of faithful preaching, which is far more effectual hereunto then other Ordinances; like as the rain from heaven hath a fatneſs with it, and a ſpecial influence more then other ſtanding watrers; and as milk from the breſt, is moſt nouriſhing.

Verſe 6. And were forbidden, &c.] This was a heavier judgement upon thoſe coaſts, then to be denied an harveſt, or the light of the Sun. Prize the preaching of the Goſpel as a ſingular priviledge. They that are without a teaching Prieſt, are without God, 2 Chron. 15. 3. There were Embaſſadors ſent out of Nubia in Afrique to the King of Habeſſia, to intreat him for a ſupply of Miniſters to inſtruct their nation, and repair Chriſtianity gone to ruine among them; but they were rejected. Amos his famine of the word is far more deplorable then Samaria's famine of bread in that ſtrait ſiege.

Alvarez Hiſt. Æthiop. c. 137.

Verſe 7. But the ſpirit ſuffered them not] The ſpirit ſtill luſteth againſt the fleſh, and the fleſh againſt the ſpirit in the hearts of the regenerate, ſo that they cannot do what they would, Gal. 5. 17. As they cannot do what good they would in regard of the fleſh, ſo neither what evil they would in regard of the ſpirit.

Verſe 8. Came down to Troas] The reliques of old Troy, called alſo Antigonia and Alexandria, as Pliny teſtifieth.

Verſe 9. Into Macedonia and help us] The Miniſters are thoſe by whom God helpeth his periſhing people, and pulleth them out of the devils danger. Hence they are called Saviours, Obad. 21. 1 Tim. 4. 16. Redemers, Job 33. 24, 28. Co-workers with Chriſt, 2 Cor. 6. 1.

Dio.

Verſe 10. Aſſuredly gathering] It was not therefore a bare viſion, but ſet on upon their ſpirits by the teſtimony of the holy Spirit; as all viſions are that come from God. We read in the Roman hiſtory of a viſion that Brutus had the night before that unhappy fight at Philippi, calling him into Macedonia too, but for his utter ruine. This was a viſion from the devil (doubtleſs) that old man-ſlayer. Cuthbert Simpſons viſion, and afterwards Mr. Laremouths (who was Chaplain to Queen Ann of Cleve) whereby they were comforted in, and delivered out of priſon, we may read of in the Book of Martyrs. Cardinal Cuſan foretold (by ſome viſion that he had) a reformation of Religion that ſhould fall out Anno 1507. which was above fifty years after his death. John Trithemius foretold the ſame, Anno 1508. Genius vero qui Trithemio hæc dictavit, albus an ater fuerit, ego non facilè dixerim. Meritò ſuſpectum eſt pius, &c. ſaith Bucholcerus. Who told him ſo much I cannot tell: but it was the Devil in all likelyhood. But what a ſtrange conference was that which Luther had with the Devil, by his own confeſſion; whereby he was admoniſhed of many abuſes of the Maſs, which thereupon he wrote againſt? Is Satan divided againſt himſelf? Comes any good out of ſuch a Nazareth? Need we not to prove the ſpirits, whether they be of God? How many have we nowadays (our Modern Enthuſiaſts) that dream their Midianitiſh dreams, and then tell it for Goſpel to their Neighbors, as wiſe as themſelves? that lead men into the Lions mouth

A&. & Mon.

Ind. Chronol.

Luth. de miſſ. privat.

Digitized by Google

mouth (that roaring Lion I mean) under pretence of a revelation: as that old Impostor did the young prophet? 1 King. 13.

Verse 11. We came with a straight course] Or, With a speedy course. The strait way is the next way. How long wilt thou go about (O back sliding daughter?) Jer. 37. 22. Impii ambulant in circuitu, saith the Psalmist, The wicked walk the round: so doth the devil, that great Peripatetick, seeking to circumvent. But the righteous look straight before them, Prov. 4. 25. and make straight paths for their feet, Heb. 12. 13. So that they soon finish their course with joy, and live long in a little time. εὐθυδρομήσαμεν Utrumque significat & recte & cito currentes Lorin. Job. 1.

To Samothracia] An Island over against Thracia: whereof see Plin. l. 4. c. 11.

Neapolis] A city near Philippi, in the borders between Thracia and Macedonia.

Verse 13. And on the Sabbath] A day that God hath sanctified to be a means to convey sanctity into the hearts of his hidden ones, as here of Lydia the Purpuriss, Ezek. 20. 12. It is his Exchequer-day, his market-day.

Where prayer was wont to be made] Or where was a publick Oratory. So the Synagogues are called by Philo in his Ambassage to Caius the Emperor, minùs invidioso nomine.

Unto the women which resorted] Saint Paul (it may seem) at first had no other hearers but a few women at Philippi. But afterwards they became a flourishing Church. Nec minor ab exordio, nec major incrementis ulla, saith Eutropius concerning Rome; so may we say concerning the Church of Christ.

Verse 14. Whose heart the Lord opened] Mans heart is naturally locked up and barricadoed against God, till he, by his mighty Spirit, make forcible entrance, beating the devil out of his trenches, 2 Cor. 10. 4.

Verse 15. If ye have judged me to be faithful] Not else; upon no other condition doth she desire it: for hypocrites are the botches of society; as Augustus was wont to term his three untoward children, tres vomicas, tria carcinomata, three mattery impostumes or ulcerous sores. Sueton. in Aug. cap. 65.

Verse 16. Possessed with a spirit, &c.] These the seventy Seniours usually call ἐγγαστριμύθους; because the devil spake out of their bellies. For which cause also the Hebrews called them Oboth, or bottles; because the bellies of those women that were thus made use of by the devil were swelled as big as bottles. In the year of grace 1536. a certain damsel at Frankfurt in Germany, being possessed with a devill, and stark mad, swallowed down pieces of mony with much gnashing of her teeth: which monies were presently wrung out of her hands and kept by divers, &c. This is a true story, reported by Andrew Ebert the Minister of the place, who wrote the same to Luther, requesting his advice: which was, to pray hard for her, &c. Beza in loc. Buchole Chr.

Verse 17. These men are the servants] Satan etsi semel videatur verax, millies est mendax & semper fallax. Mark 1. 25. Joh. 8. 47.

Verse 18. Paul being grieved] Paul took no joy in such a testimony. High words become not a fool. To be praised by a praise-less person, is no praise at all.

Verse 19. Their gains were gone] ἐξῆλθεν was gone forth together with the devil. They that count all fish that comes to net, will in the end catch the devil and all. You are his birds, saith Bradford to such, whom when the devil hath well fed, he will broach you and eat you, chaw you, and champ you world without end, in eternal wo and misery. Bradf. Serm. of Rep p. 70.

Verse 20. Trouble our City] Faithful Preachers have ever been by the wicked accounted Trouble-towns; These covetous Caitiffs had not so much ingenuity as the Devil himself, ver. 17.

Verse 21. Neither to observe, &c.] An ordinary thing to oppose the placits and devices of men to the truth of God.

Verse 22. Rent off their clothes] i.e. The Apostles clothes.

And commanded to beat them] What? before they had examined the matter? This was preposterous Justice: like that of those that in the morning hang the offendor, and sit upon him in the afternoon; or those spoken of by Æneas Sylvius, that hang up such as are suspected of theft, and three days after judge of the suspition. Whereas on the contrary, a Judge is to retain the decency and gravity of the Law, which is never angry with any man: Lex non irascitur, sed constituit. Alexander in his anger slew those Friends of his, whom afterwards he would have revived again with his own heart-blood. Cap. 20. Exerc.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verse 23. Laid many stripes] These were those marks of the Lord Jesus which the Apostles so gloried of, as an old Souldier doth of his scars and wounds received in battel. He sunt gemmæ & pretiosa ornamenta Dei, said Munster concerning his ulcers whereof he died: So might Paul and Silas well say of their stripes. Τὰ δεσμὰ περιφέρω τὰς πνευματικὰς μαργαρίτας, saith Ignatius in his Epistle to the Ephesians. I bear my bonds as so many spiritual pearls of price. It was with Sweet-briar, in some sense, that these Apostles were whipt.

τὸ ξύλον Numellæ.

Verse 24. Fast in the stocks] The word signifieth such a pair of stocks, as wherein they used to make fast feet and neck too, saith Beza out of Nonius. Divers of our Martyrs were thus stocked in the Bishop of Londons Cole-house; as Mr. Philpot, and that Martyr that rejoyced that she might have her foot in the hole of the stocks, in which Master Philpot had been before her.

Act. & Mon.

Verse 25. Sang praises unto God] His presence turns a prison into a pallace, into a paradice. From the delectable Orchard of the Leonine prison; So the Italian Martyr Algerius dated his Letter to a friend. I was carried to the Cole-house, saith Mr. Philpot, where I, with my fellows, do rouz together in the straw as chearfully, we thank God, as others do in their beds of Doun. Philip Lansgrave of Hesse, being a long time prisoner under Charls the Fifth, was demanded what upheld him at that time? He answered, that he felt the divine consolations of the Martyrs.

Act & Mon. fol. 857. Ibid. 1633.

Verse 26. There was a great earthquake] See the great power of prayer. It shaketh Heaven and Earth. Luther saith, there is a kinde of omnipotency in it.

Verse 27. And the keeper of the prison] In whom the earth-quake had wrought an heart-quake, as it had also (though not to so good purpose) in the Magistrates, ver. 35. Read the Note thereon. We read that the people of Antioch, though many of them gave their hands for Chrysostoms banishment; yet terrified by an earth-quake, immediatly they sent for him again.

Verse 28. But Paul cried with a loud voice, &c.] We should likewise cry Cave miser, when we see a man busily cutting the throat of his own poor soul, by wilfull wickedness: or pitching headlong into Hell through despair of Gods mercy. Of some have compassion, making a difference: and others save with fear pulling them out of the fire of hell, as the Angel pulled Lot out of Sodom, and as God pulled Jehoshuah the High-Priest, as a brand out of the fire, Zech. 3. This Hierom calleth Sanctam violentiam, optabilem rapinam, an holy violence, a desirable ravage: And the Law of God requireth not only our observation, but our preservation; to cause others to keep it, as well as our selves.

Jude 21.

Verse 29. And sprang in] As John the Evangelist with like speed sprang out of the Bath, when Cerinthus the Heretick came into it, lest some evil, for his sake, should befall him from heaven.

ἐξήλατο τὸ βαλανεῖον Euf.

Verse 30. What must I do to be saved?] A reverend Divine said once to a poor soul, that told him he was troubled about his salvation; I tell thee, said he, it is able to trouble the whole world.

Verse 31. Believe on the Lord Jesus] This is the condition on our part required: or rather a stipulation that God hath promised to work in us and for us.

Verse 32. And they spake unto him] So Master Tindal, during the time of his imprisonment, converted his Keeper, together with the Keepers daughter, and others of his household. Also the rest that were with him in the prison, said, That if Tindal were not a good Christian man, they could not tell whom to trust. The word of God is not bound, saith Paul the prisoner. His bonds were manifest in all Cæsars Court, and to all others. In the Book of Martyrs we read also of one Bowler a perverse Papist, converted by Doctor Sands and Master Bradford, whose Keeper he was for above twenty weeks; and afterwards became their son, begotten in their bonds.

Act. & Mon. 985.

Phil. 1. 13.

Verse 33. He and all his straight-ways] Gods work is of greatest importance, and must be presently done, whatever else is left undone. If ye will enquire, enquire, return, come, Isa. 21. 12.

Verse 34. And rejoyced, believing] A prick with a pin, may, and doth many times let out corruption as well as launcing. Some suffer more throws in the new birth, some less. But many meet with greatest trials and terrors after conversion; when men take little fines, they mean to take the more rent.

Verse 35. The Magistrates sent] In one ancient Greek copy there is this addition,

And

Digitized by Google

And when it was day, the Magistrates met together in the Market-place: and calling to minde the earth-quake that had been that night, they feared, and sent the Sergeants, saying, Let these men go. See *ver.*27.

Verse 36. And the keeper of the prison] As glad to be the messenger of such good tidings; for he knew well the misery of captivity: by which term therefore, all that Job suffered is summarily set forth, *chap.*42.10.

Verse 37. They have beaten us] A Roman by the Valerian Law, might not be bound; by the Porcian Law, he might not be beaten or put to death, but by the Romans themselves, with the consent of the people. This priviledge Paul pleads, and well he might; for the name of a Roman Citizen was terrible to other nations. Though we may not return evil for evil, yet we may use all lawfull means to right and secure our selves.

And now do they thrust us out?] Doctor Fuller the Chancellor came to William Wolsey the Martyr, whom he had imprisoned, and said; Thou dost much trouble my conscience: wherefore I pray thee depart, and rule thy tongue, so that I hear no more complaint of thee: and come to Church when thou wilt, and if thou be complained of, so far as I may, I promise thee I will not hear of it. Master Doctor, quoth he, I was brought hither by a Law, and by a Law I will be delivered, &c. Act. & Mon. 1557.

Verse 38. And they feared when they heard, &c.] Their sin troubled them not, but their danger; for Iracsi populo Rom. nemo sapienter potest. It was not safe dashing against the rock of Romes power. Tully tells us, that Hæc vox, Civis Romanus sum, sæpe in ultimis terris, &c. This one word (I am a Roman) relieved and rescued many in the utmost parts of the earth, and among Barbarians.

Verse 39. And they came and besought them] The matter is well amended since yesterday. How suddenly crest-fallen are these Grandees of Philippi? how bladder-like do they shrivel to nothing, that erst swelled with the wind of pride and passion! So did the King of Sodom, Manasseh, Saul, &c.

Verse 40. And departed] Yet so, as that St. Paul soon after visited them with that golden epistle to the Philippians.

Chap. XVII.

Verse 1. Where was a Synagogue of the Jews]

WHo did much hurt there by their crosness, neither pleasing God, nor profiting men, 1 *Thess.*2.15.

Verse 2. Out of the Scriptures] Wherein they were wondrous expert. Quilibet nostrum de lege interrogatus facilius quam nomen suum recitat, saith Josephus. We have the Scriptures at our fingers ends.

Verse 3. Alledging] Or laying it so plain before their eyes, that they could not but see it, unless they were of those qui festucam quærunt unde oculos sibi eruant, as Bernard hath it, who seek straws to put out their own eyes withall. ἐθεμελίου. Bern.

Verse 4. Consorted with Paul] were knit unto them in the straitest bonds, as man and wife, brother and sister: Sanctior est copula cordis quam corporis, No such bond as Religion. συνεκληρώθησαν. Vide Bezæ Annot.

Verse 5. Of the baser sort] Viles & venales, saith one, Vagi, otiosique, saith another, such as had little to do, but to walk the streets, and run on errands, the rascallity and sink of the City.

Set all the City on an uproar] Quia perturbato statu melius consequi valent quod volunt. The devil loves to fish in troubled waters. When he hath set all on an hurry, as in Saul, then he can the sooner enter, and play his pranks. So can his instruments.

Verse 6. Turned the world &c.] So Elias was called the Troubler of Israel, Luther the Trumpet of Rebellion. It is not the Gospel, but mens corruption that breeds the trouble: As it is not the sea, but the foulness of mens stomacks that makes them sea-sick. ἀναστατώσαντες.

Verse 7. Whom Jason hath received] Clanculùm excepit, so Erasmus well rendreth συνδέδεκται.

Digitized by Google

dereth it, hath closely and covertly entertained them, as Obadiah did the Lords Prophets.

Tacit. Contrary to the decrees of Cæsar] Unicum crimen eorum, qui crimine vacabant.

Verse 8. And they troubled the people and the Rulers] The Devil and his Agents; as they are of turbulent spirits, like Ismael, Pope Urban (who was therefore called Turban, from his troublesomness) and the Jesuits: so they love to fish in troubled waters, and to set all on an hurry, by incensing Rulers against the people of God; and seeking to perswade them that they are Antimagistratical. Hence the Devil eftsoons casteth some of them into prison, Rev. 2 10. sc. by his imps and instruments, armed with authority.

Verse 9. When they had taken security] It was happy that security would be taken, till the heat was over. For, Ut fragilis glacies frangitur ira morâ.

Ovid.

Verse 10. Went into the Synagogue] As he had done before at Thessalonica, and had sped so ill. Heroick spirits are no whit dismayed with difficulties; but rather whetted on thereby, to more diligence in duty. And the servant of the Lord must not despond or desist, but be apt to teach, patient, in meekness instructing those that oppose themselves, if peradventure God will at any time give them repentance, &c. 2 Tim. 2. 24, 25.

εὐγενέστεροι. Verse 11. These were more noble] Better Gentlemen. Vertue is instead of a thousand Escucheons. Since thou hast been precious in my sight, thou hast been honourable, Isa. 43. 4. The Nobles of Israel made their staves (the Ensigns, haply, of their honor) instruments of the common good, Numb. 21. 18. When the Nobles of Tekoah are blemished in their blood for this, that they put not their necks to the work of their Lord, Neh. 3. 5. The Breerwoods Enquir. p. 50. Biscanies vaunt of themselves among the Spaniards, that they are the right Hidalgoes, that is, Gentlemen, as the Welshmen do here. But Christian Nobility is the best and truest, where God himself is the top of the kin, and religion the root; in regard whereof all other things are but shadows and shapes of Nobleness. The Jews of Berea were more noble, or of better descent: Non per civilem dignitatem, sed per spiritualem dignationem, as one saith: Not by civil descent, but by spiritual advancement.

Verse 12. Therefore many of them believed] There are certain abilities and actions we have, and may perform without special grace: in the employment whereof we are to expect the effectual work of the spirit. See it in these noble Bereans; they brought their bodies to the Assembly, took the heads of Pauls Sermon very truly, repeated and examined the notes they had taken, and yet were unconverted, as appears by this verse.

Huet of Conse. 215. Now if any of us do hide the like talent, we are not to expect the spirit of sanctification. As our liberty in external acts (as to come to Church to hear, &c.) is still some, so must our endeavors be answerable.

Verse 13. They came thither also] Thus they pleased not God and were contrary to all men: wherefore wrath is come upon them to the utmost, 1 Thes. 2. 15, 16.

Verse 14. To go as it were to the sea] This was an high point of wisdom not to send Paul the next way to Athens, but about by the Sea for avoiding of danger.

Verse 15. Brought him unto Athens] The eye of Greece, but wofully now bemisted with the fog of Superstition, as our Universities also have been of late: Athens was a pleasant and ancient City. Cecrops is said to have been King of it in Moses his time. It was anciently called κοσμο & κόσμε the ornament or glory of the world. But Gregory Nazian. reports of it that it was the plaguiest place in the world for Superstition; and he acknowledgeth it a great mercy that he and Basil were preserved from those infections.

παροξύνετο. Verse 16. His spirit was stirred] The word signifies, he was almost besides himself (such was his zeal) to see the Idolatry of the Athenians. So was William Gardiner an English Merchant and Martyr in Portugal, who when the Cardinal in a Mass, before the King, began to take the Ceremonial Hoast, to toss it to and fro

Act. & Mon. fol. 1231. round about the Chalice, making certain circles and semicircles, he not being able to suffer any longer, went to the Cardinal, and in the presence of the King, and all his Nobles and Citizens, with the one hand he snatcht the cake from the Priest, and trod it under his feet, and with the other hand overthrew the Chalice, &c. See the like history of William Flower, who wounded the Mass-priest at Westminster. &c. Act. & Mon. fol. 1430. There are that tell us that this book of the Acts is discerned to be written by Luke, by his Physicians language here, παροξύνετο, He was in a feaver

Digitized by Google

feaver fit. and chap. 15. 39. ἐγένετο οὖν παροξυσμὸς, the contention was so sharp betwixt them. The word signifies such a sharpness as is in vinegar; and it is used by Physicians to denote the sharpness of the severish humour, when it is acting in a fit. It troubled Saint Paul, that the fountain was so troubled, the eye of Greece so darkned, the Ornament of the World so slurred with abominable Idolatries, as Saint Peter expresseth it, 1 Pet. 4. 3. Τῆς Ἑλλάδος ὀφθαλμὸς Διοδ.

Wholly given to Idolatry] Pausanias reckons up more Idols almost in Athens then in all Greece besides. And Xenephon saith, that the Athenians kept double the holy-days and festivals to what others did. Ephraim is joyned to Idols, let him alone, q. d. there's no hope of him. They that make them are like unto them, so are all they that worship them, as blockish as those Balaami-blocks they worship. No Church could be founded at Athens: They for their Idolatry, were given up to strong delusions, vile affections, just damnation. They were too wise to be saved by the foolishness of preaching. In Atticis. In Athen. Hos 4. 17.

Verse 17. With them that met with him] If any body would but lend him a little audience, he would preach to them, such was his zeal. The Word must be preached in season, out of season, &c. volentibus, nolentibus.

Verse 18. Certain Philosophers, &c.] The deep Theorems of Philosophy (said King James) make one learned, but seldom better, and oftentimes worse, meer Atheists. There is an Arabick proverb: Cum errat eruditus, errat errore erudito. And Indocti rapiunt cœlum, saith Aug. Melior est humilis rusticus qui Deo servit, quam superbus Philosophus, &c. saith a devout Dominican. Erpen. Cent Prov. 28.

What will this babler say?] Seminilega, by a Metaphor from little birds, that yield neither good meat, nor good musick, but only pick up grain, and live by other mens labours. Master Rogers (our late Protomartyr) interpreteth it a prater, trifler, newes-carrier, that tels whatsoever men will have him for gain; that wil for a piece of bread say what you will have him. σπερμολόγος. Act. & Mon. 1353.

A setter forth of strange gods] Rogers renders it, A preacher of new devils.

Jesus and the Resurrection] Anastasis, or the Resurrection, they took for some new goddess, saith Oecumenius.

Verse 19. Brought him unto Areopagus] A cruel Court, where Socrates lost his life for the very same crime that Saint Paul is here charged with; viz. an endavour to introduce new Deities. That the Apostle came off not only with safety, but some success, (for Dionysius, one of the Judges was converted) see a sweet providence. Paul wanted a place to preach in: they brought him to Areopagus as a delinquent, where he hath an opportunity of doing God a great deal of good service. So Charls the fifth Emperour sent the confession of the Protestant Churches to divers Princes of Europe to ask their opinions: Hereby the Gospel was exceedingly spread and propagated; which gave occasion to Luther to deride Pontificiorum stultam sapientiam, the foolish wisdom of the Papists, in a certain Epistle to the Elector of Saxony. Laertius. Sculet. Ann. 274.

Verse 20. For thou bringest certain strange things] Or, new, never heard of: Yet not so new neither as they thought for; See Rom. 11. verse 2, 3, 4, & 16. 25, 26. Papists upbraid us with the novelty of our religion, and ask us where it was till Luthers time? We answer (as one once did) In the Bible, where their religion never was. See Catalog. test. verit. and Mr. Bernards Look beyond Luther, Dr. Featlies conference with Fisher. &c. They boast much of Antiquity, as once the Gibeonites did of old shoes, and mouldy bread. We refer them to Alex. Cooks abatement of Popish brags, and Guild his Popish boasting of Antiquity; besides abundance of other good Authors. ξενίζοντα.

Verse 21. For all the Athenians, &c.] The self-same truth is testified by Demosthenes, in an answer to Philips Letter. We (saith he to his country men of Athens) to speak truth, sit here, doing nothing but trifling out our time, and listning what news abroad. This their national itch after novelties, made them the more willing to hear Paul speak. It is not amiss to hearken how it goeth with the Church, that we may rejoyce with those that rejoyce, and weep with those that weep; Cum singulis pectus meum copulo, saith Cyprian. Eli sat to hear what became of the Ark: which when it was taken, it is hard to say whether was first broke, his heart or his neck. ἡμεῖς δὲ τὴν ἡμέραν ἕκαστος ἐν ἀγορᾷ περιπατοῦντες ἀλλήλους ἐρωτῶμεν, εἴ τι καινὸν λέγεται; τί καινότερον;

Verse 22. You are too superstitious] You are fearers of evil spirits; so one renders it And Paul elsewhere tells the Corinthians that what they sacrificed to Idols, they sacrificed to devils. 1 Cor. 10.

Digitized by Google

ὡς δεισιδαιμονεστέρους.

Beza renders it Quasi religiosiores (as if the Apostle had used an Euphemismus) somewhat superstitious, or rather religious; the better to insinuate: for the Athenians had tender ears, and loved to hear toothless truths; which made Demosthenes call upon Orat. de ord. civ. get their ears healed.

Verse 23. I found an altar] An high-altar, βωμὸς seems to come from במה an high place. Saint Paul as he preached without a pulpit, Verse 17. so he takes his text off one of their Altars. Any thing serves turn, so he may do good.

To the unknown God] That uncertainty that attends Idolatry, caused those marriners to call every man to his God, Ionah 1. 5. And lest they might all mistake the true God, they awaken Ionas also to call upon his God. Hence these Athenians worship an unknown

Serv in Georg. l 1. god: and hence the heathens generally closed their petitions with Diique Deaque omnes.

Paus. in Attic. Pausanias mentioneth this Altar, To the unknown God. Lucian saith the neighbour Countries would swear by him unknown at Athens. The cause of Erecting this Altar, some affirm to have been a fearful vision appearing to Philippides (sent Embassador to Rous Archæol. Attic. the Lacedemonians concerning ayd against the Persians) and complaining that he (that is the great god Pan) was neglected, and other Gods worshipped; promising likewise his help. They therefore being victorious, and fearing the like event, built a Temple and

Justin Martyr. Altar to the unknown God. Others say, that the plague being hot at Athens, and no help to be had from their Gods, they surmising some other power to have sent and set Occumen. Θεοῖς Ἀσίας καὶ Εὐρώπης καὶ Λιβύης, ὁ θεὸς ἀγνώστῳ καὶ ξένῳ. on the disease, set up this Altar, on which was written, To the Gods of Asia, Europe and Africa, to the unknown and strange God.

Verse 24. Dwelleth not in Temples] See the Note on Act. 7. 48.

Verse 25. Neither is worshipped] Colitur vel delinitur, Collogued with, or complemented. Colendi verbum ἀπὸ τῆς κολακεύειν dictum volunt eò quòd plerunque Dei hominumque cultus cum adulatione & hypocrisi est conjunctus. Sic λατρεύειν Gallicum flatter. Some θεραπεύεται Suchius de sacrif. Gentil. Avenarius. Ainsworth. derive the word here used θεραπεύω of the Hebrew Taraph or Teraphim idols or images, Gen. 31. 30. Judg. 17. 5. God is not so worshipped.

Verse 26. And hath made of one blood] This our brainsick diggers do much beat upon, and would therefore lay all level, and have all things common. One of their Progenitors came to the Emperour Sigismund, and calling him Brother, asked him for means; because he was his brother, and one of the same blood. He gave him a testor, and told him, if all his brethren would do the like for him, he should soon become a rich man.

ψηλαφήσειαν. Verse 27. They might feel after him] Grope after him, as blind men. The Apostle dealing here with Philosophers, disputes Philosophically, shewing them most learnedly, and divinely, the true use of natural Philosophy, which they were utterly ignorant of. Crucifer oft contemplated the footsteps of God in the creature: saying with Paul, That God was so neer unto us, that he might be almost felt with hands.

Though he be not far] Not so far as the bark is from the tree, the skin from the flesh, or the flesh from the bones. Dens intimior nobis intimo nostro. He is neerer to us then we are to our selves, though we see him not. Like as if one hear a preacher by night, Bugentag. though he see him not, yet he knows he is there present: So in this case.

Verse 28. For in him we live, &c.] The heathen could say, Est Deus in nobis, agitante calescimus illo.

We move] Understand it as well of the motions of the mind, as of the body.

And have our being] As the beams have their being in the Sun, and an accident in the subject. Scholastici dependentiam creatorum à Creatore partim luci, quæ in aere remoto Sole, extinguitur, partim vasculo aquam contentam circumscribenti, partim sigillo in aqua impresso comparant.

As certain also of your own Poets] Note that the Apostle nameth not Aratus, whom he citeth, though he were his own Countrey man, a Cilician: notwithstanding the Piety of that Poets beginning Ἐκ Διὸς ἀρχώμεσθα, or the divineness of his subject, the Heavens, a more sublime and pure matter then useth to be in the wanton pages of other Poets. Some sentences of Heathenish Authors are found in Scripture, as the Egyptian spoyls furnished the Israelites, and David help himself with Goliah's sword: so the holy Ghost strikes the Heathens with their own weapons, Propriis pennis configimur, as Julian the Apostate complained, and therefore forbad the Christians to send their children to the Heathen schools, lest they should be wounded with their own weapons.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 29. That the Godhead is like] Qui primi deorum ſimulachra induxerunt, errorem induxerunt, metum dempſerunt, ſaith Varro as Calvin cites his words. Plutarch ſaith it is ſacrilędge to worſhip by Images. They were Atheiſts by night that worſhipped the Sun and Atheiſts by day that worſhipped thee Moon, as Cyril wittily ſpeaketh.

Verſe 30. God winked at] Regarded not. God accounted the times of Paganiſm before Chriſt (for all their knowledge) even times of ignorance: and looked over or beyond them (as the word here ſignifieth) having reſpect onely to the times of Chriſtianity. υπεριδών.

Verſe 31. Becauſe he hath appointed a day] Knowing therefore the terrour of the Lord, and the dreadfulneſs of that great day, what manner of men ought we to be in all holy converſation and godlineſs, breaking off our ſins by repentance and being abrupt in the work, ſith the very next moment thou maiſt hear that ſummons that Pope Julius the ſecond did, and was found dead the next day Veni miſer in Judicium, come thou wretch receive thy Judgement. Hence Auſtin profeſſed that he would not, for the gain of the world, be an Atheiſt for half an hour; becauſe he knew not how ſuddenly Chriſt might come to judge him. Aut pœnitendum aut pereundum. 2 Pet 3 11. Iac. Konig.

Verſe 32. Some mocked] Three ſorts of hearers: ſome derided, others doubted, a few believed, as Dennis and Damaris, but no Church here founded. They were too wiſe to go to heaven. Not a Scholar in Oxford would look upon the good Biſhops Ridley and Cranmer priſoners in Bocardo, that Colledge of Quondams, as it was then called. Act. & Mon. fol 1565.

Verſe 33. So Paul departed] They ſaid they would hear him again at better leaſure (εἰς καιρὸν τὸν ἐπιτήδιον, as that trifler ſaid) but they never had another opportunity; procraſtinatours ſeldome ſpeed better; it fareth with them as Plutarch writes of Hanibal, that when he could have taken Rome, he would not; when he would he could not. See Jer. 14. 19.

Verſe 34. Dionyſius the Areopagite.] Not the Aſtrologer, as ſome have made him; Nor the Author of the heavenly hierarchy made by ſome ſuperſtitious Monk; but a Senatour or Judge in that court of Mars-hill in Athens, crowned with Martyrdome for the Chriſtian religion, in the year of Grace 96, as Trithemius writeth.

And a woman named Damaris] Damaris as well as Dennis. Souls have no ſexes. In Chriſt there is neither male nor female, bond nor free. It is eaſy to obſerve ſaith a Grave Divine, that the new Teſtament affords more ſtore of good women then the old. In the preceding Chapter, when Paul came firſt to Philippi, he had none that would hear him, but a company of good women. Col. 3. Act. 16. 13.

Chap. XVIII.

Verſe 1. And came to Corinth.]

A City very rich, but very looſe and luxurious. Magna cognatio ut rei ſic nominis, divitijs & vitijs. The Cornthians had within their City the Temple of Iſis, and without it the Temple of Venus, to whom there were well-nigh a thouſand Curteſans conſecrated. They held fornication to be no ſin; hence the Apoſtle is ſo earneſt againſt it, 1 Cor. 5.

Verſe 2. Had commanded all Iews, &c.] Wicked men are ſick of the Saints, and long to be rid of them; not conſidering that they bear up the pillars of the earth, and that God gratifies his children with the preſervation of the wicked, as he did Paul with the lives of thoſe Infidels that were in the ſhip with him. Howbeit they are frequently as fooliſh as this Claudius, who baniſhed Gods true ſervants; Or as the Stag in the Embleme, which by biting the boughs of the tree, under which ſhe lay hid from the hounds and hunters, bewrayed and betrayed her ſelf into their hands. Act. 27.

Verſe 3. He abode with them and wrought] Being no leſs buſie in his ſhop among his Tents, then in his ſtudy among his books and parchments, 2 Tim. 4. 13. So Muſculus, perſecuted and driven out of his place, was forced for a poor living to dig, and weave. And another late Martyr, though he were one of the greateſt Schollers in Melch. Adam

Digitized by Google

Christendom, yet in banishment or flight for conscience, served the Mason.

Verse 4. Perswaded the Jews] Men may speak perswasively, but God only can perswade, Gen. 9. 27. Japhets children were to be won by perswasion. Therefore Christ sent forth to them not Souldiers, but Fishers, who might work upon them docendo, non ducendo, monendo, non minando, by informing them, not by inforcing them.

Verse 5. And when Silas and Timothy] Good people one kindle another. Paul was much heated with the zeal of God by the company of these two good men. Two flints, though both cold, yet yield fire, when smitten together. Billets one kindle another. Iron sharpeneth iron: so doth the face of a man, his friend.

Ἀντιτασσόμενον. Verse 6. And when they opposed] Gr. And when they bade him battle. A military term.

Your blood be upon your own heads] Answerable to their wish, Mat. 27. 25. and according to their manner of putting their sins upon the head of the sacrificed creature, Lev. 1. 4. & 3. 2.

Verse 7. Whose house joyned hard to the Synagogue] Quo magis pungeret Judæos; for this Justus was (likely) a Gentile. But they were toties puncti & repuncti, minimè tamen ad resipiscentiam compuncti, like those Beares in Pliny, they could not be awakened with the sharpest prickles: such a dead lethargy had the Devil cast them into.

Verse 8. And many of the Corinthians] When Crispus the chief Ruler of the Synagogue believed, many of the Corinthians believed also. Great men are the looking-Glasses of the Country, according to which most men dress themselves. Alexander the Great, naturally held his head aside, his Courtiers did the like. When Francis the French King was polled for the better healing of a wound in his head; all about him, and many others, cut off their long hair, &c.

Verse 9. But speak, and hold not thy peace] i. e. Speak out the whole truth plainly and plentifully: be not for any self-respects found guilty of a sinful silence. Epist. ad Staupic. Inveniar jam superbus, &c. modò impii silentii non arguar, dum Dominus patitur, saith Luther: Let me be counted proud, passionate, impudent, any thing, so that I betray not the Lords cause by a cowardly silence.

Verse 10. For I am with thee] As to behold thy behaviour, (cave, spectat Deus) so to support, defend and deliver thee. If a child be in the dark, yet, having his Father by the hand, he fears nothing. David feared not the vale of the shaddow of death, that is, death in its most horrid and hideous representations, and all, because God was with him, Psal. 23. 4.

ἐκάθισε. Verse 11. And he continued there] Gr. He sat down there a great while, though he met with many discouragements and little love, with loss of love, 2 Cor. 12. 15. and unworthy usage, being forced to labour with his hands for a poor living: Howbeit, inasmuch as God had much people there, he, as a good Souldier of Jesus Christ, suffered hardship, and sacrificed himself to the service of their faith; not seeking theirs by them, and Isidor. catching them by craft, 2 Cor. 12. 16. as the Fox doth the fouls that fall upon him, when he fains himself a dead carcass.

Calvisius ex Tacito. Verse 12. And when Gallio was] This Gallio was brother to Seneca, who being a great Courtier, obtained for him of Claudius the Emperour, to be made Deputy of Achaia, as Tacitus testifieth.

Verse 13. Contrary to the Law] That is, contrary to our Law. For the Romans had granted liberty to the Jews to worship God, as their own Law prescribed.

ῥᾳδιούργημα. Verse 14. Or wicked lewdness] The Greek word doth elegantly set forth the disposition of a lewd man; which is to be easily drawn to any wicked way. If the Devil do but hold up his finger, he may have him at his beck and obedience: he is the Devils clay and wax; and may be wrought to any thing with a wet finger.

Aug. de civ. Dei. Verse 15. A question of words or names] Gallio esteemed no better of divine Doctrine, then vain words, and a very discourse. His brother Seneca jeareth the Jews for casting away a seventh part of their time upon a weekly Sabbath. Profane persons hold it a madness to be so conscientious. Philosophandum, sed paucis. Religiosum esse oportet, sed non religentem. A little Religion serves turn well enough.

Temerè litigantes publicè flagellandi sunt. Verse 16. And he drave them from the Tribunal] As so many Vitiligatores; qui de lana sæpè caprina rixantur, that contended for trifles, and such as deserved the whipping-post, which is the punishment that the Turks put such among them to, as are litigious.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verse 17. Took Sosthenes] A beloved Brother of Saint Pauls, 1 Cor. 1.

Verse 18. In Cencrea] A haven of the Corinthians. Here he was shorn, as a Nazarite, for the sake of some weak Jews, whom herein he gratified and gained to the faith. The Popish shaving is so bald a ceremony, that some Priests in France are ashamed of the mark, and few of them have it that can handsomly avoid it.

Verse 19. And reasoned with the Jews] Whose salvation he dearly desired, Rom. 9. 3. and therefore never gave them over, though he had small thanks for his labour. His love to them was like the Ivy, which if it cleave to a stone, or an old wall, will rather dye then forsake it.

Verse 20. He consented not] though lovingly invited, and otherwise easie to be intreated. There was therefore something in it more then ordinary. Θεῷ ἕπου Follow God whethersoever he leadeth thee, was a maxime amongst Heathens. Magnus est animus qui se Deo tradidit, saith Seneca; that is a brave spirit that hath given up it self to God; and that is a base degenerate spirit which stands off; Et Deum mavult emendare, quam se, and had rather find fault with God then with himself. Boet. de Conso'. Sen. Epist. 107.

Verse 21. Keep this Feast] As waiting an occasion, by that solemn meeting of winning many to Christ. Paul was insatiabilis Dei cultor, as Chrysostom truly saith of him. George Eagles the Martyr, for his great pains in travelling from place to place to confirm the brethren, was sirnamed Trudgeover the World. Acts & Mon. fol. 1823.

Verse 22. And gone up] Sc. To Jerusalem, which stood on high in respect of Cœlosyria, and the sea-Coasts.

Verse 23. Strengthening all the Disciples,] For as natural life needs nourishing, and young plants watering: so do the Saints need confirmation, and Christ hath provided it for them, Luk. 22. 32. Eph. 4. 11, 12.

Verse 24. An eloquent man] Et eruditum simul & prudentem, saith Erasmus. It imports, 1. skill in the words, he could expound well: 2. good elocution; he could well express his exposition. Matter in Form, as they do all in nature, so also in Art. Good matter well habited is more acceptable.

Verse 25. Taught diligently] According to that skill he had. Of Lactantius, Hierom passeth this Judgement. Lactantius quasi quidam fluvius Tullianæ eloquentiæ utinam tam nostra potuisset confirmare, quam facile aliena destruxit. So Tully wished that he could as easily find out the true God, as he could disprove the false gods. De nat. deor.

Verse 26. And expounded unto him] An humble man will be glad to learn of the meanest that is. A little child shall lead him, Isa. 11. 6. One man may, for counsel, be a God to another, as Moses was to Aaron.

Verse 27. Helped them much, Who had believed through Grace] For faith is a fruit of free Grace. We can glory in nothing, saith Austin, because no good thing is ours; we bring forth faith and the fruits thereof, as Sarahs dead womb brought forth a child; it was not a child of nature, but of the meer promise; so are all our graces. Others read it thus, he helped them through grace, who had believed: that is, he freely communicated to the brethren that grace that he had received, as a good steward; and helped them what he could toward heaven. True grace is diffusive: and is therefore compared to fire, water, wind, light, to spices and Aromatick trees, that sweat out their precious and soveraign oyls for the good of others. Apollos was not of those that desire rather proficere then prodesse, to inform themselves, then to instruct others; to know then to teach, to be Seraphims for illumination, then to be Angels, for ministery: Account, he knew, was to be given of his time, and of his talents to an austere master, &c. Cant.

Verse 28. Convinced the Jews] Who might have been convinced out of their own Cabbala, that Christ was come: but that seeing they saw, but perceived not.

CHAP.

Chap. XIX.

Verse 1. While Apollos was at Corinth.

A Mercy of God to the Church, that in Pauls absence, they should be so well provided of a Preacher.

Verse 2. Have ye received the holy-Ghost] That is, the extraordinary gifts of the holy-Ghost in Prophecy, Tongues, &c. as Verse 6.

Verse 3. Unto Johns Baptism] That is unto Johns Doctrine sealed by Baptism. This Paul shews to be nothing so, Verse 4. Whence Piscator collecteth, that they were baptized by some of Johns Disciples into Johns name, as if he had been the Christ. For that John had some such Zealots about him, appears by Joh. 3. 26, &c.

Verse 4. John verily baptized with the baptism of repentance] That is, he taught the Doctrine of repentance: see the next Note on verse 5. It is not to be thought that those were by Paul rebaptized, who were formerly baptized by John: for if that had been necessary, Christ would have baptized his Disciples again: but he baptized none himself: John 4. And they baptized not themselves.

Verse 5. They were Baptized] That is, say some, They were Re-baptized, because baptized before in a wrong name. Therefore Paul first Catechizeth them, Verse 4. Others say, That it was rather their renewing to their baptism, then their baptism to them; and not that they took any other then that of John, but that they now began to entertain and apply it to the right intent.

Mr. Lightfoot Harm. f. 164.

Verse 6. And Prophesied] By a divine and evident inspiration they expounded the writings of the Prophets, and also foretold future events.

Verse 7. And all the men were about twelve] These twelve, being the first fruits of this Church, were endued with extraordinary gifts to be for Elders and Rulers there: for these gifts were not common to all believers, as Beza well noteth.

Verse 8. The things concerning the Kingdom of God] The subject matter of his discourse, were faith, righteousness, life eternal. Of these things he disputed, and so informed their judgements: and these things he perswaded, and so reduced all to practice. Lo, this is preaching. Every sound is not musick: neither is every pulpit discourse, preaching.

Verse 9. But when divers were hardened] Hardness of heart is either Natural, or Habitual: and this again is encreased either by doing (that is, by resisting the word of God) or by suffering it to pass by us without amendment of life.

He departed from them and separated] So did Zuinglius and Luther separate from the Papists for like reason. It was laid to Luthers charge, that he was an Apostate. Confitetur se esse Apostatam, sed beatum & sanctum, qui fidem diabolo datam non servavit. An Apostate he confessed himself; but one that had fallen off from the Devil only.

In the School of one Tyrannus] In one ancient Copy it is added, From the fifth hour to the tenth hour; So indefatigable a Preacher was Paul, a very χαλκέντερος or Iron-sides. He had a golden wit in an Iron body, as one saith of Jul. Scaliger.

Verse 10. So that all they that dwelt in Asia] Which now, (according to the notation of its name) became אשיה Esh-jah, the fire of God; not from the Fire which at first they worshipped as God; but from the fire of Grace kindled upon the hearth of their hearts, and making them shine as Lamps in their lives. Father Latimer, when he was demanded the reason why so much preaching and little practise? answered, Deest ignis, the fire of God is wanting, there is not a coal to warm at; It was otherwise now at Ephesus; all was on a light fire, which opened to Saint Paul that great door and effectual, 1 Cor. 16. 9. so that all they that dwelt in Asia were fired up to an holy contention in godlyness.

Verse 11. And God wrought special Miracles] Virtutes non vulgares, yet ordinary in the infancy of the Church, but now not to be expected. Manna ceased when they came to Canaan; as if it would say, ye need no miracles, now you have means. So here.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verse 12. Handkercheifs or aprons] Which having been touched by Pauls body, became soveraign (by a miracle) to cure diseases and cast out Devils.

Verse 13. Exorcists] But of these, (having no call from God, but unwarrantably emulating Paul, and yet using good words) we may say as One doth of Witches with their good prayers (as they call them) Si magica, Deus non vult tales; si pia, non per tales. If Magical, God will none of them: as if good prayers, yet because out of an evil mouth, he rejects them.

Verse 14. Seven Sons of one Sceva] All Fathers, but especially Ministers should use all utmost care, that their children be well educated and instructed: and not think it sufficient to say of them as Pope Paul the Third did of his dissolute son Farnesius, Haec vitia me non commonstratore didicit. He never learned it of his father.

Verse 15. Jesus I know, and Paul] Jesus had destroyed his works, and Paul had felt his fingers, 2 Cor. 12. 7. and yet thrown him out of his trenches, 2 Cor. 10. 4.

Verse 16. So that they fled out, &c.] Non omnia possumus omnes. Albeit the Eagle in the fable did bear away a Lamb in her talons with full flight, yea a Raven endeavouring to do the like, was held intangled, and fettered in the fleece. Every Exorcist must not think to do as Paul did; nor every preacher as Latimer did. He had my fiddle and my stick (said he of one that preached his Sermons) but wanted my Rozen.

Verse 17. And fear fell on them all] See the note on Acts 5. 5.

Verse 18, Confessed and shewed their deeds] With detestation, being moved thereto by the fear of Gods Judgements. This they did publikely, not in the Priests ear, as Papists, nor out of a brain-sick humour, as the Anabaptists at Sangall (Caepernit plurimi enormia sua delicta profiteri, alius furta, alius adulteria, alia alius, non sine admiratione audientium, non sine stomacho conjugum maritis talibus nihil non imprecantium, saith Scultetus) But with discretion, and detestation. Oftentimes the very opening of mens greivances easeth the conscience, as the very opening of a vein cools the blood. Howbeit it is neither wisdom nor mercy to put men upon the rack of confession, further then they can have no ease any other way. Scul. Annal. D. Sibbes.

Verse 19. Which used curious Arts] The Ephesians were much addicted to the black Art. Whence that antient proverb Ἐφέσια γράμματα Ephesian learning for Necromancy. Cornelius Agrippa's dog had a devil tyed to his coller, as some write. And Paracelsus (or else Erastus belyes him) had one confined to his sword pommel.

Verse 20. So mightily grew the word of God and prevailed] Happy it is for a people or person, when the word falls upon their spirits in the power of it, and subdues them: when the peace of God ruleth in their hearts, and every high thought is so captivated to the obedience of Christ, that they can say as Judg. 8. 22. Rule thou over us, &c. For thou hast delivered us from the hand of Midian. κατὰ κράτος τοῦ. Col. 3. 15.

Verse 21. Purposed in the Spirit] i. e. By the instinct of the holy Spirit, his Counsellor and conduct, by whom all his actions were moderated. So he went bound in the spirit, Act. 20. 22. So Simeon came by the Spirit into the Temple, Luke 2. 27. And so still, the steps of every good man are ordered by the Lord, Psal. 37. 23.

Verse 22. In Asia] i. e. At Ephesus, the chief City of Asia the less. See the note on Verse 10.

Verse 23. No small stir] Covetousness, as it self is Idolatry, so it upholds Idolatry (as here) under a pretext of piety. Deos quisque sibi utiles cudit, saith one. Ubi utilitas, ibi pietas, saith another. The Papists are found in those points that touch not upon their profit, as in the doctrine of the Trinity, &c. Luther was therefore so much set against (as Erasmus told the Elector of Saxony) because he medled with the Popes tripple crown, and the Monks fat paunches. Epicter. Sculter. Annal.

Verse 24. Which made silver shrines] Gr. Temples, Templa portatilia, small portable temples, resembling that greater temple of Diana; as now the Agnus Dei's among the Papists. Some say they were little houses or Caskets to put the Idol in. Others, small coins stamped with the Image of that famous Temple. Idolatrous trinkets they were, such as brought no small gain to the crafts-men, to whom gain was Godliness. Beza. Casaubon. Piscator.

Verse 25. By this craft we have our wealth] And wealth is the wordlings God; which he prizeth, as Micah did his mawmet; and can as hardly forego it. What a cursing made Micahs mother in the loss of her eleven hundred shekels of silver. Judges 17. 2. and what an hubbub raised Micah all the country over, when the Danites had despoiled despoiled him of his dunghill-deity? Iudges 18. So did the Silver-smiths here: and they thought they had reason to be thus mad, when their trade was taken away.

Digitized by Google

Vers. 26 That they be no Gods] The town-clark then told a loud lye, vers. 37. Politicians think they may lawfully lye for peace sake. Howbeit Paul decryed Diana's temple and worship with better discretion, then Abdias the Bishop burnt down the temple of the Fier (which the Persians worship) at Persepolis. Whereupon not only he himself was slain, but all the temples of the Christians throughout Persia were overthrown, and many Christians put to death the Persian Priests being their chief persecutors, Anno 413. Funccius.

Verse 27. This our craft] Whereof they had the Pattent, the Monopoly. Dictio est mercimoniorum & negotiorum, in genere significans illud quod in divisione obvenit, saith Lorinus. Istud quod nobis est peculiare. So Beza renders it. τὸ μέρος.

To be set at nought] Gr. To be refuted, disgraced, decryed, and we greatly damnified. Nobis refutatum intercidat. Beza. This was the Diana they strove for, and about which they raised all this uproar. So the poor Waldenses were persecuted, not for detestation of their Tenets, but out of a jealousie, lest these mens plain dealing should discover their drifts, and marr their markets. εἰς ἀπελεγμὸν ἐλθεῖν.

And her magnificence should be destroyed] Her maiesty. Utinam aeque saltem reverenter de Dei nomine hodiè homines loquerentur, saith an Interpreter. I would men would but use like reverence in speaking of the true God. μεγαλειότητα. Malcolm.

Verse 28. They were full of wroth] The Greek word signifieth the heating or heaving of the blood by the apprehension of the injury offered: hot and fiery anger, such as was that of Nebuchadnezzar, seven-fold hotter then his fiery furnace, Dan. 2. θυμοῦ.

Great is Diana] Papists boast and write much of the Romish greatness, as Lipsius and others. We grant them to be that great Whore in the Revelation, Chap. 17. 18.

Verse 29. And the whole City was filled with confusion] See the Note on chap. 17. 1.

Verse 30. The disciples suffered him not] i. e. They perswaded him otherwise, and prevailed. It is best, if a man can so order his affairs, as not to need the counsel of others: And the next best is to rest in good counsel, and to be ruled by it. But he that is uncounselable, is ripe for ruine, and that without remedy, Prov. 29. 1.

Verse 31. Certain of the chief of Asia] Not Rulers, but Priests (saith Beza) whose office was to set forth stage-playes in honour of the gods. These, though bad enough, had some good affection to the Christian Religion, and cautioned Paul not to come into the Theatre. Christ finds some friends amongst the worst of men.

Verse 32. Knew not wherefore, &c.] No more do the most of our common hearers. They follow the drove, and believe as the Church believeth. They will say, they come to Church to serve God. But who that God is, how to be served, wherein, and in whom to be served, they know not. Si ventri benè sit, si lateri, as Epicurus in Horace, if the belly may be filled, the back fitted, it sufficeth them.

Verse 33. And they drew Alexander] The Copper-smith; who was here neer to Martyrdom, yet afterwards made shipwrack of the faith, 1 Tim. 1. 19 20. and did the Apostle much evil, and greatly withstood not his person only, but his preachings, 2 Tim. 4. 15, 16. Which was a sin of an high and heinous nature.

Would have made his defence] He would have excused his countreymen the Jews (who therefore put him forward) and have turned all the rage of the people upon the Apostles. But by a sweet providence of God, he could not have audience.

Ver. 34. That he was a Jew] The Jews were generally hated of the Gentiles; and especially after their return from the Babylonish captivity: because they cried down all gods and religions but their own, and would never be drawn again to worship other gods, for which sin they had so exceedingly smarted. At this day the Jews for their inexpiable guilt in crucifying Christ, and their implacable hatred to his people, are by a common consent of Nations, banished out of the world, as it were: The very Turks themselves so hate the Jews for their crucifying Christ, that they use to say in detestation of a thing, I would I might die a Jew then. Neither will they permit a Jew to turn Turk, unless he be first baptized. Iudæus sim, si mentiar.

All with one voice cryed out, &c.] So the Papists cry up ad ravim usque their Lady of Loretto, of Sichem, of Walsingham, &c. and have nothing in their mouths so much as the Church, the Church: wherein, like Oyster-wives, they do easily out-cry us.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verse 35. Great goddess Diana] Who yet as great as she was, being busie at Alexanders birth (as he said) could not be at leasure to save her temple at Ephesus from burning. Like as Baal was so hot in the pursuit of his enemies, that he could not be at hand to help his friends, 1 Kings. 18. 27.

And of the Image that fell] A very ancient image made by Canetias a certain artificer, and for the antiquity of it, said by the covetous Priests to have fallen down from Jupiter, that it might be the more venerable. By a like craft the Popish Priests now shew some shivers of the cross whereon our Saviour suffered, yea some shreds of the tail of that Ass whereupon he rode to Jerusalem.

Verse 36. Ye ought to be quiet] Or, sedate, composed, kept within compass, and to do nothing rashly or headlongly: Temeritas enim comitem ἀμετάνοιαν ἔχει.

Verse 37. Blasphemers of your goddess] This was false: but this politician held it lawful to redeem peace with a lye. Not so Saint Paul, he knew that after his departure from Ephesus grievous wolves would enter in, Act. 20. 29. And yet because he could not stay to preach unless he would have restored some Pharisaical observations, and unless for peace sake, he would have yielded to the rites and image of Diana, he left the place, because he must not do the greatest good by any evil means.

Verse 38. 39, &c.] As the town-Clark here quieted the tumultuating people, so ought we to compose unruly passions. Say to them, 1. Ye ought to do nothing rashly. 2. The Law is open; so is Gods ear, to whom vengeance belongeth. 3. We are in danger of this days uproor, &c.

Verse 39. In a lawful assembly] Such as this could not be. Cum boni, cum probi coeunt, non est factio dicenda sed curia: ut è contrario, illis nomen factionis accommodandum est, qui in odium bonorum & proborum conspirant. Tertul. apol. cap. 39.

Verse 40. For we are in danger] Danger we all desire to decline, whether it be of life, limb, estate, &c. but venture our souls daily to the danger of damnation: this is practical Atheism, rank folly.

Verse 41. Dismissed the Assembly] And so Demetrius was cozened. See here the power of civil prudence and flexanimous eloquence, Videsis Cic. de Oratore lib. 1.

Chap. XX.

Verse 1. Into Macedonia]

GReat Alexanders country, called at this day Albany, and is subject to the Turk.

Verse 2. Into Greece] sc. To Corinth, whence he wrote the Epistle to the Romans.

Verse 3. And there abode three] Gr. Was doing there, he was in continual action. Life consists in action; so doth spiritual life, Isa. 38. 16. And by this reason one may live more in a moneth, then another in many years. In this sense Seneca saith, Quamvis vitæ paucos fecerimus dies. See the same word used thus, Mat. 20. 12. πτύπας. Epist. 67.

Verse 4. Sopater of Berea, Aristarchus and Secundus, &c.] These all were the very glory of Jesus Christ, 2 Cor. 8. 23. and yet counted the off-scouring of all things: these pretious sons of Zion, comparable to fine gold, were esteemed as earthen pitchers, Lam. 4. 2. These worthies of whom the world was not worthy, were cast out of the world as it were by an Ostraciſm. These Jewels of Jesus Christ, these excellent ones of the earth, these earthly Angels, were shamefully slighted, and trampled upon by the fat buls of Basan with the feet of insolency and cruelty. Howbeit as Stars (though we see them sometimes in a puddle, though they reflect there, yet) have they their situation in heaven; So Gods Saints, though in a low condition, yet they are fixed in the region of happiness. Content they are to pass to heaven (as Christ their head did) as concealed men, and would not change estates with the Earths mightier Monarchs. περίψαμος. 1 Cor 4. Heb. 11. 38.

Verse 5. Tarried for us at Troas] See the Note on chap. 16. 8.

Verse 6. In five days] Let them that please, read here Ptolomy his first Table of Asia: where they shall have this whole voyage of Saint Paul daintily described.

Verse 7. Continue his speech till midnight] Media nocte vigilabant, ut eos condemnent qui media die dormiunt, ſaith Chryſoſtome. Iacob fearing his brother, ſlept not all that night. If Samuel had thought it had been God that ſpake to him, he would not have ſlept. Whiles Iſhboſheth ſlept, Baanah and Rechab took off his head. After the diſciples ſlept, being bidden watch, they fled from Chriſt and forſwore him, Matt. 26. 40.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 8. And there were many lights] Night-meetings are lawful, and, in ſome caſes, needful: though carnal men will calumniate, and muſe as they uſe: Caligula thought there was not a chaſt man upon earth, becauſe himſelf was moſt deteſtably unchaſt.

Verſe 9. Being fallen into a deep ſleep] Wo be to many now-adayes, when God ſhall once ſend out ſummons for ſleepers.

Verſe 10. His life is in him] After that Paul prayed for him, life returned; or elſe becauſe he knew it ſhould return, he ſpeaks of it as a done thing.

Verſe 11. And eaten] After the celebration of the Lords Supper, followed the uſe of daily food. Animantis cujuſque vita eſt in fuga, ſaith the Philoſopher; ſo that were it not for the repair of nutrition, natural life would be ſoon extinguiſhed. So would ſpiritual life alſo.

Verſe 12. And were not a little comforted] Not ſo much for the yong mans recovery, as for the love of God ſealed up unto them therein: this was the kernel, the other but the ſhell.

Verſe 13. Aſſos] A chief city of Myſia, called alſo Apollonia on the Aſiatick ſhore.

To go afoot] Haply for his healths-ſake, or for more conveniency of viſiting the brethren, whoſe edification he minded more then his own eaſe.

Verſe 14, 15. Mytilene] An Iſland of the Cyclades, now called Metelino. See what great difficulties theſe good men devoured for the glory of God, and good of his people. The love of Chriſt conſtrained them (amor addidit alas) and the recompence of reward in heaven quickened them; Quis enim non patiatur, ut potiatur? who would not ſuffer for ſuch a felicity?

Verſe 16. To be at Ieruſalem] Not ſo much to obſerve the legal rites, which he knew to be then abrogated (onely ſepelienda erat Synagoga cum honore) as to edifie the Church by declaring to the faithful there, how Chriſts Kingdom was propagated abroad: and by confuting the ſlanderous aſperſions caſt upon him, by evil-minded men.

Verſe 17. From Miletus] A city of Aſia, lower then Epheſus.

Verſe 18. Ye know] This the Apoſtle ſpeaketh, not out of vain glory or deſire of popular applauſe: but partly for their imitation (all things in a Miniſter ſhould be eximious and exemplar) and partly to procure credit to his doctrine by ſetting forth the holineſs of his life; ſich quod juſſit, & geſſit, as Bernard, nec verbis ſolum prædicavit, ſed & exemplis, as Euſebius ſaith of Origen, he did what he taught: and his life was nothing elſe but a Tranſcript of his Sermons. This would be a real Apologie for him againſt the falſe Apoſtles.

Verſe 19. Serving the Lord, &c.] Here's a mirrour for Miniſters.

Verſe 20. With many tears] He went weeping from houſe to houſe, beſeeching them to be reconciled to God, perſwading them, as knowing the terrour of the Lord, 2 Cor. 5. 10.

Verſe 21. Teſtifying] Not barely preaching, but vehemently preſſing (as matters of greateſt importance)

Repentance towards God] Not a deſperate repentance (as was that of Iudas, that drives men from God: but ſuch as draws them toward him, and brings them before him, ſubmitting to his juſtice, and imploring his mercy, as at the Meet at Mizpah. 1 Sam. 7.

Faith towards Ieſus Chriſt] Repentance is put firſt, becauſe initial repentance is a preparation to effectual faith. See Mark 1. 15. with the Note.

Verſe 22. I go bound in the ſpirit] Pauls ſpirit did not hang looſe, but it was girt up in a reſolution to go through with the work, whatſoever came of it. The Spirit hems us about, comprehends and keeps us, when a mans own ſtrength would fall looſe. It is not ſo with every ungirt Goſpeller, that hath a looſe, diſcinct and diffluent mind, and no ſupernatural ſtrength to ſupport him.

Verſe 23. Bonds and afflictions abide me] Let no faithful Miniſter dream of a delicacy, or think by any diſcretion to prevent affliction: but be ready, as a good Soldier of Ieſus Chriſt, to ſuffer hardſhip. To preach is nothing elſe but to derive upon himſelf the hate and rage of graceleſs men, ſaith Luther.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 24. Neither count I my life dear] Singula propè verba ſpirant Martyrium, as one ſaith of Cyprians writings. When one ſaid to Julius Palmer the Martyr, Take heed, it is an hard matter to burn. Indeed, ſaid he, it is for him that hath his ſoul linked to his body, as a thiefs foot in a pair of fetters. Amongſt all the vain mockeries of this world (ſaid the Duke of Sommerſet at his death in K. Edw. 6. time) I repent me of nothing more then of eſteeming life more dear then I ſhould. A&M. Mon. fol. 1433. Life of Edw. 6. pag. 140.

Verſe 25. Shall ſee my face no more] viz. In the fleſh, and upon earth. But in heaven we ſhall ſee and ſay, Ἴδε ὁ Παῦλος καὶ ὁ Πέτρος (as Chryſoſtom thinks) Lo thats Paul, and the other is Peter. In the Transfiguration, Peter knew Moſes and Elias, as if he had been long acquainted with them. And yet that was but a glimpſe of heaven.

Verſe 26. I take you to Record] Happy is that man that can be acquitted by himſelf private, in publike by others, in both by God.

I am pure from the blood of all men] The Apoſtle hath an eye here (doubtleſs) to that ſtaming place of Ezek. 3. 18. His blood will I require at thine hands: which words are fulmina, non verba (ſaith Eraſmus, not words, but light-bolts.

Verſe 27. All the counſel of God] ſc. that concerneth you to know, to your eternal ſalvation by Chriſt alone. See Luke. 7. 30. with the Note.

Verſe 28. Hath made you overſeers] But many are Apoſcopi rather then Epiſcopi, ſaith Eſpenſæus, By-ſeers rather then Overſeers. ἐπισκόπους.

Which he hath purchaſed with his blood] The Church is to Chriſt a bloody Spouſe, an Acheldama or field of blood; for ſhe could not be redeemed with ſilver and gold, but with the blood of God; ſo it is called by a communication of properties, to ſet forth the incomparable value and vertue thereof.

Verſe 29. Shall grievous wolves enter] Or, fat Wolves: for Βαρεῖς in Greek comes of בריא in Hebrew, which ſignifies fat, as ſome Etymologiſts have obſerved; a fit Epithite for ſeducers, which fat themſelves with the blood of ſouls. Now it is well obſerved that heretical ſeducers are fitly compared to Wolves in diverſe reſpects. Firſt wolves are dul-ſighted by day, but quick-ſighted in the night: ſo are pernicious ſeducers ſharp-witted for errour, but dull to apprehend the truth of ſound Divinity. Secondly, as the Wolf deals gently with the ſheep at firſt, carrying it away unhurt upon his back, till he have brought it to the place where he means to ſtrangle it: Even ſo deal ſeducers; they firſt draw their Proſelytes into lighter errours, and then into blaſphemous and damnable hereſies. And thus homo homini lupus eſt, One man becomes a Wolf to another: Thirdly, as a Wolf begetts a Wolf: ſo doth a deceiver, a deceived. Fourthly, as the Wolf is ſaid to ſtrike a man dumb, if he ſpy the man before the man ſpy him: ſo when Seducers prevail, they ſtrike men dumb in reſpect of ſavoury communication, or Chriſtian profeſſion. Fifthly, as the wool of a Wolf, if it be made into a garment, will prove but an odious garment, breeding vermine upon him that ſhall wear it, as Plutarch ſpeaks: ſo the good which poor ſeduced ſouls think they receive by impoſtors, it will prove corruption in the end. Laſtly, as Wolves are of a ravenous diſpoſition, and unſatiable: ſo Seducers hunger after gain, Rom. 16. 18. and thirſt after blood of ſouls, as thoſe Mat. 23. 6. Βαρεῖς. Lupus interdiu obtuſius, nocte clarius videt. Geſner. lib. 1. de quadrup. Vincent. ſpec. nat. l. 19. c. 83. Omne ſimile generat ſibi ſimile. Plin. l. 8. c. 22. Lupi me videre priores. Virg. Lib. 2. ſympoſ. q. 9. D. Deniſon his white wolf. p. 32.

Verſe 30. To draw away diſciples] To tear them limb-meal by a violent avulſion and diſtraction, compelling them by their perſwaſions to embrace thoſe diſtorted Doctrines, that produce convulſions of Conſcience, Deut. 13. 5. Such are ſaid to thruſt men out of Gods wayes. ἀποσπᾶν. ἀποστρεφοντα.

Verſe 31. Night and day with tears] Good men weep eaſily, ſaith the Greek Poet; and the better any is, the more enclined to weeping; as David then Jonathan, 1 Sam. 20. Some (as they ſay of witches) cannot weep for ſin. But they that weep not here, where there are wiping handkerchiefs in the hands of Chriſt, ſhall have their eyes whipt out in hell. ἀγαθοὶ δ' ἀεὶ δακρυόεντες ἄνδρες.

Verſe 32. Able to build] As being Gods arm, and mighty inſtruments of his power, 1 Cor. 1. 18. Rom. 1. 16.

Verſe 33. I have coveted no mans, &c.] Non opes, non gloriam, non voluptates quæſivi, &c. Hanc conſcientiam aufero quocunque diſcedo, ſaid Melanchthon. Melch. Adam.

Verſe 34. Theſe hands have miniſtred] More ſhame for them to ſuffer it. Sed rara ingeniorum præmia, rara item & merces, ſaith One; And, Neſcio quomodo bonæ mentis ſoror eſt paupertas, ſaith another; and, Paupertas eſt Philoſophiæ vernacula, ſaith a third. Let Gods ſervants keep them honeſt, the world will keep them poor enough. Rhodig. l. 29. c. 16. Petron. Apuleius.

Digitized by Google

τὸ εὖ πάσχειν τοῦ εὖ ποιεῖν κάλλιον καὶ ἡδίον.

Verse 35. It is more blessed] Epicurus could say, that to do good was not only better, but sweeter also then to receive good. Julius Cæsar counted nothing his own that he bestowed not upon others. And it better pleased Cyrus to give, then to possess any good thing that he had.

Διὸδ ἐς μᾶλλον ἢ κτώμενοι ἥδονται. Xenoph.

Verse 36. And prayed with them all] O verum valedicendi morem Christianis dignum, saith one. Now 'tis no parting without potting and healthing. Quæ turpissima κυκλοποσία Principum derisio, à parasitis traxit originem, saith Pasor. Which curled custom had its beginning from Court-parasites.

Tertul.

Verse 37. And they all wept sore] Expletur lachrymis egeriturque dolor. It was noted and noticed by the very Heathens, that there were no people under heaven so loving one to another as the primitive Christians: animo animaque inter se miscebantur, saith Tertullian of them: It should seem so indeed by this mutual melting-heartedness. Well might the heathen beholders say, Vide ut invicem se ament Christiani, see how these Christians love one another, like as the Jews, when they saw Jesus weep over Lazarus, said, Behold how he loved him. John 11.

Calvin.

Verse 38. Sorrowing most] They are out then, qui ferream & immanem constantiam exigunt à fidelibus, who exact of Christians a Stoical apathy or insensibleness of crosses and sorrowful occurrences. Religion doth not root out natural passions, but regulate them. The parting with dear freinds (which are as a mans own Soul, Deut. 13.6.) is so grievous, that death it self is called a Departure.

Chap. XXI.

Verse 1. We came with a straight course] εὐθυδρομήσαντες. Mar. 7 26.

SO shall all those that make straight paths for their feet, Heb. 12. 13. whose eye-lids look straight before them, Prov. 4. 25. who ponder their paths by the weights of the Word, verse 26.

Verse 2. Phœnicia] A region of Syria: the woman of Canaan was a Syrophenician.

συνεσταλμένος.

Verse 3. Now when we had discovered Cyprus] Vox nautica, a Marriners term: So is that 1 Cor. 7. 29. St. Paul was a great trader of Christ both by land and Sea: and had terms ready for both. See the note there.

Verse 4. And finding disciples] Such as Esay had long since foretold should leave hoarding and heaping wealth, and find another manner of employment for it, to feed and cloath Gods Saints, Isay 23. 18.

That he should not go up, &c.] They understanding by his divine revelation, what danger Paul was in, out of Charity, and not by any special command of the Spirit, forewarned him, and desired him not to go up.

Verse 5. And prayed] See the note on chap. 20 36.

Verse 6. We took ship] Leaving them on shore: we shall one day meet, and never more be separated. O diecul am illam, &c. Euge, Deo sit laus & gloria, quod jam instet hora illa gratissima. O that day! O that joy! Castigemus mores & moras, Let us ripen apace, and hasten to that heavenly home, that glorious Panegyris, Heb. 12. 23.

Grotius moribundus. Melch. Adam. Bernard.

Verse 7. And abode with them one day] Suavis hora, sed parva mora, short and sweet abode.

1 T

Verse 8. Philip the Evangelist] He was at first but a Deacon; but having well used that lower office, he was advanced to this. A fruitful man shall not sit long in a low place: God will call him forth to a higher employment, and make him Master of much, that was to faithful in a little, Luke 16.

Verse 9. Did prophesie] That is, they had the gift of foretelling future things by divine inspiration. This was every way extraordinary.

Verse 10. A certain Prophet] So called à procul fando, as some will have it. These New-Testament Prophets were next to the Apostles in office; and are mentioned together with them in laying the foundation of Christianity, Eph. 3. 5. & 2. 20.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verse 11. So shall the Jews] Who were ever most bitter enemies to Christians, and so they continue. Among the Turks every Visier and Basha of State useth to keep a Jew of his private council: whose malice, wit, and experience of Christendome, with their continual intelligence, is thought to advise most of that mischief which the Turk puts in execution against us. Are those then well-advised that desire that the Jews may have free commerce amongst us, as they have in Poland? where they not only curse all Christians publikely in their daily prayers, but boldly prine against our religion whatsoever they please? Blunts voyage p. 114. Buxtorf Synag. Iud. p. 170.

Verse 13. What mean you to weep?] Ecclesiastical history mentioneth one Phileas, a Noble-man and a Martyr, who going to execution, seemed as one deaf at the perswasions, and blind at the tears of his friends; Nam quomodò potest terrenis lacrymis flecti, cujus oculi cœlestem gloriam contuentur? said one Philoramus defending him, and was therefore bheaded with him.

I am ready, not to be bound] This was a brave Roman resolution. Necesse est ut eam, non ut vivam, said Pompey. The Lacedæmonians were wont to say, It is a shame for any man to fly in time of danger. But for a Lacedæmonian, it is a shame for him to deliberate. How much more for a Christian, when called by God to suffer. Go (said Luther) I will surely go (sith I am sent for) in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, yea, though I knew there were so many Devils to resist me, as there are tiles to cover the houses in Worms. Spalatinus had sent to Luther, to enquire whether or no he would go to Worms, and appear in the Gospels cause, if Cæsar summoned him; Omnia de me præsumas (said he) præter fugam, & palinodiam. Fugere nola, multò minus recantare, Ita me confortet Dominus. Socrates would not hearken to his friend Criton, perswading him to shift for himself by a dishonourable flight. And when some friends dealt with Dr. Taylour Martyr, not to appear before Stephen Winchester, but to fly; Fly you (said he) and do as your conscience leads you; I am fully determined, with Gods grace, to go to the Bishop, and to his beard to tell him that he doth naught. True zeal is of a most masculine, disingaged, couragious nature, and ready to say, shall I change mine opinion, because Hoc Ithacus velit? remit of my diligence for fear of death? Oh that I might enjoy those wild beasts prepared for my torments, said blessed Ignatius. And O that it might be so with me, said Basil, threatned with death by Valens the Arrian Emperour. So we read of another holy Bishop, who when his hand was threatned to be cut off, cryed out, seca ambas, nay cut off both. Act. & Mon. 776. Luth. Epist. Act. & Mon. fol. 1380. Ὀναίμην τῶν θείων τῶν ἐμοὶ ἑτοιμασμένων. Εἴθε γένοιτο μοι. Basil.

Verse 14. The will of the Lord be done] Vox verè Christianorum, saith one, Voluntas Dei, necessitas rei. A godly man sayes Amen to Gods Amen; and puts his Fiat and Placet to Gods. One said, he could have what he would of God. Why? how was that? because whatsoever was Gods will, that was his. It is said that I shall be burned in Smith-field (said blessed Bradford) and that very shortly, Fiat voluntas Domini: Ecce ego, mitte me. Mr. Beza's last text was the third Petition of the Lords Prayer, Thy will be done, &c. In qua deficere potius quam desinere visus est, saith he that writeth his life. Act. & Mon. 1502. Melch. Adam.

Verse 15. We took up our carriages] A military term: we trussed up our fardles, made up our packs, our bag and baggage, instructi & comparati ad quevis nimirum pericula subeunda, saith Beza, being ready prest and prepared to whatsoever hazard. ἐπισκευασάμενοι.

Verse 16. An old disciple] A gray-headed experienced Christian, a Father, 1 John 2. 13. Such as those mentioned Psal. 92. 12, 13, 14. A Christian hath his degrees of growth. Ye have his Conception, Gal. 4. 19. Birth, 1 Pet. 1. 13. Childhood, 1 Cor. 3. 1, 2. Youth or well-grown-age, when he is past the spoon, 1 John 2. 13. his fulgrown age, Eph. 4. 13. Old age, as John 2. 13. and here. An old Disciple, and yet a Disciple still; not too old to learn. Solon said, I wax old ever learning somewhat. Julianus the Lawyer said, that when he had one foot in the grave, yet he would have the other in the School. Chytreus when he lay a dying, lift up himself to hear the discourse of some friends that visited him; and said, that he should dye with so much the better chear, if he might better his knowledge, by what they were speaking of. Γηράσκω ἀεὶ πολλὰ διδασκόμενος. Solon. Melch. Adam.

With whom he should lodge] Viz. When we came to Jerusalem. This Manson was another Gaius, the Host of the Church. The Waldenses were so spread in Germany, that they could travel from Colen to Millain in Italy, and every night lodge with Hosts of their own profession, which was a great comfort to them. Cade of the Church p. 180.

Verse

Digitized by Google

ἀσμένως. Dat bene dat multum, qui dat cum munere vultum.

Verſe 17. Received us gladly] Gr. Smilingly; when we come to the new Ieruſalem, the whole Court of heaven ſhall meet us, and greet us with great joy.

κατ' ἕν ἕκαστον.

Verſe 18. Unto James] The ſon of Alpheus, called by St. Mark, Iames the leſs, and by ſome of the Antients, Biſhop of Ieruſalem.

Verſe 19 He declared particularly] Gr. One by one. So Moſes tels Iethro all things one by one what God had done for Iſrael, Exod. 18. 8. We muſt not relate Gods loving kindneſs in the lump or by whole-ſale, but be punctual, and particular.

Verſe 20. Many thouſands] Therefore not to be ſlighted.

Verſe 21. To forſake Moſes] An odious and falſe imputation. All that Saint Paul taught, was, that the legal rites and cuſtoms were only ſhadows of things to come, but the body is of Chriſt, Col. 2. 17. and that Chriſtians ſhould know and uſe their freedom in wiſdom and charity, Gal. 2. 3. 1 Cor. 8. 13.

Verſe 22. The multitude muſt needs come together] And be ſatisfied: for elſe that ſiniſter opinion which they have conceived of thee, will be increaſed, and they will take all for granted, that is alledged againſt thee. Now a heathen Sage could ſay (and there is much truth in it) Negligere quid de ſe quiſque ſentiat, non ſolum arrogantis eſt, ſed & diſſoluti. It is a ſign of a proud lewd perſon, not to care what people think of him.

Verſe 23. A vow on them] A voluntary vow of Nazarit-ſhip, which yet is agreeable to the Laws præſcript.

Verſe 24. And all may know] There is a real confutation of calumnies.

Verſe 25. And from fornication] See the Note on Acts 15. 20.

Verſe 26. Purifying himſelf] See Auguſtin. Epiſtles 11. and 19.

Dixerunt adverſarii ſe mihi non reliquiſſe veſtigium pedis in Germ. Epiſt. ad Harderberg.

Verſe 27. The Iews which were of Aſia] Saint Pauls good intent had but evil ſucceſs; but his conſcience was his comfort, as 2 Cor. 1. 9. 12. So was holy Melanchthons, when but courſely dealt with, and threatned with baniſhment, &c. this he could ſay for himſelf, I have not fought for my ſelf, wealth, honour, pleaſure, or victory over mine Adverſaries: This conſcience I take with me, whether ſoever they ſhall drive me.

Verſe 28. Crying, men of Iſrael help, this is the man, &c.] An admirable and graphical deſcription of this tumult: every circumſtance ſet forth to the life as it were: No Poet could have done it with more skill and artifice. There is as good Rethorick in the Bible as in any heathen Orator whatſoever: It was therefore a fooliſh and prophane fear of Politian, Longolius, Bonamicus, and other Logodadali, that if they ſhould read the Scriptures, they ſhould marre the purity of their ſtile. This is the man that teacheth, &c. There is not a true word in all this out-cry. So Elias was called a troubler, Luther a Trumpeter of rebellion, Melanchthon a blaſphemer of God and his Saints, Calvin a Mahometan, Zanchius an Anabaptiſt, a Swenckfeldian, a Novatian, and what nor? Arminius paved his way firſt by aſperſing and ſugillating the fame and authority of Calvin, Zuinglius, Beza, Martyr, and other Champions of the truth. The Papiſts reported the Waldenſes, (thoſe antient Proteſtants) to be Manichees, Arrians, Cathariſts, &c. as they do us to be Libertines, Enthuſiaſts, Atheiſts, &c. Contra ſycophantæ morſum non eſt remedium. They ſet their mouthes againſt heaven, and their tongue walketh through the earth, Pſal. 73. 9. But God will cut out ſuch falſe tongues. Pſal. 12. 3. and broyl them upon coals of Iuniper, Pſal. 120. 4.

Verſe 29. Whom they ſuppoſed] But was that ſufficient ground to make ſuch a coyl, to raiſe ſuch an uproar? Paſſions are head-long and head-ſtrong; like heavy bodyes down ſteep hills, once in motion they move themſelves, and know no ground but the bottom.

Verſe 30. The doors were ſhut] That he might not there take ſanctuary.

Iacob. Lect. in vita Anton. Sadeel.

Verſe 31. And as they went about to kill him] The Devil was firſt a Lyer, and then a Murtherer. The perſecutors ever firſt belyed the Church, and then did their worſt againſt her. Slander is a kind of Murther, and makes way for it, Ezek. 22. 9. as in the Maſſacre of Paris, The Monks had given out before, that the Proteſtants met for no other purpoſe but to feaſt their carcaſſes, and then (the lights being put out) to ſatisfie their unlawful luſts promiſcuouſly. Thus they prepared and provoked the people to that bloody butchery, and ſo ſlew the innocent Huguenots twice; like as it is ſaid of Humphrey Duke of Gloceſter, that he was thought by the people of England to be doubly murthered; viz. by detraction, and deadly practiſe.

Speed. 846.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 32. Who immediately took Souldiers] An admirable example of Gods good providence, who delighteth to reſerve his hand for a dead lift, to ſave thoſe that are forſaken of their hopes: He cometh unlookt for, as it were out of an engine. ἀπὸ μηχανῆς.

They left beating of Paul] who could the better bear it, becauſe he had felt worſe fingers then theirs, when that Meſſenger of Satan buffeted him, 2 Cor. 12. And ſurely if the Philoſopher (when brayed in a Morter by his cruel Scythians) could bear it patiently, ſaying, Beat on Anacharſis his wind-bang, meaning his body: much more could the Apoſtle by the force of his Faith. Eſpecially, ſince his ſuffering reached only to his fleſh, his ſoul was untouched thereby. Col. 1. 24. Tundite Anach. ſolliculum.

Verſe 33. To be bound with two chains] As if he would have preſently puniſhed him. This he did to ſatisfie the mad multitude.

Verſe 34. For the tumult] All was on an hurry, as it was Chap. 19. at Epheſus, vel ut in regno Cyclopico.

Into the Caſtle] Called Antonia, neer the Temple where the Souldiers kept Garriſon.

Verſe 35. He was born of the Souldiers] Who conſidered as little what a precious pack they now had upon their backs, as once the Midianitiſh merchants did, what a price they had in their hands, viz. Joſeph the Jewel of the world and Lord of Egypt.

Verſe 36. Away with him] Yea, but ſtay: Pauls time was in Gods hand, who had told him, that after he had been at Jeruſalem, he muſt ſee Rome too. In the mean time it might be ſome comfort to Paul to hear the ſame words (and perhaps by the ſame men) uſed of him, as had been before of his maſter Chriſt, Away with him, &c. It is ſufficient for the ſervant to be as his Lord. Art thou not glad to fare as Phocion? ſaid he to one that was to ſuffer with him. Holy Ignatius took great comfort in this, that though he ſuffered death for Chriſt, yet in the day when God ſhould make up his Jewels, he ſhould reckon not only from the blood of righteous Abel to the blood of Zacharias ſon of Barachias, but from the blood of Zacharias to the blood of mean Ignatius. We have mentioned before that Martyr that rejoyced that ſhe might have her foot in the hole of the Stocks in which Mr. Philpot had been before her. When Luther thought he ſhould dye of an Apoplexy, it comforted him, that the Apoſtle John had dyed of that diſeaſe: How much more ſhould it do us, that we fill up that only which is behind of the afflictions of Chriſt in our fleſh; and that ſuffering together, we ſhall alſo raign together? εἰ ἀγαπᾷς μετὰ Φωκίωνος ἀποθανέμενος. Plut. Apoph. Act. & Mon. Col. 1. 24.

Verſe 37. Canſt thou ſpeak Greek] I, no man better, whenſoever he pleaſed: witneſs his gallant Antapology to Tertullus, Cap. 24. and again his moſt accurate Apology to Agrippa, Chap. 26. wherein (Pericles-like) fulgurabat, intonabat, &c. he lightened one while, thundred another, did what he would with his audience, became maſter of their affections: being as Potent in his Divine Rhetorick, as Cicero in his humane; who, as it is ſaid, while he pleaded for Ligarius, diſarmed the angry Emperour, and gat pardon for the poor ſuppliant. Cicer. Plut.

Verſe 38. Art not thou that Egyptian] Of whom read Ioſeph. lib. 2. cap. 10. de bello Jud. & antiq. lib. 20.

That were murderers] Aſſaſines, Cut-throats. Theſe were of the faction of Judas Gaulonites or Galileus. See Luke 13. 1. Godw. Heb. Antiq.

Verſe 39. Of no mean City] and yet more ennobled by Paul, then Paul was by it: like as Hippo was better known by Auſtin, then Auſtin was by Hippo, whereof he was Biſhop; the Iſland Co by Hippocrates, then Hippocrates by Co; King Archelaus by his friend Euripides, then Euripides by Archelaus.

Verſe 40. In the Hebrew tongue] i. e. In the Syriack, a Daughter of the Hebrew, and the mother tongue of them who were called Hebrews.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

Chap. XXII.

Verse 1. Men, brethren, and fathers]

They that spake for themselves before the Areopagites in Athens, were required to do it ἀνευ παθῶν καὶ προοιμίων, without passions or prefaces. Not so here.

Verse 2. In the Hebrew tongue] See the Note on chap. 21. 41.

Verse 3. At the feet of Gamaliel] Among the Jews, the Rabbi sate, termed יושב or or the Sitter; the Scholar was called מוראבק or one that lies along in the dust, a token of the Scholars humility, subjecting himself even to the feet of his Teacher, as here, and Luke 10. 39. and 2 Kings 2. 5. Knowest thou not that the Lord will take thy master from thine head? A phrase taken from their manner of sitting in the Schools.

Godw. Antiq. Heb. p. 37. This same custom (saith one) it is thought Saint Paul laboured to bring into the Christian Church. 1 Cor. 14.

And was zealous toward God] With a blind zeal, which is no better then mettle in a blind horse, then fire on the chimney-top, then the Devil in the Demoniack, which threw him into the fire sometimes, and sometimes into the water.

Verse 4, 5, 6, &c. See the Notes on chap. 9 1, 2, &c.

Verse 8. I am Jesus of Nazareth] Why saith our Saviour Jesus of Nazareth? Doth any good come out of Nazareth? Why saith he not rather, I am Jesus the son of God, the heir of the world, &c. Nazareth was a reproach cast upon Christ; and he glories in it: Should not we prefer the reproach of Christ before the highest honour the world can do us?

Verse 9. But they heard not] See the Note on Act. 9, 7.

Verse 10, 11, 12, 13.] See Act. 9. 16, 17. &c.

προχειρίσατο Verse 14. Hath chosen thee] Gr. Hath handled thee before hand. Beza, Hath designed thee. Erasmus, hath prepared thee, viz. by unhorsing and blinding thee. Schola Crucis, schola lucis.

Verse 15. Of What thou hast seen] sc. When rapt into the third heaven, 2 Cor. 12. 2, which might very well be in that three days darkness. See the Note on Act. 9. 9.

Verse 16. Wash away thy sins] By being inwardly baptized in the blood of Christ, by his merit and spirit: For there is baptismus flaminis, & baptismus flaminis, Mat. 3. 11. hence we read of baptisms, Heb. 6. 2. and of the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the holy Ghost. Tit. 3. 5. See Act. 2. 38. with the Note.

Verse 17. Even while I prayed] Then especially Gods people are rapt and ravished. See the Note on Chap. 10. 10.

Verse 18. They will not receive] And I have ordained thee for a better purpose then to lie idle. He therefore that heareth, let him hear; and he that forbeareth, let him forbear. God will not alwayes be with men in the opportunities of grace, but make them know the worth by the want.

Ezek. 3.

Verse 19. Lord, they know that I imprisoned] Therefore no wonder though they of Jerusalem reject my testimony, as a light giddy-headed fellow, who now teach that religion that I lately persecuted: sed praestat herbam dare quam turpiter pugnare. Luther was counted and called an Apostate: He confessed the action; but blessed God that had given him grace to fall off from the Devil. Bugenhagius having read some few leaves of Luthers book de captivitate Babylonica, rashly pronounced Luther the most pestilent Heretick that ever troubled the Church. But shortly after, reading the book thorow, and wisely weighing the arguments therein used and urged, he recanted his former censure, and publikely averred and maintained, that all the Christian world was out, and Luther onely in the right: Hic vir unus & solus verum videt, said he to his Collegioners; many of whom he convinced and converted to the truth. It is judged by many that the fear of disgrace began to work upon Paul here (as it had done upon Jonas, Chap. 4. 2.) q. d. I shall be counted a Moon-calf; a Retraxit shall be entred against me, as is against a Plaintiff that will not proceed in his suit.

Sculr. Annal.

Verse 20. When the blood of thy Martyr] An honour not afforded to any Angel in heaven, said Father Latimer. God forgive me mine unthankfulness said Bradford, for this, this, that I must dye a Martyr, that Christ will be magnified in my mortal body, whether it be by life or by death. Stephen Christs Protomartyr! Antipas, my faithful Martyr! what an high stile is this! Ignatius professed that he had rather be a Martyr then a Monarch. He called his bonds his spiritual pearls, and triumphed in his voyage to Rome to suffer, to think that his blood should be found among the mighty Worthies, such as Abel, Stephen, Antipas, &c. τὰ δεσμά μου εἰρέφω τὰς μυμαπὲ μαργαρίτας ep. ad Ephes.

Digitized by Google

Verse 21. And he said unto me, depart] Which good Paul was full loth to do; having (with the Vine-dresser in the Gospel) both digd and begg'd for his unworthy countrymen, till there was no remedy, 2 Chron. 36. 16. till the very last period of their day of grace, Act. 13. 46. See the Note there. Luke. 13.

Verse 22. And they gave him audience] The Iews to this day will not hear of the Gentiles having any interest in their Messiah, They call us bastard-Gentiles, and curse us Christians in their daily prayers, with a Maledic Domine Nazaræis. They stick not to say that rather then we should have any benefit by their Messiah, they would Crucifie him an hundred times over. Thus to this present, they please not God, and are contrary to all men. We must pitty them and pray for them, as Psal. 14. 7. Lopez the Traitor, at Tiburn, affirmed that he loved Queen Elizabeth, as he loved Jesus Christ: which from a Jew was heard not without laughter. 1 Thes. 2 15. Cam. Eliz. fol. 431.

Verse 23. And as they cryed] A graphical description of their unreasonable rage and rout. Well might our Saviour say beware of men acted and agitated by the Devil: and Saint Paul pray to be delivered from absurd and wicked men, as bad as those beasts that he encountred at Ephesus, 1 Cor. 15. 32. Let a bear robbed of her whelps meet a man rather then a fry of furious fools in their folly. Mat. 10. 2 Thes. 3. 2. Prov. 17. 12.

Verse 24. Examined by scourgings] Politicians consider not oft what is just, but what is of use for the present purpose, be it right or wrong. Paul is here commanded to be scourged, and then examined. This is hysteron proteron, Justice turned to topsie turvy.

Verse 25. A man that is a Roman] A Citizen of Rome might neither be bound nor beaten. See the Note on Acts 16. 37. Paul by this freedom escaped whipping: we by that which Christ hath purchased us, not for gold or silver, but his own blood, 1 Pet. 1. 19. escape the pain of eternal torment.

Verse 26. This man is a Roman] The Centurion might believe Saint Paul upon his bare word, because if any claimed that priviledge and could not prove it, he was to dye for so doing.

Verse 27. He said yea] And withall he made it out (likely) by sufficient proof to be so: he produced some convincing evidence, though it be not here recorded. All Gods people are fellow-citizens with the Saints, Burgesses of the new Jerusalem, free denisons of heaven, where their names are enrolled long since, as the maner was at Rome, and likewise at Jerusalem. Psa. 48. 3. But they must look up their evidences, and be able to prove their interest by irrefragable arguments, when Satan shall roar upon them and shake his chain at them. It should be our care and study to find out that which Luke calls the certainty, chap. 1. 4. and not be led by conjectural suppositions, but be fully perswaded, vers. 1. and get such a victorious faith, as the gates of hell may not prevail against. God is no way wanting to us herein, as having made heaven ours both by Covenant and his Testament. His covenant he hath written not onely in his word, but also in our hearts: and we have witnesses thereof, three in heaven, and three on earth: his seals also and oath to confirm it. And lest we should think that Covenant may break, he hath likewise given us heaven by Testament, confirmed by the death of the Testatour. A certainty therefore may be had of our interest in heaven, of our names written there; and thats an ignorant distinction among Papists, that men may have a certainty of hope, but not of faith in matters of salvation. Ephes. 2. 19. Heb. 12. 23.

Verse 28. With a great summ] Or, with long service. This priviledge was first sold at a dear rate to forreiners, but afterwards for a small matter. Dio in Claudio.

But I was free-born] Tarsus Pauls country was a Roman Colony, and made free of Rome by M. Antonius.

Verse 29. Then straightway they departed from him] Thus wonderfully and opportunely doth the Lord free his people, sometimes, from evils and enemies, when in humane apprehension, there is no way of escape.

Verse 30. And brought Paul down] sc. from the Castle, or from the rock Antonia.

Digitized by Google

Chap. XXIII.

Verse 1. In all good conscience]

Good, both with the goodness of integrity and of tranquillity. A recta conscientia transversum unguem non oportet quenquam in omni sua vita discedere, saith Cicero. Let a man keep his Conscience cleer. Better offend all the world, then Conscience.

Ep. ad Attic. l. 13.

Verse 2. To smite him on the mouth] So when Henry Zuiphen, Martyr was bound hard to a ladder and cast into the fire, he no sooner began to pray and to repeat his Creed, but one struck him upon the face with his fist, saying, Thou shalt first be burned, and afterwards pray and prate as much as thou wilt.

Act. & Mon. fol. 802.

Verse 3. God shall smite thee] He was afterwards cruelly slain by Manaimus a captain of the Iews in the beginning of the Jewish wars. As Master Bradford went toward the stake, he was met by a brother in law of his, called Roger Beswick, which assoon as he had taken Bradford by the hand, Woodroof Sheriff of London came with his staff and brake the said Rogers head, that the blood ran about his shoulders. But within half a year after, God so struck Woodroof on the right side with a palsey, or what ever it was, that for eight years space, to his dying day, he was not able to turn himself in his bed, &c.

Act & Mon. fol. 1457.

Ibid. 1475.

Thou whited wall] That is, thou hypocrite, Mat. 23. 27. So Master Philpot Martyr to Doctor Morgan that scoffed him, I must now tell thee (said he) thou painted wall and hypocrite, that God shall rain fire and brimstone upon such scorners of his word and blasphemers of his people as thou art. What an arrogant fool is this (said Bonner to Philpot) I will handle thee like an Heretick and that shortly. I fear nothing (answered Philpot) that you can do to me: but God shall destroy such as thou art: and that shortly, as I trust. So when Shaxton Bishop of Salisbury said to William Wolsey Martyr, and some others with him, Good brethren, remember your selves, and become new men: for I my self was in this fond opinion that you are now in, but I am become a new man: Wolsey replyed, Ah, are you become a new man? Wo be to thee, thou wicked new man: for God shall justly judge thee, &c.

Ibid. 1653.

Ibid. 1654.

Ibid. 1558.

Ver. 4. Revilest thou Gods high-priest?] Some think it was not the high-priest himself, but his Surrogate, such as Dic of Dover was to the Archbishop of Canterbury, active against the Martyrs in Queen Maries dayes, and known by that name.

Act. & Mon. fol. 777.

Verse 5. I wist not Brethren] Whether he speak seriously or Ironically it is doubtful. He might not know him, as having been long absent from Ierusalem. Or his present heat, might so darken his judgement, that he might not for present acknowledge the high priests authority. It was certainly some disadvantage to Paul, that (although provoked and unjustly smitten) he called the high priest whited wall; he was glad to excuse it by his ignorance. We may not be too bold, or too forward to speak in a good matter, lest we over-shoot. Luther confessed before the Emperour at VVorms, that in his books against private and singular persons, he had been more vehement then his religion and profession required. And he cryed our Henry 8. mercy for his uncivil handling of him.

Verse 6. But when Paul perceived] Paul wanted not humane prudence: wise as serpents we should be to improve all advantages that we may with the safety of our consciences. Religion doth not call us to a weak simplicity: but allows us as much of the Serpent as of the Dove. The Dove without the Serpent is easily caught; the Serpent without the Dove, stings deadly: Their match makes themselves secure, and many happy.

Of the hope and resurrection] For fiducia Christianorum est resurrectio mortuorum, saith Tertullian. Christians look for great things at that great day, and in that other world, which the Hebrews call saculum mercedis, the world of wages.

Verse 7. A dissention betwixt the Pharisees] So among Papists, the Priests disparage the Jesuits, the Jesuits the Priests, the Priests again the Monks, the Monks the Friers, and the Jesuits all.

Verse 8. Sadduces say there is no resurrection] The occasion of this Heresie is said to be this; When Antigonus taught that we must not serve God as servants do their Masters for hope of reward, his scholars Sadoc and Baithus understood him as if he had utterly denied all furure rewards or recompence attending a godly life; and thence framed their Heresie, denying the Resurrection, world to come, &c.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 9. We find no evil in this man] God when he pleaſeth, can find patrons of his cauſe amongſt his very enemies. Beza.

But if a Spirit or an Angel, &c.] It is well obſerved by a Reverend man from this ſcripture, that men will grant truths or not, as their paſſions lead them. Before Paul diſcovered himſelf to be a Phariſee, they all with one conſent cryed out, This man is not worthy to live. But now that he ſhews himſelf to be on their ſide, I am a Phariſee and the Son of a Phariſee, oh how finely do they mince the matter. Perhaps an Angel hath revealed it to him: he was an honeſt man then. So men either judge, or not judge, as their paſſions and affections carry them.

Verſe 10. To take him by force] This the Soldiers did, for none other end, then to prevent ſedition and man-ſlaughter; but God had a further end in it, viz. to preſerve his ſervant for further noble employment: ideoq; cæcas manus illuc dirigit, ſaith Calvin, and therefore he directeth their blind hands thereunto. The truth is, every creature walks blindfold. Onely he that dwels in light, ſees whither they go.

Verſe 11. The Lord ſtood by him] Turned his priſon into a pallace, as likewiſe he did to Algerius Chriſts priſoner, and Maſter Philpot who writes thus to his friends, Though I tell you that I am in hell in the judgement of this world, yet aſſuredly I feel in the ſame the conſolation of heaven, I praiſe God: And this loathſom and horrible priſon is as pleaſant to me, as the walk in the garden of the Kings bench. A&. & Mon. 857. Ibid. 1663.

Verſe 12. Bound themſelves, &c.] The Conſtable of France, when he covenanted with God, that if he had the victory at Saint Quintons, he would ſet upon Geneva, thought no doubt that he had made a great good bargain with God. Much like to Julian the Emperour, who going againſt the Perſians, made his vow, That if he ſped well, he would offer the blood of Chriſtians. But what did God? Came not both their vows to like effect? My times are in thy hand, ſaith David. Pilate could do nothing againſt Chriſt, were it not given him from above. Commit we therefore our ſelves to God in well-doing, as to a faithful Creatour. Ibid. 1514.

Verſe 13. And they were more then 40.] The Aſſaſines are a kind of moſt deſperate men among the Mahometans, who, ſtrongly deluded with the blind zeal of their ſuperſtition, and accounting it meritorious by any means to kill any great enemy of their religion, for the performance thereof, as men prodigal of their lives, they deſperately adventure themſelves into all kinds of dangers. Such alſo are the Spahyels among the Turks, a kind of voluntary horſemen in meer devotion to gain paradiſe by dying for the Mahometans cauſe. Turk Hiſt. fol. 120. Blunts voyage 67.

Verſe 14. And they came to the chief Prieſts and Elders] With whom they knew they ſhould hereby ingratiate. Rulers vices as ſeldom go unattended, as their perſons. If Herod mock Chriſt, his men of war will do ſo too. If a ruler hearken to lies, all his ſervants are wicked, Prov. 29. 12. See the Note there. Luke 23. 11.

Verſe 15. As though he would enquire] Craft and cruelty are combined in the Churches enemies; Neither of them wanteth his mate, as the Scripture ſpeaketh of thoſe birds of prey and deſolation, Iſa. 34. 16. and as the Aſp is ſaid never to wander alone, without his companion with him.

Verſe 16. And when Pauls ſiſters ſon] A ſweet providence that this boy ſhould be by, to detect and defeat their wicked counſel. God will be ſeen in the Mount; he ſuffereth oft his enemies to go to the utmoſt of their tedder, and then puls them back with ſhame to their task. He delights to make fools of them. He lets them have the ball on their foot till they come to the very goal, and yet makes them miſs the game.

Verſe 17. And ſaid] i. e. Prayed, verſ. 18. The poor man ſpeaks ſupplications, Prov. 18. 23. puts his mouth in the duſt ſpeaks as out of the ground in a low language, in a ſubmiſs manner, when a Suitour eſpecially: for in that caſe, the anſwer commonly cuts off half the petition as the Eccho doth the voice.

Verſe 18. Paul the priſoner] But therein happier then any Potentate (Pſal. 89. 27.) with all his chains of gold. Τιμιώτερα δεσμὰ μαργαρείτου, ſaid Ignatius: my chain is my honour, my links pearls. One hour changed Joſephs fetters into gold-chains, his ſtocks into a Charriot, his gaol into a Palace, Potiphars captive to his Maſters Lord, the noiſe of his gyves into Abrech. So and much more then ſo ſhall it be with all Chriſts priſoners at his coming: beſides their priſon-comforts in the mean-while; thoſe divine conſolati-ons that Philip Lantgrave of Hesse, prisoner to Charls the fifth, for defence of the truth, said, that he sensibly felt in the time of his sad captivity. This made Chrysostom say that he had rather be Paul the prisoner of Iesus Christ, then Paul rapt up into the third heaven.

Digitized by Google

Divinas Martyrum consolationes sic sensisse dixit. Homil. in Epist. 3. 1.

Verse 19. Took him by the hand] Courtesie and affability in high degree is very attractive: it easily allureth mens minds, as do fair flowers in the spring the passengers eys.

Verse 20. As though they would] See vers. 15.

Verse 21. Which have bound themselves] Gr. Wished themselves dead, or given up to the devil, except they brought their purpose to pass: and likely enough they had their wish, for they missed of their purpose. Cursing men are cursed men. See vers. 17.

ἀνεθεματίσαν

Verse 22. See thou tell no man] Taciturnity is reckoned among the vertues. Detexit facinus fatuus, & non implevit, saith Tacitus (that best Historian) of a fool that could not keep his own counsel, and so marred the design.

Verse 23. At the third hour of the night] A well chosen season is the greatest advantage of any action; which, as it is seldom found in haste, so it is often lost in delay.

Verse 24. That they may bring him safe] The vulgar Latine adds, For he feared lest the Jews would take him away by violence and kill him, and so he should suffer blame, as if he had been hired to permit it. But this the Greek hath not.

Verse 25. And he wrote a letter] Gr. An Epistle, cujus ornamentum est ornamentis carere, saith Politian.

Verse 26. Unto the most excellent] Felix was (as likewise Haman) of base birth, but highly advanced in Court by means of his brother Pallas, a great favourite of Nero's, in so much as he became husband to three Queens successively, as Suetonius writeth. He cruelly killed Jonathan the Jewish Priest, and committed many other outrages in this province; so that being complained of at Rome, he had been put to death, but for the greatness of his brother, who begged his pardon.

Iosephus.

Verse 27. Understood that he was a Roman] He saith nothing of binding him to have been scourged against the law. Nature needs not be taught to tell her own tale. Every man strives to make his own penny as good silver as he can.

Verse 28. I brought him forth into their Council] As being himself ignorant of their religion; and haply having as evil an opinion of it, as Cicero had, who disdained at the Jews for their slighting the Roman superstition, and censured their religion as false, because they and their religion were in subjection to the Romans.

Gens illiqua cara Diis immortalibus esse docuit, quod est victa quod elocata, quod servata. Cic. pro L. Flacco.

Verse 29. Questions of their Law] Which these profane Heathens held to be meer nifles and niceties, quæ nec ignoranti nocent, nec scientem juvant, as Seneca saith. See Act. 18 15. with the Note there.

Verse 30. And gave commandment to his accusers] For no man is bound to accuse himself: and, De secretis non judicat lex. In the Courts of men tis safest to plead Non feci, saith Quintilian (though in Gods Court its otherwise.)

Verse 31. To Antipatris] So called by Herod (who had repaired it) in honour of his father Antipater. Christ, the everlasting father, Isa. 9. 6. hath his name far better propagated and perpetuated by his sons and daughters, Psal. 72. 17. his name shall endure for ever (filiabitur nomine ejus) by a continual succession of spiritual children (so the Hebrew word signifieth) who shall build his house, and keep up his name, much better then Rachel and Leah did the house of Israel.

Ruth. 4. 11.

Verse 32. And returned to the Castle] Whereof See chap. 21. 34.

Verse 33. Presented Paul also before him] And so was fulfilled in him that of our Saviour, Mat. 10. 18. See the Note there. Neither was he more afraid of Felix, then Moses and Micaiah were to stand before Pharaoh and Ahab, when once they had seen God in his majesty. Animo magno nihil magnum.

Sen.

Verse 34. Of what Province he was] So the Romans called the Countries by them subdued: looking upon themselvs as Lords of the World, Luke 2. 1. See the Note.

ἀκούσομαί σου διακούσομαι, Vid. Alex. ad h. l. Ulpian. in Dem. de fals. leg.

Verse 35. I will hear thee] Pergam te audire, & auditionem absolvam (so Beza rendereth the Greek) I will hear thee out, when thine accusers are come. In the mean while I will keep τὰς ἀκοὰς καθαρὰς, mine ear free. I will not be prepossessed; nor hear one tale, till I may hear both. This was well done of Felix, and Judge like; qui

Si statuat aliquid, parte inaudita altera,
Æquum licet, statuerit, haud æquus fuerit.

At Rome, the accuser had six hours allotted him to accuse: the guilty or defendant had nine hours to make his answer. This, Felix knew full well.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

Chap. XXIV.

Verſe 1. With a certain Oratour]

ONe of thoſe ſordida poſcinummia (as Plautus phraſeth it) thoſe leguleiorum faces decem-drachmarie, as another ſtileth theſe mercenary Oratours, qui linguas habent venales. It is reported of Neveſſan (a better Lawyer then an honeſt man) that he ſhould ſay, He that will not venture his body, ſhall never be valiant: he that will not venture his ſoul, never rich.

Verſe 2. Tertullus began to accuſe him] Proſperior Afro Oratori eloquentia quam morum fama, ſaith Tacitus. Ciceronis linguam omnes fere mirantur, pectus non ita, ſaith Auguſtine. The Duke of Buckingham ſpeaking to the Londoners for Richard the Third, gained the commendation, that no man could deliver ſo much bad matter in ſo good words and quaint phraſes. Such another was Tertullus, wittily wicked, & malo publico facundus, eloquent for miſchief to other men. There is a ſtory of a poor man who complained to his King, that a man (naming a Lawyer) had taken away his Cow from him. I will hear, ſaid the King, what he will ſay to the matter. Nay, ſaith the poor man, if you hear him ſpeak, then have I ſurely loſt my Cow indeed.

Tacit. Annal. confeſſ. lib. 4. cap. 3. Tyuſſels continuation of Daniels Hiſt. 223.

Verſe 3. We accept it alwayes.] So they ſay, the ſooner to ingratiate: when in truth they worthily hated Felix for his oppreſſion and cruelty. Nota hypocriſin cum aſſentatione, ſaith Beza. In his eſtate ſhall ſtand up a vile perſon, Dan. 11. 21. that is Antiochus Epiphanes. And yet Joſephus reports that the Samaritans writing to him, becauſe he tormented the Jews, to excuſe themſelves that they were no Jews, ſtiled him, by flattery, Antiochus the mighty God. Romani, propter omnia quæ à Nerone fiebant etiam ſcelera, quaſi gratias agentes ſacra faciebant: Such was their baſeneſs, & ſuch were theſe Jews.

Verſe 4. That I be not farther tedious unto thee] Gr. That I hinder thee not in thine haſte to other buſineſſes: that I put not a ſtop to thy Praiſe-worthy proceedings, by a troubleſome prolixity, &c. Thus he cunningly inſinuateth into the Judges affections: which is one of the Rhetorical precepts: and another is (Tertullus likely had learned it out of Tully) Non ad veritatem ſolum, ſed etiam ad opinionem eorum qui audiunt, accomodanda eſt oratio. An Orator may make a little bold with the truth to give his hearers content. Socrates in his Apologie, My Lords (ſaid he to his Judges) I know not how you have been affected with mine accuſers eloquence while you heard them ſpeak: for mine own part, I aſſure you that I, whom it toucheth moſt, was almoſt drawn to believe that all they ſaid, though againſt my ſelf, was true: when they ſcarcely uttered one word of truth.

ἵνα μὴ ἐπὶ πλεῖον σε ἐγκόπτω.

Cic. Partit.

Verſe 5. A peſtilent fellow] Gr. A botch, ſicut Scelus pro ſcelerato: Tubulus quidam, paulo ſupra Ciceronem, Prætor fuit, homo tam Projectæ improbus, ut ejus nomen non hominis ſed vitii eſſe videretur. Now if ſo precious a man as Paul (then whom ſaith Chryſoſtome the earth never bare a better, ſince it bore Chriſt) were counted and called a Peſt, let not us think much to be ſo eſteemed.

λοιμὸν. Lipſ. Antiq. Lect.

And a mover of Sedition] So Elias was held, and called the Troubler of Iſrael; Luther Tuba rebellionis. So it was laid to one Singleton, ſometimes Chaplain to the Lady Ann Bullen, that he was the murtherer of Packington, and afterwards that he was a ſtirrer up of ſedition and commotion, who alſo ſuffered as a Traitor for the ſame: where in very deed the true cauſe was nothing elſe but for preaching the Goſpel, ſaith Maſter Fox. And he might as ſafely ſay as Mr. Latimer did in his third Sermon before K. Edw. 6. As for ſedition, for ought that I know, methinks I ſhould not need Chriſt, if I might ſo ſay.

Act. & Mon. 1145.

Of the Sect of the Nazarites] Who ſtirred up the people to ſtand up for their Liberty againſt the Romans, ſaith an Interpreter.

Verſe 6. To profane the Temple] A loud lye: but innocency is no target againſt calumny.

Verſe 7. Took him out of our hands] Wherein he did well, though he hear ill; as publike perſons muſt look to doe.

Verſe 8. By examining of whom] By this out-facing boldneſs, and theſe ſpecious pretences, they hoped to have ſwayed the Governeour to deliver up the priſoner to their pleaſure without any more ado, and to have condemned him unheard. But God had otherwiſe ordered it.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 9. and the Jews aſſented] With what face could they do it, but that their faces were hatcht with impudence; and they had taken an order with their conſciences not to trouble them? Trouble me not, for I am in bed, as he in the Goſpel ſaid to his neigbour.

Verſe 10 For as much as I know, &c.] Paul was a ſtately Oratour when he liſted, as here. Porphyry ſaid it was pitty that ſuch a man as Paul ſhould be beſtowed upon our Religion. How bravely doth he here unſtarch the Oratours ſpeech, and make his own defence!

Verſe 11. There are yet but twelve dayes] And therefore in ſo ſhort a time I could ſurely do no ſuch great matters as they charge me with.

Verſe 12. And they neither found me in the Temple.] As he had argued from the circumſtance of time, verſe 11. (to diſprove their empty allegations) ſo here of place. It fared with the Apoſtle, as the Hiſtorian ſaith it did with Cuthbert Tunſtal, B. of Durrham, who was ſent to the Tower for concealment of (I know not what) Treaſon written to him (I know not by whom) and not diſcovered until (what ſhall I call) the party did reveal it. Falſe accuſers, as they affirm without reaſon, ſo they may be diſmiſſed without refutation; unleſs we will anſwer them with a down-right denial, as here. It fals out often, that plain dealing puts craft out of countenance.

Sr. Ioh. Heyw. Life of Edw. 6. pag 137.

Verſe 13. Neither can they prove the things] And if to be barely accuſed, be ſufficient to make a man guilty, no man ſhall be innocent. It is happy if we can write (as ſhe the Lady Elizabeth did in Woodſtock Windows)

Much alledg'd againſt me:
Nothing proved can be.

Act. & Mon.

Tul. Paradox. Verſe 14. Which they call hereſie] Hæreſis eſt vox Eccleſiæ peculiaris. Antiquitùs enim dicebatur, In hac hæreſi ſum, id eſt in hac ſum ſententia vel ſic ſentio. Eccleſiaſtical Writers take it for an Error in Religion, for an opinion repugnant to the word of God. There muſt be in it, Error in ratione, & pertinatia in voluntate. Fevardentius, that fiery Frier fains 1400. Errors and Hereſies, all which he fathers and faſtens on the Calviniſts. Genebrard imputes to Calvin as an Error, that he taught Chriſt to be αὐτόθεον, God of himſelf. It is not ſo long ſince, whoſoever amongſt us was not an Arminian, was eo nomine a doctrinal Puritan, as he was then termed; and now, he that was the old Engliſh Puritan, cryed out upon as the worſt of men, and greateſt Heteroclite.

Theomachia Calviniſt.

—pudet hæc opprobria nobis & dici potuiſſe & non potuiſſe reſelli.

Verſe 15. And have hope toward God, which themſelves alſo allow] The Jews generally believed no Article of the Faith more then this, Joh. 12. 24. Act 23. 8. The primitive times yielded ſome that denyed it, 1 Cor 15. ſo do theſe unhappy times of ours: we muſt all look to our ſtanding, and get our hearts ballaſted with grace, (as the Bee, when ſhe is to flie againſt the wind, ballaſteth her body with ſome little ſtone carried betwixt her feet) that we be not whirled about with every wind of doctrine. A man is to expect, if he live out his dayes, to be urged to the breach of every branch of the Decalogue, and to be put to it in reſpect of every Article of the Creed. Provide for a ſtorm: ſhipmen in a calm, or at a haven, look to their tacklings: ſee the ſhip be well ballaſted, victualled, watered, &c.

ἐν τούτῳ, i. e. σχοίνῳ. anno.

Verſe 16. And herein] Or, Mean while, Or, for this cauſe do I exerciſe my ſelf: Or, I uſe diligence, skill and conſcience; I lay my policy, or bend my wit, I diſcipline and inure my ſelf.

Prov. 18. 16. Verſe 17. To bring alms to my nation] And therefore ſhould have been better welcome; a preſent makes roomth for a man. But it is God alone that faſhioneth mens opinions, and affections: and therefore Rom. 15. St. Paul prayeth that this ſervice of his might be accepted of the Saints themſelves. The Jews at this day ſend their alms yearly from all parts to Jeruſalem for the maintenance of the praying Poor that live there.

Verſe 18. Puriſied in the Temple] Therefore ſurely not profaning of it: unleſs they will ſay of me as Diogenes did of Antipater (who being vitious, wore a white cloke, the Enſign of innocency) that he did virtutis ſtragulam pudefacere, put honeſty to an open ſhame: Or unleſs they will concur in opinion with their utter enemy Florus, who calleth the Temple at Jeruſalem impia gentis arcanum, libidinum ſacrarium, &c.

Virgil. Verſe 19. Who ought to have been here before thee] For thoſe that are here to accuſe me, ſpeak but by hearſay, which is tam ficti pravique tenax quàm nuntia veri, a loud lyer, for moſt part.

Digitized by Google

Verse 20. Or else let these same here say] This is the best defence, that is thus fetcht from the accusers themselves who are apt to make the worst of every thing, and to aggravate faults beyond truth. This is no small prejudice to Luthers adversaries, said Erasmus, that they cannot but say he lives honestly. And the like is recorded of Bucer, Bradford, others: the Papists could not find fault with their lives, onely they taxed them for heresie: but so they could not Paul, unless they would conclude themselves also Hereticks, Verse 21.

Verse 21. Except it be, &c.] And if this be a fault in true account, why are not all the whole nation of the Pharisees faulted, that hold the same thing? Is that Nevus in me, that is Venus in them? Or is that a vice in Caius, that is a vertue in Titus? Are they not apparently partial in themselves, and become Judges of evil thoughts? If Dioscorus the Heretick could cry out in the council of Chalcedon, I am cast out with the Fathers, I defend the doctrine of the Fathers, I transgress them not in any part: may not I more truly lay the like claim to the Pharisees, those Fathers of our nation? Iam 2. 4.

Verse 22. He deferred them, and said] Truly and timely spake the Orator, De vita hominis nulla satis diuturna cunctatio esse possit, (See Deut. 17. 3.) In a case of life and death there cannot be too much caution and cunctation.

Verse 23. And to let him have liberty] This shews that Felix himself found that it was malice, more then matter, that moved the Jews to prosecute. And the same perhaps is hinted in the former verse, having more perfect knowledge of that way; that is, as some sense it, being well acquainted with their courses, and knowing it to be their common practise to accuse innocent men of meer spite. But why then did not Felix punish those malicious men, and let Paul go? why is he still a prisoner, though a free-prisoner, under a keeper, or with some chain on him? Oh it is a mercy to have Judges modò velint quæ possint, modò audeant quæ sentiant, so they be willing to do what they may, and dare do what they judge fit to be done. Cic pro Milone.

Verse 24. With his wife Drusilla] The sister of King Agrippa, and wife of Abidus King of Emesenes, whom she had basely forsaken, and came and joyned her self to this Felix; worthy therefore to have been hanged, as Joane Queen of Naples was at a window for like treachery by Lewis King of Hungary. Ioseph. Antiq. 20. Heyl. Geog. 167.

Verse 25. Of righteousness, temperance, &c.] Whereas Felix did many things there tyrannously, and had greater regard to Gain then to Justice: And whereas Drusilla, a Jewess, was not only married to an uncircumcised man, but also a filthy adultéress: Paul in a certain kind of grave wisdom, which yet had joyned with it great liberty of speech, reasoneth and disputeth of things that he knew principally wanting in his hearers.

Felix trembled] See the force of Conscience, which like Sampsons wife conceals not the Riddle: like Fulvia a curtesan, who declared all the secrets of her foolish lover Cneius a Noble Roman, bewrayes and betraies those that harbour her. She is a watch and will at length give warning. Iudg 16. Salust. bell Catilinar.

Go thy way for this time, &c.] The President of St. Julians being sent to Angrogne would have forced a poor man to rebaptize his Child. He, after he had prayed, required of the President that he would write and sign the same with his own hand, that he would discharge him before God of the danger of that offence, and that he would take the peril upon him and his. The President hereat was so confounded, that he spake not one word a good while after. Then said he, Away thou villain out of my sight. After that, he was never called more. Act. & Mon. 871.

Verse 26. He hoped also, &c.] Fuit Felix inexplebilis gurges, as Tacitus testifieth. He trembled, and yet gaped after money. A man may as soon find an harvest in an hedge, as the least goodness in a covetous heart. Privatorum fures in nervo & compedibus ætatem agunt: publica in auro & purpura visuntur. Publike thieves are gallant fellows. And covetousness is a drydrunkenness. Justice is oft made an hackney by them to be backed for money: and a Golden spur brings her to the desired journies end of injury and wrong. Whereas a Judge, as he should have nothing to lose, so he should have nothing to get: he should be above all price or sale: and justice justice, as Moses speaketh, that is, pure justice without mud should run down amain. Catoapud Gell. lib. 12. cap. 18. Deut 16. 16.

Verse 27. Willing to shew the Jews &c.] Polititians care not to gratifie others and serve their own turnes, with the loss of right and good conscience. In the reign of Hen- ry the second of France, Anno 1554. many were there burnt for Religion, not without the indignation of honest men, who knew that the diligence used against those poor people was not for piety or religion, but to satiate the covetousnes of Diana Valentina, the Kings Mistres, to whom he had given all the confiscation of goods made in the Kingdom for cause of Heresie.

Digitized by Google

Hist. of Coun. of Trent 387.

Chap. XXV.

Verse 1. Now when Festus]

Who succeeded Felix in the government, as after Festus came Albinus, and after him Florus, under whom Jerusalem was sacked and ruined. That heavy curse was executed upon this wretched people, *Lev.*26,17. If ye still trespass against me, I will set Princes over you that shall hate you, mischievous odious princes; odious to God, oppressive to the people. After the revolt of the ten Tribes, they had not one good King. And a Popish writer complaines, that for many successions the Sea of Rome non merita est regi nisi à reprobis, had deserved to be ruled by none but reprobates. When Phocas had slain Mauricius, there was an honest poor man (saith Cedrenus) who was wonderful importunate at the throne of Grace, to know a reason why that wicked man prospered so in his design? he was answered again by a voice, that there could not be a worse man found, and that the sins of Christians did require it.

Verse 2. Informed him against Paul] They gave him private intelligence (so the word signifies, saith Erasmus) they buzzed false reports into his ears: An old practice of persecutors. Truth seldome goes without a scracht face. The Arminians endevoured to perswade the States of Holland, that the Orthodox Pastors sought to diminish the authority of the civil Magistrates, and to affect and arrogate to themselves a power collateral or equal to their power.

ἐνεφάνισαν. proprè signi. tacitè & clam indicare. Eras. Act. Synod. Dordrecht praefatione.

Verse 3. Desired favour] Or, a good turn: Such was their impudency.

χάριν.

Verse 4. That Paul should be kept &c.] How easily can God defeat the most cunning contrivances of his Churches enemies! He sees and smiles he looks and laughs. Commit we therefore our selves to him in well-doing, as unto a faithful Creator. 1. Pet. 4.19.

Verse 5. That are able] Or well appointed, well provided of moneys and other necessaries for such an enterprise. He that prosecutes another, need be well underlaid.

Verse 6. Commanded Paul to be brought] This is now the third time: and what if it had been the Thirtieth? Cato (the very best of the Romans) as he was two and Thirty times accused, so he was two and Thirty times cleared and absolved.

Verse 7. Laid many and grievous complaints against Paul] Whereby to take away his precious life: which because they could not, they had little comfort of their own. Some of their own Talmudists have observed, that the Devil was as much wounded with that restraint that he should not take away Jobs life, as Job was with all those wounds that the Devil inflicted on his body.

Verse 8. Neither against the Law of the Jews] Quàm multa quàm paucis! said Tully of Brutus his Laconical Epistle: and the same may I say of this defence; How much in a Little? See the note on Act. 24. 12.

Verse 9. Wilt thou go up to Hierusalem] Irreligious persons that are not acted by the spirit of God, we see how flexible and inclineable they are to corrupt councels and courses. Before, he would not yield to the Jews motion: now he would. A double-minded man is unstable in all his wayes, ἀκατάστατος. Iam. 1.6.

Et tantum constans in levitate sua.

But should not the cheif Posts in a building be heart of Oak? should not the standard be made of mettle of proof? Fabricius is famous for his well knit resolution; sooner might a man turn the Sun out of his course, then draw him to do any thing that was not just and equal. As on the other side, those Athenian Judges shall be infamous to all posterity, who when they had determined to condemne Phryne (that stinking strumpet) were yet drawn to acquit her, after that they beheld her beautiful tiful bosom which Hyperides (her Advocate) had purposely laid open (pulling her clothes aside) to move them to shew her mercy. Plut. in Hyper. vid.

Digitized by Google

Verse 10. I stand at Cæsars judgement-seat] We may safely make our just defence when falsely accused, and take the benefit of the Law. Ambrose would be judged at Millain, where he was known; and Athanasius refused to be censured by corrupt Councils.

Verse 11. I appeal to Cæsar] Who though a Lion, 2 Tim. 4. 17. Yet I hope to be tutus sub umbra leonis, against a manifest violence of a corrupt Judge, notoriously forestalled and preoccupated.

Iudex, locusta civitatis est, malus. Scaliger in Act.

Verse 12. Hast thou appealed, &c.] Elegans loquendi forma, saith Piscator: such as are those 1 Cor. 7. 18. 21. 27. Rom. 13. 3. A cutted kind of speech, say others, savouring of discontent.

Verse 13. King Agrippa and Bernice] Son and daughter to that Herod mentioned Act. 12. They were known, saith Iosephus, to live in detestable incest. It pleased God that his faithful servant Paul should plead for his life before these two filthy beasts: which he did freely and modestly.

Verse 14. A certain man left in bonds] Wherein he glorieth more then others in their gold-chains, Ephes. 3. 1. Phil. 1. Non ita beatum Paulum puto (saith Chrysostom) quod in cœlum raptus, quam quod in carcerem conjectus. I hold not Paul so happy in his rapture, as in his captivity. Chrysost. in Eph. 3. 1.

Verse 15. To have judgement against him] Damnationem, saith Beza. This was the favour they craved of Festus, vers. 3. So a writ came down whiles the Lady Elizabeth was in the Tower, subscribed with certain hands of the Council for her execution. Stephen Gardner being the chief Engineer; but God prevented them. The Lord Paget in a certain consultation said that King Philip should never have any quiet Commonwealth in England, unless Lady Elizabeths head were stricken from her shoulders; The Spaniards thereto answered, God forbid that their King and Master should have such a mind to consent to such a mischief. Act. & Mon. fol. 1899. Ibid.

Verse 16. Have the accusers face to face] Here was no Oath ex Officio to force a man to accuse himself. Among the Romans the Accusers sat in those seats that were at the left hand of the Judge; The Accused and his Advocate at the right hand. The Accuser had three hours allotted him, the Defendant six. And if he were cast, yet was he not given up to his Adversaries to be punished at their pleasure (as these Jews would have had it) but as the Judge appointed it.

Verse 17. Without delay] This was well; Judges should dismiss timely those whom they cannot presently dispatch, as Jethro adviseth, Exod. 18. It is recorded of Sir Thomas Moor, to his eternal commendation, that when he was Lord Chancellour, and sat in the Court of Chancery, he called for the next cause, and there was none remaining. But what meaneth Festus here to crack so much of his diligence in doing Justice?

Cur ego, si nequeo, ignoroq;, Poeta salutor. Horat.

What is the honour of this world, or the applause of men (though well deserved) but a puff of stinking breath? and what advantageth it a man, to have the worlds Euge, and Gods Apage?

Verse 18. Of such things as I supposed] They accused Paul of sedition; but because they failed in the proof, he makes it nothing. This is said by the Historian to be the commune crimen eorum qui crimine vacabant, the innocent mans crime. Tacit.

Verse 19. But had certain questions] See how basely this prophane fellow speaketh of Gods true service. These Cocks on the dunghill know not the price of that pearl, and do therefore avile it. They took occasion also from the contentions of the Churches Doctors, to condemn their Doctrine. It was therefore a devillish device of Julian the Apostate, to call home those Heterodox and Heretical Bishops that had been banished by Constantine, that they might embroyl and darken the Church by their mutual discords amongst themselves, and so bring the Christian Religion into disgrace.

Verse 20. And because] He tells not Agrippa, that to gratifie the Iews (who in all likelihood had bribed him) he asked, whether he would go up to Ierusalem; but pretends another matter. Nature need not be taught to tell her own tale, or to make the best of her own case, bad though it be: And this is incident to the very best, as to do what we can to hide our bodily deformities, ſo our moral defects and frailties. What doſt thou here Elias? ſaith God. I have been very zealous for the Lord of hoaſts, ſaith he; he had rather ſay ſo, then I was fearful of Jezabel, and here I hide me from her malicious purſuit. But were it not better to ſpeak out, and to acknowledge all with aggravation of circumſtances? ſith ſuch only find mercy, as in confeſſion ſhew the Lord the iniquity of their ſin, the filthineſs of their lewdneſs, the abomination of their provocations.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 21. Send him to Ceſar] That is, to Nero. But for memory of their two firſt Emperours, Cæſar and Auguſtus, all their ſucceſſours bore theſe two names. Many other ſwelling titles they had: but all or moſt of them, till Conſtantine, dyed unnatural deaths, and got nothing by their adoption or deſignation, niſi ut citiùs interficerentur, but to be ſent out of the world the ſooner.

Verſe 22. I would alſo hear the man] More for his mind ſake, and to ſee what he would ſay for himſelf, then out of any deſire to learn of him. So Herod deſired to ſee Chriſt, as a man would ſee ſome Iugler act his feats, and make him ſport.

μετὰ πολλῆς φαντασίας. Verſe 23. With great Pomp] Gr. with great phantaſie, or vain ſhew: For no better is all worldly pomp and ſtate. Of Cardinal Wolſyes twenty great Mules paſſing through London, laden with roſted eggs, and rotten ſhoes, and other like treaſure, as was diſcovered by the fall of one Mule that caſt his burden, read Acts and Monuments fol. 899. My Lord Cardinal, ſaid Bayfield the Martyr is no good man: for Chriſt never taught him to follow riches, promotions, wordly pomp as he doth; to wear ſhoes of ſilver and gilt, ſet with pearls and pretious ſtones. Chriſt had never two croſſes of ſilver, two axes, nor pillar of ſilver and gilt, &c. Ibid. 1531.

Verſe 24. That he ought not to live any longer] All malice is bloody, and is therefore called murther: becauſe it wiſheth him out of the world whom it maligneth. See the Note on verſ. 7.

Verſe 25. Nothing worthy of death] What an honour and comfort was this to the Apoſtle? Lyſias acquits him, ſo doth Felix, and now Feſtus; neither doth Agrippa diſſent. See the Note on verſ. 6.

Deducitur à κύριος & authoritas. Verſe 26. To write unto my Lord] Κύριος ſignifieth one that hath rule or dominion, being a word of relation. This title was firſt affected by tyrants: but afterwards the good Princes ſuffered it to be given unto them, as appeareth by Plinies epiſtle to Trajan. The Emperours diſclaimed only the name of King, to avoid the hatred of the people, and yet ſought the full right of Kings, and to deſtroy the liberty of the people. But God calls them Kings, 1 Pet. 2. 13. 17. God hateth hypocriſie in whomſoever: and will unmask even Kings, if they diſſemble.

Ver. 27. For it ſeems to me unreaſonable] And ſhould not Gods people be as careful to perform unto him a reaſonable ſervice, Rom. 12. 1. ſuch as whereof they can render a ſound and intelligible reaſon out of the word of God? Should they not prove what that good, and holy, and acceptable will of God is, verſ. 21. by taking warrant from his word, and doing all to his glory? Is not this to do the works of God, Joh. 6. 28. and to do them in God, Ioh. 3. 22. and for God, according to that, Quicquid agas propter Deum καλὸν καλῶς. agas? And is not the contrary will-worſhip? Col. 2. 22. ſpiritual fornication, Pſal. 106. 39. idol-worſhip, Num. 15. 39. devil-worſhip, 1 Cor. 10. 20. with Acts 17. 23. Apoc. 9. 20?

Chap. XXVI.

Verſe 1. And anſwered for himſelf]

THis the Apoſtle doth moſt artificially and effectually. Raptare eum judices credas, (as one ſaith concerning Cicero) involvere, præcipitem agere, nec incendere auditorem, ſed ipſum putes ardere: animorum denique quendam credas Deum.

Verſe 2. I think my ſelf happy] Eſt quædam putativa felicitas (ſaith an Interpreter here) ſi concedatur nobis cauſam noſtram apertè agere. Beatitudo autem vera in peccatorum remiſſione, &c. Pſal. 32. 1, 2. It is a kind of happineſs to have fair hearing afore men: but the true happineſs is to find favour with God.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verse 3. To be expert in all customs and questions] As being a Jew, and conversant among the Jews (for he was Herods son) and therefore a more competent Iudge.

Verse 4. My manner of life from my youth] And although with some, Principium fervet, medium tepet, exitus alget, their best is at first, as Nero (who now raigned at Rome) for his first five years was very hopeful; yet that is not ordinary. A good beginning hath for most part a good ending: and a yong Saint proves an old Angel.

Verse 5. After the most straighteſt ſect] There were three several sects among the Iews, Pharisees, Sadduces and Essenes; which last lived a monastick kind of life, and besides the Bible, studyed physick: whence also they had their name of Asa, to heal. The Pharisees were most in request, professing extraordinary strictness, as those districtissimi Monachi, those puritan-Monks among the Papists (as one calleth them) that carried wooden crosses at their backs continually, and pretended for it, Mat. 10.38.

Verse 6. For the hope of the promiſe] The goodness of his cause made much for his comfort. It is one thing to suffer as a Martyr, and another thing to suffer as a Malefactor. Ibi erat Christus, ubi latrones: ſimilis pœna, diſſimilis cauſa. Christ and the thieves were in the like condemnation, but their cause was not alike. Sampſon dyed with the Philistins, by the fall of the same house: ſimili quidem pœna, ſed diſſimili culpa, & diverſo fine ac fato, but for another end, and by a different destiny. Together with the Lord Cromwel, was beheaded the Lord Hungerford: neither so Christianly suffering, nor so couragiously dying for his offence committed against nature. Blessed are they that suffer for righteousnesse sake, Mat. 5. 12. And, for thy sake are we slain all the day long, Psal. 44 22. And, O beata Apocalypſis, quàm benè mecum agitur qui comburar tecum? said a certain Martyr when he saw the Revelation cast into the fire with him. So might Saint Paul say by that hope of the promise made of God unto the Fathers, for the which he now stood and was judged. Augustin. Bucholc. Speed 779. Fox.

Verse 7. Inſtantly ſerving God] And yet finding enough to do, when they have done their utmost, to get to heaven. The time is short, the task long; Caſtigemus ergò mores & moras.

Præcipita tempus, mors atra impendet agenti. Silius.

Verse 8. Why ſhould it be thought a thing incredible?] Philosophy indeed is against it. A privatione ad habitum, &c. Et redit in nihilum, quod fuit ante nihil, as the Epicure in Eccleſiaſtes concludeth. But first, many Heathens believed a Resurrection; as Zoroaſter, Theopompus, and Plato. And the Stoicks opinion was, that the world should be dissolved by fire or water; and all things brought to a better state, or to the first golden age again. Secondly, no Article of the Faith was more generally believed among the Iews then this, Job. 12.24. Act. 23.8. Hence they called their burying places Domus viventium, the houses of the living; the Greeks called them dormitories, or sleeping houses; as holding that their dead should once awake again, and be filled with Gods image, Psal. 17. ult. The Germans call the Churchyard Gods acre; because the bodies are sown there to be raised again. What if those prophane Popes (sons of perdition) Leo the tenth, and Julius the second jeer at the Resurrection, as if any thing were impossible with God? cannot he that made man at first of nothing, make him up again of that substance of the body that is preserved after death, though never so dispersed? God knows where every part and parcel of it is, and can easily bring it together again. In the transfiguration, that body of Moses which was hid in the valley of Moab, appeared glorious in the hill of Tabor; that we may know that these bodies of ours are not lost, but laid up; and shall as sure be raised in glory, as they are laid down in corruption. Do we not see a resurrection of the creatures every spring? and the corn we sow, doth it not first rot, and then revive? See we not men of ashes to make glass? and cannot a skilful gardiner discern his several seeds when mixed together, and gather every one of them to their own kind? Have we not observed how those little balls of quicksilver dispersed, will not mix with any of another kind; but if any man gather them, they run together of their own accord into one mass? why then should it be thought a thing incredible with any, that God should raise the dead? Conſentaneum eſt Phœnicem, saith One, &c. It is probable enough, that that Phœnix that was found in the raign of Nero (and perhaps at this very time when Saint Paul was thus pleading for the resurrection) might signifie the resurrection of Christ, and of all Believers by him; according to that of the Prophets, Thy dead men ſhall live, together with my dead body ſhall they ariſe; awake and ſing, ye Sen. Nat. quæſt. lib. 3. c. 26, 27. בית חיים κοιμητήρια. Nyssen.

Digitized by Google

that dwell in the duſt; for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth ſhall caſt out the dead. Iſa. 26. 19.

Verſe 9. Contrary to the name, &c.] Tertullian teſtifieth, that in the Primitive Chriſtians, nomen damnabatur, non crimen aut ſcelus: ſolum nomen innocuum, hominibus innocuis eſſe pro crimine, &c. And Tacitus to the ſame purpoſe, that when Nero had ſet the City on fire for his pleaſure, and then fathered it upon the Chriſtians; a great company of them were preſently ſlaughtered, haud perinde in crimine incendii, quàm Odio humani generis, convicti: Not for any fault, whereof they could be convicted, but out of a general hatred of their perſons and religion.

Tertul. in Apolog.

Tacit.

Verſe 10. I gave my voice] So did Gerſon to the condemnation of John Huſs and Jerome of Prague at the Council of Conſtance, againſt his conſcience doubtleſs: So did the Lord Cromwel to the condemnation of Lambert the Martyr: for the which he afterwards cryed him mercy. And ſo did Sir John Cheek in Queen Maries days, out of a baſe fear of the Biſhops: he was, ſaith Mr. Fox, through the crafty handling of the Catholicks, allured firſt to dine and company with them. At length drawn unawares to ſit in place where the poor Martyrs were brought before Bonner and other Biſhops, to be condemned; and ſo to give his voice, or ſeem to do ſo by his preſence there: The remorſe whereof ſo mightily wrought in his heart, that not long after he left this mortal life: whoſe fall, though it was full of infirmity, yet his riſing again by repentance was great, and his end comfortable.

Joh. Maul. loc.com.pag. 125. Mr. Clarks Lives Act. & Mon. Ibid. 1774.

Verſe 11. Compelled them to blaſpheme] So the ancient perſecutors compelled many not only to renounce their Religion, but to curſe Chriſt. When the Emperor Heraclius ſent Embaſſadors to Choſroes King of Perſia to deſire Peace of him, he received this threatning anſwer; I will not ſpare you, till I have made you curſe your crucified God, and adore the Sun. He was afterwards (like another Senacherib) depoſed and murthered by his ſon Stroes.

Plin. Epiſt. ad Trajan. Diac. Cedren.

And being exceedingly mad, I perſecuted] He was not then ſo mad in perſecuting, but when God turned the ſtream, he was judged by ſome as mad in preaching, and preſſing toward the high price which he perſecuted (that's his word, Phil. 3. 14.) with as much eagerneſs, as ever he had done Gods poor Saints and Servants.

2 Cor. 5. 13. Διώκω.

Verſe 12, 13. See Act. 9. 2. with the Notes.

Verſe 14. I heard a voice] I not only ſaw a ſign: ſo in the transfiguration, a voice came forth to them from the Excellent Glory. Signo verbum eſt conjungendum. God in the Sacraments, for the furtherance of our Faith, affects both our learned Senſes, as Ariſtotle calleth our ſight and hearing: giving us his word both audible and viſible.

Verſe 15. See Act. 9. 5.

Verſe 16. But riſe and ſtand upon thy feet] Thus,

Dejicit ut relevet; premit ut ſolatia præſtet:
Enecat, ut poſſit vivificare, Deus.

Verſe 17. Delivering thee from] For though thou art ſent to them for their greateſt good, viz. To open their eyes, &c. verſe 18. yet they ſhall flie at thine eyes, as frantick people flie in the faces of their Phyſicians: they ſhall flie againſt the light that thou ſhalt ſet up amongſt them, as Bats do, becauſe their works are evil; they ſhall kick and winch, as horſe and mule at thoſe that come to cure them. But I will deliver thee, fear not.

Pſal 32. 9.

Verſe 18. To open their eyes &c.] An excellent deſcription of St. Pauls Commiſſion to preach, by the five ends or effects of it, viz. Converſion, Faith, Remiſſion of ſins, Sanctification, Salvation.

Verſe 19. I was not diſobedient] As I ſhould have been, if I had taken fleſh and blood into counſel, Gal. 1. 16. (See the Note there) but ſilencing my reaſon, I exalted my Faith; and putting my ſelf into Gods hands, ſaid, Te duce, vera ſequor: te duce, falſa nego.

Verſe 20. Works meet for repentance] Gr. Worthy of Repentance, that weigh juſt as much as Repentance doth. The Syriack hath it, Works equal and even with Repentance. See my Note on Mat. 3. 8.

Verſe 21.

Digitized by Google

Verse 21. Went about to kill me] Gr. To tear me in pieces, or pull me limb-meal with their own hands, as the Senators did Romulus, and afterward Cæsar. The Italians that served the French King, having taken the Town of Barre, did out of hatred of Religion rip up a living Child, and taking out his Liver, being as yet red hot, they did eat it as meat. Many Children there at the same time had their hearts pulled out, which in rage those Cannibal-Papists gnawed with their teeth. διαχειρίζειν. Act. & Mon. fol. 1951.

Verse 22. Saying none other thing] Truth is one and the same in all Ages; it is also ancient, and ever at agreement with it self. As on the other side, Error is new, manifold, dissonant, and contradictory to it self, and much more to the Truth. Paul delivered no new truths, but stood in the good old way of Moses and the Prophets, and followed them κατὰ ὁδὸν. Those that stumble from the ancient ways, to walk in new paths, in a way not cast up, they are people that forget God, Jer. 18. 15. to sacrifice to new gods, that came newly up, Deut. 32. 17. they are none of Gods ancient people, Isa. 44. 7. but an upstart generation, that knew not Joseph.

Verse 23. That Christ should suffer] This verse may be fitly called A little Bible, a short Gospel, a Model of the mysterie of Godliness. The Greek runs thus, Whether Christ should be a sufferer? Whether he should be the first that should rise from the dead? &c. As if St. Paul should hold forth these questions, and offer to prove them out of the Prophets and Moses: And hence (haply) that way of expounding the Scriptures, by propounding doubts and questions. Abulensis hath his eight-score questions (and more then a good many sometimes) upon the shortest Chapter in the Bible. The Schoolmen were great Questionists; and they had it from the Artemonites a sort of Hereticks, Anno Christi 220. that, out of Aristotle and Theophrastus, corrupted the Scripture, by turning all into questions. In detestation of whose vain jangling and doting about questions, Luther saith, Prope est ut jurem. I durst swear almost, that there was not one School-Divine that rightly understood one Chapter of the Gospel. So that we may say of their Expositions as One did once, when being asked whether he should read such a Comment upon Aristotle? he answered, yes, when Aristotle is understood, then read the Comment. εἰ παθητὸς ὁ Χριστὸς, &c. Iac. Renius. pag. 10. 1 Tim. 6. 4. Tom. 1. oper. Latin. ep. 47.

Verse 24. Much learning hath made thee mad] Cere-diminuit-brum, as Ennius hath it. Paul was indeed a man of much Learning; for besides the Bible, and the Jewish Records, he had read the Poets (whom also he citeth) and Plato, from whom he borrowed that excellent word ἀναζωπυρεῖν, 2 Tim. 1. 6. Stir up thy gift, &c. But if Paul were so great a Scholar, why did not Festus shew him more favor, or at least do him better justice? Æneas Sylvius was wont to say of Learning, that popular men should esteem it as silver; Noblemen as gold; Princes prize it as pearls. Festus might possibly have heard or read of Antipius Triumvir, that when Varro (his very enemy, and of a contrary faction) was listed for death, he thus gallantly superscribed his name, Vivat Varro vir doctissimus; Let Varro have his life for his Learning sake. And if Antipater (saith Sir Walter Raleigh) upon his conquest, had carried all other actions never so mildly, yet for killing Demosthenes, all that read his eloquent orations, do condemn him for a bloody Tyrant to this day. Hist. of the World, par. 1. lib 4 cap. 3.

Verse 25. I am not mad] Paul rather pitieth his ignorance, then blameth his blasphemy, and alledgeth his own words for a proof of his no-madness; like as Sophocles produced a Tragedy he had lately made, that was full of Art and Wit, when his sons would have beg'd him for a dotard. These real Apologies are most powerful; When thus managed especially, with meekness of wisdom.

Verse 26. For this thing was not done in a corner] Neither Christs passion, nor Pauls conversion. Rome rang of the former, and it was seriously debated in the Senate-house, whether Christ should not be received into the number of the Gods? Tiberius would have had it so; but it was carried against him, because of the poverty of Christs life, and the infamy of his death: And as for Pauls conversion, it was far and near talked of. For as a Bell cannot be turned from one side to another, but it will make a sound, and report its own motion: so will the turning of a sinner from evil to good; such a sinner especially: his conversion was toto notissima cœlo; like the trumpet of God in Mount Sinai, it filled the whole Country.

Verse 27. I know thou believest] &c. The truth of what the Prophets spoke concerning Christ, and that are accordingly fulfilled in him. Faith hath for its general object the the whole holy Scripture; but for it ſpecial object the promiſes, or rather Chriſt revealed in the promiſes: All the Iſraelites beheld the wilderneſs and the whole Hemiſphere: but ſuch only of them as were ſtung, looked up to the brazen ſerpent, and were healed. Devils and Reprobates may believe the truth of the Scriptures, and ſee far into the myſterie of Chriſt by a common illumination: but true Believers only can cloſe up themſelves in the wounds of Chriſt; and by a particular Faith receive healing by his ſtripes.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 28. Almoſt thou perſwadeſt me] Here he was nigh Gods Kingdom, who yet (for ought we find) never came there. Almoſt he could be content to be, but Altogether may chance bring a chain with it. Jehu will not part with his Calves, leſt he venture his Kingdom. Policy is ever entring caveats againſt Piety. It is thought of Cardinal Pool, that toward his latter end, a little before his coming from Rome to England, he began ſomewhat to favour the Doctrine of Luther, and was no leſs ſuſpected at Rome, and therefore put by the Popedom. Notwithſtanding the pomp and glory of the world did afterwards carry him away to play the Papiſt. Such as theſe Philo calleth ſemperfectæ virtutis homines, Cakes half-baked, *Hoſ.*7.8. See the Note there.

Act. & Mon. *fol.*1790.

To be a Chriſtian] The profane Philoſophers called the Chriſtians Credentes, that is, Believers, by way of reproach: becauſe they did not argue by reaſon, but take things upon truſt. We believe and know (not, we know and believe) that thou art the Son of the living God, Joh.6.69. Illi garriant, nos credamus, ſaith Auſtin. Let them jeer us for our Faith, let us believe nevertheleſs; and our Faith ſhall be one day found to praiſe, honor and glory, 1 *Pet.*1.7. If Agrippa had been right, he would have eſteemed it the higheſt honour, to be able to ſay, Chriſtian is my name, and Catholick my ſurname. Thoſe that might well have been his Maſters and Makers, viz. Conſtantinus, Valentinianus and Theodoſius (three Emperors) called themſelves Vaſallos Chriſti, not Chriſtians only, but the Vaſſals of Chriſt, as Socrates reporteth: And Juſtinian the Emperor ſtiled himſelf, Ultimum ſervorum Chriſti, the meaneſt of Chriſts ſervants.

Verſe 29. I would that all] Charity is no churl: there is no envy in ſpiritual things; becauſe they may be divided in ſolidum: One may have as much as another, and all alike. Self-love writes, as that Emperor did, τὰ εἰς ἐμαυτὸν, For mine own uſe only. It makes men like thoſe envious Athenians, who ſacrificed for none but themſelves and their neighbors of Chios. But true Chriſtian love wiſheth well to the community. I would to God (ſaid Mr. Dod) I were the worſt Miniſter in England (and England had but a few better) not wiſhing himſelf worſe then he was, but other men better.

Mr. Burroughs his heart. diviſ.

Verſe 30. The King roſe up and the Governour] A little of ſuch ſad diſcourſe ſerved their turn: they were ſoon ſated, and ready to ſay as Antipater King of Macedony did, when one preſented him a Book treating of happineſs, he anſwered, ἐ σχολάζω, I have ſomewhat elſe to do, then to learn or liſten to ſuch buſineſſes: When perhaps they might never have the like opportunity of hearing ſuch a perſwaſive Preacher while they breathed again, as Paul was.

Verſe 31. This man doth nothing worthy] Here Feſtus conſenting with the reſt, condemneth himſelf. See chap. 25.25.

Verſe 32. If he had not appealed] Which if he had not, this free-man of Rome had been free among the dead, free of that company ere this time of day. There was a neceſſity of his appeal, for the ſaving of his life. And he is the better contented with his preſent condition, becauſe he had been told in a viſion, that he muſt to Rome alſo, Act. 23.11. while it was in flore, and not yet come to that —— tota eſt jam Roma Lupanar. Rome is no better then a great brothel-houſe. That once faithful City is now become an harlot; it was full of judgement; righteouſneſs lodged in it, but now Murtherers.

Pſal.88.5.

Mantuan. Iſa.1 21.

Chap. XXVII.

Verſe 1. It was determined]

FIrſt by God, Chap. 23. and then by the ordinary Magiſtrate guided by God.

Verſe 2. One Ariſtarchus, &c.] Saint Pauls fellow-traveller firſt, and then fellow-priſoner too, yea fellow-worker unto the Kingdom of God, and a great comfort to him, Coloſſ. 4.10,11. Act. 19.29. & 20.4. Optimum ſolatium, ſodalitium. Therefore David vid ſo bewayles the loſs of Jonathan, Saint Paul counts it a ſingular mercy to him, that Epaphroditus recovered, Phil. 2.27. And Saint John found himſelf furthered and quickned by the graces of the elect Lady, Ioh. 2. 12.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 3. Liberty to go to his friend] A great favour: there is no ſmall comfort in the communion of Saints. This heathen perſecutors knew: and therefore ban ſhed and confined the Chriſtians to Iſles and Mines, where they could not have acceſs one to another. Cyprian. Ep.

Verſe 4. Becauſe the winds, &c.] The Straits of Magellan is ſuch a place, that which way ſoever a man bendeth his courſe (ſaith one) he ſhall be ſure to have the wind againſt him. Heyl Geog. p. 80.

Verſe 5. And when we had ſailed] Theſe things are therefore particularly ſet down, that we may ſee Pauls perils by ſea no leſs then by land; and ſay with Solomon, No man knoweth either love or hatred by all that befalleth him. Eccleſ. 9.1. See the Note there.

Verſe 6. Sailing into Italy] To ſhew that they had a terrible tempeſtuous time of it all along, from Sidon to Malta. So have the Saints of God here, for moſt part, ab utero ad urnam, from the womb to the tomb, from the birth to the Burial. This made Solomon preſer his Coffin before his Cradle, Eccleſ. 7.1. yea before his Crown; as Q. Elizabeth alſo did: for indeed this life is peſtered with ſo many miſeries and moleſtations ſatanical and ſecular, that it were to be accounted little better then hell, were it not for the hopes of heaven; that ſweeteſt harbour and haven of happineſs. Bern.

Verſe 7. Salmone] An high cliff of Creet. See Strabo Lib. 2. and the uſe of Geography and other ſciences, to the better underſtanding of the Scriptures.

Verſe 8. Called the fair havens] Which name it retains alſo at this day: for better cauſe, I believe, then the ſea called Pacifique or calm, which Sir Francis Drake ever found rough and troublous above meaſure. Calos Liminas Camd. E. 221.

Verſe 9. Now when much time was ſpent] Not ſpilt; for that Paul was not idle all that while, ſee Tit. 1. 5. and Beza's Annotations thereupon. Nolite tempus in nugis conterere, ſaith one. Time is a precious commodity. Of all other poſſeſſions a man may have two at once; but two moments of time together no man could ever have. Therefore Cato held, that a wiſe man ſhould be able tam otii quam negotii rationem reddere, to give an account of his leiſure as well as of his labour. Nullus mihi per otium dies exit, ſaith Seneca, I ſpend no day idly. And Pliny ſaid to his Nephew when he ſaw him walk out ſome hours without ſtudying, Poteras has horas non perdere, You might have better beſtowed your time. The common complaint is, we want time; but the truth is, we do not ſo much want it, as waſt it. Cic de ſenectlute. Lib. 3. cap. 5. Non parum habemus temporis, ſed multum perdimus. Sen.

Becauſe the Faſt was now paſt] The Jews yearly faſt, Levit. 23.27. which fell out in the ſeventh moneth, that anſwereth to our October, when Navigation is dangerous. This yearly Faſt (or feaſt of Expiation, as it is called) was inſtituted, that they that had committed haynous offences worthy of death, and could not by offering up particular ſacrifices for them, and confeſſing them, but hazard the loſs of their lives, might have this day of Expiation for all their ſins whatſoever; God of his goodneſs ſo providing for the worſt of his people.

Verſe 10. But alſo of our lives] Which every creature from the higheſt Angel to the loweſt worm, maketh much of. Why is living man ſorrowful? Lam. 3.39. As if the Prophet ſhould ſay, He hath cauſe to rejoyce that he is yet alive amidſt all his ſorrows. A living Dog is better then a dead Lion. Joſeph is yet alive. This was more worth to Jacob, then all Iſephs honour. It is the Lords mercy that we are not conſumed. Skin for skin, &c. It ſhould not be grievous to any man to ſacrifice his eſtate to the ſervice of his life. Cameron. de Eccleſ. p. 137.

Verſe 11. Nevertheleſs the Centurion] Profane perſons truſting more to their own carnal wiſdom, then to Gods word, caſt themſelves wilfully into the greateſt dangers. Believe the Prophets, and ye ſhall proſper. The wicked paſs on and are puniſhed, Prov. 22. 3. We cannot get men to believe, till they feel, as Pharaoh.

Verſe 12. And lieth toward the Southw.] It is a juſt complaint that a Modern writer maketh of many mens ſpirits amongſt us now adayes: that they lie like this haven, toward the South-weſt and North-weſt, two oppoſite points. Methinks it ſhould lie heavy upon thoſe mens ſpirits that firſt divided us, by publiſhing and preſſing their new fangled fancies. M. Burrough. is Epiſt. dedi.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 13. Suppoſing that they had, &c.] God maketh many times the ſtrongeſt ſinew of the arm of fleſh to crack.

Fallitur augurio ſpes bona ſæpè ſuo.

Virg. Æncid. Lib. 2. cap. 28. Verſe 14. Called Euroclydon] A ſtormy blaſt coming from the Eaſt, quandò Una Eurusq; Notuſque ruant, creberque procellis Africus, & vaſtos volvant ad littora fluctus. This wind is by Pliny called Navigantium Peſtis, the Marriners miſery. How happy is the Church, to whom what wind ſoever bloweth, blows good and Comfort? Cant. 4. 16. As for others, like as here, after a ſoft South-wind aroſe. Euroclydon: ſo to them after a falſe peace, will be a ſad ſtorm. Tranquillitas iſta tempeſtas erit.

ἀντοφθαλμεῖν. Verbum Polybianum. Hiſt. l. 4. Verſe 15. Could not bear up] Or direct the eye againſt the wind, could not look it in the face. There is an elegancy in the Original, becauſe part of the foreward of the Ship is by Marriners called the Ships-eye.

Verſe 16. To come by the boat] i. e. To recover, take up and ſave the boat, that the waves ſhould not break it.

Verſe 17. Underguirding the Ship] With truſſes or ſtrong ropes, for fear leſt ſhe ſhould ſplit.

Multum jactati ſunt, non navigarunt. Verſe 18 And being exceedingly toſſed] Seneca ſpeaking of ſuch as have lived long to little purpoſe, not improving their time and their Talents. He ſaith, that their lives are like Ships in a ſtorm, toſſed much, but have ſailed nothing: or like a milſtone that is ever moving, but removes not at all: Or as when men make imperfect daſhes, they are ſaid toſcribble, but do not write.

Verſe 19. The tackling of the ſhip] eth hacchelim, Jonah 1. 5. which is almoſt our word tackling.

Verſe 20. All hope that we, &c.] God delights to help thoſe that are forſaken of their hopes: he reſerveth his hand for a dead lift. Good therefore and worthy all acceptation is the Prophets councel, Eſay 50. 10, 11. A Child of light walking in darkneſs muſt do as theſe here, when neither Sun nor ſtar appeared for many dayes, caſt the Anchor of hope within the veyl of heaven, pray and wait till the day dawn, and the day-ſtar appear in his heart.

Verſe 21. gained this harm] i. e. Prevented it. Previſion is the beſt way of prevention, but for want of prudent forecaſt, men paſs on and are puniſhed. Leo caſſibus irretitus dixit, ſi præſciviſſem. Men might by wiſdom redeem many miſeries.

Act. & Mon. Verſe 22. Be of good chear] So Biſhop Ridley being once toſſed by a ſad tempeſt, Be of good chear, ſaid he to the Boat-men, and ply your Oares: for this Boat carrieth a Biſhop that muſt be burned, not drowned. So Cæſar ſaid to the ferriman in a ſtorm, Noli timere; Cæſarem fers, & fortunam Cæſaris. Never fear; Cæſar is of better fortune, then to die by drowning. That was a memorable ſpeech of a Philoſopher, who being in danger of Ship-wrack in a light ſtarry night, ſaid, Surely I ſhall not periſh, there are ſo many eyes of Providence over me. Much more may a Saint ſay ſo.

Verſe 23. Whoſe I am, and whom I ſerve] Lo how holily he ſpeaks, and like a Chriſtian, among a company of profane and rude Souldiers and ſeamen; ſo doth Jacob in his intercourſe with Eſau: Theſe, ſaith he, are the children whom God of his grace hath given me, Gen. 33. 5. Ubiquity is a ſure ſign of Sincerity. An upright man is the ſame in all companies, and in all conditions; as a pearl is a pearl, though caſt into a puddle; as gold will gliſter, whether caſt into the fire, or the water. Good blood will not bely it ſelf; neither will a good ſpiritual conſtitution ſhew it ſelf otherwiſe, then by ſuitable both communication, and converſation.

Verſe 24. God hath given thee all] It is for the Godlies ſake that the wicked are ſpared and favoured. To the wicked God ſaith concerning his ſervants, as the Prophet 2 King 3. 14. once ſaid to Iehoram, Surely were it not that I regard the preſence of Jehoſaphat King of Judah, I would not look toward thee, nor ſee thee.

Verſe 25. For I believe God] The believer walks about the world as a conqueror. Faith drinks to him in a cup of Nepenthes, and bids him ſing away ſorrow; But if ye Eſay 7. will not believe, ſurely ye ſhall not be eſtabliſhed.

Verſe 26. We muſt be caſt] Where our ſhip being broke, we ſhall be brought ſafe to land by an all-powerful hand of God, who delights to help at a dead lift. And this is here foretold, that it may not be thought to fall out by hap-hazard.

Verſe 27. In Adria] That is, in the Adriatick Sea.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 28. Fifteen Fathoms] A ſign they were nearer ſhore then before.

Verſe 29. Wiſhed for the day] Wiſh we as much for the day of Redemption, when after much toſſing on this glaſſie ſea, we ſhall ſafely land at the haven of happineſs, at the key of Canaan, the Kingdom of heaven.

Diſcupio ſolvi, tecumque, ô Chriſte, manere:
Portio fac regni ſim quotacunque tui.

Verſe 30. And as the Ship-men] So to ſhift for themſelves, not caring what became of the paſſengers. A private-ſpirited man is totus in ſe, like the ſnail, ſtill within doors, at home: and though he may look abroad ſometimes, and ſeem well affected to others, yet he ſeeks himſelf: as the ſnail creeping abroad out of the walls and hedges, yet ſtill keeps within its own houſe.

Ver. 31. Ye cannot be ſaved] God muſt be truſted, but not tempted, by wilful neglect of due means. He is not tyed to them, but yet doth uſually work by them. See my Note on Mat. 4.4.

Verſe 32. Then the Soldiers] According to Saint Pauls counſel, who was now ſomebody with them. Indeed he was grown, by much exerciſe and experience, harum rerum callentiſſimus, & vir in omnibus rebus excellentiſſimus, as one ſaith of him, a moſt gallant man, and every way accompliſhed.

Verſe 33. Having taken nothing] i. e. Having made no ſet meal but by ſnatches and catches. When life is in danger, all is laid aſide till that be ſecured. Oh that we were likewiſe wiſe for our ſouls: Surely if we knew our danger, we ſhould neither eat nor reſt till we had made our peace with God. For is it nothing to loſe an immortal ſoul? to purchaſe an everliving death?

Verſe 34. Not an hair] A proverbial ſpeech, Luke 21. 18. See Mat 10.30. with the Note.

Verſe 35. In preſence of them all] He was not aſhamed of Gods ſervice afore thoſe Heathens. No more was Abraham, who built an Altar to his God wherever he came. That was the firſt work he did, not fearing the Idolatrous Canaanites. A bold and wiſe profeſſion is required of every Chriſtian. It is no gold that gliſters not.

Verſe 36. Then were they all of good chear] By Pauls good example. For as one bad man may hinder much good, Eccleſ 9. ult. ſo on the contrary.

Verſe 37. We were all two hundred, &c.] And that not one of this All ſhould miſcarry, was a miracle of Gods mercy: ſith all of them could not ſwim, (likely) and being ſo low-brought with fear and faſting, how could they ſo beſtir themſelves, as in that caſe was requiſite? Or being ſo many on a cluſter, how did they not one hinder another? But God was in the ſhipwrack: and if he command deliverance, it ſhall be done with eaſe and expedition. In caſe their skill or ſtrength fail, he ſhall ſpread forth his hands in the middeſt of them, as he that ſwimmeth ſpreadeth forth his hands to ſwim, Iſa. 25. 11. with greateſt facility he ſhall do it: the motion in ſwimming is eaſie, and with a ſlight: ſtrong violent ſtrokes in the water, would rather ſink then ſupport.

Verſe 38. Caſt out the wheat] Faſtidientes divinum verbum, & damnum & dedecus patiſ oportet. Behold! they have rejected the word of the Lord, and what wiſdom is in them? Jer. 6.

Verſe 39. They diſcovered a creek] Then chiefly are we to look for tempeſts when we draw nigheſt to the ſhore, to the haven. Our laſt encounter at death is like to be the ſharpeſt. The Iſraelites never met with ſuch oppoſition, as when they were to take poſſeſſion of the land. Then all the Kings of Canaan combined againſt them.

Verſe 40. Hoiſed up the main ſail] Which before they had ſtrucken, by reaſon of the violence of the ſtorm. If God afflict, we muſt carry our ſail accordingly, Ruth 1. 20.

Verſe 41. Where two ſeas met] The men of Malta ſhew a certain place at this day which they call laſcala di San Paulo, Saint Pauls arrival.

Verſe 42. To kill the priſoners] An ill requital of Pauls kindneſs. But Souldiers make but a ſport of killing men. Let the young men ariſe and play before us, ſaid Abner.

Verſe 43. Willing to ſave Paul] By whom he had been hitherto ſaved: and in whom he ſaw that goodneſs that could not but attract all hearts not congealed into ſteel and

Digitized by Google

Zonaras in Annal. Act & Mon. fol. 1087. Ibid. 1843. Ibid. 1465. Speed 1178.

Adamant. I read of a Monſter, who that night that his Prince pardoned and releaſed him, got out and ſlew him: This was Michael Balbus. Such another was bloody Bonner, active in bringing the Lord Cromwel (who had been his great Patron) to an untimely death. In like ſort dealt Biſhop Watſon by Mr. Rough, and Biſhop Bourn by Mr. Bradford, who had ſaved their lives with the hazard of their own. William Parry was for burglary condemned to dye, but ſaved by Q. Elizabeths pardon: this ungrateful man afterwards ſought to requite her, by vowing her death, Anno Dom. 1584. and was therefore worthily executed as a traitour: and indeed hanging was too good for him. The Senate of Baſil firſt tortured, and then burnt to aſhes: a Villain called Paulus Sutor, that murthered an old man, that had done him many father-like courteſies, Anno Dom. 1565. as judging, that to render evil for evil is brutiſh, but to render evil for good, is devilliſh. Lycurgus the Lacedemonian Law-giver would make no law againſt ſuch: quod prodigioſa res eſſet beneficium non rependere, becauſe it could not be imagined, that any would be ſo unworthy, as not to recompenſe one kindneſs with another. If this Centurion ſhould have done otherwiſe then he did in ſaving Paul, by whoſe prayers and for whoſe ſake he and his company had eſcaped, no time would have worn out his utter diſgrace and infamy.

Lonicer. theat. hiſt. 404.

Verſe 44.] Hominum malitiam vincit Dei bonitas, ſaith Beza here. Gods goodneſs overcometh mans badneſs.

Chap. XXVIII.

Verſe 1. And when they were eſcaped]

SOme of them eſcaped perhaps as narrowly as did Sir Thomas Challoner, who when he was young, ſerved under Charls the Fifth in the expedition of Algeir; where being ſhipwrackt, after he had ſwum till his ſtrength and his arms failed him, at the length catching hold of a Cable with his teeth, he eſcaped, not without the loſs of ſome of his teeth. He was afterwards knighted for his valour at Muſſeborough field, and died Anno 1566.

Camd. Britan. fol. 66.

Verſe 2. And the barbarous people] So the Grecians, (and afterwards the Romans) called all other nations, beſides themſelves. But now the Grecians having loſt their ancient liberty and glory, by means of the Turkiſh oppreſſion, are become no leſs barbarous, then thoſe rude nations, whom they before ſcorned. Which miſery with a thouſand more, they may juſtly impute to their own ambition and diſcord.

Turk. Hiſt. f. 260.

Verſe 3. And faſtened on his hand] Thus, many are the troubles of the righteous: but out of them all the Lord delivereth them. No Country hath more venenous creatures then Egypt, none more Antidotes: So godlineſs hath many troubles, and as many helps againſt trouble. The devils deſign here was to have deſtroyed Paul, but he was deceived. So he deſired to have Peter, Luke 22.31. ſc. to hell, but that was more then he could do.

Verſe 4. Yet vengeance ſuffereth not, &c.] Nemo ſcelus gerit in pectore, qui non idem habet Nemeſin in tergo. The fall of Black-friers ſlew well nigh an hundred, whereof two were Prieſts; and a third having taken water, together with many others that had eſcaped, purpoſing to go into Flanders, were drowned at London-bridge ſhortly after, the boat being over-turned.

Verſe 5. And he ſhook off the beaſt] So ſhould we do falſe and ſlanderous reports: or rather make a good uſe of them: as the skilful Apothecary of the fleſh of this poyſonful beaſt, makes an wholeſome Theriacle, or Treacle, as we call it.

England.

And felt no harm] No more did Q. Elizabeth, when Squier, the Traitour, ſent by Walpool the Jeſuit, had poyſoned the pummel of her ſaddle. The vigour of the poiſon (ſaid the Jeſuit) is ſuch, as neither continuance of times, nor ſubtilty of air could check or unvirtuate. And yet, albeit the ſeaſon were hot, and the veins open to receive any malign tainture, her body thereupon felt no diſtemperature, nor her hand felt no more hurt (ſaith the Chronicler) then Paul did, when he ſhook off the Viper into the fire.

Speed 1184.

Verſe

Verſe 6. That he ſhould have ſwollen] Or, have been inflamed, viz. with the Vipers venome. The Devils darts are called fiery for the dolour and diſtemper they work; in alluſion likely to the poyſoned darts that the Scythians of old and other nations now uſe in War, dipped in the blood and gall of Vipers; the venemous heat of which like a fire in their fleſh killed the wounded with torments; the likeſt hell of any other, ſaith one. Theſe fiery darts ſting the wicked, as the fiery Serpents did the Iſraelites. The Saints ſhake them off without hurt, though not always without ſmart. πίμπρασθαι. Eph 6.

Verſe 7. Who received us, and lodged us three days courteouſly] Gr of a friendly mind. As he is the beſt Chriſtian that is moſt humble, ſo is he the trueſt Gentleman that is moſt curteous. And as fair flowers in the ſpring draw paſſengers eyes; ſo doth courteſie in high degrees win mens affections. φιλοφρόνως.

Verſe 8. Sick of a feaver] Which hath its name both in Greek and Latine from the fire that is in it. The difference is not ſo great whether a man broyl in the bed, or at a ſtake by frying a faggot; fear it not. πυρετὸς. Febris à ſervore.

Verſe 9. Came and were healed] On both ſides (likely) and hence their forwardneſs and free-heartedneſs, verſ. 10.

Verſe 10. Who alſo honoured us] Perraro grati reperiuntur, ſaith one. A thankful man is worth his weight in gold, ſaith another. The Italian hath a proverb, Seiapato il morbo, fraudato il Santo: When the diſeaſe is departed, the Saint is defrauded, viz. of the honour that was vowed to be done to him. Not ſo here. Cicero M. Ward.

Verſe 11. Whoſe ſign was Caſtor and Pollux] Sea-men ſay that if theſe two ſtars ariſe not together, it is a ſign of an enſuing tempeſt. Diſſenſion is a fore-runner of deſtruction.

Verſe 12. Syracuſe] The Metropolis of Sicily, where lived and dyed that famous Mathematician, Archimedes: who by his art ſo long held out the City againſt Marcellus the Roman General, that beleaguered it. Plut.

Verſe 13. Came to Rhegium] Which hath its name of breaking; becauſe ſay ſome, there the Sea broke off Sicily from Italy, which was before but one continent. The like they report concerning France and England. Ἀπὸ ῥήγνυμι rumpo.

Verſe 14. Seven days] for mutual enjoyment of one another: there being no ſuch comfort upon earth, next to communion with God, as the communion of Saints. 2 Joh. 12. that our Joy may be full. This, Heathens knew, and therefore relegated Chriſtians and confined them to Iſles and mines, where they could not have acceſs one to another. Cyprian. epiſt.

Verſe 15. They came to meet us] So Paul entered Rome as a long looked for Triumpher.

Verſe 16. Paul was ſuffered to dwell] So Bradford priſoner in the Kings-bench, was in ſo good credit with his keeper, that he had licenſe to go all about the City without a keeper, &c. Yea to ride into Oxford-ſhire to a Merchants houſe of his acquaintance, &c. Act. & Mon. fol. 1457.

Verſe 17. After three days] Miniſters ſhould free themſelves as much and as ſoon as may be from ſiniſter ſuſpitions. For they muſt never think to do good on thoſe that have conceived an incurable prejudice againſt them.

Verſe 18. Becauſe there was no cauſe] See chap. 25. 25.

Verſe 19. To accuſe my nation of] But to defend Chriſts cauſe and mine own innocency, with as little reflex on the Jews as may be. It is an ill buſineſs to defame a whole Nation (ones own eſpecially) as Scaliger that proud Hypercritick, who gave this baſe and unmannerly character, Gothi bellua, Scoti non minus, Angli perfidi, inflati, feri, contemptores, ſtolidi, amentes, inertes, inhoſpitales, immanes. The Goths are beaſts, ſo are the Scots. As for the Engliſh, they are perfidious, proud, fierce, ſcornful, fools, mad men, ſluggards, inhoſpitable, cruel. Scal. de re Poet. cap. 16.

Verſe 20. For the hope of Iſrael] That is, for the reſurrection of the dead and that eternal life that Iſrael hopes and looks for. Hallucinantur Philoſophi, qui ſapientem non metu ſolum ſed & ſpe vacare vellent. Spes in terrenis incerti nomen boni, ſpes in divinis nomen eſt certiſſimi. Heb. 11. 1. Hope in God, ſaith every David to himſelf, Pſal. 43. ult.

I am bound with this chain] At Rome, ſuch priſoners as had liberty to go abroad, had a long chain; the one end whereof was faſtened to their right hand, and the other end was tyed to a ſouldiers left hand, who was to be his keeper. Thus was Saint Paul bound, likely.

Verſe 21. We neither received letters] Not becauſe the Prieſts and Elders were now grown grown better minded toward Paul then they wont to be (for malice is like the Crocodile, that groweth as long as it liveth; and, as we use to say of Runnet, the older it is, the stronger) but that they could not so well deal with him at such a distance: and besides, being so far off them, he could be no such eye-sore to them.

Digitized by Google

Verse 22. Everywhere it is spoken against] Nomen in Christianis damnabatur, non crimen, saith Tertullian. When Attalus the Martyr was put to death at Lions, a table was set up over his head with this inscription, Hic est Attalus Christianus, This is Attalus the Christian; that was all they had to charge him with. So when Polycarp was Martyred, all the crime objected against him, was, that he confessed himself to be a Christian. Nero made this cruel Edict, Whosoever confessed himself to be a Christian, let him be presently put to death without any more ado, as a convicted enemy of mankind.

Sine ulteriore sui defensione capite plectitor.

Verse 23. There came into his lodging] Tertullian telleth us that it was forbidden the Primitive Christians by a publike Statute, to have temples, or places of publike meetings. It is yet better with us; blessed be God. We have, as Joseph provided them in Ægypt, a granary or store-house in every City, and Village for most part.

Verse 24. And some believed not] The word, as Moses, slays the Ægyptian, saves the Israelite. It is to some the savour of life, to others of death, as Obed-Edom was blessed for the Ark, the Philistims cursed.

Ασύμφωνοι. Verse 25. And when they agreed not] They jarred. Its a Metaphor from Musical instruments that make no harmony.

Had spoken one word] A terrible stinging word, that would stick in their souls and flesh, as the invenomed arrows of the Almighty, throughout all eternity.

Verse 26. Hearing, ye shall hear, &c.] A heavy ear is a singular judgement. Antagoras, Erasm. Chiliad. cum Thebaidos librum apud Bœotos, recitaret, nec quisquam recitanti applauderet, complicato volumine, Merito, inquit, Bœoti vocamini, quia boum habetis aures. The Greeks have a proverb, Asino quispiam narrabat fabulam, ac ille movebat aures.

Seeing, ye shall see] Speculatively. And not perceive] i. e. Practically, as given over for their wilfulness to spiritual blindness.

Verse 27. Is waxed gross] Their heart is as fat as grease, but I delight in thy law, Psal 119.70. saith David. Naturalists tell us that fat-hearted men are dul-witted. Ταχὺ παχεῖα λεπτὸν ἐ πίκτει νόον. It is a heavy case when men have got a kind of hoof over their hearts, callum obductum, corneas fibras, brawny breasts, horny heart-strings.

Their eyes have they closed] Gr. They have winked; they shut the windows, lest ἐκάμμυσαν. Bern. Annot. in loc. the light should come in. Ut liberius peccent, libenter ignorant, saith Bernard. Sponte quidem reluctantur veritati, non tamen fortuitò, saith Beza.

Verse 28. That the salvation of God] i. e. The Gospel, that grace of God that bringeth salvation, Tit. 2. 11. and is the power of God to salvation to as many as believe, Rom. 1. 16. therefore called the word of this life, that is able to save souls: and hath heaven in it, potentially, as the kernel hath the Tree, or the seed the harvest.

Verse 29. Had great reasoning, &c.] It is not the Gospel, but the contempt of the Gospel that breedeth questions and quarrellings.

Verse 30. And received all that came in unto him] Being a genuine child of the Church, set forth by that παδοχεῖον (Luke 10. 34.) that Inn, that receives and succours all sinsick passengers. Christ himself (saith one) was therefore born in an Inn, to signifie that Col. 2. 5. in the Church there is lodging for all. Let our houses be little Churches and receptacles Gen. 28. for the righteous, as Pauls was; so that a stranger coming thither, may behold our holy order, and say as Jacob did of Bethel, This is the house of God, this is the gate of heaven.

Verse 31. Preaching the kingdom, &c.] M. Bradford, during the time of his imprisonment, preached twice a day continually, unless sickness hindred him: where also the Acts & Mon. Sacrament was often ministred. And through his means (the keeper so well did bear fol. 1157. with him) such resort of good people was daily at his lecture, and ministration of the Sacrament, that commonly his chamber was wel-nigh filled.

Deus dedit his quoque finem.

A

Digitized by Google

A

COMMENTARY

OR

EXPOSITION

UPON

All the EPISTLES

AND THE

REVELATION of John the Divine.

VVherein the Text is explained, ſome Controverſies are diſcuſſed, divers Common places are handled, and many remarkable matters hinted, that had by former Interpreters been pretermitted.

Beſides, divers other Texts of Scripture, which occaſionally occur, are fully opened, and the whole ſo intermixed with pertinent Hiſtories, as will yield both pleaſure and profit to the judicious Reader.

With a Decad of Common-places upon theſe ten Heads,

Abſtinence.	Anger.
Admonition.	Apoſtaſie.
Alms.	Arrogancie.
Ambition.	Arts.
Angels.	Atheiſm.

By John Trapp M. A. Paſtour of Weſton upon Avon in Glocesterſhire.

Paulum quotieſcunque lego, non verba audire videor, ſed Tonitrua. Hierom:

LONDON,

Printed by R. W. and are to be ſold by Nath. Ekins, at the Gun in Pauls Church-yard, M D C L VI.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

TO THE

REVEREND,

and his much honoured Father,

Mr. IOHN LEY,

Paſtour and Preacher of Gods Word at great Budworth in Cheſhire, and one of the venerable ASSEMBLY.

Reverend Sir,

NOW, by a ſweet providence, is that happineſs put into my hands, that I have long wiſhed and waited for, viz. a fit opportunity of telling the world, how highly I honour You, and how deeply I ſtand ingaged unto You. A moſt able and abſolute Divine (in another ſenſe then Eraſmus termed ſome in his time) I ever took You for, ſince I firſt came acquainted with You. And how little miſtaken I am therein, let Your many elaborate lucubrations ſay for me; thoſe accurate Annotations upon the Pentateuch eſpecially: of which precious piece, and the thrice-worthy Author, I am eſt-ſoons ready to ſay, as one did once of Eraſmus and his Adagies—— quis noſſet Eraſmum, Chilias æternum ſi latuiſſet opus?

Abſolutæ eruditionis & pietatis viris. Sic ſcripſit Theologis Pariſienſib. Voluit autem, alienis ab omni eruditione & pietate, interprete Melanct. Buch l.

Or as another did of Calvins Inſtitutions,

Præter Apoſtolicas, poſt Chriſti tempora, chartas
Huic peperere libro ſecula nulla parem.

Sure I am, and not a little ſenſible, that he that here comes after You, ſhall but actum agere, he ſhall but facem Soli (Soli, inquam, in Sion) accendere, he ſhall but in nobiliſsimo theatro ſeipſum traducere. Well he may pick up Præterita with Druſius, or ſpicilegium poſt meſſam with Capellus; he ſhall hardly ever get ſo near You, as the Latine Orator did the Greek, Demoſthenes Ciceroni præripuit, ne primus eſſet Orator; Cicero Demoſtheni, ne ſolus. But whither (ore I wiſt) hath the juſt admiration of Your ſingular worth tranſported me? My deſign was not to praiſe You (for that were, as an Antient ſaid of Athanaſius, to praiſe vertue it ſelf) but to profeſs my deep indebtedneſs unto you, for your many fatherly favours and real courteſies done me ſince mine adoption, Quibus effeciſti, ut viverem & morerer ingratus, as he ſaid to Auguſtus, Ἰωάννης ὁ Λεῖος. γένος. Ἀ ὀψὲ ἐν Σιὼν. Dugardi mei ingenioſiſsimum inventum. M. Ley was at that time the firſt Preſident of Sion-College. Ioſeph. Scalig. epiſt. ad Ellam Vinet. Val. Max. Cant. 6. 12.

Digitized by Google

Sen. de benef. l. 2. c. 12.

Augustus, this being the only wrong that ever you did me, that I must live and die unthankful. These brief Notes passable (I say not praisable) only for their brevity, do humbly beg your perusal, and (si tanti sint) your Patronage; and surely may they but obtain your much-desired countenance and comprobation, I shall soon say with the Orator, κατὰ πίστιν ἴσχω τὴν νικητήριαν, I fear not any mans censure. Whatever else is wanting in them, a will, I am sure, is not wanting, of laying forth my small talent to the honor of my Master, and the good of my fellow-servants; those of mine own particular charge especially; to whom most of these things have been delivered, and of whom I can truly say, as Reverend M. Stock did of his people in Breadstreet London, That he had rather win one of them, then twenty others. Now that I may be fit and able to fulfill the Ministery that I have received in the Lord, so as to save my self and them that hear me, let your fatherly benediction, and instant intercession to the Father of all the fatherhood in heaven and earth, be never wanting to Mr. Gatak. Abrahams decease.

Col. 3. 17. 1 Tim. 4. 16.

Eph. 3. 15. πατριὰ Parentela.

Your most affectionately obsequious son and servant,

Welford this 16. of Nov. 1647.

John Trapp.

Ad Libellum chartaceum, venerando Autori, ante manum huic Annotationum parti admotam, dono missum, Affatio. Quæ vice Prefationis, de Autore Operéque, esse possit.

Dominum, Libelle, gratulor tibi novum.
Mihi negatam tu sortem felix habes;
Viro futurus eximio jugis comes,
Qui floribus, quos fundit, seu Britannia,
Seu Latium, seu Palestina, simul Graciâ,
Te fragrantissimis ornabit, instruet:
Ut olim Acheloi cornu implerunt Najades.
Qui proprii venustos fœtus ingeni,
Quibus venustiores nullum parturit,
Magisve densos, credet servandos tibi.
Qui quicquid audit est divino pectore,
Linguâ facundâ, moribus suavissimis.
Contrà quàm Sacra jam profitentes plurimi,
Docere recta callidi, non vivere.
Quam vellem scitus esse nunc Libellulus!
Forem ut tuæ felicitatis particeps,
Ejus beandus, gestandus, manu, sinu.
Tene fidelis quicquid mandarit tibi.
Furacibus cave sedulus ab unguibus.
Tibe nè maculas aut fœdas labes contrahe:
Subire vultus ut queas libens meos.
Abi jam, & Dominum à me saluta milliès.

THOMAS DUGARD,
Art. Mag. Rector Barfordiæ.

Digitized by Google

A COMMENTARY OR EXPOSITION Upon the Epistle of St. Paul to the Romanes.

CHAP. I.

Verse 1. Paul]

A Little man, it should seem by his name (such as was James the less, Mar. 15.40. but as the Church of Philadelphia (discommended for nothing) though she had but a little strength, yet had a great door set open: And as Bethlehem was the least, and yet not the least among the Princes of Judah: So was this Apostle the last 1 Cor. 15.8. (and perhaps the least in stature) as one born out of due time. But God (who loves to be Maximus in minimis) had designed him to great services, and gifted him accordingly: so that he was no whit behinde the very chiefest of the Apostles, 2 Cor. 12.5. And for pains taking, he laboured more abundantly then they all, 1 Cor. 15.10. Hence Chrysostome calleth him insatiabilem Dei cultorem, an insatiable servant of Christ. And himself seems as insatiable an Encomiast of this Apostle (the Apostle he commonly nameth him by an excellency) for he hath written eight Homilies in his commendation. And if any think he hath said too much, it is because either they have not read him, or cannot judge of his worth, Qui tricubitalia cœlos transcendit (as the same Father saith) little though he were, yet he gat above the heavens. gigantibus. Aut illum non audierunt, aut judicare non possint, ut olim de Crasso & Antonio dixit Cicero.

See the Note on Act. 13.9. Rev. 3.9 Mat. 2.6. with Mic. 5.2. 1 Cor. 15.8.

Grandior solet esse Deus in parvulis quam in magnis. In formicis maior anima quam in elephantis, in nanis quam in de Orat.

A servant of Jesus Christ] This is an higher title then Monarch of the world, as Numa, second King of Rome could say. Constantinus, Valentinianus and Theodosius, three Emperors, called themselves Vasallos Christi, the vassals of Christ, as Socrates reporteth.

τῷ Θεῷ χαίρειν βασιλεύειν ἐρώμενον. Plut.

Digitized by Google

Verse 2. Promised] Fore-shewed and foreshadowed in the Types of the Ceremonial Law (which was their Gospel, it was Christ in figure) and in the writings of the Prophets: only by degrees and peace-meal, God spake of old to our Fathers, by his servants the Prophets, Heb. 1. 1. (See my True Treasure pag. 5. 6. &c.) All was in Riddles to what it is now: and that saying took place, Et latet, & lucet. It is close, and yet clear.

πολυμερῶς.

Verse 3. Concerning his Son] Here's a lofty and lively description of Christs sacred person. The whole Epistle being the Confession of our Churches, as Melanthon calleth it, who therefore went over it ten several times in his Ordinary Lectures: The Epistle being such, as never can any man possibly think, speak or write sufficiently of its worth and excellency. Mr. Perkins adviseth, in reading the Scripture, first to begin with the Gospel of John, and this Epistle to the Romans; as being the keys of the New Testament. And, for this Epistle to the Romans, Cardinal Pool adviseth, to begin at the twelfth chapter, and read to the end; and practise the precepts of Repentance and Mortification; and then set upon the former part of the Epistle, where Justification and Predestination are handled.

Scultet. Annal.

τῆ σαρκί

According to the flesh] i.e. Either his body or his humane nature, called a swift cloud, (as some will have it) Isa. 19. 1. Behold the Lord rideth upon a swift cloud, and shall come into Egypt. And, the habitable part of Gods earth, Prov. 8. 31. For the Word dwelt amongst us, Joh. 1. 14. And here was habitatio Dei cum carne, God dwelling with flesh, which the Magicians held impossible, Dan. 2. 11. It was much for God to pour out his Spirit upon all flesh, the best thing upon the basest, Joel 2. 28. But it was more, for the fulness of the Godhead bodily to inhabite it, Col. 2. 9. See the note on 1 Cor. 1. 2. St. Paul seems to have learned of the holy Angels, thus to salute. Luke 2. 14. See the Note there.

ἀορίστως.

Verse 4. Declared to be, &c.] Gr. Defined; for definitions explain obscurities.

With power] For, Superas evadere ad auras, Hic labor, hoc opus est —— a work befitting a God. See Ephes. 1. 20. with the Note there.

The Spirit of holiness] The divine essence of Christ, 2 Cor. 13. 4. which sanctifieth the humane nature assumed by him.

Verse 5. For obedience to the faith] That is, to the Gospel (that doctrine of faith) or to Christ, who is oft put for faith (whereof he is the proper object) in this Epistle.

Psal. 2. 12. Matth. 17. 5.

Kiss the Son, &c. Hear him.

Verse 6. Ye are the called] With an high and heavenly calling, Heb. 3. 1. See the Note there.

Verse 7. Called to be Saints] Those then that are called, are Saints, whilest alive, and not only those that are canonized by the Pope after they are dead, in numerum Deorum ab Ecclesia Romana relati, as Bembus profanely speaketh of their Saint Francis, a sorry man, of whom (as once of Becket 48. years after his death) it may well be disputed, Whether he were damned or saved. Pope Callistus 3. fainted some such in his time, as of whom Cardinal Bessarion, knowing them for naught, said, These new Saints make me doubt much of the old.

Bemb. in hist. Venet. Dan. Hist. of Engl. fol. 99. Jac Revius. hist. Pontif.

Grace be to you, and peace] See the Note on 1 Cor. 1. 2.

Verse 8. Your faith is spoken of] See chap. 16. and Juvenal, Tacitus, and other profane writers, who bitterly exagitate the doctrines and practices of those Roman Christians. Now that must needs be good, that such men speak evil of: and as Hierom writeth to Austin, Quod signum majoris gloriæ est, Omnes hæretici me detestantur: the Heretickes hate me: and thats no small grace to me.

Verse 9. Whom I serve in my spirit] That is, with all the faculties of my soul concentred and co-united.

Verse 10. I might have a prosperous Journey] This he prayed, and this he had by such a way as he little dreamt of. Little thought Paul, that when he was bound at Jerusalem, and posted from one prison to another, that God was now sending him to Rome: yet he sent him, and very safe, with a great Convoy. God goes oft another way to work for our good, then we could imagine.

Verse 11. That I may impart] There is no envy in spiritual things, because they may be divided in solidum; one may have as much as another, and all alike. Scientiarum (So (sic & gratiarum) ea vis est natura, ut quò plus doceas, & alteri de tuo largiare, eò ditior ac doctior fias, saith Bodine. Such is the nature and property of sciences and graces, that the more you communicate them, the more you encrease them. Theat. natur.

Digitized by Google

Verse 12. That I may be comforted] Or, exhorted, Ad communem exhortationem percipiendam, saith Beza out of Bucer, and others. The meanest of Christs members may contribute somewhat to the edifying even of an Apostle, 2 Joh. 12. That Favourite of Christ would be furthered and quickned by the graces of a woman. Now when such Grandees in grace have benefit by communion of Saints, How much more may they whose measures are less? The very Angels know not so much, but they would know more, Eph. 3. 10. 1 Pet. 1. 12.

Verse 13. But was let hitherto] Either by Satan, 1 Thess. 2. 18. or by the holy Spirit, otherwise disposing of him, as Act. 19. 6, 7. or by some intervenient, but important occasion: as Chap. 15. 20, 21.

Verse 14. I am debter] Because entrusted with talents for that purpose, 1 Cor. 9. 16. See the Note there. It might more truly be said of Paul, then it was of Cato, that he did ——toti natum se credere mundo, believe himself born for a common good: or then it was said to Bucer by his Physicians, Non sibi se, sed multorum utilitati esse natum, that he was born for the benefit of many. Lucan. Melch. Adam.

Verse 15. So as much] Quicquid in me situm est, promptum est. A notable expression.

Verse 16. For I am not ashamed] As men are apt to be; whence that fatherly charge, 2 Tim. 1. 8. "Do ye think (said John Frith, Martyr, to the Archbishops men "that would have let him go) that I am afraid to declare mine opinion unto the Bi- "shops of England in a manifest truth? If you should both leave me here, and go tell the "Bishops that you had lost Frith, I would surely follow as fast after, as I might, and "bring them news that I had found and brought Frith again. Act. & Mon. fol. 1927.

For it is the power, &c.] Eternal life is potentially in the Word preached, as the harvest is potentially in the seed.

Verse 17. The just shall live by faith] Hab. 2. 4. that is, they shall enjoy themselves by their faith, in greatest disasters, or dangers, when others are at their wits ends, that's the Prophets sense; and the Apostle not unfitly applyeth it to prove justification by faith alone: for if a man live by faith, he is just by faith.

Verse 18. Who hold the truth] Hold the light of their consciences (which is as a Prophet from God) prisoner. The natural man, that he may sin the more securely, imprisons the truth, which he acknowledgeth, and layes hold on all the principles in his head, that might any way disturb his course in sin, locking them up in restraint. Hence it appears that no man is righteous in himself, or by his own righteousness, which was the τὸ καυχώμενον. Those of the Philosophers that knew most, as Socrates, Aristotle, Plato, &c. are belyed, if they were not vitious in their practise, & de virtute locuti, Clunem agitant. ——Plato had the knowledge of one God; but durst not say so publikely. It is neither easie (saith he) to finde out the Creator of all, nor safe to communicate the knowledge of him to the Vulgar. So Seneca wrote a Book (now lost) against superstitions: but saith Austin, Libertas affuit scribenti, non viventi: colebat quod reprehendebat, agebat quod arguebat, quod culpabat, adorabat: He lived not after his own writings, but worshipped what he reproved; he did what he decryed; he bowed before that he blamed; saying (as Domitius Calderinus when he went to Mass,) Eamus ad communem errorem, Let us go for company to that, which we cannot but condemn for a common error. Iuvenal. Aug. de civ. Dei, lib. 6. cap. 10. Buchol.

Verse 19. Because that which may] Heathens might know God the Creator, per species creaturarum (as they speak) either in way of negation, or causality, or eminence: not so God the Redeemer.

Verse 20. Are clearly seen] As in a mirror, or as on a Theatre. Ut solem in aquis, sic Deum in operibus contemplamur. God (saith One) is best seen in his works, as the Sun in the West. Pervidentur. Saculum est speculum, quo Deum intuemur.

Verse 21. Neither were thankful] How then shall we answer to God our hateful unthankfulness, which is (saith one) "A monster in nature, a solecism in manners, a "paradox in divinity, a parching winde to damm up the fountain of divine favours. Wo be to our Solifugæ that abuse Gospel-light: These put not light under a bushel (as the the poor Paynims did) but under a dunghil; Gravis est lux conscientiæ, saith Seneca: but gravior est lux Evangelii; say we. An heavie account will they give that abuse the light of nature: but much heavier they, that receive the grace of God in vain.

Digitized by Google

Διαλογισμοῖς. But became vain in their imaginations] Gr. In their reasonings, disputations, discourses upon serious deliberation. They stood not to their own principles (as, That there is one God only, That this God is to be worshipped, &c.) but were Atheists by night that worshipped the Sun, and Atheists by day that worshipped the Moon, as Cyril saith wittily.

Verse 22. Professing themselves to be wise] Aristotle, Natures chief Secretary, writeth many things most absurdly concerning God: As, that he is a living creature, That he worketh not freely, but by a kinde of servile necessity; and that therefore he deserveth no praise or thanks from men for his many benefits, sith he doth but what he must needs do. These are Aristotles absurd assertions. And yet at Stuckard in Germany, was found a Doctor of Divinity that preached to the people, That the Church might be sufficiently well taught and governed by Aristotles Ethicks, though we had no Bible: And the Collen Divines set forth a book, concerning Aristotles salvation, and called him Christs fore-runner in Naturals, as John Baptist had been in supernaturals. But what saith Saint Paul, 1 Cor. 2. 14. The natural man receiveth not, &c. Gr. The soulie-man, that doth excolere animam; such as Aristotle, Tully, &c. who the wiser they were, the vainer they were, and the further from God and his Kingdom: their learning hung in their light, and served but to light them into utter darkness.

Metaphys. l. 12. Ib. lib. 1. Bodin. Theat. Nat. p. 29. Ψυχικὸς. Quanto doctiores tanto nequiores, ut Syri venales apud Ciceronem.

Verse 23. Made like to corruptible man] God made man in his own image: And man (to be even with him, as it were) will needs make God after his image.

And fourfooted beasts] God therefore justly gave them up to Sodomy, which did abase them below the beasts: that there might be an analogy between the sin and the punishment. This is called a meet recompense, ver. 27. They dishonoured God, they dishonoured therefore themselves. They would not know nor honour him, they shall not therefore know, nor spare one another, &c. so severely will God punish the contempt of, and rebellion against the light.

Athenæus brings Plato bewailing his fond love to a filthy Harlot.

And creeping things] In Lapland the people worship that all day for a god, whatsoever they see first in the morning, be it a bird or worm.

Abbots his Geog. Arist. Eth. l. 7. c. 3. 4. Verse 24. Gave them up to uncleanness] Aristotle confesseth the disability of moral knowledge to rectifie the intemperance of nature; and made it good in his practice: for he used a common strumpet to satisfie his lust. Socrates is said to have had his Catamite, Inter Socraticos, &c.

Iuvenal.

Verse 25. Who changed] They tare out their natural principles and turned Atheists, as Diagoras, who yet was an Atheist more with his tongue then with his heart; for having cryed down a Deity in a famous Oration, he yet suffered himself to be deified by the people for his Eloquence, Quâ ornari ab eo Diabolus quærebat, as Austin writeth to a learned, but lewd person of his times. See my Common-place of Atheism. Epicurus verbis reliquit Deos re sustulit, saith Cicero.

De Nat. Deor.

Verse 26. Into that which is against nature] So against nature, that children (natures end) and posterity is utterly lost by it; Paul seems to point here at Messalina (that shame of her sex) the wife of Claudius the Emperor.

Blunts Voyage. Verse 27. Leaving the natural] As at this day in the Levant, Sodomy is held no sin. The Turkish Basha's have many Wives, but more Catamites, which are their serious lovers.

ἐξεκαύθησαν. Burned in their lust] Gr. Were scalded. Some men put off all manhood, become dogs, worse then dogs. Hence Deut. 23. 18. The price of a dog, that is of a buggerer, as Junius and Deodatus expound it.

Verse 28. To a reprobate minde] Or, an injudicious minde: Or, a minde rejected, disallowed, abhorred of God: Or a minde that none hath cause to glory in, but rather to be much ashamed of.

Verse 29. With all unrighteousness] The mother of all the ensuing misrule.

πονηρία. Wickedness] the Syrian saith, Bitterness. See Jer. 2. 19. The word may be rendred troublesomness, as the Devil is called ὁ πονηρὸς, the troublesome one, the molester of Gods people: restless in himself, and disquieting others.

Envie, murther] These such Agnominations are found in this black bedrol. The Apostle

Digitized by Google

Apostle seems delighted with them, as was likewise the Prophet Isaiah. Of which noble two, I may well say, as one doth of Demosthenes and Cicero, Demosthenes Ciceroni præripuit ne esset primus Orator, Cicero Demosthenis, ne solus.

πορνεία. πονηρία. φθόνος. φόνου. ἀσυνέτους. ἀσυνθέτους. κακοήθειαι. κακοηθείας.

Malignity] Or, Moroseness, crossness, ill conditions; or an evil disposition, that taketh every thing the worst way; when as a better disposition would make a better exposition: and take things by the right handle.

Whisperers] These are worse then backbiters, because they work under-ground, like as the winde that creeps in the chinks and crevises in a Wall, or the cracks in a Window, prove commonly more dangerous then a storm that meets a man in the face, upon the champion.

A vento per colato, & ab inimico reconciliato libera nos. D. Cas. Comment. de bel. Alex.

Verse 30. Haters of God] And so God-murtherers, 1 Joh. 3.15. See the Note there.

Verse 31. Implacable] That will not hear of a truce, much less of a peace. Nihil se libentius facere dictitabat Cæsar, quam supplicibus ignoscere. And surely, as any one is more manly, he is more merciful, as David, 2 Sam. 1.12. And on the contrary, the basest natures are most vindictive; neither will they ever be heartily reconciled. Their reconciliations are vulpinæ amicitiæ. fox-like friendships.

Verse 32. Have pleasure] Or they patronize, applaud and approve: This is set last, as worst of all: it comprehends all kinds of consent. To hold the bag is as bad as to fill it. The Law of God requires not onely our observation but our preservation, to cause others to keep it, as well as our selves: and to rebuke, at least by a cast of our countenance (as God doth, Psal. 80.16.) those that violate it. There is little difference, faveas ne sceleri, an illud facias, whether thou commit sin, or consent to it.

συνηρέσει. Theoph.

Chap. II.

Verse 1. Therefore thou art inexcusable.]

THough thou have no pleasure in them that do evil, as Chap. 1.32. but dost superciliously censure them, being thy self otherwise as bad. Cato is said to have exercised usury, to have prostituted his wife, to have slain himself. God oft sets a Noverint universi upon the worlds wizards, for the foulest fools.

Verse 2. Which commit such] As Cato, ver. 1. whom yet Velleius affirmeth to have been, hominem virtuti simillimum. But God judgeth not as man.

Verse 3. Thinkest thou] This is preaching to the conscience, to the quick. Our exhortations should be as forked arrows to stick in mens hearts; and not wound onely, as other arrows. A poor Hermit came to our Rich. 1. Anno 1195. and preaching to him the words of eternal life, bad him be mindful of the subversion of Sodom, and to abstain from things unlawful: otherwise, said he, the deserved vengeance of God will come upon thee. The Hermit being gone, the King neglected his words. But afterwards, falling sick, he more seriously bethought himself, and waxing sound in soul as well as in body, he grew more devout, and charitable to the poor, &c.

Hoveden. Speed 428.

Verse 4. The goodness of God] Gr. His native goodness, ready to be imployed to the behoof and benefit of the creature, Tit. 3.4. Now as the beam of the Sun shining on fire, doth discourage the burning of that; so the shining of Gods mercies on us should dishearten and extinguish lust in us. This is so equal, and needful a duty, that Peter picks this flower out of Pauls garden, as one of the choysest, and urgeth it upon those to whom he writes, 2 Pet. 3.15.

τὸ χρηστὸν.

Verse 5. Treasurest up unto thy self] Sicut mittentes pecuniam in gazophylacium, quod, ubi jam impletur, confringitur, saith Stella upon Luke. In treasuring, there is, 1. Laying in. 2. Lying hid. 3. Bringing out again, as there is occasion. Wicked persons, whiles by following their lusts, they think they do somewhat to their happiness, shall in the end finde, Prothesauro carbones, those burning coals, Psal. 140.10.

Verse 6. Who shall render] The Papists hence infer merit of works. But it is well observed, that the Church in the Canticles is no where described by the beauty of her hands, or fingers. Christ concealeth the mention of her hands, that is, of her works: 1. Because he had rather his Church should abound in good works in silence, then boast of Cotton on Canticles.

Digitized by Google

Augustin. of them; especially when they are wanting) as Rome doth. 2. Because its he above that worketh all our works for us, *Isai.*26.12. *Hos.*14.4. *Joh.*15.5. Certum est nos facere quod facimus; sed ille facit, ut faciamus. We do what we do; but it is He that causeth us so to do.

See the Note on *Mat.*16.27.

Verse 7. Who by patient continuance] Or, By suffering persecution for righteousnes sake. Gordius the Martyr said, It is to my loss, if you bate me any thing in my sufferings. Majora certamina, majora sequuntur præmia, ὅσω πλείων κόπος, πολὺ χαρὰ ὁς, saith Ignatius, Much pains hath much gains.

Tertul epist. ad Polycarp.

ἐξ ἐριθείας. Verse 8. But unto them that are contentious] That wrangle and thwartle against clearest truths, searching the Devils skull for carnal arguments, as those Athenians, Act. 17. being refractory as Pharaoh, who would not sit down under the miracle, but sent for the Magicians. And though the Word doth eat up all they can say, as Moses his rod did, yet harden they their hearts as Pharaoh, and resolve to curse, as Balaam, whatever come of it. These are those contentious ones.

Salvian. Verse 9. Of the Jew first] Qui ideò deteriores sunt, quia meliores esse debuerunt. Who are therefore worse, because they should be better.

Verse 10. Peace] Safety here, and salvation hereafter.

To every man that worketh good] Yet not for his works sake, because no proportion between the work and the wages; no more then between a crown and a mushel. That wretched Monk therefore dyed blasphemously, who said, Redde mihi æternam vitam, quam debes, Pay me eternal life, that thou owest me. And how dare Bellarmine say, that Good Works are mercatura regni cœlestis, the price we pay for Heaven? Or that other Papist, God forbid, that we should enjoy Heaven as of meer alms to us: no, we have it by conquest. Strange impudence!

Verse 11. For] See the Note on Act. 10.34.

Verse 12. Perish without law] Or, Though they had no written law, as that of Moses.

Aug. Verse 13. But the doers of the law] The Scriptures are verba vivenda non legenda, as Egidius Abbot of Norimberg said of the 119. Psalm. Boni Catholici sunt qui & fidem integram sequuntur, & bonos mores. Lessons of musick must be practised, and a copy not read only, but acted. Divinity must be done as well as known.

Vell. lib. 2. Verse 14. Do by nature, &c.] Velleius saith that Cato was Homo virtutis similimus, cui id solum visum est rationem habere, quod haberet justitiam, omnibus humanis Plin. l. 7. c. 31. vitiis immunis, &c. Aristides, Phocion and Socrates were famous for their integrity.

Are a law to themselves] The Thracians gloried that they were αὐτόνομοι, living laws, walking statutes.

μεταξύ. Verse 15. Their thoughts mean while] Or, Betwixt whiles: Or in every interim of this life. Other faculties may rest; an obscene dream by night shall not scape conscience record; it is index, judex, vindex. Gods spy, and mans over-seer; and it is better to have it sore, then seared.

Verse 16. According to my Gospel] Which promiseth Heaven to Believers. This is comfort to those that are faithful in weakness, though but weak in faith. The sentence of the last day shall be but a more manifest declaration of that judgment that the Lord in this life, most an end, hath passed upon men. Heathens shall be judged by the law of Nature: Profligate Professors by the law written, and the Word preached: Believers by the Gospel, which saith, If there be a willing mind, God accepteth, &c.

Verse 17. Restest in the law] So spending thy time in a still dream, but thou shalt have sick waking, then when God shall send out summons for such sleepers. Men dream

Judg 7. their Midianitish dreams, and then tell them for Law or Gospel to their Neighbours.

Verse 18. Being instructed out of the law] Or. Being well catechized and principled, thou art able to discern of doctrines, and choose the best. Luther somewhere professeth κατηχ. himself to be discipulum catechismi, a Scholar to the Catechism; and those that are not well seen in the principles can make no good progress in religion.

Verse 19. Of the blind] The Chinois say, That all other Nations see but with one eye, eye, they with two. The Pharisees were called Pekachin aperti, open-eyed: because they only saw. One of them was called Or hagnolam, The light of the world. Are we also blind? say they to our Saviour. q. d. No; we scorn it: and yet how oft hear we in that one chapter Thou blind Pharisee, ye fools and blind? &c.

Digitized by Google

In scripture wise men only are termed seers, Pekachim Exod 23. 8. Mat. 23. μέγιστοι.

Verse 20. Which hast the form of knowledge] A platform of wholsome words, a systeme, a method artificially moulded, such as Tutors and Professours of Arts and Sciences have, and do read over again and again to their Auditors.

Verse 21. Teachest thou not thy self?] He that knows well and does worse, is but as a whiffler which carrieth a torch in his hand to shew others his own deformities. I have read of a woman, who living in professed doubt of the Godhead, after better illumination and repentance, did often protest, That the vitious life of a great scholar in that town did conjure up those damnable doubts in her soul. Neronis illud (quantus artifex pereo?) quadrabis in te peritum & periturum. That's the best Sermon that's dig'd out of a mans own breast. Origens teaching and living were said to be both one; Eusebius said that he preached not by his words only, but by his practise: and that thereby he had almost perswaded Alexander Severus the Emperour to be a Christian: his mother Mamaea, he fully perswaded. But Ferdinand 1. Emperour complained of some Divines, that they were in sua ipsorum vitia facundi satis, bitter against those vices in others which they too much favoured in themselves.

M. Wards Disp. of Pra & Non verbis solum sed exemplis Gramatici de Ulisse erroribus differentes suos non vident. Bern.

Verse 22. Thou that sayest] Hypocrites can talk of religion, as if their tongues did run upon pattens, they are fair professors, but foul sinners: as was that carnal Cardinal Cremensis that Popes Legat sent hither, An. 1114. to interdict Priests marriages: and being taken in the Act with a common strumpet, he excused it, by saying he was no priest himself, but a co rector of them.

Dost thou commit sacriledge?] The Chronicler noteth of Q. Mary, that she restored again all Ecclesiastical livings assumed to the Crown, saying, that she set more by the salvation of her own soul, than she did by ten Kingdoms. Shall not she that abhorred not Idols, rise up and condemn those that do, and yet commit sacriledge?

Speaks Chron.

Verse 23. Thorow breaking] By shooting short, or beyond, or wide of the Mark, by omission, commission, or failing in the manner.

Verse 24. For the Name of God, &c.] Hereticks and hypocrites do still with Judas deliver up the Lord Christ to the scoffs and buffetings of his enemies. Augustine complains of the antient hereticks, that in them many evil-minded men found matter of blaspheming the name of Christ, because they also pretended to the Christian religion. Epiphanius addeth, That for the looseness of such mens lives, and the baseness of their tenets, many of the Heathens shunned the company of Christians, and would not be drawn to hear their Sermons. Origen before them both cries out, Nunc malè audiunt, castigantque vulgò Christiani, quòd aliter quam sapientibus convenit, vivant, & vitia sub obtentu nominis colant, &c. There is an ill report goes of Christians for their unchristian conversation, &c. Ammianus Marcellinus, a Heathen Historian, deeply taxeth the pride, luxury, corruptions, covetousness of the Bishops in his time, and the deadly hatreds of common Christians. Nulla infestè hominibus bestia, sunt ut sibi feroles plerique Christiani, saith he. A sad thing that a Heathen should see and detest such hellish miscariages among Christians. Bellarmine telleth us of certain hereticks anciently called Christianecatagôri, that is, Accusers of Christians: because, for their sakes, Christians were accused as worshippers of Idols. Papists give the same offence to Jews, who call scandal Chillul Hashem, a profaning of Gods name, which they hold the greatest of sins.

Aug. de civ. Dei, l. 1. c. 52.

De epist. dei præam.

Am. Marc l. 22. cap. 2.

De Eccles. triumph. Lib. 2. cap. 11.

Verse 25. If thou keep the law] Which thou art thereby bound to do, either by thy self, or by thy Surety Christ Jesus.

Thy circumcision is made uncircumcision] Thou art no whit priviledged by it. Unregenerate Israel is to God as Ethiopia, Amos 9. 7.

Verse 26. If the uncircumcision] Which it can never do. But admit it could, &c.

Verse 27. Judge thee] Mens guilt is encreased by their obligations, as was Solomons in departing from God, who had appeared unto him twice, 1 King. 11. 9.

Verse 28. Neither is that circumcision] See Colos. 2. 11. with the Note there. Inward circumcision is (as Origen describeth it) Purgatio animæ & abjectio vitiorum, or (as Saint Paul in the place above named) the putting off old Adam with his actions, by the circumcision of Christ, by his merit and Spirit.

Verse

Ver. 29. Which is one inwardly] An Israelite indeed, Joh. 1. that hath put away the foreskin of his heart, Ier. 4. 4. That worshippeth God in spirit, reioyceth in Christ Iesus, and hath no confidence in the flesh, Phil. 3. 3.

Whose praise is not] He seeks not the applause of men, but Gods approbation; and holds the Euge of conscience far better the worlds Hic est. The holy Virgin was so far from affecting the vain praises of men, that she was troubled when truly praised of an Angel.

Chap. III.

Verse 1. What advantage]

GR. What odds, singular thing, prerogative? See my True Treasure, Chap. 7. Sect. 2.

τὸ περισσὸν.

Verse 2. Chiefly, because that, &c.] This was their prime priviledge, that they were Gods library-keepers, that this heavenly treasure was concredited unto them. Other Nations are said to have been without God, because without those lively oracles, 2 Chron. 15. 3. Ephes. 2. 12. Prize we this priviledge, and improve it. You must never expect another edition of the faith once received, Jude 3. once for all.

Verse 3. The faith of God] That is, his faithful promises, opposed to mans perfidy. Fides quia fit, quod dictum est. God is faithful, saith the Apostle oft.

Verse 4. Every man a lyar] viz. By nature. But Isa. 63. 8. Gods people are children that will not lye, they will dye rather. Non ideo negare volo, ne peream, sed ideo mentiri volo ne peccem, saith she upon the rack, of whom St. Hierom writeth. The officers of Meriadol answered the Bishop that moved them to abjure. That they marvelled much that he would perswade them to lye to God and the world. And albeit that all men by nature are lyars, yet they had learned by the Word of God, that they ought diligently to take heed of lying in any matter, be it never so small, &c.

Acts & Mon. fol. 866.

Every a man a lyar] So he is either by imposture, and so in purpose, or by impotency, and so in the event, deceiving those that relye upon him. Psal. 62. 9.

That thou maist be Justified in thy sayings] David speaketh of the truth of Nathans reprehension; Paul applies it to the truth of God in his promises also. Let us give him a testimonial, Joh. 3. 33. Such as is that Deut. 32. 4. A God of truth, and without iniquity, just and right is he.

And mightest overcome] Mayst be pure, saith David. Zacah in the Syriack is used for overcoming. Vincit veritas, & dare non dignis res magè digna Deo est.

Psal. 51.

Verse 5. Is God unrighteous] Such heart-boilings there were in the rejected Jews. And Iob said little less, till God over-hearing him, steps, as it were, from behind the hangings, and takes him up for it, Job. 38. 2. Who is this, saith he, that talketh thus? How now?

Verse 6. I speak as a man] q. d. Is there not such language heard in some mens hearts?

For then how shall God Judge the world] How shall every transgression and disobedience receive a just recompence of reward? Heb. 2. 2. Gods will is the absolute rule of right, nec tantum recta, sed regula.

Bonav. in li. 1. sent.

Verse 7. For if the truth of God] Here the former objection is repeated, explicated, and more fully answered, that every mouth might be stopped. Ferunt ranas lampade supra lacum, in quo tumultuantur, appensa, illius fulgore repercussas conticescere. So gain-sayers are silenced, when the truth is throughly cleared.

Lemelius.

Verse 8. As we be slanderously reported] So are the reformed Churches by the blackmouthed Papists. See the abatement of Popish brags by Alex. Cook, the Preface: Eudæmon Joannes against Casaubon, & Calvine Turcismum, &c.

Whose damnation is just] In the year of grace 1532. a Monk of Berline in Germany, who in the pulpit charged St. Paul with a lye, was suddenly smitten with an apoplexy, whiles the word was yet in his mouth, and fell down dead in the place on S. Stevens day, as they call it.

Sculset Annal.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verse 9. That they are all under sin] Whole evil is in man, and whole man in evil. Homo est inversus decalogus. Man, by nature is no better then a filthy dunghill of all abominable vices. His heart the devils storehouse, throne, nest. His eyes great thorowfares of lust, pride, vanity, &c. His life a long chain of sinful actions, a web of wickedness spun out and made up by the hands of the devil and the flesh, an evil spinner, and a worse Weaver. M. Whately his new birth.

Verse 10. As it is written] What the Prophets had said of some particular people or person, is here applied to the whole race of mankind, because by nature there is never a better of us, Κακοὶ μὲν θρῆτες, κακοὶ δ' Ἑλληνες. Eras. Adag.

Verse 11. None that seeketh] That seeketh and fetcheth him out of his retiring-room, as she did, Mark 7. 24, 25.

Verse 12. Become unprofitable] Or rotten, nasty, stinking, as the Hebrew hath it, Psal. 14. 3. The old world was grown so foul, that God was forced to wash it with a deluge.

Verse 13. The poison of the Asps] Of that sort of Asps that spit their venome far from them upon the by-standers. There is a great deal of such vermine and venome in that new-found world of wickedness, the tongue, Iam. 3. It is easie to observe, that S. Paul here making the anatomy of a natural man, stands more on the organs of speaking then all other members, and sheweth how his tongue is tipped with fraud, his lips tainted with venome, his mouth full of gall, his throat a gaping grave, his tongue as a rapier to run men thorow with, and his throat as a sepulchre to bury them in. As for the Asp, they write of her, That whereas her poison is so deadly, that the part infected cannot be cured but by cutting off, succurrit periclitantibus benignior natura, & noxiosissimo animali caliginosos obtutus dedit. Aspidi (saith Pliny) hebetes oculi dati, eosque non in fronte, sed in temporibus habet. Ptyades. Io. Wower. Plin. l. 8. c. 23.

Verse 14. Full] As a ship that hath it's full fraught and lading. Τέλειον.

Verse 15. Swift to shed blood] As Paul, till God stopt him in his cursed career.

Verse 16. They mind nothing but mischief.]

Verse 17. They are restless and troublesome.]

Verse 18. There is no fear of God] This is set last, as the source of all the former evils.

Verse 19. Guilty] Culpable, and such as cannot plead their own cause without an advocate. Chrysost.

Verse 20. Therefore by the deeds of the Law] This is directly against Popish justification by works, merits, &c. Those misled and muzled souls did worse then lose their labour that built religious houses, Pro remissione & redemptione peccatorum, pro remedio & liberatione animæ, in eleemosynam animæ, pro salute & requie animarum patrum & matrum, fratrum & sororum, &c. These were the ends that they aimed at, as appears in stories. And here observe how the once faithful city of Rome is now become an harlot: her silver is become dross, her wine mixt with water, yet with blood, now since the Council of Trent, Rev. 16. 3, 5. and this Epistle of Paul to the Romans, is now become the Epistle of Paul against the Romans: like as Roma is become Amor inversus. Act. & Mon. fol. 1077. Isa. 1. 21, 22.

Verse 21. But now] Since Christ came.

Verse 22. Upon all] So that none shall hinder their happiness.

Verse 23. All have sinned] The first man defiled the nature, and ever since the nature defileth the man. Adam was a parent, a publike person, a Parliament man, as it were; the whole countrey of mankind was in him, and fell with him.

Short of the glory of God] i. e. Of his image now obliterated, or of his kingdom, upon the golden pavement whereof no dirty dog must ever trample. It is an inheritance undefiled, 1 Pet. 1. 4.

Verse 24. Being justified freely] Because the Apostles word Δωρεὰν, is expounded by Varinus to be χαριτὶ ἀλλαγῆ, therefore Thammerus will needs conclude from this text, that God by justifying us, doth but pay for our pains, give us what we have earned. Cœlum gratis non accipiam, saith Vega. Opera bona sunt Cœli mercatura, saith another. Heaven is the purchase of good works.

By the Redemption] That is, By faith applying this redemption, wrapping her self in the golden Fleece of that Lamb of God.

Verse 25. To be a propitiation] Or a covering, in allusion to the Law; where the Ark covering the two Tables within it, the mercy ſeat covering the Ark, and the Cherubims covering the Mercy-ſeat and one another, ſhewed Chriſt covering the curſes of the Law, in whom is the ground of all mercy; which things the Angels deſire to pry into, as into the pattern of Gods deep wiſdom.

Digitized by Google

πάρεσιν. For the remiſſion of ſins] Gr. For the relaxation or releaſement of ſins, as of bonds or fetters.

ἔνδειξις. Verſe 26. To declare] Gr. For a clear demonſtration or pointing out with the finger.

Verſe 27. Where is boaſting then, &c.] A certain ſophiſter would hence prove the authority of the Church: He read the words thus, by a miſtake of their ſhort-hand-writing, Ubi eſt gloriatio? Eccleſia eſt, for excluſa eſt.

Speculum Europæ. Verſe 28. A man is juſtified by faith] Here St. Paul ſhews himſelf a pure Lutheran, and is therefore ſharply and blaſphemouſly cenſured by ſome Jeſuits for a hot-headed perſon, who was ſo tranſported with the pangs of zeal and eagerneſs beyond all compaſs in moſt of his diſputes, that there was no great reckoning to be made of his Aſſertions. Yea, he was dangerous to read, as ſavouring of hereſie in ſome places, and better perhaps he had never written. Four years before the Council of Trent, Cardinal Contarenus aſſerted the doctrine of juſtification by faith alone, in a juſt tractate, and was therefore ſoon after poiſoned. Cardinal Pool is thought to have been found in this point. Bellarmine reproves Pighius for conſenting to Luther herein, whom he undertook to confute, and yet Bellarmine himſelf with his tutiſſimum eſt, doth as much upon the matter. Magna eſt veritas, & valebit, Great is the truth, and ſhall prevail.

Verſe 29. Is he the God of the Jews only] That is, Doth he juſtifie the Jews only? For he is their God only whom he juſtifieth. Now men are ſaid to be juſtified effectively by God, apprehenſively by faith, declaratively by good works. The Schoolmen are very unſound in this capital Article of Juſtification, and are therefore the leſs to be regarded. Nam quæ de gratia Dei juſtificante Scholaſtici ſcribunt, commentitia univerſa exiſtimo, ſaith Cardinal Pighius, who is therefore much condemned by Bellarmine, but without cauſe.

Verſe 30. And uncircumciſion] All by one way, leſt he ſhould ſeem not to be one, but alius & alius.

Verſe 31. We eſtabliſh the Law] Which yet the Antinomians cry down, calling repentance a legal grace, humiliation a back-dore to heaven; grieving that they have grieved ſo much for their ſins, &c. that they have prayed ſo oft, and done other holy duties. Iſlebius Agricola, (the firſt Antinomian that ever was) and his followers, held theſe unſound opinions; That the law and works belong onely to the Court of Rome. That ſo ſoon as a man begins to think how to live godlily and modeſtly, he preſently wandereth from the Goſpel: That a man was never truly mortified, till he had put out al ſenſe of conſcience for ſin; that if his conſcience troubled him, that was his imperfection, he was not mortified enough: That St. Peter underſtood not Chriſtian liberty when he wrote thoſe words, Make your calling and election ſure: That good works were perniciosa ad ſalutem, deſtructive to mens ſouls: with a deal of ſuch traſh. Wendelinus. All which, this Iſlebius afterwards condemned and recanted in a publike Auditory, and printed his revocation. Yet when Luther was dead, he relapſed into the ſame errour, and hath at this day amongſt us too many diſciples. We have need therefore to take St. Pauls part, to ſtabliſh the law, to ſettle it, now that it is falling (as the Greek word ἱστῶμεν. ſignifies) to make it valid (as ſome copies have it) ſufficient and effectual to thoſe ends ἱστάνομεν. for which it was given: viz. to diſcover tranſgreſſion and to reſtrain it, Gal. 3. 19. to humble men for ſin, Rom. 3. 19, 20. to be a Schoolmaſter to Chriſt, and a rule of life, that, according to this royal law (Jam. 2. 8.) we may live royally above the rank of men, in obedience: whileſt by the Goſpel, we obtain grace in ſome meaſure to fulfill the law: having a counterpane of it in our hearts, and a diſpoſition anſwerable to it in all things (Heb. 8. 8, 9, 10. with 2 Cor. 3. 2, 3.) as the lead anſwers the mould, as tally anſwers tally, indenture indenture. That was a good ſaying of Luthers, Walk in the heaven of the Promiſe, but in the earth of the law: that in reſpect of believing: this of obeying. Another of his ſayings was, That in the juſtification of a ſinner, Chriſt and Faith were alone tanquam Sponſus cum Sponſa in thalamo, as the Bridegroom and Bride in the bed; howbeit it is ſuch a faith as works by love. A third golden ſaying of his was, He that can rightly diſtinguiſh betwixt Law and Goſpel, let him praiſe God for his skill, and know himſelf to tobe a good Divine.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

Chap. IV.

Verse 1. As pertaining to the flesh] That is, As touching his works, v. 2. called also the letter, cha. 2. 27. and the Law a carnal commandment. Heb. 7. 16.

Verse 2. But not before God] Who when he begins to search our sacks as the steward did Benjamins, can find out those our theeveries that we thought not of; bring to mind and light those sins that we had forgot, or not observed. When he comes to turn the Bottome of the bag upwards, it will be bitter with us. Abimelech's excuse was accepted, and yet his sin was chastised, Gen. 20. 6. Ex hominum vitâ quantumvis laudabili, si remotâ miseri cordiâ judicetur. The best Lamb should abide the slaughter, except the rams were sacrificed, that Isaac might be saved.

Verse 3. Abraham believed God] Latomus of Louan was not ashamed to write, That there was no other faith in Abraham, then what was in Cicero. And yet our Saviour saith, Abraham saw my day and rejoyced; so did Cicero never. Another wrote an aplogy for Cicero, and would needs prove him to have been a pious and penitent person, becaus in one place he hath these words, Reprehendo peccata mea, quod Pompeio confisus, ejusque partes secutus fuerim. A poor proof; Hoc argumentum tam facilè dilnitur, quàm vulpes comest pyrum. Ioh. Manlij loc. com. p. 496. Ibid. 481.

Verse 4. Now to him that worketh] Yet it is an act of mercy in God to render to a man according to his works, Psal. 62. 12. Exo. 20. 6. Gods Kingdom is not partum, but paratum, Mat. 25. 34. not acquired, but prepared.

But of debt] Not so indeed, Rom. 11. 31. but according to the opinion of the merit-monger, who saith as Vega, Cœlum gratis non accipiam.

Verse 5. His faith] Yet not as a work, nor in a proper sense, as Arminius and Bertius held, but as an act of receiving Christ.

That Justifieth the ungodly] i. e. Him that was ungodly; but being Justified, is made godly also; or the ungodly, that is, him that is not perfectly godly: for Abraham is here made the uugody person.

Verse 6. Unto whom God imputeth] Ten times the Apostle mentioneth this grace of imputed righteousnes in this Chapter. Yet the Papists jear it, calling it putative righteousnes, so speaking evil of the things they know not. Stories tell us of a Popish Bishop that lighting by chance upon this Chapter, threw away the book in great displeasure, and said, O Paule, an tu quoque Lutheranus factus es? Art thou also a Lutheran, Paul? But if the faith of another may be profitable to infants at their Baptism, as Bellarmine holdeth, why should it seem so absurd a thing, that Christs righteousnes imputed, should profit those that believe on him? The Jews indeed at this day being asked, Whether they believe to be saved by Christs righteousnes? They answer, That every Fox must pay his own skin to the flaier. Thus they reject the righteousnes of God, Rom. 10. 3. As their Fathers did, so do they, Act. 7. 51. The Lord open their eyes, that they may convert and be saved. Manlij loc. com. p. 491.

Verse 7. Are covered] Sic velantur ut in judicio non revelentur: So covered as that he never see them again, but as the Israelites saw the Egyptians dead on the shore.

Verse 8. Imputeth not] Chargeth it not, setteth it not upon his score, 2 Cor. 5. 19.

Verse 9. Commeth this blessedness] This is the third time that the Apostle avoucheth the universality of the subject of Justification. For this he had done once before, Chap. 3. 23. and again cha. 3. 29. 30, 31. The Scripture doth not, use (saith one) to kill flies with beetles to cleave straws with wedges of Iron, to spend many words where there's no need.

Verse 10. In circumcision] As the Jew would have it: No such matter.

Verse 11. A seal of the righteousness] Circumcision is called a sign, and a seal by a Doctour of the Jews, more antient then their Talmud. Zohar, Gen. 17.

That righteousness might be imputed] How fooliish is that inference of Thamnerus, that becaus the word here used to signifie imputed, comes of a word that signifies reason, therefore the righteousnes of faith must be such as a man may understand and comprehend by reason? λογίζεσθαι λόγος.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 12. Walk in the ſteps] That herein perſonate and expreſs him to the life; as Conſtantines children (ſaith Euſebius) did their father.

Verſe 13. Heir of the world] That is, Of heaven, ſay ſome; of Canaan, ſay others, the pleaſant Land, more eſteemed of God then all the world beſides, becauſe it was the ſeat of the Church. As man is called every creature, Mark 16.15. the Church is called all things, Col. 1. So Canaan is called the world, and Tabor and Hermon put for the Eaſt and Weſt of the whole world, Pſal. 89.12.

Verſe 14. Faith is made voyd] See the Note on Gal. 3. 12. and 5.2. That Epiſtle to the Galathians is an Epitome of this to the Romans, and lends light to it. Its compendium, ſed non diſpendium.

Verſe 15. No tranſgreſſion] ſc. Is imputed by men where there is no law written, See Chap. 5.13.

The law worketh wrath] That is, manifeſteth it, and ſo ſeemeth to work it: as likewiſe affliction doth corruption in Gods children: ſtir the puddle with a ſtick, and the mud will ſoon be on the top of the water. Rub the brand, and ſparkles will flie abroad.

Verſe 16. It is of faith] Fidei mendicâ manu.

That it might be by grace] Paul was a great advancer of the grace of God, and abaſer of man: For he knew that as wax and water cannot meet together, ſo neither can Chriſt and any thing elſe, in the work of mans ſalvation.

Verſe 17. Who quickneth the dead] As he doth, when he maketh a man a Believer, Epheſ. 1.19. he fetcheth heart of Oak out of a hollow tree, and a ſpiritual man out of a wilde-aſs-colt. See both theſe Metaphors, Job 11.12.

Verſe 18. Who againſt hope &c. Elegans Antanaclaſis propter ſpeciem contradictionis, ſaith Piſcator. Spes in terrenis, incerti nomen boni: ſpes in divinis, nomen eſt certiſſimi, ſaith another.

Believed in hope] It is the nature of Faith to believe God upon his bare word; and that againſt ſenſe in things inviſible, againſt reaſon in things incredible: Senſe corrects imagination, reaſon corrects ſenſe, but Faith corrects both. It will not be, ſaith ſenſe; it cannot be, ſaith Reaſon: it both can and will be, ſaith Faith; for I have a promiſe for it.

κατενόησε. Verſe 19 He conſidered not] Gr. He cared not for all his own body, &c. he never thought of that.

When he was about an hundred years old] This the Scripture makes a great matter; whereas Terah was an hundred and thirty when he begat Abraham; but becauſe Abraham had his child by Faith, therefore was it a great matter. And ſo (ſaith a Divine) in all other things that we have, do, or ſuffer, if they be by Faith, they are great things.

Verſe 20. Giving glory to God] Confeſſing and exalting God, as Luk. 17.18. giving him a teſtimonial, as it were, Joh. 3.33. with Deut. 32.4.

πληροφορηθείς. Verſe 21. Being fully perſwaded] Gr. Being carryed on with full ſail, and going gallantly towards Heaven.

Diodat. Verſe 22. See the Note on Verſe 5,6. God, by reaſon of his faith, held him to be as ſufficiently diſpoſed to obtain the accompliſhment of his promiſes, as if he had had all the righteouſneſs required by the Law to receive Gods benefits.

Verſe 23. For his ſake alone] But for our inſtruction and encouragement, Rom. 15.4. See the Note there.

Verſe 24. That raiſed up Jeſus] And with him all Believers, Col. 3.1. Rom. 6.4.

Verſe 25. Who was delivered, &c.] Not that his death had no hand in our juſtifying: but becauſe our juſtification begun in his death, was perfected by his reſurrection. Redemption we have by Chriſts abaſement, application of it by his advancement. This one verſe is an abridgement of the whole Goſpel, the ſum of all the good news in the World. The grand inqueſt of all the ancient Prophets, 1 Pet. 1.11. Adore we the fulneſs of the holy Scriptures.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

Chap. V.

Verse 1. Being justified by faith.]

As he had said, Chap. 4.24.

We have peace with God] A blessed calm lodged in our consciences: Like as when Jonas was cast overboard, there followed a tranquillity. This is that continual feast, a very heaven afore-hand, an anticipation of glory. εἰρήνην ἔχομεν. εἰρήνη.

Verse 2. We have access] Christ leading us by the hand, and presenting us to the Father, with, Behold, here am I, and the children whom thou hast given me, Ephes. 2.18. ἐσχήκαμεν.

Wherein we stand] Not stirring a foot, for any temptation or persecution. A Metaphor from Souldiers keeping their station in the battle. ἑστήκαμεν.

Verse 3. We glory in tribulations] As an old Souldier doth in his scars of honour. See Gal. 6.17. 2 Cor. 7.4. Feri Domine, feri: nam à peccatis absolutus sum, saith Luther; Strike Lord, and spare not; sith I am acquitted by thee from my sins. Seca ambas, cryed out that good Bishop, when his hand was threatned to be cut off. A man that hath got his pardon, is not troubled though he lose his glove or handkerchief, nor though it should prove a rainy day.

Verse 4. And experience, hope] Without hope patience is cold almost in the fourth degree, and that is but a little from poyson.

Verse 5. Hope maketh not ashamed] As among men, many lie languishing at Hopes hospital, as he did at the Pool of Bethesda, Joh. 5. and return as they did from the Brooks of Tema, Job 6.17. Or, as men go to a Lottery with heads full of hopes, but return with hearts full of blanks. The Dutch have a Proverb to this purpose, Sperare & expectare, multos reddit stultos. And we say, He that hopes for dead men shooes, may hap go bare-foot. Bad mens hopes may hop headless, they may perish in the height of their expectancies. Not so those that hope in God: they shall yet praise him who is the help of their countenance, and their God, Psal. 43. ult. Nunquam confusi, Deo confisi.

Verse 6. Christ dyed for] A sufficient evidence of Gods dearest and deepest love shed abroad in our hearts, as a most sweet oyntment.

Verse 7. Yet peradventure for a good man] For a publike person. Lilloe stept between the murderer and King Edwin his master to intercept the deadly thrust. A common souldier lost his life at Musselborough field to save the Earl of Huntlies life: so did Nicolas Ribische to rescue Prince Maurice at the siege of Pista. Speeds Chron. lib. 7 cap. 20. Life of K. Ed. 6. pag. 37. Turk. hist. fol. 730.

Verse 8. God commendeth, &c.] Herein God laies naked to us, the tendereſt bowels of his fatherly compassions, as in an anatomy. A yong Student in History (saith Polybius) should have the whole history of the world under his view: and should reduce all into one body. God, by giving his Son for us, shewed us all his love at once, as it were imbodyed. All other spiritual blessings meet in this, as the lines in the center, as the streams in the fountain. If the Centurion were held worthy of respect because he loved our nation (said they) and built us a Synagogue; what shall we say of Almighty God, who so loved our souls, that he gave his onely begotten Son, &c. ἀνὰ μίαν συνοψιν ἄγειν καὶ σωματοποιεῖν. Polyb.

Christ dyed for us] Behold how he loved him, said those Jews, when they saw Christ weep for him, Joh. 11. 37. What shall we say of this love of his beyond compare, in bleeding for us? Anima amorem illius, &c. On love that love of his, and never leave meditating on it, donec totus fixus in corde, qui totus fixus in cruce, till he be wholy fixed in your hearts, who was wholy fastened to the Tree for you sakes. Bern.

Verse 9. Much more then] It is a greater work of God to bring men to grace, then being in the state of grace, to bring them to glory: because sin is far more distant from grace, then grace is from glory.

Verse 10. We shall be saved] Here the Apostle reasoneth from regeneration to eternal life, as the lesser.

Verse 11. Not only so] Not in tribulation only do we glory (as ver. 3.) but in the whole course of our lives. Yet not without some damps and dumps, whilest here; whilest I live, (saith Rollock) I never look to see perfect reformation in the Church, or feel perfect ravishing.

Digitized by Google

raviſhing joys in mine heart. Here Chriſt comes to his Spouſe as a wooer only, and gives her no more then the prelibations & foretaſts of his love, as a bunch of the grapes of Canaan.

Verſe 12. As by one man] Yet Anabaptiſts deny original ſin, as did alſo the Pelagians of old, confuted by Auguſtine. Egranus a German Preacher ſaid (as Melachon reporteth) that original ſin is a meer fiction of Auguſtine, & other Divines; and that, becauſe there was no ſuch word found in the Scriptures. Papiſts ſay that original ſin is the ſmalleſt of all ſins, not deſerving any more of Gods wrath, then only a want of his beatifical preſence: and that too, without any pain or ſorrow of mind from the apprehenſion of ſo great a loſs. There have been amongſt us, that have ſaid, that original ſin is not forbidden by the Law. Directly indeed, and immediately it is not: but forbidden it is, becauſe curſed and condemned by the Law. In original ſin is a tacite conſent (eminently) to all actual ſin. And ſome underſtand this text of all ſin, both original and actual.

Ioh. Manl. loc. com pag. 486.

Moulins Anatom. Armin. c. 8. Wotton on Ioh. p. 146. Συλλογ.

And ſo death paſſed upon all men] As a ſentence of death on a condemned malefactor: or, as thoſe diſeaſes that are called by Phyſitians, Corruptio totius ſubſtantiæ; or as the rot over-runneth the whole flock.

Verſe 13. Sin is not imputed] In mens eſteem, as Chap. 4. 15.

Verſe 14. Death raigned] From the raign of death, he concludes the raign of ſin. Infants are no innocents: the firſt ſheet or blanket wherein they are covered is woven of ſin, ſhame, blood and filth, Ezek. 16 4. 6.

Verſe 15. Many be dead] Many is here put for all, as all for many, 1 Tim. 2. 3.

Verſe 16. Of many offences] i.e. Of all, whether imputed to us, inherent in us, or iſſuing from us.

Verſe 17. Abundance] That is, abundant grace.

Verſe 18. By the offence of one] We were all in Adam, as the whole Countrey in a Parliament-man. And although we choſe not, God choſe for us.

Verſe 19. Many] That is, All, except Chriſt, ſinners, tainted with ſins, guilt and filth.

Act. and Mon. fol. 1650.

Verſe 20. But where ſin abounded] But then it is where ſin that abounded in the life, abounds in the conſcience in grief and deteſtation of it, as the greateſt evil. Bonner objected to Mr Philpot, Martyr, that he found written in his book, In me Joanne Philpot ubi abundavit peccatum, ſuperabundavit & gratia. This he ſaid was an arrogant ſpeech. Novum crimen, C. Cæſar.

That the offence might abound] Either by accident, through mans corruption, and not of Gods intention, Rom. 7. 13. Or if ἵνα be taken cauſally, it muſt be interpreted by Gal. 3. 19. God gave the law after the promiſe, to advance the promiſe. The law was added becauſe of tranſgreſſion, &c. that hereby guilt and danger being diſcovered, we might acknowledge the riches of free-grace and mercy.

Verſe 21. That as ſin hath raigned] That is, the wrath of God by ſin.

Through righteouſneſs] Imputed and imparted.

By Jeſus Chriſt] See how ſweetly the end anſwers the beginning of the Chapter, and how Chriſt is both Author and Finiſher, &c.

Chap. VI.

Verſe 1. Shall we continue]

Quaſi dicat, That were moſt unreaſonable, and to an ingenuous nature, impoſſible. To argue from mercy to liberty, is the Devils Logick. Should we not after deliverance yield obedience, ſaid holy Ezra? Chap. 9. 13, 14. A man may as truly ſay, the Sea burns, or fire cools, as that certainty of ſalvation breeds ſecurity and looſeneſs.

Verſe 2. Live any longer therein] Fall into it we may and ſhall: but it is not the falling into the water that drowns, but lying in it: ſo it is not falling into ſin that damns, but living in it.

Verſe 3. Baptized into his death] Hoc eſt baptizari pro mortuis, ſaith Beza, to be buried with Chriſt in baptiſm, Col. 2. 12. in putting off the body of the ſins of the fleſh, verſe 11.

Verſe 4. We are buryed] Burial is a continuing under death; ſo is mortification a continuate dying to ſin, Mors quædam perpetuata; Sin is by degrees abated, and at length aboliſhed, when once our earthly tabernacles are diſſolved.

Walk

Digitized by Google

Walk in newneſs of life] Reſurrectione Domini configuratur vita, quæ hîc geritur. Walk as Chriſt walked after his reſurrection.

Verſe 5. For if we have been planted] Burying is a kind of planting. The Dutch call the burial-place Godſaker.

Verſe 6. The body of ſin] For whole evil is in man, and whole man in evil.

Is crucified] Which is a lingering, but a ſure death.

Should not ſerve ſin] As thoſe do that commit it, Joh. 34. not only act it, but are acted by it, having as many Lords as Luſts, Victors as vices. Tit. 3.3.

Verſe 7. Is freed from ſin] Anacreon ſaith the like, ὁ θανὼν ἐκ ἐπθυμεῖ; Death is the accompliſhment of mortification. It doth at once, what death doth by degrees. Herbs and flowers breed worms, which yet at laſt kill the herbs and flowers: So ſin bred death, but at laſt death will kill ſin. A mud-wall whiles it ſtandeth, harboureth much vermine; which when it falleth, flee away: So doth corruption, when once theſe cottages of clay fall to ruine.

Verſe 8. We ſhall alſo live] Then we are ſaid properly to live, when our regeneration is perfected in heaven. To live here, is but to lie a dying.

Verſe 9. Death hath no more, &c.] Chriſt, being the life eſſential, ſwallowed up death in victory, as the fire ſwalloweth up the fuel, and as Moſes his ſerpent ſwallowed up the Sorcerers ſerpents.

Verſe 10. He dyed unto ſin] That is, To aboliſh ſin, as Chap. 8. 2.

Verſe 11. Reckon ye alſo] By faith, reaſon and reckon your ſelves wholly dead in and through Chriſt, who once dyed perfectly to ſin, as a common perſon.

Verſe 12. Let not ſin therefore] As if the Apoſtle ſhould ſay, we preach purity and not liberty, as the adverſary ſuggeſteth, v. 1. of this Chapter with Chap. 3. 8. Let not ſin raign: rebel it will; but do not actively obey and embrace the commands of ſin, as ſubjects to your King. Let ſin be dejected from its regency, though not utterly ejected from its reſidency: Give it ſuch a deadly wound that it may be ſure to die within a year and a day. Sprunt it may, and flutter as a bird, when the neck is broke, but live it muſt not.

Verſe 13. Unto ſin] As Satans General, who hath his trenches, 2 Cor. 10. 4. His Commanders, as here, and his fighting ſouldiers, 1 Pet. 2. 11. His weapons, as here.

Verſe 14. Sin ſhall not have dominion] Rebel it may, but raign it ſhall not in any Saint. It fareth with ſin in the regenerate, as with thoſe beaſts, Dan. 7. 12. they had their dominion taken away, yet their lives were prolonged for a ſeaſon and a time.

Ye are not under the Law] i. e. Under the rigour, irritation, curſe of the Law, Quatenus eſt virtus peccati. Or, ye are not under the Law, &c. of ſin, as Rom. 7. 23, 25.

Verſe 15. Shall we ſin, becauſe, &c.] Some Antinomian Libertines would perſwade men, That God is never diſpleaſed with his people, though they fall into adultery, or the like ſin, no not with a fatherly diſpleaſure: That God never chaſtiſeth his people for any ſin, no not with a fatherly chaſtiſement. That God ſeeth no ſin in his elect: that the very being of their ſin is aboliſhed out of Gods ſight: that they cannot ſin: or if they do, it is not they but ſin that dwelleth in them, &c. What is this but to turn the grace of God into wantonneſs, which there-hence becometh the ſavour of death to death unto them: like as Moſes his rod, caſt on the ground, turned to a ſepent; or as dead mens bodies, when the marrow melteth, do bring forth ſerpents? Corruptio optimi peſſima. See M. Calamies Serm. to the houſe of Commons, Octob. 22. An. Dom. 1644.

Verſe 16. His ſervants ye are] Sinners, though not drunk, yet are not their own men, but at Satans beck and check, whom they ſeem to defie, but indeed deifie.

Verſe 17. That form of doctrine] Gr. That type or mould; the Doctrine is the mould, hearers the mettal, which takes impreſſion from it in one part as well as another. And as the mettal hath been ſufficiently in the furnace, when its not only purged from the droſs, but willingly receiveth the form and figure of that which it is caſt and poured into: ſo here.

Verſe 18. Verſus eſt planus, ſaith Pareus.

Verſe 19. After the manner of men] That is vulgarly, Craſſius & rudius loquor, by a ſimlitude drawn from humane affairs of eaſie and ordinary obſervation.

To uncleanneſs, and to iniquity] Mark the oppoſition, there are three To's in the expreſſion of the ſervice to ſin: but in the ſervice of God only two. Wicked men take great pains for hell; would they but take the ſame for heaven, they could not likely miſs of it.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 20. Free from Righteouſneſs] That is, Utterly void of grace, and did therefore ſin luſtily and horribly, earneſtly oppoſing with creſt and breſt, whatſoever ſtood in the way of their ſins and luſts.

Verſe 21. Whereof ye are aſhamed] Where ſin is in the ſaddle, ſhame is on the crupper. Men would have the ſweet, but not the ſhame of ſin; and the credit of religion, but no go to the coſt of it.

Verſe 22. Become ſervants to God] Phraſis vulgatiſſima eſt, Deum colere. Non ſecus atq; agri fertiles inprimis & optimi, ſic Dei cultus, fructus fert ad vitam æternam uberrimos.

Ye have your fruit unto holineſs] Every good work encreaſeth our holineſs, and ſo hability for obedience.

ὀψώνιον. Ἁμαρτία ψυχὴν θανάτου, ἡ δὲ ἀνάπαυσις ψυχῆς. Nazianz. Chemnit. de Theol Ieſuitar.

Verſe 23. For the wages of ſin] The beſt largeſs or congiary that ſin gives to his ſoldiers, is death of all ſorts. This is the juſt hire of the leaſt ſin. The Jeſuites would perſwade us, that ſome ſins againſt which the Law thundereth and lightneth, are ſo light in their own nature, Ut factores nec ſordidos, nec malos, nec impios, nec Deo exoſos reddere poſſint. But as there is the ſame roundneſs in a little ball as in a great one; ſo the ſame diſobedience, in a ſmall ſin, as in a greater. Indeed there is no ſin little, becauſe no little God to ſin againſt. Every ſin hales hell at the very heels of it.

Chap. VII.

Verſe 1. Know ye not Brethren]

Bellarmine ſaith of his Romans (more true perhaps of theſe) Romani ſicut non acuti mina, ita nec impoſturas habent. As they are not very knowing, ſo not cunning to deceive.

Verſe 2. She is looſed &c.] And ſo at liberty to marry again, though Hierom compare ſuch to the unclean beaſts in the Ark, and to veſſels of diſhonour in an houſe, yea to dogs that return to their vomit, which was his errour. Patres legendi cum venia, ſaith one.

M. Edwards his Gangr. par. 2. p. 141.

Verſe 3. So then if] The Sectaries then are out, that ſay now-adays, that if they have husbands and wives that will not turn Saints, that is Sectaries, they may leave them, and marry others.

Verſe 4. That we ſhould bring forth fruit] The Miniſtery of the Word, ſaith one, is the bridal-bed, wherein God by his Spirit doth communicate with our ſouls his ſweeteſt favours, and maketh them be conceived with the fruits of righteouſneſs to everlaſting life.

παθήματα.

Verſe 5. In the fleſh] In our pure naturals.

The motions of ſin] Thoſe maladies of the ſoul.

By the Law] By the irritation of the law.

ἐνηργεῖτο.

Did work] Gr. Did inwardly work.

Verſe 6. Not in the oldneſs of the letter] That is, Not in that old kind of life that we lived under ſubjection to the law, to the irritation, coaction, and curſe of it.

Verſe 7. I had not known luſt] Involuntary evil motions. The Apoſtle calleth concupiſcence ſin, ſaith Poſſevine the Jeſuite, but we may not ſay ſo. Moſt of the moſt dangerous opinions of Popery ſpring from hence, that they have ſlight conceits of concupiſcence, as a condition of nature. But inward bleeding will kill a man, ſo will concupiſcence, if not bewailed. The Council of Trent ſaith, That it is not truly and properly a ſin, albeit it be ſo called, becauſe it proceeds from ſin, and enclines a man to ſin. Neither want there amongſt us that ſay, that original ſin is not forbidden by the law; Directly indeed, and immediately it is not: but forbidden it is, becauſe curſed and condemned by the law.

Poſſevin. Apparat ſun verbo. Pat. Antiq.

I had not known ſin] The law of nature diſcovers not Original ſin with its evil luſts. True it is that a Philoſopher could ſay,

Timon apud Laertium. πάντων μὲν πρώτιστα κακὸν ἐπιθυμία ἔστιν

Concupiſcence

Digitized by Google

Concupiſence is the root of all evil: but whether he underſtood what himſelf ſaid, I greatly queſtion. Erras, ſi tecum vitia naſci putas, ſaith Seneca; ſupervenerunt, ingeſta ſunt. Thou miſtakeſt if thou thinkeſt that thy vices were born with thee: they came in ſince, they were brought into thee. Tam ſine vitio quam ſine virtute naſcimur, ſaith another: we were born as well without vice, as without Virtue. Quintilian ſaith it is more marvel that one man ſinneth, then that all men ſhould live honeſtly; ſin is ſo againſt the nature of man.

Thou ſhalt not covet] The word Concupiſco is Inceptive: to ſhew (ſaith One) that the very firſt motion is ſin, though no conſent be yielded.

Verſe 8. By the commandment] Not Commandments. Papiſts aboliſhing, or at leaſt deſtroying the ſenſe of the ſecond Commandment, by making it a member of the firſt, that they may retain the number of ten words (ſo loth are heretickes to have their Aſſes ears ſeen) they divide this laſt; which yet Paul here cals the Commandment; and ſure he knew better then they, the Analyſis of the law.

Wrought in me all manner of concupiſcence] The more the law would damn up the torrent of ſinful luſts, the higher did they ſwell. Corruption doth increaſe and begin by the law: The more God forbids ſin, the more we bid for it; as if we did ſin on purpoſe to provoke God; as if God had need deal with us as he did in the ſtory, who was wont to command the contrary when he would have any thing done: becauſe he knew they would croſs him. Howbeit, although ſin thus take occaſion by the law: yet this is per accidens, as in the dropſy, it is not the drink that is to be blamed for increaſing the diſeaſe, but the ill diſtemper of the body. Nitimur in vetitum.

Verſe 9. For I was alive] As being without ſenſe of ſin, and conſcience of duty.

Sin revived] ſc. In ſenſe and appearance.

And I died] ſc. In pride and ſelf-juſtice.

Verſe 10. Ordained to life] By life and death, underſtand peace and perturbation.

Verſe 11. Deceived me] Irritated my corrupt nature, and made me ſin the more, per accidens, as Pharaoh was the worſe for a meſſage of diſmiſſion.

Verſe 12. The Commandment] Vis legis in mandando & præcipiendo. The word properly ſignifieth an affirmative precept.

Verſe 13. Exceeding ſinful] Sin is ſo evil that it cannot have a worſe Epethite given it. Paul can call it no worſe then by it's own name ſinful ſin. ὑπερβολὴν

Verſe 14. Sold under ſin] But yet ill-apaid of my ſlavery, and luſting after liberty.

Verſe 15. I allow not] Gr. I know not, as being preoccupated, Gal. 6. 1. wherried and whirled away by ſin before I am aware, or have time to conſider. ἀγινώσκω.

Verſe 16. I conſent unto the law] I vote with it, and for it, as the rule of right, I wiſh alſo well to the obſervance of it, as David did, Pſal. 119. 45.

Verſe 17. It is no more I] Mr. Bradford Martyr, in a certain Letter thus comforteth his friend; At this preſent, my dear heart in the Lord, you are in a bleſſed eſtate, although it ſeem otherwiſe to you, or rather to your old Adam; the which I dare now be bold to diſcern from you, becauſe you would have it not only diſcerned, but alſo utterly deſtroyed. God (ſaith another reverend man) puts a difference between us and ſin in us, as betwixt poyſon and the box that holds it. Act. & Mon. fol. 1497. M. Harris. Sam. Fun.

Sin that dwelleth in me] An ill Inmate that will not out, till the houſe falleth on the head of it; as the fretting leproſie in the wals of an houſe would not out till the houſe it ſelf were demoliſh'd. Sin, as Hagar, will dwel with grace, as Sara, til death beat it out of doors.

Verſe 18. Dwelleth no good thing] Horreo quicquid de me eſt, ut ſine meum, ſaith Bernard. It was no ill wiſh of him that deſired God to free him from an ill man, himſelf. For, though engraffed into Chriſt, yet we carry about us a reliſh of the old ſtock ſtill. Corruption is though dejected from it's regency, yet not ejected from it's inherency: It intermingleth with our beſt works. Domine, libera me à malo hoc meipſo.

How to perform] Gr. To do it thoroughly; though I am doing at it, as I can.

Verſe 19. For the good, &c.] Nature like Eve and Job's wife is allwayes drawing us from God. As the fery-man plies the oar, and eyes the ſhore homeward, where he would be, yet there comes a guſt of wind that carries him back again: ſo it is with a Chriſtian. Corruption egg'd with a temptation, gets as it were the hill, and the wind, and upon ſuch advantages, too oft prevaileth. κατηφιάζω.

Verſe 20. It is no more I] Every new man is two men. See the note above on Verſe 17.

Digitized by Google

But sin that dwelleth in me] A scripture ill applied by that female Antinomian; who when her mistress charged her for stealing her linnens and other things which she found in her chest or trunk, she denied that she stole them; and when she was asked how they came to be laid and locked up there? Did not you do this? No said she, it was not I, but sin that dwelleth in me. See the note on chap. 6.15. & 7.17.

Mr. Ley his Light for smoke. pag. 85.

Verse 21. When I would do good] Something lay at the fountain head, as it were, and stopt him when he would do his duty. But God valueth a man by his desires. There oft commeth a prohibition from Chancery to stay proceedings at common law: so here; when we would pray, meditate, confer, &c. we are hindered and interrupted. But God considereth it: and as the service of a sick child is doubly accepted: so here.

Tota vita boni Christiani sanctum desiderium est. Aug.

Evil is present] We can stay no more from sinning, then the heart can from panting, and the pulse from beating. Our lives are fuller of sins then the firmament of stars, or the furnace of sparks. Erasmus was utterly out, that said with Origen, Paulum hoc sermone balbutire; quum ipse potiùs ineptiat, saith learned Beza. So Joannes Sylvius, Egranus a learned, but a prophane person, reprehended Paul for want of learning, and said Quòd usus sit declamatorijs verbis, non congruentibus adrem, &c. Nominabat sophisma, quod dicceremus homines non posse implere legem, &c.

Joh. Manl. loc. com. 165. 486.

Verse 22. I delight] Germanicus reigned in the Romans hearts, Tiberius but in the Provinces. So here.

Verse 23. A law in my members] Called the deeds of the body, Rom. 8. 13. because corruption acteth and uttereth it self by the members of the body. The παρεμφία (vox Empedoclea) is within, but easily and often budgeth and breaketh out.

Ἐπιθυμίαν. Plato πολυνίφαλον appellat. Phædro.

Warring against the law] The regenerate part. Plato in Cratylo pulchrè ait: Ut mentem appellamus νοῦν, ita legem dicimus νόμον, quasi μέρος τι νοῦ, alioqui mens hominum vagatur.

And bringing me into captivity] The sins of the Saints (those of daily incursion) are either of precipitancy, as Gal. 6.1. or of infirmity: when a man wrestles, and hath some time to fight it out, but for want of breath and strength, fals, and is in some captivity to the law of sin. This is the worse.

D. Preston.

Verse 24. O wretched man] We must discontentedly be contented to be exercised with sin, while we are here. It is so bred in the bone, that till our bones, as Joseph's, be carried out of the Egypt of this world, it will not out. The Romans so conquered Chosroes the Persian, that he made a law, that never any King of Persia should move war against the Romans. But let us do what we can to subdue sin, it will be a Jebusite, a false borderer, yea, a rank traitour, rebelling against the Spirit. Only this we may take for a comfortable sign of future victory, when we are discontent with our present ill estate. Grace will get the upper hand, as nature doth, when the humours are disturbed, and after many fits. And as till then there is no rest to the body; so neither is there to the soul. The conflict between flesh and spirit is as when two opposite things meet together, (cold salt-peter and hot brimstone), they make a great noise. So doth Paul here, Miserable me, &c. Basil fitly compareth him to a man thrown off his horse, and dragged after him, crying out for help. Another, to one that is troubled with a disease called the Mare or Ephialtes: which (in his slumber) maketh him think that he feels a thing as big as a mountain lying on his breast: which he can no way remove, but would fain be rid of.

Evagrius.

Who shall deliver me] Nothing cleaves more pertinaciously, or is more inexpugnable, then a strong lust.

From this body of death] Or, this dead body, by an Hebraism, this carcase of sin to which I am tyed and langold as noysome every whit to my soul, as a dead body to my senses; and as burdensome, as a withered arm, or mortified limb which hangs on a man, as a lump of lead. Some remnants of sin God hath left in us to clear to us his Justifying grace by Christs righteousness. This the Apostle fals admiring, Rom. 8.1. Now then there is no condemnation, &c. As I might well have expected, being carried captive to the law of sin. Herein also Christ deals as some Conquerours, who had taken their enemies prisoners, but yet killed them not immediately, till the day of triumph came. This will keep the Saints Nothing in their own eyes, even when they are filled brim-ful with grace and glory in another world.

Plutarch.

Verse 25. I thank God, &c.] The Grecians being delivered but from bodily servitude by Flaminius the Roman General, called him their Saviour; and so rang out, Saviour, Saviour, that the fouls in the air fell down dead with the cry. How much greater cause have we to magnifie the grace of Christ, &c.

So

Digitized by Google

So then, with the mind, &c.] The ſtars by their proper motion are carried from the Weſt to the Eaſt: And yet by the motion of obedience to the firſt mover, they paſs along from the Eaſt unto the Weſt. The waters by their natural courſe follow the center of the earth, yet yielding to the Moon, they are ſubject to her motions; So are Saints to Gods holy will, though corrupt nature repine and reſiſt. Grace is the Prince in the regenerate ſoul. The will may ſometimes be drawn away from the King, and flye to the enemy, as David fled to Achiſh for fear: Yet when he went abroad to fight, he killed the Philiſtins in the South-Countrey, and he carried ſtill a loyal heart to his King; ſo in this caſe. A raviſhed woman vexari poteſt, violari non poteſt, may be vexed, but not violated. We read of one that (when ſhe could not otherwiſe help her ſelf) thruſt her ſhears into the belly of an unclean Biſhop, that would have forced her. Godw. Cat. p. 452.

Chap. VIII.

Verſe 1. There is therefore now]

NOw, after ſuch bloody wounds and gaſhes, chronicled Chap. 7. Though carried captive, and ſold under ſin, yet not condemned, as might well have been expected. This the Apoſtle doth here worthily admire.

No condemnation] Non una Condemnatio; Not one condemnation. There is none in heaven, God doth not condemn them: none on earth, their own heart and conſcience doth not condemn them: no word, no commandment, no threatning. An unbeliever ſhall have a double condemnation; One from the Law, which he hath tranſgreſſed, and another from the Goſpel, which he hath deſpiſed: As a Malefactor, that being condemned and dead in Law, rejecteth his Princes Pardon. But it is otherwiſe with thoſe that are in Chriſt Jeſus: The Law cannot condemn them, becauſe they have appealed: the Goſpel cannot, becauſe they have believed. God will caſt out condemnation for ever, as One renders that place. Mat. 12. 10. οὐδὲν κατάκριμα. ὡς ἂν ἐκβάλλει εἰς νῖκος τὴν κρίσιν. Lud. de Dieu.

Verſe 2. For the Law of the Spirit] That is, Chriſt revived and riſen hath juſtified me. See the Note on Chap. 4. 25.

Verſe 3. It was weak through the fleſh] Which was irritated by the Law, and took occaſion thereby.

In the likeneſs of ſinful fleſh] Chriſt condeſcended to our rags, ſordes noſtras induit, took our paſſions and infirmities natural, but not ſinful. He was in all things like unto us, but in ſin: as the brazen Serpent was like the fiery ſerpents; but only it had no ſting.

Verſe 4. Might be fulfilled] In us applicativè, in Chriſt inhæſivè.

Verſe 5. Do mind the things] For want of a better principle. The ſtream riſeth not above the ſpring.

Verſe 6. To be carnally] The quinteſſence of the fleſhes wittineſs, or rather wickedneſs. φρόνημα.

Verſe 7. Becauſe the carnal mind] The beſt of a bad man, is not only averſe, but utterly adverſe to all goodneſs. Homo eſt inverſus decalogus, Job 11. 12. an aſſes foal for rudeneſs, a wilde aſſes for unrulineſs. φρόνημα.

Neither indeed can be] Spiritual arguments to a carnal heart, are but warm cloaths to a dead man. He hath brought a miſerable neceſſity of ſinning upon himſelf: his ſoul and all the powers thereof being but the ſhop of ſin; his body and all the parts thereof tools of ſin; his life and all his actions of both ſoul and body, a trade of ſin.

Verſe 8. Cannot pleaſe God] Their beſt works are but dead works, ſaith the Author to the Hebrews; but ſilken ſins, ſaith Auguſtine. Lombard citeth that Father, ſaying thus, Omnis vita infidelium peccatum eſt: & nihil bonum ſine ſummo bono. The whole life of unbelievers is ſin; neither is there any thing good without the chiefeſt good. Ambroſe Spiera a Popiſh Poſtiller cenſureth this for a bloody ſentence, Crudelis eſt illa ſententia, ſaith he. De ver. innoc. cent. cap. 96.

Digitized by Google

Verse 9. He is none of his] As the Merchant sets his seal upon his goods: So doth God his Spirit upon all his people, Ephes. 1. 13.

Verse 10. The body is dead] Death to the Saints is neither total, but of the body only, nor perpetual, but for a season only, vers. 11.

Verse 11. Your mortal bodies] As he hath already quickned your souls.

Verse 12. Not to the flesh] We owe the flesh nothing but stripes, nothing but the blew eye that S. Paul gave it. It must be mastered and mortified. Drive this Hagar out of doors, when once it grows haunty.

Verse 13. If we live after the flesh] We must not think to pass E cœno ad Cœlum, to dance with the Devil all day, and sup with Christ at night, to fly to heaven with pleasant wings. Beetles love dunghils better then ointments: and swine love mud better then a garden; so do swinish people their lusts, better then the lives of their souls.

Horat ep. 2. At Paris ut vivat regnetque beatus, Cogi posse negat. That carnal Cardinal said, That he would not part with his part in Paris for Paradise.

But if ye mortifie the deeds, &c.] Either a man must kill here, or be killed, Aut fer, aut feri, as Queen Elizabeth often sighed and said to her self concerning the Queen of Scots. Valentinian the Emperour dying, gloried of one victory above the rest, and that was his victory over the flesh. Inimicorum nequissimum devici, carnem meam, said he. Be always an enemy to the devil and the world, but specially to your own flesh, said Rob. Smith Martyr, in a letter to his wife. Surely as the Prince of Orange said to his souldiers at the battle of Newport when they had the Sea on the one side, and the Spaniards on the other; If, saith he, you will live, you must either eat up these Spaniards, or drink up this Sea: So must men either eat up their fleshly lusts, or drink of the burning Lake: Fire and Brimstone shall be else the portion of their cup.

Camdens Elis.

In vita Valentin.

Act. and Mon. fol. 1545.

Psalm 11. 6.

Verse 14. For as many as are led] As great men suffer their sons to go along with them, but set Tutors to overlook and order them: So dealeth God by his; the Spirit leadeth them into all goodness, righteousness and truth, Eph. 5. 9. and fetcheth them again in their outstraies.

Verse 15. The spirit of bondage] Δουλείας; as 2 Tim. 1, 7. Δειλίας. The law will convince the judgement: but it is the Gospel that conviceth the lust and the affection, and so sendeth us to treat with God as a Father, by fervent prayer. The spirit is here called a spirit of bondage: because by the Law he enlightneth a man to see his bondage and slavery to sin and Satan, and his subjection to Gods wrath and Vengeance.

Verse 16. Beareth witness] What an honour is this to the Saints, that the holy Ghost should bear witness at the bar of their consciences.

Verse 17. And if sons, then heirs] All Gods sons are heirs; not so the sons of earthly Princes. Jehoshaphat gave his younger sons great gifts of silver, of Gold, and of precious things, with fenced Cities in Judah; but the Kingdom gave he to Jehoram, because he was the first-born, 2 Chron. 21. 3. Gods children are all higher then the Kings of the earth, Psal. 89. 27.

Verse 18. Are not worthy to be, &c.] Heaven will pay for all: hold out therefore faith and patience. When Saul had the Kingdom, some despised him, but he held his peace, though a man afterwards froward enough. What is a drop of Vinegar put into an ocean of wine? What is it for one to have a rainy day, who is going to take possession of a Kingdom? Pericula non respicit Martyr, coronas respicit, saith Basil. A Dutch Martyr feeling the flame to come to his beard, Ah, said he, what a small pain is this to be compared to the glory to come? Luther said he would not take all the world for one leaf of the Bible. What then would he take for the glory that it revealeth? S. Paul useth a word here that signifieth (upon a good account justly cast up, and the matter well weighed) to conclude, resolve and determine, as Rom. 3. 28. and 6. 11. The Globe of the earth is, as Mathematicians compute, 21000 miles in compass and above: Yet compared to the greatness of the starry sky, it is but as a Center or little prick to the circle, to which it beareth no proportion; much less do our afflictions to heavens happiness.

Act. and Mon. 813.

λογίζομαι.

Verse 19. For the earnest expectation] Gr. The intent expectation of the creature expecteth; an Hebrew Pleonasm and withal, a Metaphor either from birds that thrust a long neck out of a Cage, as labouring for liberty: or else from those that earnestly look look and long for some special friends coming, as Sisera's Mother, who looked out at a window, and cryed thorow the latteſs, Why is his charet ſo long in coming? Judg. 5. 28.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 20. Subject to vanity] The creature is defiled by mans ſin, and muſt therefore be purged by the fire of the laſt day; as the veſſels that held the ſin-offering were purged by the fire of the Sanctuary.

Verſe 21. Becauſe the creature it ſelf] See Mr. Wilcox his Diſcourſe upon theſe words, printed together with his Expoſition of the Pſalms, Proverbs, &c. in Folio. The creature is ſaid to be ſubject to vanity, and bondage of corruption: 1. As corruptible. 2. As teachers of men, and they will not learn; ſo that they loſe their labour. 3. As they are inſtruments of mans puniſhment. 4. As they are forced to ſerve wicked mens turns and uſes, who have no peace with the creature, and ſhould have no ſervice from them.

Verſe 22. The whole creature groaneth] Even the very heavens are not without their feebleneſs, and the manifeſt effects of fainting old-age. It is obſerved that ſince the days of Ptolomy, the Sun runs nearer the earth by 9976. Germane miles; and therefore the heavens have not kept their firſt perfection.

And travelleth] How Mr. Bradſhaw pitried the poor beaſt he rod on, and ſaid, that men take too much liberty in killing and miſuſing ſome contemptible creatures, ſee in his life by Mr. Clark. pag. 139.

Verſe 23. The firſt fruits] Which the creatures have not, and yet they groan, how much more we?

The redemption] Our full and final deliverance.

Verſe 24 For we are ſaved by hope] Hope is the daughter of faith, but ſuch as is a ſtaffe to her aged Mother.

Verſe 25. Then do we with patience] Religious men finde it more eaſie to bear evil, then to wait till the promiſed good be enjoyed, Heb. 10. 36. The ſpoyling of their goods required patience; but this, more then ordinary.

Verſe 26. Helpeth our infirmities] Lifts with us, and before us in our prayers: Or helpeth us, as the Nurſe helpeth her little childe, upholding it by the ſleeve. συναντιλαμβάνεται. Beza. Parens. Da. Dike.

For we know not what &c.] The fleſh with her murmurings maketh ſuch a din that we can hardly hear the voyce of the ſpirit, mixing with the fleſhes roarings and repinings, his praying, ſighs and ſobbings.

But the Spirit it ſelf] Prayer is the breath of the Spirit, who doth ſuperexpoſtulate for us, enditing our prayers. We cannot ſo much as ſuſpirare, unleſs he do firſt inſpirare, breath out a ſigh for ſin, if he breath it not into us. ὑπερεντυγχάνει.

With groanings that cannot be uttered] He that would have unſpeakable joy, 1 Pet. 1. 8. muſt by the Spirit ſtir up unutterable groanings.

Verſe 27. Knoweth the minde, &c.] Quomodo enim non exaudiatur ſpiritus à patre, qui exaudit cum patre? Aug.

Verſe 28. All things work together] Not affliction only (as ſome would here reſtrain it) but ſin, Satan, all. Venenum aliquando pro remedio fuit, ſaith Seneca. Medici pedes & alas Cantharidis, cum ſit ipſa mortifera, prodeſſe dicunt. The drinking of that wine wherein a viper hath been drowned, cureth the leproſie. The Scorpion healeth his own wounds: and the viper (the head and tail being cut off) beaten and applyed, cureth her own biting. God changeth our griſly wounds into ſpangles of beauty, and maketh the horrible ſting of Satan to be like a pearl pin, to pin upon us the long white robe of Chriſt, and to dreſs us with the garment of gladneſs. De benef. lib. 2. c. 18.

Verſe 29. Conformed to the image] In holineſs, ſay ſome; in glory, ſay others; in affliction is the Apoſtles meaning. Art not thou glad to fare as Phocion? ſaid he to one that was to die with him. May not Chriſt be content ſo to his co-ſufferers? Plu. in Apophtheg.

Verſe 30. Them alſo he called, &c.] If ye feel not faith (ſaid that holy Martyr) then know that predeſtination is too high a matter for you to be diſputers of, until you have been better Schollars in the School-houſe of repentance and juſtification, which is the Grammer-School wherein we muſt be converſant and learned, before we go to the Univerſity of Gods moſt holy predeſtination and providence. Bradford Act. and Mon. fol. 1505.

Them he alſo juſtified] Vocation precedeth Juſtification. Deus juſtificat fide jam donatos, ſicut damnat priùs induratos. Cameron.

Them

Digitized by Google

Them he alſo glorified] That is, He keepeth them glorious by his glorious Spirit, even in this life, from impenitent ſin, and maketh them ſtable and conſtant in godlineſs.

Verſe 31. What ſhall we ſay then?] q.d. Predeſtination, Vocation, Juſtification, Gloſification? What things be theſe? We cannot tell what to ſay to theſe things, ſo much we are amazed at the greatneſs of Gods love in them. A brave concluſion of the whole diſputation concerning juſtification by faith alone.

Chytræus in Itiner. If God be for us, &c.] Maximilian the Emperour ſo admired this ſentence, that he cauſed it to be ſet in Checker-work upon a Table, at which he uſed to dine and ſup: that having it ſo often in his eye, he might alway have it in minde alſo.

Verſe 32. He that ſpared not] Qui miſit unigenitum, immiſit ſpiritum promiſit vultum, quid tandem tibi negaturus eſt? ſaith Bernard. Nihil unquam ei negaſſe credendum eſt, quem ad vituli hortatur eſum, ſaith Hierom.

Bern. de temp.

ἐπερώτημα. Verſe 33. Who ſhall lay any thing] This is that confident interrogatory of a good conſcience, 1 Pet. 3. 21.

It is God that juſtifieth] Some read it queſtionwiſe, thus, Shall God that juſtifieth? No ſuch matter. And if the Judge acquit a priſoner, he cares not though the Jayler or fellow-priſoners condemn him: So here.

Verſe 34. Who is he that condemneth?] To the ſentence of death he oppoſeth Chriſt his death.

Who is even at the right hand] And as Chriſt is at the right hand of his Father, ſo is the Church at the right hand of Chriſt, Pſal. 45. 10. a place of dignity and ſafety.

Verſe 35. Who ſhall ſeparate us] Who ſhall ſeparate me? ſaith the Syriack.

Verſe 36. We are killed all the day] In Diocleſians dayes 17000 Chriſtians are ſaid to have been ſlain in the ſpace of a moneth: In the Pariſian Maſſacre 30000 in as little ſpace, and within the year 200000.

As ſheep to the ſlaughter] That lamentable ſtory of the Chriſtians of Calabria that ſuffered perſecution, Anno 1560. comes home to this Text. For being all thruſt up in one houſe together, as in a ſheep-fold, the executioner comes in, & among them takes one, and blind-folds him with a muffler about his eyes, and ſo leadeth him forth to a larger place, where he commandeth him to kneel down. Which being done, he cutteth his throat, and ſo leaveth him half dead: and taking his butchers knife, and muffler all of gore blood, he cometh again to the reſt, and ſo leading them one after another, he diſpatcheth them, to the number of eighty eight, no otherwiſe then doth a Butcher kill his calves and ſheep.

Act. and Mon. fol. 859.

ὑπερνικῶμεν. Super ſuperamus. Super vincimus. Verſe 37. We are more then Conquerors] What is that? Triumphers, 2 Cor. 2. 14. We do over-overcome: becauſe through faith in Chriſt we overcome before we fight, and are ſecure of victory. And again, We are more then Conquerors, becauſe we gather ſtrength by our oppoſition (as that Gyant that fought with Hercules is fabled to do, by his falling to the Earth) we conquer in being conquered. The tormentors were tyred in torturing Blandina: and we are aſhamed, O Emperor: the Chriſtians laugh at your cruelty, and grow the more reſolute ſaid one of Julians Nobles to him.

πέπεισμαι, ſcil. Ex verbi prædicatione efficaci ut indicat tacitè hoc verbo. Beza. Verſe 38. For I am perſwaded] Or, I am ſure by what I have heard out of Gods Word. He that hath this full aſſurance of faith, goes gallantly to Heaven. What (ſaith the world) ſhould a rich man ayl? The Iriſh ask ſuch, What they mean to die? But I wonder more at ſuch as have the riches of full aſſurance, yea, that have but the aſſurance of adherence, though not of evidence, what they mean to walk heavily. Mr. Latimer ſayes, That the aſſurance of heaven is the ſweet meats of the feaſt of a good conſcience: There are other dainty diſhes in this feaſt, but this is the banquet.

Verſe 39. From the love of God] viz. Wherewith he loved us. For he loveth his own to the end, and in the end, Joh. 13. 1. See the Note there. The wife of Camerarius heard Sarcerius interpreting this Text, and verſ. 35. thus, and was much comforted after a ſore conflict.

Joh Manlii. loc. com.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

Chap. IX.

Verse 1. I say the truth, &c.]

As any one is more assured of his own salvation, the more he desireth the salvation of others. Charity is no churl; as we see here in Paul.

Verse 2. Continual sorrow] Such as a woman in travail hath. So Gal. 4. 19. ὀδύνη.

Verse 3. Were accursed,] Devoted to destruction, as those Malefactors among the Heathens were, that in time of common calamity were sacrificed to their infernal gods, for pacifying their displeasure, that the plague might cease. Out of greatest zeal to God, and love to his Countrey-men, the Apostle wisheth himself Anathema, that is, not to be separated from the Spirit and grace of Christ (for so he should have sinned) but from the comforts of Christ, the happiness that comes in by Christ, as one well interpreteth it. Charitas exuberans optat etiam impossibilia, saith Luther; his over-abounding charity wisheth impossibilities: but his wish was voluntas conditionata, saith one. His love to the Church was like the Ivie, which if it cleave to a stone, or an old wall, will rather die, then forsake it. Somewhat like to this holy wish was that of Ambrose, that the fire of contentions kindled in the Churches, might (if it were the will of God) be quenched with his blood. And that of Nazianzen, that (Jonas-like) he might be cast into the Sea, so be it all might be calm in the publick. ἀνάθεμα εἶναι ἀπὸ τοῦ Χριστοῦ.

Verse 4. The adoption] For Israel was Gods first-born, and so higher then the Kings of the earth, Psa. 89. 27.

And the glory] The Ark of the Covenant, 1 Sam. 4. 21. whence Judea is called the glorious land, Dan. 11. 41. As for the Ark, it is elsewhere called Gods face, Psal. 105. 4. Yea, God himself, Psal. 132. 5.

The Covenants] The moral Law in two Tables,

The giving of the Law] The judicial Law.

The service] The ceremonial law.

The promises] Of the Gospel made to Abraham, and his Seed for ever. These promises are a precious book, every leaf whereof drops myrrh and mercy.

Verse 5. Of whom is Christ] This is as great an honour to all mankinde (how much more to the Jews?) as if the King should marry into some poor family of his Subjects.

Verse 6. Not as though the Word] That word of promise, v. 4. which is sure-hold, Yea and Amen.

For they are not all Israel] Multi sacerdotes, & pauci sacerdotes, saith Chrysostom, multi in nomine, & pauci in opere. So here.

Verse 7. Neither because they are] This profiteth them no more then it did Divus, that Abraham called him Son.

Verse 8. The children of the promise] Abraham by believing Gods promise, begat, after a sort, all Believers, yea Christ himself, the head of his Seed, his Son according to the flesh, but more according to the faith.

Verse 9. At this time] See the Note on Gen. 18. 10.

Verse 10. But when Rebecca] She, and not Isaac is named, because she received the Oracle; whether from the mouth of Melchisedech, or some other way, I have not to determine.

Verse 11. For the children, &c.] Hence the Apostle wadeth into that profundum sine fundo, Predestination.

Being not yet born] Sapores son of Misdates, King of Persia, began his raign before his life. For his Father dying, left his Mother with childe, and the Persian Nobility set the Crown on his Mothers belly, acknowledging thereby her issue for their Prince, before she as yet had felt her self quick. God elected not of fore-seen Faith or Works, but of free grace.

Verse 12. Shall serve] Servitude came in with a curse, and figureth reprobation, Gen. 9. 25. Josh. 8. 34, 35. Gal. 4. 30.

Verse

Verse 13. Esau have I hated] i.e. I have not loved him, but passed him by: and this preterition is properly opposed to election.

Quicquid deinc scripturarum est, hujus est commentarius.

As it is written] Malachy is alledged to explain Moses. It was rightly observed by Pareus (in the close of his Comment upon Genesis) that all the following Scriptures are but Expositions of that first Book.

Verse 14. Is there] Carnal reason dares reprehend what it does not comprehend.

Bonavent. in lib. 1 sent. dist. 41. q. 2.

Verse 15. I will have mercy, &c.] Dei voluntas est ratio rationum, nec tantùm recta, sed regula.

Verse 16. So then it is not, &c.] Nec volentis, nec volantis (as a Noble-man gave it for his Motto) though a man could run as fast as a bird can flie.

Verse 17. Raised thee up] For a vessel of wrath, and an instance of my justice.

Verse 18. Therefore] God being a free Agent, cannot be unjust: he is bound to none.

Whom he will, he hardeneth] There is a threefold hardness of the heart: 1. Natural and hereditary, whereby all men are by nature not onely averse from, but also adverse to the motions of Grace: this is called a neck possessed with an iron sinew, Isa. 48.4. 2. Actual, adventitious, voluntary; which is, when, by often choaking good motions, a man hath quit his heart of them; being arrived at that dead and dedolent disposition, Ephes 4.18. past feeling, and ripe for destruction. This is called a brow of brass in the above-named Text, Isai. 48.4. 3. Judiciary, penal hardness: which is when God, for a punishment of the former, with-holds his graces, and delivers a man up to Satan to be further hardened, and to his own hearts lusts, which is worse. The incestuous person was delivered up to Satan, and yet repented: but he that is delivered up to his own heart, to a reprobate minde, cannot be renewed by repentance; but is in the ready rode to that unpardonable sin. And this last is here meant.

Verse 19. Why doth he yet finde fault? Queritur, saith the Vulgar: which interpretation cozened Aquinas, as if it had been written Queritur. So Luk. 15.8. Gregory the great and others, for Everrit, reade Evertit: which mistake produced many groundless glosses.

Ἀντιπυκρινόμαι Θ.

Verse 20. That replyest against God] Gr. That chatterest and wordest it with him?

Verse 21. Of the same lump] The Apostle alludeth to mans creation, and therehence ascendeth to Gods eternal decree of predestination.

Molinæus in Anat. Arm.

Verse 22. Fitted to destruction] Non dicit Deum eos aptasse ad interitum, ne videretur dicere Deum eis indidisse peccatum, quo ad exitum præparentur.

Verse 23. And that he might] He rejected some, that his mercy might the more appear in the election of others.

The riches of his glory] That is, of his mercy wherein he principally glorieth, and for the which he is most of all glorified.

Verse 24. Even us] Not me Paul only hath he assured of vocation, and so consequently of election to eternal life.

τὴν ψυχὴν τὴν ἠγαπημένην.

Verse 25. And her beloved] Jer. 12.7. God calls the Church the beloved of his soul, or (as the Septuagint and Vulgar read it) his beloved soul.

Verse 26. The children, &c.] This is such a royalty, Joh. 1.12. as the Apostle worthily wondereth at, and sets an Ecce upon it.

Verse 27. A remnant] Reserved for royal use. Diaconos, paucitas honorabiles fecit, saith Hieron. Sic & sanctos, say I.

Verse 28. A short work] When once he sets to work to cut off hypocrites.

Verse 29. Except the Lord of Sabboth] That is, Of Hosts. God is Commander in chief of all creatures. The Rabbins well observe that he hath Magnleh Cheloth, and Matteh Cheloth, two general troops, as his horse and foot, the upper and lower troops ready prest.

Kimchi.

Verse 30. Which is of faith] Faith wraps it self in the righteousness of Christ, and so justifieth us.

Verse 31. The law of righteousness] That is, The righteousness of the Law.

Verse 32. For they stumbled] So they do to this day. So do Papists and carnal Protestants. Non frustrà Lutherus in libris suis vaticinatus videtur, sese veneri dicturos, ne se extincto vera illa justificationis disciplina prorsus apud Christianos exoleseat.

To Fox Christ. Triumphans, Epist.

Verse 33.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 33. See the Note on 1 Pet. 2. 6.

Shall not be aſhamed] That is, ſhall be confirmed, comforted, eſtabliſhed. The Scripture loves to ſpeak with the leaſt in promiſing good to Gods people: Or elſe by way of Exclamation, Oh how great is thy goodneſs which thou haſt laid up for them that fear thee, q. d. It is unutterable: fitter to be believed, then poſſible to be diſcourſed. Pſal. 31. 19.

Chap. X.

Verſe 1. My hearts deſire]

SO it ſhould be ours. See my True Treaſure, Chap. 7. Sect. 2.

Verſe 2. They have a zeal of God.] So had thoſe two Rabbins, David Rubenita, and Shelomoh Molchu, that ſet upon the Emperour Charles the fift, to perſwade him to judaiſm, and were therefore put to a cruel death, anno 1530. So had Latimer before his converſion: I was as obſtinate a Papiſt, ſaith he, as any was in England: Inſomuch that when I ſhould be made Bachelour in Divinity, my whole Oration went againſt Philip Melanthon, and his opinons, &c. Being a Prieſt, and uſing to ſay Maſs, he thought he had never ſufficiently mingled his maſſing wine with water: and moreover, that he ſhould never be damned, if he were once a profeſſed Frier; with divers ſuch ſuperſtitious phantaſies. Zeal without knowledge, is as wild-fire in a fools hand; it is like the Devil in the demoniack, that caſts him ſometimes into the fire, and ſometimes into the water. Alſted Chron. 426. Act and Mon. fol. 1571.

Verſe 3. For they being ignorant] The ſoul that is without knowledge is not good and he that (without knowledge) haſteth with his feet, ſinneth, Prov. 19. 2. the faſter he goeth, the farther he is out.

Verſe 4. For Chriſt is the end, &c.] q. d. By, and for Chriſts ſake, is the righteouſneſs of God. But the Jews ſubmit not to Chriſt, therefore not to the righteouſneſs of God. Chriſt, ſaith Auſtin, is Legis finis interficiens, & perficiens. The ceremonial Law he hath ſlain and taken out of the way: the moral Law he hath fulfilled for us, and we by him, ſc. by Faith in his name, which maketh his obedience to become ours.

Verſe 5. Shall live by them] This do and live; that is, ſaith Luther, morere, die out of hand: for there is no man lives and ſins not. We can as little ceaſe to ſin, as the pulſe to beat, heart to pant, &c.

Verſe 6. Say not in thine heart] The Law preacheth faith in Chriſt, as well as the Goſpel.

Verſe 7. Into the deep] Thoſe deeps of the earth, Pſal. 71. 20.

Verſe 8. The word is nigh thee] Moſes meant it of the law, but it more fitly agreeth to the Goſpel. The babe of Bethlehem is ſwathed up in the bands of both Teſtaments: he is author, object, matter and mark of both. Therefore if we will profit in hearing, teaching, reading, we muſt have the eye of our minds turned toward Chriſt, as the faces of the Cherubims were toward the Mercy-ſeat.

Verſe 9. That if thou ſhalt confeſs] That is, If thou ſhalt call upon the name of the Lord, as it is expounded, ver. 13.

Verſe 10. For with the heart, &c.] Plutarch tells us, that of all plants in Ægypt, that they call Perſica is conſecrated to their goddeſs Iſis, and that for this reaſon, becauſe the fruit of it is like an heart, the leaf like a tongue. Plut. de Iſide & Oſiride.

Verſe 11. Shall not be aſhamed] Maketh not haſt, ſaith the Prophet. Shame and confuſion follow haſt and precipitancy: Sed Deo confiſi nunquam confuſi.

Verſe 12. Is rich unto all, &c.] He cannot therefore be poor that can pray: for he ſhall have out his prayer, either in mony or moneys-worth.

Verſe 13. Shall be ſaved] Though he miſs of that particular mercy he asketh, he is certainly ſealed up to ſalvation.

Verſe 14. How ſhall they hear, &c.] The word read, is of divine uſe and efficacy: but of preaching we may ſay as David did of Goliah's ſword, There's none to that. Milk warmed is fitter for nouriſhment: and the rain from heaven hath a fatneſs with it, and a ſpecial influence, more then ſtanding waters; So there is not that life, operation, and bleſſing in the word read, as preached.

Digitized by Google

And how ſhall they preach unleſs they be ſent] Here you have that ſcala cæli, ladder of heaven, as a good old Martyr called it: and we muſt not preſume to alter the rounds of this ladder. The Apoſtle holds it for impoſſible, that any ſhould preach that are not ſent. Let ſuch look to it, as run before they are ſent, preſs into the pulpit without a call thereunto. Let them remember Nadab and Abihu with their ſtrange fire, Core and his complices with their diſmal uſurpations, Uzzah and Uzziah with their exemplary puniſhments, &c. God hanged theſe up in Gibbets, as it were to warn others.

Verſe 15. How beautiful are the feet] How much more their faces? Surely I have ſeen thy face as the face of God, ſaid Iacob to Eſau, Gen. 33. 10. that is, honourable and comfortable. We know how Cornelius received Peter; and the Galatians, Paul, till they were bewitched from him, Gal. 4. 14. But it muſt be remembred that we gloriſie the word, not the Preacher, Act. 13. 48.

Ἀκοὴν. Verſe 16. Who hath believed our report?] Gr. Our hearing, Paſſively taken. So Cæſar and Cicero uſe auditio, for report and rumour. Some ſit before a Preacher as ſenſeleſs as the ſeats they ſit on, pillars they lean to, dead bodies they tread on. Others rage, Tange montes & fumigabunt, &c.

Verſe 17. By the word of God] That is, By the Word of Gods command, ſending out preachers gifted for the purpoſe, and ſaying to them, Go, preach, &c.

ὁ φθόγγος. Verſe 18. Yes verily; their ſound, &c.] Sonus tonus. David ſaith only, Their line, Pſal. 19. 2. That accurate and artificial frame of the heaven preacheth, as it were, the infinite wiſdom and power of the Creator. All Gods works are his Regii profeſſores, his Catholike Preachers, or real Poſtilles (as one calleth them) of his Divinity. The world (ſaith Clem. Alex.) is Dei Scriptura, Gods great Bible with three great leaves, heaven, earth and hell. Davids words are here very fitly applyed to the ſound of the Goſpel; the circle whereof is like that of the Sun, univerſal to the whole world; and the motion not unlike: for it aroſe in the Eaſt of Iudæa, went thence to the South of Greece, and then to the Weſt of Italy and the Latines: from whence it is come to theſe Northern parts of the world (the very utmoſt angle of the Univerſe) where that it may continue, let us pray,

Veſpera nunc venit, nobiſcum Chriſte maneto:
Extingui lucem nec patiare tuam.

Mr. Baxter. "All that I fear, ſaith a late Writer, is, leſt Mr. Herbert be a true Prophet, and the "Goſpel be in its Solar motion travelling for the American parts, and is quitting its "preſent place of reſidence and unworthy profeſſors and poſſeſſors: and then fare-"well England. Contempt drove Chriſt from Nazareth, his own Countrey, which he came purpoſely to heal. Confer Ier 51. 9. Ezek 24. 13.

Verſe 19. Did not Iſrael know] ſc. That the Gentiles were to be called? They were oft told it.

Verſe 20. Is very bold] So that for his boldneſs he was ſawn aſunder, ſaith Hierom.

Verſe 21. Stretched] A Metaphor from a mother.

Chap. XI.

Verſe 1. I ſay then, Hath God, &c.]

AS I may ſeem to have ſaid, Chap. 10. Miniſters muſt do their utmoſt to prevent miſtakes. Zuinglius, when in his Sermons he had terrified the wicked, was wont to ſhut up with Bone vir, hoc nihil ad te, Thou good man, I mean not thee.

Verſe 2. Saith of Elias] A man of ſuch tranſcendent zeal, that to heighten the expreſſion thereof, ſome have legended of him, that when he drew his mothers breſts, he was ſeen to ſuck in fire.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verse 3. And I am left alone] To withstand and reform the common corruptions. Some have commended it to our consideration, that from the first service in the Temple when it was built, and the time of Eliab's Reformation, was about an hundred years; And from the Reformation in K. Edward the sixth's daies untill now, is about the same proportion of time.

Verse 4. The image of Baal] Τῇ Βάαλ, to that Lady, as our modern Idolaters also call the virgin Mary, whom they despight with seeming honours. They would perswade the world, that Christ by dying obeyed not his Father only, but his mother too, that she is the complement of the Trinity, that she intreateth not, but commandeth her Son, is the most imperious Mother of our Judge, with many like horrid blasphemies, which I tremble to relate. Salazar Jesuita in Prov. 8. 19 Ibid. ad ver. 23. Ibid. ad ver. 29.

Verse 5. According to the election of grace] St. Paul was Constantissimus gratiæ prædicator, as Austin calleth him, a most constant preacher of Gods free grace.

Verse 6. Then is it no more of works] Whatsoever conferrumination of grace and works Papists dream of. They think, that as he that standeth on two firm branches of a Tree, is surer then he that standeth upon one only: So he that trusteth to Christ and works too, is in the safest condition. But, 1. They are fallen from Christ that trust to works, Gal. 5. 4. 2. He that hath one foot on a firm branch, and another on a rotten one, stands not so sure, as if he stood wholly on that which is sound. But let them be Moses Disciples, let us be Christs: Set not up a candle to this Sun of righteousness; mix not thy puddle with his purple blood, thy rags with his raiment, thy Pigeons plumes with his Eagles-feathers. He can and will save his to the utmost, Heb. 7. 25. Detest all mock-staies; And account accursed for ever that blasphemous direction of the Papists to dying people, Conjunga Domine obsequium meum cum omnibus quæ Christus passus est pro me; Joyn Lord mine obedience with all that Christ hath suffered for me.

Verse 7. Israel] i. e. The carnal Israelite.

He seeketh for] viz. Righteousness and salvation by works.

Hardened] By a judiciary hardness.

Verse 8. The Spirit of slumber] So that with those Bears in Pliny they cannot be awakened with the sharpest prickles: and with those Asses in Hetruria, that feeding upon hen-bane, they lie for dead, and awake not til half-hileded. Such a dead Lethargy is now befallen Papists. Matthiol in Dioscorid.

Verse 9. Be made a snare] As the bait is to the birds.

Verse 10. Bow down] i. e. Bring them into bondage and misery. Compare Lev. 26. 13.

Verse 11. Have they stumbled] He that stumbleth and comes not down, gets ground.

Verse 12. How much more their fulness] O diculam illam! dexter mihi præ lætitia salit oculus. How long, Lord, holy and true?

Verse 13. I magnifie mine office] I make the utmost of it by gaining souls to Christ.

Verse 14. And might save some] Ministers must turn themselves as it were into all shapes and fashions both of spirit and speech to win people to God.

Verse 15. Be the reconciling] Not as a cause, but as an occasion.

Life from the dead] That is, Res summè bona, saith Phocius, a special good thing.

Verse 16. If the first fruit be holy] Not with a natural, but federal holiness, as 1 Cor. 7. 14.

Verse 17. Wert grafted in] Gr. Pricked into the middle, the center of the Olive. Chrysostom Verse 18. Boast not] Gr. Throw not up thy neck, in a scornful insulting way, but rather pitty and pray for them. Isidor. solil. Greg. Moral.

Verse 19. Thou wilt say] Carnal reason will have ever somewhat to say, and is not easily set down.

Verse 20. Be not high-minded, but fear] Alterius perditio tua sit cautio, saith one. Ruina majorum sit cautela minorum, saith another. Seest thou thy brother shipwrackt? look well to thy tackling.

Verse 21. Take heed lest] Cavebis autem si pavebis.

Verse 22. Severity] Gr. Resection or cutting off, as a Chirurgion cutteth off proud and dead flesh. The dispersion of the Jews for this sixteen hundred years and upward is such, as that one of their own Rabbines concludeth from thence, that their Messias must need Ammonius.

Digitized by Google

be come; and they muſt needs ſuffer ſo much for killing him. Epiphanius teſtifieth, that after the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, the Jews of Tiberias had this cuſtome, when any of their freinds or kindred were at point of death, they would ſecretly whiſper them in the ear to this purpoſe: Believe in Jeſus of Nazareth, whom our Rulers crucified; for he ſhall come again to Judge thee at the laſt day. Fincelius alſo tels of a certain converted Jew of Ratisbon, who being demanded (amongſt other queſtions put to him by the Chriſtians) why the Jews did ſo exceedingly deſire the blood of Chriſtians? anſwered, that that was a great ſecret amongſt them, known to none but their chiefeſt Rabbines: but this was their cuſtome, to anoint their dying freinds with the blood of Chriſtians, and to uſe words to this effect: If he that was promiſed in the law and propheets hath already appeared, and that Jeſus who was crucified, were the true Meſſias, let this blood of an innocent man, who dyed in the faith of Jeſus, cleanſe thee from thy ſins, and be a means to further thine eternal happineſs. O the ſeverity of God! and O the obſtinacy and miſery of this hard-hearted people!

Lib. 3. de miraculis.

Verſe 23. God is able] He can fetch heart of oak out of an hollow tree, and of carnal make a people created again, Pſal. 102. 18. Eph. 2. 10.

Verſe 24. Contrary] Therefore nature contributes nothing toward the work of converſion.

Verſe 25. That blindneſs in part] It is neither total nor perpetual. Lyra was a famous Engliſh Jew. Tremellius was alſo a Jew born; they are but methe miſpar, a very few that are yet converted. They pretend (but maliciouſly) that thoſe few that turn Chriſtians in Italy, are none other then poor Chriſtians hired from other cities to perſonate their part. But when God ſhall have united thoſe two ſticks, Ezek. 37. 19. and made way for thoſe Kings of the Eaſt, Rev. 16. 12. then it ſhall be ſaid of Iacob and Iſrael, What hath God wrought! Numb. 23. 23. Jachiades (a Jew-Doctour) upon thoſe words, Dan. 12. 4. would have us believe, that God ſealed up the time of the coming of the Meſſiah; that for their ſins, which are many, it is deferred, &c. but concludeth his Animadverſions there with this truth, Verum enimvero Deus nos dignabitur clariſſima viſione; cum Deus reducet Zionem, tunc intelligemus res ipſas prout ſunt. i.e. God ſhall vouchſafe us a moſt clear viſion at that time when he ſhall bring back the captivity of Zion: and then we ſhall underſtand things even as they are.

Spec. Europ.

Verſe 26. Shall turn away ungodlineſs] That is, He ſhall pardon their ſin. The Prophet Iſaiah hath it, Unto them that turn from tranſgreſſion in Iacob, &c. They whoſe perſons are juſtified, have their luſts mortified.

Verſe 27. When I ſhall take] By the ſpirit of judgement and of Burning, Iſa. 4. 4. with 27. 9.

Verſe 28. They are enemies] i.e. Hated of God, as appears by the oppoſition; and baniſhed, as it were, by a common conſent of Nations, out of humane ſociety. See 1 Theſſ. 2. 15, 16.

Verſe 29. Are without repentance] When God is ſaid to repent, it is Mutatio rei non Dei, effectus non affectus, facti non conſilii, a change, not of his will, but of his work. Repentance with man, is the change of his will; Repentance with God, is the willing of a change. But what a ſweet comfort is this, that Gods favour is ſo conſtant, that what he hath written he hath written, that there is no blotting out of the book of life (Nulla litura in decretis ſapientum, ſay the Stoicks) that it is, I have bleſſed him, and he ſhall be bleſſed; and that his bleſſing is (as Thucydides ſaith of a well-compoſed hiſtory) an everlaſting poſſeſſion?

πᾶσα εἰς ἀεὶ ξυγκτῆμα.

Verſe 30. Through their] By occaſion of their unbelief. Pungit Iudæos & humilias Gentes, ſaith one.

Verſe 31. That they alſo] It noteth not the cauſe, but the event, as 1 Cor. 11. 19.

Verſe 32. For God hath concluded] Or locked them all up in the laws dark dungeon, Gal. 3. 22. Unbelief breaks all the law at an inſtant by rejecting Chriſt, as the firſt act of faith obeys all the law at an inſtant in Chriſt.

συνέκλεισε.

That he might have mercy upon all] Luther in a very great conflict was relieved and comforted by the often repeating of this ſweet ſentence.

Verſe 33. O the depth of the riches] The Romans dedicated a certain lake, the depth whereof they knew not, to Victory; ſo ſhould we admire the unſearchable counſels of God, being ſubdued to that, which we cannot ſubdue to our underſtandings. God, ſaith one, is

Digitized by Google

is like the pool Polycritus writeth of: which in compaſs at firſt ſcarce ſeemed to exceed the bredth of a ſhield, but if any went into it to waſh, it extended it ſelf more and more. And Chryſoſtom ſpeaking of the love of God in Chriſt, Oh ſaith he, I am like a man digging in a deep ſpring: I ſtand here, and the water riſeth up upon me; and I ſtand there, and ſtill the water riſeth upon me. O, dive we not into this deep; for here (as in the ſalt-waters) the deeper, the ſweeter. Ariſtot de mirab. auſcult.

Paſt finding out] It is with us here as with Hounds at a loſs, having neither footſteps nor ſcent left of the game they purſue. Let it ſatisfie us for preſent, that at the laſt day of judgement we ſhall ſee an harmony in this diſcord of things: and that the reaſon of Gods ways, now hid, ſhall then be made manifeſt. In the mean ſpace know, that Arcana dei, Arca Dei: pry not into it, leſt ye periſh: but hold this for certain, Gods judgements are ſometimes ſecret, alwayes juſt. ἀνεξιχνίαστοι. Auguſtin.

Verſe 34. Who hath been his Counſellour] Alphonſo the wiſe (the fool rather) was heard blaſphemouſly to ſay, that if he had been of Gods counſel at the Creation, he could have adviſed and ordered many things much better then now they are. This Alphonſo, the tenth of that name, King of Spain, was by a juſt hand of God upon him deprived of his Kingdom, and dyed in publike hatred and infamy. Roderic. Santii Hiſt. Hiſp. p. 4 c. 5. Val. Max. Chriſt. per Exner. p. 200.

Verſe 35. Who hath firſt given to him] Do we not owe him all that we have and are? And can a man merit by paying his debts?

Verſe 36. For of him] As the efficient cauſe, and (through him) as the adminiſtring cauſe, and (to him) as the final cauſe are all things. A wiſe Philoſopher could ſay, That man is the end of all in a ſemicircle; that is, All things in the world are made for him, and he is made for God.

To whom be Glory for ever] God (ſaith one) counts the works and fruits that come from us to be ours, becauſe the judgement and reſolution of will whereby we do them is ours. This he doth to encourage us. But becauſe the grace whereby we judge and will aright, comes from God, aſcribe we all to him: So ſhall he loſe no praiſe, we no encouragement.

Chap. XII.

Verſe 1. I beſeech]

Volumus & jubemus became the Popes ſtile. A. D. 606.

By the mercies of God] His manifold mercies. We that have received ſo many mercies, muſt not onely ſervire Deo, ſed & adulari, ſaith Tertullian. Mercy calls for duty; deliverance commands obedience: and there is ſo much diſingenuity in the contrary, that holy Ezra thinks heaven and earth would be much aſhamed of it. Ezra 9. 13, 14. The cords of kindneſs are called the cords of a man. Hoſ. 11. 4. rational motives befitting the nature of a man. So that to ſin againſt mercy, is to ſin againſt humanity: tis beſtial, and fits a man for deſtruction. Rom. 9. 22. like as when Phyſick, which ſhould remove the diſeaſe, doth cooperate with it, then death comes with the more pain and ſpeed. No ſurfeit more dangerous then that of bread: No judgement more terrible, then that of mercy deſpiſed and abuſed. Abuſed mercy turns into fury. Διὰ τῶν οἰκτιρμῶν. Per miſerationes, amplificationis cauſa. Beza. Patientia læſa fit furor.

That ye preſent] As they of old did their ſacrifices at the altar. With the burnt offering, which ſignified the ſacrificing of the fleſh, was joyned the ſin-offering, that is, Chriſt. Faith applies Chriſt to the believer, and the believer to Chriſt.

Your bodies] That is your whole perſon. Cainiſta ſunt, ſaith Luther, offerentes non perſonam, ſed opus perſonæ. They are Cainiſts that offer to God the work done, but do not offer themſelves to God.

A living ſacrifice] In the old law they had many kinds of Sacrifices killed and offered. Now (ſaith Origen) inſtead of a Ram we kill our ireful paſſions: inſtead of a Goat our unclean affections: inſtead of flying fowls our idle thoughts, &c.

Verſe 2. To this world] To the corrupt Cuſtoms and courſes of wicked worldlings. See ſet them forth, Rom. 13. 13. Epheſ. 4. 18, 19, 20. 1 Pet. 4. 3, and ſhun them. Eraſmus rendreth dreth it, Ne accommodetis vos ad figuram; Accomodate not your selves to the figure and fashion of the world: do not personate and act the part of such: as a player doth, when he playeth the drunkard or wanton on the Scaffold, or Stage (so the word signifies) St. Paul writeth to his Corinthians, not to company with fornicators of this world, or with the covetous, or with extortioners, or idolaters, lest they should conform to them. For as the creatures living in the several elements, are commonly of the temperature of the element they live in, (as the fishes cold and moist like the water, the worms cold and dry as the earth, &c.) so are we apt to conform to the company we converse with. It is both hard and happy not to do as the rest do; but to be like fishes, that retain their sweetness in the salt sea; like Salamanders, that remain unscorcht in the fire; like pearls, that growing in the sea, have the colour and brightness of heaven; like oyl, that will easily overtop all other liquors, and not commingle; ever holding constant a countermotion to the course of the world, and corruptions of the times; that amidst all, a good conscience may be kept, that richest treasure and dearest Jewel that ever the heart of man was acquainted with.

Digitized by Google

μὴ συσχηματίζεσθε.

1 Cor. 5. 9, 10.

But be ye transformed] Gr. Metamorphosed, the old frame being dissolved, and a new form acquired.

That ye may prove] sc. By your practice.

φρονεῖν εἰς τὸ σωφρονεῖν. Xenoph. de dictis & factis Socrat. lib. 3.

Verse 3. But to think soberly] Gr. To be wise to sobriety. Socrates made no distinction between wisdom and sobriety, σοφίαν & σωφροσύνην non distinguebat. We shall be sober, if we take not that upon us that we have not, nor brag of that which we have. There is an elegancy in the original, that cannot be rendered.

Verse 4. For as we have, &c.] See 1 Cor. 12. 12. which is a Commentary on this text.

Verse 5. One body in Christ] See the note on 1 Cor. 12. 12, 13.

And every one members] Try thy membership, if 1. Sociable with Christ and Christians. 2. Useful and serviceable to the body. 3. Compassionate, as Paul; who is afflicted, saith he, and I burn not? I feel twinges when others are hurt; and I hold my self a debter (as a member) to Greeks and Barbarians, to the wise and unwise, be they but of the body, Rom. 11. 4.

Verse 6. According to the proportion] That form of sound words, 2 Tim. 1. 13. those principles of the doctrine of Christ, Heb. 6. 1. with which all interpretations of Scripture must bear due proportion.

Verse 7. Or Ministery] Take it either largely, for the whole ministery, as 1 Cor. 12. 5. Act. 1. 17. Or more strictly for the office of a Deacon, as Act. 6.

Verse 8. Or he that exhorteth] The Pastour properly so called. See the Note on Eph. 4. 11.

ἀπεχθεῖτες.

Verse 9. Abhor that which is evil] Hate it as hell it self; so the word signifies, Mihi certè Auxentius nunquam aliud quam diabolus erit, quia Arrianus, saith Hilary, I shall look upon Auxentius no otherwise then as upon a devil, so long as he is an Arrian.

Verse 10. Be kindly affectioned] As natural brethren and more. Arctior est copula cordis quam corporis. We are brethren in Adam according to the flesh, in and by Christ according to the Spirit.

ὀκνηρός. Cunctator.

Verse 11. Not slothful] Or, Not driving off till it be too late. Charls the son of Charls Duke of Anjou, who was King of Sicily and Jerusalem, was called Carolus Cunctator, not in the sense as Fabius, because he staid till opportunity came, but because he staid till opportunity was lost.

ζέοντες.

Fervent in spirit] Gr. Seething hot. God, who is himself a pure act, loveth activeness in men; the very rest of heavenly bodies is in motion in their proper places.

Verse 12. Rejoycing in hope] Hope makes absent joys present, wants plentitudes, and beguiles calamity as good company doth the time. But without hope, patience is cold almost in the fourth degree, and that's but a little from poison. It was a dotage of the Stoicks, that a wise man should be free, as from fear, so from hope too. How much better the Elpistici, another sort of Philosophers, who held hope to be the only stay and staff of mans life, without which to live were but to lie a dying? This life would be little better then hell, saith Bernard, were it not for the hopes of heaven. Sed superest sperare salutem; and this holds head above water, this keeps the heart aloft all floods of afflictions, as the cork doth the line, as bladders do the body in swimming. Ibat ovans animis animis & ſpe ſua damna levabat, ſaith one concerning St. Stephen going to his death, (Vivere ſpe vidi qui moriturus erat) He that ſeeth viſions of glory, and hath ſure hopes of heaven, will not matter a ſhowr of ſtones: he that is to take poſſeſſion of a kingdom, will not ſtand upon a foul day. Hope unfailable is grounded upon faith unfained; which is ſeldom without its joy unſpeakable and full of glory, 1 Pet. 1. 8. Bembus. Ovid.

Digitized by Google

Patient in tribulation] Bearing up under preſſures, as among many other Martyrs Nicholas' Burton, who by the way to the ſtake, and in the flame was ſo patient and chearful, that the tormentors ſaid, the devil had his ſoul before he came to the fire, and therefore his ſenſes of feeling were paſt. Act. & Mon. 1866.

Continuing inſtant in prayer] Conſtant and inſtant. A Metaphor from hunting-dogs, that give not over the game till they have got it. Nazianzen ſaith of his ſiſter Gorgonia, that ſhe was ſo given to prayer, that her knees ſeemed to grow to the very ground. Of Traſilla it is reported, that being dead ſhe was found to have her elbows as hard as horn, by leaning to a desk at which ſhe uſed to pray. St. James is ſaid to have had knees as hard as Camels knees, by his continual kneeling in prayer. And Paul the Eremite was found dead kneeling upon his knees, holding up his hands, lifting up his eyes: ſo that the very dead corps ſeemed yet to live, and to pray to God. προσκαρτερεῖτε. Nazian. Epitaph. Greg. Dialog. Euſeb. Hieron in vit.

Ver. 13. To the neceſſity] Gr. To the uſes of the Saints, not ſtaying till they be in neceſſity. χρείαις.

Verſe 14. Bleſs them] See the Note on Mat. 5. 44.

Verſe 15. Weep with them that weep] St. Cyprians compaſſion is remarkable; Cum ſingulis pectus meum copulo, mœroris & funeris pondera luctuoſa partior, cum plangentibus plango, cum deflentibus defleo, &c. I partake in every mans grief, and am as much affected and afflicted, as if it were mine own caſe.

Verſe 16. Be of the ſame] This verſe had been eaſie, had not Interpreters obſcured it, as Origen obſerveth.

Verſe 17. Recompence to no man] In reaſon, revenge is but juſtice: Ariſtotle commends it: the world cals it Manhood, 'tis doghood rather. The manlier any man is, the milder and more merciful. as David, 2 Sam. 1. 12. and Julius Cæſar, who wept over Pompeys head preſented to him, and ſaid, Non mihi placet vindicta, ſed victoria, I ſeek not revenge but victory. Ariſt. Rhetor. lib. 9. cap. 1.

Verſe 18. As much as lieth in you] Let it not ſtick on your part. Give not offence careleſſly, take not offence cauſleſſly. See the Note on Mat. 5. 9. It is the firſt office of Juſtice, ſaith Tully, to hurt no body, unleſs firſt provoked by injury. But how true and trim a ſentence (ſaith Lactantius) hath Tully here marred by adding that laſt unleſs it Mahomets Laws run thus; Avenge your ſelves of your enemies; rather do wrong, then take wrong; kill the Infidels, &c. Profeſs love to thine enemy, ſaith Machiavel: and if he fall into the water up to the knees, give him thine hand to help him out: if up to the waſte, help him likewiſe; but if up to the chin, then lay thine hand upon his head and duck him under the water, and never ſuffer him to riſe again. But we have not ſo learned Chriſt; Seneca could ſay, immane verbum eſt ultio, Revenge is a bloody word; and Qui ulciſcitur excuſatius peccat. He is ſomewhat excuſed (but not altogether) from doing evil, that ſeeketh revenge.

Verſe 19. Avenge not your ſelves] Some take the Sword into their own hands: and, leſt they ſhould ſeem Anabaptiſts in taking two blows for one, will give two blows for one.

Give place to wrath] ſc. To the wrath and vengeance of God, which he ſeemeth to prevent that ſeeks revenge. Or, give place to wrath, Do nothing in thine heat: but walk into the garden, as Ahaſhueroſh did, when kindled againſt Haman. Theodoſius was adviſed by Ambroſe, to ſay over the Lords prayer; Auguſtus by Athenodorus, to repeat the Greek Alphabet, before they determined any thing in their anger. Eſther 7. 7.

Or, give place to wrath] Currenti cede furori, ſet not thy wit to his (for Anger is a ſhort madneſs) but bear with his weakneſs that wrongeth thee, &c. Ira furor brevis eſt.

Verſe 20. Thou ſhalt heap] Thou ſhalt melt him, and make him thy friend for ever.

Verſe 21. Be not overcome] In rixa is inferior eſt, qui victor eſt, ſaith Baſil. In revenge of injuries, he is the loſer that gets the better. Hence the Apoſtle diſgraceth it, by a word that ſignifieth diſgrace or loſs of victory. When any one provokes us, we uſe to ſay, We will be even with him. There is a way whereby we may be, not even with him, but above him; that is, forgive him, feed him with the beſt morſels, feed him indulgently ἥττημα. 1 Cor. 6. 7. ὑπερέχειν.

Digitized by Google

2 Kin. 6. 22, 23 gently (ſo the Apoſtles word in the former verſe ſignifies) feaſt him, as Eliſha did his perſecutors; providing a table for them, who had provided a grave for him. Set bread and water before them, ſaith he, and mark what followed; The bands of Syria came no more after that time, by way of ambuſh, or inroad, into the bounds of Iſrael. In doing ſome good to our enemies (ſaith a grave Divine hereupon) we do moſt to our ſelves: God cannot but love in us that imitation of his mercy, who bids his Sun to ſhine on the wicked and unthankfull alſo: and his love is never fruitleſs: It is not like the winter-Sun that gives little heat, but like the Sun in his ſtrength, that warms and works effectually upon the reſt of the creatures.

Func. chronol. But overcome evil] This is the moſt noble victory. Thus David overcame Saul, and Henry the ſeventh, Emperor of Germany, overcame the Prieſt that poiſoned him at the Sacrament: for he pardoned him, and bad him be packing. So did not Iacup the Perſian King, who perceiving himſelf poiſoned by his adulterous wife, enforced her to drink of the ſame cup: and becauſe he would be ſure ſhe ſhould not eſcape, with his own hand he ſtruck off her head. But this (to ſay truth) was not revenge, but juſtice. Henry the fourth of France was wont to ſay, that he made all the days of thoſe golden, who had moſt offended him; that ſo, the Lead of their wickedneſs might be darkned by the gold of his goodneſs.

Turkiſh Hiſt.

Balth Exner. Val. Max. Chriſt p. 62.

CHAP. XIII.

Verſe 1. Let every ſoul be ſubject]

IN things lawfull only; for elſe we muſt anſwer as thoſe Apoſtles did, Act. 5. 29. and as Polycarp, who being commanded to blaſpheme Chriſt, and to ſwear by the fortune of Cæſar, peremptorily refuſed, and ſaid, We are taught to give honour to Princes and Potentates, but ſuch honour as is not contrary to Gods religion.

Ordained of God] In regard of its inſtitution, though for the manner of its conſtitution it is of man.

Tho. 2, 2. q. 10. ar. 10.

Verſe 2. Reſiſteth the power] His authoritative commands, not his perſonal.

κρίμα, Confer. 1 Cor. 11. 31, 32.

Receive to themſelves damnation] Pœnam ſibi auferent, ſaith Piſcator, they ſhall receive puniſhment, to wit from the Magiſtrate: as Aretine deſerved to do, who by longer cuſtom of libellous and contumelious ſpeaking againſt Princes, had got ſuch a habit, that at laſt he came to diminiſh and diſeſteem God himſelf.

Verſe 3. For Rulers are not, &c.] They ſhould not be. But Ieroboam ſet a net on Mizpeh, and ſpread a ſnare upon Tabor, to watch who would go from him to Judah to worſhip, Hoſ. 5. 1.

A terror to good works, but to the evil] The Sword of juſtice (ſaith one) muſt be furbiſhed with the oyl of mercy; yet there are caſes wherein ſeverity ought to caſt the ſcale. Dureſce, Dureſce, ô infœlix Lantgravie, ſaid the poor ſmith to the Lantgrave of Thuring, more milde then was for his peoples good. Bonis nocet, qui malis parcit. Edward the Confeſſour was held a bad Prince, not by doing, but enduring ill.

Petr. Nicol. Gelſtroup. Dan Hiſt.

Verſe 4. For he is the miniſter] It was written upon the ſword of Charles the great, Decem præceptorum cuſtos Carolus, Charles is Lord Keeper of the Decalogue.

For he beareth not the ſword in vain] Like St. Paul in a glaſs window, or St. George (as they call him) on a ſign-poſt.

A revenger to execute wrath] But now we ſee how every man almoſt will be a Pope in his own cauſe, depoſe the Magiſtrate, at leaſt appeal from him to himſelf.

Upon him that doth evil] Whether the evil be civil or religious; Non diſtinguendum, ubi ſcriptura non diſtinguit. Note this againſt thoſe that hold that Magiſtrates have nothing to do in matters of Religion. See Deut. 13. 6. Ezra 7. 26. Dan. 3. 29. 1 Pet. 2. 13, 14. Their laws bind the conſcience per concomitantiam, by way of concomitancy; becauſe they depend upon the law of God, and are agreeable to it; which primarily and per ſe bindeth. As the ſoul is ſaid to be in a place per concomitantiam, becauſe it is in the body; ſo here.

See Mr. Burroughs his Heart-diviſions, p. 28.

διὰ τὸν Θεὸν. Baſil.

Verſe 5. But alſo for conſcience ſake] Good rulers we muſt obey as God; bad, for God,

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 6. Attending continually] As born for the benefit of many. The Parliament in the 25. of Edward 3. is known to poſterity by the name of Benedictum Parliamentum; So ſhall this preſent Parliament for their continual attendance upon the Lords work, bending themſelves to the buſineſs (as the word ſignifies) and holding out therein with unparallel'd patience. This was written, an. 1646. προσκαρτερεῖν.

Verſe 7. Render therefore to all their dues] He ſaith not their unjuſt exactions. Melanchthon makes mention of a cruel Prince, that to get money of his Subjects, would knock out their teeth; firſt one tooth, and then another, unleſs they would bring him in ſuch ſums of money as he required. Primo unum dentem evellebat minitans, &c.

Fear to whom, &c.] i.e. Reverential obſervance, far beyond that which Q. Fabius Maximus yielded to his ſon, when he became Conſul. Li. Decad. 3. lib. 4.

Verſe 8. Owe no man &c.] The Perſians reckoned theſe two for very great ſins; 1. To be in debt. 2. To tell a lye: the later being oft the fruit of the former. By the twelve Tables of Rome, he that owed much, and could not pay, was to be cut in pieces, and every creditor was to have a piece of him according to the debt. When Archbiſhop Cranmer diſcerned the ſtorm, which afterwards fell upon him in Queen Maries days, he took expreſs order for the payment of all his debts: which when it was done, a moſt joyfull man was he; that having ſet his affairs in order with men, he might conſecrate himſelf more freely to God. Let us therefore (ſaith a Reverend man) be thus far indulgent to our ſelves, as to ſhake off the deadly yoke of Bills and Obligations, which mancipate the moſt free and ingenuous Spirit, and dry up the very fountains of liberality. Yea they ſo put a man out of aym, that he cannot ſet his State in order, but lives and dies intangled and puſſed with cares and ſnares; and after a tedious and laborious life paſſed in a circle of fretting thoughts, he leaves at laſt, inſtead of better patrimony, a world of intricate troubles to his poſterity and to his ſureties: which cannot be managed by thoſe who underſtand them not, but to great diſadvantage. We read of a certain Italian Gentleman, who being asked how old he was? anſwered, that he was in health: And to another that asked how rich he was? anſwered, that he was not in debt, q. d. He is young enough that is in health; and rich enough that is not in debt. Xenophon. Gell. l. 12. c. 1. Act. & Mon. fol. 1692. Mr. Trilkins his Debt-book, 66

But to love one another] This is that deſperate debt that a man cannot diſcharge himſelf of: but muſt ever be paying, and yet ever-owing. As we ſay of thanks, Gratia habenda & agenda, thanks muſt be given, and yet held as ſtill due: ſo muſt this debt of love.

Verſe 9. Briefly comprehended] Capitulated, fulfilled, ſaith the Syriack, ſummed up. St. Bartholomew is quoted by Dionyſius to have ſaid of Divinity, Et magnam eſſe & minimam, that it was large and yet little, as containing much matter in few words. Ἀνακεφαλαιοῦται. Καὶ πολλὴν καὶ ἐλαχίστην.

Verſe 10. The fulfilling of the Law] The filling up of the Law in this, that it cloatheth the duties of the law with the glory of a due manner, and ſeateth them upon their due ſubjects, with the unwearied labours of a conſtant well-doing.

Verſe 11. To awake out of ſleep] Whiles the Crocodile ſleepeth with open mouth, the Indian Rat gets into his ſtomack, and eateth thorow his entrails. Whiles Iſhboſheth ſlept upon his bed at noon, Baanah and Rechab took away his head. Security uſhereth in deſtruction. Go forth and ſhake your ſelves as Sampſon did, when the Philiſtims were upon him: leſt Satan ſerve you, at leaſt for your ſouls, as Captain Drake did the Spaniard at Tanrapaſa in the Weſt-Indies for his treaſure; he found him ſleeping ſecurely on the ſhore, and by him thirteen bars of ſilver to the value of 40000. duckets, which he commanded to be carried away, not ſo much as once waking the man. Or leſt Chriſt himſelf deal by us, as Epaminondas did by the Watchman, whom he found aſleep: He thruſt him thorow with his ſword; and being blamed for ſo ſevere a fact, he replied, Talem eum reliqui, qualem inveni, I left him as I found him. Camdens Eliſa. fol. 222.

For now is our ſalvation nearer] Stir up your ſelves therefore, and ſtrain toward the mark. There is a Greek word ſignifying the end of a race, which is derived of a word that ſignifieth to ſpur or prick forward. Surely, as they that run their horſes for a wager, ſpur hardeſt at the races end; ſo, ſith our ſalvation is nearer now then ever it was, therefore we ſhould run faſter now then ever we did. When a Catt is in aquagmire, if the horſes feel it coming, they'l pull the harder: ſo muſt we, now that full deliverance is hard at hand. Rivers run more ſpeedily and forceably, when they come near the ſea, then they did τύω. τύσσω. Heſych. Pollux. l. 3. c. 30.

Digitized by Google

Epiſt. ad Sturm. did at the ſpring: the Sun ſhineth moſt amiably toward the going down. Tempus jam eſt (ſaid old Zanchius to his friend Sturmius who was elder then he) ut ad Chriſtum & cœlum ſtelliferum à terra properemus. &c. It is even high time for you and me, to haſten to heaven: as knowing that we ſhall ſhortly be with Chriſt, which is far far the better.

Phil. 1. 23.

Verſe 12. The night] Here it is taken for all unregeneracy, which (as the night) is full of rour, terrour, &c. Nox pudore vacat. This night with the Saints is far ſpent, or already paſt, as Cyprian and Hierom here render it.

Tranſivit. Præteriit.

Verſe 13. Let us walk honeſtly] Handſomely, faſhionably, mannerly, with an holy ſhamefacedneſs.

εὐσχημόνως.

Not in chambering] Properly, lying a bed, or long-lying.

κοίταις.

Verſe 14. But put ye on] Auguſtin confeſſeth that he was converted by reading and pondering this text.

And make not proviſion] Make not projects, cater not for the fleſh.

CHAP. XIV.

Verſe 1. Him that is weak, &c.

THat is not thorowly perſwaded of all things pertaining to Chriſtian liberty about things indifferent.

Receive] Affectu charitatis, put him into your boſoms, bear with his weakneſſes, &c. Bucer rejected none, though different in ſome opinions, in whom he found Aliquid Chriſti, any thing of Chriſt, whoſe weaklings are to be handled with all tenderneſs.

Hoyme.

But not too doubtful] Make him not Queſtion-ſick, 1 Tim. 6 4. Wring not mens conſciences: you may hap to break the wards, if you do.

Verſe 2. Eateth herbs] Rather then meats forbidden by the Law. The antient Latines were as well apaid of herbs to eat, as if they had had all manner of dainties. Green herbs were both food and Phyſick to them.

Dan. 1. 11. Holus ab ὅλον.

Verſe 3. For God hath received him] viz. For his houſhould ſervant, which David counted a greater dignity then to be King of Iſrael. And Juſtinian the Emperour ſtiled himſelf Ultimum ſervorum Dei, the meaneſt of Gods ſervants.

Verſe 4. Who art thou, &c.] The wiſdom from above is without cenſuring, without hypocriſie, ſaith S. James, Chap. 3. 17. Intimating, that the greateſt cenſurers are moſtly the greateſt hypocrites: And as any one is more wiſe, he is more ſparing of his cenſures.

Plin. Epiſt.

Verſe 5. Let every man be fully perſwaded] It is a ſafe rule, Quod dubites ne feceris: In dobutful caſes be ſure to take the ſurer ſide.

Sir Ed. Sands, Spec. Europæ.

Verſe 6. For he giveth God thanks] A cuſtome uſed by the very Heathens, to their gods, as is to be read in Homer and Virgil, but grovvn clean out of uſe among the Catholikes in France and Italy. But if they that give thanks at meat do eat no God, to whom do they eat that give none?

Verſe 7. For none of us liveth to himſelf] St. Paul ſtood, as it were on tiptoes, Phil. 1. 20, to ſee which way he might beſt glorifie God, by life or by death.

συναγγοδοκία

Verſe 8. We are the Lords] Death divides us not from Chriſt, but brings us home to him, 2 Cor. 5. 6. It is but winking (as that Martyr ſaid) and thou ſhalt be in heaven preſently.

Verſe 9. That he might be Lord] He won his Crown before he wore it; he fought for it, and having vanquiſhed all enemies, he accompliſhed and proclaimed the victory in his glorious reſurrection, triumphed in his wonderful aſcention, leading captivity captive, &c. Eph. 4. 7.

Verſe 10. But why doſt thou, &c.] Three things are not ſubject to our judgement. 1. The councels of God. 2. the holy ſcriptures. 3. The perſons of men. Be not therefore raſh in rejecting, or ſowr in cenſuring your fellow-ſervant; but let your moderation herein be known to all men; and the rather, becauſe the Lord is at hand. Phil 4. 5.

The Judgement ſeat of Chriſt] Who gives the Lamb in his ſentchion; and vvilt thou give the Lion?

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verse 11. As I live, saith the Lord] As true as I live, is an oath, as appears here, and Numb. 14, 21. with Psal. 95. 11. Forbear it therefore.

Verse 12. So then every one, &c.] It was excellent counsel that the Orator gave his hearers, Ita vivamus ut rationem nobis reddendam arbitremur. Let us so live as those that must give an account of all at last. Cic. 4. in Vit.

Verse 13. Any more] As they formerly had done: being over-sowr and supercilious.

A stumbling block, or an, &c.] A lighter or greater offence to make him go halting to heaven.

Verse 14. I know and am perswaded] Many on the contrary are perswaded before they know: and such will not be perswaded to know. The Valentinian hereticks had a trick to perswade before they taught (as saith Tertullian) The old Sectaries had their Pithanology, insinuative and perswasive language; so have the Modern: and hence so many dissonant opinions amongst us. If ye speak with several tongues, (so hold several opinions) will not he that comes in, think ye are mad? 1 Cor. 14. Dii boni, quomodo hic vivunt gentes! How strangely do people live here, said a stranger, observing our divisions in Henry the eights time: which (alass) were nothing comparable to these of our days; and all because simple men and silly women are soon perswaded to that they understand not. The silly-simple believeth every thing; weak as water on a table, which with a wet finger may be led any way. Pethi. Prov. 14. 15.

By the Lord Jesus] Who hath pulled down the partition-wall, and purchased our Christian liberty.

Verse 15. But if thy brother be grieved] It is his weakness to be grieved thereat, but gratifie him howsoever. What one speaks of a plain place of Scripture, this verse (saith he) had been easie, had not Commentatours made it knotty; the like, saith another of a Christians condition, it is gracious, happy, clear, sure, sweet, did not erroneous judgements vex and unsettle them.

Verse 16. Let not then your good] That is, Your Christian liberty purchased by Christ.

Be evil spoken of] Gr. Be blasphemed. Contumely cast upon the people of God, is blasphemy in the second Table. God, for the honour that he beareth to his people, counts and call its so.

Verse 17. For the kingdom of God, &c.] That was a swinish saying of Epicurus, That eternal life should be nothing else but a continual eating of the fat, and drinking of the sweet, even unto an uncessant surfetting and drunkenness. The Turks at this day promise Paradise to such as dye in war for the Mahometan faith, where they shall have delicious fare, pleasant gardens, all sensual delights, eternally to be enjoyed, notwithstanding any former sins. Fitt lettice for such lips. κρεῶν πολλὴν καὶ μέθην αἰώνιον. Blants voyage. p. 378.

Verse 18. Is acceptable to God] And he is an happy man that can be acquitted by himself in private, in publike by others, in both by God.

Verse 19. Wherewith one may edifie another] Discords among good people, do edificare in gehennam, as Tertullian phraseth it, build backwards. One of the main scandals the Jews take from Protestants, is their dissention.

Verse 20. The work of God] That work of faith, 1 Thes. 1. 3. wrought by the mighty power of God, Ephes. 1. 19. who puts not forth great power, but for great purposes.

Verse 21. It is good neither to eat, &c.] It will be no grief of heart, (as she once told David in another case) to have forborn in case of scandal. A great grief it would be if by some rash word we should betray a brother, or smite out the eye of our dearest childe; should we then destroy the life of grace in another by our unadvised walking? 1 Sam. 25.

Verse 22. Hast thou faith] Posse, & nolle, nobile est. Forbear for fear of offence, unless it be in point of necessary duty: For then we may not do evil, that good may come, Rom. 3. 8.

Verse 23. Is damned] Both of his doubting conscience, which soundeth heavily, as a shaulm; and of God, who is greater then his conscience,

Digitized by Google

Chap. XV.

Verse 1. Ought to bear]

Βαστάζειν. AS Porters do their burdens, as pillars do the poise of the house, or rather as parents bare their babes in their arms.

And not to please our selves] Bis desipit, qui sibi sapit, Prov. 3.7.

Verse 2. Please his neighbour] Though he cross himself: this is true Christian love, and driven almost out of the world by sinful self-love, which causeth men to dislike those things in others, that they favour and flatter in themselves.

Verse 3. For even Christ] And we should express him to the world, preach abroad his vertues by our practice, 1 Pet. 2. 9. Our lives should be as so many Sermons upon the life of Christ. This is to walk in Christ, Col. 2. 6. as Christ, 1 Ioh. 3. 6.

Verse 4. For whatsoever things, &c.] Here the Apostle meets with an Objection. For some man might say, that that saying of the Psalms pertains to David, how therefore is it applied to Christ? He answers, Whatsoever things, &c. q. d. We must learn to see Christ in David: David in the History, Christ in the mysterie; David as the type, Christ the truth.

Revel. 2. That we through patience] Hence the Scriptures are called, The word of Christs patience, because they patient the heart under Gods holy hand; and are better called Physick for the soul, then ever was the library of Alexandria.

ἡ τῆς ψυχῆς ἰατρεία. And comfort of the Scriptures] As the blood and spirits are conveyed by the veins and arteries: so is the Spirit by the promises, helping the soul to lay it self upon Christ by faith, which is a grace of union, and so of establishment.

Verse 5. Now the God of patience] The soul is then only in good plight, when the heaven answers the earth, Hos. 2. 21. When Christ the Sun of righteousnes shines into it.

Verse 6. With one mind, and one mouth] It is recorded to the high commendation of the Church of Scotland, that for this 90 years and upwards they have kept unity with purity without schism, much less heresie.

Syntag Confession prefat.

Verse 7. To the glory of God] That is, Of heaven, the joyes whereof it is as impossible to comprehend, as it is to compass the heaven with a span, or contain the Ocean in a nut-shel. Such comfort there is in the presence of Christ (though but in the womb) as it made John to spring; What then shall it be in heaven?

Verse 8. Now I say that Jesus] Paul proveth particularly in this and the following verses, that Christ hath taken both Jews and Gentiles to his glory.

Verse 9. And that the Gentiles] Though they had no such promises, might glorifie Gods free grace in the day of their visitation.

Verse 10. Rejoyce] That your names are also written in heaven, and that ye are enrolled in the records of the new Jerusalem.

Verse 11. All ye Gentiles] As being received into the glory of God, vers. 7.

Verse 12. In him shall the Gentiles trust] Isaiah hath it, To him shall the Gentiles seek; To seek to God then argues trust in God. He that hopes not, praies not, or but faintly.

Verse 13. Fill you with all joy, &c.] Note here that joy and peace are the means whereby faith worketh hope.

Verse 14. Full of goodness] The excellency of a godly man is to follow God fully, as Caleb, Numb. 14. 24. to have a heart full of goodness, as these Romans, a life full of good works, as Tabitha, Act. 9. 33. These shall receive a full reward, 2 Ioh. 8.

Verse 15. Chrisostome truly saith of St. Paul, that he was insatiabilis Dei cultor, one that thought he could never do God or his Church service enough.

Verse 16. Ministring the Gospel] Serving about holy things or doing sacred offices, as the Priests under the Law, to whom the Apostle all along this verse alludes in an elegant allegory: the Ministery is a divine and heavenly function. All other callings are for the world, and draw to the world; but this both in the preparation and execution, draweth to God, keepeth us with God, and to be ever mindful of the things of God.

ἱερουργοῦντα λειτουργον.

Verse 17. I have therefore, &c.] So have all Gods faithful Ministers at this day against the contempts and contumelies cast upon them by the mad world, ever besides it self in point of salvation. There is a pamphlet lately published that sticks not to make that sacred cred and tremend function of the Miniſtery to be as meer an impoſture, as very a myſtery of iniquity, as arrant a juggle as the papacy it ſelf. The Compaſs. Samaritan.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 18. To make the Gentiles, &c.] Chriſt by his Goſpel ſubdued the Britains, whom the Romans with all their force could never ſubdue, as Tertullian obſerved. Britannorum inacceſſa Romanis loca Chriſto tamen ſubdita. Tert.

Verſe 19. So that from Ieruſalem] Chryſoſtome obſerveth, that Plato came three times to Sicily to convert Dyoniſius the tyrant to moral philoſophy, and could not. But Paul fet a great compaſs, converted many ſouls, planted many Churches: And why? Chriſt ſat upon him as upon one of his white horſes, and went forth conquering and to conquer, Revel. 6. 2.

Verſe 20, Leſt I ſhould build] Leſt I ſhould ſeem to do any thing unbeſeeming the office of an Apoſtle, there is a decorum to be kept in every calling.

Verſe 21. But as it is written] In obedience to this divine oracle, the Apoſtle preached to thoſe that had not heard, yet neglected not thoſe that had.

Verſe 22. For which cauſe] By planting Churches, and preaching where was more need.

Verſe 23. Theſe many years] The Romans were converted to the faith betimes. Some of them were in Chriſt before Paul, Rom. 16. 7. Chriſt made haſt alſo to convert England, whoſe religion before, was triſtiſſimum ſuperſtitionum chaos (as Camden hath it) a moſt ſad chaos of ſuperſtitions. Sabellicus teſtifieth that Britany was the firſt of all the Provinces that publikely profeſſed Chriſt. And as we were the firſt that took upon us the yoke of papal tyranny (ſo that England was called the Popes Aſs) ſo were we the firſt that ſhook it off again. Ennead. 7. lib. 5.

Verſe 24. For I truſt to ſee you] Ipſe aſpectus viri boni delectat, ſaith Seneca. There is a great deal of ſweetneſs in the Society of Saints, and much good to be gotten thereby. Sometimes, (ſaith a grave Divine) though we know that which we ask of others, as well as they do, yet good ſpeeches will draw us to know it better, by giving occaſion to ſpeak more of it; wherewith the Spirit works more effectually, and imprints it deeper, ſo that it ſhall be a more rooted knowledge then before. For that doth good that is graciouſly known, and that is graciouſly known, that the Spirit ſeals upon our ſouls.

Verſe 25. To miniſter unto the Saints] The higheſt Angel in heaven may not hold himſelf too good to ſerve the Saints.

Verſe 26. It hath pleaſed them] It hath not been ſqueezed out of them, as verjuice is out of a crab, but freely and chearfully they have contributed. εὐδόκησαν.

For the poor Saints which are at Ieruſalem] The Jews do at this day ſend their alms yearly from all parts to Ieruſalem for the maintenance of the poor that live there, and ſpend their time, praying for the welfare of the whole nation.

Verſe 27. Their debters they are] And ſo are we to pity and pray for them. See my True Treaſure, Sect. 2. chap. 7.

Verſe 28. When I have ſealed] That is, Safely delivered, as if it were under ſeal.

This fruit] This ſweet ripe fruit of their faith and love, their alms.

Verſe 29. In the fulneſs of the bleſſing] Chriſt may uſe one of leſs grace to do more good then one of more (for there are diverſities of operations, as well as of gifts, 2 Cor. 12. 6.) but uſually he delights to honour thoſe of moſt ſincerity, with moſt ſucceſs, 1 Cor. 15. 10.

Verſe 30. For the Lord Jeſus Chriſts ſake] This is one of thoſe paſſages in S. Paul, then the which there can nothing poſſibly be imagined more grave, divine, excellent, ſaith Beza.

That ye ſtrive together] Even to an agony, as the word imports. Spiritual beggery is the hardeſt and richeſt of all trades, as one ſaid. Learn of this great Apoſtle to beg prayers with all earneſtneſs. Pray for me, I ſay pray for me, I ſay, quoth father Latymer, Pray for me, pray for me, for Gods ſake pray for me, ſaid bleſſed Bradford. συναγωνίσασθαι. Act. & Mon. fol. 1565. Ibid. 1499.

Verſe 31. That my ſervice which, &c.] One would have thought that the Apoſtle coming with alms to them, ſhould eaſily have been well accepted: but he ſaw cauſe to ſeek God for ſuch a mercy, ſith it is he alone that faſhions mens opinions, and gives favour and kind acceptance. Beſides wiſdom, he gave Solomon honour.

Verſe 32. Be refreſhed] See the Note on Rom. 1. 12. and on 2 Job. 12.

Verſe 33. Now the God of peace] A fit attribute for the preſent purpoſe. It is a commendable policy in Chriſtians, when they pray, to propound God to their minde in ſuch notions, and under ſuch titles, as whereby they may ſee in God the things they deſire of God.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

Chap. XVI.

Verse 1. Servant of the Church]

D. Baswick against Independ. A Diaconisse to minister to the sick, as 1 Tim. 5. 9. not a prædicantisse, to preach or have Peters keys at their girdle.

Verse 2. As becometh Saints] Who are great Princes, States, in all lands, Psal. 45. and to be observed accordingly, even worthy of God, 3 Joh. 6.

Verse 3. Salute Priscilla] She is first mentioned, haply as more forward then her husband in the best things. So was Manoahs wife, and Nazianzens mother.

Dan. hist. 231. Verse 4. Who have for my life] A rare example. Fast friends are in this age for the most part gone on pilgrimage (said one once) and their return is uncertain.

Verse 5. The Church that is in their house] The house of George Prince of Anhalt, for the good orders therein observed, is said to have been Ecclesia, Academia, Curia.

The first fruits of Achaia] The first that received the Gospel there. A singular commendation, a sweet happiness. Gods soul hath desired such first ripe fruits, Mic. 7. 1. such primroses.

Verse 6. Greet Mary, &c.] It is profitable that men of great parts and place should preserve their memory with others, though it be but in a salutation: for it may be a means to fire up affection to godliness in such whom they so remember.

Ἐπίσημοι. Verse 7. Who are of note] Noble, notable Christians, old experienced gray-headed Disciples. Christianity finds or makes us honorable.

Verse 8. Greet Amplias] Piety is no enemy to curtesie: It doth not remove, but rectifie it.

Verse 9. Our helper in Christ] A sweet sign to him, that his name was written in the book of life, Phil. 4. 3.

Verse 10. Approved in Christ] An high stile, far beyond that of the great Turk, with all his big-swoln-titles.

Verse 11. My kinsman] in the flesh, but more in the faith, that surest tie.

Verse 12. Who labor in the Lord] Though not so much as Persis did, yet doth he not defraud them of their due commendation; Prima sequentem honestum est in secundis tertiisque consistere. Every man must not look to excell: let him be doing, as he is able.

Cic. de orator.

Verse 13. His mother and mine] His by nature, mine by affection. The Apostles parted with parents and friends at home, found them abroad.

Verse 14. Salute Asyncritus, &c.] Nothing is said of these; for haste perhaps, or else because they were (as one saith of Jesse the Father of David) Viri, probi & honesti, minùs tamen clari, Good honest men, but not much noted. Or lastly, for that the Apostle had no very good opinion of them, as he seems not to have had of Demas, Col. 4. 14. who yet would needs be one in the Apostles Register there: a place he will have, though it be the last place. Hermas here mentioned, was reputed by some of the Ancients to be the Author of that Apocryphal Book called Pastor; wherein he dealt not so fairly and faithfully in relating what he had received from the Apostles, being subtilis fidei author.

Verse 15. And Olympas] Viri nomen, non mulieris. The name not of a woman, but of a man, saith Beza.

M. Edwards his Antapol. p. 36. 60. Verse 16. With an holy kisse] The Independents at Arnheim in Holland, propounded this kiss of love to be practised amongst them. So for anointing the sick with oil, singing of hymns by one man, all the rest being silent, &c.

γνωτίζετε. Bernard. Verse 17. Mark them which] Set a watchfull and a jealous eye upon them, as upon Pests and enemies. And here, let not our Episcopi (whose office it is chiefly) be Apostopi, over-seers be by-seers, but look well to the Flock, lest these Wolves worry them.

Acts 20 29

ἐκκλίνατε. And avoid them] Gr. Decline them studiously, as ye would do a serpent in your way, or poison in your meats.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 18. But their own bellies] They pretend the ſervice of Chriſt to their worldly and wicked reſpects, by a diſſembled ſanctity, which is double iniquity. The Duke of Bavaria is even eaten up with thoſe Popiſh fleſh-flies, Friers and Jeſuites. It was an honeſt complaint of a Popiſh Writer, We ſaith he, handle the Scriptures, Tantum ut nos paſcat & veſtiat, only for a livelyhood: We ſerve God for gain: as children will not ſay their prayers, unleſs they be promiſed their break-faſts. Caietan writing on Mat. 5.13. Ye are the ſalt of the earth, confeſſeth ingenuouſly of himſelf and his fellow-Prelates, that whereas by their places they ſhould have been the ſalt of the earth, they had loſt their ſavour, and were good for little elſe but looking after the Rites and Revennes of the Church. And ſuch were many of our Engliſh Prelates grown, before their late extirpation. If you put not into the mouths of theſe Cerberuſſes, they would even prepare war againſt you. Therefore their Sun went down, and the day grew dark over them, Mic. 3.5,6. All ſeducers are ſelf-ſeekers: they teach things that they ought not, for filthy lucres ſake, Tit. 1.11. They are like Eagles that ſoar aloft towards heaven, not for any love of heaven, but that they may ſpy their prey the ſooner, ſeize upon it the better: or like thoſe Ravens in Arabia, that, full-gorg'd, have a tunable ſweet record; but empty, they ſcreech horribly. In parabola ovis capras ſuas quærunt, as the Ferry-man looks one way, rows another.

Evanuimus ac ad nihilum utiles, niſi ad externas cœremonias, externaq; bona.

And by good words, &c. Thoſe locuſts in the Revelation have faces like women, inſinuative and flattering. The Valentinian Hereticks had an Art to perſwade before they taught, whereas the truth perſwadeth by teaching, it doth not teach by perſwading. Tertullian.

They deceive] As Cheaters do, by the cogging of a Dye, Eph. 4.14. Fallax artificium, vel potius artifex fallacia, ſaith Eraſmus on that Text, a cunning kinde of cozenage. ἐν τῇ πανουργίᾳ Verſe 19. For your obedience, &c.] Whereas the Romans might object, Are we alſo of thoſe ſimple ones? Your obedience, ſaith he, is famous all the world over. Howbeit I would have you wiſe to that which is good, but ſimple concerning evil. This ſimplicity is no diſparagement, to be unskilled in the devils depths, Rev. 2.24.

Verſe 20. Shall bruiſe Satan] Sincerity of a little grace ſhall be rewarded with abundance of greater graces. Chriſt our Champion hath already won the field, and will ſhortly ſet our feet upon the necks of our ſpiritual enemies. The broken horns of Satan ſhall be the Trumpets of our triumph, and the Cornets of our joy.

Verſe 21. Timotheus my work-fellow] Of Timothy, read Act. 16.1,2. Of Lucius, Act. 13.1. Of Jaſon, Act. 17.5. Of Sopater. Act. 20.4.

Verſe 22. I Tertius who wrote, &c.] Either from the Apoſtles mouth, or rather out of his foul papers.

Verſe 23. Gaius mine hoſt] Baptized by Paul, for whom therefore, and for other good men he thought he could never do enough; Such another was Phebe, verſe 2. who had been a ſuccouter, or an hoſteſs to many, and to my ſelf, ſaith Paul. 1 Cor. 1.14. Multis hoſpitium præbuit. Steph.

Verſe 24. The grace of our Lord] This is the ſeal of all St. Paule Epiſtles. 2 Theſ. 3.17.

Verſe 25. Which was kept ſecret] Even from the very Angels, 1 Pet. 1.12. who do daily profit in the knowledge of this ſecret, Eph. 3.10.

Verſe 26. According to the Commandment] The writings of the Prophets concerning the myſterie of Chriſt were not made knowa to the world by hap-hazard, but by a ſpeciall command of God.

For the obedience of Faith] Though God purpoſed good to his people before all Worlds, yet that is concealed, till ſuch time as they yield this obedience of Faith: Like as water that runs under ground, is hid a long time till it break out ſuddenly: and then we diſcover that there was a ſtream ran under ground; as Arethuſa and other Rivers do.

Verſe 27. To God only Wiſe &c.] So ſay I for theſe few Notes thus finiſhed. All that I ſhall now add, is this Diſtick;

Pars ſuperat cœpti, pars eſt exacta laboris:
Hic teneat noſtras anchora jacta rates.

A

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

A COMMENTARY OR EXPOSITION Upon the first Epistle of St. Paul to the Corinthians.

Chap. I.

Verse 1. Through the will of God]

NOt the faculty in God, whereby he willeth: but his act; the thing that he willeth. This will of God is either Secret, or Revealed, Deut. 22.29. And this revealed will is either of his Pleasure, or of his good-pleasure. The former is also in things where the effect is evil; and so God willeth in respect of the end, but not of the means to the end; as in sin, and some miseries: The latter is in those things only where the effect is good, as here, and Rom. 12.2. It was for the very great good of the Church, that God would have Paul to be a chosen vessel, to bear his name before the Gentiles, &c. Act. 9. 15. So that Cor Pauli est cor Christi, as Chrysostom hath it: For, We have the minde of Christ, 1 Cor. 2. 16. Placiti. Beneplaciti.

Sosthenes our brother] And companion in the Kingdom and patience of Christ, Act. 18.17. There he was despitefully entreated, here highly honoured. Christ is a liberal pay-master: Never any did or suffered ought for his sake that complained of an hard bargain. It is to my loss (said that Martyr) if you take me any thing in my sufferings. Majora certamina, majora sequuntur præmia, saith Tertullian. Revel. 1. 9.

Verse 2. Called to be Saints] i.e. Either such as are sanctified by habitual infusion, or such as are sanctified by baptismal profession only, that are in Covenant with God by sacrifice, Psal. 50 6. and are in Christ, though they bear no fruit, Joh. 15.2. These two sorts of Saints make up a true visible Church.

Digitized by Google

With all that in every place] The Apostles then wrote not their Epistles for the particular uses of those times only, as the Iesuits will have it.

Verse 3. Grace be to you and peace] All peace that flows not from the sense of Gods love and favour, is as that of the Romans with the Samnites, unsound and uncertain. See the Note on Rom. 1. 7.

Pax infida, pax incerta. Livius.

Verse 4. I thank my God] Thus he begins most of his Epistles. Deo gratias was ever in Austins mouth, who had Pauls spirit. Every gracious man is a grateful man. The same Greek word signifieth grace and thanks. Only that part of Abrahams seed that is as the Stars of heaven, can in their courses sing a song of praise to God. True it is, that all his works praise him, that is, they give matter and occasion so to do: but his Saints onely bless him, in manner as Paul here doth, Psal. 145. 10. and bring actual glory to him, Ephes. 1. 11, 12. Wicked men cannot say, I thank my God, for they have no true notion of God, but as of an enemy: and therefore all their verbal thanks are but as musick at funerals, or as the trumpet before a Iudge; no comfort to the mourning wife, or guilty prisoner.

χάρις.

For the grace of God] Intending to chide them, he first commends them, that he may preserve in their hearts an opinion of his love, whilest he rebuked them sharply, that they might be found in the faith.

Verse 5. Ye are enriched] See here what is the Christians riches. And so David reckons of his wealth, Psal. 119. 32. He cannot be poor in whom the word of God dwels richly, Colos. 3. 16. especially if he be free of discourse, able and willing to communicate. A dumb Christian is to be blamed, as well as a dumb Minister.

Verse 6. The testimony of Christ] The Gospel, called also the testimony, Isa. 8. 20. To the Law, and to the Testimony.

Verse 7. So that ye come behind, &c.] Yet were babes and carnal, Chap. 3. 2, 3. and fell short in many graces. We must distinguish between gifts and graces, and covet these rather then those, 1 Cor. 13. 1.

Verse 8. In the day of our Lord Jesus] Eleven times in these ten first verses (as Chrysostom well observeth) the Apostle mentioneth the Lord Jesus Christ, who was to him, and should be to us Mel in ore, melos in aure, jubilum in corde, honey in the mouth, musick in the ear, joy in the heart. The Iews use to cast to the ground the book of Esther, before they read it, because the name of God is not in it. This is ill done of them. But that is recorded to the commendation of Augustine, that he cast by Ciceros writings, (though otherwise very delightful to him) because he found not in them that mellifluous name of Jesus.

Bern.

Verse 9. Vnto the fellowship] Union being the ground of communion: so that all is in him is for us. I give my goods to the Saints, saith David, in the person of Christ.

Verse 10. That there be no divisions] To break unity in the Church, is to cut asunder the very veins and sinews of the mystical body of Christ.

By the Name of our Lord] Which is like to suffer by your dissensions, and whereof you ought to be as tender, as of treading upon your parents that begat you.

Perfectly joined] Schisms dis-joynt men. Yea shake them out of their senses, and fright them out of their wits, 2 Thes. 2. 2. See the Note there.

Verse 11. Of the house of Chloe] A godly Matron she was no doubt, and a good office herein she did her neighbours: though likely she had little thank for her labour; as likewise Joseph had for bringing his brethrens evil report to their father, Gen. 37. 2.

That there are contentions] These often breed Schisms; as did the contention between Luther and Carolostadius: And many of the ancient heresies sprang from private grudges and discontents, in sui solatium, for a sorry comfort to those that broached them.

Verse 12. And I of Christ] q. d. I care neither for Paul nor Apollo, &c. As some say now-adaies, they are neither Papists nor Protestants, but Christians, that is just nothing, flat Atheists. Heraclius the Emperour being imprudently carried away by some Bishops into the opinion of the Monothelites, when that heresie was afterwards condemned by the Council of Hierusalem, the Emperour being ashamed to recant, became a meer Neutralist, and held neither one way nor other. And have we not some like-minded amongst us, who are yet to chuse their religion; resolving to resolve on nothing, because (forsooth) there are so many sects and controversies, and such differences ces in opinion and contradictions of preachers, therefore they will suspend, serve God (as they call it) and not trouble themselves to know whither side hath the better? But these might know 1. That truth is but one and the same: Christi tunica est unica, Christs coat is seamless, his truth single, and at good agreement with itself. 2. That we have a most sure word, 2 Pet. 1. 19 sure, and sufficient to perfect the man of God: and that Non est litigiosa juris scientia sed ignorantia; as the Lawyers use to say: it is not the too much knowledge, but the ignorance of the scriptures that begets strife. 3. That Gods elect have a promise to be taught of God, to be kept from being finally deceived: to be brought to a certainty and full assurance of what they should hold: so evidently and clearly will God by his Spirit speak to their consciences, that they shall hold fast the faithful word, though they cannot answer every cavil: and be unmoveable as the center, as mount Zion that cannot be stirred.

Digitized by Google

Mat. 24. 24. Joh. 10. 4, 5. Job 22. 21. Thess. 30. 1. Joh. 7. 17. 1 Joh. 2. 20. Psal. 19. 7. Prov. 1. 4. Isai. 52. 6. Joh. 6. 45.

Verse 13. Baptized in the name] Gr. Into the name, so as to be called by my name. Those then that will needs be called Franciscans, Lutherans, &c. do after a sort disclaim their Baptism, and become run-awaies from Christ.

Verse 14. I thank God] He noteth and noticeth herein a sweet providence, beyond all that he then imagined, when he was at Corinth. God is to be seen in every special occurrence.

Verse 15. Lest any should say] q. d. God hath so disposed of it, that none can with any colour or cause, or shew of sense say such a thing.

Verse 16. Whether I Baptized any] His Colleagues belike did it (whiles he was otherwise busied) with a particular examination and instruction in those principles, Heb. 6. 2.

Verse 17. Not to Baptize] As my chief work, * but to preach and plant Churches, wherein he had a very happy hand: as had likewise Farellus among our late Reformers, Qui Mompelgardenses, Aquileienses, Lausannenses, Genevenses, Novocomenses Christo lucrifecit, he gained five (ities with their territories to Christ.

* So Ier. 7. 22. Melch. Adam. in vit. 115.

Not with wisdom of words] Which yet S Paul could have done as well as another; witness his artificial unstarching of the Orators speech Act. 26 But he liked not to put the Sword of the Spirit into a velvet scabbard, that it could not pierce, to speak Flor. de pois quam solide, as those self-seekers at Corinth did, that sought more to tickle the ear then to affect the heart. It repented Augustine (and well it might) that when he was young he had preached more Ut placeret, quam ut doceret, to please then to profit. And Luther was wont to say, He is the best preacher that preacheth vulgariter, trivialiter, maximèq; ad populi captum. Not but that there is a lawful use of Rhetorike in Sermons, so it be free from ostentation. See the Preface to my Gods love-tokens.

Verse 18. To them that perish, foolishness] As it is to the Jews at this day, who rail against Christs person, calling him the hanged God, the woof and the warp, Levit. 13. 52. because these two make the figure of the Cross. And being asked whether they believe to be saved by Christs righteousness? They answer, That every Fox must pay his own skin to the flaer. The Pagans also jeared at Christ and his people, as did Julian, Lucian, Porphyry, &c.

Verse 19. For it is written] Thus the old Testament is fulfilled in the New, whiles the worlds wizards are dazelled, dulled and disannulled. Ἀθετήσω.

Verse 20. Where is the wise] The teacher of traditions: the Jews had a Proverb, οἱ σοφοὶ ἡμῶν δωτεροῦσι.

Where is the scribe?] Or the Text-men, those that proceed according to the literal interpretation.

Where is the Disputer?] The teachers of allegories and mysteries, 1 Tim. 1. 4.

Verse 21. The world by wisdome] Not the Jews by their deep Doctours, nor the Gentiles by their wits and wizards (qui tanquam noctuæ ad solem caligabant) could grope out God. Acts 17. 27. ψηλαφήσειαν.

By the foolishness of preaching] An ironical confession; so the mad world esteemeth it, who shall rue for ever the contempt of it, crying out, Nos insensati, &c.

Verse 22. For the Jews require, &c.] The reason of their rejecting the Gospel, is, they are prepossessed against it; they look for that, that it affordeth not. A prejudicate opinion bars up the understanding. Intùs existens prohibet alienum: like muddy water in a vessel, that causeth the most precious liquor to run over.

Digitized by Google

And the Greeks seek after wisdom] Which yet they attained not. For Sapiens est cui res sapiunt prout sunt, saith Bernard, He is a wise man who conceiveth of things as they are: And all the wisdom of man is only in this, that he rightly know and worship God, saith Lactantius. But this, these Greeks could never skil of. No not these Corinthians (till called and sanctified) who yet were famous for their wisdom (Periander one of the seven Wise-men, was a Corinthian) and their City he called by the Orator lumen Graciæ, the light of Greece: But whereto tended their light but to light them into utter darkness? And what was all their wisdom without Christ, but earthly, sensual, devilish? Jam. 3. 15. Earthly, managing the lusts of the eyes unto the ends of gain: Sensual, managing the lusts of the flesh unto ends of pleasure; And Devilish, managing the pride of life unto ends of power.

Cicero.

Verse 23. But we preach Christ] We not only preach of him, but we preach him, we give what we preach. It is the special office of the ministery to lay Christ open, to hold up the tapestry, to unfold the hidden mysteries of Christ. The holy Ghost in them, taketh of that which is Christs, and sheweth to men, Joh. 16. 15.

Unto the Jews a stumbling block] These Philistims cannot conceive how out of the eater should come meat, and out of the strong, sweet.

Unto the Greeks] These jeared at Jesus, and the resurrection, as at a couple of strange gods, Act. 17. 18. Cato profanely saith, Stultitia est morte alterius sperare salutem. It is a folly to expect safety by the death of another. The Gospel was to the Jews a stumbling-stock; and to the Greeks a laughing-stock. They both stumbled on the bridge, and so fell into the ditch of destruction.

Verse 24. Christ the power of God] Opposite to the power of miracles required by the Jews.

And the wisdom of God] Opposite to the Grecians worldly wisdom.

Verse 25 Because the foolishness] The wisest man compared to God, Simia videbitur, non sapiens, said Heraclitus, as Plato relateth it, He will appear to be an Ape rather then a wise-man. But what meant that malicious fool Genebrard, to call Reverend Beza, Theomorus for Theodorus? Was it not of God, so to direct the tongue of this Caiaphas the second, that in Beza and himself might this Scripture be fulfilled, τὸ μωρὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ σοφώτερον τῶν ἀνθρώπων, &c. The foolishness of God, &c.

Verse 26. Not many mighty] The Eagle and Lion were not offered in sacrifice, as the Lamb and the Dove were. It is hard for great ones to deny themselves. Hence it grew to a proverb in times of Popery, That hell was paved with Priests shaven crowns, and great mens head-pieces. Indeed if men might pass de delicijs ad delicias, è cœno ad cœlum, as Hierom hath it: If they could dance with the devil all day, and sup with Christ at night; If they might live all their lives long in Dalilah's lap, and then go to Abraham bosom when they die, they would have a fine time of it. But that cannot be: and hence so many mighties miscarry.

Rasis sacrificulorum vertigibus & magnatum galeis. Hieron.

Not many noble] Blessed be God that any: as Galeacius Caracciolus an Italian Marquess, and Nephew to Pope Paul 5. was converted by Peter Martyr reading upon this first Epistle to the Corinthians. George Prince of Anhalt, a pious preaching Prince, converted by Melancthon: Ulysses Martinengus Earl of Baccha another Italian convert, and some few more that might be instanced. But good Nobles are black-swans (saith one) and thinly scattered in the firmament of a State, even like stars of the first magnitude. We may say of such, as Luther doth of Elizabeth Queen of Denmark, a pious Princess, Scilicet Christus etiam aliquando voluit reginam in cœlum vehere.

Luther in epist. ad Ioh. Agricol.

Verse 27. But God hath chosen] In our Church Assemblies the meaner usually, like little fishes, bite more then the greater. The poor are Gospellized, Mat. 11. 5.

Verse 28. Things which are not] i.e. That are nought set by, 1 Sam. 25. 6. Thus shall ye say to him that liveth, that is, to him that is rich: for poor men are reputed as dead men. They have but prisoners pittances, which will keep them alive, and thats all. Arrian upon Epictetus hath observed, that in a Tragedy there's no place for a poor man, but onely to dance.

Verse 29. That no flesh] Proud flesh will soon swell, if it have but any thing to fasten on. The devil will also easily blow up such a blab.

Verse 30. But of him are ye] q.d. Albeit ye have nothing of your own, yet in Christ you have all: for in him is all fulness both repletive and diffusive, both of abundance, and of redundance too, both of plenty and of bounty.

It

Digitized by Google

Is made unto us wisdom] This notes out Christs Prophetical office.

Righteousness and sanctification] By his Priestly office.

Redemption] By his Kingly office, having fully delivered his from sin, death and hell; all which is not fully done till after death. And that's the reason why Redemption is here set last. See Rom. 8. 23. Luk. 21. 28.

Verse 31. Glory in the Lord] Acquiesce and exult in him, which is the end why God hath done all this for us in Christ.

Chap. II.

Verse 1. Not with excellency]

Saint Pauls speech was neque lecta, neque neglecta, neither curious nor careless. Politian could say, that it is an ornament to an Epistle to be without ornaments. And yet he had so little grace as to prefer Pindars Odes before Davids Psalms. Hosius also the Cardinal, thought Davids Psalms unlearned, applying that, Scribimus indocti doctique poëmata passim. Os durum! The holy Scriptures have a grave eloquence, but want those pompous and painted words, that carnal Rhetoricians hunt after. There is difference between a Pedantike stile, and a Majestick. Non Oratorum filii sumus, sed Piscatorum, said that great Divine to Libanius the Rhetorician, that tickled his hearers with tinckling terms, and delighted to wit-wanton it with lascivious phrases of Oratory.

Verse 2. To know any thing] To profess or teach any other skill. All the wisdom of a man is in this one thing, saith Lactantius, Ut Christum cognoscat & colat, That he know and worship Christ. Hoc nostrum dogma, hæc sententia est, &c. Lactan. lib 3. cap. 30.

Verse 3. In weakness] In misery, and in a mean condition, labouring with his hands, &c. Act. 18. 3.

And in fear] Of adversaries, or through care of discharging my duty amongst you.

Verse 4. With enticing words] Religion is not a matter of parts, words or wit. The devil cares not for the sons of Sceva's adjurations. Abanah and Pharphar may scour, but Jordan only can cure. Gods holy things must be handled, Sanctè magis quam scitè, with fear and reverence, rather then with wit and dalliance. Let Ministers set out the work of God as skilfully and adornedly as they can, but still aym at the winning of souls. Let not the window be so painted, as to keep out the light. Some frothy Discourses are like childrens Babies, that when you have taken away the dressing, you have taken away all: or like beautifull pictures, which have much cost bestowed on them to make them comely and desirable to the eye; but life, heat, and motion there is none. O pulchrum caput! sed sensus non inest, said the Ape in the Fable. Prudentibus viris non placent phalerata, sed fortia, said Bishop Juel, who ever loved a manlike eloquence, but not that which is effeminate. No more did reverend Mr. Sam. Crook, but ever shunned those more gay and lighter flourishes of a luxuriant wit, wherewith the emptiest Cells affect to be most fraught, as they who for want of Wares in their Shops, set up painted blocks, to fill up vacant shelves. The Saints Everlast. Rest. Clarks Lives. Life of Master Crook by W. G.

In demonstration of the spirit] With demonstrations fetcht out of the very marrow of the Scriptures. It must be an elaborate speech that shall work upon the conscience. A man must inlighten with his own, other mens understandings; and heat by his own other mens affections. Si vis me flere, &c. Bonaventures words in preaching were non inflantia sed inflammantia, not high-swelling, but inflaming his hearers. Horat. Mr. Clarks Life of Bonav.

Verse 5. That your faith, &c.] A humane testimony can breed but a humane faith. Aarons bells were of pure gold; our whole preaching must be Scripture-proof, or it will burn, and none be the better for it. Ut drachmam auri fine imagine principis, sic verba hortantis sine authoritate Dei contemnunt homines, saith Lipsius.

In the power of God] In the Gospel that lodgeth a certainty in the soul.

Verse 6. Wisdom among the perfect] Or those that are grown to maturity. Some think think the Apostle borroweth this term from the Pagans superstition, who admitted none to their most secret Ceremonies, but only persons well prepared and purified for many years.

Digitized by Google

Yet not the wisdom, &c.] Which is like the labor of Moles, that dig dexterously under ground, but are blinde above ground, and never open their eyes, (saith Pliny) till pangs of death are upon them. Cry we after Christ, as the blinde man in the Gospel did; who when he was asked, what wouldst thou have? Lord, saith he, that mine eyes may be opened. Philosophers observe, that lumen est vehiculum influentiæ; light begets the flower in the field, the pearl in the sea, the precious stone in the earth: so the foundation of all renovation is Illumination. O cry aloud to the Father of lights, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ. This will hold out, when the Wisdom of this World, and the Philosophorum facile Principes come to nought.

2 Cor. 4.

That come to nought] That are tumbled into hell with all their learning, which doth but light them into utter darkness.

Nos cum doctrinis nostris, &c. Aug.

Verse 7. Wisdom of God in a mystery] Whiles God did not divide himself into a merciful Father, and a just Judge (as Valerius speaketh of Zaleucus) but declared himself to be both a perfectly merciful Father, and withall a perfectly just Judge; which was such an act of wisdom as the world never heard of. This is that great mysterie of Godliness, 1 Tim. 3. 16.

Verse 8. Which none of the Princes] He calleth the Pharises and Philosophers Princes, for their learning; as being himself a scholar. Only he might well have said of them, as Tully of others in another case, Mihi quidem nulli satis eruditi videntur, quibus nostra sunt ignota. I cannot take them for scholars, that partake not of our learning.

Cic. de Poetis Latinis.

None of the Princes of this world knew] Because their learning hung in their light. So it fared with Ulpian the chief Lawyer, Galen the chief Physician, Porphyry the chiefest Aristotelian, and Plotinus the chief Platonist, who were professt enemies to Christ and his truth. So was Libanius and Lucian the chief scholars of their time. None miscarry oftner then men of greatest parts. None are so deep in hell as those that are most knowing. They see no more into the mysterie of Christ, then illiterate men do into the profound points of Astronomy. As a man may look on a trade and never see the mysterie of it: or he may look on the letter, and never understand the sense: so here.

For had they known it, &c.] It was ignorance then that crucified Christ, Acts 3. 17. And St. Paul thanks his ignorance for his persecuting and blaspheming, 1 Tim. 1. 15. The dark places of the earth are full of the habitations of cruelty, Psal. 74. 20. And they proceed from evil to evil, because they know not me, saith the Lord, Jer. 9. 3. Surely as Toads and Serpents grow in dark and dirty sellars: so doth all sin and wickedness in an ignorant and blind soul. The Platonists held, that men sin only by ignorance. And Omnis peccans est ignorans, saith Aristotle. In blind Ale-houses is abundance of disorder, &c.

Verse 9. Eye hath not seen, &c.] It is reported of one Adrianus, that seeing the Martyrs suffer such grievous things, he asked the cause; one of them answered, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entred into the heart of man, the things that God hath prepared for them that love him. The naming of which Text so wrought upon him, that afterward he became a Martyr.

The things which God hath prepared] As he prepared Paradise for Adam: so heaven for all his. Yet he reserves not all for the life to come, but gives a few grapes of Canaan in this wilderness. And so this text is to be understood of Gospel-joy, and those present comforts that the Saints have here, that præmium ante præmium: for not only after, but in the doing of Gods will there is great reward; such as natural eye hath not seen, or ear heard: the stranger medleth not with this joy: it is the sparkle of that white stone, it is that new name known to none but those that have it, it is a comfort confined to the Communion of Saints.

Psal. 95. 11

Verse 10. But God hath revealed] The Chineses use to say of themselves, That all other Nations of the world see but with one eye, they only with two. This is most true of the natural man compared to the spiritual.

Descrip. of the World, Chap. of China and Cathaia.

Verse 11. Save the Spirit, &c.] Man knows his inward thoughts, purposes and desires; fires; but the frame and disposition of his own heart he knows not. Jer. 17. 9.

Digitized by Google

Knoweth no man] How can he that cannot tell the form and quintessence of things, that cannot enter into the depth of the flowers, or the grass he treads on, have the wit to enter into the deep things of God, hid from Angels till the discovery, and since that, they are students in it.

But the Spirit of God] With this heifer of his therefore we must plow, if we will ever understand his riddles.

Verse 12. Not the Spirit of the world] The world lieth down in that unclean one, and is under the power and vassallage of that spirit that worketh in the children of disobedience, as a Smith in his forge, 1 Joh. 5. 19. Ephes. 2. 2. It is wholly set upon wickedness, as Aaron saith of the people. Exod. 32. 22.

That we might know] A sweet mercy; The Cormorants of the world will not let their heirs know what they will do for them till they die. But God assures his of heaven aforehand. Thus we have not received of the Spirit of this world: we cannot shift and plot as they can; but we have received a better thing, and have no reason to repine.

Verse 13. But which the holy Ghost teacheth] So that not the matter only, but words also of holy Scripture are dictated by the Spirit, and are therefore to be had in higher estimation, 2 Pet. 1. 21.

Comparing] Or coapting, fitting spiritual words to spiritual matters, that all may savour of the Spirit. συγκρίνοντες.

Verse 14. But the natural man] This meer Animal, that hath no more then a reasonable soul, and natural abilities Jude 19. Such was that Sapless fellow, Psal. 14. 1. that may have a disciplinary knowledge, that is, by hear-say, as a blind man hath of colours, but not an intuitive per speciem propriam. The water riseth no higher then the spring from whence it came: So natural men can ascend no higher then nature. If the unreasonable creatures could draw a picture of God, said Xenophanes, they would certainly paint him like themselves. Quia scilicet nihil animal animali superius cogitare potest, because they can think of nothing above themselves. ψυχικὸς. נבל

Neither can he know them] They that are blear-eyed and weak-sighted, if at any time they set themselves to see better into a thing, they see the worse: so here: Nay more in our nature there is an antipathy to divine truth. We love the law better then the Gospel, and any truth better then the Law. Vives in Aug. de Civ Dei. l. 22. cap. 6.

Because they are spiritually] Ambrose reads, Because he is spiritually judged, being delivered up to a reprobate sense. But the other reading is better.

Verse 15. Judgeth all things] By his spirit of discerning, 1 Cor. 14. his spiritual senses exercised to discern good and evil, Heb. 5. 14. his undoubted perswasion of that truth he professeth, Colos. 2. 3. and whereof he hath felt the sweetness, Col. 1. 9. Papists will needs have this spiritual man that judgeth all things, yet he himself is judged of none, to be the Pope. But when this Epistle was written, there was no such thing as a Pope: no such doctrine, as that the Pope is infallible: that he must not be contradicted though he speak blasphemy or heresie: no, though he should draw thousands of soules after him to hell, say the Canonists those abominable flow backs. St. Paul, who had the mind of Christ, was never of this mind.

Is judged of no man] Of no natural man, who can judge no more of divine truths then a blind man can do of colours, or a sick man of meats. And herein the poorest Idiot (saith one) being a sound Christian, goeth beyond the profoundest Clarks that are not sanctified, that he hath his own heart instead of a Commentary, to help to understand even the most needful points of the Scripture.

Verse 16. But we have the mind of Christ] This is a privilege confined to the communion of Saints, to have communication of Christs secrets, to be as it were of his Court and Council. One saith of D. Sibbs, That he was a man spiritually rational, and rationally spiritual, one that seemed to see the insides of nature and grace, and the world and heaven, by those perfect anatomies he had made of them all.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

Chap. III.

Verse 1. Could not speak unto you] Unless I would beat the air, and lose my sweet words, q. d. You quarrel me for a shallow trivial teacher, when your selves are in fault, as not yet capable of more mysterious matter. Our Saviour preached (not as he could have preached, but) as the people were able to hear, Mark. 4. 33. So the Author to the Hebrews, Chap. 5. 11. Some impute not their profiting to the Minister, as he in Seneca, that having a thorn in his foot, complained of the roughness of the way as the cause of his limping. Or as she in the same Authour, that being struck with a sudden blindness, bade open the windows, when as it was not want of light, but want of sight that troubled her.

As unto carnal, even as unto babes] Or, At least as unto babes, not yet past the spoon, and that must have their meat masticated for them by their nurses.

Verse 2. I have fed you with milk] Ministers must condescend to their hearers capacities, though they be slighted for so doing, as Paul was; or jeared, as Isaiah, chap. 28. 9, 10. for his line upon line, precept upon precept, Kau lekau, and Zau lezau; The sound of the words carries a taunt, as scornful people by the tone of their voice and riming words, scorn at such as they despise. Moses his choice. 375.

Verse 3. For ye are yet carnal] It is a shame for Christians to be like other men, as Sampson was after he had lost his hair. It ill becomes those excellent ones of the earth, Princes in all lands, to contend and quarrel, as those terrigenæ fratres use to do: By the laws of England, Noblemen have this priviledge, that none of them can be bound to the peace; because it is supposed that the peace is always bound to them: and that of their own accord, they will be careful to preserve it.

Envying and strife, &c.] These overflowings of the gall and spleen, came from a fulness of bad humours.

And walk as men] Christians should be as Saul was, higher then the people by head and shoulders. Something singular is expected from them, Mat. 5. 47. they should have their feet where other mens heads are, Prov. 15. 24. When we do evil, we work de nostro & secundum hominem, we do our kinde, as the devil when he speaks lyes, speaks De suo, of his own, Joh. 8. 44.

Verse 4. For when one saith, &c.] So those that will needs be called Lutherans, Jurantque in verba magistri. Did not Luther play the man, when he and other Dutch Divines advised Philip Lantgrave of Hesse, a pious Prince, to marry a second wife, that is an adultress, whiles his lawful wife was yet alive? And might he not deceive, and be deceived in other things as well as in that? Zanch. Miscel. Epist. dedicat.

Are ye not carnal?] Nay, will not the world think ye are mad? As the Apostle speaks in a like case, 1 Cor. 14. 23. Will they not think worse? See Joh. 17. 21, 23. If Christians unite not, if they fall out and wrangle, the world will think thou never sentest me, saith our Saviour.

Verse 5. But Ministers] Not Masters, as Magistri nostri Parisienses. So the Sorbonists will needs be called, contrary to James 3. 1. Bacon the Carmelite was called Doctor resolutissimus, because he would endure no May Bees. Præfat. in 1. Sentent.

Verse 6. But God gave the increase] The Harp yields no sound, till it be touched by the hand of the Musician. The heart is never made good, till the heavens answer the earth, Hos. 2. 21. till God strike the stroke. Holy Melanchthon being newly converted, thought it impossible for his hearers to withstand the evidence of the Gospel. But soon after he complained that old Adam was too hard for young Melanchthon. No man can run the point aright, except God give wind to his sails; As if he speak the word, our words shall not be onely like Peters angle, which took a fish, but like Peters net, which enclosed a multitude of fishes.

Verse 7. So then neither is he, &c.] This made Cyril to conclude his Preface to his Catechism, with Meum est docere, vestrum auscultare, Dei perficere. I may teach, and you hear, but God must do the deed when all is done. Else we may preach and pray to the wearing of our tongues to the stumps, (as Bradford said) and to no more purpose then Bede did when he preached to a heap of stones.

Verse.

Digitized by Google

Verse 8. And he that watereth are one] Why then are not you at one? Should ye not follow your leaders, press their footsteps? Surely you would, did you not more mind party then peace. Maxima pars studiorum, est studium partium: a hateful kind of study.

Shall receive his own reward] Those ambitious Doctors that draw disciples after them, hunting after popular applause (that empty blast of stinking breath) shall have that for their reward: let them make them merry with it. When faithful Ministers shall shine as stars, Dan. 12. 3.

Verse 9. For we are labourers, &c.] Let Ministers hence learn their, 1. Dignity. 2. Duty. Fructus honos oneris, Fructus honoris onus. Who would not work hard with such sweet company?

Verse 10. As a wise master-builder] Artificers also have their wisdom, as Aristotle yieldeth. For his God doth instruct him to discretion, and doth teach him, Isa. 28. 26. As he did Bezaleel, and Aholiab. Arist. Ethic. l. 6. c. 7.

Verse 11. Which is Jesus Christ] The Doctrine of his person and offices is the foundation of Christian religion, and must therefore be kept pure and entire by all means possible. Arrius his ὁμοιος τῷ, would not be yielded; nor Nestorius his Θεοδοχῷ, for Θεοτοκῷ. So religious were the old Bishops, that they would not alter or exchange a letter or a sylable in these fundamentals. Every particle of truth is precious, and not to be parted with.

Verse 12. Wood hay, stubble] Rhetorical strains, Philosophical phancies, that tend not to edification. There are that together with the gold, silver and ivory of sound and savory truths, have, as Solomons ships had, store of apes and peacocks, conceits and crotchets. Now if he that imbaseth the Kings coyn, deserve punishment; what do they that instead of the tried silver of divine truths stamp the name and character of God upon Nehushtan, their own base brazen stuff?

Verse 13. For the day shall declare it] That is, The light of the truth, or time, the father of truth, or the day of death, when many recognize and recant their errours, shall shew them their sin.

Verse 14. If any mans work abide] Errour as glass is bright, but brittle and cannot endure the hammer or fire, as gold can; which though rubbed or melted, remains firm and orient.

Verse 15. He shall suffer loss] Of his work (his laborious loss of time) and of some part of his wages.

Yet so as by fire] Not of Purgatory (a Popish fiction) but of the holy Ghost. Or (as one interprets it) like unto them who save themselves naked out of the fire without carrying away any of their goods: so his person shall be saved, but he shall not have the reward of a well qualified Minister.

Verse 16. Ye are the Temple of God] Not Gods building only, as ver. 9 but his Temple. A mud wall may be made up of any thing; not so the walls of a Temple or Pallace, that must have other materials.

And that the Spirit of God, &c.] Next to the love of Christ in dwelling in our nature, we may wonder at the love of the holy Ghost, that will dwell in our defiled souls. Let our care be to wash the pavement of this temple with our tears, to sweep it by repentance, to beautifie it with holiness, to perfume it with prayers, to deck it with humility, to hang it with sincerity. Delicata res est Spiritus Dei; the holy Ghost will dwel in a poor, so it be a pure house. Religion loves to lie clean, as was a grave speech of an antient Saint. D. Sibbs on Eph. 4. 30

Verse 17. Which Temple ye are] Man is Gods temple; God mans alter. Demosthenes could say, That mans heart was Gods best and most stately temple, Justitiâ, verecundiâ, & observantiâ legum communitum. Contra Aristog.

Verse 18. Let no man deceive himself] Bis desipit, qui sibi sapit. Consilii satis est in me mihi, said she in the Poet. Nothing so easie as to over-ween. Arachne ap. Ovid. Metam.

Let him become a fool] Let him come to the well with an empty pitcher. Intùs existens prohibet alienum. Agur (if a man may believe him) is more brutish then any man, Prov. 30. 2, 3. See there how he vilifies, yea nullifies himself before God. So did blessed Bradford, as appears by the subscriptions of many of his letters. Act. and Mon. fol. 1507. ὁ δεχόμενος.

Verse 19. He taketh the wise] Those natural brute beasts, made to be taken and destroyed μεθ'.

Digitized by Google

destroyed, 2 Pet. 2. 12. God takes them, and makes fools of them.

In their own craftiness] When they have eviscerared themselves like Spiders, tryed all conclusions, beaten their brains, searched the Devils scul for new devices, done all that may be done (as the word imports) to effect their designs. God lets them carry the ball on the foot till they are almost at the goal, go to the utmost of their tedder, and then puls them back, with shame enough to their task. Thus he dealt by Senacherib, Haman, Herod, others.

πανουργία. Versutia Veteratoria.

Verse 20. Of the wise] Such as excell in natural gifts, that are the choisest and most picked men. The Psalmist saith only of men. Psal. 94. 12.

Verse 21. Let no man glory in men] That is, that they are such an ones schollars or followers; seeing the Church is not made for them, but they for the Church.

For all things are yours, &c.] Hoc est magnæ nostræ Chartulæ Epitome, saith one: This is an Epitome of the Churches grand Grant or Charter. A Christian hath interest to, and right in all these things, 1. Entirely, Eph. 1. 23. & 2. 10. Col. 3. 11. 2. Refinedly, the curse is removed, Gal. 3. 13. Prov. 10. 22. 3. Really, 1 Cor. 7. 31. Ephes. 1. ult. 4. Safely, Prov. 1. 33. 5. Serviceably, Rom. 8. 28. 6. Satisfyingly, Psal. 22. 26. So that the poor Christian (saith one) is like the Usurer, who goes meanly and fares hard, but hath thousands out at use.

Sa. Ward.

Verse 22. All are yours] Though not in possession, yet in use, or by way of reduction, as we say, the worst things are Gods childrens, and in reversion those best things above.

Verse 23. And ye are Christs] We hold all we have in Capite tenure in Christ. From Christ therefore let us take our denomination. The name of Iesuites savoureth of blasphemous arrogance.

Chap. IV.

Verse 1. Let a man so account]

Quasi dicat, Though we are yours, as Chap. 3. 22. devoted to the service of your faith, yet are we not to be slighted, but respected as Christs high stewards.

ὑπηρέτας. Ministers of Christ] Gr. Under-rowers to Christ the Master-pilot, helping forward the Ship of the Church toward the haven of heaven.

Stewards of the mysteries] Dispensing all out of Gods goods, and not of our own; setting bread and salt upon the table (that is, preaching Christ crucified) what ever else there is.

Verse 2. That a man be found faithful] Giving every man his due proportion of fit food, Mat. 24. 45. not as he in the emblem, that gave straw to the dog, and a bone to the ass.

Verse 3. But with me it is, &c.] A good Minister reviled, may reply, as once a Steward did to his passionate Lord, when he called him knave, &c. Your Honour may speak as you please, but I believe not a word that you say; for I know my self an honest man. Non curo illos censores, qui vel non intelligendo reprehendunt, vel reprehendendo non intelligunt, saith Augustine. Augustus did but laugh at the Sartyres and buffooneries which they had published against him. Severus the Emperour was careful of what was to be done by him, but careless what was said of him. Do well and hear ill is written upon heaven gates, said Mr. Bradford the Martyr. Thou art an heretick, said Woodroof the Sheriff to Mr. Rogers the protomartyr in Queen Maries days. That shall be known, quoth he, at the day of judgement. Some men flatter me, saith Politian, some others slander me, I think neither the better nor the worse of my self for that; no more then I think my self taller or lower for that my shadow is longer in the morning, and shorter at noon. A Spanish Iesuit, saith Beza, disputing with us about the Eucharist, called us Foxes, Apes, Serpents, &c. My answer was, that we believed it no more then we believed Transubstantiation.

Aug. con. Fast. lib. 22. cap. 34.

Dio. ἐμμελὴς τῶν περιτέων, ἀμελὴς δὲ τῶν περὶ αὐτὸ λοιδορουμένων. Dio.

Act. and Mon. fol. 1356.

Polit epist l. 3. ep. 24.

Epist. ad Calvin.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 4. Yet am I not, &c.] Paul a choſen veſſel, but yet an earthen veſſel, knew well that he had his cracks and his flaws, which God could eaſily find out.

Verſe 5. Until the Lord come] Tot argumenta quot verba, ſaith Pareus, every word here hath its weight. There ſhall be a reſurrection one day of names, as well as of bodies Let that ſtay us, when belyed or miſreported.

And then ſhall every man have praiſe of God] His faith (now haply hid, or not noticed) ſhall then be found to praiſe, honour and glory, 1 Pet. 1.7. praiſe from the mouth of the Iudge, honour in the hearts of Saints and Angels, glory in the kingdom of heaven after the judgement ended. Chriſt ſhall then be not only his Compurgator, but his Encomiaſt.

Verſe 6. I have in a figure, &c.] i. e. I have repreſented and reprehended your partialities under our names, when I brought in you ſaying, I am of Paul, and I of Apollos, &c. 1 Cor. 1. 12. For the heads of your factions were your own ambitious Doctors, whoſe names I yet ſpared, and took the buſineſs upon my ſelf and Apllos, for your ſakes.

Verſe 7. For who maketh thee] He directeth his ſpeech to thoſe Theologi gloriæ, as Luther uſually calleth ſuch, thoſe vain-glorious, ſelf-aſcribing Paſtors at Corinth, that ſought to bear away the bell from Paul, and would not ſtick to anſwer this demand of his, Quis te diſcernit? As that inſolent Arminian did, Ego meipſum diſcerno, I make my ſelf to differ. Grevinchovius.

And what haſt thou &c.] There are that would hammer out their own happineſs, like the Spider, climbing by the thred of her own weaving, with Motto accordingly, Mihi ſoli debeo.

Why doſt thou glory] As great a folly as for the groom to be proud of his maſters horſe, the ſtage-player of his borrowed robes, or the mud-wall of the Sun-ſhine. Of all the good thats in us, we may well ſay as the young man did of his hatchet, Alas, maſter, it was but borrowed.

Verſe 8. Now ye are rich] Creſcit oratio, ſaith Piſcator here. The Apoſtle riſeth in his expreſſions; and that all along by an Ironical reprehenſion. Theſe Corinthians had riches, and gifts and learning: and carried aloft by theſe waxen wings, they domineered and deſpiſed others.

Verſe 9. As it were men appointed to death] As when he fought with beaſts at Epheſus. The Heathens in their publike calamities would commonly call out, Chriſtianos ad leones, to the Lions with thoſe Chriſtians, as if they had been the cauſe. Ignatius ſuffered in this ſort. Tertul. Apol. cap. 40.

A ſpectacle to the world] As thoſe that were firſt led in triumph, and then had back again to the priſon, there to be ſtrangled. Piſcat.

Verſe 10. We are fools, &c.] Not to the world only, but in your account too. For theſe Corinthians undervalued and depreſſed Paul under their ſilly ſhallow-headed Verbaliſts, not worthy to carry his books after him for ſound and ſubſtantial learning.

Verſe 11. Even to this preſent] Thus he complaineth, not out of impatience (for he was active in his ſufferings) but to ſtain their pride, that permitted it ſo to be, when it was in their power to have relieved him.

Verſe 12. And labour, working, &c.] Whereas they might object, Are you hungry, thirſty, naked? Its becauſe you are idle. No, ſaith he, We labour, working with our hands (a ſhame for you to ſuffer it) and yet can hardly ſweat out a poor living. This one example of Paul is much pleaded in theſe times by men of perverſe minds to diſpute God out of his own. One Apoſtle works with his hands, or two, now and then at pleaſure; all the reſt live upon the Church (for could thoſe fiſhermen catch fiſh in the Forreſts, Deſerts or Streets?) yet one Paul is ſet againſt all the reſt of the Apoſtles; yea ſet together by the ears with himſelf: any thing to ſave their purſes.

Verſe 13. Being defamed, we entreat] Though Luther call me devil, ſaid Calvin, yet I will honor him as a ſervant of God.

We are made as the filth of the world] q. d. The filth of filth; for the whole world lies in wickedneſs, as a foul ſloven in a ſlow, or as a carrion in the ſlime of it. The word ſignifies, The ſweepings of the world, or the dirt ſcraped off the pavement thereof. περικαθάρματα.

And the off-ſcouring of all things] Deterſorium, ſordes, purgamenta, rejectamenta. Piſcatores & abominabiles, ſaith Pareus. The word ſignifies, the dung-cart (ſaith one) that M. Burrows.

Digitized by Google

that goes thorow the City, into which every one brings and casts his filth. Every one had some filth to cast upon Paul and the Apostles. Constantine a Citizen of Rhoan with three others, being for defence of the Gospel condemned to be burned, were put into a dung-cart: who thereat rejoycing, said that they were reputed here the excrements of the world, but yet their death was a sweet odour unto God. Budeus is of opinion that the Apostle here alludeth to those expiations in use among the Heathen, performed in this manner. Certain condemned persons were brought forth with Garlands upon their heads in manner of sacrifices: these they would tumble from some steep places into the Sea, offering them up to Neptune with this form of word, περίψημα ἡμῶν γένου, Be thou a propitiation for us. So for the removal of the pestilence they sacrificed certain men to their gods: these they called καθάρματα, filth, loading them with revilings and cursings.

Acts and Mon. fol. 820.

Bud. Pandect.

Suidas in περίψημα.

Verse 14. To shame you] An innocent person sometimes, upon the fulness of an aspersion, may conceive shame, as David did, Psal. 44.15. yet usually shame is the effect of an evil conscience, and may prove, by Gods blessing, a means of repentance, 2 Thes. 3.14.

Verse 15. Ten thousand instructers] Gr. Pedagogues, who oft prove Orbilianses, sharp and severe above measure, Verberibus plumbum, colaphis grandinant. So did these Corinthian school-masters, 2 Cor. 11.20. They were also too well skilled in the Dorick dialect, crying, Give, Give: and taught little more then elegant elocution.

I have begotten you thorough the Gospel] For together with the word, there goeth forth a regenerating power, Jam. 1.18. The exhortations thereof are operative means of sanctification, and practical; as when God said, Let there be light, or Christ said, Lazarus come forth. The spirit maketh the seed of the Word prolifical and generative: And hence Ministers are made Fathers, as Moses was father to Aarons children, Num. 3.1. who are therefore there called his generation. And as propriissimum opus viventis est, generare sibi simile, (as saith the Philosopher) it is the most proper work of every living thing to beget its like; so here.

Ovid.

Verse 16. Be ye followers of me] As dear children. A bove majori discit arare minor. Constantines children resembled their father exactly, they put him wholly on, saith Eusebius, and were as it were, very he.

ὅλον ἐνεδύσατο ἑαυτῖνον.

Verse 17. For this cause] That ye may be followers of me, and know what I do.

Of my wayes which be in Christ] It is of excellent use to know what good men, especially Ministers, do, as well as what they say. Ministers lives should be a transcript of their Sermons, or as so many Sermons on the life of Christ.

Verse 18. Now some are puffed up] Swelling in the body is an ill symptome: So it is in the soul. A swelling wall will shortly fall.

Tertul. de patria cap. 1.

Verse 19. Not the speech of them which are puffed up] Dicta factis deficientibus, erubescunt. Malo autem miserandus quam erubescendus, saith Tertullian, either add practise, or leave profession for shame.

Verse 20. The Kingdom of God] i.e. The administration of his Ordinances and Government of the Church.

Bern. Hieron.

Verse 21. With a rod, or in love?] Both: but (as children) we think not so. Sed sinite virgam corripientem, ne sentiatis malleum conterentem, saith one Father. Non erudit pater nisi quem amat, nec corripit nisi quem diligit, saith another.

Chap. V.

Verse 1. As is not so much as named]

TO wit, Without detestation. The Apostle seems to allude to Antiochus Soter, who married his step-mother Stratonice, being first like to die for love of her, as Erasistratus the Physitian told his Father. Of this incestuous marriage came Antiochus Theos, or Antiochus the god, so called of the Milesians, because he did put down their tyrant Timark. This god was poysoned by his wife Laodice.

Ælian.

Among the Gentiles] In Mexico and those parts, whoredom, Sodomy, and incest (those

Digitized by Google

(those Spanish vertues, as one calleth them) are common without reproof: the Popes pardons being more rife in those parts, then in any part of Europe for these abominable filthinesses, whereout he fucketh no small advantage. Notwithstanding the Indians abhor this most lothsome living: shewing themselves in respect of the Spaniards, as the Scythians did in respect of the Grecians, whom they so far excelled in life and behaviour, as they were short of them in learning and knowledge. Who hath not heard of the abhorred incest of the house of Austria? King Philip 2. could call Arch-duke Albert, both brother, cousin, nephew and son. For all this was he to him either by blood or affinity: being uncle to himself, cousin germane to his father, husband to his sister, and father to his wife; and all this by papal dispensation. The Papists themselves write with detestation, that in Rome a Jewish maid might not be admitted into the Stews of whoredom, unless she would be first baptized.

Sir Fra. Drake his World encompas. 58.

Spec. Europ.

Espenc. de continen. l. 3 c. 4.

That one should have his fathers wife] Ethelbald King of West-Saxons, with great infamy marrying his fathers widdow Judith, enjoy'd his kingdom but two years and an half.

Daniel hist. of Engl. 12.

Verse 2. And ye are puffed up] And yet ye are puffed up (so Piscator reads it) viz. with your spiritual gifts, and your brave Teachers: whereas you have more cause to be cast down for your other mens sins now made yours, because unlamented by you. There were great divisions among them at this time: and when this incest fell out, the other faction thought they had an advantage against the whole party; and this puffed them up, Nay, do ye not see what one of them hath done, &c?

And have not rather mourned] That any of you should incur the censure of excommunication: at which time they did anciently fast and lament.

Verse 3. Have judged already, &c.] q. d. I by mine Apostolical authority do excommunicate him. And yet how fiercely doth learned Erastus contend with Calvin and Beza about Excommunication, denying the Church any such power? The Jews had their three sorts of excommunication. The Heathen also had theirs; Among the old Gauls, if any one did not obey the Decrees of their Druides or Priests, he was forbidden their Sacrifices, and therehence shunned by all as a wicked man; he had no benefit of their Laws, nor any respect given him, &c.

Verse 4. With the power of our Lord] Promised, Matth. 18. 18, 19, 20. This makes it to be a heavie case to be rightly excommunicated. Indeed it may fall out that Jonas shall be cast out of the ship, when Cham shall be reserved in the Ark. Your brethren that hated you, that cast you out for my names sake, said (for a pretence) let the Lord be glorified: but he shall appear to your joy, and they shall be ashamed, Isa. 66. 5. When the sentence of Excommunication began with, In nomine Domini, to be read against a certain Martyr, he cryed out, as well he might, You begin in a wrong name. And another of them, together with his five fellow-sufferers, did formally excommunicate their persecutors. It grew to a common proverb, by the abuse of this Ordinance in those corrupt times. In nomine Domini incipit omne malum.

Act. and Mon. fol. 1862.

Verse 5. To deliver such an one to Satan] That he may learn not to blaspheme, that is, not to cause others to blaspheme or speak evil of the good way of God, for his flagitious courses.

Verse 6. Your glorying is not good] It is the height of wickedness to glory in wickedness, as Lamech, Gen. 4. and Alexander Pheraus, who consecrated the Javelin wherewith he had slain Polyphron. Protagoras boasted that he had spent fourty years in corrupting of youth. Mark Antony vomited out a book concerning his own ability to eat and drink much. Joannes a Casa, Dean of the Popes Chamber, wrote a Poem in commendation of his own beastly sin of Sodomy. And Stokesly Bishop of London in King Henry 8. time, lying at point of death, rejoyced, boasting that in his life time he had burned fifty Hereticks, that is, good Christians.

Plato.

Act. and Mon. 1517.

Ibid. 1029.

A little leaven leaveneth, &c.] One spoonful of vinegar will soon tart a great deal of sweet milk: but a great deal of milk will not so soon sweeten one spoonful of vinegar. One sinner may destroy much good, saith Solomon, Eccles. 9. ult. He may be a common mischief, if tolerated, by spreading the infection of his wickedness, which is more catching then the plague.

Verse 7. As ye are unleavened] viz. In part sanctified. Every new man is two men. Many a one that is merry in company, hath a shrew at home: so have the best their inward ward troubles. The comfort is, that God over-looks our involuntary infirmities, and accounts us unleavened, when yet there is much still to be purged out. The leper, when his leprosie began but to heal, was pronounced clean; because then he went on still to heal, and his leprosie to shale off.

Digitized by Google

Verse 8. Let us keep the feast] The benefits we receive by Christ should crown the Kalendar of our lives with continual festivals: Yea, make us everlastingly merry at our convivium juge of a good conscience. Diogenes could say, That a good man keeps every day holy-day. And the Jews were bound to rejoyce at all their feasts. Eat therefore thy meat with joy, and drink thy wine with gladness, sith God now accepteth thy works, Eccles. 9.7. Plut.

πόλιν ἐπαφρο- δισιάτιν. Lib. 8. Molin. Anat. Arminianis. Verse 9. Not to company with fornicaters] Dion Chrysostome saith, That Corinthus was the most luxurious and lascivious City in the world. Strabo saith, that Venus had a most stately Temple there, that was kept by above a thousand beautiful curtisans. Another saith, that it was the brothel-house of Greece, and a most filthy Mart-town of abominable lusts. Tully indeed calleth it lumen Graciæ, the light or eye of Greece. It might be so in some respects. But surely this sin was no small snuff in this light, but a blemish in this eye.

Verse 10. Yet not altogether, &c.] Here he lets them know that in that former Epistle (not extant now) he meant not that they should wholly sever themselves from those wicked that are yet without the Church (for that they cannot do) but from profligate professors, discinct Christians, that they may be ashamed.

συναναμίγνυσθαι. Verse 11. Not to keep company] Gr. Not to be mingled with them. The rivers of Peru, after they have run into the main sea, yea some write twenty or thirty miles, they keep themselves unmixed with the salt water: so that a very great way within the sea men may take up as fresh water as if they were near the land. So at Belgrade in Hungary where the Danuby and Sava (two great rivers) meet, their waters mingle no more then water and oyl, &c. We must so converse with the wicked, as that we commingle not, by holding any needless society with such, no not with him that is called a brother, but belyes his profession. Yet still must we perform to such, though excommunicated, offices of charity, natural and civil duties, as those of parents toward their children, of children toward their parents, and the like. But come not near such stinking stuff, except ye have the wind of it. Abbots Geog. 331. Blunts, voy. p. 10.

Verse 12. Them also that are without] These come not under the verge of Church-censures. Revel. 22.15.

ἐξαρεῖτε. Verse 13. Therefore put away] Gr. Ye will put away, q.d. I hope ye will, though hitherto ye have not. Soft words and hard arguments do soonest prevail; especially when we reprove or admonish not in our own, but in Gods words; as here the Apostle doth out of Deut. 13. Some warmth must be in a reproof, but it must not be scalding hot. Ægros, quos potus fortis non curavit, ad salutem pristinam aqua tepens revocavit, saith Gregory. They that could not be cured with strong potions, have been recovered with warm water. Gentle showers, and dews that distill leisureably, do comfort the earth, when dashing storms drown the seed.

Chap. VI.

Verse 1. Go to law before the unjust]

ALL unbelievers are 1. Void of Christs righteousness imputed. 2. Of true civil righteousness, as being self-seekers in all. 3. They oppress the Saints, and draw them before the judgement-seats, James 2.6. where they are so ill dealt with oftimes, that they come to be of Themistocles his mind, who professed, that if two ways were shewed him, one to hell, and the other to the bar, he would chuse that which went to hell, and forsake the other.

And not before the Saints] Christians first brought their causes before the Bishops to be judged. And hence grew their power (as Paræus noteth) which the Christian Emperors

Digitized by Google

Emperors first would not, and afterwards could not take away from them. This raised Papacy and Prelacy to such an height, they would be Princes as well as Bishops.

Verse 2. Shall judge the World] That is, The wicked, called the inhabitants of the earth, and of the Sea, Revel. 12. 12. in opposition to the Burgesses of the new Jerusalem, Phil 3. 20. And let this comfort us under the perverse censures of worldly men, mad and besides themselves in point of salvation. The Lord seeth that their day is coming, Psal. 37. 13.

Verse 3. Things that pertain to this, &c.] That serve to, and satisfie the body only, being nec vera, nec vestra. Luke 16. 11, 12.

Verse 4. If then ye have judgements] As the Corinthians being many of them merchants, had many law-suites. But if mens hearts were not bigger then their suites, there would not be half so many.

Who are least esteemed] Rather then go to law before Heathen Judges. The lowest, if of any judgement, are high enough for such a purpose. Why should those sordida posciuummia, qui latrocinia intra mania exercent, as Columella hath it, those Crumenimulgæ, the unconscionable Lawyers make a spoil of us; and then when they die, build Hospitals for fools, as one of them did, saying, Of fools I got my estate, and to fools I will leave it? Or those that go to Law, we may well say, as Charondas once did of those that go to sea, Se non mirari qui semel mare ingressus sit, sed qui iterum, that he marvelled not at those that went once, but at those that would go again. Purchas his Microcosm. Stapl. mor. lo. 2. post sent.

Verse 5. No, not one that shall be able] Our late Judge Dier, if there came any controversies of poor men to be tried afore him, would usually say, that either the parties are wilful, or their neighbours uncharitable, because their suites were not quietly ended at home. The pract. of Quietness, p. 270.

Verse 6. But Brother goeth to Law] Once it was counted ominous to commence actions, and follow suites. Of common barreters, we may say, as the Historian doth of Mathematicians, Genus hominum quod in nostra repub. & vetabitur semper, & retinebitur. Cæs. com. Tacit. l. c. 1.

But brother] Still Satan is thus busie, and Christians are thus malicious: that as if they wanted enemies, they fly in one anothers faces, as did Epiphanius and Chrysostom, Luther and Zuinglius, Hooper and Ridley, Taylor and Lambert, those English exiles at Frankford in Q. Maries days, and Knox, &c.

Verse 7. There is utterly a fault] Gr. A disgrace, a loss of victory, q. d. By your litigious lawing one another, you betray a great deal of weakness and impotency of affection. These be ignoble quarrels, Ubi & vincere inglorium est, & atteri sordidum. See the Note on Rom. 12. 21. ἥττημα.

Because ye go to Law] Lightly for every small offence (which if Mahometans do, they are publikely punished) and with spiteful vindictive spirits: whereas in going to law men should not be transported with hate or heat, but as Tilters break their spears on each others brests, yet without wrath or intention of hurt, so, &c. The French are said to be very litigious, and full of Law-suites.

Verse 8. Nay you do wrong] In person and name.

And defraud] Of goods and estate.

And that your Brethren] Which very name should charm and allay all discords, as betwixt Abraham and Lot, Gen. 13. 8. Aristotle could say, It is better to suffer wrong then to do it. And I know how to bear injuries, said Chilo to his brother, who took it ill that he was not chosen to be one of the Judges. In Ethic. Ἐγὼ μὲν ἐπίσταμαι ἀδικεῖσθαι.

Verse 9. Shall not inherit] It is an undefiled inheritance, 1 Pet. 1. 4. no dirty dog ever trampled on that golden pavement, Revel. 22. 15. Heaven spewed out the Angels, shall it lick up the unrighteous? The Serpent could screw himself into paradise, but no wicked could ever get into heaven. There is no happiness to be had without holiness. Let none think to break Gods chain, as Balaam, Numb. 23. 10.

Verse 10. Nor thieves, nor covetous] These two be fitly set together as near akin, so are drunkards and railers.

Nor extortioners] Whose sin is properly immoderate getting, as that of the covetous consists in pinching and saving. So 1 Tim. 3. 3.

Verse 11. Such were some of you] Oh the infinite goodness of God, that would once look upon such walking dunghils, such monstruous miscreants!

But

Digitized by Google

But ye are washed] In general: As in particular, 1. Ye are sanctified] And that by the spirit of our God. 2. Ye are justified] And that in the Name, or by the righteousness of our Lord Jesus Christ. His blood cleanseth us from sins both guiltiness and filthiness. It is like to those soveraign mundifying waters, which so wash off the corruption of the ulcer, that they cool the heat, and stay the spread of the infection, and by degrees heal the same. See the Note on Rom. 11.26. and on Rev. 19.8. God never pays our debts, but he gives us a stock of Grace.

Verse 12. All things are lawful] viz. All indifferent things, amongst which the Corinthians reckoned not only meats and drinks, but also fornication (their National sin.) The devil perhaps had perswaded them, as he hath done the Turks at this day, that God did not give men such appetites to have them frustrate, but enjoyed, as made for the gust of man, not for his torment, wherein his Creatour delights not. Now the Apostle grants, that for meats all things are lawful (yet in case of offence or intemperance, they may become inexpedient, and so unlawful.) But for fornication, it was utterly unlawful, as he proves by many powerful arguments.

Blunts volage.

But I would not be brought] As those swinish surfetters, that wearing their brains in their bellies (with the Asse fish) their guts in their heads, do dig their graves with their own teeth: being like the Mule which cannot travel, they say, without a bottle of hay hanging at his nose.

Verse 13. God shall destroy] The belly shall be destroyed in the other world, not for the substance of it, but for the use of it. And the same may be said for the difference of sexes: the parts shall remain, the use cease: Cato said well, that he was an ill Commonwealths man, qui inter guttur & inguen, cuncta sub ventris ditione posuisset, that was a slave to his sensual appetite.

Verse 14. And will also raise us up] He will make our vile bodies to be like unto his glorious body the standard. Shall we then defile them with the kitchin-stuff of uncleanness?

Verse 15. Shall I then take] Scipio, when an harlot was offered him, said, Vellem, si non essem Imperator, I would, if I were not a General. Say thou, If I were not a Christian.

And make them the members of an harlot] A Saint cannot indeed be made the member of an harlot (saith a Reverend man) because not κολλώμενος, glued, or knit to any sin. Though a member of Christ and sin may fall one upon another, and touch each other: yet they are of a mouldring nature, and will not cleave together. Water and oyl violently shaken together may seem to mingle, but will not continue so long: there is no coalition, because they are of diverse natures; the one remaineth water still, and the other oyl.

Verse 16. Is one body] By a most strict, but vitious and infamous bond (saith an Interpreter) which is sufficient to unty or break any other bond, though lawful and holy, either corporal or spiritual.

Verse 17. Is one spirit] That is, One spiritual body: whiles Christ laies hold on us by his Spirit, we lay hold on him by faith. Hence the Church is called Christ, 1 Cor. 12.12. and the fulness of Christ, Eph. 1.23. We have the honour of making Christ perfect, as the members do the body.

φεύγετε.

Verse 18. Flee fornication] With post-haste flee it. Lata venire Venus, tristis abire solet. Be not of those men that are called Borborita of their miry filthiness, whom Epiphanius and Oecumenius speak of.

Verse 19. That your body is the Temple] Shall we make the Temple of God, the stews of Satan? See Chap. 3.16. Antiochus and Pompey never prospered after that they defiled the Temple.

Verse 20. Ye are bought] Shall I drink the blood of these men, saith David? So, shall I abuse my body the price of Christs blood, abandon it to Venery, &c?

Glorifie God in your body] The very Manichees that denied God to be the author of the body, fasted on Sabbath daies, and in fasting exercised an humiliation of the body. Pone in pectore dextram. Let God have heart and hand, mind and mouth, faith and feet, Spirit, soul and body, 1 Thes. 5. 23. all which are his by a manifold right.

Pers.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

CHAP. VII.

Verſe 1. Whereof ye wrote unto me]

CErtain caſes of conſcience they had propounded, which here he anſwers. This he could do excellently, and ſo could Luther, as having had experience, and been much beaten and exerciſed with ſpiritual conflicts. Conſcience is a diamond, and will be wrought on by nothing but duſt of diamond, ſuch as contrition hath ground it to. Act. & Mon. fol.789.

It is good for a man] Now ſince the fall, it is good, i.e. convenient for the many troubles of the married eſtate. It is not evil to Marry, but good to be wary, elſe conjugium may prove conjurgium, marriage a mar-age.

Verſe 2. To avoid fornication] Gr. Fornications, comprehending all luſtfull burnings, ſelf-pollutions, and all other impurities of a ſingle life. How many are there that enter into Gods ordinance (Marriage) thorow the Devils Portal (Fornication) that take ſuch liberty before, that after marriage they rue it all the days of their lives. πορνείας.

Let every man have his own wife] Not many wives. Turks may have as many as they can keep. And ſome ſenſualiſts plead now for Polygamy. See Mal. 2. 15. Scotorum Natio uxores proprias non habet, ſaith Hierom of the old Scots. And too many amongſt us are ſick of a plurifie.

Verſe 3. Let the husband, &c.] Let them be chaſt between themſelves, and beware both of exceſs and defect. Chaſtity is a mans honour, 1 Theſ. 4. 5. And modeſty is the beſt preſerver of nuptial chaſtity. Marriage as well as meats muſt be ſanctified by the Word and Prayer. God muſt be ſent for, to bleſs this Phyſick to the ſoul. Raging luſt is a great enemy to conjugal love.

Verſe 4. The wife hath no power, &c.] The husbands body is ſervant to the wife, and the wives to the husband: they have paſſed themſelves one to another by mutual covenant, and God keeps the bonds, Prov. 2. 17. Mal. 2. 14.

Verſe 5. To faſting and prayer] Preces nobis jejunia alendum & quaſi ſaginandum. Faſting-days are ſoul-tatting days: prayer is edged and winged thereby.

That Satan tempt you not] The temptation is ſtrong to fornication, ſtronger to adultery. Watch therefore. Our nature is catching this way: and once in, 'tis not ſo eaſie to come off. This is a ſearing ſin, Hoſ. 4 11. Eph. 4. 19.

Verſe 6. And not of commandment] Among the Jews marriage was not held a thing indifferent, or at their own liberty to chuſe or refuſe, but a binding command. Hereto Paul ſeems in this verſe to allude. At this day every Jew is bound to Marry about eighteen years of age, or before twenty, elſe he is accounted as one that liveth in ſinne. Targ. in Gen. 1. 28.

Verſe 7. For I would that all, &c.] He had a peculiar gift, that he was ſo eminently chaſte; ſuch as might be in reprobates. So Moſes his meekneſs was partly from his natural temper: And Luthers not being tempted to covetouſneſs, was much helped by the freeneſs and generouſneſs of his ſpirit.

Verſe 8. I ſay therefore to the unmarried] Yet doth not the Apoſtle ſimply prefer virginity or viduity before marriage as better. The Saturnilian Hereticks ſaid, that marriage was of the devil. And the blemiſh will never be wiped off ſome of the ancient Fathers, who to eſtabliſh their own Idol of I know not what virginity, which they themſelves had not, have written moſt wickedly and baſely of Marriage. If the ſame God had not been the author of Virginity and Marriage, he had never countenanced Virginity by Marriage, as he did in the bleſſed Virgin.

Verſe 9. Let them marry] There is no luſt ſo hot and violent, but Gods medicines rightly applied, will cool and heal. Only remember that it is not the having, but the loving of a wife that keepeth a man chaſte and clean: And that God doth uſe to correct exceſs and dalliance betwixt married Couples, with ſtrong temptations after ſtrange fleſh.

Better to marry then burn] As an Oven heated by the Baker, Hoſ. 7. 4. As thoſe Pagans were ſcalded, Rom. 1. 27. and theſe Papagans ſtill are, that are forbidden to marry, and yet cannot contain.

Digitized by Google

Verse 10. Yet not I] By prudential advice only.

But the Lord] Not in so many words, but by just consequence drawn from *Mat.*19 6.

Ovid. Verse 11. Or let her be reconciled] Ut quæ modò pugnarant jungant sua rostra columbæ. Why should married couples be as glass, that being once broke can never be pieced again? The Lord hates putting away, *Mal.*2.16.

Verse 12. Let him not put her away] For to the pure all things are pure. Uxoris vitium aut tollendum, aut tolerandum est, saith Varro in Gellius. Mend a bad wife, if thou canst: bear with her, if thou canst not.

Verse 13. If he be pleased, &c.] If he blaspheme not Christ, force her not to deny the Faith, &c. as that King of Denmark that would have compelled his wife to go to Mass, who was therefore forced to flie for her life to her brother the Elector of Brandenburg (as Luther relateth) where she died Christianly.

Verse 14. But now they are holy] With a fœderal holiness, and are therefore to be baptized, as being partakers of the Covenant of Grace. The Habassines (a kinde of mongrel Christians in Africa) have an odd conceit, That the souls of infants departing afore baptism, are saved by vertue of the Eucharist received by the mother after conception, which sanctifies the childe in the womb. Anabaptists play the Devils part (saith a late Writer) in accusing their own children, and disputing them out of the Church, and covenant of Christ; affirming them to be no disciples, no servants of God, not holy, as separated to him, when God saith the contrary, *Lev.*25.41,42. *Deut.*29.10, 11,12, *&c. Act.*15.10. and here.

*Beerwoods Enquir.*157.

Aristot. in Rhetor. Verse 15. But God hath called us to peace] To domestical peace, which they that want, Plus quam dimidia beatitudinis sua parte privati sunt, saith Aristotle. They have lost the greater half of the happiness of their lives. This was verified in Phoroneus the Law-giver, and Sylla the Roman General.

Bruson *l.*7. *c.*22.

Verse 16. Whether thou shalt save] And to have any hand in saving a soul, is the highest honour.

Verse 17. But God hath distributed] In case you should not save your yoke-fellow, yet keep your station, be content with your condition, and adorn it, 1 *Pet.*3.1,2. It is the duty of a Christian (said Luther) to believe things invisible, to hope for things deferred, and to love God when he shews himself contrary to us.

Verse 18. Let him not become uncircumcised] Some Jews for fear of Antiochus, made themselves uncircumcised, 1 *Maccab.*1.16. Others for shame after they were gained to the knowledge of Christ, as here. This was done by drawing up the fore-skin with a Chirurgions instrument: And of this wicked invention Esau is said to be the first author and practiser.

Godw. Antiq. Hebr.

Verse 19. But the keeping of the Commandment] This is that Bonum hominis, Mic.6.8. that totum hominis, Eccles.12.23. that one thing necessary, that is better then sacrifice, 1 *Sam.*15.22. Malleem obedire, quam miracula facere, saith Luther, I had rather obey, then be able to do miracles.

Tit.3.8 14. Verse 20. Abide in the same calling] And therein learn to maintain good works, or to be their crafts-masters, to excel in their profession, Honestis functionibus præesse, as some render the Apostle there. These things are good and profitable unto men.

Verse 21. Use it rather] Liberty is that we lost by sin, and affect by nature. Servus est nomen officii. A servant is not αὐτόματος, one that moveth absolutely of himself, he is the masters instrument, and ὅλως ὄντος, wholly his, saith Aristotle. O that we could be Gods servants in that sort!

Lati simus in Domino, sed cavcamus à recidivo. Bern. Verse 22. For he that is called] See a parallel place to this, *Jam.*1.9,10. Our preferment in Christ should make us hold up our heads, but not too high; and be chearful, but not withall scornfull.

Verse 23. Ye are bought with a price] The redeemed among the Romans were to addict themselves to the service of their Redeemers, and to observe them as their parents all days of their lives.

Be not ye the servants of men] When they command you things forbidden by Christ, or when they would tyrannize over your consciences, as the Jesuites, that require blinde obedience. Cardinal Tolet saith, The people may merit at Gods hand in believing an heresie, if their teacher propound it: for their obedience is meritorious. If a Cal Conse 1.4. cap.13.

Digitized by Google

Priest

Prieſt teach it (ſaith Stapleton) be it true, be it falſe, take it as Gods oracle. If the Church ſhould approve and authorize Arrianiſm or Pelagianiſm, ſaith Eraſmus, I would do ſo too. But ſo would no wiſe man. Epiſt. ad Firkeimer.

Verſe 24. Let every man wherein, &c.] This is the ſame with verſ. 20. The Apoſtle inculcateth it, as we not only anoint our benummed limbs with ointments, but alſo rub and chafe them in.

Verſe 25. I give my judgement] The Rhemiſts (after Eraſmus) render it counſel, and thereupon ground a diſtinction between Divine Commands and Counſels. But the word betokens, Viri boni rectum & verum judicium, ſaith Magirus, the right and ſound judgement of ſome good man. And ſurely if the Apoſtle had no expreſs command from Chriſt, neither had he any counſel from him concerning this buſineſs. γνωμὴν. In Ariſt. Ethic. l. 6. c. 10.

Verſe 26 I ſuppoſe therefore] This is his judgement, his vote or verdict, the firſt part thereof we have here: the ſecond ver. 28. the third, ver. 35.

Verſe 27. Art thou bound to a wife?] A manifeſt Metaphor from Oxen. Hence we call them yoke-fellows; Quam malè inæquales veniunt ad aratra juvenci; Tam premitur magno, &c. Dare not to yoke thy ſelf with any untamed Heifer that bears not Chriſts yoke. Ovid. Epiſt.

Verſe 28. Thou haſt not ſinned] If any man call lawfull marriage a ſinful defilement, he hath the apoſtate Dragon dwelling in him, ſaith Ignatius. And yet the Papiſts teach that it is a far greater ſin for a Prieſt to have a wife, than to keep many harlots. Epiſt. ad Philadelph. Act and Mon. fol 790.

Such ſhall have trouble in the fleſh] Mark that he ſaith, In the fleſh; the delights of wedlock will be allaied with troubles, to avoid ſurfet. Before marriage people promiſe themſelves much happineſs in that eſtate, and think they could live together with all delight: but after, they ſee they are deceived, and therefore need to go to School to learn how to behave themſelves one toward another.

But I ſpare you] q.d. No more of that: and yet I'll ſhew you a way how you may ſcape, or at leaſt mitigate theſe troubles in the fleſh. Thus this firſt Epiſtle to the Corinthians, though in weight of Argument it be far inferior to the precedent Epiſtle to the Romans; yet in variety of things it ought to be judged equal, and in order of time before the other. Theſaurus ſanè eſt, imò verè mundus rerum cognitu digniſſimarum, as Eraſmus ſaith of Plinies Natural hiſtory: Surely it is a treaſure, yea a very world of things, moſt worthy to be underſtood.

Verſe 29 Thus then I ſay brethren] The beſt counſel I can give you, is, that you hang looſe to all theſe outward comforts, as having your ſelves but a while to be here: You have a long task, and but a little time. God hath hanged the heavieſt weights upon the weakeſt wyers; for upon this moment depends eternity. Caſtigemus igitur mores & moras noſtras; Up therefore and be doing.

The time is ſhort] Gr. Contracted and rouled up, as Sails uſe to be by the Mariners, when the ſhip draws nigh to the harbor. Others ſay, it is a Metaphor from a piece of cloth rolled up, only a little left at the end: So hath God rolled up all his works: only he hath left a little at the end, and then all his glory ſhall appear. The time is ſhort, ſaith the Apoſtle, and you have buſineſs enough another way; therefore let other things (as wiving and buying, &c.) paſs, and minde the main. There is water little enough to run in the right channel, therefore let none run beſide. Some that have lain a dying would have given a world for time: As I have heard (ſaith a Reverend man) one crying day and night, Call time again. And I alſo have known the like of a great Lady of this Land. Let us therefore uſe all ſpeed and diligence, leſt (ſo as children have uſually torn their books) we have ended our lives before we have learned our Leſſons: or (as Themiſtocles) we begin but to be wiſe, when we come to die. Συνεσταλ-μένος.

They that have wives, &c.] Not be uxorious, ſith they know not how ſoon God may take from them, as he did from Ezekiel, the delight of their eyes, their dearelt Spouſes. The Jews at this day have a cuſtom, when a couple are Married, to break the Glaſs wherein the Bridegroom and Bride drank: thereby to admoniſh them of their dying condition, and that there muſt be a parting again ere long. Sphinx. Philoſ. p. 122.

Verſe 30. And they that weep] viz. In the loſs of wife or children: Let them moderate their grief, as Abraham did in the loſs of Sarah, Gen. 23. 2. He came to weep for her; where the Hebrew hath one little letter extraordinary; ſo note that Abra- ham wept but a little for her; and this, not because she was old and over-worn (as the Rabbins give the reason) but because he had hope of a happy resurrection, 1 Thes. 4. 14. and because she was his still, though dead: therefore he so oft in that Chapter calleth her my dead, ver. 4, 11, 13, 15.

Digitized by Google

And they that rejoyce] In the marrying of wives, or birth of children. The marriage-day is called the day of the rejoycing of a mans heart: And when should men be merry rather then at the recovering of the lost rib? But he was too blame that said, He had married a wife, and therefore he could not come. And he was a wiser man that said, Uxori nubere nolo meæ.

Cant. 3. 11.

Martial.

As if they possessed not] Minde earthly things we must, as if we minded them not: As a man may hear a tale, and have his minde elsewhere: or as a man that baits at an Inne, his minde is somewhere else. A right believer (saith one) goes thorow the world, as a man whose minde is in a deep study: or as one that hath special haste of some weighty business. Rebus non me trado, sed commodo, saith Seneca. Be not wholly dulled or drowned in the world; look at it out of the eyes end only, lest as the Serpent Scytale, it bewitch us with it's beautifull colours, and sting us to death.

Mr. Ward.

Verse 31. As not abusing it] Not shooting our affections over-far into it. David was as a weaned childe, Paul as a crucified man. If Jobs heart had not been weaned from the world, when as yet he wallowed in worldly wealth, he could not have born so bravely the ruine of so rich a state without repining. The devil hath no way to entangle us, but to say, as he did to Christ, Mitte te deorsum, Cast thy self down, pitch upon the bait, eat and devour hook and all. We have no later way to escape him, then by minding the main, and looking upon all things here below as by-businesses. The Fathers make this observation here; that the joys of this world are but Umbræ, as if they were joys: not joys indeed, but shadows or figures, as Isa. 29. 8. like the commotions of the affections in a dream. See the Note on the next verse.

For the fashion of this world] The word signifies a Mathematical figure, which is a meer notion, and nothing in substance. So Psal. 39. 6. Surely every man walketh in a vain shadow, he leadeth an imaginary life, rather then a life it self. The pomp of this world is but a fantasie, Act. 25. 23. (See the Note there.) The glory of it, an opinion. The word here used insinuateth, that there is nothing of any firmness or solid consistency in the creature. It is but a surface, out-side, empty promise: all the beauty of it is but skin-deep. The word here used signifies, say some, such a fashion as is in a Comedy, or Stage-play, Where all things are but for a while, to please the eye.

σχῆμα.

Passeth away] Temporals are as transitory as a hasty head-long torrent. The posting Sun of all worldly pleasure, after a short gleam of vain glistering, sets in the ocean of endless sorrow. In the Popes inthronization, before he is set in his chair, and puts on his Triple-crown, a piece of tow, or wad of straw is set on fire before him, and one appointed to say, Sic transit gloria mundi. The glory of this world is but a blaze. It is indeed an Ignis fatuus, a walking fire that leadeth men into brakes and ditches. And so some render this Text. The fashion or hue of this world deceiveth, mis-leadeth, carrieth men another way, out of their way. For of the world we may say as Plutarch saith of Herodotus. Both the words and shews of it are full of fraud. Nec tantum fallacia sunt quin dubia (saith Lactantius) sed & insidiosa, quin dolosa.

φθείγει. Fallit, transversum agit. Bud. Δολερὰ μὲν τὰ σχήματα, δολερὰ δὲ τὰ ῥήματα.

Verse 32. Without carefulness] That unavoidably attendeth the marriage-estate, Gen. 30. 30. 1 Tim. 5. 8.

μεριμνᾶ.

Verse 33. Careth how he may please] He taketh extraordinary care to please, and so doth she, ver. 34. The word implies a dividing of the minde into divers thoughts, casting this way and that way, and every way, how to give best content. That's an unhappy Rody.

Verse 34. Careth for the things] Expedit vitæ.

Holy both in body and spirit] For contemplative wickedness, and mental uncleanness also greatly displeaseth God. Incesta res, & sine stupro, quæ stuprum cupit, saith Seneca. And, Quæ culpa non fecit, nec facit, illa facit, saith Ovid. The very desire to do evil, is to do evil. The Romans punished one of their Vestal Virgins for uttering this Verse only,

In declam.

Felices nuptæ! moritur si nubere dulce est.
Oh! 'tis a brave thing to be married.

How

Digitized by Google

How she may please her husband] As Sarah did Abraham, calling him Lord, as Rebecca did Isaac, by providing him the meat that he loved, as Livia did Augustus, by observing his disposition, and drawing evenly with him, being a piece so just cut for him, as answered him tightly in every joynt.

Verse 35. That you may attend, &c.] Gr. That you may sit close to him, as Mary did, Luk. 10.40. whilest Martha was distracted about much service. Let every man bend himself to banish and beat away distractions, ευπροσεδρον.

Nam neque chorda sonum reddit, quem vult manus & mens Poscentique gravem persæpè remittit acutum. Hor. de art. poet.

Verse 36. If she pass the flower] Childhood is counted the flower of age: so long the Apostle would have marriage forborn. While the flower of the plant sprouteth, the seed is green, unfit to be sowen.

Verse 37. And hath so decreed] Reserving still a liberty of doing otherwise, if need require: which Popish votaries do not.

Verse 38. Doth better] 1. For the better waiting upon Gods work without distraction. 2. For the better bearing of persecution.

Verse 39. She is at liberty] The Montanists therefore (and with them Tertullian in his old-age) were in an errour, that condemned second marriage, and said it was no better then fornication. Howbeit that of Hierome is not to be disliked. Think daily of death; and that will be enough to forbid the Banes of second Marriage. Secundas nuptias pro fornicationibus habent. Aug.

Verse 40. But she is happier] i.e. She shall live more at ease, and have less to care for. And we should contract our cares into as narrow a compass as we can, in hard times, especially.

CHAP. VIII.

Verse 1. Now as touching things]

ANother case that they had propounded to him in their Letter, chap. 7. 1.

We know] So all pretend. Sed nummos habuerunt Athenienses ad numerandum, & scientiam ad sciendum.

That we all have knowledge] But that is not sufficient, unless we have love too. There be many things concur to the making up of a good work, a lawful action.

Knowledge puffeth up] A Metaphor from a pair of bellows, blown up and filled with wind. The French fitly call fools Fols, à follibus, qui nihil continent nisi aerem, from bellows. Such are all proud fools.

Knowledge puffeth up] Swelling us above measure, unless humility laid on as a weight, keep us down, and charity regulate our knowledge for the good of others. Knowledge without love is as rain in the middle region. But how foolish were they of whom Austin maketh mention, that neglected the means of knowledge, because knowledge puffeth up, and so would be ignorant, that they might be humble, and want knowledge, that they might want pride? This was to be like Democritus, who pluckt out his eyes, to avoid the danger of uncleanness. Or that silly Friar, to whom Sir Thomas Moor wrote this Distick;

Tu benè cavisti, ne te nulla occidere possit
Littera: nam nota est littera nulla tibi.

Thou tak'st good care the Letter kill thee not:
Thy skill is such, thou knowest not B. from Bot.

Verse 2. If any man think] This one thing I know, that I know nothing, said Socrates. Neither know I this yet, that I know nothing, saith another. Though I know my self ignorant of many things (saith a third) Yet I dare boldly profess with Origen, Ignorantiam meam non ignoro, I am not ignorant that I am ignorant. The greatest part part of our knowledge is but the least part of our ignorance. And yet how apt are we to think we know all that's knowable: as in Alcibiades his Army all would be leaders, none learners. Epicurus said, that he was the first man that ever discovered truth, and yet in many things he was more blind then a Beetle. Aratus the Astrologer vaunted, that he had counted the stars and written of them all. Hoc ego primus vidi, said Zubarel. And Laurentius Valla boasted, that there was no Logick worthy to be read but his, which therefore he called, Logicam Laurentinam. Joseph Scaliger is for his humane learning, called by one Demonium & miraculum hominis naturæ, a matchless man; But surely it had been happy for him to have been ignorant of this one thing, that he knew so much He might, by his skill in languages, have much advanced the literary Republique, had he not so much admired himself, and more seriously affected to seem witty then ponderous. Wine is good, when it goes to the heart to chear it: but when it fumes all up into the head, it maketh it giddy: So doth knowledge. Nestorius the Heretick bragg'd, that he alone understood the Scriptures; and that, till his time, all the world was benighted. He afterwards fell into horrid blasphemy, and dyed in banishment.

Digitized by Google

Aug. de civ. Dei lib. 16.

Joh. Man. loc. com.

Verse 3. But if any man love God] And his neighbour for Gods sake; his friends in God, his foes for God.

The same is known of him] That is, Knows him savingly, Gal. 4. 9. is taught of God, 1 Thess 4. 9. who onely gives true wisdom, James 1. 5.

Verse 4. Is nothing in the world] A meer fiction it is, that the Idol representeth, a brat of mans brain. We may well say of it, as one doth of Scaligers doctrine De emendatione temporum, that it is in a manner wholly fictitious, and founded upon the confines of nothing. Nothing the Idol is, in respect of the divinity ascribed unto it, as the following words shew. Or Nothing, that is, of no vertue or value. Shall I bow down to yonder Jackanapes? said that Martyr, pointing to the rood in Pauls.

Julius Palmer.

None other God but one] This the wiser Heathen also acknowledged, and for opposing the multitude of gods Socrates suffered. Cicero in his books of the Nature of the Gods, takes pains to shew the vanity of Heathen Deities. And after all, wisheth that he were as well able to find out the true God, as to discover the false.

Τοίς γὸ μύριοι εἰσὶν ὑπὸ χθονὶ πυλυβοτείρη Δαίμονες.

Verse 5. That are called Gods] Hesiod reckons up thirty thousand of them that were in his time. What an army may we think there were of them in after ages?

As there be gods many] The Serpents Grammer first taught, Deum pluraliter declinare, Ye shall be as gods, Gen. 3. saith Damianus.

And Lords many] Demy-gods, Heroes, whose images were worshipped. Ninus was the first that made an Image for his father Belus, and all that came to see it were pardoned for all their offences; whence in time that image came to be worshipped. But they did a very ill office that first brought in images, saith Varro (as Calvin citeth his words) for they encreased errour, and took away fear. And Plutarch saith, It is Sacrilege to worship by images.

Verse 6. But to us there is but one God] Be the gods of the Heathen good-fellows (saith one) the true God is a jealous God, and will not share his glory with another.

Of whom are all things, and we for him] So that God is the first cause, and the last end of all: which two are the properties of the chief good.

Verse 7. Unto this hour] Though they have been better taught and clearly convinced, yet they stifly retain, at least some tincture of their old odde superstitious conceits. No mans speech, whether he be learned or unlearned (saith Cicero) shall ever perswade me from that opinion which I have taken up from mine ancestors concerning the worship of the immortal gods.

Me ex ea opinione &c. De nat. deor. l. 3.

Their conscience being weak] That is, not rightly informed of the true nature of things indifferent.

Is defiled] By doing what they doubt of.

Verse 8. But meat commendeth us not] This is another objection: Meat is indifferent. The Apostle answers, Verse 9. True, it is indifferent, so it prove not a stumbling block to the unresolved. For in such a case thou must suspend thy liberty, and forbear to exercise it.

Verse 10. Be emboldened] This is, Proficere in pejus, ædificare in gehennam, as Tertullian hath it. Whiles men look upon party-coloured objects, they bring forth ſpotted fruits, as Labans ſheep did.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 11. Thy weak brother periſh] Revolt to Paganiſm, or at leaſt pollute his conſcience with mortal ſin, which ſhall be ſet upon thy ſcore. And haſt thou not ſins enough of thine own to anſwer for?

Verſe 12. And wound their weak conſciences] Gr. Beat upon it to make it ſound heavily, as a ſhaulm. Sin is as a ſtroke upon the heart, 2 Sam. 24. 10. τύπτοντες.

To ſin againſt Chriſt] Who holds himſelf highly concerned in the miſuages of his ſervants. It is an idle miſpriſion, to ſever the ſenſe of an injury done to any of the members, from the head. Joab had ſlain Abner and Amaſa. David appropriates it: Thou knoweſt (ſaith he to Solomon) what Joab did to me. The arraignment of mean malefactors runs in the ſtile of wrong to the Kings Crown and Dignity. So here.

Verſe 13. While the World ſtandeth] We muſt ſtand unchangeably reſolved, neither to give offence careleſly, nor to take offence cauſeleſly.

Chap. IX.

Verſe 1. Am I not an Apoſtle, &c.]

THat is to ſay, Do I require you to do any thing more then I my ſelf do daily, in parting with my proper rights? All things in a Miniſter ſhould be exemplary, and for imitation, Tit. 2. 7. In all things ſhew thy ſelf a patern of good works. The word there uſed, ſignifies a thing that makes the ſtamp on the coyn, or the mould whereinto the veſſel is caſt and ſhaped. τύπος.

Have I not ſeen the Lord?] viz. In viſions and extaſies. The falſe Apoſtles reported him no Apoſtle becauſe he had not converſed with Chriſt in the fleſh. It is ordinary with ſeducers to detract from the truths Champions, that they may be the better eſteemed of. Thus Bellarmine rejecteth the Fathers and others that make not for him as Hereticks. To Irenæus, Tertullian, Euſebius, and Luther (ſaid he) I anſwer, Omnes manifeſti hæretici ſunt, they are all manifeſt Hereticks. So Arminius his courſe was to detract from the authority and fame of Calvin, Zanchi, Beza, Martyr, &c. that he might build himſelf upon better mens ruines. The Jeſuites ſpeak moſt baſely of S. Paul, as making much againſt many of their tenets: and ſtick not teach in their Pulpits, That he was not ſecure of his preaching, but by conference with S. Peter; nor that he durſt publiſh his Epiſtles, till S. Peter had allowed them. Zuinglius mentioneth ſome bold fellows in his time, Anno 1519. that ſpake very contemptuouſly of this great Apoſtle. Quis tandem Paulus, &c. Calvin telleth us, that Quintinus the Libertine called him Vas fractum, a broken veſſel: And Leo Judæ, in his preface to Bullingers book againſt the Catabaptiſts, noteth, that albeit there were ſundry ſorts of thoſe Sectaries, and all at odds amongſt themſelves, yet they all concurred in this, that they vexed and diſparaged the godly Preachers of the truth. And do they not ſtill antiquum obtinere, hold to their old wont?

De Chriſto lib. 1. cap. 9

Synod. Dordec. Præfat.

Spec. Europ. Tom. 1. Operum p. 132

Inſtruct. adver. lib. cap. 9.

Verſe 2. The ſeal of mine Apoſtleſhip] See the like, Jer. 23. 22. and Mat. 21. 28. where our Saviour proveth John Baptiſts Miniſtry to be from heaven, by the ſucceſs.

Verſe 3. Mine anſwer to them, &c.] Or, this is mine Apology to thoſe that cavil and quarrel my calling, viz. That I have converted you and others: a real proof, an ocular demonſtration. So 2 Cor. 13. 3. —— 5.

Verſe 4. To eat and to drink] At the Churches charge: ſo that we do it moderately without exceſs, as Joſiah did, and it went well with him, Jer. 22. 15.

Verſe 5. To lead about a ſiſter] At the Churches charge likewiſe. The Papiſts that deny the lawfulneſs of Miniſters marriage, are condemned and curſed by their own Canon-law, Diſtinct. 29. and 31. See Acts and Monuments, folio 1068. Paphnutius oppoſed this propoſition in the Nicene Council, and prevailed.

Verſe 6. To forbear working] At our trade? Yes, or elſe I ſhould eaſily be of Melanchthons mind, who when one had ſaid of the Miniſtry, that it was the Art of Arts, and,

Hiſt. trip. l. 2. c. 14.

Digitized by Google

Joh. Manl. loc. com. 471.

and the Science of Sciences; if he had added (said Melanchthon) that it is the misery of miseries, he had hit the nail on the head.

Verse 7. who goeth a warfare, &c.] Ministers as they should be valiant as Souldiers, diligent as Husbandmen, vigilant as Shepherds, (Pastor, arator eques, &c.) so should they live of their labour, as every tinker and tapster doth. Its a sign of gasping devotion, when men are so close-handed to their Ministers, whose very cold water goes not unrewarded.

Verse 8. Or saith not the Law] Not of Nations onely, as verse 7. but of God expressly, Verbis non solum disertis, sed & exertis?

Verse 9. Doth God take care for Oxen?] He doth doubtless, John 4. 11. he preserveth man and beast; he heareth the young ravens that cry to him onely by implication. Doth he not then much more take care for men, for Ministers? The Hebrews have a Proverb, Bos debet edere ex tritura sua. The Ox should eat of the corn he treadeth out. But now adays, by slight or might, they so muzzle the poor labouring Ox, that they make an Ass of him, saith one. In many places they allow him nothing but straw, for treading out the corn; and so much straw as themselves please, saith another. Do they not now go about to deal by Christs faithfullest servants, as those Grecians did, that put an Engine about their servants neck (called περιτονιον) which reached down to their hands, that they might not so much as lick of the meal, when they were sifting it? It was long since complained of, that many dealt by their Ministers, as Carriers do by their horses, they laid heavy burthens upon them, and then hung bells about their necks; hard work, and good words they shall have; but easie commons, and slight wages: as if they were of the Camelion kind, and could live by ayr, &c. The Statute of Mortmain provided that men should give no more to the Church: but now Tempora mutantur.

Tho. Scots projector, p. 31

D. Stoughton

Verse 10. Should plow in hope] Of maintaining his life by his labour, which is therefore called the life of our hands, because it is upheld by the labour of our hands, Laudit, qui sterili semina mandat humo.

Propert.

Verse 11. Is it a great thing, &c.] Do not we give you gold for brass? Cast we not pearls before you? Alexander the great gave Aristotle for his book de Natura Animalium, 800 talents, which is 800000 Crowns at least. Theodorus Gaza translated that book into Latine, and dedicated it to Pope Sixtus. The Pope asked him, how much the rich outside of the book stood him in. Gaza answered, fourty Crowns. Those fourty Crowns he commanded to be repaid him, and so sent him away without any reward for so precious a piece of work. How well might the poor old Grecian sit and sing, Interrogavit asinus papa quanti ornatus constaret? &c. John Manl loc. com. 572. Juven. Satyr. 7.

Heu male nunc artes miseras hæc sæcula tractant,
Spes nulla ulterior, &c.

Verse 12. If others be partakers] If your ordinary Pastors, &c. for the false Apostles preached gratis (as some gather out of 2 Cor. 11. 12.) partly to draw more Disciples, and partly to bring an odium upon the Apostle, if he should not do the like.

Verse 13. Live of the things of, &c.] Yea they lived plentifully and richly, as appears by the liberal gift of those Levites, for Passover-offerings, 2 Chron. 35. 9.

Verse 14. Even so hath the Lord] Note that [so] saith one: "that is, As they of "old lived at the Altar by tithes: so Ministers now. How else will men satisfie their "consciences in the particular quantity they must bestow upon the Ministers? The "Scripture speaks onely of the tenth part.

Verse 15. Better for me to dye] To be hunger-starved, then to do any thing to the prejudice of the Gospel. Affliction is to be chosen rather then sin, Job 36. 21. Quas non oportet mortes præeligere, saith Zuinglius. What death should not a man chuse, nay what hell, rather then to sin against his conscience? Daniel chose rather to be cast into the Lyons den, then to bear about that Lion in his own bosom. The Primitive Christians thought it far better to be thrown to Lions without, then to be left to lusts within. Potius in ardentem rogum insiluero, quam ullum peccatum in Deum commisero, said a good man once. I will rather leap into a bone-fire, then wilfully commit any wickedness. The Mouse of Armenia will rather dye then be defiled with any filth. If her hose be besmeared with dirt, she will rather choose to perish with hunger then be polluted. Such was Paul here, and such we ought all to be.

Epist. 3.

Ad leonem magis quam lenonem. Tertul.

Pintus in Dan. 3.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 16. I have nothing to glory of] My glorying is, that I preach it gratis, and thereby ſtop an open mouth, 2 Cor. 12. 16, 17, 18. give them the lye that falſly accuſe me, that I make a prize of you.

Tea wo is unto me] It was death for the high-Prieſt to enter the Tabernacle without his bels, Preach man, preach; thou wilt be damned elſe, ſaid one to his friend. Be inſtant, or ſtand over the work in ſeaſon, out of ſeaſon. See Jacobs diligence, Gen. 31. 40. And Pauls, Act. 20. 20. to verſe 28. &c. Which one rightly calleth St. Pauls trumpet, the voice whereof may be to every Miniſter, like that trumpet in Mount Sinai, that had both clangorem & horrorem: Or as Samuels meſſage, making Elies two ears to tingle, and his heart to tremble. Let him give good heed to it, and then ſay with the Civilian, Perquam durum eſt: ſed ita lex ſcripta eſt. Hard or not hard, it muſt be done, or I am utterly undone. Preach I muſt, or periſh. ἐπίσηθι. Barlow. Ulpian.

Verſe 17. I have a reward] Yet not earned, but of free grace, God crowning his own works in us. He was a proud Papiſt that ſaid, Cœlum gratis non accipiam, I will not have heaven for nought. And he another, that ſaid, Opera bona mercatura regni cœleſtis, Good works are the price of heaven. God will caſt all ſuch merit-merchants out of his Temple. Vega. Bellarm.

But if againſt my will] Virtus nolentium, nulla eſt. God will ſtrain upon no man. All his ſervants are a free people, Pſal. 110. 3. All his Souldiers Volunteers. They flie to their colours, as the Doves to their windows, Iſa. 60. 8.

Verſe 18. What is my reward then?] My merces mundi, all that I have here.

That I abuſe not] i. e. That I make no indiſcreet uſe of it. Non opes, non gloriam, non voluptates quæſivi (ſaid holy Melanchthon) Hanc conſcientiam aufero quocunque diſcedo. I never ſought wealth, honour nor pleaſure. This my conſcience tels me, what ever becomes of me. Melch. Adam pag. 359.

Verſe 19. That I may gain the more] The Greek word for gain, ſignifieth withall the joy and delight of the heart in gaining. It ſignifies alſo craft or guile, ſuch as is that of the fox: which when he is very hungry after prey, and can finde none, he lieth down and feigneth himſelf to be a dead carkaſs, and ſo the fowls fall upon him, and then he catcheth them. So muſt a Miniſter deny himſelf to gain his hearers. χάρις & quia καδς ἥδεται.

Verſe 20. And unto the Jews, &c.] Not in conforming to their impieties; but 1. In the uſe of things indifferent. 2. In merciful compaſſion toward them.

To them that are under the Law] Though not Jews born, yet proſelytes, as the Ethiopian Eunuch, Cornelius, &c.

Verſe 21. That I might gain them] A metaphor from merchants, Qui περιλύνοντες ἐ κάπηλοι, Who are never weary of taking money. S. Paul harps much upon this ſtring, out of a ſtrong deſire of winning ſouls to God. Miniſters muſt turn themſelves into all ſhapes and faſhions both of ſpirit and ſpeech to gain ſouls to God. Chriſt uſeth every engine of wiſdom (ſaith Clemens Alexand.) that he may convert ſome. Miniſters ſhould labour to be Maſters of their peoples affections, δημαγωγοί, as the Athenian Oratours were called, i. e. People-leaders. Naz. πᾶσῃ σοφίας μηχανῇ. Paedag. l. 1. cap. 9.

Verſe 22. To the weak] Not preſſing upon them the auſterities of religion, but condeſcending and complying with them, as far as I could with a good conſcience.

That I might ſave ſome] This is the higheſt honour in the world, to have any hand in the ſaving of ſouls. Let all of an ability put forth themſelves hereunto: and if they have not fine manchet, yet give the poor people barly bread, or whatſoever elſe the Lord hath committed unto them, as Bucer bad Bradford. Act. and Mon. 1453.

Verſe 23. That I might be partaker] i. e. That I might be ſaved together with you. For the bell may call men to the Church, though it ſelf never enter. The field may be well ſowed with a dirty hand; the Well yield excellent water, though it have much mud. Noahs builders were drowned: and the ſign that telleth the paſſenger there is wholeſome diet, or warm lodging within, may it ſelf remain in the ſtorms without. See 1 Tim. 4. 16. Nihil turpius eſt Peripatetico claudo. Oh how many heavenly doctrines are in ſome peoples ears, that never were in the Preachers heart? So true is that of Hilary, Sanctiores ſunt aures plebis, quam corda ſacerdotum.

Verſe 24. Know ye not] The Apoſtle argueth from their profane ſports, yet approveth them not: As neither doth the Lord patronize Uſury, Mat. 25. 27. Injuſtice, Luke 16. 1. Theft, 1 Theſ. 5. 2. Dancing, Mat. 11. 17.

Digitized by Google

Ωδε μὲν ὅτι τὸ ἀγώνιον, ἐκεῖ δὲ οἱ στέφανοι. Acts and Mon. fol. 1495.

So run that ye may obtain] Here is the race, but above the Crown, said Ignatius to Polycarp. Run to get the Race, said M. Bradford to his fellow-sufferers: you are almost at your journeys end. I doubt not but our Father will with us send to you also, as he did to Elias, a fiery charet to convey us into his Kingdom. Let us therefore not be dismayed to leave our cloke behind us, that is, our bodies to ashes.

Verse 25. Is temperate in all things] These luxurious Corinthians were much addicted to their belly: he cals them therefore to temperance. Ill doth it become a servant of the highest, to be a slave to his palate, to have animum in patinis & calicibus, as the Sybarites. A man may eat that on earth, that he must digest in hell. Aug.

Verse 26. Not as uncertainly] For, 1. I forget those things that are behind, all worldly things, I set those by. 2. I have Oculum ad metam (which was Ludovicus Vives his Motto) an eye upon the mark. 3. I strain and stretch toward it. See all these Phil. 3. 13, 14. Duties are not to be done in a lazy, formal, customary strain, like the pace the Spaniard rides: but with utmost diligence and expedition.

That beats the air] As young Fencers use to do, but I beat mine adversary.

Verse 27. My body] My body of sin in the whole man, not mine outward man only. If we finde the devil practising upon the flesh, the way is not to revile the devil, but to beat the flesh. Give it a blew eye, leave a blot in the face of it, as the word signifieth: batter it as those were wont, that tryed masteries with plummets of lead: we owe it nothing but stripes, Rom. 8. 12. It is of a slavish nature, and must be held hard under; as slaves thrust into a mill, or bound to an oar. ὑπωπιάζω. δουλαγωγῶ.

A castaway] Cast out of heaven, as they were out of the fencing schools, that were either crosse or cowardly; Or that could offend, but not defend. An Orator (how much more a preacher?) should be Vir bonus dicendi peritus, a good man able to discourse. Diogenes blamed those Orators that studied bene dicere, non bene facere, to to speak well, but not to do accordingly. And Chrysostom saith, Nihil frigidius est doctore verbis solummodò philosophante. Hoc non est doctoris sed histrionis. A wordy doctor is an unworthy creature: and more fit to make a Stage-player then a Preacher. Quintilian.

Chap. X.

Verse 1. I would not that ye should]

Bucholc. Historiæ fida monitrices, saith one. There is very good use to be made of other mens examples. Historia hath its name, saith Plato, of stopping the flux of errours and evil manners. For mutato nomine de te Fabula narratur. What bitter effects sin hath produced in some man, it may in any man. Lege igitur historiam, ne fias historia. παρὰ τὸ ἱστάναι τὸν ῥῦν. in Cyrat.

Verse 2. And were all baptized] And yet were rooted out and rejected. Baptism saveth; not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but, &c. 1 Pet. 3. 21. By this text it appears that infants also were baptized unto Moses, who was a typical Mediator: therefore they ought to be into Christ, the true. It is here objected that those Infants did also eat Manna, and drink of the Rock; therefore by a like reason, they should also now receive the Lords Supper. For answer, 1. How doth it appear that they did eat Manna &c? 2. Though they did, yet they may not communicate at the Lords table, because they cannot examine themselves, nor discern the Lords body, and are therefore flatly forbidden to come there, cap. 11. 28, 29.

Verse 3. And did all eat] They fed upon Sacraments, and yet died in Gods displeasure. The carcass of the Sacrament cannot give life, but the soul of it, which is the thing represented. It is well observed that Sacraments do not work as Physick, whether men sleep, or wake ex opere operato, by vertue inherent in them: but ex opere operantis, according to the disposition and qualification of the party that partaketh.

Verse 4. The same spiritual drink] Here was no dry communion.

That

Digitized by Google

That ſpiritual rock that followed them] The waters of the rock, the vertue and benefit went along with them: ſo ſhould the efficacy of the Lords Supper with us. We ſhould walk in the ſtrength of it, as Eliah did of his cake. See Pſal. 105. 41. Deu. 9. 21.

Verſe 5. They were overthrown] They died with the Sacramental meat in their mouths: our privledges excuſe us not, but aggravate our enormities.

Verſe 6. Were our examples] Worthily are they made examples, that will not take them. Alterius perditio tua ſit cautio. The deſtruction of others ſhould be a terrour to us, that we may waſh our feet in the blood of the wicked, Pſal. 52. 6. It is a juſt preſage and deſert of ruine, not to be warned.

As they alſo luſted] As at Kibroth Hattaavah, where by a haſty teſtament they bequeathed a new name to the place of their burial.

Verſe 7. And roſe up to play] Now if they were ſo cheared and ſtrengthened by theſe murthering morſels, ſhould not we be made active and abundant in Gods Word by the dainties of Gods Table? Knewſtub. on Com. 7

Verſe 8. And fell in one day] The Apoſtle inſtead of the cloke of heat of youth, puts upon fornication a bloody cloke, bathed in the blood of twenty three thouſand.

Three and twenty thouſand] Moſes mentions 24000. whereof one thouſand were the chief Princes, the others inferiours, provoked to ſin by their example. But why doth the Apoſtle inſiſt in the ſpecial puniſhment of the people? To ſhew (ſaith learned Junius) how frigid and inſufficient their excuſe is, that pretend for their ſins, the examples of their ſuperiours. Iun. paral. lib. 2. p. 37.

Verſe 9. Neither let us tempt] By provoking him to jealouſie, as verſe 22. eſpecially by idolatry, that Land-deſolating ſin.

Verſe 10. As ſome of them alſo] viz. Numb. 14. And God ſaid Amen to it, verſe 28. May he not juſtly ſay the ſame to our deteſtable God-damn-me's? As truly as I live, ſaith the Lord, as ye have ſpoken in mine ears, ſo will I do to you.

Verſe 11. For our admonition] God hangs up ſome, as it were in gibbets, for publike example. See ver. 6. Let us therefore ſet a Memorandum upon Gods puniſhments: and mark his ſpits with our ſtars. Let us be wiſe by other mens woes; take a pearl out of the Serpent, a good ſtone out of the Toads head, ſuck ſweet hony out of bittereſt weeds, &c.

Upon whom the ends, &c.] Theſe then are the laſt and worſt daies, the very lees and dregs of time. Now the worſe the times are, the better we ſhould be: and the rather, becauſe an end of all things is at hand.

Verſe 12. That thinks he ſtands] If he do but think ſo, if he be no more then a ſeemer, he will fall at length into hell-mouth. A man may live by a form, but he cannot die by a form. Therefore rather ſeek to be good, then ſeem to be ſo.

Verſe 13. But ſuch as is common] Such as is humane, i. e. Either ſuch as is incident to men as men, Job 5. 6. Or ſuch as men may well bear without buckling under it: Or ſuch as comes from men, not from devils: Ye wreſtle againſt fleſh and blood, &c. Or you are yet only allured to idolatry, not forced by perſecution. You gratifie your idolatrous acquaintance with your preſence at their Idol-feaſts; you are tempted and ſoon taken. τῶν προσβαινόντων ἀνθρωπίνων τοῦτο. Xenophon.

But God is faithful] When Mr. Latimer ſtood at the ſtake, and the tormentours about to ſet fire to him and Ridley, he lifted up his eyes toward heaven with an amiable and comfortable countenance, ſaying theſe words, Fidelis eſt Deus, &c. Ridley alſo at the ſtake, with a wonderous chearful look, ran to Latimer, embraced and kiſſed, and as they that ſtood near reported, comforted him, ſaying, Be of good heart, brother; God will either aſſwage the fury of the flame, or elſe will ſtrengthen us to abide it. Act. and Mon. fol. 1589. Ibid. 1605.

But will with the temptation] He proportioneth the burden to the back, and the ſtroke to the ſtrength of him that beareth it. I thank God, ſaid Mr. Bradford, my common diſeaſe (which was a rhewm, with a feebleneſs of ſtomach) doth leſs trouble me, then when I was out of priſon, which doth teach me the merciful providence of God toward me. Ibid. 1419.

Verſe 14. Flie from Idolatry] He calleth their ſitting at the Idole-feaſts, though without intent of honouring the Idol, by the name of Idolatry: becauſe, 1. Hereby they yielded a tacite conſent to that ſin. 2. Petty matters pave a cauſey for the greater.

Verſe 15. I ſpeak as to wiſe men] i. e. Well skilled in the doctrine of the Sacraments: from one of which I am about to argue. Piſcator after he had read ſome of the Fathers, gave over for this reaſon, becauſe ſcarce any of them did rightly underſtand the uſe and efficacy of baptiſm.

Digitized by Google

Judge ye what I say] Jovianus the Emperour was wont to wish that he might govern wise men, and that wise men might govern him.

Verse 16. The cup of blessing] Not the Chalice, but the common cup. Calvin chose rather to leave Geneva, then to use unleavened bread or wafer-cakes at the Lords Supper. We may not symbolize with Idolaters.

Diest. de ratione stud. Theol. pag. 126.

It is not the communion] Doth it not signifie and set forth, yea, as an instrument, effect and exhibite this communion?

Verse 17. And one body] By the force of faith and love, Can. 6.9. My dove is but one: the daughters saw her, and blessed her. No such oneness, entireness any where as among the Saints. Other societies are but as the clay in the toes of Nebuchadnezzars image, they may cleave together, but not incorporate one into another.

Verse 18. Are not they which eat, &c.] See Levit. 7.15. Hence he infers that these Corinthians also eating of the Idols-sacrifices, were defiled with idolatry: A pari.

Verse 19. What say I then?] He prevents a mistake. See chap. 8.4. Ministers must in their discourses meet with all objections as much as may be.

Verse 20. They sacrifice to devils] A good intention then excuseth not. The Gentiles thought they had sacrificed to God. So do the Papists, who yet worship devils, whiles they worship idols of gold, and silver, and brass, and stone, Revel. 9.20. The devil is εἰδωλοχαρὴς, saith Synesius an Idol-lover.

In epist.

Verse 21. Partakers of the Lords table] Name and thing. The Popish opinion of Mass was, that it might not be celebrated, but upon an altar, or at least upon a superaltare, which must have it's prints and carects, or else the thing was not thought to be lawfully done. Our Communion Table they called an oysterboard.

Act. and Mon. fol. 1111. Ibid. 1326.

And the table of devils] Redwald King of East-Saxons had in the same Church one altar for Christian Religion, and another for sacrifice to devils.

Camden.

Verse 22. Do we provoke the Lord] As Caligula that dared his Jove to a duel: As the raging Turk at the last assault of Scodra most horribly blaspheming God. But who knoweth the power of his anger? It is such as none can avert or avoid, avoid or abide. To such therefore as will needs provoke the Lord, we may well say, as Ulysses his companions said to him, when he would needs provoke Polydamas;

Turk. hist. fol. 423. Psal. 90. 11.

Σχέτλιε πῇσ' ἐθέλεις ἐριθίζεμεν ἄγριον ἄνδρα;
What meanst thou, wretch, t'enrage this cruel man?

Verse 23. All things are not expedient] An liceat, an deceat, an expediat, are three most needful questions. Things lawful in themselves may be unseemly for our state and calling; unbehoveful also to the benefit of others. Think unlawful for thee whatsoever implies either inexpediency or indecency.

Bern.

Verse 24. Let no man seek his own] Self miscaries us all, and makes us eccentrick in our motions, nothing more.

Verse 25. Whatsoever is sold, &c.] A portion of the consecrated flesh was usually sold by the Priests, who made their markets of it, as Augustine upon the Romans testifieth.

Verse 26. For the earth is the Lords] God, of his bounty, spreads a table for all: Make no scruple therefore, eat freely.

Verse 27. And ye be disposed to go] Our Saviour when he saw that Johns austerity was censured, took his liberty in the use of creatures, and convenient company-keeping, Luke 7.33,34. I do not find where ever he was bidden to any table and refused. Not for a pleasure of the dishes, but for the benefit of so winning a conversation.

Verse 28. The earth is the Lords] Therefore in case of scandal abstain. Why shouldest thou use this creature, as if there were no more but this? Suspend thy liberty: Hast not thou all the world afore thee?

Verse 29. Why is my liberty judged] As a profane licence. We should be shie of the very shews and shadows of sin, Quicquid fuerit malè coloratum, as Bernard hath it: if a thing look but il-favoured, abstain from it.

Verse 30. For if I by grace] Or, By thanksgiving. The same Greek word signifies both: to teach us, that a grateful man is a gracious man. The unthankful and the evil are set together as the same, Luke 6. 35. God is kinde to the unthankful, and to the evil.

χαρὶς.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 31. Whether therefore ye eat, &c.] Of a reverend Scotch Divine, it is ſaid, That He did even eat and drink and ſleep eternal life. Theſe common actions alſo are ſteps in our Chriſtian walking, deſpiſe them not therefore, but refer them to that ſupreme ſcope. Socrates even in his recreations, profited his companions no leſs then if he had been reading Lectures to them. Plato and Xenophon thought it fit and profitable that mens ſpeeches at meals ſhould be written. Quicquid agas propter Deum agas, ſaith one. Propter te Domine, propter te, ſaid another. The glory of God ought to eat up all other ends, as Moſes ſerpent did the Sorcerers ſerpents: or as the Sun puts out the light of the fire. Jovinian the Emperours Motto was, Scopus vitæ Chriſtus.

πολὺ γὰρ ἂν ἥδιον ἦν ἄκουσαι τῶν ἐλευθερίων λεγόντων τοὺς συνδείπνους ἢ τῶν ἐδεσμάτων οὐτωσὶ. Xenoph. Druſ. Apothegm.

Verſe 32. Give none offence] This is another end we ſhould aim at, the edification of others. Finibus non officiis à vitiis diſcernuntur virtutes. Two things make a good Chriſtian; good actions, and good aims. Auguſtin.

Verſe 33. Not ſeeking mine own profit] This, ſaith Chryſoſtom, is the moſt perfect Canon of Chriſtianity, the top-gallant of true religion.

CHAP. XI.

Verſe 1. Be ye followers of me]

THis verſe properly belongs to the former Chapter. The diſtinguiſhing of the books of Scripture into Chapters is not very ancient. But that of verſes was deviſed and done by Robert Stephens, Pio quidem at tumultuario ſtudio (as one ſaith well) with a good intent, but with no great skill, as appears here and in divers other places. The Apoſtle chap. 10. 33 had ſhewed his own practice: here he cals upon them to do accordingly. As the Ox follows the herd, ſo will I follow good men, Etiamſi ruant, ſaith Cicero, although they do amiſs. This was more then S. Paul deſires: Be ye followers of me, ſaith he: but only ſo far as I am of Chriſt, not an inch further. Chriſtians are not bound (as Latimer ſaith) to be the Saints apes: labouring to be like them in every thing; Its Chriſts peculiar honour to be imitated in all morals abſolutely. Scultet. Sicut bos armenta, ſic ego bonos viros, &c. Cic. ad Attic.

Verſe 2. And keep the ordinances] Gr. the traditions or doctrines by word of mouth. Theſe are 1. Dogmatical, concerning faith and practice, 2 Theſ. 2. 15. 2. Ritual, and theſe again are 1. Perpetual, as that of the manner of adminiſtring the two Sacraments. 2. Temporary, as that of abſtaining from certain meats, Act. 15. 28, 29. And thoſe other pertaining to the obſerving of external order and decency in Church-aſſemblies. And of theſe the Apoſtle here ſpeaketh. Sclater in loc.

Verſe 3. The head of the woman is man] Were it not an ill ſight to ſee the ſhoulders above the head, the woman uſurp authority over the man? A prudent wife commands her husband by obeying, as did Livia. ἀυθεντεῖν. 1 Tim 2. 12.

Verſe 4. Diſhonoureth his head] As they accounted it then and there. In other places it is otherwiſe. The French preach covered. The Turks neither kneel nor uncover the head at publike prayers, as holding thoſe poſtures unmanly. Several countries have their ſeveral cuſtoms. Baſiliades Duke of Muſcovia ſhewed himſelf a tyrant in nailing an Embaſſadours hat to his head, for not uncovering it before him. Blunts voyage p. 82.

Verſe 5. Praying or prophecying] That is, joyning with the man that prayeth or prophecieth, and going along with him in her heart. Thus the King and all Iſrael with him offered Sacrifice before the Lord, 1 Kings 8. 62. And thus the unlearned ſay Amen, 1 Cor. 14. 16. See the Note on Rom. 16. 1.

Verſe 6. For a woman to be ſhorn] Our Hic-mulieres hold it now no ſhame. If Henry the ſixth had ſeen ſuch creatures, he would have cried out, as once he did at the ſight of naked breſts, Fie, fie, Ladies, in ſooth you are too blame, &c. Daniels hiſt. p. 198.

Verſe 7. He is the image and glory of God] Even as an image in the glaſs doth look toward us, from whom it is reflected: So (ſaith one) doth Gods image in us make the eyes of our minds view him the author of it in us. And as the eye becometh one with that which it ſeeth, and is after a ſort in that light it beholdeth: ſo are we by the the viſion of God, which is begun in us, one with him and in him. Bayus letters.

The

Digitized by Google

The woman is the glory of the man] Either because he may glory in her, if she be good: or because she is to honour him, and give glory to him.

Verse 8. But the woman of the man] Of a bone she was made, and but one bone; Vitis Palatina. Ne esset ossea, saith a Divine: A bone of the side it was, not of the head (she is not to be his mistress) not of the foot (she is not to be his handmaid) but of the side, to shew that she is a companion to her husband. A bone from under the arm, to mind the man of protection and defence to the woman. A bone not far from his heart, to mind him of dilection and love to the woman. A bone from the left side, to put the woman in minde, that by reason of her frailty and infirmity, she stands in need of both the one, and the other from her husband.

As Artemisia, Zenobia, Blandina. Aqua. Atestina Guisiorum & Nemorous. parens. Thuan. hist. l. 24. Verse 9. For the woman] sc. To serve her: unless it be some women, specially called to, and qualified for government. Amongst whom Queen Elizabeth that female glory is famous; Of whom a great French Dutchess said, That she was Glorioſissima, & omnium quæ unquam sceptrum gesserunt fœlicissima fœmina, Besides her Sex, there was nothing in her woman-like or weak.

Numb. 5. 18. Verse 10. To have power] That is a vail, called in Hebrew Radid, of Radad, to beat rule. And indeed what was this subjection to the husband, but a kind of power and protection derived to the wife, in respect of her former estate?

Because of the Angels] Present in the Assemblies of the Saints. This was set forth of old by the hangings of the Tabernacle wrought with Cherubims within and without. Others understand this Text of Ministers, frequently called Angels, Hag. 1. 12, 13. Rev. 2. and 3. Judg. 2. 1. (that Angel is thought to be Phineas) Eccles. 5 6. Neither say thou before the Angel (i. e. before the Lords Priest) it was an errour. Some think the Apostle argues from the example of the Angels: we should imitate their modesty, who were wont to cover their faces, to testifie their subjection toward God. Vatablus.

Verse 11. Nevertheless neither is] This is added for the womans comfort. There must be all mutual respects and melting-heartedness betwixt married couples, which being preserved fresh and fruitful, will infinitely sweeten and beautifie the marrriage-estate. Love is a coin that must be exchanged betwixt them, and returned in kinde. Husbands love your wives, Colos. 3. 16. He saith not, Rule over your wives, as he had said, Wives submit your selves to your husbands, but Love your wives; yea, let all your things be done in love: for neither is the man without the woman; he is not compleat without her, he wants a piece of himself; neither is the woman without the man, she cannot subsist without him, as the Vine cannot without a supporter. The rib can challenge no more of her, then the earth can of him, &c.

Verse 21. But all things of God] God consulted not with man to make him happy (saith one.) As he was ignorant while himself was made, so he did not know while a second self was made out of him: Both, that the comfort might be the greater then was expected; as also that he might not upbraid his wife with any great dependance or obligation, he neither willing the work, nor suffering any pain to have it done.

Verse 13. Judge in your selves] All Christs sheep are rational, able to discern of things that differ, having their senses thereunto exercised, Heb. 5. 14. But some sins are condemned by common sense, as here: and religion is founded upon so good reason, that though God had not commanded it, yet it had been our wisest way to have chosen it. But lust doth oft so bleer the understanding, that a man shall think he hath reason to be mad, and that there is great sense in sinning.

Verse 14. That if a man have long hair] Bushes of vanity, which they will never part with (said Marbury) until the devil put a candle into the bush. But our Gallants object, That the Apostle here intendeth such hair as is as long as womens hair. Whereunto we answer, That Homer calleth the Greeks hair-nourishing men, who yet καρηκομόωντας Ἀχαιούς. Homer. did not wear their hair long as women. How Cromwell handled the shag-haired ruffian, See Acts and Monuments of the Church, folio 1083. How God hath punished this unnatural sin by that loathsome and horrible disease in the hair, called Plica Polonica, See Hercules de Saxonia: And out of him M. Bolton in his four last things, page 40. It begun first (saith he) not many years ago in Poland; It is now entered into many parts of Germany. And methinks our monstrous fashionists, both male and female, the one for nourishing their horrid bushes of vanity, the other for their most unnatural and cursed cutting their hair, should every hour fear and tremble, lest they should bring it upon upon their own heads, and amongst us in this Kingdom. Our Henry 1. repressed the wearing of long hair: which though it were a gaiety of no charge, yet for the undecency thereof, he reformed it, and all other dissoluteness. See Mr. Prins Unlovelyness of love-locks. See also a book entituled Diatriba Theologica de capillis, constans disputatione Textuali, ad 1 Cor. 11. 14, 15. Daniels Hist. 67.

Digitized by Google

Verse 15. Her hair is given her] Now it is a vile thing to go against nature. Cyprian and Austin say, That garish apparel is worse then whoredom: because whoredom only corrupts chastity, but this corrupts nature.

Verse 16. Seem to be contentious] A doctore glorioso, & Pastore contentioso, & inutilibus quæstionibus, liberet Ecclesiam suam Dominus, said Luther. From a vain-glorious Doctor, from a contentious Pastor, and from endless and needless controversies, the good Lord deliver his Church. The word rendred seem, signifieth, is pleased to be, desires and hath a will to be, yea boasts and prides himself in it. This is a foul fault in any, but especially in Ministers; who must see (said Luther) that those three Dogs follow them not into the Pulpit, Pride, Covetousness, and Contentiousness. A quarelsom person is like a Cock of the kind, ever bloody with the blood of others and himself; And divisions are Sathans powder-plot, to blow up Religion. Δοκεῖ δοκησίσοφος.

We have no such custom] viz. To strive about trifles, but to submit to our teachers, Heb. 13. 17. It is a vile thing, saith one, to vex our Ministers by our obstinacy; yea, though they were not able to make so full demonstration, yet when they reprove such things, out of a spiritual jealousie and fear that they corrupt the peoples hearts, they are to be heard and obeyed. Bifield on 1 Pet 3.

Verse 17. I praise you not] q. d. I discommend and dispraise you. The Corinthians were in many things faulty and blame-worthy. S. Paul deals plainly and freely with them, and would not therefore take their offered kindness, 2 Cor. 12. lest he should be engaged to them, and by receiving a curtesie, sell his liberty.

Verse 18. There be divisions] Gr. Schisms, rents, yea, and that about the Sacrament of the Lords Supper (that bond of love) through Satans malice. Now there can be no greater sin committed, saith Chrysostom, then to break the peace of the Church. Cyprian saith, It is an inexpiable blemish, such as cannot be washt off with the blood of Martyrdom. The errour of it may be pardoned (saith Oecolampadius in his Epistle to the Lutherans of Suevia) so there be faith in Christ Jesus; but the discord we cannot expiate, though we should lay down our lives to do it. χίσματα. Hom. 11. ad Ephes. Lib. de unitate Ecclesiæ. Oecol. ad frat. in Suevia.

Verse 19. There must be heresies] Therefore much more schisms, which also, for most part, do degenerate into heresies; as an old Serpent into a Dragon. In the time of Pope Clement the fifth, Frederick King of Sicily was so offended at the evil government of the Church, that he began to question the truth of the Christian Religion. But Arnoldus de villa nova confirmed and setled him by this and such like places of Scripture, Offences must come, there must be heresies, &c. God having so decreed and foretold it. It behoves that there be heresies in the Church; as it is necessary there should be poyson and venemous creatures in the world, because out of them God will work medicines.

May be made manifest] As they are now, if ever, in these shedding and discriminating times. So in the Palatinate they fell to Popery, as fast as leaves in Autumn.

Verse 20. This is not to eat, &c.] When the Lords Supper therefore is not rightly administred, it is no longer his; especially if the substantials thereof be omitted. As in those Sacrifices, Hos. 9. 4. Their bread for their soul shall not come into the house of the Lord; that is, the bread for their natural sustenance. He speaks of that meat-offering, Levit. 2. 5. appointed for a spiritual use, yet called the bread for their life or livelyhood; because God esteemed it no other then common meat. So Jer. 7. 21. in scorn he calls their sacrifice, flesh, &c.

Verse 21. Every one taketh] Eateth and communicateth with those of his own sect and faction only, not staying for others. Such among the Philippians were those of the concision, Chap. 3. 2. that made divisions, and cut the Church into little pieces and sucking Congregations, making separation.

Verse 22. What? Have ye not houses] Here he abolisheth their love-feasts, for the disorder that fell out therein. The Greek Church nevertheless retained them: but the Roman Church laid them down, as Justin Martyr witnesseth.

Verse 23. For I have received] Rectum est regula sui & obliqui. The Apostle seems to

Digitized by Google

to rectifie them, by reducing them to the first institution: and by letting them know that he had his authority from heaven; he received what he delivered, and delivered what he received, keeping nothing back, Acts 20. 27.

The same night, &c.] It was his last bequeath to his Church, for a καθαρτήριον ἀλεξίκακον, as Ignatius hath it, a soveraign both purgative and preservative.

Beza in confess. 242. This is my body] En præclarum illam consecrationem, Behold that goodly consecration (saith Beza) for the which the Shavelings say, that they are more holy then the very Virgin Mary. For that Mary only conceived Christ, but they create him. Whereunto the Virgin might well reply, That she carefully nourished Christ, whom they cruelly devour. Dost thou believe (said the Doctor to the Martyr) that Christs body and blood is in the Eucharist really and substantially? I believe, saith he, that that is a real lie, and a substantial lie. When Cranmer was brought forth to dispute in Oxford, Dr. Weston Prolocutour thus began the disputation, Convenistis hodiè, fratres, profligaturi detestandum illam hæresin de veritate corporis Christi in Sacramento, &c. At which mistake, divers learned men burst out into a great laughter.

Act and Mon.

Act. and Mon. fol. 1300.

Verse 25. He took the cup] See the Note on Mat. 26. 27.

Verse 26. Ye do shew] We need no other crucifix to mind us of Christs passion. Hence this Sacrament was by some antients termed a sacrifice, viz. representative and commemorative, but not properly, as the Papists make it.

Till he come] There shall be a Church then, and the pure worship of God, till the worlds end, maugre the malice of tyrants and hereticks.

Verse 27. Shall be guilty] Because they profane the holy symbols and pledges of Christs blessed body and blood. These are in some sense, as guilty as those that spit upon Christs face, or that spilt his blood: As the Donatists that cast the holy elements to dogs; or as that wretched Booth a Batchelour of Arts in S. Johns Colledge in Cambridge, who being Popishly affected, at the time of the Communion took the consecrated bread, and forbearing to eat it, conveyed and kept it closely for a time, and afterwards threw it over the Colledge-wall. Not long after this, he threw himself headlong over the battlements of the Chappel, and so ended his life.

B. Morton Instit. of the Sac. l. 5. c. 3.

Verse 28. Let a man examine] A Metaphor from Metallaries or Lapidists, as they try their mettals or precious stones, and do it exactly, that they be not cozened; so here, men must make an exact scrutiny.

And so let him eat] After preparation, participation. The Heathens had their cœna pura, the night before their Sacrifices. The Russians receive children after seven years old to the Communion, saying, that at that age they begin to sin against God. But can they say, that at that age they can examine themselves, and receive preparedly? Chrysostom calleth the Lords Table, that dreadful table, and the Antients call the Sacraments dreadful mysteries.

Brerewood's Inquir. 135.

φοβερὸν τὰ φοβερὰ μυστήρια.

Verse 29. For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily] He saith not unworthy (for so we are all) but unworthily, that is, unpreparedly; for a good work may be spoyled in the doing, as many a good tale is mar'd in the telling, & many a good garment in the making.

Eateth and drinketh damnation] He that came in without a wedding garment on his back, went not away without fetters on his feet: He was taken from the table to the tormentors. Gods table becomes a snare to unworthy receivers; they eat their bane, they drink their poison. Henry the seventh Emperour of Germany, was poisoned in the Sacramental bread by a Monk. Pope Victor 2. by his sub-Deacon in the Chalice; and one of our Bishops of York by poison put into the wine at Sacrament. God will deal with ill communicants, as Iob 20. 23. They will speed no better then Amnon did at Absoloms feast: or then Haman did at Esthers. Sin brought to the Sacrament, picks out that time to petition against them, as Esther did against Haman at the banquet of wine. Esth. 7. 2. 6. So that they shall cry out as that Emperour aforementioned did, Calix vitæ calix mortis; The cup of life is to us a cup of poison.

Verse 30. Many are weak] The mortality at Corinth began at Gods house, and that for unworthy communicating. God will be sanctified of all that draw neer to him. He loves to be acquainted with men in the walks of their obedience, and yet he takes state upon him in his ordinances, and will be served like himself, or we shall hear from him. What manner of men therefore ought we to be that come so neer to God in this holy Ordinance? Nadab and Abihu can tell you that the flames of jealousie are hottest about the Altar. Uzza and the Bethshemites, though dead, do yet tell you, that justice as well as mercy is most active about the Ark. Judgement begins at Gods own house, 1 Pet. 4. 17. And the destroying Angel begins at the Sanctuary, Ezek. 9. 5.

Digitized by Google

Verse 31. We should not be judged] God should be prevented, and the devil put out of office, as having nothing to say against us, but what we have said before. Let us therefore up and be doing at this most needfull but much neglected work of self-judging, that God may acquit us. First search and try our ways, as examiners, Lam. 3. 40. Next, make a Bill of inditement, and confess against our selves, as Informers; aggravating all by the circumstances. Thirdly, step from the Bar to the Bench, and pass Sentence upon our selves, as so many Judges; when we are to come to the Lords Supper especially. Otherwise blinde Popery shall rise up in judgement against us and condemn us. We read of William de Raley, Bishop of Wincheſter, Anno dom. 1243. that being near death, he had the Sacrament brought unto him. And perceiving the Priest to enter his chamber with it, he cryed out, Stay good friend, let the Lord come no nearer to me: It is more fit that I be drawn to him like a Traytor, that in many things have been a Traytor unto him. His servants therefore, by his commandment, drew him out of his bed unto the place where the Priest was; and there with tears he received the Sacrament; and spending much time in prayer afterwards, he so ended his life. The like is reported of William Langeſpe, base son of King Henry the second, and Earl of Salisbury; that lying very sick, the Bishop brought the Sacrament; He understanding of the Bishops coming, met him at the door half naked, with an halter about his neck, threw himself down prostrate at his feet, and would not be taken up until, having made confession of his sins with tears and other signs of sincere repentance, he had received the Sacrament in most devout manner.

Godw. Catalog. 228.

Ibid. 247.

Verse 32. That we should not, &c.] Ferre minora volo, ne graviora feram.

Verse 33. Wherefore my brethren] He that reproveth and adviseth not, doth as it were snuff the lamp, and not pour in oyl.

Chap. XII.

Verse 1. I would not have you ignorant]

TO wit, of the only author, and true end of them, Left ye be vainly puffed up by your fleshly minde. Ignorance breeds pride, Rev. 3. 17.

Col. 2. 18.

Verse 2. Even as ye were led] It is the misery of a natural man that hath not his heart stablished with grace, to be carried away as he is led, to be wherried about with every winde of doctrine, to have no mould, but what the next seducer casteth him into: being blown like a glass into this or that shape, at the pleasure of his breath.

Verse 3. Calleth Jesus accurſed] As the wicked Jews do at this day in their daily prayers and abbreviatures: And as the Gentiles did of old, and these Corinthians among the rest. But now they would rather die then do so: as Pliny writes to Trajan the Emperor, that he could never force any that were Christians indeed, either to invocate the gods, or to do sacrifice before the Emperours image, or to curse Christ.

Quorum nihil cogi poſſe dicuntur qui ſunt revera Chriſtiani. Plin. epiſt.

And that no man can say, &c.] That is, No man can with the fiducial assent of his heart, acknowledge Christ to be the only Lord, whom he is to worship by the same impulsions, by which another curses and blasphemes him, but by such peculiar motives as are suggested and revealed unto him by the holy Ghost.

Verse 4. But the same ſpirit] As the divers smels of flowers come from the same influence, and the divers sounds in the organ from the same breath.

Verse 5. Differences of administrations] i.e. Ecclesiastical functions, all of them the dona honoraria of the Lord Christ, Eph. 4. 8 —— 11.

Verse 6. Diverſities of operations] The holy Ghost may use one of less grace, to do more good then one of more: though he delights to honor those of most sincerity with most success, as 1 Cor. 15. 10.

Verse 7. To profit withall] We are neither born nor born again for our selves. If we be not fit to serve the body, neither are we fit to be of the body: He is not a Saint that seeketh not communion of Saints. Pudeat illos, qui ita in ſtudiis ſe abdiderunt, ut ad vitam communem nullum fructum ferre poſſint, saith Cicero. They may well be ashamed that imploy not their talents for a publike good. The Greek word importeth such a kinde of profit, Paulum ſepultæ diſtat inertiæ celata virtus. Hor.

τὸ συμφέρον.

Digitized by Google

profit, as redounds to community. It seemeth to be a Metaphor from Bees, that bring all the honey they can get to the common hive.

Verse 8. The word of wisdom] The tongue of the learned, to time a word, Isa. 50.4. to set it upon it's circumferences, Prov. 25.11. to declare unto man his righteousness, when not one of a thousand can do it like him, Job 33.23.

The word of knowledge] This, say some, is the Doctors office, as the former word of wisdom is the Pastors. But the essential difference betwixt Pastors and Doctors in each Congregation is much denied by many learned and good Divines. Others by The word of wisdom will have understood knowledge infused by Divine Revelation; as by The word of knowledge, that knowledge that is acquired by study and industry.

Mr. Edwards his Antapolog. Barlow. Taylor. upon Titus.

Verse 9. To another faith] The faith of miracles, which a man may have, and yet miscarry, 1 Cor. 13.2. So doth not any one that hath the faith of Gods elect; that fails not, Luk. 22. Some say the Apostle here meaneth historical faith: And this seems the more probable, because he speaketh of the working of miracles, ver. 10.

Rolloc. de vocatione.

Ver. 10. Discerning of spirits] They discerned not mens hearts of themselves (for so God only) but by a special work of Gods Spirit discovering them to their eyes, as Peter discerned Ananias, and afterwards Simon Magus, whom Philip mistook and baptized.

Verse 11. One and the self same spirit] Who yet is called, the seven spirits of God, Rev. 1.4. for his manifold and sundry operations.

Dividing to every man severally, as he will] It is reported, that in Luthers house was found written, Res & verba Philippus. Res sine verbis Lutherus. Verba sine re Erasmus. Every one hath his own share; all are not alike-gifted; yet by One and the self same Spirit, that one and that self-same Spirit, as the Greek Text runs, repeating the Article, very elegantly and emphatically.

nec verba nec res Carolstadij.

τὸ ἓν καὶ τὸ αὐτὸ πνεῦμα.

Verse 12. So also is Christ] Mystical Christ, the Church. Christ the Saviour of his body (Ephes. 5.23.) accounts not himself compleat without his Church, Eph. 1 ult. So God is called Iacob, Psal. 24.6.

Verse 13. For by one spirit, &c.] By the testimony of the two Sacraments, whereof we all partake, the Apostle proveth that we are all but one body, and should therefore as Bees bring all our honey to the common Hive.

Are We all baptized] The Apostles received all into the Church that believed and were baptized, without particular probation for some days, weeks, moneths or years, and entring into a private solemn Covenant.

And have been all made to drink] Potionati sumus, saith Piscator, and so prove our selves to be of the corporation and company of Believers. But what was the meaning of that passage in the old Church-Catechism, There are but two Sacraments onely, as generally necessary, &c. Are there any more then two, though not absolutely and generally necessary to all men in all times, states and conditions whatsoever? The Papists themselves say, that five of their Sacraments at least, are not generally necessary.

Verse 14. Not one member, but many] As mans body curiously wrought, and as it were by the book, Psal. 139.16. Had God left out an eye or hand in his Common-place-book (saith one) thou hadst wanted it.

Verse 15. If the foot should say, &c.] Inferiors must not envy those above them, but be content, sith it is God that cutteth us out several conditions; and a Scavenger may honour God in his place, as well as a Minister in his.

Verse 16. If the ear] A man had better be blind, lame, dumb, then deaf; because by the ear life enters into the soul, Isa. 55.3.

Verse 17. If the whole body, &c.] It is proper to God to be παντοφθαλμὸς, all eye: Sic spectat universos quasi singulos, sic singulos quasi solos.

Verse 18. God hath set, &c.] And he, as onely wise, doth all in number, weight and measure. Shall we not rest in what he hath done as best? What can the man do that cometh after the King? Eccles. 2.12.

Arist. Ethic.

Verse 19. Where were the body?] So the body Politick consisteth not of a Physician and a Physician (saith Aristotle) but of a Physician and an Husbandman, &c.

Verse 20. But now are they many members, &c.] 1. Use. 2. Necessity. 3. Honor. 4. Comeliness. 5. Mutual consent commend these things. Let every man try his membership. (1. if sociable with Christ and his people. 2. if useful and serviceable to the body. 3. if sensible and compassionate, &c. being himself also in the body) as was before advised.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 21. The eye cannot ſay, &c.] Superiours may not ſlight their inferiours, ſith they cannot be without them; as one time or other they will be forced to acknowledge. It was a ſaying of General Vere to the King of Denmark, That Kings cared not for ſouldiers, until ſuch time as their Crowns hung on the one ſide of their heads.

Verſe 22. Which ſeem to be, &c.] As the Organs of nouriſhment, not ſo noble, but more neceſſary then thoſe of the ſenſes.

Verſe 23. And thoſe members] As the organs of excretion and generation, called leſs honourable, and uncomely, non per ſe, ſed comparate, comparatively in reſpect of thoſe parts that are ſingularly comely.

Our uncomely parts, &c.] It was at the abomination of Baal-peor, or Priapus, that his worſhippers ſaid, Nos, pudore pulſo, ſtamus ſub Jove, coleis apertis, &c. God taught our firſt parents to make coverings to hide their nakedneſs; and the contrary is oft threatned as a curſe. Iſa. 3. Δελεάζειν εἰς αγχίσρυ.

Verſe 24. For our comely parts] A fair face needs no dreſs, is its own teſtimonial, a bait without an hook, ſaid Socrates.

Verſe 25. Should have the ſame care] As if the heel do but ake, the whole condoleth and cureth, and careth: and yet without dividing care, that there might be no ſchiſm in the body.

Verſe 26. And whether one man ſuffer] This ſpiritual ſympathie, mirum eſt quam frigidè tractetur inter Chriſtianos hodiè, ſaith Aretius on this text. See the note on verſe 20. & 27. Luther in a certain epiſtle of his to Lampertus Thorn, a priſoner for Chriſt, thus writeth, Conſolabor me quod veſtra vincula mea ſunt, veſtri carceres & ignes mei ſunt: ſunt verò, dum ea confiteor & predico, vobiſq; ſimul compatitor, & congratulor, that, is I doubt (and it is a greif to me) that I ſhall never have the honour of Martyrdom as you have. But herein I can comfort my ſelf, that your bonds are my bonds, your impriſoment and burning at a ſtake mine: for ſo they are ſo long as I confeſs and extol them: ſo long as I both ſuffer with you, and rejoyce with you, &c. Tom. 2. Epiſt.

Verſe 27. Now ye are, &c.] S. Cyprians ſympathy is remarkable, Cum ſingulis pectus meum copulo, mœroris & funeris pondera luctuoſa participo: Cum plangentibus plango, cum deflentibus defleo. Hereby he ſhewed himſelf a living member.

Verſe 28. Diverſities of tongues] This comes in laſt; either to bid check to their pride, who gloried ſo much in their many languages: or becauſe he meant to ſay more to it in the words following.

Verſe 29. Are all teachers?] Yes, ſome would have it ſo; as in Alcibiades his army all were leaders, no learners.

Verſe 31. Covet earneſtly, &c.] This is the beſt ambition. Chriſtians ſhould ſtrive to excel, and be the beſt at what they undertake. Melanchon ſaith that Frederick the Elector of Saxony, had cropt off the tops of all vertues. Ζηλᾶτε. Ambite.

A more excellent way] What was that? Charity to God and men, Chap. 13. 1. Graces are better then gifts. A ſhop-full of barrels enrich not, unleſs full of commodities. Gifts as to heaven, are but the lumber of a Chriſtian: tis grace maketh him rich toward God: and is therefore chiefly to be covered. Care alſo is to be taken, that we get not the ſpiritual rickets: grow big in the head (in gifts) decay in the vitals, i. e. in grace, and the exerciſe of it.

CHAP. XIII.

Verſe 1. Though I ſpeak with the tongues]

THe Corinthians gloried much in this gift of tongues: But this a man may have, and yet periſh, as Mithridates, who is ſaid to have ſpoken two and twenty languages. And Cleopatra was a great Linguiſt, ſhe could give anſwers to Ethiopian, Hebrew, Arabick, Syrian, Median and Parthian Embaſſadors, ſaith Plutarch: yea ſhe could turn and tune her tongue as an inſtrument of many ſtrings to what dialect ſhe pleaſed. Γλῶτταν ἁπερ ὄργανον πολύχορδον εὐκόλως τρέπουσα, &c. Plut.

And of Angels] Not that Angels have tongues; as neither have they wings, though they are ſaid to flie, and even unto wearineſs of flight, Dan. 9. 21. A certain Frier undertook undertook to shew to the people a feather of the Angel Gabriels wing, and so verified the old proverb, A Frier, a lyar. But the Apostle here useth an high kinde of expression, such as is used Act. 6. 15. Psal. 78. 25. Unless perhaps, saith Chrysostom here, the angels have suo modo sua colloquia. The Schoolmen have great disputes about it, and tell us, that when an Angel hath a conceit in his minde of any thing, with a desire that another should understand it, it is enough, it is done immediately. But are not these they that intrude into those things that they have not seen? Colos. 2. 18. understanding neither what they say, nor whereof they affirm, 1 Tim. 1. 7. Like unto these are our new Millenaries, that upon a mistake of some high expressions in Scripture, which describe the judgements poured out upon Gods enemies in making a way to the Iews conversion by the pattern of the last judgement, think that Iesus Christ shall come from heaven again, and raign here upon earth a thousand years.

Digitized by Google

Carltons thank. Remem. p. 174.

See M. Cottons sixth vial. p. 20.

Or a tinkling cymbal] Sounding onely for pleasure, but signifying nothing. Tiberius the Emperour was wont to call Appion the Grammarian Cymbalum orbis, the Cymbal of the world, for his much prattle. And Hierom inveighs against some in his time, qui verbis tinnulis & emendicatis utebantur, that used only tinkling and tickling words, without weight or worth.

Sueton.

Verse 2. And have no charity] If I knew and did all for ostentation, not for edification: as Stephen Gardiner, who blew up his gifts to the view of others, as Butchers blow up their flesh. Chrysostom saith, that to shew mercy is a more glorious work, then to raise from the dead. Removing of mountains is instanced, because noted by our Saviour as a master-miracle, Mat. 17. 20. Luke 17. 6. A man may cast out devils, and yet be cast to the devil.

Act and Mon. fol. 1620.

And have not charity, it profiteth me nothing] The same is true of all other parts of obedience, whether active or passive. If we were as constant frequenters of the Church, as Anna the prophetess was of the Temple, Luke 2. si aures nostræ ad portam Ecclesiæ fixæ essent, saith One, if our ears were nailed to the Church-doors, if our knees were grown as hard as Camels knees with much kneeling before the Lord: if our faces were furrowed with continual weeping, as Peters is said to have been, yet if we wanted charity, all were nothing.

Carew. Hist. Christ.

Verse 3. Though I bestow all my goods] Unless I draw out my soul as well as my sheaf to the hungry, Isa. 58. 10. Many shrink up charity to an handbreth, to giving of alms.

And though I give my body, &c.] At Servetus the heretick did at Geneva anno 1555. So Manzius the Anabaptist gave his body to be drowned at Tigure, anno 1527. Fisher Bishop of Rochester to be beheaded for holding the Popes supremacy. Frier Forest, to be hanged for the same cause. And how many of our Popish Martyrs (malefactours or traitours, I should say) have worn the Tiburn-tippet, as Father Latimer phraseth it? And more of them must; for they be some of them knaves all, as the L. Audley Chancellour of England once said to the 13. Callice prisoners for religion, whom he discharged: and like bells they will never be well tuned, till well hanged. For why? they are flabella & flagella Reip. &c.

Calv. opusc.

Scultet. Annal.

Act. and Mon. fol. 1005.

Act. and Mon. fol. 1117.

χρηστεύεται.

Verse 4. And is kinde] Or, is easie to be made use of; ready to any good office. Charity is no churl.

In Epictet. l. 3.

Vaunteth not it self] With the scorn of others. Arrianus saith, that he is πικρὸς, that blameth others, and is restless in himself. Such an one was Timon of old, and Laurentius Valla a late.

Is not puffed up] Hence charity is pourtraied as a naked childe with a merry countenance, covered in a cloud, with a bloody heart in the right hand, giving honey to a Bee without wings.

ἀσχημονεῖ.

Verse 5. Behaves it self unseemly] Or, doth not disgrace any one.

πικραίνεται.

Is not easily provoked] Fals not into any sharp fits they did, (Act. 15. 39.) so as that her teeth are set on edge, or that she should shew her anger by the trembling of the body.

Thinketh no evil] Is not suspicious, or doth not meditate revenge.

P. Sclater.

Verse 6. Rejoyceth with the truth] Nulla est igitur inter malos charitas, sed conjuratio potius, saith a grave Expositor. It is not charity, but conspiracy that is found in wicked men.

στέγει tegit.

Verse 7. Beareth all things] Covereth faults with her large mantle, dissembleth injuries, swalloweth down whole many pils, that would prove very bitter in the chewing.

The

Digitized by Google

The Greek word is Metaphora à tigni, say some; and signifies, that charity beareth all things, as the cross main beam in an house supporteth the whole building. Pareus à Lapide.

Believeth all things] Is candid and ingenuous, yet not blind and blockish. No man may ravish me out of my wits saith one; to conclude as Walter Mapes did of his Church of Rome, after he had related the gross Simony of the Pope, Sit tamen Domina mater ecclesia nostra Roma baculus in aqua fractus, & absit credere quæ vidimus. If a Papist see one of their Priests kissing a woman, he is by their Canon-law bid to believe that the Priest is giving her counsel onely. Their rule to their novices is, Tu & . . . sinus unum estote.

Endureth all things] Love, as it is a passion, so it is tryed rather by passions then actions.

Verse 8. Prophecies, they shall fail] The Arch-prophet shall teach us immediately, as he had done Moses and Elias, who appearing to Christ in the transfiguration, knew, and could say far more to our Saviour for his comfort and confirmation against the bitterness of his death, then ever they could, while here living upon earth. Luke 9.31.

Whether there be knowledge] Got by study, and communicated to others. For Talmud Ielummed, say the Rabbins, we therefore learn that we may teach.

Verse 9. We prophecy in part] We therefore know but imperfectly, because we are taught but imperfectly. My greatest knowledge, said Chytræus, is to know that I know nothing. And not onely in most other things am I ignorant, said Austin, but even in the Scriptures (my chief study and trade of life) Multò plura nescio quam scio. The Rabbins in their Comments upon Scripture, when they meet with hard knots that they cannot explicate, they solve all with this, Elia cum venerit, solvet omnia. Elias when he comes, shall assoile all our doubts. Erastus at point of death said, That he therefore held it an happiness to dye, because now he should fully understand an answer to all those harder questions, wherein here he could have no satisfaction. Melch. Adam. Aug. Epist. 119. cap. 21. Melch. Adam. in vita Erasti.

Verse 10. Then that which is in part] As the old slough falls off, when the new skin comes on. As a man returns no more to the free-school, that hath proceeded in the University.

Verse 11. When I was a childe] Adrian the sixth, before he became Pope, taxed the Church of Rome for many errors: but afterwards, being desired to reform them, he wickedly abused these words for an answer, When I was a child, I spake as a childe, &c. but now being a man, &c.

Verse 12. In a glass, &c.] See Numb. 12.8.

But then face to face] i.e. Distinctly, clearly, immediately, beatifically. And surely if Lipsius thought when he did but read Seneca, that he was even upon Olympus top, above Mortality and Humane things; what a case shall we be in, when we shall behold Christ in his glory, and consider that every vein in that blessed body bled to bring us to bliss? If the Mathematicks alone are so delectable, that men think it sweet to live and dye in those studies: What shall we think of heavens happiness, which we shall one day clearly apprehend, but not fully comprehend? Leo Digs.

Now I know in part] The present Tense in Grammar is accompanied with the imperfect: the perfect with the Plus-quam perfectum. And such is the condition of our present and future happiness. D. Stought.

Even as I am known] We shall know the creatures by knowing God: as God now knows all his works, by knowing himself.

Verse 13. The greatest of these] Because longest lasting. Gifts that suppose imperfection in us, as faith and hope, or misery in others, as pity, &c. shall be put away. Secondly, because it is diffusive of it self to the use of others: whereas faith and hope are private goods; they are confined to the person of the believer. That was a memorable saying of Elizabeth Folks Martyr, at the stake, Farewel all the world, farewel faith, farewel hope; and so taking the stake in her hand, she said, Welcome love.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

Chap. XIV.

Verse 1. Follow after charity.]

Διώκετε. FOllow it hot-foot, as they say: pursue and practice it. It is more then to desire or to be zealous of a thing, as it follows in the next words, Be zealous of spiritual gifts.

Ζηλῶτε. Follow charity close, as the Hunter doth his prey, or as the persecutor doth the Martyr, that will hide or escape if he can. Charity may be fitly compared to the precious stone Pantarb, spoken of by Philostratus; a stone of great beauty and of strange property: so bright it is and radiant, that it gives light in the darkest midnight; And that light is of that admirable vertue, that it brings together the stones that it reacheth into heaps, as if they were so many hives of Bees: But nature, lest so precious a gift should be undervalued, hath not onely hid this stone in the secret bowels of the earth, but hath also put into it a property of slipping out of the hands of those that hold it, Nisi provida ratione teneatur, unless they hold it fast indeed.

Philostr. in vit. Apollonii, lib. 3. cap. 14.

Verse 2. In an unknown tongue] So they that preach in a kind of a Roman English, and not in a low language to the peoples capacity.

But unto God] Canit sibi & Musis, as the proverb is: And as good he may hold his tongue, for God needs him not.

Verse 3. To edification, to exhortation] These three ends every Preacher ought to propound to himself: 1. Edification in knowledge and holiness. 2. Exhortation, that is, Reprehension and Admonition. 3. Consolation, lest that which is lame be turned out of the way, Heb. 12. 13.

Verse 4. Edifieth the Church] Therefore prophecy is the more worthy, because profitable. Prodesse melius quam praesse.

Verse 5. I would that ye all spake with tongues] Gr. I will. He here prefers prophecying (which was most edifying) before speaking with tongues, which they most affected, because it served most ad pompam, for applause and admiration.

Verse 6. If I come unto you, &c.] This you would not like in me. And, is that Venus in Caio, that is Nævus in Titio? a blemish in one, that is a beauty in another?

By revelation, or by knowledge, or, &c.] Piscator reads it by revelation, or by knowledge; that is, either by prophecying or by doctrine. The Apostle expounding himself.

Blunts voyage, page 106. Verse 7. Except they give a distinction] Unisono nihil auribus molestius. Discords in musick make the best harmony. Thorow all Turky there runs one tune, nor can every man play that; yet scarce any but hath a fiddle with two strings.

Verse 8. For if the Trumpet] Similies are excellent for illustration, and must be fetcht from things familiar.

Verse 9. Ye shall speak into the ayr] You shall lose your labour, and may as well keep your breath to cool your broth.

Verse 10. So many kinds of voyces] Seventy two material languages, they say.

Verse 11. A Barbarian] So the Grecians called all Nations that spoke not their language. It is reported, that no where at this day is spoken more barbarous language then at Athens, once the Greece of Greece.

Neand. Chron.

Verse 12. To the edifying of the Church] Clouds when full, pour down, and the presses overflow, and the Aromatical trees sweat out their precious and soveraign oyls; and every learned Scribe must bring out his treasure for the Churches behoof and benefit.

Verse 13. Pray that he may interpret] Pope Innocent the third never prayed thus; for he said, that the Church decreed the service in an unknown tongue, Ne sacrosancta verba vilescerent, lest the holy words should be under-prized. But publique prayers in an unknown tongue, saith one, must be attributed to the change of time it self in Italy, France and Spain, for there a long time the Latine was understood of all. But when afterwards their speeches degenerated into those vulgar tongues now there used, then the language, not of the service, but of the people was altered.

Erasm.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verse 14. Is unfruitful] In regard of others edification. It were a great grace, said Lambert the Martyr, if we might have the Word of God diligently and often spoken and sung unto us in such wise, that the people might understand it: then should it come to pass that craftsmen should sing spiritual Psalms sitting at their work, and the husbandman at his plough, as wisheth St. Hierome. Pavier town-clark of London in Henry the eighths time, was a man that in no case could abide to hear that the Gospel should be in English; insomuch that he once sware a great oath, that if he thought that the Kings Highness would set forth the Scripture in English, and let it be read of the people by his authority, rather then he would so long live, he would cut his own throat. But he broke promise, for shortly after he hanged himself. Acts and Mon. fol. 1015. Ibid. 952.

Verse 15. I will pray with understanding] To an effectual prayer there must concur intentio & affectus, the intention of the mind, and the affection of the heart; else it is not praying, but parotting. I have read of a Parot in Rome, that could distinctly say over the whole Creed. Sphinx. Philos.

Verse 16. Say Amen] This the Apostle reckons for a great loss. The poor milled and muzzled Papists are enjoyned not to joyn so far with a Protestant in any holy action, as to say Amen. But in that there is no so great loss. Specul. Europ.

Verse 17. But the other is not edified] This we should all labour, viz. to edifie others. Synesius speaks of some, who having a treasure of tongues, and other abilities in them, would assoon part with their hearts as their meditations: the canker of whose great skill shall be a witness against them.

Verse 18. I thank my God, &c.] Skill in tongues is, as now, a great blessing. Indeed at first when men began πρωμαχειν to fight against God, they were compelled λοιμαχειν, to brabble in divers languages seventy two, as Epiphanius affirmeth. But God hath turned this curse into a blessing nto his people, Acts 2. and as in the first plantation of the Gospel, so in the late Reformation; God sent it before, as his munition to batter the forts of Antichrist, who had banished arts and languages, overspreading all with Barbarism and Atheism. Grat nosse suspectum erat. Hebraicè ferè hereticum.

Verse 19. In an unknown tongue] A Parisian Doctor tells us, that though the Apostle would have Gods service to be celebrated in a known tongue, yet the Church for divers weighty reasons hath otherwise ordered and appointed it. The Mahometans read their Alchoran (which they supposed were profaned, if it were translated into vulgar tongues) and perform their publique devotions in the Arabique tongue, which is their learned language. Benedict. Montan in 1 Cor 14.

Verse 20. Be not children] Mentibus scilicet, sed moribus, Mat. 18 3. See the Note there. Breerw. Enquir. 115.

In malice be ye children] In innocency and ignoscency.

In understanding be men] Is it not a shame to have no more understanding at eighty, then at eight years of age?

Verse 21. With men of other tongues] God threatned the Jews, that sith they would not hearken to their own Prophets, they should hear foraign enemies, Isa. 28. 11. Jer. 5. 15. So those that will not obey the sweet command of Christ, Come unto me, shall have one day no command to obey, but that dreadful discedite, Depart from me, &c.

Verse 22. But for them which believe] To confirm and comfort believers: This is the chief end of preaching. Let this comfort those that cannot say they have converted any by their Ministery.

Verse 23. Will they not say, ye are mad?] And may they not say as much if we jangle and dissent in opinion, one holding this, and another that. Ammianus Marcellinus taxed the ancient Bishops of his time for their hateful miscariages in this kind. Lib. 2. cap. 2.

Verse 24. He is convinced of all] God smiteth the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips doth he slay the wicked, Isa. 11. 4. By his Word he telleth a man (as he did the Samaritess, John 4.) all that ever he did.

Verse 25. The secrets of his heart] Gods Word is a curious Critick, Heb. 4. 12. a discerner of the thoughts, &c. It finds and ferrets out secret sins.

Verse 26. Let all things &c.] There is edifying even in appointing of fit Psalms.

Digitized by Google Verse

Verse 27. Or at the most by three] Lest the hearers be tired out. Our infirmity will not suffer any long intention, either of body or mind. Long services can hardly maintain their vigour, as in tall bodies the spirits are diffused. Erasmus hath observed that Origen never preached above an hour, oft but half an hour: Consultius judicabat crebrò docere, quam diu, saith he. He held it better to preach oft, then long.

Eras. præfat. ad Orig. opera.

Verse 28. Let him keep silence] Such as stuff their Sermons with Greek and Latine, are here silenced, further then they interpret the same. If thou canst help my hearers to Greek and Latine ears (saith a reverend Preacher) they shall have Greek and Latine enough.

Verse 29. Let the other judge] But is not this a disparagement to the Prophets? may some say: No, but an honour, 1 Thess. 5.20,21. After Despise not prophecying, he subjoyneth, Try all things.

Verse 30. That sitteth by] And is extraordinarily inspired and qualified: a little otherwise then our Enthusiasts, that brag of their lumen propheticum.

Verse 31. That all may learn] The most learned may learn something by the discourses of others less learned then themselves. Apollos a learned Teacher may yet be taught by a Tent-maker. The Jewish Rabbins acknowledge that they came to understand Isa. 14. 23. by hearing an Arabian woman mention a beef in her language to her maid.

תאנא

R. David in Radic.

Verse 32. Are subject to the Prophets] To be scanned and examined: which they should not be, unless they took their turns in course to prophesie. Eloquere, said one, ut quid sis videam. Speak that I may see what's in thee.

Vse 33. Not the author of confusion] Nec author, nec fautor. Unquiet spirits are of the Devil, who keeps ado, and fills the Church with confusion by his turbulent agents and emissaries, sowing sedition and spreading schisms.

Verse 34. Let your women, &c.] See the Note on Rom. 16.1.

Verse 35. Ask their husbands] Who therefore must dwell with them according to knowledge. 1 Pet. 3 7. and be many guides unto them in the way to heaven. The masters breast must be the household treasury.

For it is a shame for women, &c.] She was a singular example, that taught the Greek and Latine tongues at Heidelberg, anno 1554. her name was Olympia Fulvia Morata an Italian, of the City of Ferara. Ancient Histories indeed make mention of one Aretha, who read openly in the Schools at Athens 25 years, made fourty books, and an hundred Philosophers to her schollers. Leoptia likewise wrote against Theophrastus; Corinna oft contended with Pindarus in versifying.

Verse 36. What? came the word, &c.] As if he should say (and he saith it with some displeasure) Are ye the first, or the onely Christians? Are ye too good to be admonished? Take heed lest for your arrogancy and high-spiritedness lay you low enough, even in that slimy valley, Job 21. 31, 32.

Verse 37. The Commandments] And therefore to be obeyed by the best of you. Aut faciendum, aut patiendum: Aut pœnitendum, aut perendum. Either do it, or dye for it.

Verse 38. But if any man be ignorant, &c.] If stubbornly ignorant and uncounsellable, let him take his own course. I have cleared the truth in things now controverted, and the rest me. Who so blind as he that will not see? Such put not light under a bushe, but under a dunghil, and shall give an heavy account of it to God. When I hear men (saith one) under all the means that we enjoy, yet think that their ignorance shall excuse them, it makes me think of the answer of the Agent of Charles th fifth Emperor to the Ambassador of Siena. The Senois having rebelled against the Emperor, sent their Ambassador to excuse it; who when he could find no other excuse thought in a jest to put it off thus: What, saith he, shall not we of Siena be excused, seeing we are known to be all fools? The Agent replyed, even that shall excuse you but upon the condition which is fit for fools, which is, to be kept bound and chained.

Lord Kemp his civil. consider. Chap. 79. page 200.

Verse 39 Wherefore, brethren] This he addes as a Corollary, to prevent mistakes, as if that he were an enemy either to prophecy, or tongues, so soberly and orderly used. Arbitror nonnullos in quibusdam locis librorum meorum, opinaturos me sensisse quod non sensi,

Aug. lib. 3. de Trin. c 3.

Digitized by Google

ant

aut non sensisse quod sensi, saith Augustine. I foresee that some will construe many passages of my writings far otherwise then I intend them: and it fell out accordingly, as Baronius testifieth. Annal. tom. 6. ad annum 450. n. 17.

Verse 40. Let all things, &c.] A general rule of great moment. In things both real and ritual, decency and order must be observed in Church-meetings. For this the Corinthians are much commended, Chap. 2. 5. Our Saviour caused the people whom he fed to keep order, in their sitting on the grass; they sat down rank by rank, as rows or borders of beds in a garden; so the Greek imports. Whereupon an Expositour noteth, Ordinatim res in Ecclesia faciendæ, Order must be observed in the Church. κατὰ στάσεις κατὰ στάσεις. Hebraïs. ut Exod. 8. 14. Cartwright

CHAP. XV.

Verse 1. And wherein ye stand]

A Military term, as Martyr noteth. Satan overthroweth the faith of some 2 Tim. 2. 18. and by this very engine wherewith he assaulted these Corinthians, ib. So that the Apostle was fain to make Apologie verse 19. to make a barricado. στήκετε.

Verse 2. By which also ye are saved] Eternal life is potentially in the word, as the harvest is potentially in the seed, or as the tree is in the kernel or science, Jam. 1. 21.

If ye keep in memory] He limiteth the promise of salvation to the condition of keeping in memory what they had heard. Tantum didicimus, quantum memineramus, said Socrates; many have memories like nets that let go the fair water, retain the filth only: or like sives that keep the chaff, let go the corn. If God come to search them with a candle, what shall he find but old songs, old wrongs? Ore, not a promise or any word of God hid there: for things of that nature they are like Sabinus in Seneca, that never in all his life could remember those three names, of Homer, Ulysses and Achilles. But the soul should be as an holy Ark, the memory like the pot of Manna, preserving holy truths.

Verse 3. First of all] Christ is to be preached with the first, as being the prora & puppis of mans happiness, Joh. 16. 14. it is the office of the holy Ghost to take of Christs excellencies, and hold them out to the world. What then should Ministers, the mouth of the holy Ghost do rather?

Verse 4. According to the Scriptures] Which both fore-shewed and fore-shadowed it in Adams waking, Isaac's reviving, as it were from the dead, Joseph's abasement and advancement, Samsons breaking the bars, and bearing away the gates of Gaza, Davids being drawn out of the deep, Daniels out of the den, Jeremies out of the dungeon Jonas out of the belly of hell, Mat. 12. 39. &c.

Verse 5. Seen of Cephas] Adam died, and we hear no more of him. But Christ shew'd himself after death in six several apparitions for our confirmation.

Then of the twelve] So they are called for the rotundity of the number, utcunque unus vel alter vel decem vel abesset. Judas had made one long lecture of himself. Longam lectionem fecit.

Verse 6. Above five hundred] The number of believers were then greater then some would gather out of Act. 1. 15. Those 120 may seem to have been Chieftains, such as that any one of them might have been thought meet to succeed Judas in his Apostleship.

Verse 7. Seen of James] This is not mentioned in the Gospel, as neither that of Peter, v. 5.

Verse 8. One born out of due time] Quasi mala abortus, & adversante natura editus: one that deserved to be rejected, as that forlorn Infant, Ezek. 16. 4, 5.

Verse 9. I am the least of the Apostles] Not come to my just bigness, as one born out of due time, and not without violence. Paulus quasi Paululus, saith One, because he was least in his own eyes, less then the least of all Saints, Eph. 3. 8. Melanchthon was of a like self-denying spirit, insomuch as Luther thought he went too far this way. Certe nimis nullus in hoc est Philippus, Philip is too low-conceited.

Digitized by Google

Not meet to be called] True humility, as true balm, ever sinks to the bottom of the water, when pride, like oyl, ever swims on the top.

Verse 10. I laboured more abundantly] See 2 Cor. 12. 23. Rom. 15. 19. George Eagles, Martyr in Q. Maries days, for his great pains in travelling from place to place, to confirm the brethren, was surnamed, Trudge over the world. Might not S. Paul have been fitly so surnamed? Act. and Mon. fol. 823.

Not I, but the grace of God] So those good servants. Luke 19. 16. Not we, but thy talents have gained other five, and other two, &c. Let God have the entire praise of all our good. We should boast and glory of nothing, because nothing is ours, saith holy Austin, who (being wholly of Saint Pauls spirit) was a great advancer of the grace of God, and abaser of man, against all those Patrons of nature with their vitreum acumen, bright but brittle sharpness of wit, as he stileth it.

Which was with me] Present with me, not which did work with me, as the Synergists would have it.

Verse 11. So we preach, and so ye believed] A happy compliance, when the hearers affections and endeavours do answer the affections and endeavours of the preacher, as here, and at Ephesus, Act. 20. 31.——37. When people deliver themselves up to the form of doctrine, and are cast into the mould of the Word. Rom. 6. 17.

Verse 12. No resurrection] More then that of regeneration, Mat. 19. 28. that estate of the Gospel called a new heaven, and a new earth, 2 Pet. 3. 13. the world to come, Heb. 2. 5. that resurrection already past, 2 Tim. 2. 18. that first resurrection, Revel. 20. 5.

Verse 13. Then is not Christ risen] But of Christs resurrection there were many both living and dead Witnesses, as the earth-quake, empty grave, stone rolled away, clothes wrapt up, &c.

Verse 14. Then is our preaching vain] Never was there any imposture put upon the world, as Christianity, if Christ be yet in the grave.

Verse 15. False witnesses of God] For they might safely say with Jeremy, Lord, if we be deceived, thou hast deceived us.

Verse 16. Then is not Christ raised] And so Gods decree it cassated, Act. 13. 33. with Psal. 1. 7.

Verse 17. Ye are yet in your sins] Rom. 4. 25. If he had not been let out of prison, our debt had remained upon us. But God sent his Angel to roul away the stone, as the Judge sends an officer, to fetch one out of prison, and to release him. And this is the strength of our Saviours reason, Joh. 16. 10. The Spirit shall convince the world of righteousness (that I am Jehovah their righteousness,) because I go to the Father, which I could not have done, unless you were acquitted of all your sins.

Verse 18. Asleep in Christ] The Germans call the Church-yard Godsaker, because the bodies are sowed therein, to be raised again. The Greeks call them κοιμητηρια, sleeping houses. The Hebrews call the grave Bechaim, the house of the living. Job cals it the Congregation-house of all living, Iob. 30. 23. As the Apostle calls heaven the Congregation house of the first-born, Heb. 12. 23.

Verse 19. Most miserable] Because none out of hell ever suffered more then the Saints have done.

Verse 20. The first fruits, &c.] As in the first-fruits offered to God, the Iews were assured of Gods blessing on the whole harvest: so by the resurrection of Christ, our re-resurrection is ensured.

Christ is risen] This was wont to be the form of salutation among Christians of old, Christus resurrexit, Christ is risen from the dead.

Verse 21. By man came also, &c.] Gods justice would be satisfied in the same nature that had sinned.

Verse 22. Shall all be made alive] The Saints shall be raised by vertue of the union with Christ to glory; the wicked shall be dragged to his tribunal, by his Almighty power, as a Judge, to be tumbled thence into hell-torment.

Verse 23. At his coming] As in the mean time, their very dust is precious: the the dead bodies consumed are not so destroyed, but that there is a substance preserved by a secret influence proceeding from Christ as a head. Hence they are said to be dead in Christ, who by rotting refresh them.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verse 24. Delivered up the Kingdom] Not his essential kingdom, as God, but his oeconomical, as Mediatour.

Verse 25. Till he hath put] And after too, but 1. Without adversaries; 2. Without any outward means and ordinances.

Verse 26. That shall be destroyed] It is already to the Saints swallowed up in victory, so that they may say to it, as Jacob did to Esau, Surely I have seen thy face as the face of God. This Esau, death, meets a member of Christ with kisses instead of frowns, and guards him home, as he did Jacob to his fathers house.

Verse 27. All things under his feet] This Psal. 8.7,8. spoken of man in general, is properly applied to the man Christ Jesus: in whom also it extendeth to the Saints, who are therefore more glorious then heaven, earth, or any creature, and shall have power over all, Rev. 2.26.

Verse 28. That God may be all in all] Till sin and death be abolished, we have no access to God, but by Christ. But after that all enemies be trod under foot, then shall we have an immediate union with God: yet so, as that this shall be the proper and everlasting praise of Christ, that he is the procurer of that union. Cameron. de Eccles.

Verse 29. Which are Baptized] The several senses that are set upon this Text, See in Beza, Piscator, but especially our new Annotations upon the Bible.

Verse 30. In jeopardy every hour] Carrying our lives in our hands, as both the Hebrews and Greeks phrase it. ἐν τῇ χειρὶ τὴν ψυχὴν ἔχειν. Athenæ.

Verse 31. By our rejoycing] i. e. By our infirmities, afflictions, wherein he so much glorieth, 2 Cor. 11. and 12. as an old soldier doth of his scars. As if the Apostle should say, I appeal to all those miseries that I have suffered amongst you for a testimony.

Verse 32. If after the manner, &c.] Paul fought with beasts at Ephesus after the manner of men, that is, say some, the men of Ephesus fought with him after the manner of beasts. Others more probably understand it literally; If after the manner of men, that is, as men use to do, to shew their valour (he meaneth those Bestiarii among the Romans) I have been cast to the beasts, and have either overcome them, as Lysimachus did the Lion, or have been spared by them, as corpora sanctorum Martyrum tangere multoties refugiebant bestiæ, saith the Historian, what advantageth it me, &c, And this latter sense is a stronger argument of the resurrection. Beza. Selater. Chrysostom. Ambros.

Let us eat and drink] An ill inference of men of corrupt mindes, and destitute of the truth. Chrysostome saith, There were a sort of such in his time, as said Δὸς μοι τὴν σήμερον καὶ λαβὲ τὴν αὔριον. Give me to day, and take thou to morrow. And have not we those that say, Let us be merry while we may: we shall never be younger, Ede, bibe, lude, post mortem nulla voluptas. It was wisely done of the Romans, to banish Alcæus and Philiscus a couple of swinish Epicures, lest they should by their evil communication and conversation corrupt others. S. Paul, though he alledgeth this saying out of Esay 22. 13 yet he alludeth (likely) to Sardanapalus his Epitaph at Tarsus, a city built by this Sardanapalus, Ede, bibe, lude: nam cætera omnia nec hujus sunt; Eat, drink, sport; for all other things are not worth a fillip; for so his statue was carved as if his hands had given a fillip, and his mouth had spoken these words. Ἔσθε, πίνε, παίζε, ὡς τἄλλα τὰ τούτου οὐκ ἄξια. Greg. Pasthum. pag. 202.

Verse 33. Evil communication] Evil words are not wind, as most imagine, but the devils drivel, that leaves a foul stain upon the speaker, and oft sets the like upon the hearer. Shun obscene borborologie (saith one) and unsavoury speeches; thou losest so much of thine honesty and piety, as thou admittest evil into thy tongue.

Verse 34. Awake to righteousness] Go forth and shake your selves (as Sampson did) out of that dead lethargie whereinto sin hath cast you; your enemies are upon you, and you fast asleep the while.

I speak this to your shame] Ignorance is a blushful sin. Are ye also ignorant? said Christ to his Apostles; q. d. that's an arrant shame indeed. The scripture sets such below the Ox and the Ass.

Verse 35. But some man will say] Some Epicure will object, and say, How can these things be? A privatione ad habitum non datur regressus. See the note on Acts 17, 18.

Verse 36. Thou fool] A hard knot must have a hard wedge, a dead heart a rousing reproof. He confutes Atheists from the course of nature, which they ascribe so much unto.

Digitized by Google

Verse 37. And that which thou sowest] This is an answer to the Epicures second demand vers. 35. with what body do they come? with a dead, diseased rotten body, &c? No, no, saith the Apostle. Sin only is rotted with it's concomitancies, infirmites: but the rotting of the body is but as the rotting of corn under the clod, that it may arise incorruptible. Or as the melting of an old piece of plate in the fire, to bring it out, of a better fashion. Christ was buried in a garden; to note, that death doth not destroy our bodies, but only sow them: the dew of herbs will revive them again. See the note on verse 18.

Verse 38. But God giveth it a body] Deus naturæ vires & vices ita moderatur, &c. saith one. God so orders all, that nothing is done without him. The same Hebrew word that מלוד signifieth an ear of corn, doth also signifie a word; because every field of corn is a book of Gods praise, every land a sheaf, every sheaf a verse every ear a word, every corn of wheat a letter to express the power and goodness of God.

Verse 39. All flesh is not the same] This is another answer to the Epicure, who might haply reply, and say, If mans flesh when rotted, shall revive, why not likewise the flesh of other creatures? The Apostle answereth, All flesh is not the same, &c. Mans flesh only is informed by a reasonable and immortal soul, not so the flesh of other creatures: and hence the difference.

Verse 40. There are also celestial] Stars and spirits (the inhabitants of that other heaven) I find (saith a divine) like one another. Meteors and fowls in as many varieties as there are several creatures. Why? Is it because man, for whose sake they were made, delights in variety, God in constancy? Or is it because that in these God may shew his own skill, and their imperfection?

The glory of the terrestrial] The glory of our terrestriall bodies, shall at the resurrection be celestial; they shall be more like spirits then bodies: so clear and transparent, saith Aquinas, that all the veins, humours, nerves, and bowels shall be seen, as in a glass: they shall be conformed to the glorified body of Christ, as to the standard.

Verse 41. One star differeth, &c.] The morning-star is said to cast a shadow with it's shine. Canst thou bind the sweet influences of the seven stars? whose work is to bring the spring, and which like seven suters or lovers (as the word signifies) are joyned together in one fair constellation. Or loose the bands of Orion? The star that brings winter, and binds the earth with frost and cold. Canst thou bring forth Mazzaroth, the Southern constellations? Or canst thou guide Arcturus with his sons, that is, the Northern stars, those store-houses of Gods good treasure, which he openeth to our profit? Deut. 28. 12. Iob 38. 31.

Verse 42. So also is the resurrection] Whether there are degrees of glory, as it seems probable, so we shall certainly know, when we come to heaven. Three glimpses of the bodies glory were seen, in Moses his face, in Christs transfiguration, and in Stephens countenance.

Ver. 43. It is raised in power] The resurrection will cure all infirmities. At Stratford-bow were burned in Queen Maries daies, at one stake, a lame man and a blind man. The lame man after he was chained, casting away his crutch, bade the blind man be of good comfort, for death would heal them both; and so they patiently suffered. Act. and Mon. fol. 1733.

Verse 44. A spiritual body] Luther saith the body shall move up and down like a thought. Augustin saith, they shall move to any place they will, as soon as they will. As birds (saith Zanchius) being hatched, do flie lightly up into the skies, which being eggs, were a heavy and slimy matter; So man being hatched by the resurrection, is made pure and nimble, and able to mount up into the heavens. De operib. Dei.

Verse 45. A quickning spirit] Christ is called a spirit from his Deity, as Heb. 9. 14. and a quickning spirit, because he is the principle of life to all believers.

Verse 46. And afterward, that is spiritual] Nature, Art, Grace, proceed from less perfect to more perfect. Let us advance forward, and ripen space, that we may be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead. Luk. 20. 35.

Verse 47. Of the earth, earthy] Gr. Dusty, slimy, ex terra friabili. Let this pull down proud flesh. Let us throw this proud Jesabel out of the windows of our hearts, and lay her honour in the dust, by remembring that we are but earth and dust. Adam of Adamah red earth; homo ab humo. Humility comes from the same root, because it lays a man flat on the ground; and because, like the earth, it is the most weighty of all virtues.

Digitized by Google

The

The Lord from heaven] Not for the matter of his body; for he was made of a woman; but for the original and dignity of his person; whereof see a lively and lofty description, Heb 1.2,3, Verse 48. They that are earthy] χόϊκος ἐκ γῆς, Vulgus fictilis. Man is but an earthen pot, Isa. 64.8.

Verse 49. The image of the heavenly] See Phil. 3.21. Our bodies shall be fashioned like to Christs glorious body in beauty, brightness, incorruption, immortality, grace, favour, agility, strength, and other unspeakable qualities and excellencies. Whether they shall have that power as to toss the greatest mountaines like a ball, yea to shake the whole earth at their pleasure, as Anselme and Luther think, I have not to say.

Verse 50. flesh and blood] the body as it is corruptible, cannot enter heaven, but must be changed: we shall appear with him in glory. The vile body of Moses, that was hid in the valley of Moab, was brought forth glorious in the hill of Tabor, Math 17.

Verse 51. I shew you a mysterie] Nor known till now to any man living. This, likely was one of those wordless words that Paul heard in his rapture, 2 Cor. 12.4. ῥήματα ἄρρητα Verse 52. The trumpet shall sound] As at the giving of the law it did, Exod. 19. 16. If the law were thus given (saith a divine) how shall it be required? If such were the proclamation of Gods statutes, what shall the sessions be? I see and tremble at the resemblance: The trumpet of the Angel called to the one; the trumpet of the Arch-angel shall summon us to the other. In the one, the mount only was on a flame, all the world shall be so in the other. To the one Moses saies, God came with ten thousands of his Saints: In the other thousand thousands shall minister to him, and ten thousand thousands shall stand before him.

Verse 53. For this corruptible] Pointing to his body, he speaketh as Psal. 34.6. This poor man cried, the Lord heard him. So the old believers, when they rehearsed the Creed, and came to that Article, I believe the resurrection of the flesh, they were wont to add, Etiam hujus carnis, even of this self-same flesh. So Job. 19.27.

Verse 55. Death is swallowed up] As the fuel is swallowed up by the fire: as the Sorcerers serpents were swallowed up by Moses his serpent.

Verse 56. Death, Where's thy sting?] This is the sharpest and the shrillest note, the boldest and the bravest challenge that ever man rang in the ears of death. Sarcasmo constat & hostili derisione, quâ mors ridenda propinatur, saith one. Death is here out-braved, called craven to his face, and bidden, Do his worst. So Simeon sings out his soul, Hilarion chides it out. Ambrose is bold to say, I am neither shamed to live, nor afraid to die. Anne Askew the Martyr, thus subscribeth her own confession: Written by me Anne Askew that neither wisheth for death, nor feareth his might: and as merry as one that is bound towards heaven. Mr. Bradford being told he should be burned the next day, put off his cap, and lifting up his eyes, prayed God for it. Tollitur mors, non ne fiat, sed ne obsit. Aug. Act. and Mon. fol. 1131. Ibid.

Verse 56. The sting of death is sin] Christ having unstinged death, and as it were disarmed it, we may safely now put it into our bosoms, as we may a snake whose sting is pull'd out. If it shoot forth now a sting at us, it is but an enchanted sting, as was that of the Sorcerers serpents. Buzz it may about our ears, as a drone Bee: but sting us it cannot: Christ as he hath taken away not sin itself, but the guilt of sin; so not death it self, but the sting of death.

Verse 57. But thanks be to God, &c.] Here S. Paul, Christs chief Herauld, proclaims his victory with a world of solemnity and triumph.

Verse 58. Alwaies abounding &c.] This will strengthen faith, as the oft knocking upon a stake fastens it. When faith bears fruit upward, it will take root downward.

Forasmuch as ye know] Bestir you therefore. It troubled a Martyr at the stake, that he should then go to a place where he should ever be receiving wages, and do no more work. It will repent us (if it were possible to repent in heaven) that we began no sooner, wrought no harder.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

Chap. XVI.

Verse 1. Collection for the Saints]

THe poor believers at Jerusalem, Rom. 15. 26. who had suffered hard things of their own Countrey men, 1 Thes. 2. 14. and taken joyfully the spoiling of their goods, Heb. 10. 34. and were therefore relieved by the Churches of the Gentiles at Pauls motion. The word here used for Saints, signifieth such as are taken off from the earth. The Saints, though their commoration be upon earth, their conversation is in heaven.

Gal. 2. 10. Non ὅσιοι, sed ἅγιοι, ab ἁ & γῆ.

Verse 2. Upon the first day] The Christian Sabbath, the Lords day, as the Greek Scholiast well renders it: which to sanctifie was in the Primitive times a badge of Christianity. When the question was propounded, Servasti Dominicum? Hast thou kept the Lord-day? The answer was returned, Christianus sum; intermittere non possum, I am a Christian, I can do no less then keep the Lords day. But the world is now grown perfectly profane (saith one) and can play on the Lords day without book; The Sabbath of the Lord, the sanctified day of his rest is shamelesly troubled and disquieted.

D. King on Jonas, Lect. 7.

Lay by him in store] Gr. As a treasure, 1 Tim. 6. 18. Manus pauperum gazophylacium Christi. The poor mans box is Christs treasury.

εὐοδῶται. As God hath prospered him] Gr. Given him a good arrival at the end of his voyage, and enabled him: for we may not stretch beyond the staple, and so spoil all.

Verse 3. Your liberality] Gr. Your grace: That which having received of Gods free grace, you do as freely part with to his poor people.

Verse 4. That I go also] And go he did, Rom. 15. 25. Act. 24. 17. The very Angels hold not themselves too good to serve the Saints.

Verse 5. When I shall come, &c.] He was not then yet come into Macedonia, neither was this Epistle written at Philippi (as the subscription saith) a chief City of Macedonia.

Verse 6. Yea and winter with you] They had ill deserved such a favour of him: for the more he loved them, the less he was beloved of them: But sought he not theirs, but them. Discourtesies must not discourage us from Gods work. Calvin, though but courtly used at his first coming to Geneva, brake thorow all.

2 Cor. 12. 15.

Verse 7. If the Lord permit.] The Lord ordereth a good mans goings, Psal. 37. See Acts 16. with James 4. 13. It was rather rashness then valour in our Richard 1. who being told (as he sat at Supper) that the French King had besieged his town of Vernoil in Normandy, protested that he would not turn his back, until he had confronted the French. And thereupon he caused the wall of his palace that was before him to be broken down toward the South, and posted to the Sea-coast immediatly into Normandy.

Verse 8. But I will tarry at Ephesus] From thence then he wrote this Epistle, and not at Philippi, as the subscription hath it. See vers. 5.

ἐνεργής. Verse 9. And effectual] Or, Busie, that requires great pains taking. The Ministery is not an idle mans occupation, as some fools think it.

And many adversaries] Truth never wants an opposite. In the beginning of the late Reformation, Eckius, Roffensis, Cajetan, More, Faber, Cochleus, Catharinus, Pighius, all these wrote against Luther, Summo conatu, acerrimo desiderio, non vulgari doctrina, as one saith, with utmost desire and endeavour.

Verse 10. For he worketh, &c.] So doth every faithful Minnister, though of meaner parts: The vine is the weakest of trees, but full of fruit. A little hand may thred a needle. A little boat may do best in a low river. Philadelphia had but a little strength, Rev. 3. 8. and yet it served turn, and did the deed.

μειρακιώδων. Niceph. Verse 11. Let no man despise him] For his youth: for he hath lived much in a little time (as it is said of our Edw. 6.) and is an old young man, as was Macarius the Egyptian.

Verse 12. I greatly desired him] Paul did not compel or command him, as the Pope takes upon him to do, even to Princes and Potentates. Oh that all Kings would answer him in this case, as Philip the Fair of France did Pope Boniface, claiming a power there to bestow Prebends, and Benefices. Sciat tua maxima fatuitas, &c.

Alfred. Chron.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 13. Watch ye, &c.] Solomons wiſdom, Lots integrity, and Noahs ſobriety felt the ſmart of the Serpents ſting. The firſt was ſeduced, the ſecond ſtumbled, the third fell, whiles the eye of watchfulneſs was fallen aſleep.

Verſe 14. Let all your things, &c.] Love is the Saints livery, Joh. 13. 35. Heathens acknowledged that no people in the world did love one another, ſo as Chriſtians did. In the Primitive times, Animo animaque inter ſe miſcebantur, as Tertullian ſpeaketh. But now alas, it is far otherwiſe; Love began to grow cold among theſe Corinthians. Hence this ſweet and ſavoury counſel. Charity in Chriſts days was much decayed; in Baſils time, dried up. Latimer ſaw ſuch a lack of it, that he thought the laſt day would have been juſt then. It were to be wiſhed that this Apoſtolical precept were well practiſed: and that we were all (in a ſober ſenſe) of the Family of Love.

Verſe 15. To the miniſtery of Saints] To ſerve them in collecting and diſtributing alms to the neceſſitous.

Verſe 16. That ye ſubmit] Giving them due honour, doing them all good offices.

Verſe 17. They have ſupplied] viz. Your abſence: for in them I take a ſhort view of you all.

Verſe 18. They have refreſhed] Ipſe aſpectus viri boni delectat. Its ſome comfort to ſee a good mans face.

Verſe 19. Aquila and Priſcilla] Pauls faſt friends and conſtant companions, worth their weight in gold.

Verſe 20. With an holy kiſs] Not hollow, as Joab and Judas; not carnal as that harlot, Prov. 7. 13. See Rom. 16. 16.

Verſe 21. With mine own hand] Well known to the Corinthians, to prevent impoſture.

Verſe 22. If any man love not] That is, deſperately hate. A ſin ſo execrable, that the Apoſtle would not once name it. So the Iews would not name leven at the Paſſeover, nor a ſow at any time, but called it dabar acher another thing.

Anathema, Maranatha] Accurſt upon accurſt, put over to God to puniſh. This is a dreadful curſe. See a gracious promiſe, Eph. 6. 24. God may ſuffer ſuch as love the Lord Jeſus Chriſt in ſincerity, to be Anathema ſecundum dici (as Bucholcer ſaid) but not ſecundum eſſe. See an inſtance, Iſa. 66. 5. and ſay with David, Let them curſe, but do thou bleſs, Lord. Elias Thisbit.

Verſe 23. My love, &c.] Though I have ſharply rebuked you, &c. Tit. 1. 13.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

A COMMENTARY OR EXPOSITION Upon the second Epistle of S. Paul to the Corinthians.

Chap. I.

Verse 1. Our brother]

IN the faith, not in the flesh. Sanctior est copula cordis quàm corporis, Prov. 18. 24.

Verse 2. From God the Father] The Father is the Fountain, the Son the conduit, whereby all good things are derived to us.

Verse 3. The Father of mercies] Only it must be remembred, that as he is Pater miserationum, so he is Deus ultionum, Psal. 94. 1. As he hath ubera, so he hath verbera. Christ is girt about the paps with a golden girdle, to shew his love; but yet he hath eyes like flaming fire, and feet like burning brass, Rev. 1. to look thorow and keep under his enemies.

The God of all comfort] It is he that shines thorow the creature, which else is but as the ayr without light. It is he that comforteth by the means. It is not the Word alone; for that is but as the veins and arteries that convey the blood and spirits: So the Spirit being convey'd by the promises, helpeth the soul to lay it self upon Christ by faith, and so it is comforted. Sometimes comfort comes not by the use of the means till afterwards, that he may have the whole glory. Cant. 3. The Church found not him whom her soul loved, till she was a little past the Watchmen. The soul is apt to hang her comforts on every hedge, to shift and shark in every by-corner for comfort. But as ayr sights not without the Sun, and as fuel heats not without fire: so neither can any thing soundly comfort us without God.

Digitized by Google

Nath. Chytræus. Una est in trepida mihi re medicina; Jehovæ
Cor patrium, os verax, omnipotensq; manus.

Verse 4. By the comfort wherewith] How fortible are right words? especially when uttered more from the bowels then the brain, and from our own experience: which made even Christ himself a more compassionate High-priest, and Luther such an heart-affecting Preacher, because from his tender years he was much beaten and exercised with spiritual conflicts, as Melanchon testifieth. He was also wont to say, that three things make a Preacher, Reading, Prayer and Temptation. Reading maketh a full man, Prayer an holy man, Temptation an experienced man.

Wherewith we our selves are comforted] Goodness is communicative. Mr. Knox, a little before his death, rose out of his bed: and being asked wherefore, being so sick, he would offer to rise? He answered, That he had had sweet meditations of the resurrection of Jesus Christ that night, and now he would go into the pulpit, and impart to others the comforts that he felt in his soul. Melch. Adam.

Verse 5. As the sufferings of Christ] So called, either because the Saints suffer for Christ, or because they have him suffering with them, Acts 9 4. God is more provoked then Nehemiah, Nehem. 4.3 5.

So our consolation] As the lower the ebb, the higher the tide. Ὅπου πλείων κόπος, πολὺ κέρδος, saith Ignatius. The more pain, the more gain. It is to my loss if you bate me any thing in my sufferings. As the hotter the day, the greater the dew at night; so the hotter the time of trouble, the greater the dews of refreshing from God.

Verse 6. And whether we be afflicted] Let the wind sit in what corner soever it will, it blows good to the Saints, Cant. 3.16. Though north and south be of contrary qualities, yet they make the Churches spices to flow and give forth their sent.

Verse 7. So shall ye be also, &c.] Our troubles therefore are compared to the throws of a travelling woman that tend to a birth, and end in comfort, John 16,21.

Verse 8. For we would not, &c.] It is of great use to know the sufferings that others have sustained before us. The primitive Christians kept catalogues of their Martyrs. D. Taylor the Martyr at his death gave his son Thomas a Latine book, containing the sayings and sufferings of the old Martyrs, collected by himself. In the English Seminaries beyond seas, they have at dinner time their Martyrology read, that is, the legend of our English Traytors.

We despaired even of life] God is oft better to us then our hopes: he reserves usually his holy hand for a dead lift; he comes in the nick of time, and our extremity is his opportunity. See the Note on Luke 18 8.

Verse 9. But we had the sentence] Gr. The answer or denunciation of death. Here we must distinguish between answers of tryal, and direct answers. This was of the former sort, for Paul dyed not at that time. When Leyden was so long, and so strictly besieged by the Duke of Alva, that they were forced for their sustenance to search and scrape dung-hils, &c. and the Duke, in the language of blasphemy, threatned the defendants with cruel death, that very night the winds turned, the tide swelled, and the waters came in, and forced him to raise the siege. Ἀπόκριμα.

That we should not trust] Hope is never higher elevated then when our state in all mens eyes is at lowest.

Verse 10. In whom we trust] Experience breeds confidence. Thou hast, thou shalt, is an ordinary medium made use of by the Psalmist.

Verse 11. You also helping together] The best may have benefit by the prayers of the meanest. Melanchon was much cheared and confirmed by the prayers of certain women and children, whom he found tugging with God in a corner for the setling of the Reformation in Germany. Schneccer. pædagog Christian. page 196.

Verse 12. For this is our rejoycing, &c.] He was merry under his load, because his heart was upright. The sincere will well stand under great pressures, because they are sound. Whereas if a bone be broke, or but the skin rubb'd up and raw, the lightest load will be grievous.

And godly sincerity] A fine word he here useth: and it is a Metaphor either from the Eagle that tryeth her young by holding them forth against the full sight of the Sun; εἰλικρίνεια. Arist. Plin.

Digitized by Google

(so

(To should we the motions of our minds to the Word of God) or else from a wise and wary chapman, that holds up the cloth he buys, betwixt his eye and the Sun.

Verse 13. Then what ye read, &c.] Or, then what you can both recognize and approve of; for you have known me thorow and thorow.

Verse 14. You have acknowledged in part] q.d. You ought to have done it more fully; but you have been carried away, as ye were led by the false Apostles.

Verse 15 A second benefit] Gr. Grace not converting only, but confirming also. All is but enough.

Verse 16. And to pass by you] So indefatigable and unsatisfiable was he in doing God service, Cardan said, Ne decem quidem maria, &c. that it would not grieve him to sail over ten seas, about a uniform draught for Religion.

Verse 17. Did I use lightness?] So the false Apostles suggested against him. Ministers must carefully clear themselves of suspicions and aspersions cast upon them, either by a verbal or real Apology.

Verse 18. Our word toward you, &c.] Gods children are all such as will not lye, say and unsay, blow hot and cold with a blast, Isa. 63.8. Christianus est, non mentietur, He is a Christian, he will not lye, was an old proverb. Sophronius testifieth of Chrysostome, nunquam enim mentitum fuisse, that he was never taken in a lye.

Verse 19. For the Son of God] What is that to the purpose? Thus: if the Gospel that Paul preached be not yea and nay, then neither are Pauls promises yea and nay. This is his intendment; else his inference is nothing. And by that which follows, it reacheth all Christians, q.d. Look what a Christian doth promise, he is bound by the earnest-penny of Gods Spirit to perform. He dares no more alter his words to the discredit of his Profession, then the Spirit of God can lye. Mr. Cotton on the seven vials. 52.

Verse 20. In him are yea and amen] That is, truth and allurance. They will eat their way over all Alps of opposition, as one speaketh.

Verse 21. Hath anointed us] i.e Consecrated and qualified us.

Verse 22. Sealed us] As the Merchant sets his seal upon his goods.

The earnest of the spirit] Whereof God should undergo the loss, if he should not give the inheritance, as Chrysostome noteth. The Greeks bought usually repræsentatâ pecuniâ, for ready money; and this was to buy Græcâ fide; Howbeit sometimes they gave Earnest: and this ἀρραβὼν, or earnest was (usually) the hundredth part of the whole bargain. See the note on Ephes. 1. 14.

Verse 23. I call God to record] He purgeth himself by Oath. So those Joshua 22. 22.

Ver. 24. Dominion over your faith] As Masters of your consciences: such as the Bridgemaker of Rome will needs be, Rev. 17. 1. The purple Whore sitteth upon the Nations, &c. she useth them vilely and basely, sitting upon their consciences. Steven King of Polonia was wont to say, That there three things God had reserved to himself. 1 To make something of nothing. 2. To know future events. 3. To have dominion over mens consciences. Pontifex Romanus.

Chap. II.

Verse 1. That I would not come again]

Ille dolet, quoties cogitur esse ferox. It goes as much against the heart of a good Minister, as against the hair with his people, if he say or do any thing to their grief. It is no pleasure to him so fling daggers, to speak milstones, to preach damnation, &c. But there is a cruel lenity, as was that of Eli to his sons; and evil men must be sharply rebuked, that they may be sound in the faith, Tit. 1. 13.

Verse 2. But the same which is made, &c.] Nothing can cure a faithful Minister of his cordolium, of his hearts grief, but his peoples amendment. Now we live if ye stand fast in the Lord, 1 Thess. 3. 8. else we are all amort, and you kill the very hearts of us.

Digitized by Google

Verse 3. Of whom I ought to rejoyce] Nothing sticks a man more then the unkindness of a friend, then expectation of love dashed and disappointed: All evils, as elements, are most troublesom, when out of their proper place, as impiety in professors; injustice in Judges; unkindness or untowardness in a people toward their Pastor, &c.

In Act. 22.19. Verse 4. With many tears] Non tàm atramento, quam lachrymis chartas cillevit, saith Lorinus. St. Pauls Epistles were written rather with tears then with ink.

Verse 5. Have caused grief] Wicked livers are Hazaels to the godly, and draw many sighs and tears from them. Lots righteous soul was set upon the rack by the filthy Sodomites. Jeremiah weeps in secret for Judah's sins. Paul cannot speak of those belly-gods with dry eyes, Phil 3.18.

Verse 16. Sufficient to such a man] The Novatians therefore were out, that refused to receive in those that repented of their former faults and follies. The Papists burnt Act. and Mon. fol. 1392. some that recanted at the stake, saying, that they would send them out of the world while they were in a good mind.

Ibid. 1665. Verse 7. Should be swallowed up] It was a saying of Mr. Philpot Martyr, Satan goes about to mix the detestable darnel of desperation, with the godly sorrow of a pure penitent heart.

D. Sibbs on Psalm 42.5. With overmuch grief] Some holy men (as Master Leaver) have desired to see their sin in the most ugly colours, and God hath heard them; but yet his hand was so heavy upon them therein, that they went always mourning to their graves; and thought it fitter to leave it to Gods wisdom to mingle the portion of sorrow, then to be their own choosers. It is a saying of Austin, Let a man grieve for his sin, and then joy for his grief. Sorrow for sin, if it so far exceed, as that thereby we are disabled for the discharge of our duties, it is a sinful sorrow, yea though it be for sinne κυρῶσαι. παρακλῆσαι. Verse 8. Confirm your love, &c.] Gr. Ratifie it, and declare it authentick, as it were in open Court, and by publike sentence (as Gal. 3.15.) and that at mine instance, as an advocate.

Verse 9. Whether ye be obedient] First to the Lord, and then to us by the will of God, 2 Cor. 8.5. Confer Heb. 13.17. Isaiah 50.10.

Verse 10 To whom ye forgive] Or, Gratifie. Mercy is that we must mutually lend and borrow one of another. Let the rigid read Gal. 6.1. See the Note there.

πλεονεκτηθῶμεν. Verse 11. Lest Satan] That wily merchant, that greedy blood-sucker, that devoureth not widows houses, but most mens souls. See ver. 7.

νοήματα. For we are not ignorant] He is but a titular Christian that hath not personal experience of Satans stratagems, his set and composed machinations, his artificially-moulded methods, his plots, darts, depths, whereby he outwitted our first Parents, and fits us a penny-worth still, as he sees reason.

Verse 12. A door was opened] An opportunity offered. Where the Master sets up a light, there is some work to be done; where he sends forth his labourers, there is some harvest to be gotten in.

ἄνεσιν. Verse 13. I had no rest, &c.] Gr. No relaxation, viz. from my former cares and anxieties about you, because he was not yet returned to tell me how it was with you, 2 Corinth. 7.6. Gods comforts are either rational, fetch'd from grounds which faith ministreth; or real, from the presence of comfortable persons or things.

Verse 14. Now thanks be to God] Deo gratias was ever in Pauls mouth, ever in Austins; and a thankful man is ever ready with his present, as Joseph's brethren were, Gen. 43.26.

Causeth us to triumph] Maketh us more then conquerors, even triumphers; whiles he rides upon us as upon his white horses, all the world over, Conquering and to conquer, Rev. 6.2.

Bilson 1 Pet. 2. Mirabil. auscultat. Verse 15. A sweet savour] The Church is the morter, preaching the pestel, the promises are the sweet spices, which being beaten, yield an heavenly and supernatural smell in the souls of the godly hearers.

Verse 16. The savour of death] Aristotle writeth, that Vultures are killed with oyl oyl of Roſes. Swine (ſaith Pliny) cannot live in ſome parts of Arabia, by reaſon of the ſweet ſent of aromatical trees there growing in every wood. Tygers are enraged with perfumes. Vipera interficitur palmis, ſaith Pauſanias. Moſes killed the Egyptian, ſaved the Iſraelite. Obed-Edom was bleſſed for the Ark, the Philiſtims were curſed. The Sun of the Goſpel ſhining upon one that is ordained to eternal life, reviveth and quickneth him; but lighting upon a child of death, it cauſeth him to ſtink more abominably. Gregory in his Morals ſaith, That this word is like the Planet Venus, which unto ſome is Luciſer, a bright morning ſtar ariſing in their hearts, whereby they are rouzed up, and ſtirred from iniquity; but to the other is Heſperus, an evening ſtar, whereby they are brought to bed, and laid aſleep in impiety. Oecumenius tels us, That the fragrancy of precious oyntment is wholſom for Doves, but kills the Beetle; columbam vegetat, ſcarabæum necat, &c.

Digitized by Google

And who is ſufficient] And yet now who is it almoſt that thinks not himſelf ſufficient for that ſacred and tremend function of the Miniſtery? VVho am I? ſaith Moſes; Who am I not? ſaith our upſtart. Bradford was hardly perſwaded to become a Preacher. Latimer leapt when he laid down his Biſhoprick, being diſcharged, as he ſaid, of ſuch an heavy burthen. Luther was wont to ſay, That if he were again to chuſe his calling, he would dig, or do any thing rather then take upon him the office of a Miniſter; ſo ſaid reverend Mr. VVhately of Banbury once in my hearing. Act. and Mon. fol. 1578.

Verſe 17. VVhich corrupt the word] Gr. Which huckſter it, by handling it craftily and covetouſly, not ſerving the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, but their own bellies, as thoſe Poniſh Trencher-flies, and our Court Paraſites, who ſerved for falſe glaſſes, to make bad faces look fair, and doubted not to adulterate the milk of the word, to the hurt of mens ſouls. καπηλεύοντες.

In the ſight of God] It is impoſſible to ſpeak as in Gods preſence, and not ſincerely; ſuch as do ſo, are not acquainted with that holy hypocriſie commended in Dominick the founder of the Dominican Fryers; whom he was wont to admoniſh, to fain themſelves more vertuous then indeed they were, when they came in company with the Laity, that they might get the more reſpect to themſelves, and to their doctrine: This was one of the Devils depths, whereunto Gods faithful Miniſters are perfect ſtrangers. Vincent. Belnac. Epiſc. in hiſt Sancti Dom. τὰ βάθη τῦ Σατανᾶ. Revel. 3.

CHAP. III.

Verſe 1. Do we begin again, &c.]

AS we had done before. Cap. 1. 12.

To commend our ſelves] Quod magnificum referente alio fuiſſet, ipſo qui geſſerat recenſente vaneſcit. Let another man praiſe thee, and not thine own mouth, Prov. 27. 2. Laus proprio ſordeſcit in ore. But the Apoſtle was neceſſitated to it. Plin. l. 1. ep. 8.

As ſome others, letters of commendation] As the falſe Apoſtles, who carried it by teſtimonial; in giving whereof, many good people are much too blame. Beauty needs no letters of commendation, ſaith Ariſtotle; much leſs doth vertue, where it is known. If moral vertue could be ſeen with mortal eyes, ſaith Plato, it would ſoon draw all hearts to it ſelf.

Verſe 2. You are our Epiſtle] The fruitfulneſs of the people is the Preachers teſtimonial: as the profiting of the ſchollar is the teachers commendation.

Written in our hearts] Or rather in your hearts, as tables; the Spirit writing thereon, by his Miniſters as pens, that form of doctrine, Rom. 6. 17. that law of their minds, Rom. 7. 23, Heb. 8. 10. to be known and read of all men.

Verſe 3. Miniſtered by us] Who are devoted to the ſervice of your faith, and are the Lord Chriſts Secretaries.

But in fleſhy tables] In the ſoftened heart God writes his law, puts an inward aptneſs anſwering the Law of God without, as Lead anſwers the Mould, as Tally anſwers Tally, as Indenture anſwers Indenture.

Verſe 4. Such truſt have we] i. e. Such boldneſs of holy boaſting. If Tully could could say, Two things I have to bear me bold upon, the knowledge of good arts, and the glory of great acts; how much more might Paul?

Digitized by Google

Cic. ep. fam. l. 7

πάντα ποιῶν ἐδυνάμην.

Verse 5. Not that we are sufficient] Lest they should think him arrogant. Cyrus had this written upon his Tomb, I could do all things, as Arrianus reports. So could Paul too; but it was thorow Christ which strengthned him, Phil. 4. 13.

All our sufficiency is of God] Had not Ministers then need to pray? Benè orasse est bonè studuisse, saith Luther. And whether a Minister shall do more good to others by his prayers or preaching, I will not determine (saith a reverend Writer) but he shall certainly by his prayers reap more comfort to himself; whereto I adde, that unless he pray for his hearers, as well as preach to them, he may preach to as little purpose as Bede did, when he preached to an heap of stones: and that if people pray not for their Ministers, they may prove Ministrorum opprobria, like Labans lambs, or Pharaohs kine: they may thank themselves for their Ministers insufficiency, and their own non-proficiency.

D. Taylor on 1 Thess. 5. 23.

Verse 6. Not of the letter] To wit, of the Law, which requireth perfect obedience, presupposing holiness in us, and curseth the disobedient; but the Gospel (called here the Spirit) presupposeth unholiness, and, as an instrument, maketh us holy, John 17. 17. Acts 10. 32. For we preach Christ, 1 Cor. 1. 23. We give what we preach. The Spirit is received by the preaching of faith, Gal. 3. 2. This Manna is rained down in the sweet dews of the Ministery of the Gospel, 1 Pet. 1. 12.

Lex jubet, gratia juvat. Aug.

For the letter killeth] Many Popish Priests, that hardly ever had seen, much less read S. Pauls writings, having gotten this sentence by the end, The letter killeth, took care of being killed, by not meddling with good literature. Hence that of Sir Thomas Moor to one of them,

Tu bene cavisti, ne te vita occidere posset
Littera: nam nulla est littera nota tibi.

Verse 7. The ministration of death] That is, the Law. David was the voyce of the Law awarding death to sin, He shall surely dye. Nathan was the voyce of the Gospel, awarding life to repentance for sin, Thou shalt not dye.

For the glory of his countenance] Which yet reflected not upon his own eyes. He shone bright and knew not of it: He saw Gods face glorious, he did not think others had so seen his. How many have excellent graces, and perceive them not?

Verse 8. Be rather glorious] Let this comfort the Ministers of the Gospel under the contempts cast upon them by the mad world, ever besides it self in point of salvation. See Isa. 49. 5.

Verse 9. Exceed in glory] A throne was set in heaven, Rev. 4. 2. Not in the Mount, as Exod. 25. 9. The patern of our Church is shewed in the heavens themselves, because of that more abundant glory of the Gospel above the Law. And therefore also John describeth the City far greater and larger then Ezekiel, Revel. 21. Because Ezekiel was a Minister of the Law, John of the Gospel.

Brightman in loc.

Verse 10. Had no glory] To speak of, and in comparison: The light of the Law was obscured and overcast by the light of the Gospel. The sea about the alter was brazen, 2 Kings 7. 23. and what eye could pierce thorow it? Now our sea about the throne is glassie, Rev. 4. 6. like to crystal, clearly conveying the light and sight of God in Christ to our eyes.

Verse 11. Much more that, &c.] As the Sun enlightneth Lucifer his herald.

Verse 12. Plainness of speech] Or, much evidence, as John 10. 24. and 11. 14. and 16. 29. with much perspicuity and authority we deliver our selves: we speak with open face, not fearing colours.

Verse 13. Could not stedfastly, &c.] Could not clearly see Christ the end of the Law, Rom. 10. 4. Gal. 3. 14.

Verse 14. But their minds] Unless God give sight as well as light, and enlighten both organ and object, we can see nothing.

Which vail is done away] See Isa. 25. 7. Faith freeth from blindness; we no sooner taste of that sweet feast by faith, but the vail of ignorance, which naturally covereth all hearts, is torn and rent.

Verse 15. The vail is upon their hearts] By a malicious and voluntary hardning, they curse Christ and his worshippers in their daily devotions, and call Evangelium Evangillium, the Gospel, a volumn of vanity or iniquity.

Eliab. in Thilb.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 16. When it ſhall turn] Of the Jews converſion, and what hinders it, See the Note on Rom. 11.7,8,25.

Verſe 17. The Lord is that ſpirit] Chriſt onely can give the Jews that noble ſpirit, as David calleth him, Pſal. 50.12. that freeth a man from the inviſible chains of the kingdom of darkneſs.

Verſe 18. Are changed] As the pearl by the often beating of the Sun-beams upon it, becomes radiant.

From glory to glory] That is, from grace to grace. Fulneſs of grace is the beſt thing in glory. Other things, as peace and joy, are but the ſhinings forth of this fulneſs of grace in glory.

CHAP. IV.

Verſe 1. As we have received mercy]

SIth we have ſo freely been called to the Miniſtery of meer mercy, we ſhew forth therein all ſedulity and ſincerity. When I was born, ſaid that French King, thouſand others were born beſides my ſelf. Now what have I done to God more then they, that I ſhould be a King, and not they? Tamerlane having overcome Bajazet, asked him whether ever he had given God thanks for making him ſo great an Emperor; who confeſſed ingenuouſly he never thought of it. To whom Tamerlane replyed, that it was no wonder ſo ungrateful a man ſhould be made a ſpectacle of miſery. For you, ſaith he, being blind of one eye, and I lame of a leg, was there any worth in us, why God ſhould ſet us over two ſuch great Empires of Turks and Tartars? So may Miniſters ſay, What are we that God ſhould call us to ſo high an office? &c. Leunclav. Annal. Turc.

We faint not] We droop not, we flag not, we hang not the wing, though hardly handled. For, Præd care nihil aliud eſt quam deriviare in ſe furorem totius mundi, as Luther ſaid. ἐκκακοῦμεν Verſe 2. The hidden things of diſhoneſty] All legerdemain, and under hand dealing. They that do evil, hate the light, love to lurk. But ſin hath woaded an impudency in ſome mens faces, that they dare do any thing.

To every mans conſcience] A pure conſcience hath a witneſs in every mans boſom. See 1 Cor. 14.24. St. Paul did ſo preach and live, that every mans conſcience could not chuſe but ſay, Certainly Paul preacheth the truth, and liveth right; and we muſt live as he ſpeaketh and doth. One deſired a miſliving Preacher to point him out a neerer way to heaven then that he had taught in his Sermons; for he went not that way himſelf. Of ſuch an one it was once ſaid, That when he was out of the pulpit, it was pitty he ſhould ever go into it; and when he was in the pulpit, it was pitty he ſhould ever come out of it. St. Paul was none ſuch, as all knew. Mr. Wenner.

Verſe 3. To them that are loſt] It is a ſign of a reprobate-goat, John 8.43, 47. Senſual, having not the ſpirit, Jude 19. The Devil holds his black hand before their eyes, that they may fall blindling into hell. Herein he dealeth as the Eagle, which ſetting on the Hart (ſaith Pliny) lights upon his horns, and there flutters up and down, filling his eyes with duſt born in her feathers, that at laſt he may caſt himſelf from a rock.

Verſe 4. The god of this world] The Devil uſurps ſuch a power, and wicked men will have it ſo: They ſet him up for God: If he do but hold up his finger, give the leaſt hint, they are at his obedience, as God at firſt did but ſpeak the word, and it was done. All their buildings, plowings, plantings, ſailings, are for the Devil. And if we could rip up their hearts, we ſhould find written therein, The god of this preſent world.

Verſe 5. We preach not our ſelves] We are Chriſts Paranymphs, or ſpokeſmen, and muſt woo for him. Now if we ſhould ſpeak one word for him, and two for our ſelves, as all ſelf-ſeekers do, how can we anſwer it?

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 6. Hath ſhined] The firſt work of the Spirit in mans heart, is, to beat out new windows there, and to let in light, Acts 26.18. And then, Semper in ſole ſita eſt Rhodos, qui & calorem & colorem nobis impertit. Æneas Sylv.

Verſe 7. In earthen veſſels] Gr. In oyſter-ſhells: as the ill-favoured-oyſter hath in it a bright pearl. Vilis ſæpe cadus nobile nectar habet. In a leathern purſe may be a precious pearl. ἐν ὀστρακίνοις.

Verſe 8. We are troubled on every ſide] This is the worlds wages to Gods Miniſters. Veritas odium parit. Oppoſition is Evangelii genius, ſaid Calvin. Truth goes ever with a ſcratcht face.

VVe are perplexed] Pray for me, I ſay, Pray for me, ſaid Latimer; for I am ſometimes ſo fearful, that I could creep into a Mouſe-hole; ſometimes God doth viſit me again with comfort, &c. There is an elegancy here in the Original, that cannot well be rendred. Tertullian hammers at it in his Indigemus, ſed non perindigemus. Beza hath it Hæſitamus at non prorſus hæremus. Mr. Dike ſtaggering, but not wholly ſticking. Acts and Mon. fol. 1565. ἀπορούμενοι, ἀλλ' οὐκ ἐξαπορούμενοι.

Verſe 9. Perſecuted, but not forſaken] The Church may be ſhaken, not ſhivered, perſecuted, not conquered. Roma cladibus animoſior, ſaid one; 'tis more true of the Church: She gets by her loſſes, and as the Oak, ſhe taketh heart to grace from the maims and wounds given her. Concuti, non excuti. Duris ut ilex tonſa bipennibus.

Niteris incaſſum Chriſti ſubmergere navem:
Fluctuat, at nunquam mergitur illa ratis.

As the Pope wrote once to the great Turk.

Caſt down, but not deſtroyed] Impellere poſſunt (ſaid Luther of his enemies) ſed totum proſternere non poſſunt: crudeliter me tractare poſſunt, ſed non extirpare: dentes nudare, ſed non devorare: occidere me poſſunt, ſed in totum me perdere non poſſunt. They may thruſt me, but not throw me; ſhew their teeth, but not devour me; kill me, but not hurt me, &c.

Verſe 10. The dying of the Lord] A condition obnoxious to daily deaths and dangers.

Might be made manifeſt] As it was in Paul, when being ſtoned, he ſtarted up with a ſic, ſic oportet intrare. Thus, thus muſt heaven be had, and no otherwiſe.

Verſe 11. For we which live, &c.] Good men onely are heirs of the grace of life, 1 Pet. 3.7. Others are living Ghoſts, and walking Sepulchres of themſelves.

Verſe 12. Death worketh in us] It hath already ſeized upon us, but yet we are not killed with death, as thoſe were, Revel. 2. 23. As a godly man ſaid, That he did ægrotare vitaliter; ſo the Saints do mori vitaliter, dye to live for ever.

But life in you] q.d. You have the happineſs to be exempted, whiles we are tantùm non interempti, little leſs then done to death.

Verſe 13. The ſame ſpirit] That you have, and ſhall be heirs together of heaven with you, though here we meet with more miſeries.

I believed, and therefore, &c.] The Spirit of faith is no indweller where the door of the lips open not in holy confeſſion and communication.

Verſe 14. Shall preſent us with you] Shall bring us from the jaws of death, to the joys of eternal life.

Verſe 15. That the abundant grace] This is one end wherefore God ſuffers his miniſters to be ſubject to ſo many miſeries, that the people might be put upon prayer and praiſe for their deliverance.

Verſe 16. Yet the inward man] Peter Martyr dying, ſaid, My body is weak, my mind is well; VVell for the preſent, and it will be better hereafter. This is the godly mans Motto.

Verſe 17. For our light affliction] Here we have an elegant Antitheſis, and a double hyperbole, beyond engliſhing. For affliction, here's glory; for light affliction, a weight of glory; for momentary affliction, eternal glory.

VVhich is but for a moment] For a ſhort braid only, as that Martyr ſaid. Mourning laſteth but till morning. It is but winking, and thou ſhalt be in heaven preſently, quoth another Martyr.

VVorketh

Digitized by Google

Vvorketh unto us] As a causa sine quâ non, as the law worketh wrath, Rom. 4. 15. If our dear Lord did not put these thorns into our bed, we should sleep out our lives and lose our glory; affliction cals to us as the Angel to Eliah, up, thou hast a great way to go.

A far more exceeding] An exceeding accessive eternal weight. Or, a far most excellent, eternal weight. Nec Christus, nec cœlum patitur hyperbolen, saith one. Here it is hard to hyperbolize. Words are too weak to express heavens happiness. The Apostle heard wordless words when he was there; and in speaking of it commonly useth a transcendent super-superlative kind of language. The vulgar interpreters Supra modum in sublimitate. Erasmus his Mire supra modum, Beza his excellenter excellens fals a fair deal short of, St. Pauls Emphatical Grecism here. Διπλασιάζει, saith Chrysostom. He could not comprize it in one single word, he doubleth it therefore, and yet attaineth not to what he aymeth at. ῥήματα ἄρρητα. 2 Cor. 12.

Weight of Glory] The Apostle alludeth to the Hebrew and Chaldee words which signifie both weight and glory. Glory is such a weight, as if the body were not upheld by the power of God, it were impossible it should bear it. Joy so great, as that we must enter into it: it is too big to enter into us. Enter into thy Masters joy, Mat. 25. Here we find that when there is great joy, the body is not able to bear it; our spirits are ready to expire; What shall it then be in heaven? כבוד יקר.

Verse 18. Whiles we look not] Gr. Whiles we make them not our scope, our mark to aim at. Heaven we may make our mark, our aim, though not our highest aim. σκοπούντων.

At the things that are seen] Whiles we eye things present only, it will be with us as with an house without pillars, tottering with every blast, or a ship without anchor, tossed with every wave.

But at the things which are not seen] Pericula non respicit Martyr, coronas respicit: Plagas non horret, præmium numerat: non videt lictores infernè flagellantes, sed Angelos superne acclamantes, saith Basil: Who also tels us how the Martyrs that were cast out naked in a winters night, being to be burned the next day, comforted themselves and one another with these words; Sharp is the cold, but sweet is Paradise; Troublesome is the way, but pleasant shall be the end of our journey; let us endure cold a little, and the Patriarchs bosome shall soon warm us; let our foot burn a while, that we may dance for ever with Angels; Let our hand fall into the fire, that it may lay hold upon eternal life, &c. Δριμὺς ὁ χειμὼν. &c. Basil. εἰστὸς μαχ.

But the things which &c.] The Latines call prosperous things Res secundas, because they are to be had hereafter, they are not the first things; these are past, Rev. 21.

CHAP. V.

Verse 1. For we know]

NOt we think, or hope only; This is the top gallant of faith, the triumph of trust; this is as Lastimer cals it, the sweet meats of the feast of a good conscience. There are other dainty dishes in this feast, but this is the banquet. The cock on the dung-hill knows not the worth of this Jewel.

Our earthly house] In the wonderful frame of mans body the bones are the timber-work, the head the upper-lodging, the eyes as windows, the eyelids as casements, the brows as penthouses, the ears as watchtowers, the mouth as a door to take in that which shall uphold the building, and keep it in reparations: the stomach as a kitchin to dress that which is conveyed into it: the guts and baser parts as sinks belonging to the house, &c. as One wittily descants.

Our earthly house of this Tabernacle] Our clayie cottage. Man is but terra friabilis, a piece of earth neatly made up. The first man is of the earth earthly: and his earthly house is ever mouldering over him, ready to fall upon his head. Hence it is called The life of his hands, because hardly held up with the labour of his hands. Paul a Tent-maker 1 Cor. 15. 47 Isa. 47.

Digitized by Google

τὸ σκῆνος. maker, elegantly compares mans body to a Tent. Plato also in his dialogue of death, calleth the body a Tabernacle. A house the body is called, as for the singular artifice shewed in the framing of it (the womans body is, by a specialty, called Gods building Gen. 3. 22. because her frame consisteth of rarer rooms: of a more exact composition, say some, then mans doth) so, secondly, because the soul dwels in it: the reason whereof (besides Gods will, and for the order of the Universe) Lombard gives this, that hereby man might learn and believe a possibility of the union of man with God in glory, notwithstanding the vast distance of nature and excellence.

Lib. 2. dist. inc c. 1.

We have a building of God] The Ark transportative till then, was setled in Solomons temple: So shall the Soul be in heaven. As when one skin fals off, another comes on; So when our earthly tabernacle shall be dissolved or taken down, we shall have a heavenly house. The soul wears the body as a garment, which when it is worn out, we shall be clothed with a better suit; we shall change our rags for robes, &c. Itaque non plangimus, sed plaudimus quando vitam claudimus, quia dies iste non tam fatalis quam natalis est.

Verse 2. For in this] That is, in this tabernacle of the body. How willingly do souldiers burn their Huts, when the siege is ended: being glad that their work is done, and that they may go home and dwell in houses?

Macrob. l. 1. c. 11. We groan earnestly] As that Avis Paradisi, which being once caught and engaged, never leaves sighing, they say, till set at liberty. The Greeks call the body σῆμας, the souls bond; and σῶμα, quasi σῆμα, the souls sepulchre.

To be clothed upon] By a sudden change, and not to die at all, as 1 Thess. 4. 17. 1 Cor. 15. 51. 52. Quis enim vult mori? prorsus nemo. Death when it comes will have a bout with the best, as it had with Hezekiah, David, Jonas, others. For nature abhors it, and every new man is two men. But when a Christian considers, that non nisi per angusta ad angusta perveniatur, that there is no passing into Paradise, but under the flaming sword of this Angel death, that standeth at the Porch; that there is no comming to the City of God, but thorow this strait and heavy lane; no wiping all tears from his eyes, but with his winding sheet, he yields, and is not only content, but full glad of his departure: As in the mean while he accepts of life rather then affects it, he endures it rather then desires it Phil. 1. 23.

Verse 3. If so be that, &c.] q. d. Howbeit, I know not whether we shall be so cloathed upon, that is, whether we that are now alive shall be found alive at Christs coming to judgement, whether we shall then be found clothed with our bodies, or naked, that is, stript of our bodies.

Verse 4 Do groan, being burdened,] viz. With sin and misery, whereof we have here our back-burdens. And surely great shame it were (as that Martyr said) that all the whole creatures of God should desire, yea groan in their kind for our liberty, and we our selves to loath it, as doubtless we do, if for the cross, yea for death itself we with joy swallow not up all sorrow that might let us from following the Lords call, and obeying the Lords Providence, &c.

M. Bradford. Act. and Mon. fol. 149.

Might be swallowed up of life] Not as a gulf or fire swallows up that that is cast into it, but as perfection swallows up imperfection; as the perfecting of a picture swallows up the rude draught, as perfect skill swallows up bungling, or manhood, childhood; not extinguishing, but drowning it that it is not seen.

D. Preston.

Verse 5. He that hath wrought us] Curiously wrought us in the lowermost parts of the earth, that is in the womb, as curious workmen perfect their choise pieces in private, and then set them forth to publike view. Others expound it by Rom. 9. 23.

Psal. 139. 15. with Eph. 4. 9.

The earnest of the spirit] He saith not the pawn, but the earnest. A pawn is to be returned again, but an earnest is part of the whole bargain.

Verse 6. Therefore we are confident] Not hæsitant, or halting, as Adrian the Emperour was, and as he that cried out on his death-bed, Anxius vixi, dubius morior, nescio quò vado, I have lived carefully, I die doubtfully, I go I know not whither. Socrates also that wisest of Philosophers, could not with all his skill resolve his friends, whether Plato.

Digitized by Google

whether it were better for a man to die or live longer. Cicero, comforting himself as well as he could by the help of Philosophy against the fear of death, cries out and complains at length, that the medicine was too weak for the disease, it is the true Christian only that can be confident that his end shall be happy, though his beginning and middle haply may be troublesome. Psal. 37. 37. Nescio quomodo, imbecillior est medicina quàm morbus.

Whilest we are at home] Or stay for a night as in an Inne. A man that comes into an Inne, if he can get a better room, he will: if not, he can be content with it; for saith he, it is but for a night. So it should be with us. ἐνδημοῦντες.

Verse 7. For we walk by Faith] Which puts our heads into heaven, sets us on the top of Pisga with Moses, and thereupon descries and describes unto us the promised Land, gives us to set one foot afore-hand in the porch of Paradise, to see as Stephen did Christ holding out a Crown, with this inscription, Vincenti dabo.

Not by sight] Sense corrects imagination, reason sense, but faith corrects both, thrusting Hagar out of doors, when haughty and haunty grown. But as Nabash, so the devil labours to put out the right eye of faith, and to leave us only the left eye of reason.

Verse 8. And willing rather] Death is not to be desired as a punishment of sin: but as a period of sin: not as a postern gate to let out our temporal, but as a street door to let in eternal life.

To be present with the Lord] This Bernard calleth Repatriasse. Plotinus the Philosopher could say when he died, that which is divine in me I carry back, τὸ θεῖον πρὸς τὸ πάντον θεῖον, to the Original divine, that is, to God. But whether this man believed himself or not, I greatly doubt. Bern. de morte. Synes. ep. 139.

Verse 9. Wherefore we labour] Our hope of heaven maketh us active and abundant in Gods service. The doctrine of assurance is not a doctrine of liberty, but the contrary, 1 Joh. 3. 3. We make it our ambition, saith the Apostle here, to get acceptance in heaven, waiting till our father shall call us home, and passing the time of our sojourning here in fear, 1 Pet. 1. 17. The Saints have their commoration upon earth, their conversation in heaven. φιλοτιμούμεθα. ἐνδημοῦντες.

Verse 10. For we must all, &c.] This great assize will not be such an assembly as that of Ahasuerosh, of his Nobles, Princes and Captains only: nor such as the biddings of rich men to their feasts, of their rich neighbours only, but like the invitation of that housholder that sent his servants to compel all to come in. On that day Adam shall see all his nephews together. Luk 14. 12.

Appear before, &c.] Be laid open, and have all ript up. Our sins that are now written as it were with the juce of Lemmons, shall then by the fire of the last day be made legible. And as in April both wholsome roots and poisonable, discover themselves, which in the winter were not seen, so at the day of judgement good and evil actions. φανερωθῆναι. Mac. Hom. 12.

The things done in his body] That is, the just reward of those things; In die judicii plus valebit conscientia pura, quam marsupia plena. Then shall a good conscience be more worth then all the worlds good. And this was that that made Paul so sincere a Preacher, and so insatiable a server of God, as Chrysostome calleth him. Bernard.

Whether it be good or bad] Wicked men shall give an account, 1. De bonis commissis; Of goods committed to them. 2. De bonis dimissis, of good neglected by them. 3. De malis commissis, of evils committed. 4 De malis permissis, of evils done by others, suffered by them. Itaq; vivamus, saith the Orator. Let us so live as those that must render an account of all. Cic. 4. in Ver.

Verse 11. Knowing therefore the terrour, &c.] What a terrible time it will be with the wicked, who shall in vain cite the deaf mountains with their hideous out-cries to fall upon them, &c.

We perswade men] To flee from the wrath to come; to repent and be converted, that their sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come, Act. 3. 19. We speak perswasively to this purpose, but it is God only that perswades.

Verse 12. Which glory in appearance] Gr. In the face. Hypocrites as they repent in the face, Mat. 6. 16. so they rejoyce in the face, not in the heart. Their joy is but skin deep, it is but the hypocrisie of mirth, they do not laugh but grin, their hearts ake many times, when their faces counterfeit a smile; Their mirth is frothy and flashy, such as smooths the brow, but fils not the breast, such as wets the mouth, but warms not the heart. ἐν προσώπῳ.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 13. It is to God] i.e. When to the world we ſeem mad of pride and vain-glory, yet then we reſpect only Gods glory.

It is for your ſakes] i. e. For your learning, that we are more modeſt and ſparing in commending our Apoſtleſhip. It is a good rule, Quicquid agas, propter Deum agas. Do all for Gods ſake.

Verſe 14. The love of Chriſt, &c] As reward hath an attractive, and puniſhment an impulſive, ſo love hath a compulſive faculty. This love of Chriſt had ſo cloſed in S. Paul, ſo hemmed him in, and begirt him round, that his adverſaries reported him a mad man, as verſ. 13. he erred in love toward his ſweet Saviour, & even exhaled his bleſſed ſoul in continual ſallies, as it were, and expreſſions of his dear affection to the Lord Jeſus. The word he here uſeth, imports that he was even ſhut up by his love to his dear Lord, as in a pound or pinfold, ſo that he could not get out. He had meditated ſo much upon Chriſts love, donec totus fixus in corde, qui totus fixus in cruce, that his heart was turned into a lump of love.

συνέχει.

συνέχει.

Then were all dead] All the body ſuffered in and with Chriſt the head, and ſo are freed by his death, Heb. 2. 9. as if themſelves in perſon had dyed.

Verſe 15. Should not henceforth] Servati ſumus ut ſerviamus. The redeemed among the Romans were to obſerve and honour thoſe that ranſomed them as parents, all their daies.

Verſe 16. No man after the fleſh] i. e. We eſteem no man ſimply the better or worſe for his wealth, poverty, honour, ignominy, or anything outward. See Jam. 1. 9, 10, 11. Thomas Wats Martyr, ſpake thus at his death to his wife and children; Wife, and my good children, I muſt now depart from you, therefore henceforth know I you no more; but as the Lord hath given you to me, ſo I give you again to him, whom I charge you ſee that ye obey, &c.

Act and Mon. fol. 1450.

Though we have known Chriſt] As poſſibly Paul might have known Chriſt in the fleſh: for Jeſus of Nazareth was a Prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people, Luke 24. 19. Auſtin wiſhed that he might have ſeen three things, Rome flouriſhing, Paul preaching, Chriſt converſing with men upon earth. Bede comes after, and correcting this laſt wiſh, ſaith, yea but let me ſee the King in his beauty, Chriſt in his heavenly Kingdom. Paul was ſo ſpiritualized that he took knowledge of nothing here below: he paſſed thorow the world as a man in a deep muſe, or that ſo looks for a loſt jewel, that he overlooks all beſides it.

Verſe 17. Is a new creature] Either a new man, or no man in Chriſt. Get into him therefore with all ſpeed: for till this be done, though thou ſhouldeſt ſpend thy time in gathering up Pearls and Jewels, thou art an undone creature.

All things are become new] The ſubſtance of the ſoul is the ſame, the qualities and operations altered. In regeneration our natures are tranſlated, not deſtroied, no not our conſtitution and complexion. As the melancholy man doth not ceaſe to be ſo after converſion, only the humour is ſanctified to a fitneſs for godly ſorrow, holy meditation, &c. ſo, of other humors.

Verſe 18. And all things are of God] He is both Author and Finiſher of our faith, the God of all grace, the Father of all lights, &c.

And hath given to us the Miniſtery] He hath taken this office from the Angels, thoſe firſt preachers of peace, Luke 2. 10, 14. The Angel told Cornelius, his prayers were heard in heaven: but for the Doctrine of reconciliation he refers him to Peter, Act. 10.

Verſe 19. That God was in Chriſt, &c.] As the ſalt-waters of the ſea, when they are ſtrained thorow the earth, they are ſweet in the rivers: ſo (ſaith one) the waters of Majeſty and Juſtice in God, though terrible, yet being ſtrained and derived through Chriſt, they are ſweet and delightful.

Reconciling the world] What the Apoſtle meaneth by this, ſee his own Expoſition, Rom. 11. 15.

Verſe 20. Embaſſadors for Chriſt] And therefore ſacred perſons, not to be violated on pain of God heavy diſpleaſure. Do my Prophets no harm. They that would annihilate the Miniſtery, go to pull the ſtars out of Chriſts hand: and they will find it a work not feiſable.

As though God did beſeech you] Gods grace even kneels to us. En flexanimam Suada medullam: Who can turn his back upon ſuch bleſſed and bleeding embracements?

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 21. To be ſin for us] That is, a ſin-offering, or an exceeding ſinner, as Exod. 29. 14. So Chriſt was, 1. By imputation, for our ſins were made to meet upon him, as that Evangelical Prophet hath it, Iſa. 53. 6 And ſecondly, By reputation, for he was reckoned among malefactors, ibid. And yet one Auguſtinus de Roma Archbiſhop of Nazareth was cenſured in the Councel of Baſil, for affirming that Chriſt was peccatorum maximus, the greateſt of ſinners. Chriſt ſo loved us, ſaith one, that he endured that which he moſt hated, to become ſin for us (he was made ſin paſſive in himſelf to ſatisfie for ſin active in us) and the want of that which was more worth then a world to him, the ſenſe of Gods favour for a time. Ama amorem illius, &c. ſaith Bernard. There are two things in guilt, ſaith a late Reverend Writer. 1. The merit and deſert of it; this Chriſt took not. 2. The obligation to puniſhment; this he took, and ſo he became ſin, that is, bound to the puniſhment of ſin. The ſon of a Traytor loſeth his fathers lands, not by any communion of fault, but by communion of nature, becauſe he is part of his Father. The ſon is no traytor; but by his neerneſs to his Father is wrapped in the ſame puniſhment: ſo here. In a City that is obnoxious to the Kings diſpleaſure, perhaps there are ſome that are not guilty of the offence: yet being all Citizens, they are all puniſhed by reaſon of their communion. So Chriſt, by communion with our natures took upon him whatſoever was penal that belonged to ſin, though he took not, nor could take the demerit of ſin.

See Aug. Enchirid. c. 41.

Dr. Sibbs.

Who knew no ſin] That is, With a practical knowledge, with an intellectual he did, elſe he could not have reproved it. We know no more then we practiſe. Chriſt is ſaid to know no ſin, becauſe he did none.

That we might be made, &c] As Chriſt became ſin, not by ſin inherent in him, but by our ſin imputed to him; ſo are we made the righteouſneſs of God, by Chriſts righteouſneſs imputed and given unto us. This the Papiſts jearingly call putative righteouſneſs.

Chap. VI.

Verſe 1. As workers together]

NOT as coadjutours, but as inſtruments ſuch as God is pleaſed to make uſe of. See the Note on 1 Cor. 3. 9.

The grace of God in vain] That Embaſſage of grace Chap. 5. 20 Or that unſpeakable gift of Chriſt, v. 21. which many uſe as homely as Rachel did her fathers gods; ſhe hid them in the litter and ſat on them: or as that lewd boy in Kets conſpiracy, who when the Kings pardon was offered the Rebels by an herald, he turned toward him his naked poſteriours, and uſed words ſutable to that geſture. One ſtanding by diſcharged an harquebuz upon the body, &c.

Life of K. Ed. 6. by Sr. Io. Hy.

Verſe 2. Now is the accepted time] He purpoſely beats upon the τὸ νῦν, becauſe opportunity is headlong, and, if once paſt, irrecoverable. Some are Semper victuri, as Seneca ſaith, they ſtand trifling out their time, and ſo fool away their ſalvation. God will not alwaies ſerve men for a ſinning-ſtock. Patientia laſa fit furor. Do we therefore as Millers and Mariners, who take the gale when it cometh, and make uſe of it, becauſe they have not the winde in a bottle.

Now is the day of ſalvation] And God will not ſuffer men twice to neglect it. If once paſt, it will never dawn again. Catch therefore at opportunities, as the Eccho catcheth the voice, Pſal. 27. take the nick of time. God is more peremptory now then ever, Heb. 2. 2, 3.

Verſe 3. Giving no offence] A Miniſter ſhould be as Abſolom was, without blemiſh from head to foot. His fruit ſhould be, as that of Paradiſe, fair to the eye, and ſweet to the taſte. A ſmall fault is ſoon ſeen in him, and eaſily either imitated or upbraided. God appointed both the weights and meaſures of the Sanctuary to be twice as large as thoſe of the Commonwealth.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 4. In much patience] Or tolerance, ſuffering hardſhip, as good ſouldiers of Jeſus Chriſt.

In afflictions] Out of which there is little or no uſe of patience: at leaſt ſhe cannot have her perfect work, James 1. 4.

στενοχωρίαις. In diſtreſſes] Such ſtraits as that we are at a ſtand, and have not whether to turn us: we are in a little eaſe, as it were.

Verſe 5. In impriſonments] Chryſoſtom ſaith, he had rather be Paul caſt into priſon, then Paul wrapt up into paradiſe.

ἅτε χρυσὸς, ἅτε ἀδάμας ἅτως εἰρέψει ὡς πὴρ ἀγαθῶν ἀνδρῶν νόθ σμερδέων. Verſe 6. By pureneſs] By Lamb-like ſimplicity or ſincerity. Religion loves to lie clean, ſaid one. Godlineſs muſt run through our whole lives as the woof doth through the web. See Iſa 33. 14. No gold or preciousſtone is ſo pure as the prudent mind of a pious man, ſaid divine Plato.

Verſe 7. On the right hand, &c.] Againſt the worlds both irritamenta and terricula-menta, both allurements and affrightments. Contemptus eſt à me Romanus & favor & furor, ſaid Luther, when the Pope one while enticed him, and another while threatned him. When he was offered to be Cardinal, if he would be quiet, he replied, No, not if I might be Pope. When he was told that he ſhould finde no favour; Quid verò facere poterunt? (ſaid he) occident? Nunquid reſuſcitabunt, ut iterum occidant? What will they do? will they kill me? But can they raiſe me to life again, that they may kill me again? Can they kill me the ſecond time?

Epiſt. ad Spal.

Verſe 8. By honour and diſhonour, &c.] It is written on heaven-doors (ſaid that Martyr) Do Well and hear ill. A bad report is the ordinary reward of very-well doing: which made Luther wax proud even of his reproach. Superbus fio, ſaid he quod video nomen peſſimum mihi crèſcere. Hierom alſo writeth to Auguſtine, Quod ſignum majoris gloriæ eſt, omnes hæretici me deteſtantur. This is my glory, that none of the hereticks can give me a good word or look. It was a divine ſaying of Seneca, No man ſets a better rate upon vertue, then he that loſeth a good name to keep a good conſcience.

Act. & Mon. fol. 1491. Tom. 1. oper. Lat. p. 31.

Qui boni viri famam perdidit ne conſcientiam perderet Sen.

As deceivers] Aſperſed for ſuch, as Chriſt was, Mat. 27. 63. And Lucian blaſphemouſly termeth him ἐσταυρωμένον σοφίστην, the crucified cozener.

Verſe 9. As unknown] To the world. 1 Joh. 3. 1, 2. A Prince in a ſtrange Land is little ſet by, as not known. Unkent unkiſt, as the Northern Proverb hath it.

Well known] To them that have ſpiritual judgement, and can prize a perſon to his worth, which the worlds wizards cannot do, Iſa. 53. 2, 3.

And not killed] God will have a care of that: he corrects in meaſure, he ſmites his not at the root, but in the branches, Iſa. 27. 8. As it is a rule in phyſick ſtill to maintain nature, &c. ſo doth God ſtill keep up the ſpirits of his people by cordials, Iſa. 57. 16.

Verſe 10. As ſorrowful, yet, &c.] Gods works are uſually done in appoſitis mediis, as Luther ſaid. Out of the eater he brings meat, &c. This riddle the world underſtands not. The Fathers obſerve here, that the Apoſtle brings in the Saints ſorrow with a Quaſi, as if it were a ſorrow in ſhew or conceit only: but when he ſpeaks of their joy, there is no ſuch Quaſi.

Yet poſſeſſing all things] Godlineſs hath an autarkie, a ſelf-ſufficiency, 1 Tim. 6. 6. Cui cum paupertate bene convenit, pauper non eſt, ſaith Seneca. A contented man cannot be a poor man; Eſpecially if a godly man; for why? the Father (that ancient of days) filleth his memory: the Son (the wiſdom of the Father) filleth his underſtanding; the holy Ghoſt the Comforter, filleth his will; and ſo he muſt needs have all, that thus hath the Haver of All.

Verſe 11. Our mouth is open unto you] We ſpeak thus freely unto you, out of our deep affection towards you: we even carve you a piece of our heart, we pour forth our ſelves in this flood of ſpeech, that thereby ye may take a ſcantling of our over-abundant love to your ſouls. κεχανότες, open-mouthed men are put for fools oftentimes in Lucian and Ariſtophanes. But in another ſenſe then the Apoſtle here uſeth it. A large heart maketh a man full in the mouth, as if it fought that way to get out to the thing affected.

Verſe 12. Ye are not ſtraitned in us] Non habitatis anguſtè in nobis: ſo Piſcator renders it.

Digitized by Google

But ye are ſtraitned] Ye are bankrupts in love, ye comply not; ye do not reciprocate. Plain things will joyn in every point, one with another: not ſo round and rugged things.

Verſe 13. I ſpeak as unto my Children] Here are ſoft words, hard arguments: This is the way to win: and that was a ſad complaint, 2 Cor. 12. 15. Love loſt is a bitter affliction.

Verſe 14. Be not unequally yoked] Dare not (ſaith a Divine) to yoke thy ſelf with any untamed heifer, that bears not Chriſts yoke. Quàm malè inæquales veniunt ad aratra juvenci? An Ox and an Aſs might not be coupled together in the Law; and hereunto the Apoſtle ſeems to allude. The Doctours of Doway upon Lev. 19. 19. Here all participation, ſay they, with hereticks and ſchiſmaticks is forbidden. Philip King of Spain ſaid, He had rather have no Subjects, then Subjects of divers religions. And out of a bloody zeal, ſuffered his eldeſt ſon Charls to be murdered by the bloody Inquiſition, becauſe he ſeemed to favour our profeſſion. M. Ward. Ovid. epiſt. Hieron. Catina.

Verſe 15. What concord hath Chriſt] Thoſe Moderatours that plead for a correſpondency with Popery, would make a pretty ſhew, if there were no Bible. But if theſe reconcilers (as Franciſcus de ſancta Clara, and his fautors) were the wiſeſt men under heaven, and ſhould live to the worlds end, they would be brought to their wits end, before they could accompliſh this works end, to make a reconciliation betwixt Chriſt and Antichriſt, betwixt Rome and us. What harmony or concord, ſaith our Apoſtle, can be betwixt ſuch? they can never fall in, or make muſick together in one quire.

Verſe 16. I will dwell in them] Gr. I will indwel in them: This notes Gods neareſt communion with them. He ſetteth them before his face continually. Pſal. 41. 12. as loving to look upon them. The Philoſopher told his friends, when they came into his little low cottage, The gods are here with me. God and Angels are with his Saints. ἐνοικήσω ἐν αὐτοῖς. ἐνταῦθα γὰρ ἀπεσι θεοί.

And walk in them] As they did in Solomons porch, and other walks and galleries about the Temple. And hereunto the Prophet alludes, Zach. 3. 7. The Turks wonder to ſee a man walk to and fro, and uſually ask ſuch whether they be out of their way, or out of their wits. Biddulph.

Verſe 17. And be ye ſeparate] For groſs Idolatry, and for fundamental errours only muſt we ſeparate. Corruptions grew ſo great in the Church of Rome, that it juſtly occaſioned firſt the ſeparation of the Greek Churches from the Latine, and then of the Reformed Churches from the Roman. Machiavel obſerved, that after the thouſand year of Chriſt, there was nowhere leſs piety then in thoſe that dwelt neareſt to Rome. And Bellarmine bewails it, That ever ſince we cried up the Pope for Antichriſt, his kingdom hath not only not increaſed, but hath greatly decreaſed. Diſp. de rep. l. 1. cap. 12. Lib. 3. de Papa Rom. c. 21.

And I will receive you] So you ſhall be no loſers, I will put you into my boſom. God imparteth his ſweeteſt comforts to his in the wilderneſs, Hoſ. 2. 14.

Verſe 18. I will be a Father] The fundamental, meritorious, impulſive and final cauſes of this precious priviledge, ſee ſet forth, Eph. 1. 5, 6.

Saith the Lord Almighty] This is added by our Apoſtle to Ier. 31. 9. And not without cauſe: as for authority ſake, ſo to intimate that our adoption is a work of Gods almighty power. See that ſixfold gradation uſed by the Apoſtle to ſet forth this truth, Epheſ. 1. 19. having prayed before that their eyes might be enlightned to ſee the power that wrought in them.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

Chap. VII.

Verſe 1. Having therefore, &c.]

FAith in the promiſes purifieth the heart, Act. 15. 9. and argueth notably from mercy to duty, melting the hardneſs of it by the conſideration of the promiſes. Let a cart loaded go over a frozen river, the cart breaks the ice, but it remains ice ſtill. But let the Sun ſhine upon the river, and it diſſolveth it. The Apoſtle ſaith not, Having theſe menaces, but having theſe promiſes.

From all filthineſs] Sin defileth a man worſe then any jakes or leproſie. It is the devils excrement, it is the corruption of a dead ſoul. Seldom or never is there a birth of ſaving grace, but there follows it a flux of mortification.

Of fleſh and ſpirit] i.e. Both of the outward and inward man. Or of fleſh, that is, worldly luſts, and groſs evils, as uncleanneſs, earthly-mindedneſs, &c. And of ſpirit, that is, more ſpiritual luſts, as pride, preſumption, ſelf-flattery, &c. Theſe lie more up in the heart of the Countrey, as it were: thoſe other in the frontiers and skirts of it.

Perfecting holineſs] Propounding to our ſelves the higheſt pitch and the beſt paterns. And having for our Motto that of Charls the fifth Plus ultrà, further yet. And here let faith and obedience make a perfect pair of Compaſſes. Faith as the one foot muſt be pitcht upon the Center God, whiles obedience (as the other) walks about in a perfect circle of all good duties. He will not cruſh but cheriſh that worm Jacob. He will not break the bruiſed reed, &c.

In the fear of God] Which is the fountain whence holineſs flows. See Prov. 8. 13.

Verſe 2. Receive us] Gr. Make room for us in your hearts and houſes. Set wide open the everlaſting doors, that the King of glory may come in triumphantly riding upon us his white horſes, Rev. 6, 2.

χωρήσατε. Locum date.

We have wronged no man] Miniſters muſt ſo live, that they may, if need be, glory of their innocency and integrity, as did Moſes, Samuel, Paul, Melanthon.

We have corrupted no man] viz. As the falſe Apoſtles had done with their leaven of falſe Doctrine, which eateth as a canker, 2 Tim. 2. 17. or a gangrene, which preſently over-runs the parts, and takes the brain. Protagoras in Plato boaſted that of thoſe ſixty years that he had lived, he had ſpent fourty in corrupting of youth.

We have defrauded no man] We have cunningly made ſale of no man, as thoſe old impoſtors, that made prize of their priſoners, 2 Pet. 2. 3. And as thoſe Popiſh Muſcipulatores, or Mice-catchers, as the ſtory calleth them, that raked together their Peter-pence, and other moneys here in England by moſt deteſtable arts. Polydore Virgil was one of theſe ill officers, that left not ſo much money in the whole Kingdom ſometimes, as they either carried with them, or ſent to Rome before them.

Verſe 3. I ſpeak not this, &c.] Though cauſe enough he had to condemn them for their ſhameful tenacity toward him, whom they baſely ſuffered to labour for his living and to preach gratis, againſt all right and reaſon.

To die and to live with you] Such faithful friends are in this age all for the moſt part gone in pilgrimage, and their return is uncertain, as once the Duke of Buckingham ſaid to Biſhop Morton in Rich. the thirds time. Jonathan and David, Pylades and Oreſtes, Poliſtratus and Hippoclides are famous for their love one to another. Theſe two laſt, being Philoſophers of Epicurus his ſect, are ſaid to have been born the ſame day, to have lived together all their daies, and to have died in the ſame moment of time, being well ſtricken in years. But the love of Iriſh ſoſter brothers is ſaid far to ſurpaſs all the loves of all men.

Valer. Max. l. 1. c. 16.

Camd. Eliz. fol. 483.

Verſe 4. I am exceeding joyful] Gr. I do over-abound exceedingly with joy. Others may revel, the godly only rejoyce: they have an exuberancy of joy, ſuch as no good can match, no evil over-match: Witneſs the Martyrs ancient and modern. Oh how my heart leapeth for joy (ſaid one of them) that I am ſo near the apprehenſion of eternal bliſs! God forgive me mine unthankfulneſs and unworthineſs of ſo great glory. In all the daies of my life I was never ſo merry as now I am in this dark dungeon. Believe me there is no ſuch joy in the world, as the people of Chriſt have under the croſs. Thus and much more M. Philpot Martyr.

ὑπερπερισσεύομαι.

Act. & Mon. fol. 1668, 1669, 1670.

Digitized by Google

Verſe

Verſe 5. Our fleſh had no reſt] Our ſpirit had no unreſt. The outward man ſuffers much ſometimes, when the inward remains unmoleſted. Philip Lantgrave of Heſſe, being asked how he could ſo well bear his ſeven years impriſonment, anſwered, Se divinas Martyrum conſolationes ſenſiſſe, that he felt the divine conſolations of the Martyrs, which as bladders, bore him aloft all waters.

Verſe 6. God that comforteth] This is a moſt ſweet attribute of God, ſuch as we may profitably plead and produce in prayer. He loves to comfort thoſe that are forſaken of their hopes. He will not cruſh but cheriſh that worm Jacob. He will not break the bruiſed reed, &c.

By the coming of Titus] Who came very opportunely, even whiles Paul was writing this Epiſtle. Gods comforts are therefore ſweet, becauſe ſeaſonable. He never comes too ſoon, nor ſtaies too long. He waits to be gracious, as being a God of judgement. Were we but ripe, he is ready, and will lift us up in due time, 1 Pet. 5. 6. 2 Cor. 2. 12, 13. Iſa. 30. 18.

Verſe 7. Your earneſt deſire] Of ſeeing me, or rather of ſatisfying me.

Your fervent mind] Gr. Your zeal, both againſt the inceſtuous perſon, and the falſe Apoſtles, Saint Pauls adverſaries.

Verſe 8. Though it were but for a ſeaſon] Gr. For an hour. In ſin, the pleaſure paſſeth, the ſorrow remaineth: but in repentance, the ſorrow paſſeth, the pleaſure abideth for ever. God ſoon poureth the oyl of gladneſs into broken hearts.

Verſe 9. That ye ſorrowed to repentance] Gr. To a tranſmentation, to a thorow change both of the mind and manners. Optima & aptiſſima pœnitentia eſt nova vita, ſaith Luther. Which ſaying (though condemned by Pope Leo 10.) is certainly an excellent ſaying. Repentance for ſin is nothing worth without repentance from ſin. If thou repent with a contradiction (ſaith Tertullian) God will pardon thee with a contradiction. Thou repenteſt, and yet continueſt in thy ſin. God will pardon thee, and yet ſend thee to hell. There is a pardon with a contradiction. εἰς μετάνοιαν.

Sorry after a godly manner] Gr. According to God. This is a ſorrowing for ſin, as it is Offenſivum Dei, averſivum a Deo. This both comes from God, and drives a man to God, as it did the Church in the Canticles, and the Prodigal. ἡ κατὰ Θεὸν λύπη.

Verſe 10. Godly ſorrow worketh] Sin bred ſorrow, and ſorrow, being right, deſtroyeth ſin: as the worm that breeds in the wood, eats into it, and devours it. So that of this ſorrow according to God we may ſay as the Romans did of Pompey the great, That it is the fair and happy daughter of an ugly and odious mother. It may fitly be compared to Fauſtus, ſon of Vortiger King of Britain (inceſtuouſly begotten of his own daughter) who wept himſelf blind (ſaith the Chronicler) for the abominations of his Parents. Chryſoſt. Ἐχθρὸς πατρὸς φίλτατον τέκνον. Plutarch.

Repentance never to be repented of] That is, ſaith one, Never to fall back again: for a man in falling back, ſeemeth to repent him of his repentance. Others interpret it, ſuch a repentance, as a man ſhall never have cauſe to repent of. Job curſed the day of his birth; but no man was ever heard to curſe the day of his new birth. For it is repentance to ſalvation, it hath heaven: it is that rain-bow, which if God ſee ſhining in our hearts, he will never drown our ſouls. ἀμεταμέλ. Marbury of Repent.

But the ſorrow of the world] That which carnal men conceive either for the want or loſs of good, or for the ſenſe or fear of evil.

Worketh death] As it did in Queen Mary, who died (as ſome ſuppoſed by her much ſighing before her death) of thought and ſorrow either for the departure of K. Philip, or the loſs of Callice, or both. There are that interpret death in this place, of ſpiritual death, becauſe it is oppoſed here to life and ſalvation. Act and Mon. fol. 1901. Dike of the heart.

Verſe 11. What careſulneſs] Gr. What ſtudy, which (ſaith Tully) is an earneſt and ſerious bending and applying of the mind to ſome thing with a great deal of delight. It is rendred here careſulneſs, not that of diffidence, but that of diligence putting a man upon thoſe wholſom thoughts, What have I done? What ſhall I do? &c. σπουδὴν, Vehemens ad aliquam rem magna cum voluptate applicatio.

Yea what clearing] Gr. Apology or defence. The old interpreter renders it ſatisfaction. It may be (ſaith Mr. Bradford) he meant a new life, to make amends thereby to the Congregation offended. As the devil is called the Accuſer, ſo the Spirit is called, The Comforter, or pleader for us: becauſe as he maketh interceſſion in our hearts to God; ſo upon true repentance he helpeth us to make apologies for our ſelves; not by denying our ſins or defending them, but by confeſſing and diſclaiming them, as a child to his father. M. Bradford, Ser. of Repent. p. 14.

Digitized by Google

Yea, what indignation] Or stomach, as Ephraim, Jer. 31. 19. The publican who smote himself upon the breast, he would have knockt his corruptions, if he could have come at them: as those Isa. 30. 22. that polluted the Idols that they had perfumed, and said unto them, Get you hence, be packing. What have I to do any more with Idols? Hos. 14. 8. Out of doors with this Tamar, here is no room for her. So foolish was I, and so very a beast, saith David, Psal. 73. How angry and hot was he against himself, 2 Sam. 24. 10.

Yea, what fear] Of Gods heavy displeasure, and of doing any more so; the burnt child dreads the fire. He that hath been stung, hates a snake.

Yea, what vehement desire] As that of Rachel after children, as that of David after the water of the well of Bethlehem, as that of the hunted Hinde after the water-brooks. David panted and fainted after God. That Martyr cried out, None but Christ, none but Christ. Psal. 119.

Yea, what zeal] Which is an extream heat of all the affections for and toward God. Davids zeal ate him up. Paul was judged as mad for Christ, as ever he had been against him, 2 Cor. 5. 13. with Acts 26. 11.

Yea, what revenge] Out of deepest self-abhorrency, buffeting the flesh, and giving it the blew eye, as S. Paul (that crucifix of mortification) once did. Thus the women parted with their looking-glasses, Exod. 35. Mary Magdalen wiped Christs feet with her hair, wherewith she had formerly made nets to catch fools in. Cranmer burnt his right hand first, wherewith he had subscribed, and oftentimes repeated in the flames, This unworthy right hand, so long as his voice would suffer him. The true penitentiary amerceth himself, and abridgeth his flesh of some lawful comforts, as having forfeited all. These seven signs of godly sorrow are to be seen in the repenting Church, Cant. 5. as in a worthy example or emblem. I sleep, there is indignation, but my heart waketh, there's Apology. I arose to open, &c. there's study or care and diligence. My soul failed, there's her zeal. I sought him, I called on him, there's her vehement desire. The watchmen found me, they smote me, &c. There's her revenge, whiles she shrank not for any danger, but followed Christ thorow thick and thin in the night among the watch. And all this shews her fear of being again overtaken with drousiness. Acts and Mon. fol. 1714.

To be clear in this matter] Because they had heartily repented of it. Quem pœnitet peccasse, pœnè est innocens. Repentance is almost equivalent to innocence. Imò plus est propemodùm à vitiis se revocasse, quam vitia ipsa nescivisse, saith Ambrose. Sen. in Agam. Amb. in Psal.

Verse 12. Not for his cause] That is, Not so much for his cause.

That suffered the wrong] viz. The father of the incestuous person. Compare, Gen. 49. 4.

But that our care for you] That the Church might not suffer; as allowing such foul facts. How the Primitive Christians were slandred by the Heathens in this kind, who knows not? Cenalis Bishop of Anranches wrote against the Church at Paris, defending impudently that their assemblies were to maintain whoredom. Such reports also they cast abroad a little before the massacre. They tell the people in Italy, that Geneva is a professed Sanctuary of all roguery, that in England the people are grown barbarous, and eat young children, &c. Act. and Mon. 838.

Verse 13. His spirit was refreshed] After his long and tedious toil and travel to come to you, he never thought much of his labour. Calvin said, That it would not grieve him to sail over ten seas about an uniform draught for religion. Ne decem quidem maria, &c.

Verse 14. I am not ashamed] As I should have been, had it proved otherwise. Lying is a blushful sin: and therefore the lier denies his own lie, because he is ashamed to be taken with it: and our ruffians revenge it with a stab.

Verse 15. Whiles he remembreth] Deep affections make deep impressions.

Verse 16. I rejoyce therefore] Thus by praising them, he further winneth upon them, whom before he had more sharply handled. Sowre and sweet make the best sawce.

CHAP.

CHAP. VIII.

Verſe 1. Of the grace of God.]

IT is a favour, yea an honour to us, that we may relieve poor Chriſt in his neceſſitous members, Pſal. 16.2. When therefore he ſets us up an Altar, be we ready with this Sacrifice. Heb. 13.16.

Verſe 2. In a great trial of affliction] For affliction tries what mettle we are made of. Alchymy gold will not endure the ſeventh fire as true gold will. Affliction (the trial of our faith) is more precious then gold, 1. Pet. 1.7. What then is faith it ſelf ſo tried? Revel. 3.18.

The abundance of their joy] Whileſt the ſpirit of glory and of God reſted upon them, 1 Pet. 4.14. Well may grace be called the divine nature: for, as God brings light out of darkneſs, riches out of poverty, &c. ſo doth grace: it turns dirt into gold, &c. The world wonders (ſaid that Martyr) how we can be ſo merry in ſuch extream miſery. But our God is omnipotent, which turneth miſery into felicity, &c. See the Note on 2 Cor. 7.4. Act. and Mon. fol. 1688.

Their deep poverty] Gr. Their poverty being now at the very bottome, and having little left beſide hope; they were even exhauſted, and yet gave liberally. Giles of Bruſſels, Martyr, gave to the poor whatſoever he had, that neceſſity could ſpare, and only lived by his ſcience, which was of a Cutler. Some he refreſht with his meat, ſome with his cloaths, ſome with his houſhold ſtuff. One poor woman there was brought to bed, and had no bed to lie in; to whom he brought his own bed, himſelf content to lie in the ſtraw. ἡ κατὰ βάθους πτωχεία. Act. and Mon. fol. 811.

Unto the riches of their liberality] Gr. Of their ſimplicity, in oppoſition to that crafty and witty wilineſs of the covetous to defend themſelves from the danger of liberality; wherein alſo they are utterly miſtaken; for not getting, but giving is the way to thrive. See the note on Mat. 6.4. Ἁπλότης.

Verſe 3. Yea and beyond their power] One ſuch poor Macedonian might well ſhame a hundred rich Corinthian curmudgins. They knew that Manus pauperum eſt gazophylacium Chriſti, and might haply have heard of their once king Alexander the great, how that when he had undertaken the conqueſt of the Perſian Empire, he gave away his treaſure: and being asked where it was? he pointed to the poor, and ſaid, In ſcriniis, in my cheſts; And when he was further asked, what what he kept for himſelf, he anſwered, Spem majorum & meliorum, The hope of greater and better things.

They were willing] Gr. They were voluntiers, full of chearful charity. So were Aidanus, and after him Mr. Fox, who gave his horſe to a poor begger that anſwered him diſcreetly. Mr. Greenham alſo, gave more then he could ſpare: ſo that he uſually wanted money to get in his harveſt. αὐθαίρετοι.

Verſe 4. Receive the gift] Gr. The Grace, i. e. the alms: it being of Gods free grace that we have, 1. What to give. 2. Hearts to give it. For naturally we are all like children, which though they have their boſoms, mouths, and both hands full, yet are loth to part with any. χάριν.

Verſe 5. Not as we hoped] God is uſually better to us then our hopes.

Firſt gave their own ſelves to the Lord] Ay, this is the right way of giving alms; and this is done by faith, the work whereof is to be an empty hand, Mendica manus (as Luther calleth it) a beggars hand to receive it; but when it hath received, it gives back again it ſelf and all, and thinks all too little, as Mary Magdalen did her precious ointment.

And unto us by the will] The good ſoul delivers up it ſelf to Chriſts faithful Miniſters, and ſaith in effect to them, as Luther, before he was better informed, wrote to Pope Leo X: anno 1518. proſtratum pedibus me tibi offero, cum omnibus quæ ſum & habeo: —— Vocem tuam vocem Chriſti in te præſidentis & loquentis agnoſcam. I humbly proſtrate my ſelf with all that I have, and am at thy feet, &c. Scul. Annal. 28

Verſe 6. So he would finiſh] Finis opus coronat, The end is better then the beginning, ſaith Solomon. Charles the 5. his Emblem was Ulterius. Titus was here deſired to take up the whole alms, and not to faint till he had finiſhed, Gal. 6.9.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 7. As ye abound in faith] He purpoſely commendeth them, that he may the better inſinuate into them. Miniſters may profitably praiſe their people in ſome caſes, that they may the ſooner win them to duty: For there is no ſo ſweet hearing (ſaith Xenophon) as a mans own commendation.

ἥδιστον ἀκούσμα ἑαυτῷ.

Verſe 8. To prove the ſincerity] Gr. The germanity, the naturalneſs, legitimateneſs oppoſed to baſtardlineſs. This age aboundeth with mouth-mercy, which is good cheap, and therefore like refuſe fruit is found growing in every hedge. But a little handful were worth a great many ſuch mouth fuls, Iſa. 58,18. Complaint is made, that there is not any one that taketh Sion by the hand. Saint James tels of ſome in his time that would feed their poor brethren with good words, and good wiſhes, James 2.15,16. as if they had been of the Chamelion kinde, to live with Ephraim upon winde, Hoſ. 12.1. But what ſaid the poor man to the Cardinal, who denyed him a peny which he begged, and offered him his bleſſing, which he begg'd not? If thy bleſſing had been worth a peny, I ſhould not have had it; keep it therefore to thy ſelf, Carle.

τὸ γνήσιον·

Verſe 9. He became poor] Not having where to lay his head, nor wherewith to pay tribute, till he had ſent to ſea for it, &c. Lo he that was heir of all things, Heb. 1.2. was ſcarce owner of any thing, but diſmiſhed and diſrobed himſelf of all, that through his poverty, he might crown us with the inestimable riches of heavenly glory; This is ſuch a motive to mercifulneſs as may melt the moſt flinty heart that is. Riches imply two things, 1. Plenty of that which is precious. 2. Propriety; they muſt be good things that are our own; and ſo, thoſe only are rich, that have intereſt in Chriſts purchaſe.

Verſe 10. But alſo to be forward] Gr. To be willing. This the Apoſtle makes to be more then to do, that is, then to do with an ill will, or for by-reſpects. Virtus nolentium nulla eſt. Chriſt will enjoy his Spouſes love by a willing contract, not by a raviſhment; the title of all converts is a willing people.

Pſal.110.3.

Verſe 11. Now therefore perform] Unleſs our willing of good be ſeconded with endeavour, it is nothing worth; Balaam wiſhed well to heaven; ſo did he that came kneeling to our Saviour with good maſter, &c. but they ſtuck at the hardſhip of holineſs, without which there is no heaven to be had; they would not come off here, and therefore gat nothing by their ſhortwinded wiſhes. Solomon compares ſuch ſluggards to the door that turns on the hinges, but yet hangs ſtill upon them, it comes not off for all the turnings. Their purpoſes without performances are like a cloud without rain; and not unlike Hercules club in the tragedy, of a great bulk, but ſtuft with moſs and rubbiſh.

Virtutem expotant cotnabei cnutque reliſta Perſ.

Verſe 12. It is accepted] Sic minimo capitur thuris honore Deus. Noahs ſacrifice could not be great, yet was greatly accepted. Jacob bad his ſons take a little of every good thing, and carry for a preſent to the Lord of Egypt. Saul and his ſervant preſent Samuel with the fourth part of a ſhekel, to the value of about our five-pence. Thankfulneſs (they had learned) was not meaſured by God and by good men by the weight, but by the will of the retributour. God cals for that which a mans heart inclines him to do, be it more, be it leſs; ſo low doth his higneſs ſtoop to our meanneſs; preferring the willingneſs of the minde, before the worthineſs of the work. That poor widdows mite was beyond the rich mens magnificence, becauſe it came out of a richer minde.

Verſe 13. And you burdened] Gr. Pinched or preſſed, viz. with poverty.

θλίψις;

Verſe 14. Your abundance] That your cup may overflow into their leſſer diſhes, that your ſuperfluities both in reſpect of the neceſſity of nature and exigency of eſtate (as the Schoolmen ſpeak) may ſupply the wants of Gods poor afflicted.

A ſupply for your want] Thoſe that lend mercy may have need to borow. The Shunamite that refuſed once to be ſpoken for to the King by the Prophet, little thought ſhe ſhould afterwards have craved that curteſie of his man Gehezi: Thoſe that ſtand faſteſt upon earth have but ſlippery footing: No man can ſay, that he ſhall not need friends. Pythias was ſo wealthy a man, that he was able to entertain Xerxes his whole Army conſiſting of a million of men: yet afterwards he became ſo poor that he wanted bread.

Verſe 15. He that had gathered much] He that was ſo nimble as to gather more then his neghbour, was to ſupply his neighbour, that every man might have his Omer.

Now

Digitized by Google

Now the equity of this law being common and perpetual, the Apoſtle draweth his argument from it. Riches, ſaith one, are but as Manna: thoſe that gathered more of it, had but enough to ſerve their turn (or if they gathered more, it was but a trouble and annoyance to them) and they that gathered leſs had no want. Let the rich account themſelves the poor mans ſtewards. With-hold not good from the owners thereof (the poor) when it is in the power of thy hand to do it. Prov. 3. 27. See the Note there.

Verſe 16. But thanks be to God] Deo gratias was ever in Pauls mouth, and in Auſtins, and ſhould be in ours.

Verſe 17. But being more forward] A good heart is ready to every good work, waiting the occaſions thereof, Tit. 3. 1. as the Bee, ſo ſoon as ever the Sun breaks forth, flies abroad to gather honey and wax.

Verſe 18. Whoſe praiſe is in the Goſpel] S. Luke, likely, who firſt wrote the Goſpel, as ſome gather out of Luke 1. 1. and whom Ambroſe highly commendeth for the moſt clear and diſtinct Goſpel-writer.

Verſe 19. Choſen of the Churches] This compared with Act. 13. 1, 2. it may ſeem the Apoſtle meaneth not Luke, but Barnabas: though others think Timothy. Dare in 1 Tim. 6. 12. ἀγωνιζου.

Verſe 20. Avoiding this] As ſhipmen avoid a rock or ſhelf: for it a ſeafaring term, and ſhews how ſhie we ſhould be of doing ought that may render our honeſty ſuſpected. Ego ſi bonam famam ſervaſſo, ſat dives ero, ſaid he in the Comedy.

Verſe 21. Providing] Projecting, procuring. A good name is a great bleſſing, and therefore the ſame word in Hebrew ſignifieth both, Prov. 28. 20. προνοώμενοι. ברכה

Verſe 22. Whom we have oft] Some are of opinion that Luke is here deciphered rather then verſ. 19. Whoever it was, it is much for his honour, that Apelles-like he was approved in Chriſt, and active for the Church. Rom 16.

Verſe 23. Meſſengers] Gr. Apoſtles, Emandati, Ambaſſadours of ſpecial and high employment.

The glory of Chriſt] So the Church is called the glory, Iſa. 4. 5. Gods glory, Iſa. 46. 13. a crown of glory, and a royal diadem in the hand of Jehovah, Iſa. 62. 3. The throne of God, Exod. 17. 6. The throne of glory, Jer. 4. 21. The ornament of God, yea the beauty of his ornament, ſet in Majeſty, Ezek. 7. 20. There is not ſo much of the glory of God (ſaith one) in all his works of creation and providence, as in one gracious action, that a Chriſtian performs.

Verſe 24. Wherefore ſhew ye] As by an ocular demonſtration, or as by pointing the finger. εἰς πρόσωπον.

Before the Churches] In the face of the Churches, whoſe eyes are now full ſet upon you, to ſee what entertainment ye will give to their meſſengers. A Chriſtian is like a cryſtal glaſs with a lamp in the midſt.

CHAP. IX.

Verſe 1. The miniſtring to the Saints]

OR the ſervice that ye owe the Saints in miniſtring to their neceſſities. Amadeus Duke of Savoy, Stephanus King of Hungary, Hooper Biſhop of Glocester, and Doctor Tailor Martyr, are famous for their labour of love in miniſtring to the Saints. διακονία.

Verſe 2. Was ready] To wit, in their reſolutions: for the collection was not yet made.

And your zeal] i. e. Your liberal contribution out of deep affection, and an holy emulation to exceed others in bounty.

Verſe 4. In this ſame confident boaſting] Gr. In this confidence of glorying: A Metaphor from hunters, who confidently expect the beaſt, and valiantly ſet upon him. Sic Latini dicunt, ſubſiſtere aprum. Capel. in Spic.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 5. Not of covetouſneſs] Non ut extortum aliquid, ſaith Piſcator, vel ut illiberale aliquid. Not as wrung out of you, ſqueezed out, as verjuice is out of a crab. Covetous perſons part with their penny as with blood out of their hearts. Citius aquam ex pumice, clavum ex manu Herculis exorqueas. God will ſet off all hearts from ſuch Misers, in their miſery, that are ſo unreaſonably mercileſs. Bounty or Bleſſing (for ſo the Greek word ſignifies) is here fitly oppoſed to covetouſneſs: and Saint Paul concludes, that when Church-contributions are not free and liberal, Covetouſneſs is the cauſe.

εὐλογία.

ἐν εὐλογίαις.

Verſe 6. Which ſoweth bountifully] Gr. That ſoweth in bleſſings; alluding to Ezek. 34. 26. Eccleſ. 11. 1. Caſt thy bread upon the water, that is, upon fat and fertile places, loca irrigua. A Metaphor from ſeedſmen, who eat not all, ſell not all, but ſow ſome; ſo ſhould we ſow that we have upon the backs and bellies of the poor; ſow more of this ſeed in Gods bleſſed boſom, the fruit whereof we are ſure to reap in our greateſt need.

Verſe 7. According as he purpoſeth] God ſtraineth upon none: See Levit. 5. 6, 12. and 14. 10, 21, 30. Liberality implieth liberty.

God loveth a cheerfull giver] Dat benè, dat multum, qui dat cum munere vultum. One may give with his hand, and pull it back with his looks.

Verſe 8. And God is able] Fear not therefore leſt your ſelves ſhould want hereafter, if you ſhould give liberally now. Is not mercy as ſure a grain as vanity? Is God like to break?

Having all ſufficiency] He ſaith not, ſuperfluity. Enough we ſhall be ſure of, and an honeſt affluence, if fit for it, and can make us friends with it. Bonus Deus Conſtantinum magnum tantis terrenis implevit muneribus, quanta optare nullus auderet, ſaith Auſtin. God gave Conſtantine more wealth then heart could wiſh, and he was no niggard of it to poor Chriſtians.

De civit. Dei, l. 5. c. 25.

In all things] The Apoſtle uſeth many All's, on purpoſe to croſs and confute our covetouſneſs, who are apt to think we have never enough.

Verſe 9. He hath diſperſed abroad] General Norice was like that Biſhop of Lincoln, that never thought he had that thing that he did not give. Of M. Wiſehowr the Scottiſh Martyr it is reported, that his charity had never end, night, day, nor noon. He forbare one meal in three, one day in four for the moſt part to beſtow it on the poor. He never changed his ſheets, but he gave them away, &c.

Act. and Mon. fol. 1855.

His righteouſneſs endureth for ever] Never did a charitable act go away without the retribution of a bleſſing. See the Note on Mat. 10. 42.

Verſe 10. And multiply your ſeed ſown] He that ſoweth ſeemeth to caſt away his ſeed, but he knows he ſhall receive his with uſury. Iſaac had a hundred-fold encreaſe. In Ægypt, ſo far as the river Nilus watereth, the ground is ſo fruitful, that they do but throw in the ſeed, and have four rich harveſts in leſs then four moneths. Temporalia Dei ſervis impenſa non pereunt, ſed parturiunt. Si dediſſes tres aureos, accepiſſes trecentos, ſaid that Biſhop of Millain to his ſervant, that had not given ſo much to the poor as he had appointed him. If we never ſow, we ſhall never reap, ſaid that good poor Miniſter that bad his wife give three pence, (his whole ſtock) to a poor brother. Another good man having nothing left, and his wife deſiring to know how he and his family ſhould live, he anſwered, he would now put his bond in ſuit, pray over the promiſes, and not doubt of the performance.

Blunts voyage, 77.

Ioh. Manlii loc. com. pag. 359.

Rogers of love. Saints encour. by M. Leigh.

Verſe 11. Which cauſeth through us] Whiles we not only relieve them, but inſtruct them, as Biſhop Hooper did his board of beggars, as D. Tailor the Martyr did the Alms-people of Hadley, and other poor of his Pariſh. As Giles of Bruſſels did miniſtring wholeſome exhortation of ſound doctrine to them he relieved, and ſo eliciting, from them many thankſgivings unto God.

Act. and Mon. fol 170. Ibid. 1387.

Verſe 13. For your profeſſed ſubjection] Whileſt you teſtifie your faith by your works, as they produced the coats that Dorcas made, to prove her a devout woman; and as Numbers 13. 13. it appeared by the fruits it was a good land. Heathens acknowledged, That no people in the world did love one another ſo as Chriſtians did.

Verſe 14. And by their prayer for you] A poor Chriſtians prayers cannot be bought too dear. I will reſtore comfort to him, and to his mourners, Iſa. 57. 18. Such can do much much with God. Et cum talis fueris, memento mei, ſaith Bernard to his poor, but pure friend. How heartily prayeth Paul for Oneſiphorus, 2 Tim. 1. 18? Meditat. devotiſſ. cap. 5.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 15. For his unſpeakable gift] That is, for Chriſt, (ſaith Theophylact, whom Piſcator followeth) who is called the gift, by an excellency, Joh. 4. 10. and the benefit, 2 Tim. 6. 2.

CHAP. X.

Verſe 1. By the meekneſs and gentleneſs]

WHom in thoſe ſweet vertues I deſire to imitate. The praiſe of Chriſts meekneſs recorded by the Prophet, and explained by Philip, converted the Eunuch, Acts 8.

Who in preſence am baſe] i. e. Deſpicable, becauſe I take not upon me, and bear a port, as the falſe Apoſtles do. Meekneſs of ſpirit commonly draws on injuries. A Crow will ſtand upon a ſheeps back pulling off wool from her ſides.

Am bold toward you] So mine adverſaries report me, as if I were overbold and buſie by my letters.

Verſe 2. That I may not be bold] That you neceſſitate me not. Non niſi coactus hoc facio, ſaid that Emperour that ſubſcribed a warrant to put one to death.

With that confidence] It was but confidence: but they made the worſt of it, and called it boldneſs, Quam vitio verterunt. Evil will never ſpeaks well.

Verſe 3. We do not war, &c.] The Miniſtery is a kind of Militia, 1 Tim. 1. 18. Chriſt rideth on Miniſters, as his white horſes, conquering and to conquer, Rev. 6. 2.

Verſe 4. Are not carnal] i. e. Weak, oppoſed here to mighty. The fleſh is weak as water, therefore called the old man, old leaven, &c. Theſe weak weapons of the falſe Apoſtles (here intimated and taxed) are humane eloquence, artificial compoſures, &c. of thoſe Verbaliſts, Qui exceptis verbis tinnulis & emendicatis, nihil loquuntur, as Hierom hath it.

But mighty through God] Note here the Apoſtles modeſty. Not we, ſaith he, but our weapons are mighty; and not through us that wield them, but through God that works by and with them. See the Note on 1 Cor. 15. 10.

To the pulling down of ſtrong-holds] Forts, Munitions, Trenches, Cages of foul ſpirits inhabiting mens hearts.

Verſe 5. Caſting down imaginations] As the ſpettle that comes out of mans mouth ſlaieth ſerpents: ſo doth that which proceedeth out of the mouths of Gods faithful Miniſters quell and kill evil imaginations, carnal reaſonings, which are that legion of domeſtical devils, that hold near intelligence with the old Serpent. Nemo ſibi de ſuo palpet: quiſque ſibi Satan eſt. Corrupt reaſon, like Eve and Jobs wife, is alwayes drawing us from God. Out of doors with this Hagar.

And bringing into captivity] See here the proceſs of S. Pauls Miniſtery. He overthrows, captivates, ſubdues to the obedience of the Lord Chriſt. See the like, Jer. 1. 10. Choſroes King of Parthia, was ſo ſubdued by the Romans, that he made a law that none of his ſucceſſors ſhould ever wage war with them again. So here.

Verſe 6. And having in a readineſs] Vengeance is every whit as ready in Gods hand, as in the Miniſters mouth. See Mat. 16. 19. & 18. 18. Eliſha hath his ſword as well as Jehu and Hazael, 1 King. 19. 17. God hews men by his Prophets and ſlaies them by the words of his mouth, Hoſ. 6. 5. By preaching, Chriſt many times ſmites the earth, Iſa. 11. 4. his word lyes hold on them, Zach. 1. 6. and that which they have counted winde, hath become fire to devour them, Jer. 5. 13, 14.

Verſe 7. Do ye look on things] q. d. Are ye ſo weak as to be cozened by an out-ſide, to be carried away with ſhews and ſhadows of true worth? Do not many things gliſter beſides gold? Every bird that hath a ſeemly feather, hath not the ſweeteſt fleſh; nor doth every tree that beareth a goodly leaf, bring good fruit. Glaſs giveth a clearer ſound then ſilver, &c.

Even

Digitized by Google

Even so are we Christs] The Rogatian hereticks would have made the world believe, that they were the only Catholikes. The Arrians called the true Christians Ambrosians, Athanasians, Homousians, &c. The Donatists made themselves the only true Church, &c.

Verse 8. And not for destruction] If it prove so, it is by accident, and not as we intend it. See the Note on 2 Cor. 2. 16.

Verse 9. Terrifie you by letters] As the false Apostles object against me. Aspersions must be carefully cleared, when the fruit of a mans Ministry is thereby impeached and impeded.

Verse 10. Weighty and powerful] As often as I read Pauls Epistles, Non verba, sed tonitrua audire mihi videor, saith Hierom, Me thinks I hear not words, but thunder-claps. But that his bodily presence was not weak, nor his speech contemptible. See Acts 13. 10. together with the Note thereon.

Verse 11. Such will we be, &c.] That we have not hitherto been so, was because we spared you. Posse & nolle nobile, saith Chrysostom. Kindness is godliness, Isa. 40. 6. חסד.

Verse 12. For we dare not] This he speaks by an irony, whereof he is full in this Epistle: and may therefore be called as Socrates was, ὁ εἴρων.

But they measuring themselves, &c.] Turning the other end of the perspective, they see themselves bigger, and others lesser then they are. So bladder-like is the soul, that filled with earthly vanities, though but wind, it grows great and swels in pride. O pray to be preserved from this perilous pinnacle of self-exaltation. Look into the perfect law of liberty, and draw nigh to God. The nearer we come to God, the more rottenness we finde in our bones. The more any man looks into the body of the Sun, the less he seeth, when he looks down again.

Verse 13. But we will not boast, &c.] As any man is more worthful, he is more modest: full vessels yield no such sound as empty casks do. A vessel cast into the sea, the more it fils the deeper it sinks: the loaden scale goes downward: the most precious balm sinks to the bottom. The good ear of corn, the fuller it is, the lower it hangs the head.

Verse 14. For we stretch not, &c.] We tenter not our selves beyond our scantling. ὑπερεκτείνομεν Verse 15. Not boasting of things] Ammianus Marcellinus tels of one Lampadius, a great person in Rome, who through all parts of the City, where other men had bestowed cost in building, he would set up his own name, not as a repairer of the work, but as the chief builder. Of the same fault Trajan the Emperour is said to have been guilty: Whence he was commonly called, Herba parietina, or Wall-wort. Am. Marcel.

Verse 16. In the regions beyond you] This was a piece of the Bragadochio false Apostles vain boasting: at it is now of the Jesuites, those Circulatores and Agyrtæ, that compass sea and land, crack of what conversions they have wrought in India and Africk, and Dampadius-like, take it ill at any mans hand that commend them not every time they spet upon the ground. Caius the Emperour was ready to destroy the whole Senate, because they did not deifie him for marching with his whole Army to the Ocean, and fetching thence a few oyster-shels, Quibus spoliis acceptis magnificè gloriabatur quasi Oceano subacto. Dio in vita Caligulæ.

Verse 17. Glory in the Lord] See the Note on 1 Cor. 1. 31.

Verse 18. Whom the Lord commendeth] As he did his servant Iob, chap. 1. 8. And as he did his hand-maid Sarah, for calling her husband Lord, though there was never a good word besides in the whole sentence, 1 Pet. 3. 6. with Gen. 18. 22. Neither was Iob so patient, but that he had his out-bursts. All which notwithstanding ye have heard of the patience of Iob, &c. James 5. 11. He is not challenged at all for his impatience, but crowned and chronicled for his patience. See here the wonderful goodness of God toward his: and take comfort in his white stone, against the black coals of ill-affected persons.

Is approved] Or, will pass for current coin in heaven, When slips are abroad, men will take heed what money they take. δόκιμος.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

CHAP. XI.

Verse 1. In my folly]

HOw fooliſh were the Phariſes, John 7.49. and after them the Gnoſticks, the Illuminates, and now the Jeſuites that boaſt themſelves to be the onely knowing men? Palemon the Grammarian that bragged that all learning was born with him, and would dye when he dyed? Epicurus, that he firſt found out the truth, &c. Richardus de S. Victore, that gave out that he knew more in Divinity, then any Prophet or Apoſtle of them all? Theſe were fools to purpoſe: The Apoſtle was put upon a neceſſity of commending himſelf, ſo to vindicate his Miniſtery from the contempt caſt upon him by the Corinthians. Sueton. Parel. hiſt. eccl.

Verſe 2. For I am jealous] q. d. My dear love to you puts me upon this praiſing my ſelf.

With a godly jealouſie] Gr. With a zeal of God, called the flame of God, Cant. 8.6. ſuch as was that of Job over his children, for fear they ſhould ſin againſt God; not ſuch as was that of the Phariſes over the Galatians, the hypocriſie of jealouſie, Gal. 4.17.

For I have eſpouſed you] Gr. I have fitted you, as things that are pieced together, are glewed or ſoddered. ἡρμοσάμην. Velut ea quæ glutino aut ferrumine committuntur. Eraſm.

To one huſband] Here the Cedar taketh the thiſtle to wife (tantus tantillos) and doth all the offices of an husband to her. He firſt loveth his Church, and then purifieth her, Epheſ. 5.25.26. (Ahaſhueroſh had the virgins firſt purified and perfumed, before he took them to his bed) He puts upon her his own comelineſs, as Eleazer put the jewels upon Rebecca (hence ſhe is called Callah of the perfection of her attire, ornaments and beauty, Jer. 2.32.) 3. He maketh love to her by his Paranymphs, his Miniſters, who woo for him, and preſent her to Chriſt as a chaſte virgin. 4. He co-habites with her, Cant. 7.5. The King is tied in the rafters. 5. He rejoyceth over her, Iſa. 62.4,5. 6. He doth the marriage duty to her, and maketh her the mother of us all, Gal. 4.26. Rom. 7.1. —— 7. He nouriſheth and cheriſheth her, Epheſ. 5.29. 8. He hateth putting away, Mal. 2.16. and provideth for her eternal welfare, Epheſ. 1.27. Col. 1.21,22. 2 Kings 14.9. Ezek 16.

Verſe 3. But I fear] Jealouſie is made up of love, fear and anger.

By his ſubtilty] He muſtered all his forces, or rather all his frauds together to cheat her. That old Serpent when he was young, outwitted our firſt Parents: Now that he is old, and we young, Epheſ. 4.14. what will he not do, if we watch not? Bellarmine ſaith of his Romaniſts, Romani ſicut non acumina, ita nec impoſturas habent, that they are neither ſharp nor ſubtle. The Devil is both, and ſo are they: witneſs their crafty cruel both poſitions and diſpoſitions. This old Serpent having lent them both his ſeven heads to plot, and his ten horns to puſh.

So your minds ſhould be corrupted] Satan hath his νοήματα, his ſet and compoſed machinations. 2 Cor. 2.11. whereby he adulterateth our νοήματα, our judgements.

From the ſimplicity, &c.] Of all graces Satan would beguil us of this ſimplicity: the world calls it ſillineſs, ſheepiſhneſs.

Verſe 4. But if he that cometh] Giddy hearers, wherried about with every novelty, have no mould, but what the next teacher caſts them into; being blown like glaſſes into this or that ſhape at the pleaſure of his breath. See John 5.43.

Verſe 5. The very chiefeſt Apoſtles] Either he meaneth thoſe Pillars, Peter, James, John, &c. Gal. 2.6. Or the falſe Apoſtles, whom he ſtileth chiefeſt by an Irony, becauſe they ſought to bear away the bell, and be counted prime Preachers.

Verſe 6. But though I be rude in ſpeech] Gr. An Idiot, a plain down-right, home-ſpun, homely ſpoken perſon. The ancients buſied themſelves (ſaith Cyril) οὐ τῇ εὐεπιλογίᾳ, not about coynt and new coyn'd language, but ἐν ἀποδείξει τῇ θείων γραφῶν, about ſolid demonſtations drawn out of the holy Scriptures. Hierome reports of Didymus that he was an Apoſtolike writer, as you might eaſily gather by his ſtile, Tam ſenſuum nomine quam ſimplicitate verborum. His matter was as lofty, as his language low and ordinary. Hierom himſelf is much commended by learned men, Quòd ubiq; non ſit æque Latinus, that he is not always ſo curious and choice of his words. But what reaſon he had I ſee not, to cenſure S. Paul ſo ſharply as he doth, Ob ſenſus involutos, eloquium implicatum, & artis Grammaticæ imperitiam, for his intricate ſenſe, dark elocution, and unskilfulneſs in Grammar-learning. True it is, he was a plain Preacher, as he here acknowledgeth: Cir l. Hieron. olom. Vives l. 2. & 3 de trad. diſcip. Hieron. epiſt. ad Ageſiam.

Digitized by Google

and why he affected plainneſs, he telleth us, 1 Cor. 1.17. as ſtooping to vulgar capacities. But that he could play the Orator if he pleaſed, appears, Act. 17.22. &c. and Act. 26.2. Inſomuch as the Lycaonians called him Mercury, becauſe he was a Maſter of ſpeech, Act. 14.12. And as for his Epiſtles, there is as good Rhetorick found in them, as in any Heathen Orator whatſoever; Demoſthenes is but dull to him: and Auſtins wiſh was to have ſeen, Paulum in ore, Paul preaching, which he would have eſteemed an high happineſs.

Verſe 7. I have preached to you freely] Becauſe he gat his living with his hands, that he might preach gratis, they deſpiſed him as a mean mechanick. This is merces mundi, the worlds wages, Nil habet infœlix paupertas, &c. Miniſters muſt have an honorable Maintenance (and not be forced to weave for a living, as Muſculus was, or to ſerve the Maſon, as another great Scholar) or elſe they will be ſhamefully ſlighted.

Verſe 8. I robbed other Churches] Grandis Metaphora, ſaith Piſcator. I took maintenance from them (as the Apoſtle preſently expounds himſelf) I made a prey and prize of them.

ἐσύλησα. Verſe 9. And wanted] Gr. And was behinde hand.

κατενάρκησα. I was chargeable to no man] I was none of thoſe droans that chill the charity of well-diſpoſed people, as the Cramp-fiſh benummeth thoſe that touch or come near it.

νάρκη Torpedo. Verſe 10. As the truth of Chriſt is in me] He confirms it with an oath, that he will not take a peny of them, whiles he preacheth in thoſe parts. A Miniſter ſhould be careſull of whom he receives a kindneſs. Note further from this text, that lawſull things, when they prove inexpedient and gravaminous, may be forborn, by the bond of a Covenant.

Ver. 11. Becauſe I love you not?] It ſhould be a Miniſters care to preſerve in the hearts of his people an opinion of his love to them. For if they once conceive an incurable prejudice againſt him, that he hates them, or the like, there's no good will be done.

Verſe 12. That I may cut off occaſion] There were thoſe that waited for it, as earneſtly as a dog doth for a bone, as we ſay. Habuerunt ſuos cuculos omnes docti & heroici quolibet tempore, ſaith Melanchon. Every Zopyrus hath his Zoilus.

That wherein they glory] They, likely, had feathered their neſts, and ſo might well afford to preach gratis. Paul, though not ſo well under-laid, would not come behinde them in that neither. He would not be leſs buſie (though he laboured hard for it) in building ſtair-caſes to heaven, then they were in digging deſcents down to hell.

Verſe 13. Deceitfull workers] They ſeemed to labour, but indeed they loitered, or worſe; ſeeking to ſet up themſelves in the hearts of Gods people.

Transforming themſelves, &c.] The Manichees derived their name of Manna, becauſe they held, that whatſoever they taught was to be received as food from heaven. Montanus ſaid, He was the Comforter, &c. Novatus called himſelf Moſes, and a brother that he had Aaron. The Family of Love ſet out their Evangelium regni. The Swenckfeldians (Stinckfeldians Luther called them, from the ill ſavour of their opinions) entituled themſelves with that glorious name, The Confeſſors of the glory of Chriſt. Schluſſenburg.

Verſe 14. Satan himſelf is, &c.] Satan (ſaith one) doth not always appear in one and the ſame faſhion, but hath as many ſeveral changes as Proteus among the Poets. At Lyſtra he appears like a Comædian, as if a Scene of Plautus were to be preſented on the Stage. At Antioch like a Jeſuite with traditions in his mouth. At Athens he ſallies out like a Philoſopher. At Epheſus like an Artificer, and here at Corinth he is transformed into an Angel of light. Fiery Serpents full of deadly poiſon are called Seraphims, Numb. 21.6. Iſa. 30.6.

Verſe 15. As the Miniſters of righteouſneſs] Cavete à Melampygo. Try before you truſt: Sectaries and Seducers are very ſubtle and inſinuative; the locuſts have faces like women; know them and avoid them. When one commended the Popes Legate at the Councel of Baſil, Sigiſmund the Emperour anſwered, Tamen Romanus eſt, yet he is a Roman. So, let Satan or his Agents come never ſo much commended to us in his fugred allurements, let us anſwer, Yet he is a devil. Sin draws the Devils picture in a man; envy is the devils eye, falſhood his tongue, oppreſſion his hand, hypocriſie his cloven foot, &c.

Verſe 16. Let no man think me] There was never man, nor action, but was ſubject to variety of cenſures and miſconſtructions, fooliſh men daring to reprehend that which they

Digitized by Google

they do not comprehend. I like S. Auguſtines reſolution in this caſe. Non curo illos cenſores, qui vel non intelligendo reprehendunt, vel reprehendendo non intelligunt. Aug. cont. Fan. l. 22. c 34.

Verſe 17. I ſpeak it not after the Lord] Neither by his command nor example, but permiſſion only.

Verſe 18. Glory after the fleſh] Or in the fleſh, Gal. 6. 13. or have confidence in the fleſh, Phil. 3. 4.

Ver. 19. For ye ſuffer fools] Inter indoctos etiam Corydus ſonat. Wiſe men hold them for fools, whom fools admire for wiſe men. As one ſaith of Atturneys, Quòd inter opiliones ſe jactitent Juriſperitos, inter Juriſperitos ne opilionum quidem eſtimatione habeantur. Quintilian. Rex Platonicus Verſe 20. For ye ſuffer, if, &c.] As the Popiſh penitentiaries, thoſe miſerably miſled and muzzled creatures. They write of our King Henry the ſecond, that going to Canterbury to viſit the ſepulchre of his own Martyr Thomas Becket, coming within the ſight of the Church, he alighted, and went three miles on his bare feet, which with the hard ſtones were forced to yield bloody tokens of his devotion on the way. Clemens the fifth, Pope, cauſed Dandalus the Venetian Embaſſador to come before him tied in chains, and to wallow under his table with dogs, whileſt his Holineſs ſat at ſupper. The Pope laſhed Henry 4. of France (in the perſon of his Embaſſadour at Rome) after the ſinging of every verſe of Miſerere, until the whole Pſalm was ſung out. Sed exorto jam Evangelii jubare, ſagaciores (ut ſpero) principes ad nutum Romani Orbilii non ſolvent ſubligacula, ſaith a great Divine. Daniels hiſt. fol. 102. Iuel p. 379. Gab. Powell of Tolerat.

If a man take of you] By way of gratuity, but not of wages: or by their followers, and not by themſelves. No Capucine among the Papiſts may take or touch ſilver. This mettal is as very Anathema to theſe, as the wedge of gold to Achan: at the offer whereof he ſtarts back, as Moſes from the Serpent. Yet he carries a boy with him that takes and carries it, and never complains of either mettal or meaſure. D. Hall's ep. 5. Decad. 1.

Verſe 21. As though we had been weak] i.e. Worthleſs and ſpiritleſs. But miſtake not your ſelves; I am another manner of man then you imagine me. It is ſaid of Athanaſius, that he was Magnes & Adamas; a loadſtone in his ſweet, gentle, drawing nature, & yet an adamant in his reſolute, ſtout carriage againſt Hereticks and evil doers. Nazianzen.

Verſe 22. Are they Iſraelites] Gods ſelect, peculiar. Happy art thou, O Iſrael: who is like unto thee, O people! Deut. 33. 29. The Jews ſay that thoſe ſeventy ſouls that went with Jacob into Ægypt, were as much as all the ſeventy Nations of the world. Tabor and Hermon, the Eaſt and Weſt of Judea, are put for the Eaſt and Weſt of the world, Pſal. 89. 12.

Verſe 23. In labors more abundant] Chryſoſtom calleth Paul, Inſatiabilem Dei cultorem, an unweariable ſervant of God.

Verſe 24. Fourty ſtripes ſave one] That they might be ſure not to exceed the ſet number of ſtripes, limited by the Law, Deut. 25. 3.

Verſe 25. Thrice was I beaten, &c.] By the Roman Magiſtrates, as alſo the Martyrs were by the Romiſh Biſhops. Thomas Hinſhaw was beaten with rods by Bonner, and abode his fury ſo long as the fat-paunched Biſhop could endure with breath, and till for wearineſs he was fain to ceaſe. So alſo he dealt by John Willis, and by Mr. Bartlet Green, who greatly rejoyced in the ſame. Act and Mon. fol. 1854. ibid. 1684.

I have been in the deep] Sine nave in mari fui, So the Syriack renders it. For 24. hours together I have been floating in the ſea.

Verſe 26. By mine own countreymen] A Gentilibus meis, & à Gentibus.

Verſe 27. In wearineſs and painfulneſs] Here's dainty Rhetorick. Tully calleth Ariſtotles Politicks, Aureum flumen orationis, a golden flood of eloquence in reſpect of the purity of the ſtile, and the excellency of the matter. May it not be more truly ſaid of this great Apoſtles writings?

Verſe 28. That which cometh, &c. Quaſi agmine facto, & repetitis vicibus. His care came upon him, as an armed man, and gave him no reſt or reſpite. The Greek word holds out the cumber; he had as it were all care numbred, and muſtered together, and that with anxiety, with the ſame ſollicitude that a man hath about buſineſs of his own: yet held he out his whole race without ceſſation or reſpiration. ἐπισύστασις. μέριμνα.

The care of all the Churches] Calvin was no otherwiſe affected toward the Churches though far remote, then if he had born them upon his ſhoulders, ſaith Beza. He often ſighed out, Uſquequo Domine, over the poor afflicted Churches of Chriſt; with the miſeries series whereof he was much more affected then with any of his own private miseries. I could not but love the man (said Theodosius of Ambrose) for that, whilest he lived, and when he died, he took more care for the Church then for himself.

Digitized by Google

Magis de ecclesiarum statu, quam de suis periculis angebatur.

Verse 29. Who is weak] By passion.

And I am not weak] By compassion.

And I burn not] i.e. Am exceedingly grieved. Compare Psal. 10.2. & 7.14. He hotly pursueth the poor. The Apostle was even scorcht and scalded with sorrow and holy indignation; he felt twinges, when others were hurt.

πυρέμαι.

Verse 30. I will glory of the things] As a conqueror of his spoil, or as an old souldier of his scars. The Apostle glorieth in those things that his adversaries condemned as infirm in him. The afflictions also of the best may fitly be called their infirmities: because they are apt to bewray weakness in them. Like as when fire comes to green wood, there issueth out abundance of watery stuff, that was not discerned before: and as, when the pond is empty, the mud, filth, and toads appear.

Verse 31. Which is blessed for ever] And therefore to be blessed, as he that is the father of our Lord Jesus Christ. This is a praise that he much stands upon, Rom. 15.6. And surely if all generations shall call the virgin blessed, for that she was the mother of Christ, Luk. 1.48. how much more, &c.

Verse 32. In Damascus] The chief City of Syria, built (say some) in the place where the blood of Abel was spilt, and thence called Dameseck, i.e. a bag of blood. Thither Paul marched with a bloody minde, but was miraculously converted, and so powerfully confounded his Country-men there, that they incensed the Governor against him, to his great peril. That is the guise of godless persecutors, to attempt that against the truth by arms, that they cannot effect by Arguments. See Act. 9.23,24.

Verse 33. And thorow a window, &c.] An honest shift, though against the Roman Law of leaping over the walls, Quia leges semper ad equitatem flectendæ sunt, saith Cicero. The sense of the Law is the Law, and not always the letter.

Apices juris non sunt jus.

And escaped his hands] Of the lawfulness of flight in some cases, See the Note on Mat. 10.23. & Act. 9.24.

Chap. XII.

Verse 1. It is not expedient for me]

Because it carries a shew at least of pride and folly: and Christians must be shy of the very shews and shadows of sin; Ministers especially, whose practise easily passeth into an example. Howbeit for the Corinthians it was expedient, because they thought more meanly of Paul then was meet.

To visions and revelations] The false Apostles, haply, boasted of such; as some seducers do now-adays, who dream Midianitish dreams, and then tell the same to their neighbours for Gospel. But take heed, the old Prophet may bring men into the Lions mouth by telling them of an Angel that spake to him.

Ver. 2. I knew a man in Christ] i.e. A Christian and approved, 2 Cor. 13.5.

Above fourteen years ago] See the Note on Act. 9.9. All this while till now, he had held his tongue. Taciturnity (in some cases) is a Christian vertue. Either be silent, or say somewhat that is better then silence, was an old moral precept.

ἢ σιγᾶν, ἢ κρείττονα σιγῆς λέγειν.

Verse 3. Whether in the body, &c.] So far did he forget and neglect his own body, which is so dear and near a thing in comparison of that incomparable delight he then took in the Lord. Oh that joy! O my God, when shall I be with thee! These were the dying words of the last Lord Harrington, that was in heaven afore-hand. O the joys, the joys, the unspeakable joys that I feel in my soul! said another that was even entring into heaven, and had a foretaste of eternal life. Peter in the transfiguration was so transported, that he never thought of a tabernacle for himself, Mat. 17. he cared not to lie without doors, so he might longer enjoy that glimpse of heavens glory.

Verse 4. How that he was caught up] Not locally (likely) but in spirit, as Act. 7.56. Ezek. 8.3.

Digitized by Google

Into

Into Paradise] Heaven, whereof that earthly Paradise was but a dark shadow. Hierom comforting a young Hermite, bad him look up to heaven, Et Paradisum mente deambulare, to take a few turns in Paradise by his meditations, assuring him that so long as he had Paradise in his mind, and heaven in his thought, Tamdiu in eremo non eris, He should not be sensible of his solitariness.

Unspeakable words] Wordless words, such as words are too weak to utter. Nec Christus, nec Cœlum patitur hyperbolen. A man cannot hyperbolize in speaking of Christ and heaven, but must entreat his hearers, as Tully doth his readers, concerning the worth of L. Crassus, Ut majus quiddam de iis quàm quæ scripta sunt suspicarentur, that they would conceive much more then he was able to express. It is as easie to compass the heaven with a span, or contain the sea in a nut-shell, as to relate heavens happiness. ἡήματα ἄρρητα. 3. De Oratore.

Verse 5. Yet of my self I will not glory] Non nisi coactus, ut suprà. Paul was a model of modesty, a very crucifix of mortification, as one calleth him.

But in mine infirmities] i.e. My troubles; so called, either because under them we seem infirm and contemptible; or else, for that afflictions oft shew our infirmities, our impatience, &c. they make us sick of the fret, &c.

Verse 6. Lest any man should think of me] Let no man, saith Gregory, desire to seem more then he is, that so he may be more then he seems. It pleaseth me not, saith Augustine, that by many I am thought to be that which I am not. For truly they love not me, but another for me, Si non quod sum, sed quod non sum diligunt, if they love not that I am, but that I am not.

Verse 7. And lest I should be exalted] So lest Ezekiel should be lifted up with his many rare visions he is frequently called Son of man, to put him in mind of his mortal, miserable condition.

A thorn in the flesh] A corruption edg'd with a temptation. Satan sent some Dalilah to lull Paul asleep in her lap, and bind him with withes of green delights; but his watchful soul displeased deeply with that flesh-pleasing force, complained thereof, shaked himself, and so found ease.

To buffet me] Perhaps in a proper sense Paul might feel the Devils fingers: Take it Metaphorically for temptations, and then they are fitly called buffetings, because they come so thick upon a mans spirit, that he can hardly take breath. He dogs good hearts with foulest lusts sometimes, as of Atheism, Idolatry, Blasphemy, Murther. In all or any of which, if the soul be meerly passive, (as the word buffetting here implies) they are Satans sins, and our crosses onely.

Lest I should be exalted] If Paul had not been buffetted, who knows whether he would have swelled. He might have been carried higher in conceit, then before he was in his extasie. This thorn in his flesh was a means to let out the impostumated matter of pride out of his heart.

Verse 8. I besought the Lord thrice] i.e. Frequently and fervently. God respecteth not the Arithmetick of our prayers, how many they are; nor the Rhetorick of our prayers, how neat they are; or the Geometry of our prayers, how Long they are; nor the Musick of our prayers, how melodious they are; nor the logick of our prayers, how methodical they are; but the Divinity of our prayers, how heart-sprung they are. Not gifts, but graces prevail in prayer.

Verse 9. My grace is sufficient for thee] God sometimes gives pardoning grace, where yet he denies prevailing grace. He roots not out all our Canaanites at once, but leaves some to try and exercise us. I thank God in Christ, sustentation I have, but suavities spiritual I taste not any, saith Mr. Bain, describing the temper of his own spirit. He also went out of the world with far less comfort then some weaker Christians enjoy, God letting Satan loose upon him. Bains Letters. His life by Mr. Clark.

For my strength is made perfect] It is an act of as great power in God, to keep our spark of grace alive amidst so many corruptions, as to keep a fire alive upon the face of the sea. The Angels are kept with much less care, charge and power, then we; because they have no byas, no weight of sin hung upon them.

Verse 10. Therefore I take pleasure] I am well apaid of them, I reckon them among Gods love-tokens, pledges of his love, and badges of my sonship. εὐδοκῶ.

For when I am weak, then &c.] This is a seeming contradiction. God, said Luther, doth most of his works in mediis contrariis, by contraries. He hath a way by himself, saith Nazianzen, that he may be the more admired. Διὰ τῶν ἐναντίων ἐναντία οἰκονομεῖ.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 11. For in nothing am I behind] And yet there were a ſort of ſilly ſouls (that thought themſelves jolly fellows) in the days of Zuinglius, Anno 1519. that talked thus at Zurich, Quis tandem Paulus? nonne homo eſt? Apoſtolus eſt, ſed ſuburbanus tantum, non ex 12. viris, non cum Chriſto eſt converſatus, articulum fidei non compoſuit. What was Paul? but a man; an Apoſtle he was, but of an inferiour rank: he was not of the twelve; he converſed not with Chriſt, he compoſed not any of the twelve Articles of the Creed. We would as ſoon believe Thomas or Scotus, as Paul, &c. I am as much an Apoſtle as they, who are more then much Apoſtles, ſaith S. Paul here (for ſo the Greek runs) But (contra ſycophantæ morſum non eſt remedium) he cannot be heard.

Zuingl. Tom. 1. operum.

Verſe 12. In all patience] A grace to be gloried in: Job is crowned and chronicled for it.

Verſe 13. Forgive me this wrong] A pleaſant Irony, ſuch as whereof this Epiſtle is full.

Joh. Wov r in Polymath. It is ſaid of a wiſe man, Quod objecta probra ut viſus nocturnos, & vanas ſomniorum imagines digno ſupplicio puniat, feſtivo ſcilicet contemptu & oblivione, vel ſi tanti eſt, miſericordia elevet.

Verſe 14. For I ſeek not yours] Not the fleece, but the flock. He had not thoſe inſtruments of a fooliſh ſhepheard, forcipes & mulctram, the ſhears and milk-pail, &c. The whole Senate can witneſs, ſaith Beza, that whereas Calvin had a very ſmall ſtipend, yet was he ſo far from being diſcontent therewith, that a more ample allowance being freely offered him, he obſtinately refuſed it. All the goods that he left behind him when he dyed, his library alſo being ſold very dear, came ſcarce to three hundred French crowns. Non opes, non gloriam, non voluptates quæſivi, ſaid Melanchthon, I never ſought riches, pleaſures or preferments: This conſcience I carry with me, whereſoever I go. I do ingenuouſly profeſs, ſaith Mr. Rollock, that of all my ſtipends I have not laid up two pence, for I never cared for the things of this world. Luther never found himſelf once tempted to covetouſneſs. And herein I could wiſh we were all Lutherans.

Melch. Adam. 359.

Melch Adam. in vita 187.

Act. and Mon. fol. 789.

But the Parents for the children] We uſe to ſay, That one father will better provide for nine children, then nine children will for one father. Howbeit, our ſpiritual fathers (though they ſeek us, and not ours, yet) they ſhould find both us and ours; us, in our obedience; ours, in our recompence.

Verſe 15. Spend and be ſpent] If like clouds we do ſweat our ſelves to death, ſo ſouls may be brought home to God, it is a bleſſed way of dying. Mr. Sam. Crooks Motto was Impendam & expendar, I will ſpend and be ſpent: this he chearfully verified.

The leſs I be loved] This is many a good mans grief, but his reward is nevertheleſs with God. The nurſe looks not for her wages from the child, but from the parent.

Verſe 16. Being crafty I caught] A bleſſed craft, a high point of heavenly wiſdom, Dan. 12. 3. It is written of the fox, that when he is very hungry after prey, and can find none, he lieth down and faineth himſelf to be a dead carcaſe, and ſo the fowls fall upon him, and then he catcheth them. S. Paul hungering after the ſouls health of his Corinthians, denies himſelf to gain them.

Verſe 17. Whom I ſent unto you] It is ſaid of the Pope, that he can never lack money ſo long as he can hold a pen in his hand: he can command it and have it. But S. Paul could not skill of thoſe arts.

Verſe 18. In the ſame ſpirit] Who worketh with his own tools onely, and is ever like himſelf in all the Saints: through whoſe whole courſe godlineſs runs, as the woof doth thorow the web, as the ſpirit doth thorow the body.

In the ſame ſteps] With an upright foot, Gal. 2. 14. in Chriſt, Col. 2. 6. as Chriſt, 1 John 2. 6.

Verſe 19. That we excuſe our ſelves] And ſo yield a fault.

I ſpeak before God] The witneſs of mine innocency, Job 16. 19. Gen. 20. 6.

For your edifying] Whileſt ye conceive no ill opinion of us, which, like muddy water in a veſſel, might cauſe the moſt precious liquor of our doctrine to run over.

Mimus. Verſe 20. And that I ſhall be found] Crudelem medicum intemperans æger facit. We delight not to fling daggers at mens faces: but if men be not told their own, and that with ſome ſharpneſs, they will on in ſin to their utter ruine. Sharp waters clear the eyeſight; and bitter potions bring on ſweet health. A weak doſe doth but ſtirr bad humours, and anger them, not purge them out; ſo it fareth with ſins.

Leſt

Digitized by Google

Leſt there be debates, envyings, &c.] King Edward the fourth, the night before his death, ſaid to his kinſmen and friends, I remember it to my grief, that there hath been diſcord amongſt you a great time, not always for great cauſes, but poor miſtakings, &c. Some, like Salamanders, live always in the fire; like Trouts, they love to ſwim againſt ſtream; like Phocion, they think it a goodly thing to diſſent from others. Daniels hiſt. of Engl. 210.

Whiſperings] See the Note on Rom. 1.29.

Swellings] That is, taking things unkindly, ſo that the heart even riſeth againſt another, and we cannot away with him, would have nothing to do with him. Now, as the ſwelling of the Spleen is very dangerous for health; and of the ſails, for the overbearing of a little veſſel: ſo is this ſwelling of the heart by paſſion; eſpecially if it break out at the lips by tumults, that is, by telling this body running to that, filling the town with it. Cœlum mugitibus implet.

Verſe 21. That have not repented] Impenitence maketh ſin mortal, ſaith S John, 1 Epiſt. 5. 16. or rather immortal, as ſaith S. Paul, Rom. 2. 5. It is not the falling into the water that drowns, but lying in it. Gods people may ſink once and again to the bottom, but the third time they riſe and recover by repentance.

CHAP. XIII.

Verſe 1. Of two or three witneſſes]

SO he calleth his threefold admonition. Gods Word neglected will one day be a ſwift witneſs againſt the contemners. Moſes ſhall accuſe men, John 5. 46. Gods Word lay hold on them, Zech. 1. 6. and ſtick in their hearts and fleſh, as fire, throughout all eternity, Jer. 5. 14.

Verſe 2. I told you before] Sed ſurdo fabulam, no telling would ſerve turn. Many are ſo wedded and wedged to their ſins, that nothing will ſunder them, but an extraordinary touch from the hand of heaven.

Verſe 3. A proof of Chriſt ſpeaking in me] The Church is Chriſti docentis auditorium; ſaith Bernard, the place wherein he ordinarily teacheth, who hath his ſchool on earth, though his chair in heaven. Scholam habet interris, cathedram in cœlis. Aug.

Verſe 4. Crucified through weakneſs] i.e. Ex afflicto ejus ſtatu, as Gal. 4. 14. as having voluntarily ſubjected himſelf to all ſorts of ſufferings for our ſakes.

Verſe 5. Examine your ſelves] The final tryal of our eternal eſtate doth immediately and ſolely appertain to the Court of heaven. Indeed the diſquiſitive part belongs to us, the deciſive to God.

Prove your own ſelves] Redouble your diligence in this moſt needful, but much neglected duty of ſelf-examination: an error here is eaſie and dangerous; hence the precept is doubled: ſo Zeph. 2. 1. Excutite vos, iterumq́ excutite, as Tremellius renders it. Fan your ſelves, yea fan your ſelves. He doubleth his phraſe, as it were his files. Men are as loath to review their actions, and read the blurr'd writing of their hearts, as Schoolboys are to perſe their Leſſons, and falſe Latines they have made; the eyes alſo of their minds are as ill ſet, as thoſe of their bodies; ſo that they ſee nothing inwards: though theſe windows of the ſoul ſhould be like the windows of Solomons Temple, broad inward; and men ſhould try themſelves throughly, for God will: As, though Scholars will not ſcan their verſes, their Maſter will; Let every man therefore prove his own work, Gal 6. 4. ſo ſhall he ſave God a labour, and put the Devil out of office. Whereas, ſparing a little pains at firſt, doubleth it in the end; as he that will not caſt up his books, his books will caſt up him at length. 1 Kings 6. 4.

Know ye not your own ſelves?] Noſce teipſum, Know thy ſelf (ſay the Heathens) came down from heaven: ſure it is, none can aſcend to heaven, unleſs he know himſelf.

Except ye be reprobates?] Gr. Counterfeits, adulterine: Every ſoul is either the Spouſe of Chriſt, or the Devils Strumpet.

Verſe 6. But I truſt that ye ſhall know] Whereas they were ready to retort, that they were no reprobates, he ſhould well know, let him ſee that himſelf were not one: I truſt ye ſhall know, ſaith he, that we are no reprobates, counterfeits, or unapprovable, oppoſed to approved, Verſe 7.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verse 7. Though we be as reprobates] viz. In your esteem. The good heart is content to vilifie, yea nullifie it self, so God may be glorified, and his people edified: let him be a footstool, or what ye will, to help Christ into his throne. Prorsus Satan est Lutherus, sed Christus vivit, & regnat, Amen, saith Luther. Let me be called a Devil, or any thing, so Christ may be exalted.

Epist. ad Spalat.

Verse 8. For we can do nothing] A Temporary may so fall away, as to persecute the truth that he once professed, and the ministery that he once admired. Never fals a Saint so far in his greatest relapses. Bishop Latimer tels of one, who fell away from the known truth, to mocking and scorning it; yet was afterwards touched in conscience for it. Beware of this sin, saith he; for I have known no more then this that repented. It is a very dangerous precipice.

Lat. Serm. afore K. Edw.

Verse 9. Even your perfection] Or, Your restauration, or joynting again. His meaning is, saith Beza, That whereas the members of this Church were all, as it were, dislocated and out of joynt, they should now again be joyned together in love, and they should endeavour to amend what was amiss amongst them, either in faith or manners.

καταρτισιν.

Verse 10. And not to destruction] Unless by accident: or, if to the destruction of the flesh, it is that the spirit might be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus, 1 Cor. 5 5. See the Note there, and on 2 Cor. 10. 8.

Verse 11. Finally] Gr. That which yet remains to say more, and then an end.

λοιπον.

Be perfect] Or, Peece again.

Be of one mind] For matter of opinion.

Live in peace] For matter of affection.

The God of love] The author and fautor.

Verse 12. With an holy kiss] A custom proper to those times. See the Note on Rom. 16. 16. and on 1 Cor. 16. 20.

Verse 13. All the Saints salute you] Sanctity is no enemy to curtesie: it doth not remove but rectifie it.

Verse 14. The grace of our Lord] A friendly valediction, or fatherly benediction.

Digitized by Google

A COMMENTARY OR EXPOSITION Upon the Epistle of S. Paul to the Galatians.

Chap. I.

Verse 1. Who raised him from the dead] AND by the same almighty power causeth dead souls to hear the voice of the Son of God in his Ministers and live, Ioh. 5. 25. Eph. 1. 19.

Verse 2. The Churches of Galatia] They are not dischurched, though much corrupted. Uzziah ceased not to be a King, when he began to be a leper; the disease of his forehead did not remove his crown.

Verse 3. Grace be, &c.] See the Note on Rom. 1. 7. This Epistle to the Galatians is an Epitome of that to the Romans. Peter Martyr observeth, that Paul deals more mildly in that Epistle to the Romans, then in this to the Galatians; because the Galatians were at first well instructed in the matter of Justification, but afterwards did mix other things with Christ; therefore he so sharps them up, yea thundereth against them.

Verse 4. From this present evil world] Bewitched wherewith the Galatians were relapsed from Christ. A subtil and sly enemy it is surely, and hath cast down many wounded: Yea, many strong men have been slain by it, as by Solomons harlot, Prov. 7. 26.

Verse 5. To whom be glory] The benefit of our redemption should make us lift up many an humble, joyful and thankful heart to God.

Verse 6. That ye are so soon] Giddy-headed hearers have religionem ephemeram, are wherried about with every winde of doctrine, being constant only in their inconstancy, as Eccebolus, Balduinus, and our modern Sectaries. The Bishops and Doctors of England

Digitized by Google

(ſaid that Martyr) in their book againſt the Popes ſupremacy, ſpoke as much as Luther, or any Lutheran ever did or could. If they diſſembled, who could ever ſo deeply, ſpeaking ſo pithily? If not, who could ever turn head to tail ſo ſuddenly and ſo ſhortly as theſe did? Act. and Mon.

Removed from him, &c.] From Chriſt and me his Apoſtle. Luther often in his books teſtifieth, that he was much afraid, leſt, when he was dead, that ſound doctrine of juſtification by faith alone, would die alſo. It proved ſo in ſundry places of Germany. Men fell to Popery as faſt as leaves fall in Autumn. The word here rendred removed, ſignifieth properly tranſported or tranſplanted. He alludes (ſaith Jerom) to the word Galat, to roll, as if he ſhould ſay; You are Galatians, that is, rolling and changing, falling from the Goſpel of Chriſt, to the Law of Moſes.

Verſe 7. There be ſome] That would fain have blended Phariſaim and Chriſtianity, Acts 15. 5.

ταράσσοντες. That trouble you] As Camels with their feet trouble the waters they ſhould drink of.

μεταστρέψαι. And would pervert the Goſpel] They pretended only to bring in a Jewiſh rite or two, and yet are ſaid to pervert the Goſpel: Ea quæ poſt tergum ſunt, in faciem convertere, as Hierom hath it, to turn that before that ſhould be behinde: to ſpeak diſtorted things, ſuch as produce convulſions of conſcience, Acts 20. 30. A little thing untowardly mingled, mars all. The monſtrous hereſie of Neſtorius lay but in one letter, and of Arrius, but in one ſyllable.

διεστραμμένα. θεοστύγες. ὁ μωσῆς.

Verſe 8. Or an Angel] Not an evil Angel (as Ambroſe underſtands it) but a good Angel, per impoſſibile, as John 8. 55.

Than that which we, &c.] Or beſides that which we have preached. He ſaith not, contrary to that, but beſides that: for indeed that which is directly beſides, is indirectly againſt the Goſpel.

Verſe 9. Then that ye have] Of the Camel it is ſaid, that he will never carry any more weight then what at firſt is laid upon him; nor go one foot beyond his ordinary journey. Conſcience will nor budge, nor yield an hair for an Angels authority. Stand faſt in the good old way, and find reſt, Jeremy 6. 16.

Verſe 10. For do I now perſwade men] That is, mens doctrines and devices.

Or do I ſeek to pleaſe men] Ut κολακείας, qui ab omnibus gratiam inire cupit, quem quidam per jocum Placentam vocat. Men-pleaſers, that curry favour with all; and covet to be counted No medlers. Theſe loſe a friend of God. Neither do they long hold in with thoſe, whom for preſent they do ſo much pleaſe. Conſtantine checkt a Preacher, qui auſus eſt imperatorem in os beatum dicere, that was ſo bold as to call him a bleſſed man to his face, thinking thereby to ingratiate. Theodorick an Arrian King did exceedingly affect a certain Deacon, although an Orthodox. The Deacon thinking to pleaſe him better and get preferment, became an Arrian: which when the King underſtood, he changed his love into hatred, and cauſed his head to be ſtruck from his ſhoulders, &c. Eraſmus, by ſeeking to pleaſe both ſides, was neither owned by the Papiſts, nor honored by the Proteſtants. Puſillanimitas & ἀνθρωπαρέσκεια in præclaro hoc Dei organo prævaluere. Daſtardlineſs and man-pleaſance prevailed too too much with him, who otherwiſe did the Church of God ſingular good ſervice. How much better had he done if paſſing by Placenza he had held a ſtraight courſe to Verona? But he durſt not (as Luther) meddle either with the Popes triple crown, or with the Monks fat paunches, leſt for his Væ vobis, he ſhould have been brought coram nobis, as Father Latimer ſaid. He held it beſt policy to keep his finger out of the ſore: and either to ſay no more then Eli did to his ſons, Why do ye ſuch things, &c. or then Jehoſaphat did to Ahab, Let not the King ſay ſo. As pruriginoſa iſtorum hominum ſcabies aſpetiori certe ſtrigili fricanda fuerat, ſaith Amama. But thoſe mens mangy hides deſerved a ſharper currycomb.

Euſeb. de vit. Conſt. l. 4. c. 4.

Euſeb. lib. 2.

Amama.

Italian. Prov.

Act. and Mon.

In Antibarb. Bib. Præfat.

For if I yet pleaſed men] As once I did whiles I was a Phariſee.

I ſhould not be, &c.] That rule holds good in Rethorick, but not in Divinity, Non ad veritatem ſolum, ſed etiam ad opinionem eorum qui audiunt, accommodanda eſt oratio. Cic. in Partit.

Verſe 11. Is not after man] This he often inculcateth, becauſe the falſe Apoſtles had buzzed ſuch a thing into their ears, to diſparage his Miniſtery.

Verſe 12. Received it of man] i. e. Of meer man. Jeſus Chriſt is more then a man.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 13. And waſted it] As an enemies countrey with fire and ſword. Mars is ſtiled πτολίπορθος. ἐπόρθουν. Homer.

Verſe 14. Above many of mine equals] Porphyry ſaid it was great pitty ſuch a man as Paul was even caſt away upon the Chriſtian religion. The Monarch of Morroco told the Engliſh Embaſſador in King Johns time, that he had lately read Pauls Epiſtles, which he liked ſo well, that were he now to chuſe his religion, he would, before any other, embrace Chriſtianity; but every one, ſaid he, ought to die in his own religion: and the leaving of the faith wherein he was born, was the only thing that he diſliked in that Apoſtle. Heyl. Geog.

Verſe 15. Who ſeparated me from, &c.] How knew he this, but by the event? Whoſoever is lawfully called to the Miniſtery, may conceive that he alſo was ſanctified thereunto from the womb, and ſhould therefore do his utmoſt in the work, Verbi miniſteres, hoc age, was Mr. Perkins his Motto. Sa. Ward Præf. ad Perk prob'.

Verſe 16. To reveal his Son in me] Not only as in an object (wherein the power and grace of Chriſt might ſhine and appear) but as by an inſtrument of revealing and preaching Chriſt to many.

I conferred not with fleſh] i. e. With carnal reaſon, an evil counſellor for the ſoul, Rom. 8. 7. Indeed in humane governments, where reaſon is ſhut out, there tyranny is thruſt in: but where God commandeth, there to aſk a reaſon is preſumption, to oppoſe reaſon is flat rebellion.

Verſe 17. But I went into Arabia] Of this journey Luke maketh no mention in the Acts. Into theſe tents of Kedar came S. Paul, and made them, by his preaching, comely as the curtains of Solomon, Cant. 1. 5. Rude they were, but rich; black, but comely, when they had this precious man amongſt them eſpecially, who became a bleſſing to all places whereſoever he came: Contrary to that which is ſaid of the great Turk, that wherever he ſets his foot, he leaves deſolation behinde him. Arabia was Felix indeed, when S. Paul was there.

Verſe 18. To ſee Peter] Not by way of idle viſit, but throughly to obſerve the Hiſtory of his Chriſtian practice for godly imitation. Hiſtoriæ ſunt fidæ monitrices. ἱστορῆσαι, videndo obſervare.

Verſe 19. But other of the Apoſtles] They were buſily attending upon their particular charges and offices, according to Rom. 12. 7.

Verſe 20. Behold, before God, I lye not] This he ſolemnly ſweareth for their ſatisfaction. An oath may be lawfully taken to help the truth in neceſſity, and not otherwiſe. Hence the Hebrew word is a paſſive, and ſignifieth to be ſworn, rather then to ſwear. Niſhbang.

Verſe 21. Afterwards I came] He kept, belike, a Diary of his travels, and was able to give a good account of his daily courſes. It is not to be doubted, but that our Saviours Diſciples kept a regiſter of his holy oracles and miracles, out of which the hiſtory of the Goſpel was afterwards compiled and compoſed. Father Latimer did the like, as appeareth by his diſcourſes. Mr. Bradford alſo had a Journal or Day-book, wherein he uſed to ſet down all ſuch notable things as either he did ſee or hear, each day that paſſed. Mr. Simpſons Præf. to Bradf. Serm. of Rep.

Verſe 22. And was unknown] So far was Paul from learning ought of them.

Verſe 23. Now preacheth the faith] A marvellous converſion. I was an obſtinate Papiſt (ſaith Latimer of himſelf) as any was in England: Inſomuch that when I ſhould be made Bachelour of Divinity, my whole Oration went againſt Philip Melanchthon, and his opinions, &c. Act. & Mon.

Verſe 24. And they glorified God] Whoſo offereth praiſe, he glorifieth me, Pſal. 50. 23. God accounts himſelf as it were to receive a new being, by thoſe inward conceptions of his glory, and by thoſe outward honours that we do to him.

Digitized by Google

Chap. II.

Verse 1. I went up]

TO that first Christian Councel, Act. 15.

With Barnabas] His constant companion, till that bitter bickering, Acts 15. 39. See the Note there.

Verse 2. By revelation] i. e. By Gods special direction: for he ordereth a good mans goings, Psal. 37. 23.

ἀνεθέμην. I communicated unto them] I laid open the matter freely and familiarly, as unto bosome-friends.

But privately] For all good men are not fit to be trusted with secrets, but only such as can both keep counsel, and give counsel.

Or had run in vain] Lest, if it should be thought that I had not held good correspondency with those other Apostles, I might lose the fruit of my Ministery.

Verse 3. Was compelled to be circumcised] i. e. I would not yield he should be: lest I should seem to countenance them that held circumcision necessary to salvation. In the year of grace 1549 the Ministers of Magdeburg did stoutly oppose them of Wittenberg, and Leipsich, and set forth many books against them, because they dealt deceitfully, and by their Adiaphora, or things indifferent, as they called them, they paved a way to Popery. And this was our case till this late blessed Reformation. It was not without cause that Peter Martyr commended it to the care of Queen Elizabeth, That Church-governours endeavour not to carry the Ark of the Gospel into England upon the cart of needless Ceremonies.

Alsted. Chron. page 520.

παρεισάκτους. Verse 4. Unawares brought in] Or privily slipt in, pretending piety to their worldly or wicked respects. With such ill instruments the Church hath ever been pestered, 2. Pet. 2. 1. These hell-scouts are sculking in every corner.

To spie out our liberty] viz. Of circumcising or not circumcising Titus, that they might pick a quarrel with us.

Bucholcer. Chronol. That they might bring us into bondage] Jo. To the ceremonial law. Carolostadius attempted some such thing in Luthers daies, and by him was opposed.

Verse 5. To whom we gave place] We must stick close to the truth, and stickle hard for it, accounting each parcel thereof precious, and not to be parted with for any good. How religious were the Apostles and Ancients this way? They would not yield for an hour, or exchange one letter or syllable of that holy faith, wherewith Christ had betrusted them.

Verse 6. Seemed to be somewhat] Opinion sets the price: when gold is raised from twenty shillings to two and twenty, the gold is the same, estimation only raiseth it.

In conference added nothing to me] They could tell him nothing which he knew not before: when they came to talk together, he found that they did not only hold and teach the same things, but in iisdem verbis, in iisdem syllabis, in the self-same words and syllables as he did, as Melanthon wisheth all men would.

Whatsoever they were] Augustine being oppressed with the Authority of the Fathers, saith he regardeth not Quis, sed quid, the worth of the man, but the weight of his reasons.

Verse 7. As the Gospel of, &c.] He equalizeth himself to Peter in office and dignity: though pseudo-apostles, and pseudo-catholikes deny him that honour. Saint Peter Jesuites commend for a worthy spirit, when they censure Saint Paul for a hot-headed person, &c. And because James is named before Peter, verse 9. Bellarmine saith that this text is corrupted (Latini quidem Petrum praeponunt non sine falsi crimine) but what will he say to 1 Cor. 9. 5. & Joh. 1. 44. & Acts 15. 13. & 21. 18. where it appeareth that not Peter but James was president of the Councel, because he spake the last, and concluded all?

Survey of West-relig.

Bel de Rom. Pontif.

Verse 8. For he that wrought, &c.] He argues from the success of his and Peters Ministery, to the lawfulness of their calling to the work. So he doth 1 Cor. 9. 1, 2, 3. and 2 Cor. 13. 4, 5. See the Notes there. He also ascribeth the glory of all to God, when he saith was mighty in me, &c. A phrase not unlike that other, 1 Cor. 15. Not I, but the grace of God. And again, not we, but the weapons of our warfare are mighty through God, &c. 2 Cor. 10.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verse 9. Who seemed to be pillars] Of the Church, or of the Colledge of Apostles. The Apostle seems to intimate, that even then men began to attribute more then was meet to those holy Apostles. This degenerated afterwards into gross superstition. διαφερόντως dictum. Cam.

And they unto the circumcision] Yet were they not so tied up by this agreement, but that they might preach upon fit occasion to the Gentiles too, as might Paul and Barnabas to the Jews: but the Gentiles were their cheif charge, and among them, they had greatest success.

Verse 10. Remember the poor] Those Jews that embraced Christianity in Palestina, were therefore turn'd out of all by their unkind countrey men, Heb. 10. 34. Hence this care of the Apostles, and this forwardness in Saint Paul. About the beginning of the Reformation in France, the Duke of Lorrain had proscribed some thousands of his Lutheran subjects, who were forced to feed upon haws and acorns, &c. The Divines of Strasborough in Germany, moved with pity towards these poor brethren, ceased not till by their discourses they had prevailed with the Senate there, to take those miserable exiles into their City, and to provide for them, till they might be conveniently conveyed to other places. Sculter. Annal.

Verse 11. But when Peter, &c.] I would gladly learn (said that Martyr) why the seat of the primacy (to grant that) should be rather at Rome then elswhere? They answer, because Peters chair was at Rome. This is even like to this, because Moses the greatest Prophet, and Aaron the first Priest exercised their office untill their death in the desert, therefore the principallest place of the Jews Church shall be in the wilderness. But grant them their reason that it is good, what should Antioch claim? For Peters chair was there also, when Paul gave him a check, which was unseemly and unmannerly done of Paul, that would not give place to his President and better. Thus far Mr. Bradford. Acts and Mon. fol. 1496.

Cardinal Baronius withstands Paul as much as ever he did Peter, and blasphemously affirmeth, that Peter was not to be blamed, but Paul a great deal more. Bellarmine saith, It was not Peter but Cephas, one of the seventy. A sorry shift: so loth are heretricks to have their Asses ears seen. Hierome affirmeth that Paul reproved Peter simulatè non seriò, nec sensisse quod scripsit, seemingly and not seriously, and that he wrote otherwise then he thought, in saying that Peter walked not uprightly according to the truth of the Gospel. But Augustine refuteth this as an errour in Jerome, in his 19 Epistle to him: and Aquinas also disliketh it; because verse 12. Paul sets down a weighty and urgent cause of his reproof. Nevertheless, he doth not call Peter an hypocrite, as Julian the Apostate said he did: for every one that falleth of infirmity, is not presently an hypocrite: though he may, in some particular, act the part of an hypocrite. Baron. Annal. Epist. 89. ad Augustin. In Epist. ad Gal. cap. 2. Lect 3. Cyril lib. 9. in Iulian.

Verse 12. For before that certain] This history pertains to Acts 15. 30. 35. but is not there recorded, that we might search the Scriptures, and compare place with place. So God hath scattered the duties of husbands and wives up and down the Scriptures, That men learning to be good husbands, they may learn also to be good men.

Fearing them of the circumcision] It was not danger that he feared, but offence: wherein he had not done amiss, but that in avoiding a less scandal, he fell into a far greater.

Verse 13. And the other Jews dissembled] The sins of teachers are the teachers of sins; and great mens faults go as seldome unaccompanied, as their persons.

Barnabas also] Adhering to Peter rather then to Paul his old companion, not without a tincture perhaps of the old bitter bickering. Try all things; Good men may seduce us, as here Peter did Barnabas, and as those would have done Paul, Act. 21. 12. How many learned able men hath the authority of Luther misled in the point of Consubstantiation? Ursin was carried away with it awhile; till he was turned from it by the reading of Luthers own arguments; they were such plain Paralogismes. Melch. Adam.

Verse 14. That they walked not] Ministers must both ὀρθοτομεῖν and ὀρθοποδεῖν, Divide the word rightly, and foot it uprightly.

I said to peter before them all] The fault was publike, reproof must be according, 1 Tim. 5. 20. In the year 1159. lived Joannes Sarisburiensis, who both reproved the Pope to his face, and also wrote his Polycraticon, wherein he freely scourgeth the Popish Clergy. As long before that, in the year 705. Adelin Elect Bishop of Sherborn (or Salisbury) whiles he stayed at Rome for the Popes approbation, the same Pope (his name Prælens præsentem pontificem redarguit. Renius in hist. Pont.

Digitized by Google

name was Sergius) was charged with adultery: for which foul fault, this Biſhop was bold to reprehend his Holineſs ſharply.

Godw. Catal. pag. 333.

Why compelleſt thou, &c.] Peters example was a compulſion. The company we keep compell us to do as they do.

Verſe 15. We who are Jews] The Apoſtle proceedeth in his ſpeech to the Jews at Antioch.

And not ſinners of the Gentiles] Becauſe under the Covenant of Grace; Their ſins and iniquities will I remember no more. As for the Gentiles, they wanting the rule of Gods Law, ran head-long into every ſin, without reſtraint or controul, Eph. 4. 19.

Verſe 16. Knowing] Here's more then an implicite faith, or a conjectural confidence.

Verſe 17. But if whiles we ſeek] This is the ſame in ſenſe with Rom. 3. 31. If we ſhould argue from mercy to liberty, from free juſtification to lewd and looſe converſation, would not all the world cry ſhame on us? I reade of a Monſter, who that night that his Prince pardoned and releaſed him, got out and ſlew him. This was Michael Balbus, who ſlew the Emperour Leo Armenius. Is it poſſible that any ſhould offer to do ſo to Chriſt?

Verſe 18. For if I build again] As I ſhould, if I ſhould licenſe any man to ſin, becauſe juſtified by Faith. Chriſt came by water, as well as by blood: he juſtifies none, but whom he alſo ſanctifies.

Verſe 19. Am dead to the Law] i. e. Am freed from the curſe, rigour, and irritation of the Law. Or, am freed from ſin, as Rom. 6. 7.

Verſe 20. Chriſt liveth in me] Luthers Motto was Vivit Chriſtus, Chriſt liveth; and if he were not alive, I would not wiſh to live one hour longer. Let the Lord live, ſaith David: Yea let him live in me, ſaith Paul. Let him act me, let him think in me, deſire, pray, do all in me. Lord, ſaith Nazianzen, I am an inſtrument for thee to touch. Chriſt dwels in that heart moſt largely, that hath emptied it ſelf of it ſelf. The Iſraelites felt not the ſweetneſs of Manna, till they had ſpent the fleſh-pots, and other proviſions of Egypt.

Ioh. Manl. loc. com. pag. 410. Pſal. 18.

And gave himſelf for me] True faith individuateth Chriſt, and appropriateth him to to a mans ſelf. This is the pith and power of particular faith; Miſtris Lewis the Martyr, being ſet upon by Satan, a little afore ſhe ſuffered, was much comforted and helped by this text.

Act. and Mon. fol. 1826.

Verſe 21. I do not fruſtrate] viz. By ſeeking to be juſtified by the Law. Ambroſe renders it, Non ſum ingratus gratiæ Dei, I am not ungrateful to the grace of God; I do not repudiate, caſſate, nullifie it.

Dead in vain] Becauſe he attains not his end in dying, which was not only to leave us a pattern of Patience, as Anabaptiſts hold; but to merit for us remiſſion of ſins, and imputation of his righteouſneſs for our juſtification.

Chap. III.

Verſe 1. O fooliſh Galatians]

THoſe that are ſick of a Lethargy muſt have double the quantity of phyſick given them, that other men have in other diſeaſes. Theſe Galatians were in a ſpiritual lethargy, and are therefore thus ſharply rebuked, that they might be ſound in the faith.

Tit 1. 13.

Who hath bewitched you] Or, Bemiſted you, and dazled your eyes. The word properly ſignifies to overlook, as they call it, or to kill with the eyes, by caſting out venemous beams, as the Baſilisk, and as witches are ſaid to do.

ἐβάσκανε περὶ τὸ φῶτος καίνειν. Plin. lib. 7. cap. 2.

Hath been evidently ſet forth] As a remedy, by looking whereon ye might have been cured or kept from that bewitching by the eye: like as the ſtung Iſraelites were healed by looking on the brazen ſerpent.

Crucified amongſt you] In the evidence of the doctrine of Chriſt crucified, and in the adminiſtration of the Lords Supper, that lively picture of Chriſt on the Croſs. The Greek word ſignifieth to paint forth a thing, Rom. 15. 4. by a Theological painting, not artificial, as the Papiſts would have it to warrant Crucifixes.

προεγράφη.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 2. Or by the hearing of faith] The Manna of the ſpirit comes down from heaven in the dews of the Miniſtery of the Goſpel. If our eyes ſee not our teachers, we cannot expect to hear the voice behinde us, Iſa. 30, 20, 21. Numb. 11. 9. 1 Pet. 1. 21.

Verſe 3. Are ye ſo fooliſh?] Thoſe then that have the ſpirit may play fools in ſome particulars. Thoſe that are recovered of a phrenſie, have yet ſome mad fits ſometimes.

Made perfect by the fleſh] As Nebuchadnezzars Image, whoſe golden head ended in dirty feet.

Verſe 4. If it be in vain] q. d. It is not in vain. God keepeth the feet of the Saints, that they cannot altogether loſe the things they have wrought, they cannot fall below his ſupporting grace: the Lords puts under his hand, Pſal. 37. Yet it cannot be denied that an hypocrite may ſuffer, and all in vain, 1 Cor. 13. 3. as did Alexander the Copperſmith, who was near unto Martyrdom, Act. 19. 34. See the Note on 1 Cor. 13. 3.

Verſe 5. Or by the hearing of faith] Faith (and ſo life) is let into the ſoul by the ſenſe of hearing, Iſa. 55. to croſs the devil, who by the ſame door brought death into the world.

Verſe 6. It was accounted to him] This the Papiſts jeatingly call a putative righteouſneſs. The Jews alſo deride it, and ſay, That every fox ſhall yield his own skin to the flayer. See Rom. 4 9, 11, 12.

Verſe 7. The ſame are children, &c.] And heirs together with him of the world, Rom. 4. which is theirs in right, though detained a while from them by the Amorites, till their ſins be full.

Verſe 8. And the Scripture fore-ſeeing] Scripture therefore is not a bruit dead thing, as the Jeſuites blaſpheme. Excellently ſpake he, who called the Scripture, Cor & anima Dei, the heart and ſoul of God. Greg. in Reg. 3.

Preached the Goſpel] There is Goſpel therefore in the old Teſtament.

In thee ſhall all nations] See my Note on Gen. 12. 3. All Nations ſhall be bleſſed, i. e. juſtified by faith.

Verſe 9. Are bleſſed, &c.] For they only are bleſſed whoſe ſins are remitted, Pſal. 32. 1. O the bleſſedneſs of that man, ſaith the Pſalmiſt.

Verſe 10. Are under the curſe] Aut faciendum, aut patiendum. He that will not have the direction of the law, muſt have the correction.

That continueth not in all] Deut. 27. 26. Heb. Shall ſtand firm, as a four-ſquare ſtone. יקים. τετραγωνος.

In the book of the Law to do them] Done they muſt be exactly, upon pain of Gods curſe. For a groat too ſhort in payment of ſome dues required, our Will. the Conquerour forced the Monks of Ely to lay down a thouſand marks, ſaith the Chronicler. The Law is no leſs ſtrict with thoſe that are not freed by Chriſt.

Verſe 11. Shall live by faith] As being juſtified by faith. See the Note on Rom. 1. 17.

Verſe 12. And the law is not of faith] Becauſe it promiſeth not life to thoſe that will be juſtified by faith, but requireth works.

Verſe 13. Chriſt hath redeemed us] As man he bought us, as God he redeemed us; ſaith Hierom. For to redeem is properly to buy ſome things back that were morgaged. Qui redimit, emit quod ſuum fuit, & ſuum eſſe deſiit. Hieron.

Curſed is every one that hangeth] The tree whereon a man was hanged, the ſtone wherewith he was ſtoned, the ſword wherewith he was beheaded, and the napkin wherewith he was ſtrangled, they were all buried, that there might be no evil memorial of ſuch an one, to ſay, This was the tree, ſword, ſtone, napkin, wherewith ſuch an one was executed. Conſtantine aboliſhed this kinde of death out of the Empire. But what an odd cuſtom was that of the Tiberenes to hang their beſt friends in courteſie, Longaſq; ex iis literas facere quos charos habebant? The death on the tree (ſaith One) was accurſed above all kinds of death: as the Serpent was accurſed above all beaſts of the field. Both for the firſt tranſgreſſion, whereof the Serpent was the inſtrument, the tree the occaſion. Caſaub. ex Maimonide. Sphinx Philoſ. page 751.

Verſe 14. The promiſe of the ſpirit] That is, the ſpiritual promiſe made to Abraham, and his ſpiritual poſterity.

Verſe 15. I ſpeak after the manner] I ſet the matter forth to you by a familiar compariſon.

Though it be but a mans teſtament] William Tracy of Gloceſterſhire Eſquire made in his Will, that he would have no funeral pomp at his burying, neither paſſed he upon a Maſs. And he further ſaid, That he truſted in God only, and hoped by him to be ſaved and and not by any Saint. This Gentleman died, and his son as Executour brought the Will to the Bishop of Canterbury to be proved, which he shewed to the Convocation: and there most cruelly they judged, that he should be taken out of the ground, and be burnt as an heretick, anno 1532. D. Parker Chancellor of Worcester executed the sentence, and was afterwards sent for by King Henry 8. who laid high offence to his charge, &c. It cost him three hundred pounds to have his pardon.

Digitized by Google

Act. and Mon. 951.

Verse 16. Which is Christ] Mystical Christ, that is, whole Christ; for he accounts not himself compleat without his members, who are therefore called his fulness, Ephes. 1. 23. Caput & corpus, unus est Christus, saith Aug. the Head and Members make but one Christ.

Verse 17. Four hundred and thirty, &c.] This space of time betwixt the promise and the law, the divine providence cast into two equal portions of 215. before the peoples going down to Egypt, and 215. of their being there.

Lightfoots Har. Prolegom.

Verse 18. Gave it to Abraham] Gr. Freely gave it. What more free then gift? And what better freehold then the divine promise?

κεχάρισται.

Verse 19. Because of transgressions] Which are discovered by the Law. Sight of misery must go before sense of mercy. Lex, lux, the law is a light (saith Solomon) which laies all open: as 1 Cor. 14. 25. and threatneth destruction to transgressours.

And it was ordained, &c.] Therefore it is not to be disrespected, though we cannot attain eternal life by it.

In the hand of a Mediatour] That is, of Moses, who was a Mediatour of that communication of the Law to the people, Exod. 20. 19. Christ is the only Mediatour of expiation. And of Christ alone some take this text.

Verse 20. Is not a Mediatour of one] q.d. God and men were at odds: else what use of a Mediatour? Sin is the make-bate, as being a transgression of the Law.

But God is one] One and the same now as of old in taking vengeance on the Laws transgressors. Or, God is one party disagreeing or displeased.

Verse 21. Have given life] That is, have justified a sinner. But herein lay the laws weakness through the flesh, Rom. 8. 3.

Verse 22. But the Scripture] The Law and Prophets.

Hath concluded all] Gr. Hath clapt them up close prisoners. All in the neuter gender (both men and women) to prevent cavils.

συνέκλεισεν. πάντα.

That the promise, &c.] That he might have mercy upon all, Rom. 11. 32. See the Note there.

Verse 23. But before faith came, &c.] i. e. Before Christ came: Faith is put for the object of faith.

We were kept under the Law] As in a prison or garison: being circled with a compassing strength. The sinner, having transgressed, is kept by the law, as with a guard or garison, that he cannot escape, unless he be delivered by Christ. Some learned men make this expression of the Apostle here, Kept under the Law, to denote the duty of a schoolmaster; as one who is to give an account of such as are committed to his charge.

φρουρούμεθα.

Verse 24. The law was our schoolmaster] Such an one as that that Livy and Florus speak of in Italy, who brought forth his scholars to Hanibal: And if he had not been more merciful then otherwise, they had all perished.

Verse 25. But after that faith] That is, the Gospel, or Christ the author and matter of the Gospel, See ver. 23.

Verse 26. The children of God] Gr. The sons of God, grown up at mans estate; Qui manum ferulæ subduximus, who are no longer under a schoolmaster. How we are the children of God by faith, See the Note on Joh. 1. 12.

Verse 27. Baptized into Christ] And so have had your adoption sealed up unto you, like as in the civil adoption there were certain rites and ceremonies usually performed.

Have put on Christ] To justification and sanctification. See the Note on Rom. 13. 14. This is to be clothed with the Sun, Rev. 12. 2. Some think the Apostle alludeth here to a custome they had in the Primitive times, that those that were to be baptized, should come to the Church on Whitsunday (called therefore Dominica in albis) and put upon them white clothing.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 28. Ye are all one in Chriſt] Souls have no ſexes, and Chriſt is no reſpecter of perſons. The ſervant paid the half ſhekel, as well as the Maſter. Exod. 30.

Verſe 29. Heirs according] Heirs are kept ſhort in their nonage, and ſometimes forced to borrow of ſervants: but when once at years, they have all. So ſhall the Saints in heaven, though here hard put to it.

CHAP. IV.

Verſe 1. Differeth nothing from a ſervant]

IN alluſion whereunto there is written upon the Princes arms, Ich dien, that is, I ſerve. Henry the ſecond, King of England, crowned his eldeſt ſon Henry, whileſt he was yet alive: which made his ambition quite turn off his obedience. Ambition ever rides without reins. That King, at his ſons coronation, renounced the name of King for that day, and as Sewer, ſerved at the table; for which he was thus requited: My Father, ſaid he, is not diſhonoured by attending on me, for I am both a King and a Queens ſon, and ſo is not he. After this he bore arms againſt his Father, and dyed in open rebellion. Daniels Chr. fol. 109.

Verſe 2. But is under tutors] Thoſe under the Law were but Alphabetaries in compariſon of thoſe under the Goſpel. The Sea about the Altar was brazen, 1 King. 7. 23. and what eyes could pierce thorow it? Now our ſea about the throne is glaſſie, Rev. 4. 6. like to cryſtal cleerly conveying the light and ſight of God to our eyes. ὑπηρέτην Αἰσωποπαιπαι. τικὰς. Ariſtophan.

Verſe 3. When we were children] Gr. Infants, babies, that muſt be pleaſed with rattles: ſo the old Church with carnal Ceremonies. πάππος.

Verſe 4. But when the fulneſs of the time] This anſwers to that time appointed of the Father, verſ. 2. Plato ſaid, that God doth alwayes γεωμετρεῖν, he doth all things in number, weight and meaſure: He never comes too ſoon, neither ſtaies he too long.

God ſent forth his Son] Out of his own boſom. May not we ſay, as they did, John 11. 36. Loe how he loved us! This was an hyperbole of love. Should we not ſay again, as they did, Judg. 8. 22. Rule thou over us, &c. for thou haſt delivered us from the hand of Midian.

Made of a woman] Of the ſanctified ſubſtance of the holy Virgin. Note this againſt Marcionites and Anabaptiſts.

Made under the Law] Circumciſed the eighth day, and ſo made a debtour to do the whole Law: which he perfectly fulfilled, and yet (for us) ſuffered the curſe.

Verſe 5. To redeem them, &c.] To buy them off, who were in worſe caſe then the Turks Gally-ſlaves chained to an oar.

That we might receive the Adoption] That is, the poſſeſſion of our adoption, the full enjoyment of our inheritance.

Verſe 6. Crying Abba, Father] God hath no ſtill-born children. Paul was no ſooner converted, but behold he praied, Acts 9. 11. The ſpirit of grace is a ſpirit of ſupplication, Zech. 12. 10. And when God ſends this ſpirit of prayer into our hearts, it is a ſure ſign, that he means to anſwer our deſires: like as when we bid our children ſay, I pray you, father, give me this, we do it not, but when we mean to give them that which we teach them to ask. The gemination, Abba Father, noteth fiducial, filial, vehement affection: and it is made the firſt word we can ſpeak, when we are made ſons, to cry Abba Father.

Verſe 7. And if a ſon, &c.] See the Note on Rom. 8. 17.

Verſe 8. Ye did ſervice] Here all religious ſervice done to any, but God, is manifeſtly condemned as impious, whether in Pagans or Papagans.

Verſe 9. Or rather are known of God] Whoſe gracious fore-knowing and fore-appointing of us to eternal life, is the ground and foundation of our illumination and converſion, our love to him a reflex of his love to us.

Verſe 10. Ye obſerve dayes] The Chriſtian Church knows no holy-dayes, beſides that honourable Lords-day, Iſa. 57. 14. Rev. 1. 10. and ſuch holy feaſts, as upon ſpecial occaſions the Church ſhall ſee fit to celebrate, as Novemb. 5. &c.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 11. Leſt I have beſtowed labour] Gr. Even to laſſitude, as a day-labourer. Other work-folks finde their work as they left it: but a Miniſter hath all marr'd many times, between Sabbath and Sabbath, or if but awhile abſent, as Moſes was in the Mount.

κοπιάσω.

Verſe 12. Be as I am] No longer a legaliſt, as once, Philip. 3. 5, 8.

Ye have not injured me at all] He was above their buffoneries and indignities. When an inconſiderate fellow had ſtricken Cato in the bath, and afterwards cried him mercy, he replied, I remember not that thou didſt ſtrike me; Tu lingua, ego aurium Dominus, ſaid one to another, that railed on him. I cannot be maſter of thy tongue, but I will be maſter of mine own ears. One having made a long and idle diſcourſe before Ariſtotle concluded it thus, I doubt I have been too tedious to you Sir Philoſopher, with my many words: In-goodſooth, ſaid Ariſtotle, you have not been tedious to me; for I gave no heed to any thing you ſaid. Momus in Lucian tels Jupiter, It is in thy power whether any one ſhall vex or wrong thee. St. Paul here ſhakes off the affronts and injuries offered unto him with as much eaſe as once he did the Viper. Some would have ſwelled, and almoſt died at the ſight of ſuch a thing: he only ſhook it off, and there was no hurt done.

Sen. de ira l. 1. Tacit.

Plutar. de garrulit. ἐὰν πάσχῃς κακὸν, ἐὰν μὴ ποιῇς. Act. 28.

Verſe 13. Through infirmity of the fleſh] That is, though much broken with many miſeries, yet I ſpared not to take pains amongſt you. Zachary, though he ceaſed to ſpeak, yet he ceaſed not to Miniſter: he took not his dumbneſs for a diſmiſſion, but ſtaid out the eight days of his courſe. Luke 1.

Verſe 14. And my temptation] That is, mine afflictions, whereby the Lord tempts his, feels which way their pulſes beat, and how they ſtand affected toward him.

Which was in my fleſh] My ſpirit being haply untoucht. For oft the body is weak, the ſoul well. Afflictions may reach but to the outward man. Job never complained till he was wet thorow, till the waters went over his ſoul.

Nor rejected] Gr. Ye ſpet not on, as they did, that ſpet in Chriſts face.

ἐξεπτύσατε.

Even as Chriſt Jeſus] Who hath ſaid, He that receiveth you, receiveth me. It was a common ſaying at Conſtantinople, Better the Sun ſhould not ſhine then that Chryſoſtome ſhould not preach.

Verſe 15. Where is then the bleſſedneſs] q. d. Time was when ye held your ſelves happy in me, and bleſſed the time that ever ye ſaw and heard me. Is the change now in me, or in your ſelves? Thus the Jews rejoyced in John for a ſeaſon, but he ſoon grew ſtale to them, Joh 5. 35. See the Note there. Neutrum modo, mas modo vulgus.

μακαρισμὸς. Beatitudinis Prædicatio. Beza.

Verſe 16. Am I therefore become, &c.] Truth breeds hatred, as the fair Nymphes did the ugly Fawns and Satyrs. The hearing of truth galls, as they write of ſome creatures, that they have fel in aure, gall in their ears. It was not for nothing therefore that the Orator called upon his Countreymen to get their ears healed before they came any more to hear him. To preach faith Luther, is nothing elſe but to derive upon a mans ſelf the rage of al the Country. And therefore when one defined the miniſterial function to be Artem artium & ſcientiam ſcientiarum, the art of arts and ſcience of ſciences, Melanchthon ſaid, If he had defined it to be miſeriam miſeriarum, the miſery of miſeries, he had hit it.

Becauſe I tell you the truth?] He that prizeth truth (ſaith Sir Walter Ralegh) ſhall never proſper by the poſſeſſion or profeſſion thereof. An expectas, ut Quintilianus amentur? When we ſeek to fetch men out of their ſins, they are apt to fret and ſnarl; as when mē are wakened out of their ſleep, they are unquier, ready to brawl with their beſt friend.

Hiſt. l. 1. c. 1.

Verſe 17. They zealouſly affect you] Deperunt vos: as jealous wooers they would have you whole to themſelves without a corrival. ἴσως & εἴης, cognata ſunt.

They would exclude us] As ſtanding in their way. This is the guiſe of all ſectaries and ſeducers, they denigrate the true teachers that they may be the only men.

That you might affect them] Our Antinomians call upon their hearers to mark, it may be they ſhall hear that which they have not heard before, when the thing is either falſe, or if true, no more then ordinarily is taught by others.

Quid dignum tanto ferat hic promiſſor hiatu?

Hor. de art. Poet.

Verſe 18. To be zealouſly affected in a good thing] In a good cauſe, for a good end, and in a good manner. There is a counterfeit zeal, as is that of the Popiſh Martyrs, or traitours rather, of whom Campian in his Epiſtle to the honorable Councellours of

Digitized by Google

Queen

Queen Elizabeth. Quamdiu vel unus quispiam è nobis supererit qui Tiburno vestro fruatur, &c. As long as there shall be left any one of us to wear a Tiburn tippet, we will not cease our suit.

And not only when I am present] Sith even absent I teach and tell you the truth of God by letters.

Verse 19 Till Christ be formed] That you may seek for salvation by him alone. Together with the word there goes forth a regenerating power, James. 1. 18. It is not a dead letter, an empty sound, as some have blasphemed. Only let us not, as Hosea's unwise son, stay in the place of breaking forth of children, proceed no further then to conviction: much less stifle those inward workings for sin, as harlots destroy their conceptions, that they may not bear the pain of childe-birth.

Verse 20. And to change my voice] To speak to your necessity: for now being absent I shoot at rovers, and am at some uncertainty how to frame my discourse to you. Ἀπορεῖσθαι.

Verse 21. Ye that desire, &c.] That are ambitious of slavery, of beggery, v. 9. How many have we at this day, that rejoyce in their bondage, and dance to hell in their bolts?

Verse 22. For it is written] It was enough of old to say, It is written: there was no need to quote Chapter and verse, as now. Men were so ready in the Scriptures, they could tell where to turn to any thing at first hearing.

Verse 23. Was born after the flesh] In an ordinary way, as all others are: for Hagar was young, and Abraham not old.

Was by promise] i. e. By a supernatural power, by a divine miracle.

Verse 24. Which things are an Allegory] That is, they signifie or import an Allegory: or they, being the things that they were, represented and typed out the things that they were not. So did the brazen serpent, the deluge, the red sea, &c. As for those Allegories of Origen, and other wanton wits, luxuriant this way, what are they else but Scripturarum spuma, as one calleth them, Scripture-froth? Ἀλληγορούμενα.

Verse 25. For this Agar is mount] The Arabians call Mount Sina, Agar. Twice Hagar fled thither, Gen. 16. and 21. it being in her way home to Ægypt. From her the Arabians are called Hagarens, and since (for more honour sake) Saracens, of Sarah Hagars mistress.

Answereth to Jerusalem] That is, to the Jewish Synagogue, born to bondage, as Tiberius said of the Romans, that they were homines ad servitutem parati.

Verse 26. But Jerusalem which is above] That is, the Christian Church, the heavenly Jerusalem, the Panegyris and congregation of the first born, whose names are enrolled in heaven, Heb. 12. 23. The Hebrew word for Jerusalem is of the Dual number; to shew, say the Cabalists, that there is an heavenly as well as an earthly Jerusalem, and that the taking away of the earthly was intimated by the taking away of the letter jod out of Jerushalaim, 2 Sam. 5. 13. Let us upon the sight of any famous city, lift up our hearts with holy Fulgentius and say, Si talis est Roma terrestris, qualis est Roma cœlestis? If there be such stateliness and sweetness here, what is there in that City of the great King? Amama in Coronide.

Verse 27. For it is written] When these testimonies of the old Testament are thus cited in the new, it is not only by way of Accommodation, but because they are the proper meaning of the places.

Verse 28. Now we, brethren, as Isaac] This the Jews to this day will not hear of, but call us Mamzer Goi bastardly Gentiles.

Verse 29. Persecuted him] By cruel mockings and real injuries, challenging the birthright, and deriding the Covenant, &c. Moses his word, Gen. 21. 9. holds forth, that Ismael did not onely himself mock Isaac, but made others also to mock him, exposing him to their jears. The Papists made way for their great project of perdition in 88. by dividing the people here under the terms of Protestant and Puritan, and provoking them thereby to real and mutual, both hate and contempt. מצחק. George Abbots answ. to D. Hils 3. reas.

Even so it is now] And so also it is now, may we say at this day. For what do Papists persecute us for else, but because we reject their justification by works? They poisoned their own Cardinal Contarenus, for that he declared himself sound in this point, by a book that he set forth some four years afore the Council of Trent.

Verse 30. Shall not be heir] No justitiary can be saved. A Papist cannot go beyond a reprobate. Purus putus Papista non potest servari, Rev. 19. 21.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 31. We are not children, &c.] q. d. We are in a far better condition then Iſraelites. I have bleſſed Iſmael, ſaith God, twelve Princes ſhall he beget, but my Covenant will I eſtabliſh with Iſaac, Gen. 17. 20, 21. And ſuch honour have all his Saints.

Chap. V.

Verſe 1. Be not again entangled]

As oxen tied to the yoke. Thoſe that followed Judas Galileus, Act. 5. 37. choſe rather to undergo any death, then to be in ſubjection to any mortal. If civil ſervitude be ſo grievous, what ought ſpiritual to be? Thoſe poor miſled and muzled ſouls that are held captive in the Popes dark dungeon, have an ill time of it. Ever ſince, being reconciled to the Roman Church, I ſubjected my ſelf and my Kingdoms (ſaid King John of England) to the Popes authority, never any thing went well with me, but all againſt me.

ζυγὸς δε. Ioſeph. l. 18. c. 2.

Nulli mihi proſpera, ſed omnia adverſa evenerunt.

Verſe 2. Behold I Paul] q. d. As true as I am Paul, and do write theſe things.

Chriſt ſhall profit you nothing] For he profits none but thoſe that are found in him, not having their own righteouſneſs, which is of the law, but that which is through the faith of Chriſt, the righteouſneſs which is of God through faith, Phil. 3. 9. As Pharaoh ſaid of the Iſraelites, they are entangled in the Land, the wilderneſs hath ſhut them in. Exod. 4. 3. So may it be ſaid of Phariſaical and Popiſh Juſtitiaries, they are entangled in the fond conceits of their own righteouſneſs, they cannot come to Chriſt. A man will never truly deſire Chriſt, till ſoundly ſhaken, Hag. 2. 7.

Verſe 3. That he is a debtour] viz. if he be circumciſed with an opinion of meriting thereby. Chriſt will be our ſole Saviour, or none; he will not mingle his precious blood with our puddle-ſtuff. Thoſe that will look unto him, muſt look off all things elſe, as the Apoſtles word importeth, Heb. 12. 2.

Ἀφορῶντες.

Verſe 4. Chriſt is become of none effect] Woe then to Popiſh merit-mongers. William Wickam, founder of New-Colledge, though he did many good works, yet he profeſſed he truſted to Jeſus Chriſt alone for ſalvation. So did Charls the fifth Emperour of Germany. So did many of our fore-fathers in times of Popery.

Parei hiſt. profan. medul. D. Uſher on Eph. 4. 13.

Ye are fallen from grace] It cannot hence be concluded, that the Apoſtle ſpeaks conditionally, and it may be underſtood of the true Doctrine of Gods free grace.

Verſe 5. For we through the Spirit] We Apoſtles hope for righteouſneſs by faith. If you will go to heaven any other way, you muſt erect a ladder, and go up alone, as Conſtantine ſaid to Aceſius the Novatian heretick.

Erigito ſcalam, Acceſi, & ſolus aſcendito.

Verſe 6. Neither circumciſion] Unregenerate Iſrael is as Ethiopia, Amos. 9. 7.

But faith that worketh] Juſtificamur tribus modis. Effectivè à Deo, apprehenſivè à fide, declarativè ab operibus. Faith juſtifies the man, and works juſtifie faith. To be a mother in Iſrael, as having Rachels eye, and Leahs womb.

Verſe 7. Ye did run well] Why do ye now ſtop or ſtep back? Tutius recurrere quam malè currere, was the Emperour Philips ſymbol! Better run back, then run amiſs: for in this caſe, He that haſteth with his feet, ſinneth, Prov. 19. 2. But to run well till a man ſweats, and then to ſit down, and take cold, may cauſe a conſumption.

Reuſner Symb.

Who did let you] Gr. Threw a block in your way.

ἐγκοπὴν tranſverſum aliquid ſtruere.

Verſe 8. This perſwaſion] Sectaries and ſeducers have a ſtrange art in perſwading. Col. 2. 4. And although we think our ſelves able enough to anſwer and withſtand their arguments, yet it is dangerous dealing with them. The Valentinian hereticks had a trick to perſwade before they taught. Arrius could cogge a die, and cozen the ſimple and heedleſs hearer.

πιθανολογία. Tertullian.

Verſe 9. A little leven] viz. Of falſe doctrine, Mat. 16. 6. See the Note there.

Verſe 10. But he that troubleth you] That hereſiarch, or ring-leader of the faction. The Beaſt and the falſe-prophet, are taken and caſt alive into a lake, &c. when the common ſort ſeduced by them had an eaſier judgement, Rev. 19. 20, 21.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 11. Why do I yet ſuffer perſecution] From the Jews zealous of the Law. It is well obſerved, that the nearer any are unto a conjunction in matters of religion, and yet ſome difference, retained, the deeper is the hatred. A Jew hates a Chriſtian worſe then he doth a Turk or Pagan. A Papiſt hates a Proteſtant worſe then he doth a Jew, &c.

D. Day upon 1 Cor. 16. 9. Non circumcidantur modò, ſed & abſcindantur. Chryſ.

Verſe 12. I would they were even cut] Not circummciſed only, cut round, but cut off.

ἀναστατώσουσιν.

That trouble you] That turn you upſide down, or that turn you out of houſe and home.

Verſe 13. Only uſe not your liberty] In maxima libertate, minima licentia. Therefore are men the worſe, becauſe they ſhould be better. Chriſt came to call ſinners, not to licentiouſneſs, but to repentance, Mat. 2. 17. to take his yoke upon them, Mat. 11. 29: to hire out their members ſervants to righteouſneſs, Rom. 6. 16. Hence it is, that as St. Pauls Epiſtles largely prove free election and juſtification by Chriſt: So the Epiſtles of Iames, Peter, and John, preſs to love and new obedience, leſt any ſhould argue from mercy to liberty. Nemo fit liber in frandem fiſci, ſaith the civil law. It was enacted among the Athenians, that whoſoever, having been a bondman, was convicted of ingratitude for his manumiſſion, ſhould loſe his liberty: the Romans made ſuch ſlaves again; which puniſhment they term Maximam capitis diminutionem.

Valer. Max. lib. 2. c. 1. Iuſtin Inſtit. l. 1 c. 16.

Verſe 14. For all the law] i. e. All the ſecond table. The Scripture oft appropriateth the Law to the ſecond table, as Rom. 13. 8. Epheſ. 6. 2. &c. A man muſt exerciſe the firſt table in the ſecond, the duties of his general calling in his particular calling. In the firſt Commandment, ſaith Luther, the keeping of all the law is enjoyned. Neither can any one love his neighbour as himſelf, but he that loves God above all.

Primo præcepto ſeliquorum omnium obſervantia præcipitur. Luther.

Verſe 15. But if ye bite &c.] Si collidimur, frangimur. If we claſh, we break. Diſſolution is the daughter of diſſention, ſaid Nazianzen. The Turks pray to God to keep the Chriſtians at variance. Iſraelites in Ægypt vexed one another: And Chriſtians, as if they wanted enemies, flie in one anothers faces. This is a ſad fore-token of a deadly conſumption. When the Eaſtern Churches were all to pieces among themſelves, in came the Gothes and Vandals, and afterward the Turks and Tartars. When the French Churches began to jangle and jarr about diſcipline, God ſuffered the Pariſian Maſſacre. Our preſent hideous diſſentions (like thoſe civil warrs of Rome —— nullos habitura triumphos) do as plainly foretell the removing of our candleſtick, in caſe we repent not, as if we had received letters from heaven to that purpoſe. We read in our Chronicles, that thoſe who were born in England the year after the great mortality Anno 1349. wanted ſome of their cheek-teeth. Men ſeem to have more now then uſual; there was never ſuch biting and ſnarling. England, is a mighty Animal (ſaith a great Politician) which can never die except it kill it ſelf. And to the ſame purpoſe the Lord Rich in a ſpeech to the Juſtices in K. Edwards 6. dayes, "Never foreign power (ſaith he) "could yet hurt, or in any part prevail in this Realm, but by diſobedience and miſor- "der among themſelves. That's the way wherewith God will plague us, if he mind "to puniſh us. And ſo long as we do agree amongſt our ſelves —— we may be ſure "that God is with us, and that foreign power ſhall not prevail againſt us, &c.

Camer. Med. hiſt. cent. 2.

Melch. Adam. in vita Bullin. Lucan.

Intereſt of Prin. p. 55.

Act. & Mon. 1186.

Verſe 16. This I ſay then] For an antidote againſt abuſe of Chriſtian liberty. Set the Spirit, as Pharaoh did Joſeph, upon the chief Charet of your hearts, and let all be at his beck and check.

Verſe 17. For the fleſh luſteth] Every new man is two men. What can a man ſee in the Shulamite, but as the appearance of two Armies, Cant. 6. 13. ? Theſe maintain civil broils within her, as the two babes did in Rebecca's womb. All was jolly quiet at Epheſus, till Paul came thither: But then there aroſe no ſmall ſtir about that way, Acts 19. 23. So is there in the good ſoul &c.

So that ye cannot do the things, &c.] As ye cannot do the good that ye would, becauſe of the fleſh (Rom. 7. 21. ſomething lay at the fountain-head, and ſtopt it) ſo neither can ye do the evil that ye would, becauſe of the Spirit. In which reſpect, ſetting the ingratitude aſide, the ſins of godly men are leſs then of others, becauſe the fleſh cannot carry it without ſome counterbuffs.

Verſe 18. Ye are not under the law] For where the ſpirit is, there is liberty, from the rigour, irritation, and malediction of the Law.

Verſe 19. Now the works of the fleſh] Sinners are ſore labourers; wicked men great workmen. Would they take but half that pains for heaven that they do for hell, they

Digitized by Google

Gnamal. πνηεία. they could not, likely, miſs of it. The Hebrew and Greek words for ſin import labour.

φανερὰ. Are manifeſt] They lie above ground, and are condemned by the light of nature. Wicked men alſo hang out their ſins to the ſight of the Sun, Iſa. 3. 9. that they muſt needs be manifeſt even to a natural conſcience: not ſo the fruits of the ſpirit.

Verſe 20. Idolatry] This is fitly ſet after thoſe fleſhly ſins, as commonly accompanied with them, 1 Cor. 10. 7, 8. Sir Walter Rawleigh knew what he ſaid, that were he to chuſe a religion for licentious liberty and laſciviouſneſs, he would chuſe the Popiſh religion.

Verſe 21. Murthers, drunkenneſs] This is oft the mother of murther. Domitius the father of Nero, ſlew Liberius an honeſt man, becauſe he refuſed to drink ſo much as he commanded him. Alexander killed many of his dear friends in his drunkenneſs, whom he would have revived again (but could not) with his own heart blood. Once he invited a company to ſupper, and provided a crown of 180. pounds to be given to thoſe that drank moſt. One and fourty killed themſelves with drinking to get that crown. M. Samuel Ward in his Woe to drunkards maketh mention of many brought by this ſwiniſh ſin to untimely ſhameful ends in a brutiſh and beſtial manner: Among the reſt, one of Aileſham in Norfolk, a notorious drunkard drowned in a ſhallow brook of water with his horſe by him. The like whereunto is fallen out in the place where I now live, this inſtant November 14. Anno D. 1650. At a blind clandeſtine Alehouſe, a company of odious drunkards having drunk all the three Outs (that is, Ale out of the Pot, money out of the purſe, and wit out of the head) One of them, making homeward, was drowned in a ſhallow ditch, his body not yet buried; upon his ſoul I paſs no definitive ſentence: but what hope can we comfortably conceive of ſuch? Another of the ſame crew (rebuked by his father at the ſame time for his ill husbandry) ſwore he would hang himſelf; which alſo he did preſently: and had periſhed by his own hands, had not his father come ſeaſonably and cut the halter. O theſe Alehouſes! the peſthouſes of our Nation, the very ſinks and ſources of all villany.

Sueton.

Verſe 22. The fruits of the ſpirit] The ſpirit of grace are thoſe two golden pipes, Zach. 4. through which the two olive-branches empty out of themſelves the golden oils of all precious graces into the Candleſtick, the Church. Hence grace is here and elſewhere called the fruits of the ſpirit, pleaſant fruits, Cant. 4. 16. and 6. 2. Ioh. 15. 16.

Aquin. 2. 2. q. 136. Long-ſuffering] It hath been queſtioned by ſome, whether a man can be long-ſuffering, Sine auxilio gratiæ, without the help of grace. But that which is right, is a fruit of the ſpirit.

χρηστότης. Gentleneſs] Gr. Uſefulneſs, ſweetneſs.

Faith] That is, Faithfulneſs, as Mat. 23. 23. 1 Tim. 5. 12. Tit. 2. 10.

Camd. Eliz. Verſe 23. Meekneſs, temperance] Queen Elizabeth was famous for theſe two vertues. King Edward 6. called her by no other name, then his ſweet ſiſter Temperance. She did ſeldom eat but one ſort of meat, roſe ever with an appetite, and lived about 70. years.

S. in Vaughan. M. Heywicks 3. Sermons. Next to the holy Scripture ſhe preferred (as the beſt piece) Seneca's book of clemency. When ſhe ſaid, that book had done her much good; yea, ſaid one, but it hath done your ſubjects much hurt.

Againſt ſuch there is no law] 1 Tim. 1. 9. As for the works of the fleſh, there is no Goſpel. The righteous need no law to compel them, therefore they ſhall have none to condemn them. The Law confineth them to live in that element where they would live; as if one ſhould be confined to paradiſe, where he would be, though there be no ſuch Law.

Verſe 24. And they that are Chriſts] When Chriſt came in the fleſh, we crucified him: when he comes into our hearts, he crucifies us.

Have crucified the fleſh] To crucifie, is not abſolutely and out-right to kill; Crucifixion is a lingring death, no member being free from pain. If then we ſo repent of ſin (as that which crucified Chriſt) we ſo peirce the old man, that we are ſure he will die of it, though he be not preſently dead, this is mortification. Thoſe beaſts, Dan. 7. 12. had their dominion taken away, and yet their lives were prolonged for a ſeaſon.

With the affections] Sinful, ſudden paſſions.

And luſts] More deeply rooted in our natures, and ſo, not ſo eaſily overcome.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 25. If we live in the Spirit] Spiritual men only are heirs of life, 1 Peter 3. 7. all others are dead in treſpaſſes.

Let us walk] Walk orderly by line, and by rule, march in rank, &c. Life conſiſts in action. Life, ſaith the Philoſopher, is ſuch a faculty as whereby creatures move themſelves in their own places. The godly eſteem of life by that ſtirring they find in their ſouls: as elſe they lament, as over a dead ſoul, Iſa. 38. 15. 16. στοιχῶμεν.

Verſe 26. Let us not be deſirous of vain-glory] Ingens dulcedo gloriæ (ſaith Æneas Sylvius) facilius contemnenda dicitur, quam contemnitur. It was this vice that raiſed ſo much trouble in Germany betwixt Luther and Carloſtadius, and that bred the Sacramentary war that is not yet ended. It was a ſaying of Luther, From a vain-glorious Doctour, from a contentious Paſtour, and from unprofitable Queſtions, the good Lord deliver his Church.

Provoking one another, envying one another] And ſo diſcovering your weakneſs, as the vain glorious Peacock doth his filthy parts behind, whiles he delighteth to be ſeen and to behold his own tail.

CHAP. VI.

Verſe 1. If a man be overtaken]

GR. Be taken afore he is aware, afore he hath time to conſider, or bethink himſelf of better. It is of incogitancy, that the Saints ſin; put them in mind, and they mend all. It is of paſſion, and paſſions laſt not long. There is no way of wickedneſs in them; They ſtand not in the way of ſinners, they ſit not down in the ſeat of ſcorners προλημφθῇ. Pſal. 139. Pſal. 1. 1.

Reſtore ſuch an one] Gr. Set him in joynt again. A Metaphor from Chirurgions and bone-ſetters who handle their patients tenderly. Or from ſuch as take a mote out of ones eye; gently and warily. καταρτίζετε.

Leſt thou alſo be tempted] I have known a good old man, ſaith Bernard, who when he had heard of any that had committed ſome notorious offence, was wont to ſay with himſelf, Ille hodie, & ego cras. He fell to day, ſo may I to morrow. Mr. Bradford ſet down in his day-book, what good he ſaw in any man: bewailing the want of it in himſelf, and praying for more grace; As if he ſaw or heard of any evil in another, he noted it, as in danger to do ſo himſelf; and ſtill added, Lord have mercy upon me. Pref. to his Serm. of Rep.

Verſe 2. Bear ye one anothers burdens] When after reprehenſion ſin is become a burden, ſet to your ſhoulder, and help to lift it off. Support the weak, be patient toward all. Nature hath taught the deer to help one another in ſwimming, the Cranes one another in flying; one ſtone bears up another in buildings contrived by art, &c. 1 Theſſ. 5. 14.

Verſe 3. Think himſelf to be ſomething] the ſelf-deceiver takes his counter, and ſets it up for a thouſand pound, as the Phariſees and Laodiceans. Of ſuch it may be ſaid, as Quintilian ſomewhere of ſome over-weeners of themſelves, that they might have proved excellent ſcholars, if they had not been ſo perſwaded already.

Verſe 4. But let every man prove] This is an excellent remedy againſt ſelf-deceit, and a means to make one fit to reprove others with mercy and meekneſs.

And then ſhall he have rejoycing] Ut teſtimonium perhibeat conſcientia propria, non lingua aliena, ſaith Auguſtine, that thine own conſcience, and not another mans tongue may teſtifie for thee. Omnis Surnatarum virtus extra ipſos, ſaith Tacitus. All the ſelf-deceivers goodneſs is ſhored up by popularity, or other baſe reſpects. Tacit. lib. 1. c. 10

Verſe 5. For every man ſhall bear] Be through therefore in the work of ſelf-examination. Sparing a little pains at firſt, doubles it in the end: As he who will not caſt up his books, his books will caſt up him at length. The miſery of moſt men is, that their mindes are as ill ſet as their eyes, neither of them look inwards: how few are there that turn ſhort again upon themſelves, ſoss to ſay, What have I done? Wo to all ſuch when God ſhall ſend out ſummons for ſleepers, when he comes to ſearch Jeruſalem with candles and puniſh the men that are ſetled on their Lees, &c. Zeph. 1. 12.

Digitized by Google Verſe

Verse 6. Communicate unto him] Not contribute as an alms, but communicate as a right: see Philem. 17. as wages for his work, Mark 6. as pay for his pains, 1 Cor. 9. 14. See the Note there.

Verse 7. Be not deceived] Think not all well saved that is with-held from the Minister. It is a saying in the civil-law, Clercis Laici sunt oppido infensi: Many think it neither sin, nor pity to beguile the Preacher. But God is not mocked, neither will he be robbed by any, but they shall hear, Ye are cursed with a curse, Mal. 3. 8, 9. even with Shallums curse (Jer. 22. 11, 12, 13.) that used his neighbours service without wages, and would sacrilegiously take in a piece of Gods windows into his wide house, ver. 14.

God is not mocked] They that would mock God, imposturam faciunt, & patientur (as the Emperour said of him that sold glass for pearls) they mock themselves much more.

Verse 8. For he that soweth to his flesh] He that neglecting his poor soul, cares only to feather his nest, and to heap up riches. Si ventri bene, si lateri, as Epicurus in Horace: If the belly may be filled, the back fitted, let the soul sink or swim, he takes no thought.

ἐκκακῶμεν. Verse 9. And let us not be weary] Let us not give in, as tired jades: hot at hand seldome holds out. Let us not slack our pace in religion: let not our tears begin to freeze: for this, if it doth not lose, yet it may lessen and lighten our Crown. Ambrose noteth of the Fig-tree, that whereas other trees first blossom, and then bring forth fruit, in the Fig-tree it is otherwise, Poma decidunt ut folia succedant, The Figs fall off, that leaves may come in their place. So many that begin in fruits, end in leaves: Such are they that weary of well-doing, lose the things that they have wrought, 2 John 8. See the Note.

For in due season we shall reap] We must not look to sow and reap in a day: as he saith of the Hyperborean people, far north, that they sow shortly after the Sun-rising with them, and reap before the Sun-set: that is, because the whole half year is one continual day with them.

Heresbach. de re rustica.

Cic. de finib. If we faint not] Quærendi defatigatio turpis est, cum id quod quæritur, sit pulcherrimum. It is a shame to faint in the search of that, which being found, will more then pay for the pains of searching. Caleb was not discouraged by the Giants, therefore he had Hebron the place of the Giants: so those that faint not in the the way to heaven, shall inherit heaven.

Verse 10. As we have therefore opportunity] Catch at it, as the Eccho catcheth the voice. Joseph took the nick of time to gain Egypt to the King, by feeding the hungry; so may we, to get heaven. I read of a Roman Emperour who when he heard of a neighbour dead, he asked, And what did I for him before he died? Let us ask our selves the same and the like questions.

Turpine. Who are of the houshold] Of the family of faith, Gods houshold servants. That was a desperate resolve of Aigoland, King of Arragon, who coming to the French Court to be baptized, and asking who those Lazars and poor people were that waited for alms from the Emperour Charlemains Table? When one answered him that they were the Messengers and servants of God; I will never serve that God, said he, that can keep his servants no better.

Verse 11. How large a letter] Gr. With what good great text-letters. I have written unto you with mine own hand (no fair hand: the greatest Clerks are not alwayes the best Scribes) and not by any Tertius, or other amanuensis, Rom. 16. 22. to shew his love, and prevent imposture, 2 Thes. 2. 2.

Chrysost. Theophylact. εὐπροσωπῆσαι. Verse 12. To make a fair shew] Gr. To set a good face on it, afore the Jews especially, and to ingraciate with them.

For the cross of Christ] That is, for the doctrine of the cross, or of justification by the death of Christ crucified.

Verse 13. Keep the law] Rom. 2. 23. Hierome doubteth not to pronounce that man accursed, that saith it is impossible to keep the Law. Sed quid visum sit Hieronymo, nihil moramur: nos quid verum sit inquiramus, saith Calvin. But let Hierome hold as he will, we know there is no such thing.

That they may glory in your flesh] That they may pride themselves in the multitude of their followers, and curry favour with the Iews by gaining many proselytes.

Digitized by Google

Verse

Verſe 14. But God forbid, &c.] The Saints keep a conſtant counter-motion, and are Antipodes to the wicked. They thus and thus, but I otherwiſe.

Whereby the World is crucified] I look upon the world as a dead thing, as a great dung-hill, &c. That harlot was deceived in S. Paul, in thinking to allure him by laying out thoſe her two fair breaſts of profit and pleaſure: He had no minde to be ſucking at thoſe botches; He was a very crucifix of mortification: And in his face (as one ſaid of Doctor Raynolds) a man might have ſeen Veram mortificati hominis ideam, the true portraiture of a mortified man.

And I to the world] q.d. The world and I are well agreed. The world cares not a pin for me, and I (to cry quittance with it) care as little for the world.

Ver. 15. For in Chriſt Jeſus] That is, in the Kingdom of Chriſt.

But a new Creature] Either a new man, or no man.

Verſe 16. According to this rule] viz. Of the new creature. Or the doctrine of this Epiſtle.

Peace be on them] Not only in them, or with them; but on them, maugre the malice of earth and hell.

Verſe 17. From henceforth let no man] Here he takes upon him as an Apoſtle, and ſpeaks with authority. Σεμνῶς καὶ δεινῶς.

I bear in my body the marks] As ſcars of honour. Paul had been whipped, ſtocked, ſtoned, &c. The marks of theſe he could better boaſt of, then thoſe falſe Apoſtles of their circumciſion. And hereby it appeared that he refuſed not, as they did, to ſuffer perſecution for the croſs of Chriſt. In the year 1166. The Synod held at Oxford in the raign of Henry the ſecond, baniſhed out of England thirty Dutch Doctors (which taught the right uſe of Marriage, and of the Sacraments) after they had firſt ſtigmatized or branded them with hot irons. John Clerk of Melden in France, being for Chriſts ſake whipped three ſeveral days, and afterwards having a mark ſet in his fore-head, as a note of infamy, his mother beholding it (though his father was an adverſary) encouraged her ſon, crying with a loud voice, Bleſſed be Chriſt, and welcome be theſe prints and marks of Chriſt. The next year after, ſcil. Anno 1524. he brake the images without the City, which his ſuperſtitious Country-men were to worſhip the next day. For the which he was apprehended, and had his right hand cut off, his noſe pulled off with pinſers, both his arms, and both his breſts torn with the ſame inſtrument; and after all, he was burned at a ſtake. In his greateſt torments he pronounced that of the Pſalmiſt, Their idols are ſilver and gold, the works of mens hands, &c. I conclude this diſcourſe with that ſaying of Pericles, It is not gold, precious ſtones, ſtatues &c. that adorns a ſouldier, but a torn buckler, a crackt helmet, a blunt ſword, a ſcarr'd face, &c. Of theſe Biron the French Marſhal boaſted at his death. And Sceva is renowned for this, that at the ſiege of Dyrrachium he ſo long alone reſiſted Pompeys army, that he had 220. darts ſticking in his ſhield, and loſt one of his eyes, and yet gave not over till Cæſar came to his reſcue. Mr. Prinne his Stigmata Laudis are better known, then that they need here to be related.

Aſſled. Chron. p. 357.

Act. and Mon. fol. 802. Vivat Chriſtus eiuſque inſignia.

Scultet. Annali

Denſamque ferens in pectore ſylvam. Lucan.

Verſe 18. Be with your ſpirit] Spirituals are ſpecially to be deſired for our ſelves and ours. Cætera aut aderunt, aut non oberunt. Other things we ſhall either have, or not want, but be as well without them.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

A COMMENTARY OR EXPOSITION Upon the Epiſtle of S. Paul to the Epheſians.

Chap. I.

Verſe 1. To the Saints —— to the faithful]

Itly; for it is by faith that we become Saints, Acts 15.9.

Verſe 2. Grace be to you, and peace] Theſe go fitly together; becauſe we muſt ſeek our peace in the free-grace and favour of God. The Ark and Mercy-ſeat were never ſundred.

Verſe 3. Bleſſed be God] Gratiæ ceſſat decurſus, ubi gratiarum recurſus. A thankful man ſhall abound with bleſſings.

With all ſpiritual bleſſings] Wiſdom, prudence, &c. verſe 8. a Benjamins portion, a goodly heritage; called here Spiritual bleſſing in the ſingular. All, and yet but one bleſſing; to note that ſpiritual bleſſings are ſo knit together, that they all make up but one bleſſing; and where God gives one, he gives all. ἐν πᾶσι δίλογία πνευματική.

Verſe 4. He hath choſen us in him] Chriſt was Mediator therefore from eternity, viz. by vertue of that humane nature, which he ſhould aſſume.

That we ſhould be holy] God elected us as well to the means, as to the end. Note this againſt Libertines. For as they Acts 27.31. could not come ſafe to land that left the ſhip; ſo neither can men come to heaven but by holineſs. Cyrus was moved to reſtore the captivity, by finding himſelf fore-appointed to this glorious ſervice 170 years before he was born, Iſa. 44.28. Should not we likewiſe be excited to good works by this that we were elected to them?

Without blame] Or blot, Epheſ. 5,27. Abſque querela, Luke 1.6.

Digitized by Google

Before him] i.e. In purity of heart, 2 Kings 20. 3.

In love] In sanctity of life.

Verse 5. Having predestinated us] Interpreters have observed, that this word that signifies to predestinate, is but six times found in the new Testament (never in the old) being referred but twice to things, Acts 4. 28. and 1 Cor. 2. 7. four times to persons, Rom. 8. 29, 30. Ephes. 1. 5. 11. and never applyed to reprobates, but to elect persons onely. Howbeit Divines under Predestination do usually consider the decree both of election and reprobation. The doctrine hereof men should not adventure to teach till they have well learned and digested it. In the year 1586. Jacobus Andreas the Lutheran, and Theodore Beza conferred and disputed for eight days space at Mompelier: the issue of which conference was unhappy; for from that time forward the Doctrine of Predestination was much misused and exagitated.

Alsted. Chron. p. 562.

Verse 6. To the praise of the glory] This is the end whereunto it is destined; and hence it is called Predestination. Note here, that all the causes of Predestination are meerly without us. The efficient, God; the material, Christ; the formal, the good pleasure of his will; the final, the praise of Gods glorious grace.

ἐχαρίτωσεν. Gratificavit. Vulgata.

Wherein he hath made us accepted] Gr. He hath ingraciated us, he hath justified us, made us gratious in his beloved Son our Mediator. And although there be an inequality of expressions in duty, Quoad nos, in us, yet there is a constancy of worth and intercession by Christ, propter nos, for us. Pareus rendreth these words thus, Nos sibi gratis effecit gratos, He hath freely made us well thought of.

Verse 7. In whom we have redemption] As captives ransomed at a price: What this price was, see 1 Pet. 1. 19. should not Christ therefore reap the travels of his soul? Isaiah 53.

The forgiveness of our sins] This David counted his crown, and prized it above his imperial diadem, Psalm 103. 3, 4.

Xenophon de dictis Socrat. l. 3.

Verse 8. In all Wisdom and prudence] That properly respecteth contemplation, this action. Socrates made no distinction betwixt them. For, said he, who so knoweth good to practise it, and evil to avoid it, he is a man truly wise and prudent.

Verse 9. The mysterie of his will] That is, the Gospel, a mysterie both to men, 1 Cor. 2. 8. and Angels, Ephes. 3. 10.

Verse 10. That in the dispensation] God is the best œconomick: his house is exactly ordered for matter of good husbandry. Dispensation of the fulness of time, is (by a Metonimy of the adjunct) put for fulness of times, wisely dispensed.

οἰκονομία. Bain. ἀνακεφαλαιώσασθαι.

Gather together in one] Gr. Recapitulate, reduce all to a head, recollect, to restore all things, and bring them to their primitive perfection.

Both which are in heaven] The crowned Saints, and perhaps the glorious Angels, who (according to some Divines) being in themselves changeable creatures (and therefore called Shinan, that is, mutable, Psal. 68. 17.) receive confirmation by Christ, so that they cannot leave their first station, as did the apostate Angels. Others think that the Angels stand not by means of Christs mediation, but of Gods eternal election, and are therefore called the elect Angels.

Verse 11. We have obtained inheritance] Or we are taken into the Church, as Magistrates were by lot into their office. Or, we are made Gods inheritance, as Deut. 32. 9. It imports our free and unexpected vocation. In sortem adsciti sumus; we were sorted out, singled out for a pick'd peculiar people.

ἐκληρώθημεν.

After the counsel of his own will] God doth all by counsel, and ever hath a reason of his will: which though we see not for present, we shall at last day. Mean while submit.

Verse 12. Who first trusted] It is a singular honor to be first in so good a matter. Hope is here put for faith, whereof it is both the daughter, and the nurse.

Verse 13. After that ye believed] They 1. Heard. 2. Believed. 3. Were sealed, i.e. full assured. Assurance is Gods seal, faith is our seal. God honours our sealing to his truth by his sealing by his spirit. We yield first the consent and assent of faith, and then God puts his seal to the contract. There must be the bargain before the earnest.

Verse 14. Which is the earnest] Not the pawn, but the earnest, Quia pignus redditur, arrha retinetur, saith Hierome. A pawn is to be returned again, but an earnest is part of the whole sum, and assures it. We here have eternal life, 1. In pretio. 2. In promisso. 3. In primitiis.

Digitized by Google

Verse

Verse 15. Your faith in the Lord Jesus] Love is the fruit of faith; therefore the Apostles pray for increase of faith, that they might be able seven times a day to forgive an offending brother, Luke 17.5. See the Note there.

Verse 16. Making mention of you] Whether a Minister shall do more good to others by his prayers or preaching, I will not determine (saith a grave Divine) but he shall certainly by his prayers reap more comfort to himself.

Verse 17. The Father of glory] That is, the glorious Father, Acts 7.2. Chrysostome expounds it the Father of Christ, as Chap 1.3.

The Spirit of wisdom and revelation] So called, because he revealeth unto us Gods depths, and reads us his riddles, 1 *Cor.*2. He illightens both the organ and object: he anoints the eyes with eye salve, and gives both sight and light. Saints progr. by Dr. Taylor.

Verse 18. The glory of his inheritance] The glory of heaven is unconceivable, *Rev.*21. search is made thorow all the bowels of the earth for something to shadow it by. No natural knowledge can be had of the third heaven, nor any help by humane arts, as Aristotle acknowledgeth. The glory thereof is fitter to be believed, then possible to be discoursed. De cœlo text. 99.

Verse 19. And what is the exceeding] Here is a most emphatical heap of most divine and significant words to express that which can never sufficiently be conceived or uttered. A six-fold gradation the Apostle useth to shew what a power God puts forth in working the grace of faith. Indeed this power is secret, and like that of the heavens upon our bodies: which (saith one) is as strong as that of physick, &c. yet so sweet, and so secretly insinuating it self with the principles of nature, that as for the conveyance of it, it is insensible, and hardly differenced from that of the principles of nature in us: therefore the Apostle prayeth for these Ephesians here, that their eyes may be enlightned to see the power that wrought in them, &c.

Verse 20. Which he wrought in Christ] God puts forth the same almighty power in quickning the heart by faith, that he did in raising up his Son Christ from the dead: It must needs then be more then a moral swasion that he useth. Christ wrought the Centurions faith, as God; he wondered at it, as man. God wrought, and man marvelled: he did both, to teach us where to bestow our wonder.

Verse 21. Far above all principality] Quantum inter stellas luna minores. Oh do but think with thy self (saith one) though it far pass the reach of any mortal thought, what an infinite inexplicable happiness it will be to look for ever upon the glorious body of Jesus Christ, shining with incomprehensible beauty: and to consider that even every vein of that blessed body bled to bring thee to heaven: and that it being with such excess of glory hypostatically united to the second person in Trinity, hath honored and advanced thy nature above the brightest Cherub.

To be the head over all things] That is, All persons, all the elect, as Gal. 3.22. Christ is head over angels too, but in another sense then over the Church, viz. 1. As God, he giveth them whatsoever they are or have. 2. As Mediator also, he maketh use of their service for the safety and salvation of the Church. The holy angels are great friends to the Church, but not members of it; For Christ took not on him the nature of Angels, but the seed of Abraham, Heb. 2.16. Besides, he sanctified his Church, and washed it with his blood, Ephes. 5. 26. But this he did not for the angels, &c. See the Note on verse 10.

Verse 23. The fulness of him] That is of Christ, who having voluntarily subjected himself to be our head, accounts not himself compleat without his members. In which respect we have the honour of making Christ perfect, as the members do the body.

That filleth all in all] Not onely All the Saints, but All of the Saints; all their capacities, all their powers, parts, desires, endeavours. Thus he filleth All, and in all Ordinances, Occurrences, Providences, Relations, Comforts, &c. πᾶσι, ἐν πᾶσι

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

Chap. II.

Verſe 1. Who were dead]

NAtural men are living carcaſes, walking ſepulchres of themſelves. In moſt families it is, as once it was in Egypt, Exod. 12.30. No houſe wherein there is not one, nay many dead corpſes. Howbeit the Natural man, though he be Theologically dead, yet is Ethically alive, being to be wrought upon by Arguments; Hence Hoſ. 11.4. I drew them by the cords of a man, that is, by reaſon and motives of love, befitting the nature of a man. So the Spirit and Word work upon us ſtill as men, by rational motives; ſetting before us, Life and Good, Death and Evil.

Verſe 2. Wherein ye walked] Hence Act. 14.16. Sin is called a way, but it leads to the chambers of death.

According to the courſe of this world] The mundaneity or worldlineſs of the world (as the Syriack rendreth it) which is wholly ſet upon wickedneſs (as Aaron ſaith of his worldlings, Exod. 32.22.) and takes no care for the world to come.

According to the Prince, &c.] The devil by whom wicked men are acted and agitated. Gratian was out in ſaying, That Satan is called Prince of the world, as a King of Cheſſe, or as the Cardinal of Ravenna, only by deriſion. Evil men ſet him up for their Soveraign, and are wholly at his beck and obedience.

The ſpirit that now worketh] As a Smith worketh in his Forge, an Artificer in his ſhop. A Natural man, as he is the heir of Original, and father of actual ſin; ſo his ſoul and all the powers thereof, are but Satans ſhop of ſins; his body and all the parts thereof, tools of ſin; his life, and all his actions of both ſoul and body, a trade of ſin, by the ſame reaſon.

Verſe 3. Among whom alſo we all, &c.] Let the beſt look back oft on what they were before calling, that they may thankfully cry out with Iphicrates, ὡς ἐκ τίνος εἰς τίνα, from what miſery to what dignity are we advanced!

Fulfilling the deſires] Gr. The wills of the fleſh. Now therefore we muſt as diligently fulfill not the will, but the wills of God, as David did, Act. 13.22.

The children of wrath] Deires. Gregory the Great ſaid of the Engliſh boys that were preſented to him, Angli quaſi Angeli. And demanding further what Province they were of in this Iſland, it was returned, that they were called Deires: which cauſed him again to repeat the word, and to ſay, that it were great pity but that by being taught the Goſpel, they ſhould be ſaved de ira Dei, from the wrath of God. Whereunto we are ſubject, even as in nature a childe is to the commands and reſtraints of his Father: being damnati priuſquam nati, as Auguſtin hath it, damned ere born into the world.

Abbots Geog. pag. 199.

Verſe 4. But God who is rich in mercy] Such a mercy as rejoyceth againſt Judgement, as a man againſt his adverſary which he hath ſubdued, Jam. 2.13.

Verſe 5. Hath quickned, &c.] The very firſt ſtirrings in the womb of grace are precious to God: he bleſſeth our very buds, Iſa. 44.3. according to the Geneva tranſlation.

Even when we were dead] This is again repeated, becauſe hardly believed. We are apt to conceit better of our ſelves then there is cauſe for; and can hardly be perſwaded that we are dead in ſins and treſpaſſes, and lie rotting and ſtinking in the graves of corruption, much worſe then Lazarus did after he had layn four days in his Sepulchre. We would be ſorry but our penny ſhould be as good ſilver as anothers, & are ready with the Phariſee, to ſet up our Counter for a thouſand pound. In fine, a dead woman we ſay, muſt have four to carry her forth. A man ſhall have much ado to perſwade the merry Greeks of this world, but that they have the only life of it; and that others are dead in compariſon of them. Hence this iteration of the blow upon the natural man, to knock him down dead as it were, to bring him to Pauls paſs, Rom. 7.9.

Verſe 6. And made us ſit together] We have taken up our rooms afore-hand in heaven, whereunto we have juſt right upon earth by vertue of the union, the ground of communion, 1 Joh. 5.12. He that hath the ſon hath life: he hath poſſeſſion of it, as by turf and twig.

Digitized by Google

Verſe

Verſe 7. In his kindneſs toward us] We come not to the knowledge of God, but by his works: And even this way of knowing him we naturally abuſe to Idolatry.

Verſe 8. For by grace ye are ſaved] So ver. 5. and every where almoſt S. Paul is a moſt conſtant preacher of the grace of God, as Chryſoſtom ſtileth him. Sub laudibus naturæ latent inimici gratiæ, ſaith Auguſtine. The Patrons of mans free-will are enemies to Gods free-grace.

Verſe 9. Leaſt any man ſhould boaſt] As that fool did, that ſaid, Cœlum gratis non accipiam, I will not have heaven but at a rate. Non ſic Deos colimus, aut ſic vivimus, ut ille nos vinceret, ſaid the Emperor Antonius Philoſophus. We have not ſo lived and deſerved of God, that the enemy ſhould vanquiſh us. Vega. Valcat Gallic. in Avid. Caſſio.

Verſe 10. For we are his workmanſhip] His artificial facture, or creature, that wherein he hath ſhewed ſingular skill, by erecting the glorious fabrick of the new man. ποίημα.

Created---to good works] In the year 1559. there was publiſhed a Paradox, that good works are pernitious to ſalvation of mens ſouls. David George the broacher of this Hereſie was digg'd up, and burnt at Baſile.

God hath before ordained] i.e. By his eternal decree. Our Vivification then is not a work of yeſterday: but ſuch as God hath with ſingular complacency contemplated from all eternity, rejoycing in that habitable part of his earth, Prov. 8.31.

Verſe 11. Who are called uncircumciſion] In great ſcorn and reproach, as 1 Sam. 17.26. Howbeit unregenerate Iſrael was to God as Ethiopia, Amos 9.7. And Jether by nature an Iſmaelite, 1 Chron. 7.17. was for his Faith and Religion called an Iſraelite, 2 Sam. 17.25.

Verſe 12. Strangers from the Covenant] The Saints only are heirs to the promiſes: but the devil ſweeps all the wicked, as being out of the Covenant. They ſtuff themſelves with promiſes, till they have made them a pillow for ſin, Deut. 29. 19. Sed præſumendo ſperant, & ſperando perennt.

Having no hope] But ſuch as will one day hop headleſs, ſuch as will ſerve them as Abſolons Mule ſerved her Maſter, when ſhe left him hanging by the head betwixt heaven and earth, as rejected of both.

Without God in the world] Becauſe without a teaching Prieſt, and without law, 2 Chr. 15.3. As it is ſaid of the poor Braſileans at this day, that they are ſine fide, ſine rege, ſine lege. This was the caſe of our Pagan Predeceſſors.

Verſe 13. Are made nigh by the blood] Chriſt hath paved us a new and living way to the throne of Gods grace by his own moſt precious blood. O happy lapidi-pavium! O Golgotha become our Gabbatha! Ioh. 19.13. 17.

Verſe 14. For he is our peace] That is, our peace-maker and peace-matter. When he was born, there was among all Nations, a general aut pax, aut pactio, as Florus obſerveth. When he took his name, he would not have it either entirely Hebrew, as Jeſus, or entirely Greek, as Chriſt, but both Jeſus and Chriſt, to ſhew (ſaith one) that he is our peace that hath reconciled two into one, &c. εἰρήνη ἐστὶ τὸ ἓς ἐν ἐιρεῖν.

Verſe 15. Having aboliſhed in his fleſh] That is, by his death in the fleſh, Col. 1.22. At which time the veil rent, and the Ceremonies died: only they were to be honorably buried.

For to make in himſelf] Gr. To create; ſc. by regeneration, Gal. 6.15. So by conjoyning he new created them, and by new creating he conjoyned them.

Verſe 16. In one body] Ubi igitur Separatiſtæ? ſaith one. All other ſins deſtroy the Church conſequentially: but diviſion and ſeparation demoliſh it directly.

Having ſlain the enmity] Not the Ceremonies only, as ver. 15. but ſin that great make-bate, that ſets God at odds with his own creature.

Verſe 17. To them that were nigh] That is, The children of Iſrael, a people near unto him, Pſal. 148.14.

Verſe 18. We both have an acceſs] With good aſſurance of ſucceſs. The Perſian Kings held it a piece of their ſilly glory to hold off their beſt friends, who might not come near them, but upon ſpecial licence, Eſth. 1. Not ſo our King. Oh come, for the Maſter calleth thee!

Verſe 19. Fellow-citizens with the Saints] Paul, as a Citizen of Rome, eſcaped whipping: Act. 22.6.

Digitized by Google

whipping: we, as Citizens with the Saints, eſcape hell tortures and torments.

Verſe 20. Upon the foundation] Foundation is taken either for Chriſt. 1 Cor. 3. 11. Mat. 16. 16. or the doctrine of the Scriptures which teach ſalvation only by Jeſus Chriſt, as here, and Rev. 21. 14.

Verſe 21. Fitly framed together] Or, perfectly joyned together by the cement of the holy Spirit working in the Saints faith in Chriſt, and love one toward another, which the Apoſtle calleth the bond of perfection.

Verſe 22. For an habitation of God, &c.] The Father makes choice of this houſe, the Son purchaſeth it, the Holy Ghoſt taketh poſſeſſion of it. This happineſs he beſt underſtandeth, that moſt feeleth. The Cock on the dung-hill knows it not.

Chap. III.

Verſe 1. For this cauſe]

TO wit, that you may be an habitation of God, through the Spirit,

I Paul the Priſoner] I hold not S. Paul ſo happy for his rapture into Paradiſe (ſaith Chryſoſtome upon this Text) as for his impriſonment for Chriſt.

Verſe 2. Of the diſpenſation] Gr. Oeconomy. The Church is Gods houſe, 1 Tim. 3. 15. Paul was faithful therein as a ſteward, Mat. 24. 45.

Verſe 3. As I wrote afore in few] ſc. Chap. 1. 9. and 2. 3, &c. Fulneſs of matter in fewneſs of words. This is the Scriptures precellency above all humane writings.

Verſe 4. My knowledge in the myſtery] The higheſt point of heavenly learning; and hereby he proveth his calling to the Miniſtery. The Prieſts lips ſhould both preſerve knowledge, and preſent it to the people, to give them the knowledge of ſalvation by the remiſſion of their ſins. An Aſs might not be coupled with an Ox in plowing. No ignorant doltiſh Aſs may plow in Gods field, the Church: ſuch as was that ſilly ſoul, who coming to be ordained, and being asked by the Biſhop, Eſne Dignus? anſwered, No, my Lord, I ſhall dine anon with your men.

Mal. 2. Luke 1.

Verſe 5. Was not made known] ſc. So clearly and particularly. Peter himſelf could hardly be perſwaded to it, Acts 10. 14. 34, 35.

Verſe 6. Gentiles ſhould be fellow-heirs] Co-heirs; concorporate, and conſorts: three ſweet ſocieties, the former founded upon the two latter.

Verſe 7. By the effectual working, &c.] Enabling me to accept and improve that gift of Gods grace: whereunto I ſhould otherwiſe turn not the palm, but the backſide of the hand.

Verſe 8. Leſs then the leaſt] Great Paul is leaſt of Saints, laſt of Apoſtles, greateſt of ſinners. The beſt balſomes ſink to the bottom, the goodlieſt buildings have loweſt foundations: the heavieſt ears of corn hang downward; ſo do the boughs of trees that are beſt laden. Ignatius in his Epiſtles ſaith I ſalute you who am ultimus, the laſt and leaſt of all others. So in another Epiſtle, Tantillitas noſtra, Our Meanneſs, &c.

Opulentiſſima metalla, quorum in alto latent venæ. Sen. ep. 23.

The unſearchable riches] Gr. Not to be traced out. Should not Miniſters be made welcome that come to men on ſuch golden meſſages? In Chriſt are riches of juſtification, Tit 2. 14. ſanctification, Phil. 4. 12, 13. conſolation, 2 Cor. 12 9. glorification, 1 Pet. 1. 5.

ἀνεξιχνίαστον.

Verſe 9. And to make all men ſee] Gr. To illighten them, far more then the preaching of the Prophets could, 2 Pet. 1. 19. To us now is a great light ſprung up, Mat. 4. 16 οἰκονομία.

The fellowſhip] Or (as ſome copies have it) the diſpenſation.

Who created all things] i.e. Reſtored, repaired: hence Goſpel-days are called the world to come, Heb. 2. 5.

Verſe 10. Might be known by the Church] As by a glaſs or theatre.

πολυποίκιλος.

The manifold Wiſdom, &c.] Gr. That hath abundance of curious variety in it, ſuch as is ſeen in the beſt pictures or textures. This the very Angels look intently into (as the Cherubims in the Tabernacle did into the Mercy-ſeat) and are much amuſed and amazed amazed thereat. They ſee that mans ſalvation by Chriſt is a plot of Gods own deviſing. Their experimental knowledge is much increaſed by their obſervation of Gods daily dealing with his people.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 11. According to the eternal purpoſe] Of calling and ſaving the Gentiles by Chriſt; a ſecret that the Angels themſelves could not underſtand, till the fore-appointed time came.

Verſe 12. Boldneſs and acceſs] True peace draws men to God, falſe drives them from God. Uprightneſs hath boldneſs, ſerenity hath ſecurity. The word rendred acceſs, ſignifies ſuch an acceſs as is by manuduction. As Iſaac took Rebecca, or as Joſeph took his two ſons Manaſſeh and Ephraim by the hand, and preſented them to Jacob: ſo doth Chriſt take his people and lead them into his fathers preſence. προσαγωγὴν.

Verſe 13. Wherefore I deſire] Or, I beg of God, as one would do an alms, Acts 3. 2. humbly, heartily. And here the Apoſtle returns to his former diſcourſe, after a long digreſſion, ver. 2. to ver. 13. αἰτεῖσθαι. Mendico.

As my tribulations for you] For your ſakes am I maliced and moleſted by the Jews; by whoſe means alſo I am now a priſoner.

Verſe 14. For this cauſe] ſc. That ye faint not, but gather ſtrength.

I bow my knees] A moſt ſeemly and ſutable geſture, uſual among all Nations, but Turks, who kneel not, nor uncover the head at prayer, as holding thoſe poſtures unmanly. And yet they pray five times every day (ſaith a great traveller) what occaſion ſoever they have, either by profit or pleaſure to divert them. M. Terry his lawleſs liberty, &c.

Verſe 15. Of whom the whole Family] Or, Paternity: God is the only Father, to ſpeak properly, Mat. 23. 9. The Father of all the fatherhood in heaven and earth. πατριὰ Parentela.

Verſe 16. According to the riches of his glory] That is, of his grace: ſo 2 Cor. 3. 18. See the Note there.

Verſe 17. That Chriſt may dwell] As the Sun dwels in the houſe by his beams. Faith fetcheth Chriſt into the heart, as into his habitation: And if he dwell there, he is bound to all reparations.

Verſe 18. The breadth and length, &c.] Gods mercy hath all the dimenſions. Thy mercy, O God, reacheth to the heavens: Here is the height of it. Great is thy mercy toward me, and thou haſt delivered my ſoul from the loweſt hell: There is the depth of his mercy. The earth is full of thy goodneſs: There is the breadth of it. All the ends of the earth have ſeen thy ſalvation: There is the length of it. The Apoſtle ſets out Chriſts love with the four dimenſions of the Croſs: to put us in mind (ſay the Ancient Writers) that upon the extent of the Tree was the moſt exact love with all the dimenſions in this kind repreſented, that ever was. Pſal. 36. 5. Pſal. 86. 13.

Verſe 19. With all the fulneſs of God] That is, of Chriſts diffuſive fulneſs, in whom the Godhead dwelt bodily, and in whom we are compleat, Col. 2. 9, 10.

And to know the love of Chriſt which paſſeth knowledge] Chryſoſtom ſpeaking of this love of God in Chriſt, Oh ſaith he, I am like a man digging in a deep ſpring; I ſtand here and the water riſeth upon me: and I ſtand there, and ſtill the water riſeth upon me. But though we cannot ever know it all, yet we may and muſt grow in the knowledge of this love of Chriſt, in the ſearching of this ſea that hath neither bank nor bottom: and where, as in the ſalt waters, the deeper the ſweeter.

Verſe 20. Exceeding abundantly] Gr. More then exceedingly or exceſſively. God hath not only a fulneſs of abundance, but of redundancy; of plenty, but of bounty. He is oft better to us then our prayers. ὑπερεκπερισσοῦ.

According to the power] The Apoſtle begins his prayer with mention of Gods fatherly mercy: he ſhuts it up with a deſcription of his power. Theſe two, Gods might and Gods mercy, are the Jachin and Boaz, the two main pillars of a Chriſtians faith, whereon it reſts in prayer.

Verſe 21. Glory in the Church of Chriſt] Who is the refulgency of his Fathers glory, Heb. 1. 3.

Digitized by Google

Chap. IV.

Verſe 1. Worthy of the Vocation]

There is a τὸ πρεπὸν, a ſeemlineſs appertaining to each calling: ſo here. We muſt walk nobly and comfortably, as becometh the heirs of God, and co-heirs of Chriſt. Scipio, when a harlot was offered him, anſwered, Vellem, ſi non eſſem Imperator; I would if I were not General of the Army. Antigonus being invited to a place where a notable harlot was to be preſent, asked counſel of Menedemus, what he ſhould do? He bad him only remember that he was a Kings ſon: So let men remember their high and heavenly calling, and do nothing unworthy of it. Luther counſels men to anſwer all temptations of Satan with this only, Chriſtianus ſum, I am a Chriſtian. They were wont to ſay of Cowards in Rome, there is nothing Roman in them; Of many Chriſtians we may ſay, there is nothing Chriſtian in them. It is not amiſs before we be ſerviceable for the world, to put Alexanders queſtion to his followers, that perſwaded him to run at the Olympick games, Do kings uſe to run at the Olympicks? Every believer is Gods firſt born; and ſo higher then the Kings of the earth, Pſal. 89. 27. He muſt therefore carry himſelf accordingly, and not ſtain his high blood.

Luth. in Gen.

Verſe 2. With all lowlineſs and meekneſs] Theſe are virtutes collectaneæ, as Bernard calleth them, a pair of twin-ſiſters, never aſunder.

Verſe 3. The unity of the ſpirit] That is, Unanimity: this keeps all together, which elſe will ſhatter and fall aſunder. The daughtet of diſſention, is diſſolution, ſaith Nazianzen.

σπουδάζοντες. Endeavouring] Or uſing all poſſible carefulneſs; this imports, 1. The neceſſity. 2. Difficulty of the duty. Satan will endeavour, by making diviſion to get dominion.

Verſe 4. In one hope of your calling] That is, unto one inheritance, which we all hope for. Fall not out therefore by the way, as Joſeph charged his brethren.

Verſe 5. One baptiſm] The Author to the Hebrews ſpeaketh of Baptiſms, Chap. 6. 2. But either he puts the plural for the ſingular; or elſe he meaneth it of the outward and inward waſhing, which the Schools call baptiſmum fluminis & flaminis. See the Note on Mat. 3. 11.

Mal. 2. 10. Verſe 6. One God and Father of all] Have we not all one Father, ſaith Malachy? Why then diſſent and jar we? How is it that theſe many ones here inſtanced, unite us not? My dove, mine undefiled is but one. Cant. 6. 9.

Verſe 7. According to the meaſure] And may not Chriſt do with his own as he liſteth? Thoſe of greater gifts are put upon hotter ſervice. μέγα παράπτα.

Verſe 8. He led captivity captive, &c.] As in the Roman Triumphs, the Victor aſcended up to the Capitol in a Chariot of ſtate, the priſoners following on foot with their hands bound behind, and they threw certain pieces of coyn abroad, to be pickt up by the common people. So Chriſt in the day of his ſolemn inauguration into his heavenly Kingdom, triumphed over ſin, death and hell, Col. 2. 15. and gave gifts to men.

And gave gifts unto men] The Hebrew hath it, Pſal. 76. 19. Thou receivedſt gifts for men. Chriſt received them, that he might give them. and ſaid, It is a more bleſſed thing to give then to receive. The Pſalmiſt adds, Even for the rebellious. To them alſo Chriſts gives common gifts, for the behoof of his people. Auguſtus in his ſolemn feaſt gave gifts: to ſome gold, to others, trifles. So God in his ordinances, to ſome ſaving grace, to others, common grace, and with this they reſt content.

Verſe 9. Into the lower parts] That is, into his mothers womb; according to Pſal. 139. 15. I was curiouſly wrought in the loweſt parts of the earth, i. e. in the womb, where God formed and featured me; like as curious workmen, when they have ſome choice piece in hand, they perfect it in private, and then bring it forth to light for men to gaze at.

Verſe 10. Far above all heavens] That is, above all viſible heavens, into the third heaven, not in the Utopia of the Ubiquitaries.

That

Digitized by Google

That he might fill all things] viz. With the gifts of his holy Spirit; for the further he is from us in his flesh, the nearer by his Spirit; he is more efficacious absent, then present.

Verse 11. Some Pastors and Teachers] Distinct offices, Rom. 12. 7, 8. yet one man may be both, 1 Cor. 12. 28. 29. The essential difference between Pastors and Teachers in each Congregation is much denied by many learned and godly Divines.

Verse 12. For the perfecting of the Saints] For the joynting of them, whom the devil hath dislocated. καταρτισμὸν Verse 13. Unto the measure of the stature] Or age: that age wherein Christ filleth all in all, as Chap. 3. 19. The Saints (say some) shall rise again in that vigour of age that a perfect man is at about 33 years old, each in their proper sex; whereunto they think the Apostle here alludeth. In heaven (say others) we shall all have an equal grace, though not an equal glory.

Verse 14. Be no more children] But young men, 1 Joh. 2. 14. strong men. Many mens heads now-adays are so big (like children that have the rickets) that all the body fareth the worse for it.

Tossed to and fro] As a feather or froth upon the waves, wherried about with every winde of doctrine, unstable souls, as S. Peter cals them; simple, that believe every thing, as Solomon hath it; giddy hearers that have no mould but what the next teacher casteth them into, being blown like glasses into this or that shape at the pleasure of his breath.

By the sleight of men] Gr. By mens cogging of a die, the usual trade of cheaters, and false gamesters, ἐν τῇ κυβείᾳ, Whereby they lie in wait to devise] Gr. Unto a method of deceiving. The devil and his disciples are notable method-mongers so as to deceive, if it were possible, the very elect: but that they cannot do fundamentally, finally, Mat. 24. 24. See the Note there.

Verse 15. But speaking the truth] Or, Doing the truth, as the Vulgar hath it. Truthifying, or following the truth, as one rendereth it. S. John bids, Love in truth, 1 Joh. 3. 18. S. Paul, Speak or do the truth in love. And again, let all your things be done in love. Ἀληθεύοντες.

Verse 16. Compacted by that, &c.] The Saints are knit unto Christ by his Spirit, as fast as the sinews of his blessed body to the bones, the flesh to the sinews, the skin to the flesh. The erroneous are like a bone out of joynt: it will cost many an hearty groan, before they be reduced to their right place.

Unto the edifying of it self in love] Our souls thrive and are edified as love is continued and encreased. Nothing more furthereth growth in grace and power of godliness in any place or person, observe it where and when you will.

Verse 17. This I say therefore] Matters of great importance must be urged and pressed with greatest vehemence.

As other Gentiles walk] Singular things are expected from Saints: who are therefore worse then others, because they should be better.

Verse 18. Having the understanding darkned] By the devils black hand held before their eyes, 2 Cor. 4. 4. See the Note there.

Alienated from the life of God] That is, from a godly life, which none can live but those that partake of the divine nature, 2 Pet. 1. 4.

Because of the blindness] Gr. Hardness, brawniness, a hoof upon their hearts, corneas fibras, brawny brests, horny heart-strings. The Greek word imports a Metaphor from the hard hand of hardest labourers. They say in Philosophy, that the foundation of natural life is feeling; no feeling, no life: And that the more quick and nimble the sense of feeling is in a man, the better is his constitution. Think the same we may of life spiritual. πήρωσιν, Callum obductum.

Verse 19. Who being past feeling] Under a dead and dedolent disposition, being desperately sinful. Some there are of cauterized consciences, that like devils, will have nothing to do with God, because loth to be tormented before their time. They feeling such horrible hard hearts, & privy to such notorious sins, they cast away souls and all for lust, and so perish wofully, because they lived wickedly: having through custom in evil contracted such an hardness, as neither ministery, nor misery, nor miracle, nor mercy could possibly mollifie. As Ducklings dive at any little thing thrown by a man at them, yet shrink not at the heavens great thunder: so is it with these, till at length they become like the Smiths dog, whom neither the hammers above him, nor the ſparks of fire falling round about him can awake.

Digitized by Google

Have given themſelves over] They make it their felicity to paſs their time laſciviouſly, as though they were born (as Boccas ſaith of himſelf) per l'amore dalle dame, for the love of women.

Verſe 20. But ye have not ſo learned Chriſt] Caracalla never minded any good: Quia id non didicerat (ſaith Dio) quod ipſe fatebatur, becauſe he had never learned it, as himſelf confeſſed. One main cauſe of Julians Apoſtaſie were his two Heatheniſh Tutors, Libanius and Jamblichus, from whom he drank in great profaneneſs. Chriſtians cannot ſay but they have had the beſt Teacher: they muſt therefore walk up to their principles, leſt they ſhame their profeſſion, diſcredit their Maſter, who ſeemeth to ſay to them, as Sampſon once did to his brethren, Do not you bind me; the Philiſtims I care not for: Do not you diſhonour me &c.

Verſe 21. Ye have heard him, &c.] When Chriſt ſpeaks once, we muſt hear him twice, as David did, Pſalm. 62. 11. to wit, by an after deliberate meditation: for otherwiſe we learn nothing.

Verſe 22. That ye put off, &c.] As the beggar puts off his rags, as the maſter puts off his bad ſervant, as the Porter puts off his burden, as the husband puts off his lewd wife, as the Serpent his ſlough, or as the captive maid when ſhe was to be married, put off the garments of her captivity, Deut. 21. 13.

The old man which is corrupt] Sin is ſaid to be the old man, becauſe it lives in man ſo as ſin ſeems to be alive, and the man dead; and becauſe God will take notice of nothing in the ſinner but his ſin.

According to the deceitful luſts] Sin, though at firſt it fawn upon a man, yet in the end (with Cains dog lying at the door) it will pluck out the very throat of his ſoul, if not repented of. Like the Serpent, together with the imbrace, it ſtings mortally. Hence the Rulers meat is called deceivable, Prov. 23. 3. There being a deceitfulneſs in ſin, Heb. 3. 13. a lye in vanity, Jon. 2. 8. Luſt hath a deceit in it, as here.

Verſe 23. In the ſpirit of your minde] That is, in the moſt inward and ſubtile parts of the ſoul, the boſom and bottom, the vis vivifica, and very quinteſſence of it. This he calls elſwhere The wiſdom of the fleſh, Rom. 8. 7. that carnal reaſon, that like an old beldam, is the mother and nurſe of thoſe fleſhly luſts that fight againſt the ſoul.

Verſe 24. Which after God is created] The new man is nothing elſe but the happy cluſter of heavenly graces.

And true holineſs] Or, Holineſs of truth. Oppoſite to that deceitfulneſs of luſts, v. 22.

Ver. 25. Wherefore putting away lying] A baſe tinkerly ſin, as Plutarch cals it, ſhameful and hateful: therefore the Lyar denies his own lye, as aſhamed to be taken with it. Tully indeed alloweth his Oratour the liberty of a merry lye ſometimes: but Vives utterly diſliketh it in him at any time. And the Apoſtle Gal. 1. 10. ſhews, that we muſt not ſpeak truth to pleaſe men, much leſs lye; no though we could win a ſoul by it, Rom. 3. 7. Where then will the Jeſuits appear with their pia fraudes, as they call them? and Jacobus de Voragine, that loud lyar, with his golden Legend? It were much to be wiſhed that that golden age would return, that the argument might proceed, Sacerdos eſt, non fallet. Chriſtianus eſt, non mentietur.

Lib 2. de Oratore. Lib. 4. de trad. diſcip.

For we are members] Of the ſame holy ſociety. Shall we not be true one to another? Shall we not abhorr ſleights and ſlipperineſs in contracts and Covenants?

Verſe 26. Be angry and ſin not] The eaſieſt charge under the hardeſt condition that can be. Anger is a tender vertue, and muſt be warily managed. He that will be angry and not ſin, let him be angry at nothing but ſin.

Plut. lib. περὶ φιλαδελφ. Let not the Sun go down] If ye have overſhot in paſſion, let it not reſt or rooſt in you, leſt it become malice. Plutarch writeth, that it was the cuſtom of Pythagorat his ſcholars, however they had been at odds, jarring and jangling in their diſputations, yet before the Sun-ſet to kiſs and ſhake hands as they departed out of the ſchool. How many are there, that profeſſing themſelves the ſcholars of Chriſt, do yet nevertheleſs not only let the Sun go down, but go round his whole courſe, and can find no time from one end of the year to the other to compoſe and lay aſide their diſcords? How ſhould this fire be raked up, when the curfew-bell rings? William the Conquerour commanded that cover-feau bell. It were well that ſome were admoniſhed every night to cover ver the fire of their passions, that their wrath might not be memor ira, as Virgil hath it, and ἀέμνηστος, as that of the Athenians, who hated all Barbarians, for the Persians sake, and forbad them their sacrifices, as they used to do murtherers. Leontius Patritius was one day extreamly and unreasonably angry with John Patriarch of Alexandria; At evening, the Patriarch sent a servant to him with this message; Sir, the Sun is set; upon which Patritius reflecting, and the grace of God making the impression deep, he threw away his anger, and became wholy subject to the counsel of the Patriarch. Rous his Arch. Attic. Taylors Life and death of Christ.

Digitized by Google

Verse 27. Neither give place, &c.] Vindictive spirits let the devil into their hearts; and though they defie him, and spet at him, yet they spet not low enough; for he is still at Inne with them, as Mr. Bradford speaketh. As the master of the pit oft sets two cocks to fight together, to the death of both, and then, after mutual conquest, suppeth with both their bodies; So, saith Gregory, dealeth the devil with angry and revengeful men.

Verse 28. Let him labour working, &c.] This is the best remedy against poverty, which oft prompts a man to theft, Prov. 30. 9. See the Note there. The grand Turk himself must be of some trade; And Seneca said he had rather be sick in his bed then idle. How much more should all ours learn to maintain good works for necessary uses, that they be not unfruitful? Tit. 3 14. Peacham.

That he may have to give] Day-labourers then must do somewhat for the poor. And indeed alms should not be given untill it sweat in a mans hand, said he, in the book of Martyrs. Giles of Brussels gave away to the poor whatsoever he had that necessity could spare, and only lived by his science, which was of a Cutler. Act. and Mon. fol. 765. Ibid. 811.

Verse 29. Let no corrupt communication] Gr. Rotten putrid speech. A Metaphor from rotten trees, or stinking flesh, or stinking breath. Shun obscene borborology, and filthy speeches. σαπρὸς.

Verse 30. And grieve not, &c.] As men in heaviness cannot dispatch their work as they were wont: so neither doth the Spirit. If we grieve the holy Ghost, how should we expect that he should comfort us? It is a foul fault to grieve a father; what then the Spirit? Delicata res est spiritus Dei, saith Tertullian, Gods spirit is a delicate thing, and must not be vexed. It is that holy thing, that Spirit of that God, (so the Original hath it) whereby we are sealed, and so are declared to be the excellent ones of the earth; for whatsoever is sealed, that is excellent in its own kind, as Esai. 28. 25. hordeum signatum, sealed barly, &c. τὸ πνεῦμα τὸ ἅγιον τοῦ θεοῦ.

Verse 31. Let all bitterness, &c.] If the godly man suddenly fall into bitter words, it maketh the holy Ghost stir within him.

And clamour and evil speaking] These are as smoke to the eyes, and make the spirit ready to loath and leave his lodging.

Be put away from you] When any lust ariseth, pray it down presently (saith one;) for otherwise we are endangered by yielding to grieve, by grieving to resist, by resisting to quench, by quenching, maliciously to oppose the Spirit. Sin hath no bounds, but those which the Spirit puts, whom therefore we should not grieve.

Verse 32. And be ye kind] Sweet-natured, facile and fair conditioned; as Cranmer, whose gentleness in pardoning wrongs was such, as it grew to a common proverb, Do my Lord of Canterbury a displeasure, and then you may be sure to have him your friend while he liveth. He never raged so far with any of his houshold servants, as once to call the meanest of them Varlet or Knave in anger, much less to reprove a stranger with any reproachful word, &c. Homo φιλόξενος, nec minus φιλόλογος, saith Tremelius of him, and much more in praise of his courtesy and Piety. χρηστοὶ. Act. and Mon. fol. 1699. Trem. in Hos. Epist.

CHAP.

Chap. V.

Verſe 1. Be ye therefore followers]

IN forgiving one another.

As dear children] God hath but a few ſuch children. See the Notes on Mat. 5. 45, 48.

Verſe 2. Hath loved us, and hath given] When Chriſt wept for Lazarus, Loe how he loved him, ſaid the Jews, Joh. 11. 35, 36. When he poured forth his ſoul for a drink-offering for us, was not this a ſurer ſeal of his enderaed love?

An offering and a ſacrifice] By this to expiate our ſins, by that to mediate and make requeſt for us; and ſo to ſhew himſelf a perfect high-Prieſt.

Verſe 3. But fornication and all uncleanneſs] As ſtanding in full oppoſition to that ſweet ſmelling ſavour, verſe 2, being no better then the corruption of a dead ſoul, the devils excrement. That people fitly puniſhed this filthy ſin, who put the offendors heads into the paunch of a beaſt where all the filth lieth, and ſo ſtifled them to death.

Let it not be once named] much leſs acted as in Stage-playes. Ludi præbent femina nequitiæ. How Alipius was corrupted by them, S. Auſtin tels us. How the youth of Athens, Plato complaineth. One of our countrey-men profeſſeth in Print, that he found theaters to be the very hatchers of all wickedneſs, the brothels of bawdery, the black blaſphemy of the Goſpel, the devils chair, the plague of piety, the canker of the Common-wealth, &c. He inſtanceth on his knowledge, Citizens wives confeſſing on their death-beds, that they were ſo impoyſoned at Stage-playes, that they brought much diſhonour to God, wrong to their marriage-beds, weakneſs to their wretched bodies, and woe to their undone ſouls. It was therefore great wiſdome in the Lacedemonians to forbid the acting of Comedies or Tragedies in their Common-wealth, and that for this reaſon, leſt either in jeſt or earneſt any thing ſhould be ſaid or done contrary to the laws in force amongſt them. What a ſad complaint was that of the Apoſtle, 1 Cor. 5. 1. that that which was not ſo much as named amongſt Heathens was done by a Chriſtian; whereas the rule of piety here is, that thoſe ſinnes ſhould not be ſo much as named amongſt Chriſtians which are done by the Gentiles.

Ovid. Triſt. l. 2.

Spec. belli ſacri.

Plutarch.

Verſe 4. Neither filthineſs] Borborology, ribaldry, the language of hell. Some men as ducks have their noſes alwayes guzling in the gutter of obſcene talk. Of Eckius his laſt book concerning Prieſts marriage, Melanthon ſaith, Non fuit Cygnea cantio, ſed ultimus crepitus: Et ſicut felis fugiens pedit, ſic ille moriens hunc crepitum cecinit. Legi librum, ſubinde accipiens partem ad cloacam; alioqui non legiſſem. Theſe filty ſpeakers make podicem ex ore as one Phraſeth it.

Nor jeſting] Salt jeſts, ſcurrility, jocularity, dicacity, to the juſt grief or offence of another: This conſiſts not with piety and Chriſtian gravity. Ariſtotle uſeth the word here found in a good ſenſe for urbanity, facility and facetiouſneſs of ſpeech, in a harmleſs way. But Iaſon in Pindarus ſaith, that he lived twenty years with his Tutour Chiron, and never in all that time heard him ſpeaking or acting ὐτ' ἔιπον ὐτ' ἔπραξ ἐυτρέπελον, any thing ſcurrilous or abuſive to another. On the contrary, our Sir Thomas Moore never thought any thing to be well ſpoken, except he had miniſtred ſome mock in the communication, ſaith the Chronicler, who therefore ſeemeth to doubt whether to call him a fooliſh wiſe man, or a wiſe fooliſh man; Quid nobis cum fabulis, cum riſu? non ſolùm profuſos, ſed etiam omnes jocos arbitror declinandos, ſaith Bernard. What have we to do with tales and jeſts? Tertullian ſaith, he was Nulli rei natus niſi pœnitentiæ, born for nothing elſe, but for repentance. Crede mihi, res ſeverа eſt gaudium verum, ſaith Seneca, True mirth is a ſevere buſineſs.

ἐυτρεπελία.

Pindar.

Edw. Halls Chronicl.

Bern. de ordin. vit.

τὰ μὴ ἀνήκοντα. Which are not convenient] As not conducing to the main end of our lives.

But rather giving of thanks] A ſpecial preſervative againſt the former evils, the filth and power of thoſe baſe vices. And the word rather imports an extraordinary earneſtneſs to be uſed in giving thanks to God.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verse 5. Who is an Idolater] Dancing about his golden calf, and saying to his wedge of silver, Thou art my confidence: which yet shall prove but as Achans wedge to cleave his soul in sunder, and as that Babylonish garment to be his winding-sheet Iob 30.24.

Verse 6. Let no man deceive you] So as to make you think there is no such danger in fornication, covetousnes, &c. There wanted not such Proctours for hell in the Primitive times, as may be gathered out of 2 Pet. 2. and the Epistle of Jude. Against these he here cautioneth.

Verse 7. Be not ye therefore partakers] Lest by infection of their sin, ye come under infliction of their punishment. We are accountable as well for sins of communion, as of commission: And he knew what he said, that prayd, From mine other-mens sins; Good Lord deliver me. Evil men indanger good men as weeds the corn, as bad humours the blood, or an infected house the neighbourhood. And when an overflowing storm sweeps away the wicked, the tail of it may dash their best neighbours, *Zac.*9.2. Hemath lay nigh to Damascus in place; and therefore partook with it in punishent.

Verse 8. For ye were sometimes darkness] Which hath in it (as one well noteth.) 1. Errour. 2. Terrour. 3. Inconsistency with light. 4. Impossibility of reducing it self to light. M. Dugard in loc.

But now are ye light] Semper in sole sita est Rhodos, saith Sylvius. The Saints are alwayes in the Sunshine.

Walk as children of light] A godly man should be like a crystall glass with a light in the midst, which appeareth thorow every part thereof. He is in the light, and shall be more.

Verse 9. For the fruit of the spirit] Why grace is called fruit, See the Note on Gal. 5. 22.

Verse 10. Proving what is acceptable] By the practise of what you know. Let your knowledge and obedience run parallel, mutually transfusing life and vigour one into another.

Verse 11. Have no fellowship] No needless society for fear of infection: get the wind of those stinking carcases; hate the garment spotted by the flesh, that is, avoyd ill company (saith Perkins) as Lev. 15. 4. The Lacedæmonians would not suffer a stranger to be with them above three days: and shall we associate our selves with such as are strangers to God?

Works of darkness] Work done in the dark must be undone again, or else we are sure to be thrust into outer darkness, where we shall never see light again, till we see all the world on a light fire.

But rather reprove them] At least by your contrary courses, as Noah condemned the old world, by being righteous in his generation, Rev. 14. Those that stood with the Lamb, had his fathers name on their fore-heads, led convincing lives: so did Luther, Bucer, Bradford, &c.

Verse 12. For it is a shame] Sit honos auribus. Joannes a Casa so far forgot both honesty and nature, that he boasted openly of his beastly Sodomy; yea most impudently commended that odious sin in an Italian Poem, set forth in print. Faber of Vienna, another filthy Papist, published such a stinking book that Erasmus thus wrote to him, Acts and Mon. fol. 1417.

Mente cares, si res agitur tibi seria: rursus
Fronte cares, si sic ludis amice Faber.

Which are done of them in secret] Sin secretly committed shall be strangely discovered, either by the sinner himself, as Judas, or by his companions in evil. When the sodder is once melted, this glass will fall in pieces, and all will out.

Verse 13. But all things that are, &c] Or, But all these things, viz. These unfruitful works of darkness, whilest they are reproved or discovered by the light (viz. of the word, as 1 Cor. 14. 24. Heb. 4. 12.) are made manifest; so that thereby they grow abashed and abased before God and men.

Verse 14. Wherefore he saith] Or, The Scripture saith. See the like, Jam. 4. 6. But he giveth (or the Scripture giveth) more grace. It convinceth not only, but converteth, it discovereth not only, but cureth corrupt hearts. These waters of the Sanctuary are healing. Some there are that interpret this he of our Saviour Christ, and take this saying for a sentence of his: such as was that, Acts 20. 35. Others read, Therefore the light saith, &c. Isa. 9. 2. & 26. 19. & 60 1.

Awake

Digitized by Google

Awake thou that ſleepeſt] Lex jubet, gratia juvat: Præcipit Deus quod ipſe præſtat. God giveth us to do what he biddeth us to do.

Verſe 15. See then that ye walk circumſpectly] Preciſely, exactly, accurately, by line and by rule, and as it were in a frame, ſtriving to get up to the top of godlineſs, as the word importeth; to keep Gods Commandments to the utmoſt, to go to the extremity of it. Hereunto if we ſtand ſtraitly, one may ſay ſafely, Lord, if I be deceived, thou and thy word have deceived me.

Ακριβῶς. εἰς ἄκρον βαίνειν.

Not as fools] Chriſtians muſt excel others, ſtanding as ſtandard-bearers.

But as wiſe] Great need we have to fly to Chriſt, who dwels with prudence, Prov. 8. to ſtand upon our watch. And when we walk, to tread gingerly, ſtep warily: ſith as thoſe funambulones, rope-walkers (tis Tertullians compariſon) if we tread but one ſtep awry, we are utterly gone.

Σοφὸς ab Heb. Tſopheh Speculator.

Verſe 16. Redeeming the time] As wiſe Merchants, trading for the moſt precious commodity, and taking their beſt opportunity. The common complaint is, We want time: but the truth is, we do not ſo much want it, as waſte it. The men of Iſſachar were in great account with David, becauſe they had underſtanding of the times, to know what Iſrael ought to do, 1 Chron. 12. 32. So are they in great account with God, that regard and uſe the ſeaſon of wel-doing. It is reported of holy Ignatius, that when he heard a clock ſtrike, he would ſay, here's one hour more now paſt, that I have to anſwer for. And of M. Hooper the Martyr, that he was ſpare of diet, ſparer of words, and ſpareſt of time: for he well knew, that whereas of all other poſſeſſions a man might have two at once, he cannot have two Moments of time at once, for any mony.

Non parum habemus temporis, ſed multum perdimus. Sen.

Act. & Mon.

Becauſe the days are evil] Corrupted by the devil, who hath ingroſſed our time, and out of whoſe hands we muſt redeem time for holy uſes, and pious purpoſes.

Verſe 17. But underſtanding what] Drawing your knowledge into practice, as verſ. 10. For the fear of the Lord, that is wiſdom, and to depart from evil, is underſtanding, Job 28. 28. Where, wiſdom (proper to the underſtanding) is aſcribed to the will, becauſe practice ſhould be joyned to knowledge. Hence alſo Eccleſ. 10. 2. A wiſe mans heart is at his right hand, becauſe his heart teacheth his hand to put things in practice.

Verſe 18. And be not drunk with wine] Nothing ſo oppoſite to an accurate life as drunkenneſs; which therefore is not ſpecially prohibited in any one of the ten Commandments (ſaith a Divine) becauſe it is not the ſingle breach of any one, but in effect the violation of all, and every one; It is no one, but all ſins, the inlet and ſluce to all other ſins, and by them to the Devil. Behemoth lieth in the fens, Job 40. 21. he finds no reſt in dry places, ſober ſouls, Luke 11. Oh that our Carouſers were perſwaded (as Mahomet told his followers) that in every grape there dwelt a devil.

Wherein is exceſs] Exceſſive drinking then is drunkenneſs; when as ſwine do their bellies, ſo men break their heads with filthy quaffing; And are beſotted in their very parts, as a ſnuff of a candle in the ſocket, drowned in the tallow; a ſtench, but little or no light remains. Such a deep drunkard was Diotimus, ſirnamed Tundiſh, and yong Cicero, ſirnamed Tricongius: and ſuch are not a few at this day amongſt us, to the great ſhame of our Nation.

But be filled with the ſpirit] Call for flagons of this holy wine, Cant. 2. 5. that goeth down ſweetly, cauſing the lips of thoſe that are aſleep to ſpeak, Cant. 7. 9. This is called by Luther, Crapula ſacra, a ſpiritual ſurquedry or ſurfet.

Verſe 19. Speaking to your ſelves, &c.] As drunkards ſing and hollow over their cups in their good fellow-meetings; ſo in a ſober ſenſe, do you expreſs your ſpiritual jollity in Pſalms, &c.

Melody in your hearts unto the Lord] This is the beſt tune to any Pſalm. Spiritual ſongs they are called, both becauſe they are indited by the ſpirit, and becauſe they ſpiritualize us in the uſe of them.

Verſe 20. Giving thanks always] In our deepeſt miſeries, let us ſing Chearfully, as Paul and Silas in the dungeon, as Philpot and his fellows in the cole-houſe, as many Martyrs in the flames, as Luther did in a great conflict with the devil; Venite, ſaid he to his company, in contemptum diaboli Pſalmum de profundis quatuor vocibus cantemus. Let us ſing the 130. Pſalm in deſpite of the Devil. Happy was that tongue in the Primitive times, that could ſound out aliquid Davidicum, any thing of Davids doing.

Ioh. Manl. loc. com. pag. 43.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verse 21. Submitting your selves] This is a general admonition to all inferiours, whose duties are afterwards described. Thus in the second Table of the Law, the fifth Commandment for order and obedience is fitly premised to the following precepts.

In the fear of God] This frameth the heart to a ready and regular submission. Hence that saying of Luther: Primo præcepto reliquorum omnium observantia præcipitur. The first Commandment includes the other nine.

Verse 22. Wives, submit &c.] This includes reverence, obedience, &c. God hath scattered the duties of husbands and wives up and down the Scriptures, that they may search, and by learning to be good husbands and wives, they may learn also to be good men and women.

As unto the Lord] Who taketh himself dishonoured by wives disobedience. And though husbands may remit the offence done to them, yet they cannot remit Gods offence, but there must be special repentance.

Verse 23. For the husband is the head] And would it not be ill favour'd to see the shoulders above the head?

Verse 24. Therefore as the Church] Denying her self to please Christ, making his will her law.

In every thing] In all her husbands lawfull commands and restraints. A wife should have no will of her own, but submit to her husbands; albeit there are that merrily say, that when man lost Free-will, woman took it up.

Verse 25. Husbands, love your wives] He saith not, Rule over them (in answer to submit, ver. 22.) for this they can readily do without bidding: but love your wives, and so make their yoke as easie as may be. Columbæ trahunt currum Veneris.

Verse 26. That he might sanctifie] The maids were first purified and perfumed, before Ahashueresh chose one. But here it is otherwise. Sanctification is a fruit of Justification. The Lord will not have a sluttish Church, and therefore he came not by blood only, but by water also, that clean water of his spirit, whereby he washeth away the Swinish nature of his Saints, so that they desire no more to wallow in the mire.

Verse 27. That he might present] As Isaac did his Rebecca, adorned with his jewels. See Ezek 16.14. Tales nos amat Deus, quales futuri sumus ipsius dono, non quales sumus nostro merito, saith an ancient Councel. Concil. Arausican. secund. Canon. 12.

Verse 28. As their own bodies] No man may hide himself from his own flesh at large, Isa. 58.7. that is, from his neighbor of the same stock: much less from a wife; which is such another as himself, Gen. 2.18. nay his very self, as here.

Verse 29. For no man ever hated] No man but a Monk, who whips himself, or a Mad-man, Mar. 5.5. who cuts himself. It was the saying of the Emperor Aurelius, A wife is to be oft admonished, sometimes reproved, but never beaten. And yet of the Russian women it is reported, that they love that husband best that beats them most, and that they think themselves else not regarded, unless two or three times a day well-favouredly swadled. Chrysostom saith, It is the greatest reproach in the world for a man to beat his wife. M. Iun. in ord. Heyl. Geog.

But nourisheth it, and cherisheth it] As the Hen doth her Chickens, or as the Cock-pigeon doth the eggs. Contrariwise the Pie hunts away his mate about Autumn, lest he should be forced to keep her all the Winter: and so becometh the Hieroglyphick of an unkinde husband. Θάλαμεύει Columbarum masculus ipse ovis incubat. Chytræ. in Levit. 12. Melanchon.

Even as the Lord, the Church] Lo this is the patern of all true love, whether to our selves or others.

Verse 30. Of his flesh, and of his bones] Whilest he that is joyned to the Lord is one spirit, 1 Cor. 6.17. This union is neither natural, nor corporal, nor political, nor personal, but mystical and spiritual: And yet it is no less true and real, then that of God the Father, and God the Son, Joh. 17.21,22. For as the holy Ghost did unite in the Virgins womb, the divine and humane natures of Christ, and made them one person; by reason whereof Christ is of our flesh and of our bones: So the Spirit unites that person of Christ, his whole person, God-man, with our persons, by reason whereof we are of his flesh, and of his bones.

Verse 31. For this cause, &c.] See the Note on Matthew 19.5. and on Gen. 2.24.

Digitized by Google

Shall be one fleſh] By vertue of that Covenant of God betwixt married couples, *Prov.*2.17. for he keepeth the bonds of wedlock.

Verſe 32. This is a great myſterie] To wit, this myſtical marriage with Chriſt. It paſſeth the capacity of man to underſtand it in the perfection of it. Preachers can make it known but in part; and hearers can but in part conceive it. Let us therefore wait for perfect underſtanding of it, till all things be perfected in Chriſt.

Verſe 33. Nevertheleſs] q.d. But that I may return to my former diſcourſe, from the which I have ſomewhat digreſſed for your ſatisfaction.

See that ſhe reverence] 1. In heart, as Sarah did Abraham, and ſhe is crowned and chronicled for it, 1 *Pet.*3.6. 2. In her ſpeeches both to him, and of him, as the Spouſe in the Canticles. 3. In all her geſtures and deportments: for ſhe may ſcold with her looks, &c. Vultu ſæpè læditur pietas. God hath a barren womb for mocking Michal.

CHAP. VI.

Verſe 1. Children, obey your Parents]

AS Iſaac did Abraham in ſubmitting to be ſacrificed: As Chriſt became obedient even to the death of the Croſs.

For this is right] Good and acceptable before God and men, 1 *Tim.*5.4. See the Note on *Mat.*15.4.

Verſe 2. Firſt Commandment with promiſe] To wit, with ſpecial promiſe of long life. See more in the Note on *Mat.*15.4.

Verſe 3. And thou maiſt live long] Good children help to lengthen their Parents days, as Joſeph did Jacobs. God therefore lengthens theirs in redhoſtimentum, as it were. Or if he take from them this long Leaſe, he gives them a Free-hold of better value.

Verſe 4. Provoke not, &c.] God forbids bitterneſs and auſterity in husbands, *Col.*3.19. Maſters, *Col.*4.1. Parents here, and *Col.*3.21. Superiours muſt ſo carry themſelves as to be at once loved and feared.

But bring them up in the nurture, &c.] Or, nouriſh them and nurture them. The latter is as needfull as the former. They that nouriſh their children only, what do they more then the unreaſonable creatures? The bleſſing upon poſteritie is entailed to piety in the ſecond Commandment. If I may ſee grace in my wife and children, ſaid reverend Claviger, Satis habeo, ſatiſque mihi, meæ uxori, filiis & filiabus proſpexi, I ſhall account them ſufficiently cared for. Let Parents labour to mend that by education that they have marred by propagation: for elſe they are Peremptores potius quam parentes, Parricides rather then Parents: and ſhall dearly anſwer for their poor children, which like Moſes in the Flag-bed, are ready to periſh, if they have not help. Nurture is a great help to Nature: and ſome ſons honour not their fathers, becauſe as Ely, they honoured their ſons, that is, they corrected not, but cockered them, 1 Samuel 2.29. 1 Kin. 1.5,6. Melancter.

Verſe 5. Servants, be obedient] The Centurion was happy in his ſervants; and no marvel, for he was a loving Maſter. See the Note on *Mat.*8.6. And obſerve here that Inferiors duties are firſt deſcribed; becauſe 1. They are leſs willing to ſubject themſelves. 2. They ſhould be readier to perform duty, then to expect it. 3. Hereby they ſhall win upon their Superiours, who will lie the heavier upon them, if there be ſtrife who ſhall begin. Bern.

Verſe 6. Not with eye-ſervice] And yet it were well if we would do God, our great Maſter, but eye-ſervice. For his eye is ever upon us, and pierceth into the inward parts. So that they much deceive themſelves, who think all is well becauſe no man can ſay to them, Black is thine eye.

Verſe 7. As to the Lord] In obedience to his will, and with reference to his glory.

Verſe 8. Whether he be bond or free] The Centurion did but complain of the ſickneſs of his ſervant, and Chriſt unasked, ſayes, I will come and heal him. He that came in the ſhape of a ſervant, would go down to the ſick ſervants pallet, would not go to the bed of the rich Rulers ſon.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 9. Do the ſame things] That is, Do your parts and duties by them; and uſe them as men, not as beaſts. Eadem dicit, non opere & officio, ſed modo & proportione, ſaith Eſtius.

Forbearing threatning] Thoſe bluſters and terrible thundercracks of fierce and furious language found in the mouths of many Maſters, if never ſo little croſſed. Severitas nec ſit tetra, nec tetrica: Servants ſhould be chidden with good words, with Gods words, and not reviled. Sidon. epiſt.

Verſe 10. Be ſtrong in the Lord] For by his own ſtrength ſhall no man prevail, 1 Sam. 2. 9. Get Gods Arm, wherewith to wield his Armour, and then you may do any thing.

Verſe 11. Put on the Whole armour] Or elſe never think to do the fore-mentioned duties: we have a buſie adverſary to deal with. The Turks bear no weapons but in travel: then ſome of them ſeem like a walking armory: ſo muſt a Chriſtian be. Coriolanus had ſo uſed his weapons of a childe-little, that they ſeemed as if they had been born with him, or grown into his hands. Seneca reports of Ceſar, that he quickly ſheathed his ſword, but never laid it off. No more muſt we. ἐγγενῆ καὶ σύμφυτα. Plutarch.

The wiles of the devil] Gr. The methods or way-layings of that old ſubtile Serpent, who like Dans adder in the path, biteth the heels of paſſengers, and thereby transfuſeth his venome to the head and heart. Julian by his craft drew more from the faith, then all his perſecuting predeceſſours could do by their cruelty. So doth Satan more hurt in his ſheepskin then by roaring like a Lion. Gen. 49. 17.

Verſe 12. Not againſt fleſh and blood] Hereby the Apoſtle meaneth not ſo much the corruption, as the weakneſs of our natures, q. d. We have not only to conflict with weak, frail men, but with puiſſant devils. Look to it therefore, and lie open at no place: but get on every piece of this ſpiritual armour, whether thoſe of defence (as the girdle of truth, breſt-plate of righteouſneſs, the ſhoes of peace and patience, the helmet of hope) or thoſe of offence, as the ſword of the Spirit, and the darts of praier. Fetch all theſe out of the holy Scriptures, which are like Solomons tower, where hang a thouſand ſhields, and all the weapons of ſtrong men. The Apoſtle here ſoundeth the alarm, crying, Arm, arm, &c.

But againſt principalities] So wicked men make the devils, by being at their beck and obedience. Obſerve here, (ſaith an Interpreter) in the holy Ghoſt a wonderful patern of candour: he praiſeth what is praiſe-worthy in very enemies. How then ſhall not the Saints be accepted and acknowledged, ſich they ſin not of malicious wickedneſs, as devils do?

Againſt ſpiritual Wickedneſs] Gr. The ſpirituals of wickedneſs, thoſe helliſh plots and ſatanical ſuggeſtions, black and blaſphemous temptations, horrid and hideous injections, &c. Whereby he ſeeks to diſpirit and defeat us, by ſetting before us the difficulties of Chriſtian warfare; like as ſome inhoſpital Salvages make fearful deluſions by ſorcery upon their ſhore, to fright ſtrangers from landing. πνευματικὰ τῆς πονηρίας.

In high places] Or, about our intereſt in thoſe heavenly priviledges, which the devil would wring from us, and rob us of. He ſtrove with the Angel about the body of Moſes; but with us about our precious ſouls. And herein he hath the advantage, that he is above us, and doth out of the air aſſault us, being upon the upper ground, as it were. ἐν τοῖς ἐπουρανίοις.

Verſe 13. That ye may be able to Withſtand] Not ſeeking to reſiſt Satans craft with craft, fraud with fraud, Sed per apertum Martem, but by open defiance. He ſhoots (ſaith Greenham) with Satan in his own bow, who thinks by diſputing and reaſoning to put him off. To argue the caſe with him, is but as the proverb hath it, to light a candle to the devil. Button up his mouth therefore, as our Saviour did, Mar. 1. 25. and buckle cloſe to him and he will fly, Jam. 4. 7. for he is but a coward.

Eſt Leo ſi fugias; ſi ſtas, quaſi muſca recedit.

And having done all to ſtand] Charles 5. Whiles he was putting on his armour looked pale, and ſeemed fearful; but when once armed, he was bold as a Lion, and feared no colours.

Verſe 14. Stand therefore] A military expreſſion. A man may well ſay to the Chriſtian ſouldier, as Simeon in the Eccleſiaſtical hiſtory did to the pillars, which he whipped before the earthquake; Stand faſt, for ye ſhall be ſhaken. στῆτε. D. Hals Qui vadis.

Digitized by Google

Your loins girt about] Here if ever, Ungirt, unbleſt. He is a looſe man that wants this girdle of ſincerity.

The breaſt-plate of righteouſneſs] Inherent righteouſneſs, 1 John 3.7. that enſureth election, 2 Pet. 1.10. The uſe of a breaſt-plate is to keep the vital parts from being mortally wounded, that a man be not ſtricken down without recovery; ſo doth righteouſneſs the ſoul. Treaſures of wickedneſs profit nothing; but righteouſneſs delivereth from death, Prov. 10.2. this is that as triplex circa pectus, that privy armour of proof, that the Saints have about their hearts, ſo that that wicked one toucheth them not, with any deadly touch, 1 John 5.18. It is well obſerved by ſome, that in all this Panoply there is no mention of a back-plate (as there is of a breaſt-plate) becauſe the Chriſtian ſouldier ſhould never fly, but be like Androclid, whom when one derided, becauſe being lame he went to the wars; he anſwered merrily, He came to fight, and not to run away.

Verſe 15. And your feet ſhod] As one that is well booted os buskind can walk unhurt amidſt bryers and brambles: ſo may he amidſt Satans ſnares, whereof all places are full, that is fortified with Goſpel-comforts, whereby God creates peace.

ἐπὶ πᾶσιν. Verſe 16. Above all] Or, Over and upon all. For the word here rendred a ſhield, θυρεὸς. cometh from another word that ſignifieth a door; to note, that as a door or gate doth θύρα. the body, ſo the ſhield of faith covereth the whole ſoul. Let us be therefore (as Epaminondas) Non de vita, ſed de ſcuto ſolliciti. Sceva at the ſiege of Dyrrachium ſo long alone reſiſted Pompeys army, that he had 220 darts ſticking in his ſhield, and loſt one of his eyes, and yet gave not over till Cæſar came to his reſcue.

To quench all the fiery darts] Pointed and poyſoned with the venome of ſerpents, which ſet the heart on fire from one luſt to another, or fiery for the dolour and diſtemper that they work: in alluſion to the Scythian darts, dipt in the gall of aſps and vipers; the venemous heat of which, like a fire in their fleſh, killed the wounded with torments the likeſt hell of any other. The Apoſtle here might allude to the cuſtom of ſouldiers in Polyb. thoſe times, who to prevent the miſchief of thoſe empoyſoned darts, had ſhields made Vegetius. of raw Neats-leather: and when the fiery darts lighted upon them, they were preſently quenched thereby.

Verſe 17. The helmet of ſalvation] Hope which holds head above water, and maketh the ſoul with ſtretcht-out neck expect deliverance, Rom. 8. 19. crying out not onely, Dum ſpiro, ſpero; but Dum expiro, ſpero.

And the ſword of the ſpirit] Wherewith our Savious beat the Devil on his own dung-hill, the wilderneſs, fetching all out of that one book of Deuteronomy, Mat. 4. See the Notes there.

Verſe 18. Praying always] Prayer is not onely a part of the armour, but enables to uſe all the reſt. It is not onely a charm for that crooked ſerpent Leviathan, Iſa. 26.16. Flagellum Diaboli. to inchant him, but a whip to torment him, and put him into another hell, ſaith Chryſoſtome. It fetcheth Chriſt into the battel, and ſo is ſure of victory. It obtaineth freſh ſupplies of the Spirit, Phil. 1. 19. and ſo maketh us more then conquerors, even triumphers. It driveth the Devil out of the field, and maketh him flie from us, Tanquàm ſi leones ignem expuentes eſſemus, ſaith Chryſoſtome. Eſpecially if we go not to the battel δορπὸν ἑλόντες, with our break-faſt, as Neſtor in Homer, but faſting and praying. For ſome kind of Devils are not caſt out but by faſting and prayer.

And watching thereunto] That we be not ſurprized at unawares. The bird Onocrotalus is ſo well practiſed to expect the Hawk to grapple with her, that even when ſhe ſhutteth her eyes, ſhe ſleepeth with her beak exalted, as if ſhe would contend with her adverſary: Let us likewiſe ſtand continually upon our guard. The Devil watcheth and walketh the round, 1 Pet. 5. 8. Watch therefore.

Verſe 19. And for me] Miniſters muſt be eſpecially pray'd for, that they may have a door not onely of utterance, but of entrance to mens hearts, and ſo be able to ſave themſelves, and thoſe that hear them. In praying for ſuch, we pray for our ſelves.

πρεσβεύω. Verſe 20. I am an Ambaſſador] Venerable for mine age and authority, as the word ſignifieth. The ancient and the honorable are uſually imployed as Ambaſſadors. Cognata ſunt γέρων & γῆρας, Old age and Honour are akin in the Greek tongue.

In bonds] Gr. In a chain; inſtead of a chain of gold (worn commonly by Ambaſſadors) and far more glorious, I bear about my bonds (ſaith Ignatius in his Epiſtle likewiſe wiſe to the Epheſians) as ſo many ſpiritual Jewels or Enſigns of honour. Oh, ſaid Alice Driver, here is a goodly neckerchief, bleſſed be God for it, when the chain was put about her neck. τὸ δεσμὰ τὸ εἰσέρω τοῦ πνευματικὰς μαργαείτας.

Digitized by Google

That therein I may ſpeak boldly] He ſaith not, That I may be freed from my chain, but that I may do my office well in my chain. Let God ſerve himſelf upon us, and then no matter what becomes of us. Martinus decumbens, Domine, dixit, ſi adhuc populo tuo ſum neceſſarius, non recuſo laborem. Sever. epiſt 3.

Verſe 21. But that ye may know] It is of good uſe to the Church to know the lives and affairs of men eminent in goodneſs and of exemplary holineſs, that others may expreſs them; as Polycarp did John the Evangeliſt, as Ireneus did Polycarp, as Cyprian did Tertullian, Pareus did Urſin; &c.

Verſe 22. Comfort your hearts] It is God that comforts by the creatures, as by conduit-pipes. The ayr yields light as an inſtrument; the water may heat, but not of it ſelf. When a potion is given in beer, the beer of it ſelf doth not work, but the potion by the beer. So in this caſe.

Verſe 23. Peace be to the brethren] Theſe onely be the children of peace, Luke 10.10. The wicked are like the troubled ſea, Iſa. 57.20. which may ſeem ſometimes ſtill, but is never ſo: no more are they. The peace of proſperity they may have, but not of tranquillity. Sinceritas ſerenitatis mater. Hence it followeth.

Verſe 24. In ſincerity] Or, Immortality, oppoſite to that Anathema Maranatha, 1 Cor. 16.23. ἐν ἀφθαρσίᾳ.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

A COMMENTARY OR EXPOSITION Upon the Epistle of S. Paul to the Philippians.

Chap. I.

Verse 1. With the Bishops and Deacons] THE word Priest is never used at all for a Minister of the Gospel by the Apostles, no nor by the most ancient Fathers, as Bellarmine himself confesseth. And yet how eager were our late Factors for Rome to have priested us all, but that God better provided for us? De cultu sanct. lib. 3. cap. 4.

Verse 2. Grace be to you] See the Note on 1 Cor. 1. 2. and on Ephes. 1. 2.

Verse 3. Upon every remembrance] And no wonder: for these were those famous Macedonians, that first gave themselves to the Lord, and then to their faithful Ministers by the will of God. 2 Cor. 8. 5. See the Note there, & compare Is. 50. 10.

Verse 4. Making request with joy] Those that grieve their faithfull Ministers, and quench the Spirit in them, doit to their own singular disadvantage.

Verse 5. For your fellowship] A good man cannot tell how to go to heaven alone. No sooner had the Philippians received the Gospel, but they were in fellowship to a day. The communion of Saints was with them a point of practice, as well as an article of belief. The Apostles Creed was anciently briefer then now. The mention of the Fathers being maker of heaven and earth, The Sons death and descending into hell, and the communion of Saints being wholly omitted: haply as implied sufficiently in other Articles. But surely if the Creed were called Symbolum, as a sign or badge to difference Christians from Infidels and wicked people, there was little reason to leave out the Communion of Saints, this being a main distinctive character; there being no such fellowship as among the Saints, Cant. 6. 9.

Verse 6. That he which hath begun a good work] Gr. That he which hath inbegun a good work in you; for the work is wholly inward and spiritual, faith an Interpreter. So God is said to indwell in his people, 2 Cor. 6. 16. as if he could never have enough communion with them. ἐναρξάμ.

Will

Digitized by Google

Will perform it] Or perfect it. God doth not uſe to do his work by the halves, but goes thorow ſtitch with it, 1 Theſ. 5.24. Pſal. 138.8. Only we muſt pray as Luther was wont to do, Confirm, O Lord, in us what thou haſt wrought, and perfect the work that thou haſt begun in us to thy glory. So be it. And as Queen Elizabeth prayed, Look upon the wounds of thy hands, and deſpiſe not the work of thy hands. Thou haſt written me down in thy book of preſervation with thine own hand: O read thine own hand-writing, and ſave me, &c.

Act. and Mon. fol. 777.

Verſe 7. Partakers of my grace] That is, ye communicate with me in my ſufferings, which he here calleth his grace; and tels them ver. 29. To you it is given, as an honourary, to ſuffer for Chriſts ſake. Crudelitas veſtra gloria noſtra, ſaid thoſe Primitive Martyrs. I had rather be a Martyr then a Monarch, ſaid Ignatius. It is to my loſs, if you bate me any thing in my ſufferings, ſaid Gordius to his tormentors. Gaudebat Criſpina cum tenebatur, cum audiebatur, cum damnabatur, cum ducebatur, ſaith Auguſtine. Criſpina rejoyced when ſhe was apprehended, convented, condemned, executed.

Tertull.

In Pſal. 137.

Verſe 8. I long after you all] Here the Apoſtle practiſed his own precept of fatherly affection, Rom. 12.10. Pray for me, mine own heart-root in the Lord, Quem in intimis viſceribus habeo ad convivendum & commoriendum, ſaith Bradford in a letter to his fellow Martyr Laurence Saunders.

φιλόστοργοι.

Act. and Mon. fol. 1482.

Verſe 9. And in all judgement] Or, Senſe. The ſoul alſo hath her ſenſes as well as the body. And theſe muſt be exerciſed to diſcern good and evil, Heb 5. 14. thoſe two learned ſenſes eſpecially (as Ariſtotle calleth them) the eye and the ear, Job 34. 3. Jer. 2. 31. Further, obſerve here, that knowledge and ſenſe or judgement, are two things. Young trees are more ſappy, but old trees more ſolid.

Verſe 10. Approve the things] Or, try the things that differ, that ye be not cheated, and ſo undone, as many a man is by purchaſing a counterfeit commodity at an unreaſonable rate. A Briſtol ſtone looks like a diamond, and many things gliſter beſides gold.

Verſe 11. Being filled with the fruits] The excellency of a Chriſtian is to follow God fully, as Caleb, Numb. 14.24. To have a heart full of goodneſs, as thoſe Rom. 15.14. A life full of good works, as Tabitha, Acts 9.33. See the Note on Gal. 5.22.

Verſe 12. Rather unto the furtherance] So were Luthers troubles. Quò magis illiſurunt, ſaith he, eò amplius procedo. The more they rage, the more the Goſpel ſpreadeth. It was a pleaſant ſight (ſaith one) to have beheld Chriſt and Antichriſt ſtriving for maſteries. For whatſoever the Pope and the Emperor attempted againſt the Goſpel, Chriſt turned it all to the furtherance of the Goſpel. The Popes bull, the Emperors thunderbolt amazed not men, but animated them to imbrace the truth; weakned them not, but wakened them rather.

Scultet. Annal.

Verſe 13. In all the Pallace] So in the Diet held at Auſborough in Germany anno 1530. Caſar reading the Proteſtants Confeſſion, and ſending it abroad to other Chriſtian Princes, as deſiring their advice about it, diſperſed and ſpread it more in all parts then all the Lutheran Preachers could have done. For which cauſe Luther laughs agood at the fooliſh wiſdom of the Papiſts, in a certain Epiſtle of his to the Elector of Saxony. When Bonner allowed William Hunter Martyr, no more then an half-penny a day in priſon, he confeſſed that he lacked nothing, but had meat and cloathing enough, yea even out of the Court, both money, meat, cloathes, wood and coals, and all things neceſſary. What friends John Wicliff found, both in the Court of England, and in the Court of Bohemia, is famouſly known: and yet the Proverb is,

Scultet. Annal. 274.

Act. and Mon. fol. 1398.

Exeat aulâ qui velit eſſe pius ——

Verſe 14. Are much more bold] This is the fruit of the Saints ſufferings. Eccleſia totum mundum ſanguine & oratione convertit, ſaith Luther. As the Lilly is increaſed by its own juice that flows from it: ſo is the Church by its ſufferings. This cauſed Julian to ſpare ſome Chriſtians whom he could have wiſhed out of the world. I thank our Lord God (ſaid B. Ridley, in a letter of his to Bradford) that ſince I heard of our dear brother Rogers departing, and ſtout confeſſing of Chriſt and his truth even unto death, my heart, bleſſed be God, rejoyced of it; neither ever ſince that time I have felt any lumpiſh heavineſs, as I grant I have felt ſometimes before. So Bradford in a letter to Cranmer, Latimer and Ridley, priſoners at Oxford, Our dear brother Rogers hath broken

Act. and Mon. fol. 565.

Digitized by Google

broken the ice valiantly. As this day I think hearty Hooper, trusty Taylour, and sincere Saunders end their course and receive their crown. The next am I, which hourly look for the Porter to open me the gates after them to enter into the desired rest. God forgive me mine unthankfulness for this exceeding great mercy, &c. Ibid. 1484.

Verse 15. Some indeed preach Christ] Such self-seekers there are nowadaies not a few. Two things make a good Christian, good actions and good aims. Though a good aim doth not make a bad action good, as we see in Uzzah, yet a bad aim makes a good action bad, as in these preachers. They preached Christ; so did the devil, who yet was silenced by Christ, Mark 1.24.25.

Verse 16. Preach Christ of contention] Striving to bear away the bell from me, as the better preachers. And with such Ambitionists the Church of Christ hath ever been pestered. This made Luther pray, A doctore glorioso, & à pastore contentioso, liberet Ecclesiam suam Dominus. From vain-glorious and contentious preachers, The good Lord deliver his Church. This made Strigelius when he was on his death-bed bless God that now he should be freed ab immanibus & implacabilibus odiis Theologorum, from the cruel and implacable hatreds of dissenting Divines. This drew that councel from Luther to preachers, that they should see that those three dogs did not follow them into the Pulpit. Pride, Covetousness and Envy. Melch. Ad. in vit. Strig.

Supposing to add affliction to my bonds] An immane cruelty, such as Job and David oft complain of, Iob 6. 14. Psal. 69. 26. Quen Elizabeth hated no less then did Mithridates, such as maliciously persecuted vertue forsaken of fortune, saith Camden. Camdens Eliz. 531

Verse 17. Knowing that I am set] Or, Laid by the heels, they of love help out at a dead lift, and do my office abroad: as Marulla a maid of Lemnos, seeing her Father slain in the gate, took up his weapons, and not only revenged his death, but helped to keep out the Turks, who hoped to have surprized the City on the sudden. Κεῖμαι. Turk Hist. 4. 12.

Verse 18. Christ is preached. &c.] Prorsus Satan est Lutherus, sed Christus vivit, & regnat, Amen, saith Luther in an Epistle of his to Spalatinus. Luther is called a devil: but be it so, so long as Christ is magnified, I am well apaid. All private respects should be drowned in the glory of God. But he is a base-spirited man that is totus in se, like the snail, still within doors, and at home. I would to God (said Mr. Dod) I were the worst Minister in England; Not wishing himself worse then he was, but other men better: Yea, Pedaretus, a Heathen, a Lacedemonian, when he was not chosen into the number of the three-hundred Councellours of State, I thank thee ô God (said he) that thou hast given to this city so many men that are better then I am, and fitter to bear office. Gratias habeo tibi O Deus, &c. Brus. lib. 1.

Verse 19. This shall turn to my salvation] God maketh all to co-operate, and turneth all about to the best: as the skilful Apothecary maketh of a poisonful viper a wholsome triacle. See the Note on Rom. 8. 28. and on Gen. 50. 20. ἐπιχορηγία.

And the supply of the Spirit] Fresh supply of subsequent grace, as of the latter rain to the corn, and as the influence of the heavens to fruit-trees; without which they cannot bear, though they be fitted to bear fruit.

Verse 20. According to my earnest] St. Paul stood as it were on tip-toes to see which wayes he might best glorifie God by life or by death. ἀποκαραδοκία.

Verse 21. And to die is gain] Because death to a good man is the day-break of eternal brightness, janua vitæ, porta cœli, as Bernard hath it, a valley of Achor, a door of hope to give entrance into Paradise, to bring them malorum omnium ademptionem, bonorum omnium adeptionem.

Verse 22. What I shall chuse, I wot not] As a loving wife sent for by her husband far from home, and yet loth to leave her children, is in a muse and doubt what to do, so was the Apostle. He had mortem in desiderio, & vitam in patientia (as Fulgentius hath it) he rather endured life then desired it; he accepted it rather then affected it.

Verse 23. For I am in a straight] Plato in the eighth of his laws hath a like speech, The communion of the soul with the body is not better then the dissolution, as I would say if I were to speak in earnest. But whether Plato believed himself so saying, I have reason to make question, when I consider that his master Socrates, when he came to die, doubted whether it were better with the dead or with the living, as both Plato and Ci- κοινωνία ψυχῆς σώματι διαλύσεως ἐκ δὴ κρείττων, &c.

Digitized by Google

ἀναλύσαι. Having a deſire to depart] To looſe from the ſhore of life, and launch out into the main of immortality. Or it may be rendered to return home, or to change Rooms. A believer when he dieth, doth but repatriaſſe (as Bernard phraſeth it,) return home: he doth but change his place, and not his company, as dying D. Preſton ſaid. He is ready to chide out his ſoul with Quid hic facio; as Monica Auſtins mother did, what make I here ſo far from mine own country? or with an Egredere ô anima mea, as Hilarion did, Go forth O my ſoul, to Jeſus thy Bridegroom; haſte, haſte, haſte to thine happy home. Enge, Deo ſit laus & gloria, quod jam mea inſtet liberatio, & horrula gratiſſima, ſaid Graſerus, when death was upon him. O bleſſed be God for this bleſſed hour, &c. Melch. Ad. in vit. "O what an happy change ſhall I now make from night to day, from darkneſs to "light, from death to life, from ſorrow to ſolace, from a factious world to an hap-"py being! as Mr. John Holland a Lancaſhire Miniſter ſaid, when he was even ready to depart. Oh wiſh heartily to die the death of theſe righteous: and let that be the unfeigned ſenſe of thy ſoul, which Camerarius left in his will, ſhould be written on his tombſtone, Melch. Ad.

Vita mihi mors eſt, mors mihi vita nova eſt.
Life is to me a death, death's a new life.

Or that emortual of George Fabritius,

Buchole. Index Chronol.

Σοὶ χάριν ἴδια Θεῷ εὐσπλάγχνῳ, ὃς μὲ δίδαξας
Ἐν βιοτῇ τε θανεῖν, ἐν θανάτῳ δὲ βίην.

Thanks to my gracious God, who doth me give,
In life to dye; and in deaths hand to live.

And to be with Chriſt] This was all his ſong ever ſince he had been in the third heaven. So Mr. Bolton lying on his death-bed, ſaid, I am by the wonderful mercies of God as full of comfort as my heart can hold; and feel nothing in my ſoul but Chriſt, with whom I heartily deſire to be. In his life by M. Bagſhaw.

Which is far beteer] Far far the better. A tranſcendent expreſſion, ſuch as is that 2 Cor. 4. 17. See the Note there. πολλῷ μᾶλλον κρεῖσσον.

Verſe 24. Is more needful for you] Mr. Bolton dying, and deſiring to be diſſolved, being told that it was indeed better for him to be with Chriſt, but the Church of God could not miſs him, nor the benefit of his Miniſtery, he thus replied with David, 2 Sam. 15. 25, 26. If I ſhall finde favour in the eyes of the Lord, he will bring me again, and ſhew me both it and his habitation. But if otherwiſe, lo here I am; let him do what ſeemeth good in his eyes. No man is born, much leſs born again for himſelf, but for the benefit of many, as Bucers Phyſitians ſaid to him, Non ſibi ſe, ſed multorum utilitati eſſe natum, that he was not born for himſelf, but for the good of Gods Church; the welfare whereof he had zealouſly promoted. D. John Reinolds being perſwaded by his friends to give over his unceſſant pains in the Lords work for his healths ſake, finely anſwerd out of Juvenal. M. Bagſhaw. in Bolt. life.

Et propter vitam vivendi perdere cauſas:
Nor yet, for love of life, looſe that dare I
That is the main, Care of Community.

Verſe 25. And joy of faith] That is, for your full aſſurance; which is that higheſt degree of faith, whereby a believer having gotten victory over his doubtings, triumpheth with a large meaſure of joy.

Verſe 26. That your rejoycing] Gr. Your glorying, or exulting in this, that God hath given me in, as an anſwer to your prayers. It is ſurely a ſweet thing to hear from heaven. David often boaſts of it, Pſal. 6. & 66.

Verſe 27. Only let your Converſation] q. d. If you would that God ſhould hear you, and deliver me, be ready prepared for the receipt of ſuch a mercy. The fountain of divine grace will not be laden at with foul hands, Pſal. 66. 17. The lepers lips ſhould be covered according to the law.

Let

Digitized by Google

Let your converſation] Your civil converſation, your common commerce, and interdealings with men alſo. Hippocrates took an oath of his followers to keep their profeſſion unſtained, and their lives unblameable. When our life is contrary to our profeſſion, it is a ſlander to the Goſpel: and it may be ſaid of us, as a Lowcountryman ſaid to a Gentleman that commended the Spaniards for their devotion and their often bleſſing, and croſſing themſelves: No doubt quoth he, they are holy men; Croſſes without, and the devil within. πολιτ-υ-εσθε. Αγιως και οσιως πραττω και των θειων και της τεχνης μου.

Striving together for the faith] As the Barons of Polonia profeſſed to do, by their ſtarting up at the reading of the Goſpel, and drawing out their ſwords half way, in teſtimony that they would ſtick and ſtand to the defence of that truth to the very death. Help the truth in neceſſity, ſtrive with it, and for it. Say of it, as ſhe did of the Shield ſhe gave her ſon going to the battel, Either bring this back, or be brought back upon it. Or, as the black Princes reſolution in fight was, either to vanquiſh or periſh. The Serpent, they ſay, if he be ſo environed, that he muſt of neceſſity paſs through one of them, will ſooner adventure upon the fire or flame, then upon the ſhaddow of the Poplar tree. The Mouſe of Armenia will rather dye then be defiled with any filth: inſomuch, as if her hole be beſmeared with dirt, ſhe will rather chooſe to be taken, then to be polluted. Let us reſolve either to live with the faith of the Goſpel, or to dye for it. The Athenians bound their Citizens by oath, to fight for defence of their Religion both alone, and with others. Anno 965. Io. Funccius. ἡ την ἡ επι των. Plutarch. Hiſt. of France fol. 196. Plin. Willet on Dan. ex Pinto. Αμυνω δε και ὑπερ ἱερων και ὁσιων και ὁπλων και μου: & και κατα πολλων.

Verſe 28. And in nothing terrified] A Metaphor from horſes, when they tremble and are ſore affrighted. He that feareth God, need fear none elſe, Pſal. 3. But with the horſe in Job, he mocketh at fear, and is not affrighted: neither turneth he back from the ſword. Verba juramenti. πτυρόμενοι. Iob 39. 22.

Verſe 29. For unto you it is given] As an high honour not only to believe (though that is a great matter: For he that believeth hath ſet to his ſeal that God is true, hath given God a teſtimonial, ſuch as is that Deut. 32. 4.) but alſo (as a further favour) to ſuffer for his ſake: This is the loweſt ſubjection that can be to God, but the higheſt honour both to him and us. This made Latimer after the ſentence pronounced on him, cry out, I thank God moſt heartily of this honour. Saunders ſaid, I am the unworthieſt man for this high office, that ever was appointed to it. Such an honour it is, ſaid Careleſs, Martyr, as the greateſt Angel in heaven is not permitted to have. God forgive me mine unthankfulneſs, &c. Act. and Mon. Ibid. 1361. Ibid. 1744.

Verſe 30. Which ye ſaw in me] Acts 16. 19, 23, 24, &c. See the Notes there.

CHAP. II.

Verſe 1. If there be therefore]

A Moſt Paſſionate obteſtation, importing his moſt vehement deſire of their good agreement; whereunto he conjures them, as it were by all the bonds of love betwixt him and them. Matters of importance muſt be preſſed with utmoſt vehemence, Coloſ. 3. 14. Love is charged upon us above all thoſe excellent things there reckoned up.

If any comfort of love] As there is very much; making the Saints to enjoy one anothers ſociety with ſpiritual delight, Pſal. 16. 3. and to communicate with gladneſs and ſingleneſs of heart, Acts 2. 46. The Lord doth uſually and graciouſly water the holy fellowſhip of his people with the dews of many ſweet and glorious refreſhings: ſo that they have a very heaven upon earth, for kinde, the ſame with that above, and differing only in degrees.

If any bowels and mercies] Ipſa Suada, credo, ſi loqui poſſet, non potuiſſet, ἐμπαστικωτερως, ubi quot verba, quot tela, &c. ſaith a learned man; that is, perſwaſion it ſelf could not ſpeak more perſwaſively: here are ſo many words, ſo many weapons able to pierce and work upon any heart not poſſeſt with an iron ſinew. D. Morton.

Digitized by Google

Verse 2. Being of one accord, of one mind] Hereunto those many ones should move us mentioned by our Apostle, Ephes. 4. 4. 5. See the Notes there, and on Acts 4. 32. they were of one heart: animo animaque inter se miscebantur, saith Tertullian of those Primitive Christians, yea they were una anima, one soul (so Tremellius rendreth this text out of the Syriack) all informed with one and the same soul; all as one man, in the matters of Gods worship.

Verse 3. Let nothing be done through strife] These are those hell-hags that set the Church on fire, φιλονεικία and φιλαρχία, if these men could be cast out of mens hearts, great hopes there were, πάντας εἰς τὸ θεῖον κήρυγμα ὁμοφώνως καὶ ὀρθοδόξως συνδεθῆναι, as Isidore hath it, that all men would soon consent in one and the same truth, and be at peace among themselves.

Isid. Pelus. l. 4. epist. 55.

Let each esteem other better then themselves] Non minus vere, quam humiliter, as Bernard glosseth: because in some gift or other, at least in the measure or use, another may be better then us.

Verse 4. Look not every man, &c.] Self is a great stickler, but must be excluded where love shall be maintained. He that is wholly shut up within himself is an odious person: and the place he lives in, longs for a vomit to spue him out. It is his pleasure, his profit and his preferment (saith One) that is the Natural mans Trinity: and his carnal self that is these in unity. Indeed it is that flesh that is the principal Idol; the other are deified in the relation to our selves.

Verse 5. Let this be minde in you] We should strive to express Christ to the world, not as a picture doth a man in outward lineaments onely, but as a childe doth his father in affections and actions. Our lives should be as so many Sermons upon Christs life, 1 Pet. 2. 9.

Verse 6. To be equal with God] Gr, Equals, that is, every way equal; not a secondary inferiour God, as the Arrians would have him. See the Notes on John 1. 1. 2, 3, 4. Hold fast this truth; it is of the foundation, it is the Rock whereon the Church is built; and all the devils in hell, shall not wrest this place from me, for a clear proof of the divinity of Christ, saith learned Calvin.

Mat. 16.

ἁρπαγμὸν.

Verse 7. But made himself, &c.] Gr. Emptied himself, suspended and laid aside his glory and majesty, and became a sinner both by imputation (for God made the iniquity of us all to meet upon him, Isa. 53. 6.) and by reputation, for he was reckoned not only among men, but among malefactours, verse 9. Hence he is said to be sent in the likeness of sinful flesh, Rom. 8. 3.

And took upon him the form of a servant] Yea of an evil servant, that was to be beaten.

Tertul de Resur.

In the likeness of men] Yea he was a worm and no man, nullificamen populi, as Tertullian hath it. Christ vilified, nullified himself to the utmost, ex omni seipsum ad nihil redegit, as Beza expounds the former part of this verse, of every thing he became nothing.

Verse 8. He humbled himself] This Sun of righteousness went ten degrees back in the dial of his Father, that he might come to us with health in his wings, that is, in his beams.

Became obedient unto death] That is, to his dying day, saith Beza. He went through many a little death all his life long, and at length underwent that cursed and painful death of the Cross, his soul also being heavy to the death, Mat. 26. he suffered the unsufferable wrath of a God for a season. Ne perderet obedientiam, perdidit vitam, saith Bernard.

Verse 9. Wherefore God also, &c.] Wherefore denoteth not the cause, but the order of Christs exaltation, as a consequent of his sufferings, as some conceive.

Verse 10. That at the name] Gr. In the name. The Papists stifly defend the ceremony of bowing at the name of Jesus, to countenance the adoration of their deified Images, altars and their host; teaching in their Pulpits, That Christ himself on the Cross, bowed his head on the right side, to reverence his own name, which was written over it. But Name is here put for person, bowing of the knee for inward subjection. It is taken out of Isa. 45. 23.

Sir Edwin Sand in Spec. Europ.

Verse 11. And that every tongue] The Heathens were wont to say. Mutus sit oportet qui non laudarit Herculem. Let that tongue be tied up for ever, that cries not not out with David, Vivat Dominus, and with Luther, Vivat & regnet Chriſtus, Amen.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 12. Work out your ſalvation] The reaſon that men ſtill tremble, and are ſtill troubled with this doubt, and that fear, is, becauſe their ſalvation is not wrought out, ſomething is left undone and their conſcience tels them ſo. κατεργάζεσθε.

With fear and trembling] Oppoſed to carnal ſecurity. Thoſe venturous bold ſpirits that dare live in any evil, ſo it ſtare not in their faces, and have not a heart fearful of the leaſt evil, aſpire not to immortality.

Verſe 13. For it is God which worketh] Therefore work out, &c. As acti agentes, moti moventes, as the inferiour orbs move, as acted by the ſuperiour. When God hath tuned, and doth touch us, we muſt move: and whileſt the ſpirit imbreaths us, we muſt turn about like the mill.

To will and to do] Sub laudibus naturæ latent inimici gratiæ, ſaith Auguſtine; who ſtood ſo much for grace, that the Schoolmen ſay he yielded too little to free will. That we live, is the gift of the gods (ſaith Seneca) that we live well, is of our ſelves. A baſe ſpeech! So Cicero, Judicium hoc omnium mortalium eſt, fortunam à Deo petendam, à ſe ipſo ſumendam ſapientiam. For which impious ſentence Auguſtine ſaith of him, Eum ut faceret homines liberos, feciſſe ſacrilegos. De nat. d or. De civ. Dei l. 5.

Verſe 14. Without murmurings] Gr. Wrath and rancour or diſcontent, which makes mens lips like ruſty hinges ſeldom to move without murmuring and complaining. ἐγγύς.

And diſputings] Or wranglings about triſles, niceties or novelties, things whereof we can have neither proof nor profit. Zanchy thus diſtinguiſheth theſe two: Murmurings are ſecret complaints one of another, like to the grunting of Hogs: diſputings are open contentions and quarrels. Zanch. in loc.

Verſe 15. Blameleſs and harmleſs] Gr. Hornleſs, or ſincere without mixture of deceit or guile, Iſraelites indeed. ἀκέραιοι.

The ſons of God] Dignity enforceth duty. Remember that thou art a a Kings ſon, ſaid he to Antigonus, and thou canſt not do amiſs.

Without rebuke] Such as envy it ſelf cannot juſtly tax, or faſten her fangs on. Si Luthero faverem ut viro bono, quod fatentur & hoſtes, &c. ſaith Eraſmus, who yet loved him not. Luther is a good man, as his very enemies cannot but acknowledge. So Bucer, Bradford, Melanchon, &c. Chriſtians ſhould excel others, ſtanding as ſtandard-bearers, higher then others, as Saul was by the head and ſhoulders, being without blemiſh from head to foot, as Abſolom, fair to the eye, and good to the taſte, as the tree of knowledge. Ἀμώμητα. Tom. 8. Epiſt. Gen. 3. 6.

In the midſt of a crooked] As Noah was righteous in his generation: as Joſhuah would ſerve Jehovah, though alone: as David therefore loved Gods teſtimonies, becauſe other men kept not his law: as Eliah amidſt the Baalites cries, Zelando zelavi; the worſe they were, the better was he. Baruc kindled himſelf from other mens coldneſs, and quickned himſelf from other mens dulneſs, Neh. 3. 20. Accendit ſeipſum. Trem.

As lights in the world] Luminaries, great lights, ſuch as are the Sun and Moon, that give light to others. Some wicked have greater common gifts then the godly; as many metals are brighter and more orient then the heavens; yet as thoſe metals are not fit to convey the light of the Sun, nay indeed they would ſtop it; ſo neither are the wicked fit to ſhine the true light into us; but Chriſt and Chriſtians, thoſe lights of the world. Such as Chryſoſtom was, whom Theodores ſtileth eximium orbis terrarum luminare, a famous Light of the Church; and others ſaid, that the Sun-light might better be ſpared then Chryſoſtoms preaching. φωστῆρες. Mat. 5.

Verſe 16. Holding forth the Word] As an enſign, or rather as the hand doth the torch, or the watch-tower the light, and ſo the haven to weather-beaten Mariners. Ἐπέχοντες.

Verſe 17. Yea and if I be offered] Or, be poured out as a drink-offering upon the Sacrifice, &c. to ſeal up my Doctrine, whereby I have brought you to the obedience of faith. Biſhop Ridley in a letter to Biſhop Brooks of Gloceſter, writeth thus: As for the doctrine which I have taught, my conſcience aſſureth me that it was ſound and according to Gods Word, to his glory be it ſpoken: the which doctrine the Lord being my help, I will maintain, ſo long as my tongue ſhall wag, and breath is within my body, and in confirmation thereof ſeal the ſame with my blood. Act. and Mon. fol. 1604.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verse 18. For the same cause also, &c.] The hearers affections and endeavours should exactly answer to the affections and endeavours of the preacher, as the Elders of Ephesus did, Acts 20. 31, 37. And as those religious Romans did, chap. 6. 17. and these Philippians, 2 Cor. 8. 5.

συμψυχῶ. Verse 19. That I also may be of good comfort] That I may be inspirited. For when Silas and Timotheus were come from these Macedonians, Paul was pressed in spirit, and set vigorously upon the Lords work.

Acts 18. 5.

ἰσόψυχον. Verse 20. Like-minded] An alter ego to me. True friendship transformeth us into the condition of those we love as Eusebius into his friend Pamphilus the Martyr, whence he was called Eusebius Pamphili, Amicitia sit tantum inter bines qui sunt veri, & bonos qui sunt pauci.

Hyeronym.

Verse 21. For all seek their own] If it were so then, what wonder if now, as was so long since foretold, 2 Tim. 3. 2. Self must be shouldred out, and Christs share studied more then our own; all private interests let fall, and all self-respects drowned in the glory of God, and the publike good; or else we want that pious ingennity that becometh Saints. It is said of Cato, that he did —— soli genitum se credere mundo. That the care of community lay upon him. Timothy was of a choice and excellent spirit that naturally cared for the Churches welfare: Few such now a-daies, See the Note on vers. 3.

Lucan.

Verse 22. As the Son with the Father] Happy son in such a father, 1 Tim. 1. 2. If Iason the Thessalian held himself so happy in his Tutour Chiron, Alexander in his Aristotle, Paul in his Gamaliel, how much more was Timothy in Paul the aged, Philem. ver. 9. whose not only doctrine but manner of life he knew fully and followed faithfully, 2 Tim. 3. 10. as a diligent Disciple?

Pindar. lib. 4. Pyth.

Verse 23. So soon as I shall see] For his life was now in suspense by reason of that roaring Lion Nero, whom Tertullian wittily calleth Dedicatorem damnationis Christianorum, quippe qui orientem fidem primus Roma cruentavit.

Verse 24. Shall come shortly] Whether ever he did come or no, we know not. Fallitur augurio spes bona sæpe suo. Good hopes are often frustrated. Howbeit the word here signifieth an assured confidence: and is seldom or never used, but when the thing followeth, which thus is trusted.

Ver. 25. Necessary to send to you] It is not meet that a Pastour be long absent from his people. Moses was away but fourty daies, and before he came again, Israel had made them a golden Calf. A godly Minister when he is abroad, is like a fish in the air; whereinto if it leap for recreation or necessity, yet it soon returns to his own element.

ἐπιποθῶν. Verse 26. For he longed after you] The word signifieth such a vehement desire, as is impatient of delays. His heart was where his calling was.

ἀδημονῶν. And was full of heavinesse] Gr. He was out of the world, as it were, and could not take comfort in any company.

Verse 27. For indeed he was sick] Which should not have been, if S. Paul could have cured him, as he did others. This shews that the Apostles cured the sick, and did miracles not by their own power, or at their own pleasure, &c.

But God had mercy on him] A great mercy it is to recover health, and highly to be prized. After sickness, offer to God the ransome of thy life, as they did, Exod. 31. Bless Jehovah thy Physitian; so he is called, Exod. 15. 26. Thus did David, Psal. 103. 3. Thus Hezekiah, Isa. 36. 9. Thus the very Heathens, whose custome was, after a fit of sickness to consecrate some thing to their gods.

But on me also] For it is a very sore affliction to lose a dear friend, which is as a mans own soul, Deut. 13. 6. and is there set after brother, son, daughter, wife of a mans bosom, as dearer then all of them.

Lest I should have sorrow] Gods care is that we suffer in measure, Isa. 27. 8. And according as we can, 1 Cor. 10. 13. See the note there.

Verse 28. That when ye see him] And receive him as risen from the dead. God knows how to commend his mercies to us, by threatning us with the loss of them: for Bona à tergo formosissima. We know best the worth of mercies by the want of them.

Verse 29. Hold such in reputation] Or set a just price, a due estimate upon them.

Horrible

Digitized by Google

Horrible is the contempt that is now caſt upon the Miniſtery, by our Novellers, as if they had learned of Campian to ſay, Miniſtris eorum nihil vilius.

Verſe 30. Not regarding his life] Gr. Ill providing for his life, caſting away all inordinate care of it, as if he had put on that Roman reſolution, Neceſſe eſt ut eam, non ut vivam. Needſly I muſt go, not needſly live.

CHAP. III.

Verſe 1. Rejoyce]

OR farewel in the Lord. Salutem in Soſpitatore.

To write the ſame things to you] So 1 Cor. 5. 9. Joh. 15. 1, 5. Some gather out of Mat. 5. 1. with Luke 6. 20. that our Saviour preached the ſame Sermon twice over. Men are dull to conceive, hard to believe, apt to forget, and ſlow to practice heavenly truths, and had therefore great need to have them much preſſed, and often inculcated. Neither let any cry out, Occidit miſeros crambe repetita magiſtros. Surfet not of Gods Manna, ſay not it is a light meat, becauſe lightly come by, or the ſame again. Auſtin perſwades the Preacher ſo long to purſue and ſtand upon the beating and repeating of one and the ſame point, till by the geſture and countenance of the hearers he perceives that they underſtand and reliſh it. It was Melanchthons wiſh, that men did not onely teach the ſame things, but in iisdem verbis, in iisdem ſyllabis, in the ſame words, in the ſame ſyllables. He himſelf went over the Epiſtle to the Romans ten ſeveral times in his ordinary lectures. Hippias liked not to have ἀεὶ ταυτὰ, ever the ſame things: but Socrates deſired to have οὐ μόνον ἀεὶ ταυτὰ, ἀλλὰ καὶ περὶ τῶν αὐτῶν not only always the ſame words, but about the very ſame matters: ſich a good thing cannot be heard too often. Aug. de doct. Chriſt. & in Pſal. 10. Sculter. Annal.

Verſe 2. Beware of dogs] That is, Seducers and Sectaries, who though dead dogs, yet will be barking at Godly Miniſters. And though the dogs of Ægypt would not move their tongues againſt Iſrael, Exod. 11. 7. yet theſe greedy dogs, Iſa. 56. can both bark and bite better men then themſelves, being ſet on by the devil, Homines perfricta fronte, impudent as dogs. Ravenous alſo when they get among the flocks, Ezech. 22. 25. further, they are crouching, colloguing creatures, 2 Tim. 3. 4. but believe them not: receive them not: for, like dirty dogs, they will but bemire you with fawning: yea, like cur-dogs, they will ſuck your blood with licking, and in the end kill you, and cut your throats without biting. Beware of them therefore, beware, ſaith the Apoſtle here. κυνὸς ὄμματ' ἔχων. Hom. Il.

Beware of evil workers] Deceitful workers, 2 Cor. 11. 13. that ſeem to build ſtaircaſes for heaven, when indeed they dig deſcents down to hell taking great pains to very evil purpoſe.

Beware of the conciſion] For Circumciſion: as Diogenes called Zeno's διαστολὴν κατατολὴν and Euclides χολὴν χολήν. The holy Scriptures have many ſuch elegant and pleaſant paſſages, as Pro. 25. 27. Hoſ. 4. 15. Galat. 5. 12. Iſa 5. 7 &c. There is one that ſeaſeth it thus. Beware of the conciſion, that is, of thoſe that make diviſions, and cut the Church into little pieces, and ſucking Congregations, making ſeparation. So Peſcator, Qui conantur vos ab Eccleſia Dei reſcindere, who do ſeek to ſunder you from the Church. The Donatiſts affirmed, that there were no true Churches but theirs, and were alſo divided among themſelves, In minutula fruſtula, as Auſtin ſaith. Laert. D. Baſil.

Verſe 3. For we are the circumciſion] Such as have our luxuriancies lopped off, our unruly paſſions mortified, Col. 2. 11. caſting them away as a wretched foreſkin.

Verſe 4. Confidence in the fleſh] That is in external priviledges, which yet profit not thoſe that reſt in them. An empty title, yields but an empty comfort at laſt. God cares for no retainers, that only wear his livery, but ſerve themſelves. A man may go to hell with baptiſmal water on his face; yea the ſooner for his abuſed priviledges.

Verſe 5. An Hebrew of the Hebrews] That is, by both fathers and mothers ſide. Some

Digitized by Google

Some think that hereby he argueth the ancientneſs of his ſtock and lineage, as being continued from Abraham, called the Hebrew; or from Eber, &c. Sed gemmæ & proavos, &c. Of ſome ancient families it may be ſaid as of ſome books, that they are adorandæ rubiginis, of more antiquity, then authority or reſpect.

D. Airay.

Verſe 6. Concerning zeal] A blinde miſguided zeal. See the Note on Rom. 10. 2. If zeal be not qualified with knowledge, all will be on fire, as the Primum mobile, they ſay would be with its ſwift turning about, but for the countermotion of the lower ſphears.

Verſe 7. Loſs for Chriſt] Chriſt is to be ſought and bought at any hand, at any rate. This is to play the wiſe merchant, Mat. 13. 44, 46. See the Notes there. Eſteem we Chriſt, as the people did David, 2 Sam. 18. 3. more worth then ten thouſand, as Naomi did Ruth, better then ſeven ſons, Ruth. 4. 15. As Pharoah did Joſeph. There is none ſo wiſe and worthy as thou, ſaid he, Gen. 41. 39. Let burning, hanging, all the torments of hell befall me, Tantummodò ut Jeſum nanſciſcar, So that I may get my Jeſus, ſaid Ignatius. None but Chriſt, none but Chriſt, ſaid Lambert, lifting up ſuch hands as he had, and his fingers ends flaming. We cannot buy this gold too dear. Paul is well content to part with a Sky full of Stars for one Sun of righteouſneſs. Nazianzen put this price upon his Athenian learning (wherein he was very famous) that he had ſomething of value to part with for Chriſt. So did Galeacius Caraccivlus abandon all to enjoy the pure ordinances of Chriſt at Geneva. See that famous Epiſtle written to him by Mr. Calvin, prefixed before his Commentary on the firſt Epiſtle to the Corinthians.

Act. and Mon.

σκύβαλα, quaſi κυσίβηλα.

Verſe 8. And do count them but dung] Dogs-dung (as ſome interpret the word) or dogs meat, courſe and contemptible. Pauls ſublime ſpirit counts all dung, yet is content for Chriſt to be counted the off-ſcouring of all things.

Verſe 9. And be found in him] Out of whom all are loſt in the wilderneſs of worldly luſts, and wofully wander; yet not ſo wide, as to miſs of hell. Pauls deſire is therefore to be found in Chriſt, at ſuch time as he is ſought for by the juſtice of God, to be brought to condign puniſhment.

Verſe 11. And may know him] Not notionally only (for ſo a man may do out of every Catechiſm) but practically; not apprehenſively only, but affectively; not with that knowledge that is cognoſcitiva, only ſtanding in ſpeculation, but that is directiva vitæ, as the Apoſtle here expounds himſelf. A natural man may have a diſciplinary knowledge of Chriſt, that is, by hear-ſay, as a blinde man hath of colours, not an intuitive, i.e. per ſpeciem propriam &c.

Verſe 11. I might attain to the reſurrection] That is (by a Metonymy of the Subject for the Adjunct) that perfection of holineſs that accompanieth the eſtate of the reſurrection. True grace never aims at a pitch, but aſpireth to perfection. It is a low and unworthy ſtrain in ſome, to labour after no more grace then will keep life and ſoul together, that is, ſoul and hell aſunder (as one ſpeaketh.) But that man for heaven, and heaven for him, that ſets up for his mark the reſurrection of the dead, that would be as perfect now as the glorified Saints ſhall be at the day of Judgement.

Verſe 12. But I follow after] Gr. I perſecute, I follow hot-foot with utmoſt eagerneſs, By this then he ſignifieth how greedily and unceſſantly he purſued after the perfect knowledge of Chriſt, having it as it were in chaſe, and reſolved not to reſt till he had attained unto it. Well might Chryſoſtom call S. Paul an inſatiable greedy devouring worſhipper of God.

Διώκω. D. Airay.

Verſe 13. I count not my ſelf] Si dixiſti ſatis eſt, periiſti. Satiety is a dangerous diſeaſe, and the next ſtep to a declenſion. The Eagles embleme is, ſublimiùs, the Suns celeriùs, Pſal. 19. 3. the wheats perfectiùs, Mar. 4. 28. Ezekiels profundiùs, Chap. 47. 4. Chriſts ſuperiùs, Luke 14. 10. and Pauls ulteriùs.

ἐπεκτεινόμενος. Prono & quaſi præcipiti corpore ferri ad ſcopum. Beza. a Lapide.

Reaching forth] Straining and ſtretching out head and hands, and whole body to lay hold on the mark or price propoſed. A manifeſt Metaphor, from runners in a race, qui caput, totumque corpus, & vires exerunt, ac præcipites ad ſcopum ruunt, who throw themſelves forward like a dart, and ſtretch out their arms, to take hold of the mark.

Verſe 14. I preſs toward, &c.] The Ark of the Covenant was but a cubit and an half high: ſo were likewiſe the wheels of the caldron. Now we know that a cubit and an half half is but an unperfect measure: which shews (saith one) that no man in this life is perfectly perfect. Let us strive to perfection, as Paul did; and then, Summum culmen affectantes, satis honesti vel in secundo fastigio conspiciemur. A man may fully fail in with the forwardest followers of Jesus Christ; and yet fall short of perfection. It is with Christians (saith one well) as with Jonathans signal arrows, two fell short, and but one beyond the mark: so where one shoots home to the mark of the high calling in Christ, many fail of it. Columel.

Digitized by Google

Verse 15. As many as be perfect] Comparatively, or conceitedly so.

God shall reveal] Several measures of knowledge and holiness are given to the Saints at several times. We are narrow-mouthed vessels, and cannot receive all at once. Whether I go thou canst not follow me now: but thou shalt follow me afterwards, Joh. 13. 36. See the Notes there.

Verse 16. Let us walk by the same rule] To wit of the Word: and then you may say, Lord, if I be deceived, thou hast deceived me. Or it may be rendred thus, Let us proceed by one rule: for the word is military, and signifies to go on in order, according to the General his Commands; who else may justly punish our prosperous disobediences, our disorderly successes. στοιχῶμεν. à Lapide.

Verse 17. Be followers together of me] Longum iter per præcepta, brevius per exempla. Every thing in a Minister should be exemplary. We must propound to our selves the highest pitch, and the best paterns of perfection; Even those of most raised parts and graces, of unwearied industry in services, and undaunted magnanimity in suffering: Follow the forwardest Christians with a desire to overtake them: dwell upon their exemplary lives, till ye be changed into the same image. τύπον.

Verse 18. And now tell you weeping] Non tam attramento quàm lachrymis chartas inficiebat Paulus. Paul was a man of many tears, and might well say here as Master Fox concludes the story of Lady Jane Grey, Tu quibus ita legis incertum est, Lector ocellis: Ipse quidem siccis scribere non potui. Lotin. in Act. 22. 19.

Verse 19. Whose God is their belly] A scavenger, whose living is to empty, is to be preferred before him that liveth but to fill privies; as they do that make their gut their God, that dung-hill Deity. Such an one was that Pamphagus, Nabal, Dives, and others that digested in hell, what they ate on earth. They say the locust is all belly, which is joyned to his mouth and endeth at his tail: The Spider also is little else then belly. The Dolphin hath his mouth almost in his very belly: the Ass-fish hath his heart in his belly. In mea patria Deus venter est, & in diem vivitur. In my Country (saith Hierom) their belly is their God, they live from hand to mouth, &c. Epicurus said, That eternal life was nothing else but an eternal eating and drinking: ὥστε πάντα χρόνον διάγειν μεθύοντας, &c. See my common-place of Abstinence. Solinus. Aristot. Laert.

Who minde earthly things] As they have their hands elbow-deep in the world, so their minds are shut in their chests, as dead bodies are buried in Coffins: they are interred in the Golgotha of this world, as moles in their hillocks.

Verse 20. For our conversation] Our civil conversation, or our Burgess-ship, whiles we live by heavens Laws, and go about our earthly businesses with heavenly minds: This a carnal man cannot skill of. A Flie cannot make that of a flower that a Bee can do. There is a generation whose names are written in the earth: these make earth their throne, heaven their footstool, and are loth to die, because they have treasures in the field. But the Saints, though their commoration be on earth, yet their conversation is in heaven: as the pearl grows in the sea, but shines as the skie; As stars, though seen sometimes in a puddle, yet have their situation in heaven; as a wise man may sport with children, but that is not his main business. Corpore ambulamus in terra, corde habitamus in cœlo, saith Austin. Our bodies are on earth, our hearts in heaven (as his was that did even eat and drink and sleep eternal life.) We live by the same Laws, as Saints and Angels in heaven do. If Satan offer us outward things in a temptation (as he did Luther a Cardinalship) we send them away from whence they came, as Pelican sent back the silver bowl (which the Bishop had sent him for a token) with this answer, Astricti sunt quotquot Tiguri cives & inquilini, bis singulis annis, solenni juramento, &c. We the Citizens and Inhabitants of Zurich, are twice a year solemnly sworn to receive no gift from any Forreign Prince: So, we the Citizens of Heaven are bound by solemn and sacred πολίτευμα. Ut municipes cœlorum nos gerimus. Sic reddit Piscator. Jer. 17. 13. Jer. 41. 8. Zach. conver. præface.

Digitized by Google

ſacred Covenants, not to accept of Satans cut-throat kindneſſes. Serpens ille capite blanditur, ventre oblectat, caudâ ligat.

Rupert. Virgil. —Timeo Danaos & dona ferentes.
We like not the Devils Donatives.

Verſe 21. Like unto his glorious body] Which is the Standard. See the Notes on 1 Cor. 15. Now we may ſay to our ſouls as he did to his, O anima quam deformem hoſpitium nacta es? Poor ſoul, what an ill lodging room haſt thou got? But at the Reſurrection all ſhall be mended. Then theſe vile bodies ſhall ſhine as the Sun, and be ſo clear and tranſparent, that all the veins, humors, nerves and bowels ſhall be ſeen as in a glaſs, ſaith Aquinas: that the ſoul may ſally out at every part, and ſparkle thorow the body as the wine thorow the glaſs, ſaith another Author. Three glimpſes of glory were ſeen, 1. In Moſes face. 2. In Chriſts transfiguration. 3. In Stevens countenance.

Chap. IV.

Verſe 1. Dearly Beloved, and longed for]

WHat heart-melting language is here! Miniſters muſt wooe hard for Chriſt, and ſpeak fair, if they will ſpeak to purpoſe: Though I might be much bold in Chriſt to enjoyn thee, yet for loves ſake, I rather beſeech thee, Philem. 8,9. How oft are men fain to ſue for that which is their own; and how heart-glad if by fair entreaties they can gather up their debts?

Verſe 2. I beſeech Euodias] A couple of diſagreeing Siſters, whom the Apoſtle ſeeketh to reconcile, and it was a wonder if they could reſiſt his Rhetorick. O that I could but once finde you together once (ſaid Auſtin of the differences between Hierome and Ruffinus) I would fall down at your feet with much love and many tears: I would beſeech you for your ſelves, and one another, and for weak Chriſtians ſake who are offended thereat, you would not ſuffer theſe diſſentions to ſpread, &c.

Hei mihi qui vos alicubi reperire non poſſum, &c.

Verſe 3. And I intreat thee alſo] All men ſhould contribute their help to the compoſing of differences, and bring their buckets, as it were, to quench this unnatural fire, when once kindled.

True yoke-fellow] Not Pauls wife (for he had none, 1 Cor. 7. 7.) but either the huſband of one of the foremention'd women, or ſome ſpecial and principal Paſtor at Philippi.

Which laboured with me in the goſpel] Not by preaching, but by partaking of the combats and difficulties that I there underwent, with maſculine Spirits. Significatur certamen, quale eſt athletarum, ſaith Eſtius. In theſe good women, beſides their Sex, there was nothing woman-like, or weak.

Act. and Mon. fol. 1668. Verſe 4. Rejoyce in the Lord] That is the true and only joy (ſaid Mr. Philpot the Martyr) which is conceived not of the creature, but of the Creator: to this all other joys being compared are but mournings, all delights ſorrows, all beauty filth, &c. Other joy beſides this may wet the mouth, but not warm the heart; ſmooth the brow, but not fill the breſt.

And again I ſay rejoyce] No duty almoſt more preſſed in both Teſtaments then this of rejoycing in the Lord. It is no leſs a ſin not to rejoyce, then not to repent.

Verſe 5. Let your moderation] Or equality, ſuch as was that of David, Pſal. 26. 12. The ſcales of his minde hung equal, giving him liberty in all occurrences to enjoy himſelf. All immoderations are enemies to health: ſo they are alſo to the quietneſs of the minde. Againſt theſe (as againſt poiſons) there be two kinds of antidotes, prayer and patience, the one hot, the other cold, the one quenching, the other quickning. The word here uſed by the Apoſtle properly ſignifieth moderation in law-buſineſſes, or in laying claim to a mans own right, the preferring of equity before extremity, as holding utmoſt right Hippocrates. Τὸ ἐπιεικὲς. Ariſt. Ethic. l. 5. cap. 10. Summum jus ſumma injuria.

Digitized by Google

right to be utmoſt wrong. Auſtin tells us, That it was grown to a Proverb among his Countrey-men, Ut habeas quietum tempus, perde aliquid. For a quiet life, part with ſome part of thy right, as Abraham did, *Gen.*13.9.

The Lord is at hand] To right you, and recompenſe you, to pay you for all your pains and patience. Judex pro foribus, ſaith S. James, chap.5.9.

Ver.6. In nothing be carefull] Or care for nothing, viz. with a care of diffidence and diſtruſt. See the Note on *Mat.*6.25,26,&c.

But in every thing by prayer] This is the beſt cure of care. Caſt thy burthen (or thy requeſt) upon the Lord, ſaith David, Pſal.55.22. and he ſhall ſuſtain thee. Remove thy trouble from thy ſelf to God by vertue of that Writ or Warrant, and then all ſhall be well. They looked unto God, and were lightned, *Pſal.*34.5. Luther in a certain Epiſtle of his to Melanchthon, complaineth thus: Ego certè oro pro te, & doleo te pertinaciſſimam curarum hirudinem meas preces ſic irritas facere. I pray for thee, but to no purpoſe ſo long as thou giveſt ſo much way to carking cares.

Supplication with thanksgiving] We ſhould come to pray with our thanks in our hands, ſtanding ready with it, as Joſephs brethren ſtood with their preſent, *Gen.*43.25. In the old Law, what ſpecial requeſt ſoever they had to make, or what ſacrifice ſoever to offer, they were commanded ſtill to come with their peace-offerings. Prayer goes up without incenſe, when without thankfulneſs. The Church aſcends daily to her beloved Chriſt in theſe pillars of ſmoke, *Cant.*3.6. for ſhe knows that unthankfulneſs hindreth much the reſtfull ſucceſs of prayer. And the Apoſtle ſeemeth here to hint, that God taketh no notice of their prayers, that do not withall give thanks.

Verſe 7. And the peace of God] Prayer hath virtutem pacativam, Job 22.21. Acquaint thy ſelf with God, and be at peace. Pray that your joy may be full. David prays down his diſtempers, *Pſal.*6. & 116. and then cryes out, Return to thy Reſt, O my ſoul: he rocks himſelf aſleep in this ſort; and ſets all to rights oft-times, even then when his heart was more out of tune then his harp. Would you then have that peace of God, that moſt precious jewel that ever the heart of man was acquainted with? do as you are here adviſed; 1. Pray for that you want, and give thanks for that you have: (A ſacrifice of praiſe is called a pay-offering or a peace offering, becauſe peace enſues upon it.) 2. Be always doing ſomething that is good, as *verſ.*8,9. for as every flower hath its ſweetneſs, ſo every good union hath its comfort. This is ſo true, that very Heathens, (upon the diſcharge of a good conſcience) have found comfort and peace anſwerably. How boldly did Abimelech bear himſelf upon his integrity? and what a bleſſed compoſedneſs had holy Noah, who was righteous in his generation, and therefore ſat mediis tranquillus in undis. John 16.

Shall keep your hearts] Keep as with a guard, or as in a garriſon. Solomons bed was not ſo well guarded with his threeſcore valiant men, all holding ſwords, *Cant.*3.7,8. as each good Chriſtian is by the power of God without him, and the peace of God within him: This peace, like Davids Harp, drives away the evil ſpirit of cares and fears: It ſoon huſheth all. God can ſoon raiſe up in his, an army of powerfull thoughts and meditations, ſo as their very inward tranquillity ariſing from the teſtimony of a good conſcience (called here, Their mindes) and the ſweet Sabbath of ſpirit, the compoſedneſs of their affections (called here, Their hearts) can make and keep them ſecure and ſound, yea bring aid when they are cloſe beſieged by ſin and Satan. φρουρήσει.

Verſe 8. Whatſoever things are true] This is that little Bible, as the eleventh to the Hebrews is by one fitly called A little Book of Martyrs. In this one verſe is compriſed That Totum hominis, Eccleſ.12.13. That Bonum hominis, Micah 6.8. For if ye do theſe things here enjoyned, ye ſhall never fall, but go gallantly into heaven, as Saint Peter hath it, 2 *Pet.*1.10,11.

Verſe 9. And heard, and ſeen in me] Eſt aliquid quod ex magno viro vel tacente proficias. The very ſight, nay thought of a good man, oft doth good. Whereas the tongue or heart of a wicked man is little worth. If their thoughts and diſcourſes were diſtilled, they are ſo frothy they would hardly yield one drop of true comfort. Prov.10.20.

And the God of peace] Not only the peace of God, as verſe 7. Auſtin ſomewhere fiſheth a myſterie out of the word P A X, which conſiſteth of three letters, ſaith he, to note the Trinity, from whom is all true peace. Others have obſerved that all the letters in Jehovah are Quieſcent, letters to teach the ſame truth.

Digitized by Google

ἀνεθάλετε. Verſe 10. Hath reflouriſhed] It had deflouriſhed then for a ſeaſon, and withered, as an Oak in winter, Iſa. 6.13. and as a Teyl-tree whoſe ſap is in the root. The beſt tree may have a fit of barrenneſs: So may the beſt men ſuffer ſome decays for a ſeaſon: the ſpiritual life may run all to the heart, as a people conquered in the field runs to the Caſtle. Howbeit, as Eutychus his life was in him ſtill, and he revived, though he ſeemed to be dead, and as Trees in the Spring grow green again: So do the relapſed Saints.

Verſe 11. In reſpect of want] The wicked in the fulneſs of his ſufficiency is in ſtraits, Job 20.22. Contrariwiſe, the godly man in the midſt of his ſtraits is in a ſufficiency. He hath all things, as having the Haver of all things.

For I have learned] In Chriſts School; for Nature teacheth no ſuch Leſſon.

Horat. Optat ephippia bos piger, optat arare caballus.

The Labourers were not content with their peny, Mat. 20.13. They that have enough to ſink them, yet have not enough to ſatisfie them: as a ſhip may be over-laden with gold and ſilver, even unto ſinking, and yet have compaſs and ſides enough to hold ten times more. It is God only that fils the heart, and maketh a man ſay truly with Jacob, and not lainedly, as Eſau, I have enough my brother. Eſau had a deal, but Jacob had All, becauſe he had the God of all.

Rabbi. Col. li. Gen. 33 9. Gen. 33 11.

Verſe 12. I know both how, &c.] Sound bodies can bear ſudden alterations of heat and cold: So cannot diſtempered bodies.

Both how to be abaſed] So Chilo (one of the ſeven Wiſemen of Greece) ſaid to his brother who took it ill that he was not choſen to be one of the Judges, I know how to be injuriouſly dealt with: but I hardly believe him. Socrates alſo could tell Archelaus, that offered him large revenues, My minde and mine eſtate are matches. But fleſh and blood could never carry him ſo far, for all his ſaying ſo. It is God alone that faſhioneth a mans heart to his eſtate, Pſalme 33.15. as a ſuit of Clothes is fitted to the body.

Ἐγὼ μὲν ἐπίσταμαι ἀδικεῖσθαι. Laert. Arrian. apud Stobæum.

μεμύημαι. I am inſtructed] I am initiated, I am a young ſcholler, newly entred in this high point of heavenly learning of Chriſtian practice. I have entred into Religion, as it were, I have conſecrated my ſelf (the word is wondrous ſignificant) and am religiouſly taught it; I ſee it is a myſterie, but I have got the maſterie of it.

To ſuffer want] Either patiently to wait for what I deſire, or contentedly to want what God denieth.

Verſe 13. I can do all things] A Chriſtian walks about the world like a Conqueror, having power given him over all, Revel. 2.26.27. It was a vain brag of that Heathen Prince, that cauſed it to be engraven upon his Tomb-ſtone, πάντα ποιῶν ἐδυνάμην, I could do all things. None can ſay ſo, but the man in Chriſt. Without whom alſo he himſelf can do nothing, Joh. 15.5. Suffer nothing, as the word here uſed properly ſignifieth.

Cyrus Major. Arrian.

ἰσχύω.

Verſe 14. Ye have well done] For hereby as you have ſealed up your love to me, and engaged me to pray for you (as for Oneſiphorus, 2 Tim. 1.18.) ſo you have gotten a good teſtimony to your ſelves that ye are members of Chriſts myſtical body. The tongue is far enough from the toe, the heel from the head; yet when the toe or heel is hurt, the reſt of the members ſympathize and ſeek help for it. So here.

Verſe 15. But ye only] One poor Philippian ſhamed a hundred cloſe-fiſted Corinthians. Araunah gave like a King, 2 Sam. 24. 23. and is therefore crowned and chronicled, Zechary 9.7. Ekron ſhall be as the Jebuſite, that is, as this famous Jebuſite Araunah, that parted with his Free-hold for pious uſes.

Tremel.

Verſe 16. Ye ſent once and again] Charities fountain runs freſh, Mare perennis aqua, and is never dried up. The liberal man deviſeth liberal things, & holdeth that only his own, that he hath given to others. Hoc habeo quodcunque dedi, ſaith Seneca. De ben. l. 6. c. 3.

Verſe 17. Not becauſe I deſire a gift] As thoſe Cormorants that with ſhame do love, Give ye, Hoſ. 4.18. as if they could ſpeak no other but the Dorick Dialect, the horſe-leeches language. S. Paul was none of theſe.

That may abound to your account] For God keeps an exact account of every peny laid out upon him and his, that he may requite it: and his retributions are more then bountiful.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 18. I have all] viz, That you ſent, and I give you an acquittance, which the Greeks, from the word here uſed, call Απέχω. Compare Prov. 3. 27. ἀπέχω.

I abound, I am full] As a bird with a little eye, and the advantage of a wing to ſoar with, may ſee far wider then an Ox with a greater; ſo the righteous with a little eſtate, joyned with faith and devotion, may feel more comfort, and ſee more of Gods bounty, then one of vaſt poſſeſſions, whoſe heart cannot lift it ſelf above the earth. They ſay, it is not the great cage that maketh the bird ſing. Sure we are, it is not the great eſtate that brings alway the inward joy, the cordial contentment. A ſtaff may help a Traveller, but a bundle of ſtaves may be a burthen to him. The greateſt thing in the leaſt compaſs, ſaith One, is a contented mind in a mans body: which if a man have, delicioſius vivit etiam is qui terruntium non habet, quàm ſi in unum hominem conflet ſexcentos Sardanapalos, he hath all things, though he want every thing.

Verſe 19. But my God] Whom I ſerve as an Ambaſſador in bonds, Epheſ. 6. 20. and therefore ſurely he will repay you the ſums you have ſent me.

Shall ſupply] Gr. Shall fill up, as he did the widows veſſels, ſhut the doors upon thee, ſaith the Prophet. It was time to ſhut the doors, when one little veſſel muſt overflow and fill up many greater. πληρώσει. 2 Kin. 4. 4.

According to his riches in glory] All Gods ſupplies to his, come tipt and gilt with a glory upon them, ſaith one: Providences below, Graces within, Heaven above: as they have a lovely ſcarlet bluſh of Chriſt blood upon them; ſo they are rayed upon with a beam of divine love to them that are in Chriſt.

Verſe 20. Now unto God] Paul cannot mention Gods bounty without a doxology.

Verſe 21. Every Saint] A great encouragement to the meaner, to be ſo reſpected.

Verſe 22. All the Saints ſalute you] Chriſtianity is no enemy to courteſie. Gods ſchollars are taught better manners then to neglect ſo much as ſalutations.

They that are of Cæſars houſhold] When Cæſar himſelf lived and dyed an unconverted caitiff, and a caſt-away. So did Seneca, for ought we can find by his writings, though ſome would have him to be here deſigned among the reſt. See the Note on Rom. 1. 18.

Verſe 23. The grace of our Lord] With this wiſh of grace, grace to them, he both begins and ends. Wiſdom is the principal thing. Prov. 4. 7.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

A COMMENTARY OR EXPOSITION Upon the Epiſtle of S. Paul to the Coloſsians.

Chap. I.

Verſe 1. Paul an Apoſtle, &c.]

THis golden Epiſtle is an Epitome, as it were, of that other to the Epheſians: like as that he writeth to the Galatians is an abſtract of that other to the Romans.

Verſe 2. Which are at Coloſs] A City in Phrygia, ſwallowed up by an earthquake not long after this Epiſtle was written. Gods judgements are ſometimes ſecret, but ever juſt. It may be that theſe Coloſſians being led away with the errour of thoſe falſe Teachers (who ſought to entangle them with many Phariſaical obſervations, and Philoſophical ſpeculations, Chap. 2.) had faln from their own ſtedfaſtneſs, had ſuffered an heart-quake, being ſhaken in mind, 2 Theſ. 2. 2. and were ſuck'd in by the Whirl-pool of divers and ſtrange doctrines, Heb. 13. 9. I affirm nothing, but God ſometimes ſpeaks from heaven againſt Hereticks; as he did againſt Arius, Neſtorius, Steven Langton, Steven Gardner, Arminius (who craftily revived the Pelagian hereſie) all which dyed miſerably: that I ſpeak not of thoſe two Monſters in New-England brought forth by Miſtris Hutchinſon, and Miſtris Dyer, and the fearful end that the former of theſe two women came to, being burnt with her family by the Salvages of that Countrey. Aliorum perditio tua ſit cautio. Chriſt will have all the Churches know, that he is jealous of his glory, and will revenge the quarrel of his Covenant. Thoſe Primitive Churches ſinned away their light, and are therefore now given up to darkneſs. Infatuati ſeducebantur, & ſeducti judicabantur, ſaith Auſtin: that is, being infatuated they were ſeduced; and being ſeduced, they were juſtly puniſhed: They were firſt overſpread with Arianiſm, and therefore now with Mahometiſm, which.

2 Pet. 2. 17. ἀναφεῖν.

Rev. 2. 23.

Melanct.

Digitized by Google

which is nothing else but Arii stercus, the ordure of Arius, as one rightly calleth it.

Verse 3. We give thanks ——praying, &c.] Prayer and Thanks (saith one) are like the double motion of the lungs; the ayr that is sucked in by prayer, is breathed out again by thanks.

Verse 4. And of the love, &c.] Faith in Christ Jesus maketh love to all the Saints. Therefore they go commonly coupled in Pauls Epistles. And therefore when the Disciples heard how oft they must forgive an offending brother, Lord increase our faith, say they, Luke 17.5. See the Note there.

Verse 5. For the hope] It is hope (saith an Interpreter here) that plucks up the heart of a man to a constant desire of union by faith with God, and of communion by love with man But by Hope, is here meant the object of hope.

Ἀξρόως δια τὶς πλάς ἀ-λη. Euseb. hist. l. 2. c. 3. Spec. Europ. Verse 6 As it is in all the world] Eusebius saith, That the Gospel spread at first thorow the world like a Sun-beam. The Reformation begun by Luther in Germany, went on abroad Christendom, as if it had been carried upon Angels wings. That of the Church of England is such as former ages despaired of, the present admireth, and the future shall stand amazed at. It is that miracle (saith one) which we are in these times to look for.

Verse 7. Who is for you a faithful Minister] Epaphras was their City-preacher: whom therefore the Apostle here so highly commendeth. Luther is much blamed by his best friends for opposing and disparaging Carolostadius among his own charge at Orlamund, anno 1524. A faithful Minister should have all good respect, afore his own people especially. Scultet. annal. page 230.

Verse 8. Who also declared unto us] His heart was over-joyed with his peoples forwardness, and he could not but impart it to the Apostle. It was a pride in Montanus to over ween his Pepuza and Tymium, two pelting Parishes not far from Colos, and to call them Jerusalem, as if they had been the onely Churches in the world. But this was a commendable practice of Epaphras to relate to S. Paul the good he found in his people, that he by an Epistle might further encourage and quicken them. Euseb. l. 5. c. 17.

Verse 9. In all wisdom and spiritual] See the Note on Ephes. 1.8. where you have the same expression. And indeed this Epistle hath many passages common with that, and seemeth to have been written soon after that. Cum adhuc quæ ad Ephesios scripserat, in animo hærerent, whiles the things that he had written to the Ephesians, were yet fresh in his mind and memory. Grotius.

Verse 10. That ye might walk worthy] By walking before God, with God, after God, according to God, as it is phrased in several Scriptures, all to one purpose. See the Note on Ephes. 4.1. Unto all pleasing: as Henoch walked with God, and thereby got this testimony, that he pleased God, Heb. 11.5. So David did all his wills, and was therefore a man after his heart. The many All's here used in these 9, 10, & 11. verses shew, that he that will please God must be a throughout Christian. Now he, and onely he is such, whose whole nature is elevated by the spirit of grace; and all whose principles, practices and aims are divine and supernatural. Acts 13.

Verse 11. And long-suffering with joyfulness] The joy of the Lord is the strength of the soul, Nehem. 8.10. as true gold comforts and strengthens the heart, that Alchymy doth not. At the death of Francis Gamba à Lombard, that suffered Martyrdom, the Fryers brought in their hands a cross for him to behold, to keep him from desperation at the feeling of the fire. But his mind, he said, was so repleni shed with joy and comfort in Christ, that he needed neither their cross nor them. Act and Mon. fol. 856.

Verse 12. Of the Saints in light] So that though cast into a dark dungeon, the Saints may clap their hands upon their bosomes as Oecolampadius upon his death-bed did, and say, Hic sat lucis, here within is plenty of divine light.

μετῳκίσεν. B. Davenant. Verse 13. And hath translated us] A word taken from those that plant Colonies, and cause the people to translate their dwellings into another Countrey.

From the power of darkness] Every natural man is under the power of darkness, nay of the Devil, Acts 26.18. as the malefactor that goes bound and pinioned up the ladder, is under the power of the executioner. Imagine (saith one) a man driven out of the light by Devils; where he should see nothing but his tormentors, and that he were made to stand upon snares and grins with iron teeth ready to strike up, and grinde him to pieces, and

Digitized by Google

and that he had gall poured down to his belly, and an instrument raking in his bowels, and the pains of a travelling woman upon him, and a hideous noise of horror in his ears, and a great Giant with a spear running upon his neck, and a flame burning upon him round about. Alas, alas, this is the estate of every one that is out of Christ, as these places shew, whence these comparisons are taken, Job 18. 7, 8. & 20. 24, 15. & 15. 20, 21, 26, 30.

Verse 14. Even the forgiveness, &c.] See the Note on Mat. 1. 21. Sin is the greatest evil; as that which sets us furthest from God the chiefest good; and as that which procureth and imbittereth all other evils that befall us. Christ therefore redeemeth his Israel from their iniquities: he crosseth out of Gods debt-book the black lines of their sins with the red lines of his own blood; and so redeemeth his Israel out of all their troubles, Psal. 25. 22. Psal. 130. 8.

Verse 15. Who is the image] The express image of his person, Heb. 1. 2. Milk is not so like milk, as this Son is like the Father. By whom also God (otherwise invisible) is manifested to us. And here, he that would see God must set the eyes of Faith upon the manhood of Christ: for he that seeth the Son, seeth the Father. When a man looketh into a Chrystal-glass, it casteth no reflex to him: but put steel upon the back of it, it will cast a reflex. So put the Humanity (as a back of Steel) to the glass of the God-head, and it casteth a comfortable reflex to us. As without this, if we look upon God, we see indeed some small sparks of his glory, to terrifie and amaze us: but in Christ (God and Man) we behold the lively and express face of God; not any more as a fearfull and terrible Judge, but a most gracious and loving Father to comfort and refresh us.

The first born of every creature] As being begotten of the substance of the Father after a wonderfull manner before all beginnings, and as being the Heir of all his Fathers goods. And so this Text is parallel to that Heb. 1. 2.

Verse 16. For by him were all things] This is an high praise to Christ, Rev. 4. 11. See the Note on Joh. 1. 3.

Whether they be thrones or dominions] i.e. Angels with their several degrees or dignities. But what difference there is between these four words, let them tell us that are able (saith Austin) so they prove what they tell us: for my part, I confess I know it not.

Verse 17. By him all things consist] They would soon fall asunder, had not Christ undertaken to uphold the shattered condition thereof, by the word of his power.

Verse 18. And he is the head] See the Note on Ephesians 1. 22. Angels are under Christ as an head of Government, of influence, of confirmation, not of redemption, as we. Elton.

The first-born from the dead] sc. of those that rise to eternal life. Others rose, but to die again, and by vertue of his Resurrection; as the first-born among the Jews communicated his good things to his brethren.

Verse 19. In him should all fulness] in a vessel or treasury an emptiness may follow a fulness: not so here. See the Note on Joh. 1. 14.

Verse 20. To reconcile all things] That is, all the Saints, who are worth all, better then all, more worth then a world of wicked men, Heb. 11. 38. The Jews have a saying, That those seventy souls that went with Jacob into Egypt, were as much as all the seventy Nations in the world. What account God maketh of them in comparison of others, See Isa. 43. 3, 4.

Verse 21. Enemies in your minde] Haters of God, Rom. 1. 30. and so, God-slayers, 1 Joh. 3. 15. Omne peccatum est Deicidium.

Verse 22. To present you holy and unblameable] By his righteousness imputed and imparted; though most Interpreters expound this Text of Sanctification, and not of Justification or future perfection.

Verse 23. If ye continue in the faith] All the Promises are made to perseverance in grace. He that continueth to the end shall be saved. Be faithfull to the death, and thou shalt have a crown of life. But fugitivo nulla corona; If any withdraw, he falleth into hell-mouth. Heb. 10. ult. Mat. 24. Rev. 2.

Grounded and setled] When faith bears fruit upward, it will take root downward, and make a man as a tree by the rivers side, and not as the chaff in the fan, Ps. 1. 3, 4. or as the boat without ballast.

Digitized by Google

Preached to every creature] That is, to every reaſonable creature, Mar. 16. 15. Though to many we preach to no more purpoſe then Bede did, when he preached to an heap of ſtones: theſe are unreaſonable creatures, 2 Theſ. 3. 2.

ὑστερήματα, non περιτρήματα. Βρταναπλη ὦ. Vicisſim rurſum impleo.

Verſe 24. And fill up that which is behinde] Chriſt ſuffered much for Paul; it is but meet therefore that Paul ſhould ſuffer ſomewhat for Chriſt. All our troubles are but the ſlivers and chips, as it were, of his croſs. When the Jews offered our Saviour gall and vineger, he taſted it, but would not drink. He left the reſt for his Church, and they muſt pledge him, not to expiate ſin, but for their trial and exerciſe.

Of the afflictions of Chriſt] That is (ſay ſome) of the Church; the afflictions whereof are ſaid to be the afflictions of Chriſt, by reaſon of the ſympathy between the head and the Members, Act. 9. 4. 2 Cor. 1. 5. Heb. 11. 26.

For his bodies ſake] For the confirmation of mens minds in the truth of the Goſpel.

Verſe 25. According to the diſpenſation] What a horrid blaſphemy therefore is that of the Jeſuites, who ſtick not to tell the people in their Pulpits, That S. Paul was not ſecure of his preaching, but by conference with S. Peter, nor that he durſt publiſh his Epiſtles, till S. Peter had allowed them!

Spec. Europ.

Verſe 26. But now is made manifeſt] God hath now opened his whole heart to his Saints. See the Note on Rom. 6. 25. and on Mat. 4. 16.

Rev. 11. 3.

Verſe 27. The hope of glory] All the Saints are ſaid to worſhip in the altar, becauſe they place all their hope of life in Chriſts death alone.

Verſe 28. Whom we preach] Miniſters do not only preach of Chriſt, but preach Chriſt, that is, they give what they ſpeak of. As the Manna came down in the dew; ſo doth the ſpirit in the Miniſtery of the Goſpel.

Verſe 29. I alſo labour, ſtriving] Labour to laſſitude, ſtrive even to an agony. Good Miniſters are great pains-takers: and God that helped the Levites to bear the Ark, 1 Chron. 15. 26. will help his ſervants by his ſpirit, working in them with power.

Chap. II.

Verſe 1. For I would that ye knew]

Little do moſt men know what unceſſant care and pains their faithful Miniſters take for their ſouls health. But we would they ſhould know it, and know thoſe that labour among them, and are over them in the Lord, and to eſteem them very highly in love, for their works ſake, 1 Theſ. 5. 12, 13.

Verſe 2. That their hearts may be comforted] Miniſters are ſons of conſolation, whiles by them God maketh the heart to hear of joy and gladneſs, Pſal. 51. 8. and createth the fruit of their lips peace, peace, &c. Iſa. 57. 19.

Being knit together] No ſuch comfort upon the earth, as in the communion of Saints; it differeth from the happineſs of heaven, but in degrees only.

Of the full aſſurance of underſtanding] Such as was that of S. Luke, chap. 1. 3. See the Note there.

Verſe 3. In whom are hid] What ſo great a matter is it then if we be obſcured, and our good parts not ſo noticed? Uſq; adeone Scire tuum nihil eſt? &c. Chriſt was content his treaſures ſhould be hid. In maxima ſui mole ſe minimum oſtendam ſtellæ.

Perſ.

All the treaſures of wiſdom] Out of Chriſt then there is no true wiſdom or ſolid comfort to be found. The depth ſaith, It is not in me, and the ſea ſaith, It is not with me, Job 28. 14. The worlds wizards cannot help us to it, Jer. 8. 9. Neſcio quomodo imbecillior eſt medicina quàm morbus, ſaith Cicero concerning all Philoſophical comforts: The meditine is too weak for the diſeaſe. And as for wiſdom, that of the fleſh ſerves the worldling (as the Oſtrich wings) to make him out-run others upon earth, and in earthly things; but helps him never a whit toward Heaven. Since the Fall, every man hath principium læſum, his brain-pan crackt (as to heavenly things) neither can he recover but by getting into Chriſt.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verse 4. With entising words] With probable and perswasible speeches. It is not safe for simple men to hear Hereticks: for though they may think themselves able enough to answer them, yet they have a notable faculty of perswading the credulous and less cautelous. The Valentinian-Hereticks had an art to perswade before they taught. The locusts have faces like women. In the year 497. Pope Anastasius the second, seeking to reduce the Heretick Acacius, was seduced by him. πιθανολογία. Tertull.

Verse 5. Your order, and the stedfastness] Faith and order, that is, doctrine and discipline, saith one. These two make the Church fair as the Moon, clear as the Sun, and terrible as an Army with banners, Cant 6 10.

The stedfastness of your faith] Gr. The firmament of your faith. As in the first Creation, so in the new Creature there is first the light of knowledge: Secondly, The firmament of Faith: Thirdly, Repentant tears and worthy fruits, as seas and trees, &c. στήριγμα.

Verse 6. So walk ye in him] Continue well-affected, as ye were at your first conversion: fall not from your own stedfastness, 2 Pet. 3.17. Happy is he that can say in a spiritual sense (as it was said of Moses) that after long profession of Religion his sight is not waxed dim, nor his natural strength abated.

Verse 7. Abounding therein with thanksgiving] Thankfulness for smaller measures of grace, gets more. Efficacissimum genus est rogandi, gratias agere. Plin. Panegyr.

Verse 8. Lest any man spoil you] A Metaphor either from sheep-stealers or plunderers. Seducers plunder men of their precious souls. They take them prisoners, 2 Tim. 3.6. They make merchandize of them, 2 Pet. 2.3. or bring them into bondage, smiting them on the face, 2 Cor. 11.20. Constantius the Emperor suspecting Julians proneness to Paganism, sent him to be carefully grounded in Christianity to Nicomedia; But he frequented by stealth the company of Libanius and Jamblichus the Philosophers, who warped him wholly to their bent; which brake out afterwards. Συλαγωγῶν.

Through Philosophy] In the year of Christ 220. the Artemonites, a certain kinde of Hereticks, corrupted Scripture out of Aristotle and Theophrastus, turning all into Questions, as afterwards the Schoolmen also did, that evil generation of dung-hill Divines, as one calleth them. Tertullian not unfitly saith, That the Philosophers were the Patriarchs of the Hereticks. Not but that there is an excellent and necessary use of Philosophy, truly so called: but the Apostle meaneth it of their idle speculations and vain deceits, those airy nothings, as the Apostle expounds himself. See the Note on Rom. 1.21,22.

And not after Christ] The Gentiles then could not be saved by their Philosophy without Christ. And yet not only the Divines of Cullen, set forth a book concerning the salvation of Aristotle, whom they called Christs fore-runner in naturals, as John Baptist was in supernaturals: but also some of the School-doctors, grave men (saith Acosta) do promise men salvation without the knowledge of Christ. Agrippa. Bilaus.

Verse 9. All the fulness of the Godhead bodily] That is, Essentially, not in Clouds and Ceremonies, as once between the Cherubims, which the Jews called Shechinah; whereunto the Apostle here alludeth.

Verse 10. And ye are compleat] Ye have that true happiness of a man, which Philosophers hunted after in the thicket of earthly vanities, and lost themselves in the chase. Varro makes report of 288. several opinions that they had about this subject, and were out in all, whilest they caught at the shadow of fruits in a hedge of thorns, but could not come at the tree of life, Christ Jesus, in whom we are compleat.

Verse 11. Made without hands] Oh how honorable (saith an Interpreter) is the work of mortification, even as to make those huge heavens, &c.

By the circumcision of Christ] Which circumciseth our hearts, pulling off that wretched fore-skin.

Verse 12. Buried with him in baptism] Which succeedeth in the place of circumcision, and is also to us a seal of the righteousness of Faith, Rom. 4.11. There were (saith One) many ceremonies in Baptism used in the Primitive Church, viz. putting off old clothes, drenching in water, so as to seem to be buried in it, putting on new clothes at their coming out; to which Paul alludeth in these two verses.

Of the operation of God] In the work of Faith God putteth forth the same Almighty power that he did in raising Christ from the dead, Ephes. 1.19,20. See the Note on that Text.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 13. And you being dead] See the Note on *Epheſ.*2.1.

Hath he quickned] The firſt ſpringing in the womb of grace is precious before God.

Verſe 14. Blotting out the hand-writing] Croſſing out the black lines of our ſins, with the red lines of his Sons blood.

Verſe 15. He made a ſhew of them] A plain alluſion to the Roman triumphs. See the Note on *Epheſ.*4.8. Chriſt made the devils a publike ſpectacle of ſcorn and deriſion, as Tamerlane did Bajazet the great Turk, whom he ſhut up in an iron Cage made like a grate, in ſuch ſort, as that he might on every ſide be ſeen: and ſo carried him up and down, as he paſſed thorow Aſia, to be of his own people ſcorned and derided, &c.

Turk. Hiſt. 210.

Verſe 16. Let no man therefore judge you] That is, Set not up any ſuch for a Judge over your conſciences: Or, if any uſurp ſuch an authority, ſlight him, according to that *Gal.*5.1. Periculoſum eſt in divinis rebus ut quis cedat jure ſuo, ſaith Cyprian. In things of God we ſhould be tender of our liberty.

Cypr. de bon. baptiz.

Verſe 17. Which are a ſhadow] And ſo a ſign of Chriſt, obſcurely and imperfectly repreſenting him to the old Church, and now aboliſhed by his coming in the fleſh. In the twelfth year of our Saviours age (the ſame year wherein he taught in the Temple, *Luk.*2.) the Sanctuary was polluted by the caſting about the bones of dead men thorow every part and porch thereof, at the very Feaſt of the Paſsover in the night time. This Joſephus ſaith was done by the Samaritans, out of hatred to the Jewiſh ſervices. But God had ſurely a ſpecial hand in it, to ſhew that people, that thoſe ſhadows were to vaniſh, now that Chriſt the body was come and ſhewed himſelf.

Verſe 18. Let no man beguil you] Gr. Brave it over you. Confer Exod. 8.9. Glory over me, Gloriam aſſume ſupra me, as thou haſt done over thy Sorcerers; I give thee this liberty. See alſo *Judg.*7.2. *Iſa.*10.15.

Βραβευέτω. Tremel.

In a voluntary humility] A proud humility. They would not dare to worſhip God, but Angels, &c. yet were vainly puffed up by their fleſhly minds. And ſomething like this was that of the Baptiſt in refuſing to waſh Chriſt, and of Peter in refuſing to be waſhed by him, *Joh.*13.8.

And worſhipping of Angels] Setting them up as Papiſts do, for Mediators of interceſſion. Let not us acknowledge any other Maſter of Requeſts in heaven, but Chriſt alone, 1 *Joh.*2.1. But what a piece of knavery is that in Surius and Caranza, who rendring that paſſage of the Laodicean Council, chap.35. ὐ δεῖ Χριστιανὺς Ἀγγέλους ὀνομάζειν, Chriſtians may not pray to Angels; they make the words to be, Non oportet Chriſtianos ad angulos Congregationes facere. Chriſtians may not be corner-creepers: And the title they make, De iis qui angulos colunt, Of thoſe that worſhip (not Angels, but) corners; againſt all ſenſe. What? will they put out the eyes of Gods people? as he ſaid, Numb. 16.14. Or do they not rather, Feſtucam quærere unde oculos ſibi ernant, as Bernard hath it, Seek ſtraws to put out their own eyes withall.

ἐμβατεύων.

Intruding into thoſe things] Or invading thoſe things, &c. blinde and bold, buſie about ſuch matters, as whereof there is neither proof nor profit. Of this ſort of ſeducers was that daring Dionyſius, that writeth ſo confidently of the heavenly Hierarchy: The Schoolmen alſo with their curious ſpeculations and new niceties, as Scotellus, and others.

Vainly puffed up by his fleſhly minde] Corruption is the mother of pride, as the devil the father. He is the King of all the children of pride, Iob 41.34.

Verſe 19. And not holding the head] This is worſe then all the former, that they deſpoiled Chriſt of his dignity: as if he alone were not ſufficient to cheriſh and encreaſe his Church.

With the encreaſe of God] That proceeds from God, that is, from the Spirit of Chriſt the head: To which growth is oppoſed that vain puffing up, *verſ.*18. whereby men do not increaſe, but ſwell. Grow bigger indeed, but weaker, as a gouty hand.

Verſe 20. Are ye ſubject to ordinances] Why do ye dogmatize: or be burdened with Rites or Traditions, as they now are in the Papacy? John Aunt a Roman Catholike, in his humble appeal to King James, in the ſixth chapter of that Pamphlet, thus blaſphemeth God. The God of the Proteſtants (whom he knows to be the Father, Son, and holy Ghoſt) is the moſt uncivil and evil-manner'd God of all thoſe who have born the D Sheldons Mark of the beaſt. ep. dedic.

Digitized by Google

the names of God upon earth; yea, worse then Pan, God of the Clowns, which can endure no Ceremonies nor good manners at all.

Verse 21. Touch not, taste not, &c.] The words of those impostors, which are here mimetically, or by way of imitation related. See the like Eccles. 10.14. where the Wiseman graphically describeth the fools tautologies, A man cannot tell what shall be, and What shall be, Who can tell? As for the sense; an excellent Textman gives it thus: Touch not, viz. a woman, 1 Cor. 7.1. Taste not; viz. Meat. Handle not; viz. Money, meddle not with secular contracts. This was that holy hypocrisie practiced by these ancient seducers, and still commended by the Popish Padres to their Novices, and that with much eagerness, Touch not, taste not, handle not, without a copulative. The Cappucin Fryers at this day may not take or touch silver. This mettal is as very Anathema to these, as the wedge of gold to Achan, at the offer whereof they start back, as Moses from the Serpent; yet they have ever a boy with them, that takes and carries it, and never complains of either mettal or measure. In the year of Grace, 1453. John Capistranus a Minoritie, was sent by Pope Nicholas into Germany, and other Countreys, to preach and perswade obedience to the See of Rome: and that he might win authority to his doctrine, he strictly forbad feasting and sporting, and other civil exercises, lawful to be used: by which holy hypocrisie (as they call it) he gained the reputation of a very pious man, when he was nothing less. But these things have a shew of wisdom in neglecting the body, &c. and silly souls are much taken with such shews, as children are with gawdes and gugaws. D. Sclater. D. Hall. cp. 5. decad. 1 Funccius.

Verse 22. Which all are to perish] The very daily perishing of food and rayment, are types of thy perishing also, saith a Divine.

Verse 23. And neglecting of the body] Gr. Not sparing of it, as the old and new Baalites, those Flagellantes: and those also amongst us (good otherwise) that pinch their bodies too much with penury or excessive fasting, are blame-worthy. The body is the souls servant, and that it may be Par negotio, neither supra nor infra negotium, it must have due honor and nourishment. Aquinas.

Chap. III.

Verse 1. If ye then be risen with Christ]

As ye profess to be, Chap. 2.12.

Seek those things, &c.] As Christ risen spake, and did onely the things pertaining to the Kingdom of God, Acts 1.3. and waited alway for his exaltation into heaven. There should be continual ascensions in our hearts: the Church is compared to pillars of smoak, Elationibus fumi, Cant. 3.6. as having her affections, thoughts, desires upward, heaven-ward. Tremel.

Verse 2. Set your affections on things] Things above out-last the days of heaven, and run parallel with the life of God, and line of eternity. Things on earth are mutable and momentary, subject to vanity and violence: when we grasp them most greedily, we embrace nothing but smoak, which wrings tears from our eyes, and vanisheth into nothing. Here then the Wisemans question takes place, Wilt thou set thine eyes upon that that is not? Wilt thou rejoyce in a thing of nought? Most people are nailed to the earth, as Sisera was by Jael; they go bowed downward, as that woman in the Gospel that had a spirit of infirmity, and was bound by Satan; they strive (with the Toad) who shall dye with most earth in their mouthes. Surely the saying of that Roman General to the Souldier that kept the tents, when he should have been fighting in the field, Non amo nimium diligentes, I like not those that are thus over-busie, will be used of God, if when he calls us to seek after, and set our affections upon the things above, we are wholly taken up about things of an inferiour alloy. Cor (camera omnipotentis regis) the heart of man is an inverted Pyramis, narrow below, almost sharpened to a point, that it might touch the earth no more then needs must: and broad above, to receive the influence of heaven. But surely, as we use to say of a top, the keen point of it is toward Prov. 23.5. Amos 6.13.

the

Digitized by Google

the earth, but it is flat and dull enough toward heaven: ſo are moſt mens affections. My brethren, theſe things ought not ſo to be, as S. James ſpeaketh in another caſe. Our ſouls ſhould be like a ſhip, which is made little and narrow downward, but more wide and broad upward.

And not on things on earth] Set not thine heart upon the Aſſes, ſaid Samuel to Saul, ſith the deſire of all Iſrael is to thee: ſo, ſet not your affections on outward things, ſith better things abide you. It is not for you to be fiſhing for Gudgeons, but for Towns, Forts and Caſtles, ſaid Cleopatra to M. Antony. So neither is it for ſuch as hope for heaven to be taken up about trifles: as Domitian ſpent his time in catching flies, and Artaxerxes in making hafts for knives. There is a generation of Terrigenæ fratres, whoſe names are written in the earth, Jer. 17. 13. called the inhabitants of the earth, Rev. 12. 12. in oppoſition to the Saints and heirs of heaven. Theſe may with the Athenians give for their badge the Graſhopper, which is bred, liveth and dyeth in the ſame ground, and though ſhe hath wings, yet flieth not: ſometimes ſhe hoppeth upwards a little, but falleth to the ground again. So here. Or at beſt, they are but like the Eagle, which ſoars aloft, not for any love of heaven; her eye is all the while upon the prey, which by this means ſhe ſpies ſooner, and ſeizeth upon better.

Verſe 3. For ye are dead] Crucified to the world, as Paul, Gal. 6. 14. weaned as a child from the breaſts, or rather botches of the world, as David, Pſal 131. 1. Dead alſo in regard of daily miſeries, Iſa. 26. 19. 1 Cor 15. 31.

And your life is hid] As the pearl is hid, till the ſhell be broken. Or as the life of flowers in winter is hid in the root; or as God hid Chriſt under the Carpenters ſon.

Verſe 4. Then ſhall we appear] What then do we loading our ſelves with thick clay, or moiling our ſelves here, as muck-worms?

Verſe 5. Mortifie therefore] Sin hath a ſtrong heart, and will not be done to death, but with much ado. Peccata ſæpè raduntur, ſed non eradicantur. Something is done about ſins, little againſt them: as artificial juglers ſeem to wound themſelves, but do not; or as Players ſeem to thruſt themſelves thorow their bodies, but the ſword paſſeth onely thorow their cloathes. Some part with ſin, as Jacob did with Benjamin, becauſe otherwiſe he ſhould ſtarve; or as Phaltiel did with Michal, leſt he ſhould loſe his head; but to caſt it away becauſe it is offenſivum Dei, & averſivum à Deo, an offence againſt God, and a breach of his Law, this is mortification: this is more then to have Seraphical knowledge and Cherubinical affections in any duty. This (ſaith a Father) is the hardeſt Text in all the Bible, and the hardeſt task in all Chriſtianity that we can go about: but hard or not hard, it muſt be done, or we are undone, and check muſt be given to our corruptions, though full mate we cannot give.

Covetouſneſs, which is idolatry] For it robs God of (his flower) his truſt, and draws a man away from all the Commandments, Pſal. 119. 36. See the Note on Epheſ. 5. 5.

Verſe 6. On the children of diſobedience] Unperſwadable, uncounſellable perſons, that regard not good courſes or diſcourſes.

Verſe 7. When ye lived in them] Mans life is a walk, and each action a ſtep either to heaven or hell.

Verſe 8. Filthy communication] The Devils drivel. See the Note on Epheſ. 5. 4.

Verſe 9. Lye not one to another] No not in jeſt, leſt ye go to hell in earneſt. See the Note on Epheſ. 4. 25.

Ariſt. hiſt. animal. l. 8. Ye have put off the old man] As the Serpent doth his ſlough, the Eagle his bill, the Lizard his skin in Spring and Autumn.

Verſe 10. After the image] If moral vertue could be beheld with mortal eyes, ſaith the Philoſopher, it would ſtir up wonderful loves of it ſelf. How much more would the image of God in the hearts of his people? See the Note on Epheſ. 4. 24.

Of him that created him] Adam and Eve were not then created ſimple and ſtupid, and without the uſe of reaſon; elſe they would not have been ſo deceived; as the Rabbins, and, after them, the Socinians have dreamed.

Verſe 11. Chriſt is all, and in all] Not onely in the hearts of men, but in all things elſe, ὁ πάντα, in the neuter gender. This ſecond Adam hath filled all things again: neither is there any thing elſe required to juſtification and ſalvation.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 12. As the elect of God, holy and beloved] Therefore holy, becauſe elect, and therefore beloved, becauſe holy; as Gods name is holy, and therefore reverend, Pſal. 111.9. God choſe his for his love, and now loves them for his choice.

Bowels of mercies] Draw out thy ſoul as well as thy ſheaf to the hungry, Iſa. 58.10. Steep thy thoughts in the mercies of God (ſaith one) and they will dye thine, as the dye-fat doth the cloth.

Humbleneſs of minde] Even to be content to be trampled upon, as the word ſignifyeth; or to be laid as low as earth, as Paul, Phil. 4.12. to have a low minde in an high converſation, as Athanaſius. Humility is the vail of a Chriſtian, that maketh the bride look moſt lovely. ταπεινὸς, quaſi πεδεινὸς, vel ἐδαφεινὸς. ὑψηλὸς εἶναι ταπεινὸν φρόνημα.

Verſe 13. If a man have a quarrel] Occaſions will be given, and offences will fall out. Now it is the glory of a man to paſs over a tranſgreſſion. See 1 Sam. 10.27. And to forgive where there is juſt cauſe of complaint: If no quarrel, no thank. Prov. 19 11.

Verſe 14. Above all theſe] Put on love, as the upper garment, the party-coloured coat whereby all Gods children are known (as Joſeph, and Tamar, Davids daughter, were) the cogniſance of every true Chriſtian, Joh. 13.35. See the Note there.

The bond of perfectneſs] Or the couple, the juncture, the tye: as the curtains of the Tabernacle were joyned by loops: ſo are all true Chriſtians by love. σύνδεσμος.

Verſe 15. And let the peace of God rule] Sit certaminis Moderator; let it rule after the manner of a Moderator, or an umpire: Let it overſee and over-rule in all your perſonal diſcords. Or (as others ſenſe it) let it carry away the prize, or diſtribute the garlands. βραβευέτω.

And be ye thankful] ſc. To thoſe that are courteous and beneficial to you. Ingratum dixeris, omnia dixeris. Lycurgus would make no Law againſt unthankfulneſs, becauſe he could not think there could be any ſuch evil committed. If there be any ſin in the world againſt the holy Ghoſt (ſaid Q. Elizabeth in a letter to Hen. 4. of France) it is ingratitude. This (ſaith one) is a monſter in nature, a ſoleciſm in good manners, a paradox in divinity, a parching wind to dam up the fountain of divine and humane favors. Arbor bonoretur cuius nos umbra tuetur. Camden. Ventus urens & exiccans.

Verſe 16. Dwell in you richly] Indwell in you, as an ingrafted word, incorporated into your ſouls; ſo concocted and digeſted by you, as that you turn it in ſuccum & ſanguinem, into a part of your ſelves. This is your riches: and thus David reckons of his wealth, Pſal. 119.32. ἐνοικείτω. πλουσίως.

Teaching and admoniſhing one another] It is rightly obſerved by a late Reverend Writer, That although we know that which we ask of others, as well as they do: yet good ſpeeches will draw us to know it better, by giving occaſion to ſpeak more of it; wherewith the Spirit works more effectually, and imprints it deeper, ſo that it ſhall be a more rooted knowledge then before. For that doth good, that is graciouſly known; and that is graciouſly known, that the Spirit ſeals upon our ſouls. D. Sibbs on Cant. 5.

In Pſalms and hymns] Papiſts forbid people to ſing Pſalms, and permit only Quiriſters to ſing, leſt the muſick ſhould be marred. But the Apoſtle biddeth every Saint to ſing. And Nicephorus writeth, that the Chriſtians of his time, even as they travelled and journeyed, were wont to ſing Pſalms. Tatianus alſo ſaith, That every age and order among the Chriſtians were Chriſtian Philoſophers; yea that the very virgins and maids, as they ſat at their work in wool, were wont to ſpeak of Gods Word. Binnius. Hiſt. Eccl. l. 3. cap. 37.

With grace in your hearts] This is the beſt tune to any Pſalm.

Verſe 17. Do all in the Name] By the warrant of his word, and with an aim to his glory. For his ſake and ſervice; and to Gods acceptance, through Chriſts aſſiſtance.

Verſe 18. Wives, ſubmit your ſelves] Inferiors are ordered before Superiors, to teach them to do duty before they expect it. Love deſcendeth, duty aſcendeth. Submit is a ſhort word, but of large extent. It comprehendeth, 1. Reverence; Let the wife ſee that ſhe reverence her husband. Eph. 5.33. as Sarah did, and is chronicled for it, 1 Pet. 3.6. But God hath a barren womb for mocking Michal. 2. Obedience to all his lawful commands and reſtraints, as the Shunamite, 2 Kin. 4.22, and the Shulamite, who lives by Chriſts Laws, and yields to his will, direction and diſcretion.

As it is fit] Ut decet, as it is comely; and women love comelineſs, delight to be neat. Hereby Wives ſhall appear comely, firſt to God, 1 Pet. 3.4. Next to men in the gate, Prov. 31.23,31. Thirdly to their husbands and children, Prov. 31.28. Fourthly, to all, even oppoſites, as being an ornament to ſincerity and holineſs, Tit. 2.3.

In

Digitized by Google

In the Lord] Though the husbands will be crooked (ſo it be not wicked) the wives will is not ſtraight in Gods ſight, if not pliable to his. Sed liberum arbitrium, pro quo tantoperè contenditur, viri amiſerunt, uxores arripuerunt, ſaith an Author.

Verſe 19. Husbands love your wives] He ſaith not, Rule over them, Subdue them if they will not ſubmit, but love them, and ſo win them to your will: make their yoke as eaſie as may be, for they ſtand on even ground with you, as yoke-fellows, though they draw on the left ſide. Yet is ſhe thy companion, and the wife of thy covenant, Mal.2.14. He therefore that is free may frame his choice to his minde: but he that hath choſen, muſt frame his heart to his choice.

Uxorem vir amato, marito pareat uxor:
Conjugis illa ſui cor, caput ille ſuæ.

And be not bitter againſt them] Nothing akin to Nabal, to thoſe Caldeans, a bitter and furious Nation, or to that ſtar, *Rev.*8.11. called wormwood, that imbittered the third part of the waters. The Heathen when they ſacrificed at their marriage-feaſts, uſed to caſt the gall of the beaſt ſacrificed out [of doors; to ſignifie that married Couples ſhould be as Doves without gall. Vipera virus ob venerationem nuptiarum evomit, ſaith Baſil. The Viper, going to copulate, vomiteth up her venome; and will not thou, for the honour of Marriage, lay aſide thy bitterneſs, and boiſterous behaviour?

Plut. *prac. coning. Hexaem. hom.*7.

Verſe 20. In all things] Vultu ſæpè læditur pietas. See the Note on *Eph.*6.1.

Verſe 21. Provoke not your children] See the Note on Epheſ. 6.4.

Ἀθυμῶσιν. Leſt they be diſcouraged] Diſpirited, and thorow deſpondency grow deſperate in their reſolutions.

μὴ ἐν ὀφθαλμοδουλείαις. Verſe 22. Not with eye ſervice] See the Note on *Eph.*6.5,6. It is in the original, Not with eye-ſervices in the plural; to ſhew that do they never ſo much ſervice, yet if not in ſincerity, all's loſt.

Fearing God] That hath power to caſt body and ſoul to hell: Fear him more then you do your Maſters, that have power over the fleſh only.

Verſe 23. Do it heartily, as to the Lord] This is to make a vertue of neceſſity, whiles in ſerving men, we ſerve the Lord Chriſt, going about our earthly buſineſſes with heavenly minds, with not only an habitual, but an actual intention, as much as may be, of glorifying God in all.

Verſe 24. The reward of inheritance] And ſo be made of ſervants ſons, whoſe it is to inherit.

For ye ſerve the Lord Chriſt] Whiles godlineſs runneth thorow your whole lives, as the woof doth thorow the web, and you ſeek to approve your ſelves to Chriſt in all your actions and employments.

Verſe 25. But he that doth wrong] Be it but by not doing right to poor ſervants, which in thoſe days were bond-ſlaves. Note here (ſaith an Interpreter) the Apoſtles candour: he was not of the humor of Lawyers that ſeldom ſpeak much, but for great men, or when they may have great gifts, &c.

Chap. IV.

Verſe 1. That which is juſt and equal]

SEE they muſt, both to the well chuſing, and the well uſing of their ſervants.

Ye alſo have a maſter] Eccl.5.8. There be higher then they: and wherein they deal proudly, God is above them, *Exod.*18.11.

προσκαρτερεῖτε. Verſe 2. Continue in prayer] Conſtant and inſtant in it, wait upon it, lay all aſide for it (as the word ſignifieth, *Act.*6.2.) while prayer ſtands ſtill, the trade of godlineſs ſtands ſtill.

And watch in the ſame] Againſt dulneſs of ſpirit, drowſineſs of body, Satanical ſuggeſtions, ſecular diſtractions, &c.

With thankſgiving] Have your thanks ready, for you are ſure to ſpeed.

Verſe 3. Withall, praying alſo for us] See the Note on *Eph.*6.19. By the word a door is opened into heaven.

Verſe 4. As I ought to ſpeak] As every ſound is not muſick: ſo neither is every Pulpit-diſcourſe a Sermon.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verse 5. Walk in wisdom] Neither giving offence carelesly, nor taking offence causlesly.

Redeeming the time] Opportunities are headlong, and must be timously laid hold on, or all's lost. See the Note on Eph. 5. 16. It is said of Hooper the Martyr, that he was spare of diet, sparer of words, and sparest of time. Latimer rose usually at two of the clock in a morning to his study. Bradford slept not commonly above four hours in the night; and in his bed, till sleep came, his book went not out of his hand. He counted that hour not well spent, wherein he did not some good, either with his pen, tongue, or study. These Worthies well weighed what a modern Writer hath well observed, That they that lose time are the greatest losers and wastfullest Prodigals. For of all other possessions two may be had together, but two moments of time (much less two opportunities of time) cannot be possest together. Acts and Mon. fol. 1366. Ibid. 1579. Ibid. 1457.

Verse 6. Seasoned with salt] Of mortification and discretion; even our common communication must be so seasoned; as we powder most those meats that be most apt to putrifie, and as upon our uncomely parts, we put the more comeliness.

Verse 7. All my state shall Tychicus] See the Note on Eph. 6. 21.

Verse 8. And comfort your hearts] See the Note on Eph. 6. 22.

Verse 9. With Onesimus a faithful] Once unprofitable, but now profitable, faithful and beloved. Plato went thrice to Sicily to convert Dionysius, and lost his labour. Polemo of a drunkard, by hearing Xenocrates, became a Philosopher. But Ambrose saith well of him, Si resipuit à vino, fuit semper tamen temulentus sacrilegio, If he repented of his drunkenness, yet he continued drunk with superstition. Paul's convert proved better, a faithful preacher, and a beloved brother. Philosophia non abscindit vitia, sed abscondit. De Elia & jejun. cap. 12.

Verse 10. Marcus, sister son to Barnabas] Hence Barnabas stood so stiff for him against Paul his faithful fellow-traveller, Acts 15. 37. See the Note there. Natural affection swaies over-much with some good men, as it did with Eli, and perhaps with Samuel, 1 Sam. 8. 1, 3.

If he come unto you receive him] S. Paul had now a better opinion of him then once, when he brake with Barnabas about him. He was not of the Novatian opinion, never to think well again of those that had fallen through infirmity, albeit they repented. They are not to be liked, that say, I never liked him since, &c.

Verse 11. These only are my fellow-workers] S. Paul complains of fickle and false friends, that forsook him in his distress, as Demas, 2 Tim. 4. 10. that like Iobs friends proved miserable comforters, and as the brooks of Tema, which in a moisture swell, in a drought fail: Or as the river Novanus in Lombardy, that at every Mid-summer Solstice swelleth and runneth over the banks, but in midwinter is clean dry. Howbeit Marcus, Aristarchus, Onesimus, Onesiphorus, and some few others stuck to him. A great mercy: Optimum solatium, sodalitium. 2 Tim. 4. 16.

Verse 12. Epaphras, who is one of you] See Chap. 1. 7. and the Note there. This Epaphras is thought to be the same with Epaphroditus: as Sylvanus is called Silas, and Iehoshuah Ieshuah, by an abbreviature.

Always labouring fervently] Constant and instant in prayer, according to that v. 2.

Compleat in all the will of God] Gr. carried on end by it, with full career: as a ship is by a full gale. πεπληρωμένοι.

That ye may stand perfect] In his absence especially: for then the devil is most busie, as he was with the people, when Moses was but a while in the Mount, Exod. 32.

Verse 13. And them that are in Laodicea] A Minister must be like the Sun, that shineth not only within its own orb, but illightneth all round about it, & within the reach of it.

Verse 14. And Demas] He will needs be one, and is, but without any title of honour, as the rest. He began to be suspected: and he afterwards proved an utter apostate, and (as Dorotheus saith) an Idol-Priest at Thessalonica.

Verse 15. Salute the brethren] Christianity is no enemy to courtesie. It removes not, but rectifies it.

The brethren which are in Laodicea] There God had his remnant, there Christ was Amen, the faithful and true witness, and there there were such as by a new creation of God, were begotten again, even among so careless a multitude, Rev. 3: 14. There remain in Constantinople at this day above 20. Churches of Christians: and in Thessalonica above 30. besides very many Churches abroad in the province, &c. The whole country of Asia the less, wherein stood Coloss, Laodicea and Hierapolis, is now under the power and superstition of the Turk: yet no doubt God hath his remnant there.

Digitized by Google

Breerw. Enqui. Chytræ de statu Eccleſiar.

Verse 16. Read the Epistle from Laodicea] Other good books then must be read as well as the Scriptures; yet not idle pamphlets and love-toies. These should be burnt, as those curious books were, Acts 19.

Verse 17. And say to Archippus] Archippus was a Pastour of the Laodicean Church: So that before S. John's time in Patmos they began to cool.

Take heed to the Ministery] Gr. see to it, that is, in thy self, and to all the flock, as Ezek. 34. 39. to strengthen the weak, to heal the infected, to splint the sprained, to reduce the wandring, to seek the lost, to cherish the strong; work enough. Age quod tui muneris est, as Valentinian said to Ambrose. Circulus in cippide, piscis in aridâ, saith another. What say to these? John 21. 21. The Church is thy proper Element, the Pulpit thy right Ubi; the Sanctuary should be the centre of all thy circumference. It is a good hearing that the Levite makes haste home, Judg. 19. An honest mans heart is where his calling is. And this charge, by how much the more sacred it is, so much the more attendance it expects. Every day breaks square with the reasonable.

Acts 20. 28.

That thou fulfill it] By preaching the word in season, out of season, &c. and so doing the work of an Evangelist, fulfilling his Ministery, 2 Tim. 4. 2, 5. This to do the people were to excite their Pastour: yet with all due respect and reverence to his office, 1 Tim. 5. 1. An Elder must not be lashed or jerked with the scourge of the tongue as a puny, but intreated as a father.

ἐπισκόπην.

Verse 18. Remember my bonds] To pray for me, and minister to me, &c. This he here inserteth as his last charge, that they may the better remember and practise it. Something we should leave with those we love that may stick by them, and stand them in stead when we are gone, or have done with them.

Digitized by Google

A COMMENTARY OR EXPOSITION Upon the first Epistle of S. Paul to the Thessalonians.

Chap. I.

Verse 1. Paul and Sylvanus]

Otherwise called Silas, Acts. 15. 40. as Iehoshuah the high-Priest is called Ieshuah, Ezra. 3. 2. and 5. 2. It is not therefore unlawful to abbreviate names.

Unto the Church of the Thessalonians] Thessalonica the chief City of Macedonia, is now known by the name of Salonicks, and is under the Turk. For the plantation of a Church here, see Acts 17. 1, 2, 3, &c. together with the Notes. There are 30 Churches of Christians in it at this day, and but three of Mahometans. Greer. Enquir. p. 68.

Verse 2. We give thanks to God] Thus he beginneth most of his Epistles with thanksgiving: This being held to be the first that ever he wrote to any of the Churches, The beginning of his strength as Reuben, (Iacobs first-born) and the excellency of dignity, Genesis 49. 3.

Verse 3. Remembring without ceasing] A good memory is required to assiduity in prayer. All the faculties are exercised, and the whole man hard wrought.

Your work of faith] We believe not without much conflict. When faith goes about to lay hold on Christ, the devil raps her on the fingers, and would beat her off. Hence the believer hath such ado to believe.

And labour of love] Every mans love is as his labour is, Heb. 6. 10. Therefore also love and labour are of one root in Latin, because love is diligent and laborious.

And patience of hope] To wait the accomplishment of Gods promises. Thus every Christian vertue hath its proper distinctive character, to difference it from that which is counterfeit.

Digitized by Google

In the sight of God] True grace will stand to Gods trial, which false grace cannot abide; as Alchymy gold cannot pass the seventh fire; nor doth it comfort the heart, as true gold doth.

Verse 4. Knowing, brethren beloved of God] Knowing it by the judgement of charity, not of infallibility. He that believeth, hath the witness in himself, 1 Ioh. 5. 10. But the white stone, the new name, and the hid man of the heart are not certainly known to any, but to such as have them. Howbeit, holy men in some degree are known one to another, to make the communion of Saints the sweeter. Strong confidence one may have of anothers salvation; but no certainty either of sense or of science, much less of faith, or immediate revelation.

Verse 5. For our Gospel came not] Hence he collects their election, according to Acts 13. 48. The Ministery sent to a place is an argument of some elect there. A husbandman would not send his servant with his sickle to reap thistles and nettles only.

As ye know what manner] The Church is endued with the spirit of discerning; and 2 Cor. 12. 10. Ministers should approve themselves spiritual in word and conversation.

Verse 6. Followers of us, and of the Lord] The Apostles walked in Christ, Col. 2. 6. as Christ, 1 Ioh. 2. 6. their lives were a Commentary upon his life, 1 Pet. 2. 9.

Received the word in much affliction] Opposition is (as Calvin wrote to the French King) Evangelii genius, the black Angel that dogs the Gospel at the heels. To preach (saith Luther) is nothing else, but to get the ill-will of the world.

With joy of the holy Ghost] Which bore them up above all persecutions, as blown bladders bear a man up aloft all waters.

τύποι. Verse 7. So that ye were ensamples] Gr. Types, moulds, paterns of piety to those that were in Christ long before them. A brave commendation, and not every mans happiness. Affliction to some is like a growing ague, or as a warm rain to garden-herbs, that maketh them shoot up sensibly in one night.

Verse 8. For from you sounded out] A vobis diffamatus est sermo. Remigius commenting upon this place, telleth us that the Apostle here speaketh somewhat improperly, by saying Diffamatus for Divulgatus. This man knew not (belike) that S. Paul wrote in Greek, and not in Latine: So great was the ignorance of that ninth age. The Greek word importeth that from the Thessalonians the word of the Lord sounded out as a ἐξήχηται. trumpet, and resounded as an Eccho. A vobis ebuccinatus est sermo Domini; So Vatablus rendereth it.

So that we need not to speak] A good people may ease their Pastour of a great deal of pains.

Verse 9. What manner of entring in, &c.] The Pastour hath his part and share in the peoples commendation. If they grow famous, he cannot lie obscured.

Ye turned to God from Idols] They gave not the half turn only from East to South,
Hos. 6. 4. but the whole turn, from the East to West, from idols to God. Ephraim shall say, What have I to do any more with idols, Hos. 14. 8? Those Balaam blocks, those mawmets and monuments of idolatry, those images of jealousie? Ephraim is now no longer as a cake
Ier. 12. 9. half-baked, as a speckled bird, &c. Better be a Papist then an Atheist, a gross idolater then a profligate professour, a carnal Gospeller.

Verse 10. And to wait for his Son] This is pinned as a badge to the sleeve of every true believer, that he looketh and longeth for Christ his coming to judgement. The old character of Gods people was, they waited for the consolation of Israel, Christs first coming; So is it now, the earnest expectation of his second coming.

Which delivered us from the wrath to come] This is the Etymon, the notation of his name Jesus, a Saviour. Salvation properly betokeneth the privative part of mans happiness, but includeth the positive too. King Alphonsus, when he saw a poor man pulling of his beast out of a ditch, he put to his hand to help him. Is it not more that Christ should stoop so low as to help us (who were in worse condition then the beasts that perish) out of the ditch of destruction? The devil is said to be λέων ὠρυόμενος, a roaring Lion; but our comfort is, That the Lion of the Tribe of Iudah is ὁ ῥυόμενος he that delivereth us from the wrath to come. The Sun of righteousness (as Pelbartus saith, allegorizing Gods Covenant signified by a Rainbow) falling into a cloud of passion, is our security against a deluge of Damnation.

The wrath to come] There is a present wrath that men suffer; and who knoweth the power

Digitized by Google

power of this wrath? Even according to a mans fear, ſo is God wrath, Pſal. 90. 11. Let a man fear never ſo much, he ſhall be ſure to feel more, when Gods wrath fals upon him. A timorous man can fancy vaſt and terrible fears; fire, ſword, racks, ſcalding lead, boiling pitch, running bell-mettle. Yet all this is but as a painted fire to the wrath to come, that eternity of extremity, which graceleſs perſons ſhall never be able to avoid, or to abide.

CHAP. II.

Verſe 1. Our entrance in unto you]

THe word preached in any place doth uſually work beſt at firſt. After a while men become like unto birds in a bell-free, that can well enough bear the noiſe of the bels, and not be frighted.

Verſe 2. But even after that, &c.] From this to the 13. verſe, Miniſters may as in a mirrour ſee how they ought to behave themſelves in the houſe of God.

We were bold in our God] The Church as the palm-tree, ſpreadeth and ſpringeth up the more it is oppreſſed; as the bottle or bladder that may be dipt, not drowned: as the Oke that ſprouts out the thicker from the maims and wounds it receiveth. This daunted Dioclesian, and made him lay down the Empire in diſcontent. This cauſed Julian the Apoſtate to leave off force, and uſe fraud to draw men from the truth. Dirùs ut ilex tonſa bipenni-bus.

Verſe 3. VVas not of deceit, nor, &c.] Neither for profit, pleaſure, nor preferment (the wordlings Trinity.) A Miniſter, as he ſhould have nothing to loſe, ſo he ſhould have nothing to get, but ſhould be above all price or ſale. He hath too impotent a ſpirit, whoſe ſervices, like the dial, muſt be ſet only by the Sun of ſelf-reſpects. True grace is of a moſt maſculine, diſingaged, noble nature, and remits nothing of its diligence either for fear of a frown, or hope of a reward.

Verſe 4. But as we were allowed] Enabled and counted faithful, 1 Tim. 1. 12.

Not as pleaſing men] See the Note on Gal. 1. 10. Men be they pleaſed, or diſpleaſed, God muſt not be diſpleaſed.

But God] Who looketh upon diſpleaſing ſervice as a double diſhonour.

Which trieth our hearts] And ſo knoweth our aims, Quicquid igitur agas, propter Deum agas. Propter te Domine, propter te, as he cried. It ſtands me upon, ſaith one, to ſee, that though my work be but mean, yet it may be clean; though not fine, yet not foul, ſoiled and ſlubbered with the ſlur of a rotten heart, ſith it is God I have to deal with. Druſ. Apophth.

Verſe 5. For neither at any time] Siniſterity of ends is here oppoſed to ſincerity in Gods work; And flattery, covetouſneſs, ambition, declared to be the fountains of inſincerity.

Nor a cloke of covetouſneſs] This ſin goes uſually cloked with the name and pretence of good husbandry. The ordinary language of the world is, He is a man ſomewhat with the hardeſt, a little with the neareſt, a little too much for the world, but yet a marvellous honeſt, a wondrous good man. Covetouſneſs is ſeldom without fained words, 2 Pet. 2. 3. to hide it from others without, or ſubtle thoughts and evaſions to blinde-fold the conſcience within. Alcibiades embroidered a curtain with Lions and Eagles, to cover his pictures of Owls and Apes: So all ſin hath its vizard: neither is there any wool ſo courſe, but will take ſome colour.

God is witneſs] That he flattered not; he reports himſelf to them, that he coveted not; he appeals to God, who is not mocked with masks or ſpecious pretences, but will pull off the vizard, waſh off the covetous mans varniſh with rivers of brimſtone. Religion, as it is the beſt armour, ſo it is the worſt cloke: and will ſerve ſelf-ſeekers, as the diſguize Ahab put on, and periſhed 1 Kings 22. The Covetouſneſs of the Court of Rome was anciently muttered forth in that ſaying, Curia Romana non petit oves ſine lana: and again, In Parobola ovis, capras ſuas quærunt. This the poor people were ever ſenſible of: but durſt ſay little. There is a ſtory of Walter Mapes (ſometimes Archdeacon of Oxford) who relating the groſs ſimony of the Pope for confirming the election election of Reinold, bastard son to Jocelin Bishop of Sarum, into the See of Bath, concludeth his narration thus, Sit tamen Domina materque nostra Roma baculus in aqua fractus: & absit credere quæ vidimus. i.e. Nevertheless let our Lady and Mother of Rome be as a staff in the water, that seems onely to be broken: and far be it from us to believe our own eyes. They durst not see, or at least say what they saw: But now all is laid open, and shall be much more at the last day, when (as at a great fair) all fardels shall be uncorded, and all packs opened.

Digitized by Google

Verse 6. Nor of men sought we glory] Theologus gloriæ dicit malum bonum, & bonum malum (saith Luther) Theologus crucis dicit id quod res est: A vain-glorious preacher calleth good evil, and evil good, &c.

Verse 7. But we were gentle] This is the way to win; for man is a curst, crabbed creature, and may be led, but not easily drag'd to duty. Soft words and hard arguments sooneſt prevail with him.

Verse 8. So being affectionately desirous] Honing and hankering after you. The Greek word signifieth the most swaying heart-passion, the most effectual affection. ἱμειρόμενοι. Cupidine rapti.

But also our own souls] Greater love then this hath no man: And such a love ought there to be in every Pastour toward his people. Love is liberal, charity no churl.

Verse 9. Our labour] Even to lassitude, yea to sollicitude.

And travel] So to spare them, he spared not himself.

Verse 10. Ye are witnesses, and God also] Happy is that man that can be acquitted by himself in private, in publike by others, in both by God: standers by may see more.

How holily, and justly, and unblameably] Here he practised his own precept, Tit. 2. 12. And herein lies the difference between Divinity and other sciences, that it is not enough to prescribe it, but you must practise it, as lessons of Musick, and as a copy must not be read only, but acted also.

Verse 11. As a father] Before, as a mother, vers. 7. a nurse not mercenary, but natural, with greatest tenderness and indulgence. Here he tempers his mother-like meekness with the gravity and authority of a father. Ministers must turn themselves, as it were, into all shapes and fashions, both of speech and spirit, to win people to God.

Verse 12. Walk worthy of God] Whose livery we wear, whose image we bear, whose Kingdom we are called unto, &c. Those that stood with the Lamb, Revelations 14. had his fathers name on their foreheads. Our out-straies reflect upon God, who will require and requite.

Verse 13. Not as the word of men] Whom yet he maketh use of to cast down Satans strong-holds, as he made use of little David against Goliah, and of the frogs and flies against Pharoah, and of the Rams horns against Iericho. This treasure, these pearls he giveth us in vile oyster-shels, 2 Cor. 4. 7.

As the word of God] With reverence and diligence, with all good affection and attention. When Samuel knew it was God that called him (and not Eli) he had no more mind to sleep. We are all here present before God, saith Cornelius, Acts 10. 33. And God is in you of a truth, saith the Corinthian Convert, 1 Cor. 4. 25.

Ver. 14. Of your own country-men] Malice against the truth breaks all bonds of nature or amity. Moab was irked, because of Israel, or vexed at them, Numb. 22. 3, 4. though they were allied to Israel, who passed by them peaceably, and, by the slaughter of the Amorites, freed them from evil neighbours, which had taken away part of their Countrey, &c. The English Papists in four years sacrificed eight hundred of their innocent Countreymen in Q. Maries daies. In the holy war (as they called it) against the Waldenses (those ancient Protestants) in France, the Popes great army took one great populous City, and put to the sword sixty thousand, among whom were many of their own Catholikes. For, Arnoldus the Cistercian Abbot (being the Popes Legate in this great war) commanded the Captains and Soldiers, saying, Cædite eos, novit enim Dominus qui sunt ejus. i. e. Down with them all, for God knoweth which of them are his. And the issue of this war was, ut potius cæsi, fugati, bonis ac dignitatibus ubique spoliati sint, quam ut erroris convicti resipuerint, i.e. that they were rather slain, scattered, spoiled of their goods and dignities, then brought by a sight of any errour, to sound repentance, saith Thuanus, an ingenuous Papist. Cæsarius Heisterbach. hist l. 5. c. 21. Thuan.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verse 15. Who both killed the Lord] And are therefore banished out of the world, as it were, by a common consent of Nations, for their unexpiable guilt. Even in Jerusalem there be hardly to be found a hundred houlholds of them. In Cyprus it is present death for any Jew to set his foot upon the Island. In Thessalonica and Constantinople there are divers thousands of them, but at every Easter they are in danger of death, if they but stir out of doors, because at that time they crucified our Saviour. The Turks themselves so hate the Jews for crucifying Christ, that they use to say in detestation of a thing, I would I might die a Jew. Neither will they permit a Jew to turn Turk, unless he be first baptized. The Romans permitted other Nations to call themselves Romans after they had conquered them; but so they would not suffer the Jews to do, though they complied never so much, and were their servants (as Augustin in Psal 58. witnesseth) lest there should some blot stick to the glory of the Romans, by that odious and sordid people, O Marcomanni, O quedi said one Emperour. Brerewood Enquir. Dio. Cass. Biddulph.

And their own Prophets] Whose slaughter (though long since done) is in recent remembrance with God, and is reckoned and registred together with the death of Christ himself.

And have persecuted us] They still curse the Christians in their daily prayers, which they close up with a Maledic Domine Nazarenis. Lopez at Tiburn affirmed, That he had loved Queen Elizabeth as he loved Jesus Christ. Which from a Jew was heard not without laughter. Camdens Eliz.

And they please not God] Yet they challenged the title of Gods Church, as the Papists will needs be the only Catholikes. They cryed, ad templum Dei, the Temple of the Lord, when they nothing regarded the Lord of the Temple.

And are contrary to all men] Being herein rather Ismaelites then Israelites, Gen. 16. 12. The Trout delights to swim against stream. The herb Alexander will agree with no other herb but it self. Such Antipodes are our Jesuites, so unsufferably ambitious and impudent, that neither their doctrine, nor their conversation pleaseth those of their own religion.

Verse 16. Forbidding us to speak to the Gentiles] Bale out of Capgrave reporteth, that St. Asaph (as they called him) had this saying oft in his mouth, Quicunque verbo Dei adversantur, salutis hominum invident, Those that are against the Preaching of the word, do envy the Salvation of men. Such were Stephen Gardiner, and before him Arch bishop Arundel, who dyed of a grievous swelling in their tongues, and that deservedly; quod verbum Dei alligassent, ne suo tempore praedicaretur, saith the Historian, because they had hindered the Preaching of the word.

To fill up their sin alway] Bounds are set to sin by the divine decree, Zec. 5. 7. Wickedness is compared to a woman pressed in an Ephah: when the measure is full, the business is finished. See the Note on Mat. 23. 32. The bottle of wickedness, when once filled with those bitter waters, sinketh to the bottom. Tho. Gascon. in Bithon. Theol. & Foxo.

Wrath is come upon them to the uttermost] Or, until the end: wrath is come upon them finally, so as it shall never be removed; so some interpret it: God's wrath is like Eliah's cloud, which at length covered the whole heaven; Or as thunder which you hear at first a little roaring noyse afar off: but stay awhile, it is a dreadful crack. Who knoweth the power of thy wrath? saith Moses, Psal. 92. The Jews are to this day a people of Gods wrath and curse. εἰς τέλος. D. Sclater.

Verse 17. For a short time] Or, In a short time, suddenly. See Act. 17. 9, 10.

Being taken away] Or separated, as orphans are from their dear parents, or parents from their deceased children. The separation of friends is so grievous, that death it self is stiled no other then a departure. Ἀποροφανισθέντες.

Verse 18. But Satan hindered us] He still doth his utmost to hinder the communion of Saints, and to keep them asunder. He knows two are better then one: and therefore he stirred up the Primitive persecutors to banish the Christians, and to confine them to isles and mines, where they could not have access one to another: Whether Satan hindered Paul by sickness or by imprisonments, or tempests at sea, who can resolve? saith One. He hindered him, by casting a necessity upon him of disputing often with the Stoicks and Epicures, which were at Athens, saith another Interpreter. Cyprian Epist.

Verse 19. For what is our hope, &c.] A very lively and lofty expression: such as the Apostle ordinarily useth in speaking of heavenly glory. Nec Christus, nec coelum patitur Hyperbolen. A man can hardly hyperbolize in speaking of heaven.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verse 20. For ye are our glory and joy] Let no man therefore envy us these temporary good things, a competent maintenance: there are better things abide us above.

Chap. III.

Verse 1. No longer forbear] στέγοντες. OR, Stand under our burden of vehement desire after you. See a like expression, Isa. 42. 14. As a travelling woman bites in her pain as long as she is able, and at length cries out aloud; so God is patient till he can hold no longer, &c.

We thought it good] Publica privatis ante ferenda bonis. A publike spirit is a precious spirit. And that's a golden saying of divine Plato, οὐδὲ δικαιοσύνη ἀλλότριον μὲν ἀγαθὸν, οἰκεῖα δὲ ζημία. Goodness is all for the good of others, though to its own disadvantage: Like as nature will venture its own particular good for the general. As heavy things will ascend to keep out vacuity, and to preserve the Universe. De Rep. lib. 3.

Verse 2. To establish you] Who haply are somewhat unsetled by the troubles that befel me agmonst you. But as young trees shaken, root the better, so should you. Capito in an epistle to the brethren at Basil, writeth thus, Pauciores vobiscum perimuntur, quod ita Domino visum est ut stabilianter seu lenibus pluviis, ac fomentis mollioribus; plantula in arbores maximas proditura.

Verse 3. That no man should be moved] Gr. Flattered, as a dog flattereth, by moving his tail, q.d. The devil, by flattering you, with promise of more ease by a contrary course, will but do as a dirty dog, defile you with fawning. σαίνεσθαι, κέρνω σαίνειν. Prov.

That we are appointed thereunto] viz. By Gods decree, whereunto if damned ghosts must subscribe, Rom. 9. 19, 20. how much more should Gods elect, 1 Pet. 1. 6? It is but a delicacy to dream of heaven to be had, without much hardship. Many would fain pull a rose without pricks, feed on manchet, pass à deliciis ad delicias: they would sit in the seat of honour with Zebedees children, but not drink the cup of affliction. This will not be. Eliah must to heaven, but in a whirlwind. Daniel must be brought through Lions and Leopards to the meek Lamb of God, Messiah the Prince. John shall hear the harmony of harpers, but first the noyse of thunder. The Israelites had five dayes of sorrow before their feast of joy, Lev. 23. 27, 34. The first handsel God gave them in their voyage to the promised Canaan, was bitterness and thirst. It was by Marah that they came to Elim: neither could they taste of the sweet waters of Siloam, till they had crossed the swift streams of Iordan. We cannot sing the song of Moses, of Gods servants, and of the Lamb, but we must first swim through a sea of burning glass, Rev. 15. 2, 3. Non nisi per angusta, ad angusta, &c.

Verse 4. We told you before] Darts fore-seen are dintless: premonition is the best premunition. Troubles fore-told come never a whit the sooner, but far the easier; whereas coming unexpected, they finde weak mindes secure, make them miserable, leave them desperate.

Verse 5. To know your faith] That is, Your perseverance, and encrease in faith. That which the devil mainly endeavoureth, is, to hinder and unsettle our faith, as he dealt by Eve, and Peter, Luke 22. 31, 32. to batter this buckler, Ephes. 6. 16. for then he knows he may do what he will with us. Omnia perdidit, qui fidem amisit. Seneca.

Lest by some means the tempter] Who feels our pulses, and fits his assaults accordingly. See the Note on Mat. 4. 3.

And our labour be in vain] So it proves many times by Satans malice. Other labourers can finde their work as they left it, not so Ministers: the devil cometh and marreth all.

Verse 6. And brought us good tidings] Here the devil was disappointed. He had been nibling, but could not fasten: this matter was not malleable. God stints him, and staves him off, when he would worry his poor lambs, turning all to their eternal good.

Verse 7. We were comforted] Nothing so cheareth up the heart of a Godly Minister, as his peoples tractableness. If this be wanting, his very heart is broke, though they be otherwise never so kinde and courteous to him.

Digitized by Google

Verse

Verſe 8. For now we live] A joyleſs life is a lifeleſs life. An unſucceſsful Paſtour hath little or no joy of his life. Thus ſhall ye ſay to him that liveth, 1 Sam. 25. 6. that is, that liveth at hearts-eaſe: All the daies of the afflicted are evil, Prov. 15. 15. As good be out of the world (ſay they) as have no joy of the world. Now, I have no greater joy, ſaith S. Iohn, then to hear that my children walk in the truth, 3 Iohn, 4. This revived his good old heart, and made it dance Levalto's in his boſom.

Verſe 9. For what thanks, &c.] q. d. No ſufficient thanks. Spiritual joy vents it ſelf by an infinite deſire of praiſing God, whereby it ſeeks to fill up the diſtance betwixt God and the good ſoul. In our thanſgivings let there be modus ſine modo, as Bernard hath it. Let us ſtill deliberate what more to do, as David, Pſal. 116. 12.

Verſe 10. Night and day praying exceedingly] Prayer muſt be conſtant and inſtant, with utmoſt aſſiduity and intention of affection, Luke 18. 1. See the Note there.

And might perfect that which is lacking in your faith] Faith is not as Ionaſſes gourd, that grew up in a night: or as a bullet in a mould, that is made in a moment, but is perfected by degrees: and ſo made even (as the word ſignifies here in the Original) and compleat. καταρτίσαι.

Verſe 11. Now God himſelf, &c.] At the very mentioning of prayer, he fals a praying. Good affections ſoon kindle in a gracious heart.

Direct our way unto you] A mans heart deviſeth his way, but the Lord directeth his ſteps, Prov. 16. 9. Let God be our Pilot, if we mean to make a good voyage of it. Let our hand be on the ſtern, our eye on the ſtar; let our courſe, as the mariners, be guided by the heavens.

Verſe 12. To increaſe and abound] By doubling his word, he ſignifieth a double portion of Gods grace, which he wiſheth unto them: We are ſure to receive as much good from God by prayer, as we can bring faith to bear away. Hitherto ye have aſked me nothing; Ask, ſaith Chriſt, ask enough, Open your mouth wide, &c.

Verſe 13. To the end he may ſtabliſh] Love is of a ferruminating, ſtabliſhing property. That grace will not hang together, nor hold out that is ſevered from charity.

CHAP. IV.

Verſe 1. How ye ought to walk]

EVery good man is a great Peripatetick, walks much. Chriſt alſo walks: ſo doth the devil, apoſtates, hereticks, worldlings; but with this difference. Chriſt walketh in the middle, Revel. 1. 13. the devil to and fro, up and down, Iob 1. 7. his motion is circular, and therefore fraudulent, 1 Pet. 5. 8. Apoſtates run retrograde, they ſtumble at the croſs, and fall backward. Hereticks run out on the right hand, worldlings on the left, Iames 1. 14. Hypocrites turn aſide unto their crooked waies. Pſal. 125. 5. They follow Chriſt, as Sampſon did his Parents, till he came by the carcaſe; or as a dog doth his maſter, till he meeteth with a carrion. The true Chriſtian only walks ſo as to pleaſe God; his eyes look right on, his eyelids look ſtrait before him, Prov. 4. 25. He goes not back, with Hezekiah's Sun, nor ſtands at a ſtay, as Joſhuah's, but rejoyceth as a ſtrong man to run his race, as Davids Sun, Pſal. 19. 5. Yea he ſhineth more and more unto the perfect day, as Solomons Prov. 4. 18. Revel. 2. 1.

Verſe 2. For ye know what &c.] It is expected therefore that ye do them; elſe the more hainous will be your ſin, and the more heavy your reckoning, Iſa. 59, 11, 12. What brought ſuch roarings and trouble on them, and that when ſalvation was looked for? Our iniquities teſtifie to our faces, and we know them.

Verſe 3. For this is the will of God] This is his preſcribing will, which we muſt obey: as we muſt ſubmit to his diſpoſing will, the will of his providence, and grow acquainted with his approving will, the will of his gracious acceptance, Mat. 18. 14. John 1. 23.

Verſe 4. To poſſeſs his veſſel] That is, his body, wherein the ſoul is, Tota in toto, & tota in qualibet parte. If any ask, why ſo glorious a ſoul ſhould be in this corruptible body? Beſides Gods will, and for the order of the univerſe, Lombard give this reaſon, That by the conjunction of the ſoul with the body (ſo far its inferiour) man might learn a poſſibility of the union of man with God in glory, notwithſtanding the vaſt diſtance of nature and excellence, the infiniteneſs of both in God, the finiteneſs of both in man. Lib. 2. diſt. 1.

Digitized by Google

In sanctification and honour] Chastity is a mans honour: incontinency sets on an indeleble blot, Prov. 6 33.

Castus quasi καθαρὸς ornatus. Sic ἁγνὸς ab ἀγὼ veneratio.

Verse 5. Not in the lust of concupiscence] Or, in the disease of lust, that dishonourable disease, Rom. 1. 26. that wasteth not only the substance of the body, but the honesty and the honour of it.

Verse 6. That no man go beyond or defraud] Or, oppress or cheat. Theft by unjust getting is either ἐπβολὴ or ἐπβυλὴ, by violence or cunning contrivance. What else is this but crimen stellionatus, the very sin of cozenage?

The Lord is the avenger] Though haply they lie out of the walk of humane justice, as not coming under mans cognizance.

Verse 7. For God hath not called us] See the Note on Eph. 4. 1. It is a sure rule given by the Antients, Confusiones libidinum sunt signa cujuslibet sectæ. Simon Magus had his Helena, Carpocrates his Marcellina, Apelles his Philumena, Montanus his Priscilla and Maximilla, &c.

Verse 8. He therefore that despiseth] That thinks it a trick of youth to fornicate, and a trick of wit to over-reach or oppress: that holds it a matter of nothing to set light by the former lessons, he shall find that he hath to deal with God and not man in this business; and that it is by the Spirit of God that we have spoken unto him, who will punish their contempt of his counsels.

Verse 9. Ye need not that I write] Sith the divine nature, whereof ye are partakers, prompteth you to it, as common nature doth brethren, to love one another. The very name of a brother is potent enough to draw affections.

Are taught of God] Therefore have no such need to be taught by men, as those that are yet strangers to the life of God. Quando Christus magister, quàm citò discitur, quod docetur? saith Augustine. Nescit tarda molimina gratia Spiritus sancti, saith Ambrose. All Christs schollars are nimble and notable proficients.

To love one another] The affections are such things as the Lord only can meddle with: therefore the Apostle saith, you are taught of God to love one another.

Verse 10. Towards all the brethren] This universality of their love shew'd the sincerity of it, and that it was for the truths sake, 2 Ioh. 2. One or more good men may be favoured of those that love no good man, as Ieremy was of Nebuzaradan, because he fore-told the victory.

Verse 11. Study to be quiet] Gr. Be ambitious of peace: as earnest and eager after it, as the Ambitionist is after honour. Who commonly rides without reines, rides over other mens heads to compass his desire. The Original is, Love the honour to be quiet, or to rest and live in silence: and not to be noted or noticed, ut qui vivens moriensque fefellit, affecting rather quietness from the world, then any great acquaintance with it.

φιλοτιμεῖσθαι.

And to do your own business] Not oaring in other mens boats, not medling in other mens bishopricks, 1 Pet. 4. 15. Tu fuge eam pestem, τὴν πολυπραγμοσύνην. Choller in the gall is useful to the boy; but if it overflow, the body grows distempered. Let every man keep to his place, and affect to be no medler, not to suffer as a busy body. Intra pelliculam tuam te contine, keep within your circle; eccentrick motions cannot be right.

With your own hands] Or else with your own brains, as students, which is by far the harder labour.

Verse 12. Lack of nothing] He becometh poor that dealeth with a slack hand, but the hand of the diligent maketh rich, Prov. 10. 4. Iabal that dwelt in tents and tended heards, had Iubal to his brother, the father of musick. Iabal and Iubal, industry and plenty, not without sweet content dwell together.

Verse 15. But I would not have, &c.] Ignorance is the mother of mistake, and of causless trouble, of errour and terrour: as the Roman Souldiers were once much affrighted at the sight of the Moons eclipse, till the General had undeceived them by a discourse of the natural cause thereof.

That ye sorrow not] Non est lugendus qui moritur, sed desiderandus, saith Tertullian. Abraham mourned moderately for his deceased wife, Gen. 23. 2. as is imported by a small caph in the word libcothab, to weep. So did David for the child born in adultery, though for Absolom he exceeded. It is one of the dues of the dead to be lamented at their funerals. But Christians must know a measure, and so water their plants, as that they drown them not.

Νομίζουσι. Iusta defunctorum.

Digitized by Google

Even

Even as others, which have no hope] Lugeatur mortuus, sed ille quem gehenna suscipit, quem Tartarus devorat, &c. Let that dead man be lamented whom hell harboureth, whom the devil devoureth, &c. But let us (whose departed souls Angels accompany, Christ imbosometh, and all the court of heaven comes forth to welcome) account mortality a mercy; and be grieved that we are so long detained here from the company of our Christ, saith Hierom.

Verse 14. Sleep in Jesus] Dead in Christ. The union then is not dissolved by death. But as by sleep the body is refreshed: so by death it is refined. Let our care be to cleave close to Christ in the instant of death: so shall he be to us both in life and death, advantage.

Verse 15. By the word of the Lord] Or, in the word &c. in the self-same words that the Lord used to me, probably, when I was rapt up, 2 Cor. 12. 2, 4. and heard Wordless words.

Shall not prevent them] They shall rise ere we shall be rapt, and as they have been before us in death, so shall they be in glory; Now priority is a priviledge.

Verse 16. With a shout] Ingenti Angelorum jubilo, & acclamatione, saith Aretius. With a huge applause and acclamation of Angels, such as is that of Mariners, when near the haven (Italiam Italiam laeto clamore salutant) or that of soldiers, when to joyn battle with the enemy. ἐν κελεύσματι. Virg. Æncid.

And with the trump of God] To require the law, in manner as it was given. Mount Sinai only was then on a flame, but now the whole world, &c. Then God came with ten thousands of his Saints: but now thousand thousands shall minister to him, and ten thousand thousands shall stand before him.

Verse 17. Then we which are alive] He speaketh thus of himself as alive at Christs coming, because we should daily expect it, and even hasten to it.

Shall be caught up together] This is that mystery mentioned, 1 Cor. 15. 51. and not till now made known to the world. See the Note there.

In the clouds] As Christ also ascended, Act. 1. These be the waggons and chariots that Christ will send for us, as Joseph set his fathers family down to Egypt.

And so shall we ever be, &c.] Oh blessed hour! Oh thrice happy union! Nothing ever came so near it, as the meeting of Jacob and Joseph, or of those two cousins Mary and Elizabeth, Luke 1.

Verse 18. Wherefore comfort, &c.] Scripture-comforts come home to the heart, so do not philosophical. Nescio quomodo (saith Cicero of such medicina) morbo est imbecillior. And albeit it is marvellous sweet to meditate (as Mr. Knox found it on his death-bed, so that he would have risen and gone into the pulpit to tell others what he had felt in his soul) yet there is a special force of strong consolation in Christian communication, which the Lord usually watereth with the dews of divine blessing. Melch. Adam. in vit. 139.

CHAP. V.

Verse 1. But of the times and the seasons]

WHen Christ shall come to Judgement, this is to be reckoned inter arcana imperii. See the Note on Mat. 24. 36. The times and the seasons God hath put in his own power, Act. 1. 7. This is a key that he keepeth under his own girdle. Let it suffice us to know that this is the last hour, that the ends of the world are come upon us, and that the Lord is at hand. The time is short (saith our Apostle elsewhere) or rolled up, as a piece of cloth, onely a little left at the end. Moses brake the tables 1582. years before the birth of Christ. Non existimo &c. I do not think (saith holy Melanchon) that the time since the end of the Jewish Politie shall be much longer then that was before the end thereof. Watch therefore and be diligent that ye may be found of him in peace, without spot, and blameless, 2 Pet. 3. 14. 1 Cor. 7. 29.

Ver. 2. The day of the Lord] That day, by a speciality, Lu. 21. 34. that great day, Rev. 6. 17. that day of the declaration of Gods just judgement, Rom. 2. 5, 16. that day of Christ, 2 Thess. 2. 2. of God, 2 Pet. 3. 12. wherein he will shew himself to be God of Gods, and Lord of Lords.

As a thief in the night] Who giveth no warning, Mat. 24. 43. See the Note there.

Digitized by Google

Verse 3. For when they shall say] Security is the certain usher of destruction, as in Benhadads army, and Pompeys, before the Pharsalian field. Some of them contended for the Priesthood, which was Cæsars office, others disposed of the Consulships and offices in Rome, as if all were already their own: Pompey himself being so wretchedly wretchless, that he never considered into what place he were best to retire, if he lost the day.

Then shall sudden destruction] As Philosophers say, that before a snow the weather will be warmish: when the winde lies, the great rain fals; and the air is most quiet when suddenly there will be an earthquake.

As travel upon a Woman] 1. Certainly: 2. Suddenly. 3. Irresistibly inevitably.

Verse 4. Should overtake you as a thief] Though it come upon you as a thief in a time uncertain. Free you are from the destruction of that day, though not altogether free from the distraction of it, till somewhat recollected you remember that now your redemption draweth nigh. Hence the Saints love Christs appearing, 2 Tim. 4. 8. Look for it with stretcht-out necks, and long after it, Rev. 22. 20.

Verse 5. We are not of the night, &c.] Alexander willed that the Grecians and Barbarians should no longer be distinguished by their garments, but by their manners: so should the children of light, and of darkness.

Qu. Curtius.

Verse 6. As do others] What wonder that the Grecians live loosly, saith Chrysostome, but that Christians do so, this is worse, yea intolerable.

But let us watch and be sober] We must not be like Agrippa's dormouse that would not awake till cast into boiling lead, or Matthiolus his asses fed with hemlock, that lie for dead, and are half hileded, ere they can be arrousèd. But rather we should resemble Aristotle and others, who were wont to sleep with brazen balls in their hands, which falling on vessels purposely set on their beds sides, the noise did dissuade immoderate sleep.

Comment. in Dioscor.

Verse 7. Are drunk in the night] But now, alas, drunkennes is become a noon-day devil. Once Peters argument (saith a reverend Divine) was more then probable, These men are not drunk, for it is but the third hour of the day. Now men are grown such husbands as that by that time, they will return their stocks, and have their brains crowing before day.

Drunk. cup by M. Harris.

Verse 8. Be sober] Drunkennes misbeseemeth any man, but especially a Saint; for it robs him of himself, and laies a beast in his room.

Putting on the brest-plate of faith and love] Faith is the fore-part of this brest-plate, whereby we imbrace Christ, and love the hinder part thereof, whereby we imbosome the Saints.

Verse 9. God hath not appointed us] As he hath all drunken beasts, 1 Cor. 6. 10. Yea all those dry drunkards, Isa. 28. 1. that will not awake (though never so much warned) out of the snare of the devil, &c. 2 Tim. 2. 25.

Verse 10. Whether we wake or sleep] That is, live or die, our souls cannot miscarry; because God wil have out the ful price of his sons death. See Rom. 14. 8. with the Note there.

Verse 11. Comfort your selves together] This he subjoyns as a singular help to the practise of the former points of dutie. Social charity whets on to love and good works, as iron whets iron, as one billet kindleth another, &c.

Verse 12. And we beseech you, brethren] Do not so exhort and edifie one another, as to think that now the publike Ministery is no further useful or needful. Let your Pastours have all due respect, be your gifts never so eminent.

Verse 13. Very highly] Gr. More then exceedingly; Turks and Papists shall else condemn us, who honour every hedge-priest of theirs, and have them in singular esteem, above their merits. The Grecians gave great respect to their Philosophers above their Oratours, because these taught them how to speak, but those how to live well.

Ὑπὲρ ὑπερβολὴν Apud Græcos majori in honore habebantur Philosophi quam oratores Illi enim recte vivendi, &c. Lactantius.

For their works sake] Which is high and honourable, divine and heavenly, a worthy work, 1 Tim. 3. 1. Such as both in the preparation to it, and execution of it draweth them to God, keepeth them with God, and to be ever mindeful of God, and no less active for God, Ephes. 4. 12. by gathering together the Saints, and building up the body of Christ.

And be at peace among your selves] So shall your Pastour have the better life, and follow his work with more content and comfort.

Verse 14. Warn them that are unruly] Cry Cave miser, stop them in their cursed carier, rier, tell them that hell gapes for them, and is but a little afore them; snatch them out of the fire, saving them with fear, Jude v. 23. Neglect of private admonition how it stings the consciences of the best at death, see M. Hirons life prefixed to the second part of his worthy works. See also M. Baxters Saints everlasting Rest, page 497.

Digitized by Google

Comfort the feeble-minded] The dispirited, faint-hearted, sick and sinking under the sense of sin and fear of wrath. A Christian should have feeding lips, and a healing tongue; The contrary whereunto is deeply detested, Ezek. 34. 4.

Support the Weak] Set to your shoulder and shore them up. Deal not as the herd of Deer do with the wounded Deer, forsake and push it away from them. Christ gathereth his lambs with his arm, and bears them in his bosom. Isa. 40. 11. He had a great care of his weaker Tribes when they marched through the wilderness: for in their several brigades, he put a strong Tribe to two weak Tribes, as Judah to Issachar and Zabulon, &c. The Greek word here rendred support, signifieth sublevare alioqui ruituros; saith Beza, to keep up those that would else go to the ground. Ἀντέχεσθε.

Verse 15. See that none render] Nothing is so natural to us; and Aristotle commends revenge as a piece of manhood, when indeed it is doghood rather. Excellently Lactantius, Non est minus mali referre injuriam, quam inferre. It is as bad to recompence wrong, as to do wrong. See the Notes on Mat. 5. 44. and Rom. 12. 17.

But ever follow that which is good] Not to do good, is to do evil, not to save a man, when we can, is to destroy him, Mar. 3. 4. See the Note there.

Verse 16. Rejoyce evermore] A duty much pressed in both Testaments, but little practised by many of Gods whinnels, who are ever puling and putting finger in the eye, through one discontent or another. The wicked may not rejoyce, Hos. 9. 1. the Saints must, Psal. 32. 11. and 33. 1. and that continually, striving to an habitual chearfulness, which is when faith heals the conscience, and grace husheth the affections, and composeth all within; what should ail such a man, not to be perpetually merry?

Ver. 17. Pray without ceasing] While prayer standeth still, the trade of godliness stands still. All good comes into the soul by this door, all true treasure by this merchants ship. Paul beginneth, continueth and concludeth his Epistles with prayer. Nehemiah sends up ejaculations ever and anon. Of Carolus Magnus it was spoken, Carolus plus cum Deo quàm cum hominibus loquitur, that he spake more with God then with men. Our hearts should be evermore in a praying temper: and our set times of prayer should not be neglected, though we be not always alike prepared and disposed thereunto. Disuse breeds lothness to do it another time. Mahometans, what occasion soever they have, either by profit, or pleasure to divert them, will pray five times every day. Oratio est quantitas discreta, saith the Philosopher. Oratio debet esse quantitas continua, saith our Apostle. A Christian must ever be praying habitually, and vitally too: for, semper orat qui benè semper agit. He hath manifold occasions of calling actually upon God; as 1. his daily morning and evening sacrifice: the neglect or non-performance whereof the Jews counted and called an abomination of desolation. 2. The sanctification of creatures, calling, and relations. 3. New mercies. 4. New infirmities. 5. Variety of crosses. 6. Faintness of faith, spiritual desertions, temptations of Satan. 7. Sweetness of meditation. 8. Forethought of his last account, &c. Neither let any say we cannot awhile; For 1. A whets no let; a bait by the way is no hinderance to the journey; time spent in prayer hindereth not our business; for though it take so much from the heap, yet it increaseth the heap, as it is said of tythes and offerings, Mal. 3. Blind Popery could say, Mass and meat hindereth no mans thrift. 2. The greater the business, the more need there is of prayer to speed it; to be as oyl to the wheel, as wings to the bird. Jacob, after he had seen God at Bethel, lift up his feet, and went lustily on his journey. 3. How much idle time spend we, either in doing nothing, or worse, that might better be bestowed in this holy duty? Onely take heed that frequency breed not formality, that we pray not in a lazy, customary, bedulling strain, like the pace the Spaniard rides: but rousing up our selves, and wrestling with God, set we sides and shoulders to the work, lift up hearts and hands to heaven, lean upon Christs bosom as the beloved disciple did, lie hard upon him, as she did upon Sampson to learn out his riddle; press him as they did the Prophet, till he was even ashamed to say them nay, till you put him to the blush, and leave a blot in his face, as the importunate widdow dealt by the unjust judge, Luke 18. 5. lo this is Prayer; and thus we are to continue instantly

Lawless liberty in a Sermon by M. Terry.

Gen. 28.

2 Kings 2. 17.

ἐπιμένετε τῇ προσευχῇ.

Digitized by Google

in prayer, to wait upon it (as the word signifieth) and to persevere in it, as David did, Psal. 27.4. & 119.81, 82.

Verse 18. In everything give thanks] If God give prosperity, praise him, and it shall be increased, saith Augustine. If adversity, praise him, and it shall be removed, or at least sanctified. Job blessed God as well for taking as giving, Job. 1. He knew that God afflicted him, Non ad exitium, sed ad exercitium, to refine him, not to ruine him. But this is Christianorum propria virtus, saith Hierom, a practice proper to Christians; to be heartily thankful for crosses. Basil spends all his Sermon upon this Text, in this theme. Every bird can sing in a Summers day, and it is easie to swim in a warm bath: but in deep affliction to cover God altar not with our tears, as Mal. 2. 13. but with the calves of our lips, Hos. 14. 2. this none can do but the truly religious.

Verse 19. Quench not the spirit] In his motions or graces. See the Canon for the fire on the altar, and observe it, Lev. 6. 12, 13. Confess here as Hezekiah, did, 2 Chron. 29.6, 7. And take the Apostles counsel, 2 Tim. 1. 6. Stir up this fire on the hearth of our hearts; let the Priests lips blow it up into a flame, despise not prophecying, &c. It may be quenched either by the with-drawing of fuel (neglect of ordinances) or by casting on water (falling into foul courses.)

Verse 20. Despise not] i. e. Highly honour, and preciously esteem, as an honourary given by Christ to his Church at his wonderful ascension, Psal. 51. 17. Eph. 4. 8, 11.

Prophecying] That is, preaching, 1 Cor. 14. 3. so called, because they took their texts out of some of the Prophets.

Verse 21. Prove all things] Take nothing that you hear upon trust, but bring all to the Test, Isa. 8. 20. To the law, i. e. the old Testament, and to the Testimony, i. e. the new, which is by S. John often called the Testimony. Mercer observes that of the Hebrew word Ozen for an ear, cometh Moznaiim for a pair of ballances; to note that we must weigh what we hear; our two ears must be as ballances for that purpose.

Νῆφε καὶ μέμνησο ἀκροᾶσθαι. Epicharm.

Hold fast that which is good] Orthodox, currant, agreeable to, and approvable by the Scriptures; especially that which God hath made good and sweet to your own souls. Hold fast that thou hast, &c. Hast thou found honey? eat it, Prov. 25. 16. Go on to heaven eating of it, as Sampson did of his honey-comb.

Verse 22. Abstain from all, &c.] Whatsoever is heterodox, unsound and unsavoury, shun it, as you would do a serpent in your way, or poison in your meats. Theodosius tare the Arrians arguments, presented to him in writing, because he found them repugnant to the Scriptures. And Austin retracteth even Ironies only, because they had the appearance of lying. God commanded the Jews to abstain from swines flesh; they would not so much as name it, but in their common talk would call a sow dubbar Achar, another thing. Elias Thisbit.

Verse 23. That your whole spirit, soul, body] The Temple consisted of three parts, so doth man; the body is as the outer court, the soul as the holy place, the Spirit as the most holy. So the world is three stories high, the earth, the visible heaven, and the third heaven.

Verse 24. Faithful is he, &c.] Prayer must be founded upon the faithfulness of God in fulfilling his promises. Hereby faith will be strengthened, and affection excited. Prayer is a putting the promises in suit.

Verse 25. Brethren, pray for us] The best may need the prayers of the meanest. God will have us beholden herein one to another, 1 Cor. 12. 21. 22. How earnest is that great Apostle in begging prayers! Rom. 15. 30. Pray for me, I say, Pray for me, I say (quoth father Latimer) for I am sometimes so fearful that I could creep into a mouse-hole; sometimes God doth visit me again with his comfort, &c. Act. and Mon. fol. 1565.

Verse 26. With an holy kiss] Our very civilities should savour of sanctity, and our common conversation relish of religion, Zach. 14. 20, 21.

Verse 27. That this Epistle be read] It is a matter of greatest necessity, and importance that the holy Scriptures be daily and duly read by all. A sad complaint it is, which reverend Moulin makes of his countrey-men the French Protestants; Whiles they burned us, saith he, for reading the Scriptures, we burnt with zeal to be reading of them. Now with our liberty is bred also negligence and disesteem of Gods word. And is it not so with us at this day? Our Ancestors in Hen. 8. time would sit up all night in reading and hearing, and were at great charges. Some gave five marks for a bible, that we may have for five s. &c. Moulins Theophilus, p. 278. Act and Mon. fol 750.

Verse 28. Amen] Amen is, 1. Assenting. 2. Assevering. 3. Assuring.

A

Digitized by Google

A COMMENTARY OR EXPOSITION Upon the ſecond Epiſtle of S. Paul to the Theſſalonians.

Chap. I.

Verſe 1. In God our Father, and the Lord, &c.]

AS God is in his people of a truth, 1 Cor. 14. 25. So are they in God: and as Chriſt is at Gods right hand, ſo is the Church at Chriſts right-hand, Pſal. 45. 9. Yea they are in him, and part of him, &c.

Verſe 2. Grace be to you, &c.] See the Note on 1 Cor. 1. 2.

And the Lord Jeſus Chriſt] Who is both the fountain, Ioh. 1. 16. and the conduit, Ioh. 1. 17. For of his fulneſs we have all received grace for grace. Grace, that is, Gods favour and reconciliation: For grace, that is, for the favour and love, that God the Father bare unto his ſon. Eph. 1. 6.

Verſe 3. We are bound to thank God] Duty is a debt, and a good heart is not well till it have diſcharged it. As he that hath ſomewhat lying on his ſtomack cannot be at eaſe till he hath got it up: ſo neither muſt we, till disburdened in ſounding forth Gods praiſes for the good he hath beſtowed on us, or on others for our uſe. This, ſaith Luther, is ſancta crapula: And it can be no hurt to have our hearts thus overcharged.

Becauſe that faith groweth exceedingly] As corn or plants do after a binding drouth. They were under perſecution, verſ. 4. and gat by it. Storms of perſecution beat Gods people into their harbour; make them look to their tackling patience, to their Anchor hope, to their helm faith, to their card the Word of God, to their Captain Chriſt: whereas ſecurity like a calm, maketh us forget both our danger and deliverer. Adverſity hath whipt many a ſoul to heaven (ſaith one) which otherwiſe proſperity had coached to hell. We are like to childrens tops (ſaith Another) that will go but little longer then they are whipt. How oft are we ſitting down on earth, as if we were loth to go any further, till affliction call to us, as the Angel to Eliah, Up, thou haſt a great way to go, and then we trigg.

Verſe

Verse 4. For your patience and faith] Faith patienteth the heart, by putting the head into heaven afore-hand, and giving a man a glimpse of future glory. Faith drinks to a suffering Saint in a cup of Nepenthes, and saith, Be of good courage, and of good carriage under the Cross. Flebile principium melior fortuna sequetur. The right hand of the Lord can mend all. Faith wraps it self in the promises, layes the soul upon Christ, and maketh it of weak to become strong. Heb. 11. 34. Whatsoever cross cometh upon it, Faith is either as a Wreath betwixt the shoulder and the burden, that it wring not, or else a remover of it from the soul to God, by vertue of that Writ or Warrant, Psal. 55. Cast thy burthen, &c.

ἔνδειγμα. Indigitatio. Verse 5. Which is a manifest token] The Saints sufferings here are an ocular demonstration of a future judgement, wherein all their wrongs shall be righted, all their labour of love recompensed. This held Jobs head above water, when else he had been overwhelmed with the floods of affliction, Job 19. 25. So Dan. 12. 1, 2. Though things be otherwise darkly delivered, yet when the Jews were to lose land and life, then plainly the general judgement is mentioned, So Heb. 11. 35.

Verse 6. To recompense tribulation] To trouble these troublers of Israel, and that throughout all eternity, because they would be alwayes troubling Gods people if they might: as it is said of the Scorpion, that there is not one minute, wherein it doth not put forth the sting. Plin.

Verse 7. Rest with us] As Noahs Ark, after much tossing, rested upon the mountains of Ararat; as the Ark of the Covenant formerly transportative, was at length setled in Solomons Temple. The word here used properly signifieth remission and relaxation from hard labour, Apoc. 14. 13. they rest from their labours. And as the sleep of a labouring man is sweet; so here. Aresis.

With his mighty Angels] O what a glorious day must that needs be, when so many glorious Suns shall shine at once; The Lord Christ out-shining them all, Velut inter stellas Luna minores! he will not leave one Angel in heaven behind him. Mark 8 38.

Verse 8. In flaming fire] Natural fire, 2 Pet. 3. 6, 7. whereby the elements shall melt like scalding lead upon the wicked, whiles they give account with all the world on a flaming fire about their ears. Of this last dreadful fire the very Heathen had some blind notions. Esse quoque in fatis meminit, &c. Lucretius and Tully say somewhat to it, but little to the purpose. Ovid Metam. lib. 1. De nat. deor.

And that obey not the Gospel] This is the grand sin of this age, Joh. 3. 19. No sin will gripe so in hell as this. This will be a bodkin at the heart one day, I might have been delivered; but I have willfully cut the throat of my poor soul by refusing those rich offers of mercy made me in the Gospel.

Verse 9. Who shall be punished] Here's the pain of sense, of eternity of extremity.

From the presence] Heres the pain of loss, which is, of the two, the greater.

And from the glory of his power] God will set himself to inflict upon the damned such a measure of misery as his power can extend unto.

Verse 10. To be glorified] This is the chief end of his coming: like as he reprobateth some that his mercy in electing others may the more appear.

To be admired] When they shall be seen to shine as the firmament, nay as the stars, Dan. 12. 3. nay as the Sun, Mat. 13. 43. nay as Christ himself, that Sun of righteousness, to the great admiration of all men. Admiration is the overplus of expectation: Christ admired at his own work in the Centurions faith, in Nathaniels integrity (Behold an Israelite indeed) in his Spouses beauty, Cant. 4. How much more shall others admire it at that day, when grace shall become glory, when there shall be no spot, wrinkle, or other deformity? when the Saints shall set the crown upon Christs head, Cant 3. 11. and cast down their crowns at his feet, Rev. 4. 10, 11. saying, Thou art worthy, &c.

Verse 11. The work of faith with power] Without which power neither the goodness of God, nor the good pleasure of his goodness, that is, his decree of glorifying us, nor the work of faith could be effected.

Verse 12. That the name of our Lord] It is much for the honour of the Saints that Christ shall account himself glorified in their glory. Neither is it for their honour only, but for their advantage; for this glory of Christ shall redound unto them: therefore it is added by the Apostle, And ye in him.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

CHAP. II.

Verse 1. Now we beseech you, brethren]

CHrists spokesmen must be fair spoken, so wooing for him, that they may win upon mens hearts, leading by the hand those that are willing, and drawing after a sort those that are less willing, that they may present them as a chaste virgin to Christ, 2 Cor. 11.2. This earnest obtestation imports, that it is both easie and dangerous to be carried away by seducers: for the Scripture doth not use to cleave straws with beetles, to be so serious in a slight matter. We beseech you, of all loves. Brethren, womb-brethren, as near in nature as is possible. By the coming of our Lord Jesus, whom you love, look and long for. And by our gathering together, as ever you desire and hope to hover under his wings, as the chickens under the hens, that the infernal kites catch you not at that day.

ἐρωτῶμεν ab ἔνστασις. Alii ἀπὸ τοῦ ἐνίστασθαι ἐπιστασίας: fruitless. ἐπισυναγωγὴ i.

By the coming of our Lord] He draweth an argument from the matter under hand, wherewith their hearts were now heated aforehand. It must be an elaborate speech that shall work upon the heart.

And by our gathering together unto him] In that last and great day, when all the Eagles shall be gathered to that once dead, but now all-quickning carcase: when the sign of the Son of man shall be lifted up as an Ensign, and all the Saints shall repair to it, as the souldiers do to their colours. Mat 24.28. Ephes. 1.10.

Verse 2. That ye be not soon shaken] As sea-men are tossed by a tempest, and even brought to their wits ends, Psal. 107.27. That ye be not shaken out of your wits, and put beside your selves; so the words may be rendred. And indeed errours and heresies sanam tollunt de cardine mentem, drive men out of their little wits; as we see by woful experience at this day. Σαλευθῆναι, à nomine σαλεύω, salum.

Or be troubled] Or, terrified, as with a sudden hubbub, alarm, tumult, uproar. It imports such perturbation as ariseth from rumour, Mark 13. or relation of something troublesom. θροεῖσθαι.

Neither by spirit] Pretended revelations, such as was that whereby the old impostor couzened that young Prophet into a Lyons mouth.

Nor by word] Traditions, unwritten verities, &c.

Nor by letter] Counterfeited, suppositious, spurious, such as were those Gospels that went under the names of S. Thomas, S. Bartholomew, &c. Or by wresting and writhing that passage of his former letter, 1 Thess. 4.17. to another meaning then ever the Apostle intended it. So S. Austin was served, and he foresaw it: I believe, saith he, that some of my Readers will imagine me sensisse quod non sensi, aut non sensisse quod sensi, that I was in many things of another mind, then ever I was indeed. And it fell out accordingly: For as Baronius witnesseth, after S. Austins death there arose up divers, Qui ex ejus scriptis malè perceptis complures invexerunt errores, who by mistaking of what he had written, brought in many pernicious errors, and vouched him for their Author. Aug. lib. 1 de Trin. c. 3. Baron Annal. Tom. 6.

As that the day of Christ] Peters scoffers asked, Where is the promise of his coming? As if Christ would never come. These were afraid he would come too soon, and take them with their task undone. The Devil usually tempteth by extreams, as he did our Saviour, Mat. 4. and as he did Mr. Knox upon his death-bed, first to despair, by setting his sins before him; and then to presumption, by reminding him of his reformations.

Is at hand] Just now, this present year, for so the Greek signifieth. This fear racked, and almost wrecked their minds, as a storm forceth a ship riding in the road, to cut cable. ἐνέστηκεν.

Verse 3. Except there come a falling] Gr. An apostasie viz. of people from the truth, when the whole world went a wondering, and a wandring after the beast, Rev. 13.3. To the fathers these prophecies of Antichrist were riddles. The prophecy is sealed to the end, Dan. 12. till unsealed by event. Austin saith ingenuously, he understood not this text. And herein he did better then those other of the Latine Fathers that interpreted it of the falling away of sundry Nations from the Roman Empire. Daniel set forth Ἀποστασία.

Digitized by Google

Antichrist typically in that little Antichrist, Antiochus. Paul topically, in this Chapter. John writeth the mysterie of Antichrist in his Revelation: Paul sets a commentary upon him, and graphically describeth him, calling him Apostasie in the abstract here, as some will have it; and in the next verse, that man of sin, that is, merum scelus, as Beza hath it.

Lips. Ant. lect. And that man of sin] That breathing devil, so portentously, so peerlesly vicious, Ut ejus nomen non hominis, sed vitii esse videatur (as Lipsius saith of one Tubulus a Roman Prætor) that sin it self can hardly be more sinfull.

The son of perdition] Destined to destruction, even to be cast alive into the lake of fire burning with brimstone, Rev. 19.20. Well might Pope Marcellus the second strike his hand upon the Table, and say, Non video quomodò qui locum hunc altissimum tenent, salvari possunt. I see not how any Pope can be saved. When I was first in orders (said Pope Pius Quintus) I had some good hopes of salvation; When I was made a Cardinal, I doubted: but now that I am Pope, I do almost despair.

Onuph. in vita. Cornel. a Lapide in Num. 11. 11.

Ἀντικείμενος. Verse 4. Who opposeth himself] Who standeth in full opposition to Christ, as a counter-Christ. The enemy and adversary is this wicked Haman, Esth. 7.6. so this man of sin, that Antichrist of Rome. When the Pope sets forth any Buls, commonly he thus concludes, Non obstantibus constitutionibus Apostolicis, cæterisq; contrariis quibuscunq;. The constitutions and ordinances of the Apostles, and all things else to the contrary notwithstanding. The Popes interpretation of Scripture, though it never so much cross the Text, yet it is to be esteemed the very Word of God, saith Hosius.

Tamen est ipsissimum Dei verbum.

Quint. l. 9. c. 2. And exalteth himself] Perfrica frontem (said Calvus to Vatinius) & dignior eris te dic qui Prætor fieres quam Catonem. Pope Boniface 3. set a good face upon it, and arrogated the title of Universal Bishop. The ancient Romans painted pride with three crowns on her head. On the first was inscribed Transcendo, on the second, Non obedio, on the third, Perturbo. The modern Romans see all this daily acted by their Bishop.

Above all that is called god] In the year 1540. Pope Paul the third suffered himself to be thus blasphemously flattered, Paulo tertio optimo maximo in terris Deo. In the year 1610. Books were printed at Bonony and at Naples, with this inscription, Paulo V. vicedeo, Christianæ reipublicæ Monarchæ invictissimo, Pontificiæ omnipotentiæ conservatori acerrimo. To Paul the fift vice-god, most invincible Monarch of Christendom, most stout Defender of the Papal omnipotency. The Pope can do all that Christ can do, and is more then God, saith Hostiensis the Canonist, and after him Zabarel: Of wrong he can make right, of vice vertue, of nothing something, saith Bellarmine. He is lifted above the angels, so that he can excommunicate them: he can dispense against not only the law of nature, but against all the Evangelists, Prophets, and Apostles, saith Pope John 23. in extrav. one of his Parasites clawed him thus, Cap. 4.

Lib. 1. de Pontif. Rom.

Oraclis vocis mundi moderaris habenas:
Et meritò in terris dicaris esse Deus.

σέβασμα. Or that is worshipped] Or, That is August, above Princes and Potentates. He is cried up for Lord of Lords and King of Kings, one that hath both the swords throughout the world, and an illimited Empire over all reasonable creatures, Dulia adorandus, &c. How he trod upon the Emperor of Germany, and how he lashed Henry 2. of England, and Henry 4. of France till the blood followed, is better known, then that I need here to relate. Sed exorto Evangelii jubare sagaciores (ut spero) principes ad nutum Romani Orbilii non salvent subligacula, saith one. Our Richard the first, going for the Holy-Land, had conference with one Joachim a Cistertian Abbot, being then in Calabria, near Sicily; whom, at his coming, he heard preaching and expounding the Apocalyps touching the afflictions of the Church, and concerning Antichrist, which (said he) was then born and in the city of Rome, and shall be advanced to the Sea Apostolick; of whom the Apostle said, He shall extol himself above all that is called God; and that the seven Crowns were the Kings and Princes of the earth, that obeyed him. Much about the same time, Pope Celestine crowned the Emperor Henry and his Empress Constantia at Rome with his feet, and kickt off the same crown again.

Hoveden. p. 388.

Speed 534.

Sitteth in the Temple of God] Sitting is a stile proper to the Pope; who is said not to reign, but to sit so many years or moneths; and his Place of Dominion is called his See, or Seat. Robert Grosthead Bishop of Lincoln called him in a Letter Heretick, Antichrist sitting in the chair of Pestilence, and next to Lucifer himself,

Gul. Paris. Speed 630.

Digitized by Google

Benedictus

Benedictus the Sorboniſt affirmeth, that the Aſs in the Hiſtory of Balaam ſignifyeth the Church. An quia Pontifex Balaam eſt qui ei inſidet? ſaith D. Raynolds, i.e. Doth he not mean by it, that the Pope is Balaam that ſitteth upon that Aſs? England was once called the Popes Aſs, for bearing his burdens, and obeying his Mandates. But beſide the preſent Reformation (which is ſuch as Ages paſt deſpaired of, the preſent admire, and the future ſhall ſtand amazed at) in the year 1245. (lo, ſo long ſince) the Pope was denyed entrance into England: it being ſaid, that he was but like a Mouſe in a ſatchel, or a Snake in ones boſom, who did but ill repay their Hoſts for their lodging. De idol. Rom. Sculket. An. Decad 2. ep. dedic. Speed 622. ex Pariſ.

Verſe 5. Remember ye not] Satan uſually hides from us that which ſhould help us. But as the ſoul ſhould be as it were an holy Ark: ſo ſhould the memory be as the pot of Manna, preſerving holy truths for conſtant uſe.

Verſe 6. What withholdeth, &c.] viz. The Roman Empire, which had its riſe, raign and ruine, whereupon the Popedom was founded, and grew to that exceſſive greatneſs, that it laboured with nothing more then with the weightineſs of it ſelf.

Verſe 7. For the myſterie of iniquity] Policy palliated with the name of Piety; diſſembled ſanctity which is double iniquity. That Council of Trent (where Popery was eſtabliſhed by a Law in all the parts of it, and a Divorce ſued out from Chriſt) was carried by the Pope and his Complices with ſuch infinite guile and craft, as that themſelves will even ſmile in the triumphs of their own wits (when they hear it but mentioned) as at a maſter-ſtratagem, a very myſterie of iniquity. Spec Europ.

Doth already work] In thoſe ancient Apoſtates and Antichriſts, S. John complaineth of. Tertullian condemneth the Biſhops ſprouting ambition in theſe words, I hear that there is a peremptory edict ſet forth alate, Pontifex ſcilicet maximus, Epiſcopus Epiſcoporum dicit, &c. Thus ſaith the chief-Prieſt, the Biſhop of Biſhops, &c. Odi faſtum illius Eccleſiæ, ſaith Baſil, I hate the pride of that Weſtern Church. Ammianus Marcellinus (a Heathen Hiſtorian) ſharply taxeth the Roman Biſhops of his time for their pride and prodigality. How ſtifly did Gregory the great oppoſe John of Conſtantinople for affecting the title of Univerſal Biſhop? And yet how baſely did the ſame Gregory collogue with Phocas the Emperour, that himſelf might be ſo ſtiled? This Phocas, a wilde, drunken, bloody, adulterous tyrant, advanced the Biſhop of Rome (Gregories ſucceſſor) to the Primacy, and was therefore ſlaughtered by Heraclius, who cut off his wicked hands and feet, and then his genitals by piece-meal. This he called ἰσοθὺς Δυσμὰς. Vehiculis inſidentes circumſpectè veſtiti, epulas curantes profuſas, &c. Zonaras.

Until he be taken out of the way] That is, The Roman Emperor have removed his ſeat to Conſtantinople, that Rome may become the neſt of Antichriſt. Joannes de Columna writeth, That Otho Emperour of Germany thought to have ſeated himſelf at Rome (as former Emperors had done) and began to build him there a ſtately pallace. But at the earneſt importunity of the Romans he gave over that deſign. The like had been attempted 300. years before by Conſtans nephew to Heraclius, but could never be effected. This was by a ſingular Providence of God (ſaith Genebrard, a Popiſh Chronologer) that the Kingdom of the Church prophecied of by Daniel might have it's ſeat at Rome. If he had ſaid, that the kingdom of Antichriſt, prophecied of by S. Paul and S. John, might have its ſeat in that City ſeated upon ſeven hills, he had ſaid the very truth, he had hit the nail on the head. In mari. hiſtor. Theophanes. Zonaras. Cedrenus. Geneb Chron.

Verſe 8. And then ſhall that wicked] Gr. That lawleſs, yokeleſs, maſterleſs monſter, to whom in the Council of Lateran 1516. (one year only before Luther ſtood up to reform) there was granted plenary power over the whole Church; which was never ſetled upon him in any former Council. Pope Nicholas the firſt ſaid, That he was above Law, becauſe Conſtantine had ſtiled the Pope God. But the very gloſs derides him for this inference. Ἀνομος. Diſt. 96.

With the ſpirit of his mouth] i.e. With the evidence of his word in the mouths of his faithful Miniſters. Vide catalogum Teſtium veritatis. Bellarmine confeſſeth to his great grief, that ever ſince the Lutherans have declared the Pope to be Antichriſt, his kingdom hath not only not increaſed, but every day more and more decreaſed and decayed. What long hath been the opinion and fear of ſome not unconſiderable Divines, that Antichriſt, before his abolition, ſhall once again overflow the whole face of the Weſt, and ſuppreſs the true Proteſtant Churches, I pray God to avert. Lib. 3. de Papa Rom. cap. 21.

With the brightneſs of his coming] At the laſt day. The holy City ſhall they tread under foot fourty and two moneths, Rev. 11. 2. that is (as ſome compute it) till the year of grace, 1866. But that's but a conjecture. No more is that other, that Solomons Temple was finiſhed in the year of the world three thouſand; and was deſtroyed, together with the City, by the Romans in the year of the world exactly four thouſand: therefore the Spiritual Temple ſhall be conſummated in three thouſand, or perhaps in four thouſand more.

Digitized by Google

Lightfoots Harm.206.

Verſe 9. After the working of Satan] Who (as Gods Ape) works effectually in his, and by his agents upon others. By corrupt teachers Satan catcheth men, as a cunning fiſher by one fiſh catcheth another, that he may feed upon both.

And lying wonders] The devil is aſhamed (ſaith the Jeſuite Gretſer) to confirm Luthers doctrine by miracles. But he that now requireth miracles to make him to believe, is himſelf a great miracle, ſaith Auſtin.

Cent.10 c.11.

Verſe 10. And with all deceivableneſs] Popery is nothing elſe but a great lie, a grand impoſture, a farrago of falſities and hereſies. It is not without cauſe, that the Centuriſts ſay, That all the old Hereticks fled, and hid themſelves in the Popiſh Clergy.

Becauſe they received not the love] This is the great Goſpel-ſin, puniſhed by God with ſtrong deluſions, vile affections, juſt damnation. Infatuati ſeducentur, ſeducti judicabuntur. Given up by God, they ſhall be ſeduced, and being ſeduced they ſhall be condemned. Its Auſtins note upon this Text.

Wolph. mem. lect.

Verſe 11. Strong deluſion.] Gr. The efficacy of errour. As in thoſe at Genoa that ſhew the Aſſes tail whereupon our Saviour rode, for an holy relique, and perform divine worſhip to it. And in thoſe that wear out the marble croſſes graven in the pavements of their Churches, with their often kiſſing them. The crucifix which is in the City of Burgus, the Prieſts ſhew to great perſonages, as if it were Chriſt himſelf: telling them that his hair and nails do grow miraculouſly, which they cut and pare monethly, and give to Noble-men, as holy Reliques. The Jeſuites confeſs, that the legend of miracles of their Saints is for moſt part falſe; but it was made for good intention: and herein, that it is lawfull and meritorious to lie, and write ſuch things, to the end the common people might with greater zeal ſerve God and his Saints: and eſpecially to draw the women to good order, being by nature facile and credulous, addicted to novelties and miracles.

Spec. Europ.

Spaniſh pilgr.

Lev.13.29.

Verſe 12. That they all might be damned] Hereſie is the leproſie in the head, which is utterly uncurable, and deſtroys the ſoul. See *Rev.*19.21.

Had pleaſure in unrighteouſneſs] Theſe are delivered up to that dead and dedolent diſpoſition, *Eph.*4.19. loſing at length all paſſive power alſo of awakening out of the ſnare of the devil, who taketh them alive at his pleaſure, 2 *Tim.*2.ult.

Verſe 13. But we are bound, &c.] Leſt they ſhould be diſcouraged with the former diſcourſe, the Apoſtle tels them, that being elect they cannot be finally deceived. So the Author to the Hebrews, *chap.*6.9. Zuinglius, after that he had terrified the wicked, was wont to come in with Bone vir, hoc nihil ad te. This is nothing to thee, thou faithfull Chriſtian. We cannot beat the dogs, but the children will cry, and muſt therefore be ſtilled and cheared up.

And belief of the truth] That is, of Chriſt the object, in the glaſs of the Goſpel.

Verſe 14. To the obtaining of the glory] This is the end of Faith, as Faith is of effectual Calling.

Verſe 15. Stand faſt] Though never ſo many fall from the Faith. Falling Stars were never but Meteors. God alſo will have the Tree of his Church to be ſhaken ſometimes, that rotten fruit may fall off; and that there may be a ſhedding of the good from temporaries.

Hold the traditions] Hold faſt by theſe, that ye may ſtand the faſter.

Verſe 16. And good hope] The fruit of everlaſting conſolation, *Rom.*15.4. And well called good, becauſe it hath for it's object the greateſt good, and that which is of greateſt certainty, *Heb.*11.1.

Verſe 17. Stabliſh you] Taking you by the hand, and laying hold on you, like as ye lay hold upon his Word, *ver.*15.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

CHAP. III.

Verse 1. Finally, Brethren, &c.]

Quod superest: That which yet remains, brethren. Ministers have never done, but have somewhat more to say (Redit labor actus in orbem) when they have said their utmost. τὸ λοιπὸν.

Pray for us] As he had done for them, chap. 2. 16, 17. See the like, 1 Thes. 5. 23. 25. with the Notes. O pray (said a dying Dutch Divine) that God would preserve the Gospel: Pontifex enim Rom. & Concilium Tridentinum mira moliuntur: For the Pope and his Trent Conventicle are plotting strange businesses.

May have free course.] Gr. May run its race, as the Sun doth, Psal. 19. Eusebius saith that the Gospel spred at first through the world, like a Sun-beam. τρέχῃ. Hist. l. 2. c. 3.

And be glorified] As it was Act. 13. 48. The word never worketh, till it be received with admiration.

Verse 2. From unreasonable] Men compact of meer incongruities, solæcising in opinion, speeches, actions, all. Ἀτόπων.

For all men have not faith] And are therefore unreasonable; nothing is more irrational then irreligion. An unbeliever is no better (but in some respects worse) then a beast: A brutish person skilfull to destroy, Ezek. 21. 31.

Verse 3. But God is faithfull] Though men be faithless: and though they be evil, as verse 2. yet he shall keep you from evil, from whatsoever adverse power either of men or devils. Thus the Saints may finde and fetch comfort from God under whatsoever disasters. They go always under a double guard, the peace of God within them, Phil. 4. 7. and the power of God without them, 1 Pet. 1. 5. How then can they possibly miscarry? φρουρήσει. φρουρουμένους.

Verse 4. That ye both do, and will do] Qui monet ut facias quod jam facis, ille monendo laudat, &c. Here the Apostle, Orator-like, entereth their bosoms: and by praising their present obedience, artificially wresteth from them a redoubled diligence; Virtus laudata crescit. Thus being crafty, he catcheth them with guile, as he did those Corinthians, 2. ep. 12. 16. It must be an elaborate discourse that shall work upon the heart.

Verse 5. And the Lord direct] Or rectifie your crooked hearts, and distorted affections, that stand a cross to all good, till God set them to rights. Mens perswasions are but as a key to a lock that's out of order, unless God co-operate. κατευθύναι.

Verse 6. Now we command you] To shew how hardly we are divided from evil company, as loth to depart, as Lots wife out of Sodom, Vel ut canis famelicus ab uncto corio.

That ye withdraw your selves] That ye shun them as studiously as the Sea-man doth a rock or shelf. στέλλεσθαι. Nautarum proprium.

From every brother that walketh disorderly] From every profligate professor, and carnal Gospeller, that walketh contra gnomonem & Canonem Decalogi, cuique vita est incomposita, & pessimè morata (as an Interpreter speaketh) contrary to God, and to every good work reprobate.

And not after the tradition] sc. That men should sweat out their living and earn it before they eat it. Sin brought in sweat, Gen. 3. 19. And now, not to sweat, increaseth sin.

Verse 7. For your selves know] You idle addle-heads, verse 11. For to these he here directs his speech, that by doing nothing, had learned at length to do naughtily. Nihil agendo male agere discimus.

We behaved not our selves disorderly] Gr. We brake not our ranks, as unruly souldiers. ἠτακτήσαμεν.

Verse 8. Any mans bread for nought] But earn'd it before we eat it. Bread should not be eaten, till it sweat in a mans hand, or head.

Verse 9. Not because we have not power] Posse & nolle nobile est. See the Notes on 1 Cor. 9. 4 6, 7, 11, &c. Chrysost.

But to make our selves an example] Those therefore that have enough to live on, must yet be doing something whereby the world may be the better: and not think to come hither meerly as Rats and Mice, only to devour victuals, and to run squeaking up and down. These are Cyphers, or rather excrements in humane society. By the Law of Mahomet, the great Turk himself is bound to exercise some manual Trade or occupation (for

Digitized by Google

Peacham. (for none muſt be idle) as Solyman the Magnificent, that ſo threatned Vienna, his trade was making of Arrow-heads, Achmat the laſt, horn-rings for Archers.

Verſe 10. That if any would not work] In the ſweat of thy noſe ſhalt thou eat thy bread, was the old ſanction: Yea Paradiſe, that was mans ſtore-houſe, was alſo his work-
Gen. 3. houſe. They bury themſelves alive, that, as body-lice, live on other mens labours; and it is a ſin to ſuccour them. Seneca profeſſed, That he had rather be ſick in his bed then out of imployment.

Verſe 11. Working not at all] But making Religion a maſk for idleneſs: whoſe whole life is to eat, and drink, and ſleep, and ſport, and ſit, and talk, and laugh themſelves fat. Theſe are an odious ſort of Chriſtians; a kinde of vagrant people, that having little to do, are ſet a work by the devil: for idleneſs is the hour of temptation. Standing pools are full of vermine. Behemoth lieth in the fens, Job 40.21.

But are buſie-bodies] Nihil agentes, ſed curiosè ſatagentes: Not working at home, but over-working abroad, though to no purpoſe or profit.

Verſe 12. That with quietneſs] Being no medler in other mens matters, but minding his own. Res tuas age. The pragmatical perſon is an odious perſon, and the place where he lives longs for a vomit to ſpue him out. See the Note on 1 Theſ. 4.11.

Verſe 13. Be not weary in Wel-doing] No, not to thoſe diſorderly (and therefore leſs worthy) walkers, if in extream neceſſity, or if thereby ye may win them from the error of their way. As if any prove refractory and irreformable.

σημειοῦσθε. Note that man] Or; Notice him, as infamous; brand him, beware of him; let him ſee a ſtrangeneſs in you toward him.

ἵνα ἐντραπῇ, Vt quærat ubi ſe poſſit præ pudore occultare. Cameron. Curtius. That he may be aſhamed] Gr. That he may turn into himſelf, or turn ſhort again upon himſelf; recognize his diſorders, and return to a better courſe. The repenting Prodigal is ſaid to come to himſelf, Luk. 15.17. and thoſe relenting Iſraelites to bethink themſelves, or to bring back to their hearts, 1 Kin. 8.47. The Greek here ſignifies, that he may hide his head for ſhame; Sed illum ego periiſſe dico, cui periit pudor. He's paſt grace that is paſt ſhame.

Verſe 15. Yet count him not, &c.] If there be but aliquid Chriſti, any thing of Chriſt to be diſcerned in him.

But admoniſh him as a brother] Conſcience is a nice and ſullen dame; man a croſs, crabbed creature, and will hardly be wrought upon by a Stoical ſowrneſs, or an imperious boiſterouſneſs: but muſt be gently handled, and fairly admoniſhed. Gentle ſhowrs comfort the earth, when daſhing ſtorms drown the ſeed.

Verſe 16. Now the Lord, &c.] He begins, continues and concludes with fervent prayer. All our Sacrifices ſhould be ſalted with this ſalt, perfumed with this incenſe of prayer, Col. 3.17.

The Lord be with you all] Thus he poureth out his affection, by prayer upon prayer for them. A ſweet cloſing up!

Verſes 17, 18. So I write, The grace, &c.] This is that Saint Paul would have every of his Epiſtles ſtamped with his own hand, viz. prayer for all his people.

A

Digitized by Google

A COMMENTARY OR EXPOSITION Upon the first Epistle of S. Paul to Timothy.

Chap. I.

Verse 1. By the Commandment of God]

FOR how should he have preached except he had been sent? This he mentioneth, Rom. 10. 15. as a thing impossible.

Of God our Saviour] So the Father also is here called. Hoc autem quantum est? (saith Tully) Is nimirum Soter est, qui salutem dedit. The Greek word here used is so emphatical, that other tongues can hardly express it. Act. 4. in Ver.

Our hope] So Christ is called, because the perfection of our life is hid with Christ in God. Something we have in possession, but more in reversion.

Verse 2. Mine own son] This the Apostle speaketh ἀπὸ πολλῆς φιλοσοφίας, Out of deep affection, as Chrysostom observeth.

Grace, mercy and peace] Not only Grace and peace, as to others. When we pray for Ministers, we must be more then ordinary earnest for them with God. These three are joyned together only in the Epistles to Timothy and Titus; as Theophylact out of Chrysostom hath observed.

Verse 3. That they teach no other doctrine] Either for matter or manner, for substance or circumstance. What hideous Heresies are now-adays broached and preached amongst us in City and Countrey. See Mr. Edwards his Gangrena, the first and second part.

Verse 4. Endless Genealogies] It is but laborious loss of time to search into those things, whereof we can neither have proof nor profit: the gains will not pay for the pains, the task is not worthy the toil. Toilsom toys they are, hard to come by, but of no use or worth: like an olive or date-stone, hard to crack the one, or cleave the other; but nothing, or nothing worth ought, when crackt or cloven within either. The shel-fish among the Jews was counted unclean, because it had but a little meat, and a great deal of labour to get it.

Digitized by Google

Verse

Verse 5. Now the end of the commandment] Or, of the charge, to wit of that charge, to teach no other doctrine, &c. v. 3. 4. As if the Apostle had said, This is that that a teacher should aim at, to beget such a love in his hearers hearts, as may speak them true believers, and good livers. Boni Catholici sunt (saith Augustine) qui & fidem integram sequuntur, & bonos mores. Those are good Catholikes that believe well, and live well.

ἀστοχήσαντες. Verse 6. Some having swerved] Having missed the mark, as unskilful shooters, being heavenly-wide, as Sir Philip Sidney English-eth that Proverb, Toto errant cœlo.

Mr Burroughs. Have turned aside unto vain jangling] Ignoble quarrels, Ubi vincere inglorium est, atteri sordidum, wherein a man cannot quit himself so as to come off with credit or comfort; Mr. Dod never loved to meddle with controversies of the times; he gave that Melch. Adam. reason, he found his heart the worse when he did. Grinæus provoked by Pistorius to dispute, sent back the Letters (not so much as opening the Seal) with this answer out of Chrysostom, Inhonestum est, honestam matronam cum meretrice litigare. It is no honor for an honest Matron to scold with an harlot. See the Note on ver. 4.

Aug. contra Faust. Verse 7. Understanding neither what] Non curo illos, saith Augustine, qui vel non intelligendo reprehendunt, vel reprehendendo non intelligunt. I pass not for the censures of such as dare to reprehend what they do not comprehend.

Mr. Sarson. Nor whereof they affirm] And are therefore to be slighted. Galatinus (saith One) as he affirmeth without reason, so he may be dismissed without refutation.

Verse 8. If a man use it lawfully] For discovery of sin, for manuduction to Christ, Cyropæd. l. 1. and for a Rule of Life. Lex, lux, Prov. 6. 23. Xenophon telleth us, That this was the drift of the Persian Laws, to keep men from acting, yea from covering any thing evil or idle.

κεῖται. Verse 9. Is not made for a righteous] For he is freed by Christ from the coaction, malediction and irritation of the Law. The Law lyeth not upon the righteous (so the Greek soundeth) it urgeth not upon them, as it doth upon the wicked. To these it is as chains and shackles, to the righteous as girdles and garters, which gird up his loyns and expe-

Dr. Preston. dite his course the better. It confineth him (saith a Reverend man) to live in that element where he would live; as if one should be confined to Paradise, where he would be, though there were no such Law. The wicked (on the contrary) it confineth to the place where he would not be, and to the actions that he would not do; as Shimei confined, leapeth over the pale after profit and pleasure, and dyeth for it.

But for the lawless, &c.] Those masterless monsters, that send messages after Christ, saying, We will not have this man to raign over us. But shall they thus escape by iniquity? In thine anger thou wilt cast down these people, O God, Psal. 56. 7. Aut faciendum, aut patiendum. They that will not bend shall break; They that will not be Christs subjects, shall be his foot-stool: his arrows are sharp in the hearts of the Kings enemies, whereby the people (that fall not down before him,) fall under him, Psal. 45. 5.

Verse 10. For men-stealers] That steal away other mens children; so those that steal other mens books and writings, and set them out in their own name: as one dealt Diod. Sic. by Diagoras, who thereupon, out of discontent (because he that had done it was not presently stricken with a thunder-bolt) became an Atheist. So Fabricius stole Tremellius his Syriack translation, Villa Vincentius stole Hyperius his Treatise De ratione studii Theologici, and Possevinus lately translated Dr. James his Cyprianus redivivus into his Apparatus Theologicus, and made it his own doing. Sic vos non vobis.

And if there be any other thing] For the Apostle took no delight to mention more of this cursed crew; but leaves them to the Law to handle and hamper them: as unruly Beasts, Dogs, Lions, Leopards are chained and caged up that they may not do mischief.

Verse 11. Of the blessed God] Blessed in himself, and to be everlastingly blessed of all creatures. Hence he is called, The blessed, Mark 14. 61. And frequently in the Commentaries of the Hebrew-Doctors he is set forth by this title Baruch hu, He that is blessed.

Verse 12. Who hath enabled me] Christs sends none but whom he gifts. Asinos elegit Christus & idiotas, sed oculavit in prudentes, simulque dona dedit & ministeria.

Verse 13. Who was before a blasphemer] Chrysostom observes it of Paul, as his greatest honour, that although he had obtained pardon of God for his sins, yet he is not ashamed to reckon them up to the world. So David does penance in a white sheet, as it were, Psa. 51. title. So Augustine writeth books of Confessions. And I was as obstinate a Papist, saith saith Latimer, as any was in England, and so servile an observer of the Popish decrees, that I thought I had never sufficiently mingled my massing-wine with water, and that I should never be damned if I were once a professed Frier. Also when I should be made Bachelour of Divinity, my whole Oration went against Philip Melanchthon and his opinions. And standing in the schools when Mr. Stafford (a godly Orthodox Divine) read, Latimer bad the schollars not to hear him, exhorted the people not to believe him. And yet the said Latimer confessed himself, that he gave thanks to God that he asked him forgiveness before he departed. Act. and Mon. 1571. Ibid. 924.

Digitized by Google

Verse 14. Was exceeding abundant] Hath abounded to flowing over: as the sea doth above mole-hils. I will scatter your sins as a mist, saith God, and they shall be cast into the midst of the sea. Note these two Metaphors, and despair, if thou canst. Paul was a blasphemer (and so sinned against the first Table) he was also a persecuter; (and sinned against the second Table) he was injurious, (and so came neer unto the unpardonable sin, and) yet he obtained mercy: albeit his ignorance was not invincible, but of a prave disposition. Chear up therefore and despond not. There is a Pleonasm of free grace for thee in other Scriptures, as Ephes. 2.7. Rom. 5. 20. but here's a Superpleonasm. ὑπερπλεονασμός.

Verse 15. This is a faithful saying] Worthy to be credited and embraced, as it was by Bilney the Martyr, who by this promise was much comforted in a great conflict. So was Ursine by Iob. 10. 29. Another by Isaiah 57. 15. And another by Isaiah 26. 3. saying, That God hath graciously made it fully good to his soul.

Of whom I am chief] Primus, quo nullus prior, as Gerson expounds it, Imò quo nullus pejor, as Augustine, worser then the worst. The true Poenitentiary doth not elevate but aggravate his sins against himself, is ever full in the mouth this way, as Dan. 9. 5. Paul vailes all his top-sails, we see, and sits down in the dust: villifying and nullifying himself to the utmost.

Verse 16. Might shew forth] By full demonstration and sufficient evidence, so that all might see and say, There is mercy with Christ that he may be feared, yea mercy rejoycing against judgement; that he may be everlastingly admired and adored. ἐπιδείξηται.

For a patern to them, &c.] Therefore the Apostle was assured of remission in an ordinary way, and not by any special revelation.

Verse 17. Invisible] God is too subtile, for sinew or sight to gear upon. We can but see his back-parts, and live; we need see no more, that we may live.

Now unto the King immortal] Paul cannot mention the great work of our redemption without a thankful acclamation. The Grecians being restored to liberty by the Roman General Q. Flaminius, he was entertained by them with such applauses and acclamations, while they roared out Saviour, Saviour, that the very birds that flew over them, astonished with the noise, fell to the ground. When Hunniades had overthrown Mosites, the Turks General, at his return from the Camp, some called him the Father, some the Defender of his countrey; the souldiers their Invincible General; the Captives Their Deliverer; the women Their Protectour, &c. Plut. in Flam. Turk Hist. 269.

The only wise God] The temple of Sophia in Constantinople is now the Turks chief Moschee, and by them still called Sophia, because they hold, even as we do, that the wisdom of God is incomprehensible. Ibid. 342.

Verse 18. Son Timothy] This is Timothies task, whom the Apostle fitly calleth Son, according to the custom both of those and these times. Patres eos dicimus qui nos catechesi instituerunt, saith Clement. We call them fathers that instruct and catechize us. Hence Numb. 3. 1. those there mentioned were Aarons sons by nature, and they are called Moses his sons, because he taught and instructed them.

Verse 19. Holding faith and a good conscience] A good conscience, saith one, is as it were a chest, wherein the doctrine of faith is to be kept safe, which will quickly be lost, if this chest be once broken: For God will give over to errours and heresies such as cast away conscience of walking after Gods Word. What a blinde buzzard then was that Popish Inquisitor, who said of the Waldenses, You may know the hereticks by their words and manners. Sunt enim in moribus compositi & modesti: superbiam in vestibus non habent, &c. They are neither immodest in their carriage, nor proud in their apparel, &c? Like unto this was the speech of the Bishop of Aliff in a Sermon preached at the Council of Trent; that as the faith of the Catholikes was better, so the hereticks exceeded them in good life. But can they live well if hereticks? how can the treasure D. Usher de christ. Eccles. succession. &c. Hist. of Counc. of Trent. 738.

Digitized by Google

be safe, if the Ship wherein it is laid, be split and broken? Surely a corrupt opinion will soon corrupt a mans life, as rheume falling from the head, doth putrifie the lungs and other vital parts.

παιδευθῶσι. Verse 20. That ye may learn] Ut castigati discant; that being buffeted and bodily tormented by Satan, as Acts 13. 2. (for as yet there were no Christian Magistrates) they may learn.

Not to blaspheme] That is, not to hold erroneously, and to live scandalously, to the reproach of the Gospel. Confer Prov. 30. 9.

Chap. II.

Verse 1. Supplications]

OR, Deprecations endited by that Spirit of supplication, or of deprecation, as some render it, Zach. 12. 10.

Prayers] Strictly taken for petitions or requests of Good at Gods hands, which go commonly accompanied with vows of better obedience, as Gen. 28. 21, 22. Psal. 51. 14. Hence they have their name.

προσευχαὶ.

Intercessions] Interparlings with God, either for our selves (whilest we stand upon Interrogatories with him, 1 Pet. 3. 21. as Paul doth, Rom. 8. 33, 34, 35. and expostulate as David often, but especially when Satan, sin, and conscience accuse us) or for others, whilest we complain to God against such as wrong them, and with all set our selves seriously to implore his aid for their relief and rescue.

ἐντεύξεις. ἐντεύγματα.

For all men] i. e. For all sorts of men, as the word (all) is used, Luke 11. 42.

Verse 2. For Kings, &c.] Though persecutors, if they have not yet sinned against the holy Ghost, as Julian had. Voluit scilicet Christus etiam aliquando Reginam in cœlum vehere, saith Luther of Elizabeth Queen of Denmark, who lived and died in the truth of the Gospel. God hath his, even among great ones too.

Luth. in ep. ad Iob. Agric.

A quiet and peaceable life] Quiet, from inbred tumults and commotions; and peaceable, from forraign invasions and incursions of the enemy. See Jer. 29. 7

In all godliness and honesty] And not come to eat the bread of our souls with the peril of our lives, as they do in divers places of this land at this day, Det meliora Deus. He will do it.

Verse 3. For this is good, &c.] viz. This praying for all men. And should we not frame to that, that God accepts, without questioning or quarrelling? Let us not dispute, but dispatch our masters will.

Verse 4. Who will have all men, &c.] God willeth, to wit, with a will whereby he inviteth, and putteth no bar, not with a will whereby he effecteth it, taking away all impediments.

That all men] Not distributively taken, but collectively, as thrice in one verse, Col. 1. 28.

Should be saved] viz. If they do what he commandeth; God doth not tie himself to cause them to do what he commandeth, that they may be saved.

And to come to the knowledge] The only way to salvation. Pray therefore that their eyes may be opened, Act. 26. 18.

Verse 5. For there is one God] sc. Both of Kings and Subjects, both of Heathens and Christians. Go boldly to him therefore, for your selves and others. Have we not all one Father? Mal. 2. 10. Art not thou our Father? Isa. 63. 16. O Lord (saith the Church in Habbacuck) art not thou from everlasting my God, mine holy One? It was a bold question, but God approves it, and assents to it in a gracious answer ere they went further; we shall not die, say they abruptly; by a cast of Gods countenance they could tell so much. So true is that of Iamblichus an Heathen (but herein he speaks more like a Christian) Supplicatio familiares & Deorum domesticos facit eos, qui ea utuntur. Prayer gives an humble boldness and an holy familiarity with God unto those that use it. And again, Prayer, saith he, is like a key whereby we may open Gods treasury, and take out of it plentiful mercy for our selves and others.

Lib. 5. cap. 27.

Between God and men] Gr. of God and men; he is God for the business with God; and man, for the business with man.

One

Digitized by Google

One Mediatour] Not of redemption only (as the Papists grant) but of intercession too. We need no other master of requests in heaven, but the man Christ Jesus, who being so near us in the matter of his incarnation, will never be strange to us in the business of intercession. But what horrible blasphemy is that of the Papists, who in their devotions say thus, By the blood of Thomas Becket, which he did spend, Make us, Christ, to climb where Thomas did ascend!

Alt. and Mon. fol. 1433.

Verse 6. A ransome] Gr. A counterprice: such as we could never have paid, but must have remained, and even rotted in prison, but for our All-sufficient surety and Saviour. Ἀντίλυτρον.

Verse 7. A teacher of the Gentiles] His Epistles therefore should be highly prized by us Gentiles, and diligently studied. S. Peter admires them, 2 Pet. 3. 15. and commends them to the Churches reading. And because there are some things in them hard to be understood, and easie to be wrested from their right meaning, vers. 16. it was therefore grave advice that one gives young Christians, that they should begin at the latter end of Saint Pauls Epistles, which treateth of points of practice: Sith a corrupt life can never have a sound judgement.

Verse 8. Pray every where] Any place now (be it but a chimney) may make a goodly Oratory. John 4. 21.

Lifting up holy hands] Better washed then Pilates were, rinsed in that blessed fountain of Christs blood, Zach. 13. 1. Else, God utterly abhors them, Isa. 1. 15, 16. The Priests had their laver to wash in, before they sacrificed. The Turks at this day before prayer wash both face and hands, sometimes their head, and other parts of the body. But what saith S. James, chap. 4. 8. and the Prophet Jeremy, chap. 4. 14. The fountain of goodness will not be laden at with foul hearts and hands.

Without wrath] Or, Rancour, Mat. 5. 24. God will not be served, till men be reconciled. When Abraham and Lot were agreed, then God appeared.

Or doubting] Heb. 11. 6. James 1. 6. without disceptation or reasoning with carnal reason.

Verse 9. In like manner also] Men have had their lessons. Now for women they are taught modesty in their attire (such as may neither argue wantonness nor wastfulness) silence in the Church, subjection in the family.

Or costly array] Which yet great ones may wear; but they may not buy it with extortion, and line it with pride: sith cloths are the ensighs of our shame, our fineness is our filthiness, and our neatness our nastiness. See Isaiah 3. where the Prophet inveighs, as if he had viewed the Ladies wardrobes in Jerusalem.

Verse 10. But which becometh] Our common conversation should be as becometh the Gospel of Christ; And it is a sure sign of a base mind, to think that one can make himself great with any thing that is less then himself; or that he can win more credit by his garments, then by his graces. The worst apparel, saith one, is natures garment, the best, but follies garnish. πολιτεύεσθε. Phil. 1. 27.

Verse 11. Let the woman learn] Not to teach, to wit, in the publike assemblies, be she never so learned or godly. See the Note on Rom. 16. 1.

Verse 12. Nor to usurp authority] As they will easily do, if suffered to preach. Preachers are Rulers, Guides, Captains, Heb. 13. 7. 17. If the hen be suffered to crow once, &c. A prudent wife commands her husband by obeying him, as Sarah, Livia. Αὐθεντεῖν. To have what she will.

But to be in silence] Video, taceo, I see and say nothing, was Queen Elizabeths Motto. Where should the tongue be but in the head? Camdens Eliz.

Verse 13. For Adam was first formed] As the vessel is formed by the Potter out of the clay. See Gen. 2. 7. The common opinion is, that the very same day ἐπλάσθη. ἐπλάσθη, ἐξηλάσθη, he was formed and driven out; that he lodged not one night in paradise; so sudden was the serpents seducing, his wives consenting, his yielding, Gods execution.

Then Eve] For Adams use and help: therefore she must not take upon her. Howbeit the Jews are out, that hold women to be of a lower creation, made only for the propagation and pleasure of man; also that they have not so divine a soul as men, and therefore they suffer them not to enter into the synagogue, but appoint them a gallery without. Their Rabbins (who have as many fooliſh dreams about the old Testament, as the Friars have about the New) conceive both Adam and Eve to be created without Blunts voyage.

Digitized by Google

the use of reason; and that the tree of knowledge was to accelerate it. Socinians also say (but falsly) that they were as simple and weak as little children: otherwise they would not have so sinned. Cujus contrarium verum est.

Verse 14. And Adam was not deceived] i. e. He was not deceived so much by his judgement (though also by that too) as by his affection to his wife; which at length blinded his judgement. Look we well to our affections: for by these maids, Satan still wooeth the mistress.

Being deceived, was in the transgression] Uxor mea tota in fermento est, said he in Plautus. See my Notes on Gen. 3. 6. Yet Adam sinned more then Eve, because he had more wisdom and strength. He could set his affections as the Artificer doth his clock, to make it strike, when and what he will.

Διὰ pro ἐν ut. Rom. 11. 28

Verse 15. Saved in child-bearing] Not by it, as by a cause: but notwithstanding the cross laid upon all childe-bearing women, Gen 3. 16. they shall have free entrance into heaven, if they continue in faith and charity, &c.

Chap. III.

Verse 1. If a man desire]

As no woman, so neither may every man desire the office of a Minister, but such only as are gifted and fitted for such a service.

He desireth a good work] But a hard work. The Ministery is not an idle mans occupation, but a sore labour; Onus ipsis etiam angelis tremendum, saith Chrysostom, a burden too heavy for an Angels shoulders; a pains nothing short of that of a travelling woman, saith Melanchon after Paul, Gal. 4. 19. There were that read this text thus, Quicunque desiderat Episcopatum bonum, opes desiderat. But this was a foul mistake at best. That's a good observation of Estius, that the former word rendred desire importeth a more earnest desire (such as is that after meat when one is hungry) then the other following. He desireth a good work: quòd eadem res nomine Episcopatus desideretur ardentius, quam nomine operis & officii, because the same thing by the name of Episcopacy, is more ardently desired then by the name of work and duty. That hypocrisie of the Canonists is very ridiculous, not admitting any to personal government in the Church, unless he either seem to refuse it, or unwillingly to undertake it, though he have never so much laboured it. The Bishop of Metis answered cunningly, when being demanded whether he desired a Bishoprick, he replied, Nolens volo, & volens nolo. I do, and I do not. One reporteth of a Priest that used to have a net spred upon his table where he dined, that he might mind St. Peter that fisher of men. But when by his diligent preaching, He had gotten a Bishoprick, he did take away the net, for he had got what he fished for.

ὀρέγεται. ἐπιθυμεῖ.

Verse 2. A Bishop then must be blameless] That is, Every faithful Pastour must be such as against whom no just exception can be laid, no gross fault objected. Involuntary failings and unavoidable infirmities have a pardon of course, both with God and all good men.

The husband of one wife] sc. At once. The Ægyptian Priests were forbidden also Polygamy.

νηφάλιον. Homer. σώφρονα. κόσμιον. Bene moratum. Hieron ad Damasum.

Vigilant] Pale and wan with watching, ἀ χρὼ παννύχιον ἐυδέιν βωλήφορεν ἄνδρα: A publike person should not sleep a whole night together.

Sober] That can contain his passions and keep a mean.

Of good behaviour] Compositus, modestus. Neat and handsome in his outward habit, venerable in all his behaviour.

Given to hospitality] Quicquid habent Clerici, pauperum est: The Ministers chest is the poor mans box.

Act. and Mon. fol. 1381. Greg. Pastor.

Apt to teach] Not able only, as D. Tailour Martyr, who preached not only every Lords day and holy day, but whensoever else he could get the people together. Prædicationis officium suscipit, quisquis ad sacerdotium accedit, saith Gregory. He is no Minister that is no preacher.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 3. Not given to wine] No Ale-ſtake, tavern-haunter, that ſits cloſe at it, till the wine inflame him. πάροινον.

No ſtriker] Either with tongue or hand. Such as were Timotheus Herulus, anno 467. Pope Julius 3. who caſt away his keyes, and girt on his ſword. Biſhop Bonner, who uſually buffeted the poor Martyrs brought before him, pulling off their beards, &c. Cognata vitia ſunt vinolentia & violentia, ſicut & magna cognatio eſt, ut rei, ſit nominis, divitiis & vitiis.

Not greedy of filthy lucre] So as to get by unjuſt arts, and ſinful practices, as the Pope by allowing the Stews in Rome, and elſewhere. See Fiſcus Papalis by Craſhaw.

But patient] Eaſily parting with his own right for peace-ſake, as Abraham did, as no covetous man will do. ἐπιεικῆ.

No brawler] Or Wrangler, quarrelſome, like a cock of the game, that is ſtill bloody with the blood of others, and of himſelf.

Not covetous] Not a lover of ſilver; and that (Enclio-like) ſits abrood upon his heaps of evil gotten goods, and will part with nothing. Ἀφιλάργυρον.

Verſe 4. One that ruleth well] προϊστάμενον, A good prieſt in his own family, which he daily perfumes with Evangelical ſacrifices, till his houſe, as the houſe of David, be as God, as the angel of the Lord before them, Zach. 12. 8.

Having his children in ſubjection] Yet Pope Pelagius forbids a Biſhop to have either wife or children: whereof this wiſe reaſon is given, becauſe children are argumentum ambulans ſuper terram. A walking argument of their fathers incontinency. Os durum! His ſucceſſor Paul the third had no wife indeed, but children he had. One of whom, named Petro Alvigi Farneſis having firſt forced, and then poiſoned Coſmus Cherius, Biſhop of Fanum, received no other check or chaſtiſement of his Father the Pope but this, Hæc vitia me non commonſtratore didicit, He never learned thoſe vices of his Father. Diſtinct. 61. Catinenſis.

Verſe 5. For if a man know not how] A very cogent argument from the leſs to the greater: uſed alſo by our Saviour, Luke 16. 11, 12. Eli was juſtly taxed, and Auguſtus heavily upbraided with their domeſtical diſorders, as therefore unfit for government.

Verſe 6. Not a novice] Rude and proud, a young ſchollar or newly converted: but well experimented, and ſufficiently commended by men of worth. He that offered to run a race, was led about by the Cryer, to ſee what any one preſent could object againſt him, ere he was ſuffered to run, as Chryſoſtome reporteth. So it ſhould be here. Was he not a fit man to be a Doctor of Divinity, and a teacher in Iſrael, who being asked ſomething touching the Decalogue, denyed that he had ever any ſuch book as that in his ſtudy? Another (and he a Biſhop) taking up a bible, and reading in it awhile, when one asked him what book he had there, he anſwered, what book it is I know not: but this I know, that it ſpeaketh altogether againſt our religion. An Aſs might not be coupled with an ox in plowing. No ignorant doltiſh Aſs may plow in Gods field the Church. Aſinos elegit Chriſtus & idiotas, ſaith One, ſed oculavit in prudentes; ſimulque dona dedit & miniſteria. Chriſt choſe illiterate men, but made them learned and teachers of others. Νεόφυτον. A yong plant. Chryſoſt. Hom. 21. ad pop. Antioch. Amama. Antibarb præfat. Luther. Chytræus. D. Beddingf.

He fall into the condemnation of the Devil] that is, be condemned as the Devil is, for his pride. Or, leſt he come under the cenſure of calumniating perſons, who have one common name (in Greek) with the devil. See 1 Tim. 3. 11. 2 Tim. 3. 3. Tit. 2. 3. διάβολος.

Verſe 7. A good report of them, &c.] For a workman that needeth not to be aſhamed; ſuch a one as may muzzle the black mouth of any Campian, that ſhall ſay, as he doth of our Church, Miniſtris eorum nihil vilius: This is moſt true of Popiſh greaſie hedge-Prieſts. See the Note on v. 6.

Of the devil] Or, of the ſlanderer, who by carrying tales, and finding faults, do the devils work. See the Note on verſ. 6.

Verſe 8. Not double-tongued] That can turn their tales, and tune their fiddles to the baſe of the times, ſaying as the company ſays, being as the planet Mercury, good in conjunction with good, and bad with bad. Lingua in vitulis marinis duplex eſt. Sea Calves are double-tongued. Miniſters muſt neither be Sea-calves, nor Moon-calves; double-tongued, nor unſtable, or double-minded, James 1. 8. See the Note on Acts 2. 3. διλόγους. —Tyrioſq; bilingues. Virg. Bartholin. in Anatom.

Digitized by Google Verſe

Verse 9. Holding the mysterie] See the Note on 1 Tim. 1. 19.

Verse 10. Being found blameless] The world will look round about them, and expect (though unjustly) an Angelical perfection.

Let them use the office of a Deacon] Diaconus is said to come of κονὶς, which signifieth dust, to shew that such should be dustily diligent.

Verse 11. Must their wives be grave] As themselves must vers. 6. Gravity is such an Elixar, as by contaction (if there be any disposition of goodness in the same mettal) it will render it of the property. So that Deacons wives cannot be otherwise then grave and gracious, having such husbands as is aboye described.

Verse 12. Husbands of one wife, &c.] See the Notes on Verse 2. and 4.

Verse 13. A good degree] Or a fair step to a higher order, i. e. to a Bishoprick or Presbytership.

And great boldness in the faith] The peace of a good conscience, and the plerophory of faith. This those that are faithful in the Ministery shall be sure of; the former preferment they may possibly fail of. Like as when the twins strove in Rebeccahs womb, the worst came forth first, and had the best place, Gen. 25. 25. so the unworthiest are oft exalted, Psal. 12. ult. but the best have that which is better.

Verse 14. Hoping to come unto thee] And to be an eye-witness of thy diligence, whereof I doubt not, joying in the mean while, and beholding your order, and the stedfastness of your faith in Christ, Col. 2. 5.

Verse 15. In the house of God] See here the dignity of the Church, and the duty of Ministers, which is to be faithful as stewards in all Gods house. But what mean the Papists so to cry up the Church even above the Scriptures (as the Council of Basil did by their Cardinal Cusanus in answer to the Hussites) nay above Christ himself, as Hosius and others. Can they mean honestly (quoth that Martyr) that make so much of the wife, and so little of the husband? Bastard Children are all for their mother, and are called by her name, &c.

Act. and Mon. fol. 1478.

Verse 16. And without controversie] Learned Cameron beginneth this verse at those words before, The pillar and ground of truth, and confessedly great is that mysterie of godliness, God manifested in the flesh, &c. It being a usual form of speech among the Jews (as he proveth out of Maimonides) to preface these very words, The pillar and ground of truth, to any special doctrine touching religion. The word here rendred without controversie, signifieth Confessedly, q.d. It is so under the broad seal of publike confession.

Camer. de eccl. p. 278.

Great is the mysterie of godliness] A mysterie, because above natural capacity. And a mysterie of godliness the Gospel is called, because being believed, it transformeth men into the same image, and stirs up in them admirable affections of piety.

God manifested] Out of the bosome of his father, out of the womb of his mother, out of the types of the Law, &c.

In the flesh] Christ condescended to our rags, he put on a louzy suit of ours, induit sordes nostras, he took our flesh when it was tainted with treason; our base nature, after it was fallen; which was a wonderful fruit of love, as if one should wear a mans colours or livery after he is proclaimed traitor, it is a great grace to such a man: so here.

D. Sibbs.

Justified in the Spirit] Or, by the Spirit, that is, by the divine nature, Rom. 1. 4. and by the Holy Ghost too: the second Person raised up it self, but yet it was by the Holy Ghost too: which he used, not as an instrument, but as a common principle with himself, of equal dignity, onely differing in order of persons. We shall also be justified and cleared of all false imputations at the Resurrection, which shall be of names as well as of bodies. The Sun shall scatter all the clouds, &c.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

CHAP. IIII.

Verse 1. Speaketh expresly]

VErbis non disertis solum, sed & exertis. Abroad and aloud, that it may be heard all the Church over. φητῶς.

Some shall depart from the faith] As did the ancient hereticks the Papists (in whom all the old hereticks seem to have fled and hid themselves) and the present prodigious Sectaries with their opinionum portenta, our modern Antitrinitarians, Arrians, Antiscripturists, Anabaptists, &c.

Doctrine of devils] Vented by Satans emissaries and instruments. About the time of Pope Hildebrand, letters were dispersed up and down, that were said to be sent from hell: wherein the devil gives great thanks to the Popish Clergy for the great multitudes of souls that by their seductions came thronging to hell more then ever in any age before. Nicolas Orum an Oxford Doctour is said to have written those letters. He preached also at Rome, before the Pope and his Cardinals: discovering and condemning their errors, and foretelling their destruction. Mat. Paris. Hist. an. Dom. 1072.

Verse 2. Speaking lies in hypocrisie] It was grown to a common Proverb, A Frier, a lier. One of them undertook to shew a feather of the wing of the Angel Gabriel. The Pope to honour and encourage Tyrone the Rebel, sent him (but who will believe it?) a plume of Phœnix feathers. The poor people are perswaded to believe that the thunder of the Popes Excommunication hath so blasted the English hereticks, that their faces are grown all black and ugly as devils; their eyes and looks gastly, their breaths noisome and pestilent, &c. that they are grown barbarous, and eat children, blaspheme God and all his Saints, &c.

Having their consciences seared] There is more hope of a sore, then of a seared conscience, a dead and dedolent disposition, Ephes. 4. a heart that hath contracted a kinde of hoof.

Verse 3. Forbidding to marry] Papists forbid some to marry at any time, as the Clergy; all, at some times, and that not as a precept of conveniency, but necessity and holiness. In Anselms time, cursed Sodomitry and adultery passed free without punishment, where godly matrimony could finde no mercy. The Cardinal of Cremona after his stout replying in the Councel of London against the married estate of Priests, was shamefully taken the night following with a notable harlot They hold that its far better for a Priest to keep many whores, then to have a wife. This, say they, is the heresie of the Nicolaitans. Act. and Mon. fol. 1062. Ibid. 790.

To abstain from meats] As the Papists superstitiously do upon certain daies; when to eat an egg is punished with imprisonment, &c. Qui autem totam diem Dominicam vacat temulentiæ, scortis & aleæ, audit bellus homo, saith Erasmus. But he that spends the whole Lords-day in drinking, dicing, and drabbing, is let go for a good fellow. Schol. in Epist. ad epist. Basil.

Which God hath created] He made the grass before he made the beasts, and the beasts before man, that all might have food convenient for them.

Verse 4. If it be received with thanksgiving] Whilest we taste the sweetness of the Creator in the creature, and are stirred up thereby to praise his name. Doves at every grain they pick look upwards, as giving thanks. The Elephant is said to turn up towards heaven the first sprig or branch that he feedeth on, &c. Birds chirp and sing to their maker.

Verse 5. By the word] Of permission, Act. 10. 15. and of promise, a new right purchased by Christ, &c.

And prayer] For his leave and blessing, that staff of bread, &c. This is to eat to the Lord, Rom. 14. 6. to imitate Christ, Mat. 14. Paul, Acts 27. 35. Samuel, 1 Sam. 9. 13.

Verse 6. Nourished up in the words] Such are fittest to be made Ministers, as have been well bred, and inured to the reading of the Scriptures; as have sucked in holy learning together with their mothers milk. Quintilian adviseth, that the child that is intended for an Oratour, should from two or three years old, be accustomed to hear and babble out good language, the best words and best pronounced. Quanto id in Theologo futuro expetendum curandumq; magis, &c? saith one, how much more needeth such care and pains be taken with Animad. the the child that is dedicated to the Ministery, that he may become (as Quintilian saith an Oratour should be) Vir bonus dicendi peritus, a good man and well able to deliver himself in good terms? I have known some (saith One) for their judgement in arts and tongues very sufficient; yet to have heard their discourse (so defective were they in their own tongue) you would have thought you had heard Loy talking to his pigs, or Johannes de Indagine declaiming in the praise of wild-geese. Of Matthew Doringus, a Popish Commentatour, Steuchus (a Papist too) saith truly, that he is not worthy to be named ob universam V. T. scripturam fœdissima barbarie conspurcatam, for defiling all the old Testament with his base barbarisms, as the Harpies did the good meat they seized on.

Digitized by Google

Peach Compl. Gentlem. p. 5.

Steuch. in Gen 37.

παρα τὸ. Make a fair excuse.

Verse 7. But refuse] Gr. Shift them off, set them by, say thou art not at leasure to attend to them, hast no time to lose upon them. Poteras has horas non perdidisse, said Pliny to his nephew, You might have found you somewhat else to do.

Γύμναζε, Te nudum exerce.

Exercise thy self] Lay aside thine upper garments, as runners and wrestlers use to do, and bestir thee lustily, See Heb. 12. 1.

Verse 8. For bodily exercise profiteth little] Somewhat it doth (if rightly used) toward the strengthening of the body, preserving of the health, subduing of the flesh, &c.

Plutarch.

But Godliness is profitable to all things] The Babylonians are said to make 360. several commodities of the Palm-tree: but there is a μυριομαχαιρότης, a thousand benefits to be got by godliness. Godly persons are said in Latine, Deum colere, because they are sure by sowing to the Spirit, to reap of the Spirit life everlasting. Gal 6. 8. Besides that, in this world they shall obtain joy and gladness (outward and inward comforts) but sorrow and sighing shall flee away, Isa. 35. 10.

Verse 9. This is a faithful saying] And yet who hath believed our report? The promises are good free-hold, and yet little looked after. Godliness hath but cold entertainment, because she lives much upon reversions.

Verse 10. For therefore] Because godliness hath so much happiness laid up in the promises, vers. 8. and there is so much certainty of the performance of those promises, therefore we both do and suffer, 1 Cor. 15. 58. Finis edulcat media.

Who is the Saviour of all men] Not of eternal preservation, but of temporal reservation. For every man should die the same day he is born, the wages of death should be paid him presently: but Christ begs wicked men lives for a season, saith one. Sin hath hurled confusion over the world, brought a vanity on the creature. And had not Christ undertaken the shattered condition of the world to uphold it, it had fallen about Adams ears, saith another Divine.

Specially of those that believe] Who therefore are in a special manner bound to observe and obey him. Among the Romans they that were saved were wont to crown him that saved them, and to honour him as a father all their daies. We must also set the crown upon Christs head, Cant. 3. 11. and obey this everlasting father, Isa. 9. 6.

Σέβεται δὲ ἅπαντον ὡς πατέρα, &c. Polyb. l. 6.

Verse 11. These things command and teach] Teach the tractable, command the obstinate, lay Gods charge upon all.

Verse 12. Let no man despise, &c.] But how should I help it? might he say: The Apostle answereth, Be thou an example to the believers, a patern of piety: for holiness hath honour, wisdom maketh the face to shine; natural conscience cannot but stoop to the image of God, whereever, and in whomsoever it discerneth it, ἐ γὰρ τὸ νεὸν ἐυκαταφρόνητον ὁ τὰν Θεῶ ἀνακείμενον ἦ, saith Ignatius. Youth seasoned with the fear of God is not easily despised.

Ignat. epist. ad Magnes.

τύπος.

But be thou an example] Gr. Such a thing as maketh the stamp upon the coyn. Exemplis sciala hæc ætate magis ædificant ministri quam concionibus. Reason indeed should rule, and is therefore placed in the head. But when reason cannot prevail, example will.

Verse 13. Give attendance to reading] First to reading, and then to exhortation; bringing as a good Scribe, out of a good treasure, new and old. Father Latimer notwithstanding both his years and constant pains in preaching, was at his book most diligently about two of the clock every morning. A rare example.

Verse 14. Neglect not the gift] Gods gifts groan under our disuse or misuse; and God hearing gives them the wings of an Eagle; so that such may say as once Zedekiah did, did, When went the Spirit of the Lord from me to thee? God dries up the arm, and darkens the eye of idle and Idol ſhepherds, Zach. 11. 17.

Digitized by Google

With the laying on of the hands] A cuſtome that came from the Church of the old Teſtament, Gen. 8. 14. Lev. 1. 4. and 3. 2. is laudably uſed to this day in the Ordination of Miniſters, but fooliſhly and ſinfully abuſed by the upſtart-Sectaries.

Verſe 15, Meditate upon theſe things] And ſo digeſt them, turn them in ſuccum & ſanguinem. Let your heart ſtudy a good matter, that your pen may be as the tongue of a ready writer, Pſal. 45. 1. and not preſent crude and rude ſtuff. When it was objected to Demoſthenes, that he was no ſudden Speaker, but came ever to the Court after premeditation, he anſwered, Se ſi fieri poſſet, dicturum non tantum ſcripta ſed etiam ſculpta; That he would not only write but engrave if he could, what he was about to utter in publike. The ſame Demoſthenes alſo would have ſuch an one branded for a pernicious man to the Common-wealth, who durſt propoſe any thing publikely, which he had not before-hand ſeriouſly pondered. What impudency then is it in a Preacher ſo to do? It was a wiſe ſpeech of Ariſtides, who being required by the Emperour to ſpeak to ſomething propounded ex tempore, anſwered, Propound to day, and I will anſwer too morrow: for we are not of thoſe that ſpit or vomit things but of thoſe that elaborate them. Melanthon anſwered Eccius in like manner, who hit him in the teeth with his ſlowneſs in anſwering arguments. So did Auguſtine deal by Vincentius Victor a raſh yong man, who boldly cenſured him for his unreſolvedneſs concerning the original of a reaſonable ſoul, and vaunted that he could do it with ut demurrs or delays. ἡμεῖς δὲ σμὲν οὐχ ἡμέτεροι, ἀλλὰ οὐχ ἁλισκόμενοι.

That thy profiting may appear to all] i. e. That it may appear thy gifts increaſe daily, by thy good husbandry.

Give thy ſelf wholly to them] Gr. Be them in them: totus in hoc ſis. It was M. Perkins his Motto, Verbi Miniſter es, hoc age. Thou art a Miniſter of the word, make it thy whole buſineſs. ἐν τούτοις ἴσθι.

Verſe 16. Thou ſhalt both ſave] What an high honour is this to faithful Miniſters, that they ſhould be ſtiled Saviours in a ſenſe? So Job. 33. 24. Obad. 21. James 5. 21. Only it muſt be their care to ſave themſelves as well as their hearers: and that it be not ſaid of them, as once it was of Laertes, the father of Ulyſſes, that he ordered all things well, but neglected himſelf. One deſired a bad-living Preacher to point him out a nearer way to heaven then that he had taught in his Sermons; For he went not that way himſelf.

CHAP. V.

Verſe 1. Rebuke not an Elder]

Aſh him not with the ſcourge of the tongue, as a puny boy. Jerk him not as the Pope did Henry 4. of France in the perſon of his Embaſſadour, or as the Biſhops and their ſhavelings did Henry the 2. of England, till the blood followed. This is not civil uſage for an Elder. μὴ ἐπιπλήξῃς. Ne plagam infixeris.

Verſe 2. With all purity] Not with ſome only, but with all purity, for fear of the worſt: and leſt any impure motion therewhile creep into the heart unawares. The ſouls of Miniſters ſhould be purer then the Sun-beams, ſaith Chryſoſtome. They are by their office the lights of the world; let no ſnuffe abide in them; they are fullones animarum, fullers of mens ſouls, to make and keep them white; let them take heed of a ſmutch. Turpe eſt doctori, &c. Nihil turpius eſt Peripatetico claudo; Its a ſhame for a teacher to be found faulty. ἐν πάσῃ ἁγνείᾳ.

Verſ 3. Honour widdows indeed] That is, ſuch as are widdows not by divorce, but by the death of their husbands, and loſs of their children; ſuch as was Naomi. Honour them, that is, take them into the Colledge of widdows, to be maintained at the Churches charge. In this ſenſe Miniſters are to have double honour (See verſ. 17.) which is therefore ſo termed, becauſe they teſtified thereby the vertues of thoſe ſo ſuſtained.

Verſe 4. Let them learn firſt to ſhew] Such any one is in truth, as he is at home, Pſal. 101. 2. The hypocrites vertues (as that of the Sarmatians) run all outward.

Digitized by Google

Something he seems abroad, but follow him home, and you shall soon see what he is: follow Stage-players into their tiring-house where they disrobe themselves, and then it will appear they are vile varlets. Like unto this Apostolical precept, was that of Chilo, one of the wise men of Greece, τῆς ἑαυτῆ οἰκίας καλῶς φροντεῖν, to govern honestly a mans own family. Laert. in vita.

And to requite their parents] See the Note on Mat. 15. 4. The Storks feed their dams when old: though the yong Kites expel their dams, and with their bils and wings beat them out of their nest. Boughes bend toward their root, &c.

Verse 5. Trusteth in God] Whereas while she had an husband and children, she trusted over-much in them. The Hemorroisse sought not to our Saviour till all her money was gone. Zeph. 3. 12. They are an afflicted poor people, therefore they trust in the name of the Lord. When the Apostle saith of the widdow indeed, that she is desolate, he seemeth to allude to the Greek word for a widdow, which comes of a Verb that signifies to be desolate, and deprived. So the Latine vidua à viduando, and the Hebrew Almanah of Alam, to be dumb: because death having cut off her head, she hath none to speak for her. χήρα a χήρω desolor, destituo.

And continueth in supplications, &c.] As Anna the Prophetess did, Luke 2. A noble Woman of Savoy, Mother to John Galeas Duke of Millain, after her husbands decease, caused a coyn to be made upon the one side, whereof she drew these words, Sola facta, solum deum sequor. Being left alone, I follow God alone.

Verse 6. Is dead while she liveth] Cùm careat purâ mente, cadaver agit. Pamphilus in Terence saith the like of a lighe huswife. Sanè herule homo voluptati obsequens suis dum vixit. Saint Pauls Greek cannot well be rendered but by Terences Latine, and Terences Latine cannot be well put into other Greek.

But she that liveth in pleasure] Gr. The delicate Dame, such as were those wanton daughters of Sion, those mincing Minions mentioned, Isa. 3. as also those of Tyre and Sidon, those of Phenicia, so called from the Syriack Phinneck, Delicate: The Greeks call them τρυφερὸι, such as lye melting in sensual delights and sinful pleasures, in the froth whereof groweth that worm that never dyeth. See Jam. 5. 5. I have read of a Gallant addicted to uncleanness, who at last meeting with a beautiful dame, and having enjoyed his fleshly desires of her, found her in the morning to be the dead body of one that he had formerly sinned with, which had been acted by the devil all night, and left dead again in the morning. Sure he had but ψυχρὸν περιγκλισμα a cold armful of her at length (as Lycophron saith of an evil wife) and if God had given grace, it might have brought him to better courses; but where that is wanting, no warning will serve turn. Jeroboam had as great a miracle wrought before him in the drying up of his hand, as S. Paul at his conversion; yet was he not wrought upon, because the Spirit did not set it on. Besides, Grace is seated in the powers of Nature. Now carnal sins disable nature, and so set men in a greater distance from grace, as taking away the heart. Hosea 4. 11. σπαταλῶσα.

Verse 7. And these things give in charge] Often inculcate and set on with a great deal of vehemency, that religion suffer not.

Verse 8. But if any provide not] That they may have Gainsers prosperity, Mentem sanam in corpore sano: though the Apostles meaning here is chiefly, as touching bodily nourishment and outward accommodations.

Specially for those of his own house] Socrates, an Infidel, took care of the welfare of his family and allies, as Libanius testifieth. Bishop Ridley was very kinde and mannal to his kinsfolk. And the Lord Cromwel before the time of his apprehension, took such order for his servants, that many of them, especially the younger brethren, which had little else to trust unto, had honestly left for them in their friends hands to relieve them, whatsoever should befall him. τῶν οἰκείων ἐπεμέλησε καὶ τῶν ἐν τῆ γένες ἐφρόντισε. Act. and Mon. fol. 1559. Ibid. 1086.

Verse 9. The Wife of one man] As Anna, Luke 1. 36. Such are held to be more modest, to whom the thoughts of death hath been enough to forbid the banes of second marriage.

Verse 10. Well reported of, &c.] A good name is better then precious ointment, Eccles. 7. 1. And rather to be chosen then great riches, Prov. 22. 1. Providence we must be to preserve it, learning of the unjust steward by lawful (though he did it by unlawful means;) for our Saviour noted this defect, when he said, The children of this world are wiser in their generation then the Children of light, Luke 16. 8. χρηστευσάμενον, i. e. τῶν ἡλίκων σπουδαῖον.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 11. To wax wanton] To run away (as pampered Palfreys) with the bit betwixt their teeth, and to play the jades.

Verſe 12. Having damnation] Or publike reproach, as verſ. 14. for their deſultory lightneſs and inconſiderate raſhneſs.

Caſt off their firſt faith] Not that of their baptiſm (as divers of the Indians do that have been baptized by the Spaniards) but their vidual promiſed chaſtity and ſervice to the Saints.

Verſe 13. They learn to be idle] It is an art ſoon learned, by doing nothing to do naughtily. Nihil agendo male agere diſcunt. Idleneſs is the hour of temptation: and an idle perſon is the devil's tennis-ball, toſſed by him, at his pleaſure.

Wandering about from houſe to houſe] As vagrants, or as pedlers opening their packs, and dropping here a tale, and there a tale. A practice ſtrictly forbidden by God, Levit. 9. 16. Thou ſhalt not go up and down as a tale-bearer. The Hebrew word ſignifieth a pedler. And another Hebrew word uſed for defaming or ſlandering, Pſal. 15. 3. properly noteth a footing or trotting it up and down, prying and ſpying, and carrying tales and rumours, 2 Sam. 19. 27. The Greek word alſo Λεγω, and the Latine word Arguo, firſt ſignifies to be idle, and next to reprehend others. Becauſe they that have little to do at home, will be over-buſie abroad, in cenſuring and ſlandering others.

רגל Whence רגל for a foot.

Beckman de origin. ling. lat.

And not only idle] The firſt born of idleneſs, is to do nothing: the next iſſue that ſhe hath is, to do evil. Otium negotium, Idleneſs is a kind of buſineſs.

But tatlers alſo] Gr. Triflers: Magno conatu magnas nugas agunt. The Rabbins have a Proverb, That ten Kabs of ſpeech deſcended into the world, and the women took away nine of them.

φλύαροι.

And buſie bodies For every fool will be medling, Prov. 20. 3.

Speaking things, &c.] It is a very hard thing well to manage many words, ἐν πολυλογίᾳ πολυφωνίαν, In multiloquio ſtultiloquium.

Verſe 14. Give none occaſion to the adverſary] The devil or his inſtruments, whoſe mouths he oft borrows to blaſpheme and rail with, who alſo watch as diligently for an occaſion to ſpeak evil of profeſſion, as a dog doth for a bone; they pry more narrowly into every miſcarriage then Laban did into Jacobs ſtuff.

Verſe 15. Turned aſide after Satan] Revolted from Chriſtian religion, going out of Gods bleſſing into the worlds warm Sun. Theſe could not chuſe unto themſelves a worſe condition.

Verſe 16. Have widdows] That are widdows indeed, that have neither children nor nephews to relieve them, verſ. 3. of whom by the law of nature they may require θρεπτηρια, aliment and ſuccour.

And let not the Church be charged] How then will Church robbers anſwer it, if Church-chargers be in a fault? Let them give us a juſt Commentary upon Prov. 20. 25. and remember Cardinal Wolſey, and his ſacrilegious inſtruments: five of whom came to fearful ends, as Sculteetus recordeth, and concludeth with this wiſh, Utinam his & ſimilibus exemplis edocti diſcant homines res ſemel Deo conſecratas timide attrectare. I would that men would be warned by theſe examples, and better adviſed how they meddle with Church-maintenance, thereby to enrich themſelves.

Sculteet. Annal. dec. 1. p. 332.

Verſe 17. Worthy of double honour] viz. Countenance and maintenance; that they may give themſelves continually and chearfully to preaching and prayer, Acts 6. 4. Let them have reverence and recompence.

They who labour] Even to laſſitude, as he doth that cleaveth wood, or that toileth in harveſt, or that goeth on warfare, 2 Tim. 2. 3. 4. Preaching is a painful work, and enfeebleth a man exceedingly, whence the Prophet cries out, My leanneſs, my leanneſs. And our Saviour at little paſt thirty, was reckoned by the Jews to be toward fifty, Joh. 8, 57. It is ſuppoſed by Divines, that he had ſo ſpent himſelf in preaching, that he ſeemed to the Jews to be much elder then he was.

οἱ κοπιῶντες.

Verſe 18. Thou ſhalt not muzzle, &c.] See the Note on 1 Cor. 9. 9.

Worthy of his hire] Of his meat, Mat. 10. 10. of his wages, as here. Hardeſt labourers have meat and drink, and double-wages. Among the Athenians, Tragedians and Comedians were ſaid to labour in teaching the people, and therefore highly honoured: for this it was alſo that the Ancients laid out ſo much mony upon their theatres. But what was their pains to ours? and are we yet begrudged a livelihood?

εἰς διδαχὴν ἐργαζόμενοι.

Digitized by Google

Verse 19. Receive not an accusation] If to be accused were sufficient to make a man guilty, no good Minister should be innocent. Praedicare nihil aliud est quam derivare in se furorem totius mundi, saith Luther. Truth hath always a scratcht face. Men hate him that reproveth in the gate. Every fool hath a bolt to shoot at a faithful preacher.

Verse 20. Them that sin] i.e. Those Presbyters that sin publikely, scandalously, as did Peter, Gal. 2. 14. and those who were convicted by two or three witnesses, as ver. 19. Rebuke before all: yet not as if they were whipping boyes. See the Note on vers. 1. of this Chapter. But if the fault be not known abroad, that Rule of our Saviour takes place, Mat. 18. 15, 16. Constantine the Great was heard to say, That if he should take a Presbyter in the act of adultery, he would cover the matter with his imperial robe, rather then it should come abroad to the scandal of the weak, and scorn of the wicked.

χωρὶς προκρίματος. Verse 21. Without preferring one] Or, Without precipitation or prejudice. Omne judicium à se aufert, qui ad causam praejudicium affert. A Judge must not sit to bear persons, but causes: therefore justice is drawn blinde-fold.

κατὰ πρόσκλισιν. Doing nothing by partiality] By tilting the balance o'th' one side, as the word signifies. An even hand must be carried betwixt party and party. The contrary whereunto is called by the Greeks Ἐπιρομία, siding.

Verse 22. Lay hands suddenly on no man] The best that can come of rashness is repentance. Scipio would not yield that a wise man should ever come in with Had I wist. In ordination of Ministers all possible care and caution is to be used. Chrysostom thinks that earnestness used by the Apostle in the former verse, belongs chiefly to this. Some also make the two last verses a reason of this.

ἐν ἄλλοις Plutarch. Neither be partaker of other mens sins] Whom thou shalt rashly ordain, and so thrust upon the people to their and thine infinite disadvantage. From mine other mens sins (said one) Good Lord deliver me. The Athenians had their Δοκιμασία, which was a solemn examination of the Magistrates, whether fit to govern or no: and of the Oratours, whether not incontinent, prodigal, unkind to parents, &c. for if so, they were dis-privileged, and not suffered to plead or speak publikely. Rous his Archaol. Attic. 146.

Keep thy self pure] See vers. 2. and know that sin is a filthy thing, and defileth the soul worse then any jakes can do the body; as our Saviour shews, Mat. 7. 23.

Verse 23. Drink no longer Water] Timothy living among the luxurious Ephesians, was so abstemious, that the Apostle is fain to prescribe him physick. Hypocrites will be chast only in the mountains where are no women, and sober in Scythia where are no vines; but Lot was chast in the midst of Sodom, and Anacharsis temperate among the debauched Athenians. The faithful in the world are like a pearl in a puddle; they lose nothing of their vertue, though amidst the vicious, like heavenly Salamanders, they remain unscorcht in the fire; like fishes, they retain their freshness in the salt waters.

But use a little wine] Modicè, hoc est medicè, pro remedio parcius, non pro deliciis redundantius, saith Ambrose: who also somewhere relateth of one Theotimus (a good name but a bad man) that he was so far from taking S. Pauls advice, that having a disease upon his body, and told by the Physician that unless he drank less wine, he was like to lose his eyes, Vale lumen amicum, Farewel sweet eye-sight, said He, chusing rather to lose his sight then his sin; so will many their souls: being like affected to their base lusts, as the Panther is said to be to mans dung, which it exceedingly desireth and maketh after.

Verse 24. Some mens sins] The Judge of the earth keepeth his petty-sessions now, letting the law pass upon some few, reserving the rest till the great assizes. Some wicked God punisheth here, lest his providence, but not all, lest his patience and promise of judgement should be called into question, as Augustine hath observed. Aug. in Ps 30.

Verse 25. Cannot be hid] As putid hypocrisie shall be detected (for the name of the wicked must rot) so wronged innocency shall be cleared, as the eclipsed moon wades out of the shadow, and recovers her splendor.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

CHAP. VI.

Verse 1. Count their own masters]

AND not under a pretence of Christian liberty, and because in Christ Jesus there is neither bond nor free, seek to shake off the yoke of obedience that God hath hung upon their necks. See 1 Pet. 2. 28.

That the name of God and his doctrine, &c.] Be traduced as a doctrine of liberty. Heathens lay at the catch, 1 Pet. 2. 12. spying and prying (as the word there signifies) and imputing all publike judgements to Christian miscarriages. Nunc male audiunt castiganturque vulgò Christiani (saith Lactantius) quod aliter quàm sapientibus convenit, vivant, & vitia sub obtentu nominis celent. Christians are very hardly spoken of at this very day, because their conversation is not as becometh the Gospel of Christ, but they think to cover their faults with the fig-leaves of profession. ἐπηρεάζωσι. Lactant. lib. 5. de Divin. cap. Domet.

Verse 2. Partakers of the benefit] i. e. Of Christ, who is here called the benefit, as Joh. 4. 10. the gift of God.

Verse 3. If any man teach otherwise] Discover himself Heterodox, out of affectation of singularity, &c. as divers do in this licentious age; broaching things different from the received doctrine, as holding it with Phocion, a goodly thing to dissent from others. ἑτεροδιδασκαλεῖ.

Consent not to wholesome words] Words that have a healing property in them. The Scripture (as that Library of Alexandria) may be properly said to be the souls physick. By the reading of Livy, Curtius, Aventinus, and other Historians, many are said to have been recovered of divers desperate diseases. O facile & beatum curationis genus, saith mine author. But the reading of the holy Scriptures doth a far greater cure then this upon the soul. King Alphonsus cured of a feaver by reading Q. Curtius, cryed out, Vale at Avicenna, vivat Curtius, Farewel Physick, well fare history. May not we better say so of these wholesome words, this doctrine according to Godliness, purposely compiled for the promoting of piety in the world? ἀπὸ τῆς ἀνθρωπίνης ἰατρικῆς. Joh. Bodin. de method. historic.

Verse 4. He is proud] Gr. He is blown up, big-swoln. Swelling is a dangerous symptome in the body; but much more in the soul. Pride and self-conceit is a bastard (such one) begot betwixt a learned head, and an unsanctified heart: which being once conceived in the soul, causeth it to swell till it burst asunder with unthankfulness to God for the bestowing, with envy, scorn and disdain of men in the imparting of such gifts as may be to them beneficial. Some think that the Apostle alludeth here to the wind Typhon which the Ancients held hurtful to mens wits and senses; so that those that were blasted with it, ran mad. τετύφωται. τετύφωται. Gerh.

Knowing nothing] Sc. Aright, and as they ought to know, 1 Cor. 8. 2. See the Note there. The Gnosticks boasted, that they knew all things knowable. Irenæus saith, that they were so besotted with an opinion of themselves, that they acounted their own writings to be Gospel. Such self-admires also were the Illuminates (as they called themselves) the Manichees, the Novatians: And such are now the Jesuites, the Sectaries, &c. And other Maleferiati fanatici, who lest they should not be reputed to know something unknown to others, profess skill beyond the circumference of possible knowledge.

Doting about questions] Gr. Question-sick. As the Schoolmen, and our new Questionists. But God loveth Curristas non Quæristas, saith Luther.

And strifes of words] Frivolous questions and quarrels. The wit of heretikes and schismaticks will better serve them to devise a thousand shifts to elude the truth, then their pride will suffer them once to yield, and acknowledge it. λογομαχίας.

Verse 5. Perverse disputings] Endless and needless discourses and exercises, opposite to those above, Chap 4. 13, 14, 15. The Greek word signifieth galling one another with disputes: or rubbing one against another, as scabbed sheep will, and so spredding the infection. διαπαρατριβαὶ.

Of men of corupt mindes] That want not time but waste it, aliud agendo. As Lactantius saith of some brainsick Idolaters in his time, they fained what they pleased, and then feared what they fained: so many conceit what they like, and then think themselves bound to justifie their wild conceivings.

From

Digitized by Google

Ἀφίστασο. From such withdraw thy self] Gr. Stand off, keep at a distance, as you would from one that hath a plague sore; say of them to your selves and others, as Austin doth of certain hereticks, Illi garriant, nos credamus. Let them prate as they please, let us hold fast the faithful word.

Verse 6. But Godliness with contentment] True piety hath true plenty, and is never without a well-contenting sufficiency, a full self-sufficiency. The wicked in the fulness of his sufficiency is in straits, Iob 20. 22. Contrariwise the godly in the fulness of their straits are in an all-sufficiency.

Verse 7. We can carry nothing out] But a winding-sheet, as Saladines shirt, which he commanded to be hung up at his burial, a bare Priest going before the bier, and proclaiming, Saladine the mighty Monarch of the East is gone, and hath taken no more with him then what you see. Indeed I read of one that being ready to die, clapt a twenty shillings piece of gold into his mouth, and said, Some wiser then some; If I must leave all the rest, yet this I will take with me. But this was none of the wisest men you'l say; As that great Chaliph of Babylon was none of the happiest, that was starved to death by the great Cham of Cataia, amidst the infinite treasures of gold, silver and precious stones that he and his predecessors had most covetously heaped together, whereof he willed him to eat, and make no spare. It is with us in the world (saith one) as it was in the Jewish fields and orchyards; pluck and eat, they might, while there; not pocket, or put up. Or as boyes that robbing an orchyard meet with the owner at the door.

Carion. Chron.

M. Rogers I read of love.

Turk. Hist.

De Annibale Silius Ital.

——modo quem fortuna fovendo
Congestis opibus donisq; referfit opimis,
Nudum tartarea portârit navita cymba.

Verse 8. And having food and raiment] Houses are not named: for that then they were to stand ready to run from place to place, and to leave house and all behind them. Food and raiment, τροφὴν καὶ τροφὴν, σκεπάσματα καὶ κοσμήματα, as Isidore here elegantly observeth, Food not junkets, raiment not ornament; garments quasi gardments, to gard us from the cold air. Nature is content with a little, grace with less: As, Not to starve, μὴ λιμᾶν, μὴ διψᾶν Gal. not to thirst, saith Galen; Cibus & potus sunt divitiæ Christianorum, saith Hierome. Bread and water with the Gospel are good chear, saith another. Epicurus could say, That he would think himself as happy as might be, Si aquam haberet & offam, if he could get but a morsel of meat, and a mouthful of water. This was strange from Epicurus. But Epicurei mihi videntur melius facere quam dicere, saith Tully. Epicurus and his followers practised better then they held. A little of the creature will serve turn to carry a man through his pilgrimage. Insaniæ igitur damnandi sunt (saith Vives,) qui tam multa tam anxie congerunt, quum sit tam paucis opus. He is little better then mad, that heaps up such a deal, when far less will do the deed.

Greenham. Ælian. Cic. de fin. l. 2.

ἀρκεσθησόμεθα. Let us be content] Gr. Let us have enough, let us count it enough, if we have necessaries (to maintain our state, and live like our selves) though we have not superfluities, let it seem sufficient.

Dives qui fieri vult, & citò vult fieri, uv. Prov. 28 20. Verse 9. But they that will be rich] That are resolved to have it, howsoever ——rem, rem quocunque modo rem. He that hasteth to be rich shall not be innocent.

And a snare] As the Panther, which so loveth mans dung, that if it be hang'd a height from it, it will leap, and never leave till it have burst it self in pieces to get it.

Βυθίζουσι. Such a drowning as is desperate. Drown men in destruction and perdition] Ita demergunt ut in aquæ summitate rursus non ebulliant, so as they never shew themselves above water any more. We read of the Inhabitants of Oenoe a dry Island besides Athens, that they bestowed much more labour to draw into it a river to water it, and make it more fruitful. But when all the passages were opened, and the receptacles prepared, the water came in so plentifully, that it over-flowed all: and at the first tide drowned the Island and all the people. So fareth it with many covetous caitiffs, who seem to be of Nevesan the Lawyers minde, He that will not venture his body shall never be valiant; He that will not venture his soul shall never be rich. Hubertus, an English Cormorant, made this will, I yield my goods to the King, my body to the grave, my soul to the devil. How much better Aristippus and Crates the Theban, with their Hinc abite mala divitiæ: satius enim est à me vos demergi, &c. they threw their riches into the sea, saying, Hence, hence base trash: better we drown you in the sea, then that you should drown us in perdition and destruction. Plutarch reports of one Philoxenus, that finding his heare too

Digitized by Google

too faſt affected to his wealth, he made away with it; and ſaid, nay ſwore, that he would part with it rather then be undone by for ever it. Chriſtians have a better way to diſpoſe of their riches then to throw them away, Pſal. 16. 3. Luke 16. 9. But many rich wretches do as Heliogabalus did, who provided ſilken halters to hang himſelf withal, ponds of ſweet water to drown himſelf, gilded poiſons to poiſon himſelf with, rather then to fall into the hands of his enemiss. So do theſe ſtrangle, drown, poiſon their precious ſouls with profits, pleaſures, and preferments, &c. and many times meet with perdition, and deſtruction, that is, with a double deſtruction, temporal and eternal, as ſome expound it.

μὴ τὰς θεὰς ἐμὲ, ταῦτα, τὰ ἀγαθὰ οὐκ ἀπολεῖ. ἀλλ' ἐγὼ ταῦτα, Plut.

Verſe 10. For the love of money] Phocylides ſaith the ſame, ἡ φιλοχρηματίη μήτηρ κακότητος ἁπάσης. Covetouſneſs is the mother of all miſchief. Bion called it the Metropolis of miſdemeanor. Timon, the proper element of evils. There are that draw it thorough all the Commandments, and demonſtrate it to be a breach of all.

The root of all evil] As there is life in the root, when there is no ſap in the branches: ſo covetouſneſs oft liveth, when other vices die and decay, as in old men; who becauſe they are likely to leave the world, ſpet on their hands, and take better hold.

They have erred from the faith] Selling themſelves to the devil, as Judas, Ahab, that Pope for ſeven years enjoyment of the Popedome.

And pierced themſelves thorough] Undiq; tranſfixerunt, They have galled and gored themſelves. The covetous man hath his name in Hebrew, of a word that ſignifieth ſometimes to pierce or wound, Pſal. 10. 3. with Joel 2. 8. He that will be rich takes no more reſt then one upon a rack or bed of thorns: when he graſpeth earthly things moſt greedily, he embraceth nothing but ſmoke, which wringeth tears from his eyes, and vaniſheth into nothing. Three vultures he hath alwayes feeding upon his heart, Care in getting, Fear in keeping, Grief in ſpending and parting with that he hath: ſo that he is in hell afore-hand. Aul. Gel. lib. 3. cap. 1.

Verſe 11. But thou O man of God] If Timothy were that Angel of the Church of Epheſus, Revel. 2. 1. that left his firſt love (as ſome think he was) this counſel was but needful. Chriſt cautions his Diſciples to beware of worldlineſs, Luke 21. 34.

Flee theſe things] Remis veliſque, with all thy might, that thou be not tacke with them, taxt for them.

Follow after righteouſneſs] Theſe be notable counterpoiſons againſt covetouſneſs. Paul ſhews him a better project; Points him a ſoveraign amulet or antidote made up of theſe precious ingredients. 1. Righteouſneſs, which gives every man his own. 2. Godlineſs, which gives God likewiſe his own (this the covetous man cannot awhile to do) 3. Faith, which feareth no famine, quelleth and killeth diſtruſt. 4. Love, a profeſt enemy to ſinful ſelf-love, that nurſe of covetouſneſs. 5. Patience, to wait upon God, and not to make haſte to be rich. 6. Meekneſs, in caſe of croſs accidents; when the covetous, troubled by others, troubleth his own houſe, and meditateth revenge.

Verſe 12. Fight the good fight] Not only follow after the former graces, but fight for them, rather then fail of them.

Lay hold on eternal life] While others lay hold on wealth, honours, &c. Catch at the crown, which is hang'd up on high, as it were, and provided for conquerours only, that ſo fight as to finiſh, 2 Tim. 4. 7, 8. Tempus eſt nos de illa perpetua jam, non de hac exigua vita cogitare, could the Heathen Oratour ſay. 'Tis high time now we ſhould think of heaven. Catch at the opportunity, as the eccho catcheth the voice. Cic ad Attic. lib. 10.

Verſe 13. Who before Pontius Pilate] Not diſſembling the truth, though jeared by Pilate, who ſcornfully asked him, What's truth? q. d. Do you ſtand upon your life, and yet talk of truth? Julian and his Heathen inſtruments had ſet out certain fooliſh and falſe relations under Pilates name, purpoſely to caſt dirt upon Chriſt: which are refuted by Auguſtine and Cyril. Joh. 18. 38.

Verſe 14. Without ſpot] Of foul ſins, Deut 32. 5.

Unrebukeable] So as no juſt exception can be laid againſt thee for allowance of leſſer evils.

Until the appearing] Illuſtrem illum adventum, as Beza renders it: the bright, clear or radiant appearing. Saint Paul would have Timothy ſo carry himſelf, as if Chriſt ſhould then come: and to remit nothing of his zeal, though he ſhould live till that time. ἐπιφάνειαν.

Verſe 15. Which in his times he ſhall ſhew] Let no man therefore ask, Where is the promiſe promise of his coming? Though he be slow, yet he is sure: and his time is the best time; wait, James 5. 7.

Digitized by Google

The blessed and only potentate] A lively and lofty description of God, whom yet none can possibly describe. One being asked, What God was, answered, Si scirem, Deus essem.

Verse 16. Dwelling in the light] So that the Seraphims in their addresses to him, clap their wings on their faces, Isa. 6. 2. as men are wont to do their hands, when the lightning flasheth in their eyes.

Nor can see] We can see but Gods back-parts and live; we need see no more that we may live for ever.

Verse 17. That they be not high-minded] The devil will easily blow up this blab, if we watch not. Should the Ant think her self some great business, because gotten upon her hillock? or the sumpter-horse, because laden with treasure? Should the Egyptian Ass think himself worshipful for bearing the golden Isis upon his back? And yet so it fals out in common experience: Many mens good and their blood rise together; their hearts are lifted up with their estates, as a boat that riseth with the rising of the water. Every grain of riches hath a vermine of pride and ambition in it. Magna cognatio ut rei, sic & nominis, divitiis & vitiis.

Mimus. In uncertain riches] Riches were never true to any that trusted to them. Vitrea est fortuna: cum splendet, frangitur. Riches, as glass, are bright but brittle. Some render it the unevidence of riches: and indeed they do not evidence Gods special love; they are blessings of his left hand, of his foot-stool. Not many rich, &c.

ἀδηλότης. bona scabelli.

Who giveth us all things richly to enjoy] Thus riches cannot do for us. The covetous enjoys nothing, nor the sick, nor the discontented, nor any else, unless with riches God gives us himself. Our God should therefore be trusted, because he is 1. A living God. 2. A giving God. The Athenians made their gods standing with their hands upwards, as if they were more willing to receive then to give. But our God openeth his hand, and lets fall his blessing upon every thing living: and holds it a more blessed thing to give then to receive.

Archaol. Attic. 46.

Acts 20.

Verse 18. That they do good] Not the richer the harder; as the Sun moveth slowest, when it is at the highest in the Zodiack; or as the Moon, when it is fullest of light, gets furthest off from the Sun.

Rich in good works] This is to be rich in God, Luke 12. 21. when our works are good, Quoad fontem & quoad finem.

Diod. Sic. l. 1. Ready to distribute] A vertue much commended in the Kings of Egypt; practised by the Pythagoreans, Essenes, but especially by those Primitive Christians, Acts 4. See my Common-place of Alms, and to those many examples there set forth of Christian bounty, adde that of M. Fox, who never denied any that asked him ought for Jesus sake. And being once so asked by a poor man, he questioned him whether he knew Jesus Christ? And finding signs that the man was a believer, he gave him his horse, when he had no mony. I commend not his discretion, but his zeal and charity were admirable. The like is reported of Aidanus, as hath been said before. Queen Anne Bullen gave in alms, fourteen or fifteen thousad pounds in three quarters of a year, as M. Fox reporteth; accounting that she had nothing of her own, but what she had given away. Hoc habeo quodcunque dedi.

Seneca.

Verse 19. Laying up in store] As wise merchants, happy usurers, parting with that which they cannot keep, that they may gain that which they cannot lose.

τῆ ὄντως ζωῆς. On eternal life] Or as some Copies have it, Of life indeed. Æterna vita, vera vita. Aug.

Verse 20. That which is, &c.] viz. The treasure of true doctrine, esteeming every particle of it precious, as the filings of Gold.

Verse 21. Which some professing] Gr. Promising, as the Gnosticks, and other hereticks.

Digitized by Google

A COMMENTARY OR EXPOSITION Upon the second Epistle of S. Paul to Timothy.

Chap. I.

Verse 1. Paul an Apostle, &c.]

THE Preface of this Epistle seems to be an abridgement of that of the Epistle to the Romans. See the Notes there.

Which is in Christ Jesus] All out of Christ are living carcases, walking sepulchres of themselves.

Verse 2. Grace, mercy, and peace] See the Note on 1 Tim. 1. 2.

Verse 3. Whom I serve from my forefathers] Those twelve Tribes, that served God instantly day and night, Act. 26. 7. That was a desperate resolution of the Heathen Orator, Me ex ea opinione, quam à majoribus accepi de cultu Deorum immortalium, nullius unquam eratio, aut docti, aut indocti movebit. I will never stir an inch from the Religion of my fore-fathers, for any mans perswasion. Paul forsook his Pharisaism and forefathers to serve God, as Abraham, Isaac and Jacob had done with a pure conscience. Tul. de nat. deor. l. 3.

Verse 4. Being mindful of thy tears] Timothy was a man of many tears, so was David, Paul, Luther, Bradford, of whom it is said, that he did seldom eat, but he bedewed his Trencher with tears, and that few days passed him without plenty of tears shed, before he went to bed: ---Αχνοὶ δ' ἀείδακρυες ἄνδρες. Act and Mon. fol. 1457. Ibid.

Verse 5. In thy grandmother Lois, and mother] A sweet happiness to any childe to have a good mother and grandmother. For these have great opportunity of dropping good things into their little Lemuels, as being much about them. The mothers of the Kings of Judah are constantly mentioned: and as they were good or evil, so were their Children. Partus sequitur ventrem. The birth follows the belly.

Digitized by Google

The Grandmothers alſo, as they oft love their Nephews better then their own immediate Children (for love deſcendeth) ſo if they be religious (expertus loquor) they have a ſtrong influence upon them, and are a means of much good unto them, as was Naomi, no doubt, to Obed, Ruth 4. 16. though ſhe were but his Grandmother in law.

Verſe 6. Stir up the gift] Blow up thy ſmaller ſpark into a flame. Grace in us is like a dull ſea-coal fire (ſaith one) which if not now and then blown and ſtirred up, though there be no want of fuell, yet will of it ſelf at length dye and go out.

Ἀναζωπυρεῖν The word here uſed by the Apoſtle, is Plato's word. The Apoſtle ſeems to have been well read in Plato's writings. Though I grant the word is alſo found in the Greek Text, Gen. 45. 27. and the Apoſtle here might very well allude to the fire of the Altar, that came from heaven, and was day and night kept in by the Prieſts. See the Canon for that fire, Levit. 6. 12. 13. Hezekiah's Confeſſion, 2 Chron. 29. 6, 7. the good huſwives candle, Prov. 31. 18. the wiſe Virgins lamps, Matth. 25. 8. our Saviours Charge, Luke 12. 35. and do accordingly.

Verſe 7. The ſpirit of fear] Δειλείας, called elſewhere the ſpirit of bondage, Δουλείας, Rom. 8. 15. The Law will convince the judgement: but tis the Goſpel that convinceth the luſt and the affection.

Of power, and of a ſound minde] Theſe two fitly ſtand together. Sin unrepented of, lies rotting at the heart, and by rotting weakeneth it, as a rotten rag hath no ſtrength.

Verſe 8. Afflictions of the Goſpel] Affliction is Evangelii genius, ſaith Calvin; hence it is called the word of Chriſts patience. Revel. 2.

According to the power of God] For unleſs he ſupport us by his power, we ſhall never bear up in affliction.

Verſe 9. With an holy calling] All that follows (to thoſe words in the end of verſ. 10. Through the Goſpel) comes in by a Parentheſis, and is ſo to be read.

Verſe 10. By the appearing] By his coming in the fleſh: of which alſo the Pſalmiſt ſpeaketh, Pſ. 96. 13.

Brought life and immortality to light] As he drew light out of darkneſs, at the Creation. And as he then made light on the firſt day of the week, ſo on the ſame day he aboliſhed death, &c. by his reſurrection from the dead: by vertue alſo whereof

De Orpheo Manilius.

Et ſenſus ſcopulis, & ſylvis addidit aures:
Et Diti lachrymas, & Morti denique vitam.

Verſe 11. A teacher of the Gentiles] His writings therefore ſhould be the more highly prized and ſtudied by us Gentiles, as being properly ours: like as Pſ. 127. was a Song made (ſpecially) for Solomon.

Verſe 12. I know whom I have truſted] Here was not a faint hope, or a conjectural confidence, but a Plerophory of faith. The Reaſon whereof is rendered by a Father, Bernard. Quia in charitate nimia adoptavit me, quia verax in promiſſione, & potens in exhibitione, becauſe God who of his free grace hath adopted me, is both able and faithfull to fulfill his promiſes. That was a notable ſpeech of Luther, Ipſe viderit ubi anima mea manſura ſit, qui pro ea ſic ſollicitus fuit, ut vitam pro ea poſuerit. Let him that dyed for my ſoul, ſee to the ſalvation of it.

Luther. apud Jo. Manlium.

That which I have committed] A childe that hath any precious things given him, cannot better ſecure it, then by putting it into his fathers hands to keep; ſo neither can we better provide for our ſouls ſafety, then by committing them to God. Tutiores autem

Aug. de bono perſev. cap. 6. vivimus, ſi totum Deo damus, non autem nos illi ex parte & nobis ex parte committimus. We ſhall be ſure to be ſafeſt, if we commit our ſelves wholly to God, and ſeek not to part ſtakes with him therein. The ſhip that is part in the water, and part in the mud, is ſoon beaten in pieces.

Ver. 13. Hold faſt the form] The Catechiſtical Principles, that method, ſyſtem, ſhort ſum τύπος ὑποτύπωσις. of Divinity that S. Paul had compiled for Timothies uſe; called here not only a form, as Rom. 6. 17. but a ſhort form, or brief method, ſuch as hath both perſpicuity & brevity; a platform, draught or delineation, according to which Timothy was to ſteer, as by a compaſs.

Of wholſom words] That have a property in them, and wherein there is nothing froward or perverſe, Pro. 8. 8. nothing that may hurt or hinder thy ſouls health; ſuch as were the writings of Rabbins and Philoſophers, wherein (to ſay the beſt of them)

Sunt bona miſta malis, ſunt mala miſta bonis.

To-

Digitized by Google

together with the gold, silver and ivory of some sound truths, they have store of Apes and Peacocks, toys and trifles; yea some Snakes and Serpents, that may destroy the precious soul.

In faith and love] The sum of all sound doctrine and Christian duty.

Verse 14. That good thing that was &c.] Thy crown of recompence, Rev. 3.11. Or thy Converts, thy crown of rejoycing, 1 Thes. 2.19. Or the purity of thy doctrine, 1 Tim. 6.20. The Gospel is Christs depositum with us committed to our keeping; as our souls are our depositum with him, committed to his. Let us therefore strive together for this Faith of the Gospel, Phil. 1.27. resolving either to live with it, or die for it: Let us earnestly contend for this Faith once (only) delivered, Jude 3. Once for all; another edition of it is never to be expected. Hold fast the faithfull Word, as with both hands, Tit. 1.9. O pray, pray, said a Dutch Divine upon his death-bed. Pontifex enim Romanus, & Concilium Tridentinum mira moliuntur, for the Pope and his Complices are doing their utmost to bereave us of our present enjoyments. And are there not still such Factors for the devil, such Pioneers hard at work amongst us? Let us carefully countermine them, &c. Theophyl.

Verse 15. All they which are in Asia] All the Ministers there. These stars fell from heaven, as fast as the fig-tree makes abort, with any never so light and gentle a winde. Rev. 6 13. Plin. l. 10. c. 6.

Phygellus and Hermogenes] Famous only for their recidivation and apostasie. Hermogenes took after Hermogenes the retrograde Rhetoritian; who at 22. years of age was an excellent Orator, but by 24. Mente lapsus est, forgat all his skil, and became a very dunce, Nulla evidente causa, saith mine author. C. Rhodigin. l. 11. c. 40.

Verse 16. He oft refreshed me] Gr. Poured cold water upon me, as that Angel did upon the wracked limbs of Theodorus the Martyr, mentioned by Socrates and Ruffinus in the days of Julian the Apostate. Ἀνέψυξε.

Verse 17. He sought me out very diligently] With vehement desire and intention of affection; not as a coward seeks after his enemy, whom he hopes he shall never finde; but as Saul sought David or as the Wise-men the babe of Bethlehem, &c. σπουδαίοτερον.

Verse 18. The Lord] That is, God the Father grant he may finde mercy of the Lord, that is, of God the Son, as Jehovah from Jehovah, Gen. 19.24.

That he may finde] For his care in finding out me, ver. 17.

CHAP. II.

Verse 1. Be strong]

TOgether with the word, there goes forth a power, as Luk. 5.17. Exhortations are Gods means to make us such as he requireth us to be.

In the grace that is in Christ Jesus] Weak grace may evidence pardon of sin; but tis strong grace that can overcome the temptations of Satan, 1 Joh. 2.12,14. and bear up the heart in strong consolation. The blessing upon man in the first Creation was, Increase and multiply; in the second, Grow in grace, be strong, &c. Βέλτιον ἐν εἶναι τὴν καρδίαν τῇ καρδίᾳ.

Verse 2. Commit them to faithfull men] No talent is given us for private and proper use, but that we be trading and transmitting it also to others. Synesius speaks of some, who having a treasure of abilities in them, yet would assoon part with their hearts as with their meditations, &c. the canker of whose great skil shall be a witness against them.

Verse 3. Endure hardship] Never dream of a delicacy; think not to finde God in the gardens of Egypt, whom Moses found not but in the burning-bush. Many love Canaan, but loath the wilderness; commend the countrey, but look upon the conquest as impossible; would sit in the seat of honour with Zebedees children, but not drink the cup of affliction. These deceive themselves.

As a good souldier &c. Christ saith to us (as the black Prince his Father sent to him, fighting as it were in blood to the knees, and in a great distress) Either vanquish or die; and as the P. of Orange said to his Souldiers at the Battel of Newport, when they had the Sea on the one side, and the Spaniards on the other. If you will live, you must either eat up these Spaniards, or drink up this Sea. Hist. of France p. 196.

Digitized by Google

Verſe 4. With the affairs] Or, Gainful negotiations: with marriage-matters, ſay the Papiſts here, but without all ſhew of ſenſe. The Council of Chalcedon ſtrictly forbiddeth Miniſters to meddle in worldly matters. Clericus in oppido, piſcis in arido. The Apoſtle ſeemeth to allude to the Roman Soldiers, who might not be Tutors to other mens perſons, Proctors of other mens cauſes: they might not meddle with husbandry, merchandiſe, &c. Canon. 31.

Verſe 5. Except he ſtrive lawfully] Tàm circa ciborum quam continentiæ ac honeſtatis rationem, ſaith Caſſianus, except for matter and manner he obſerve the Laws of wreſtling, both for preparation and execution. Ariſtotle ſaith, Not he that had a ſtrong body, but he that ran well had the crown in the Olympick-games: it was not he that had an Athletical ability, but he that wreſtled beſt, that gat the garland.

Ver. 6. The husbandman labouring firſt] Spes alit agricolas. Nec illi falſi ſunt (ſaith Saluſt) qui diverſiſſimas res expectant, ignaviæ voluptatem, & præmia virtutis. They are utterly out, that think to have the pleaſure of ſloth, and the guerdon of goodneſs. Saluſt. in Iugur.

Verſe 7. Conſider what I ſay] Apply to thy ſelf theſe forementioned Similies, and ſo buckle cloſe to thy buſineſs.

And the Lord give thee] Unleſs God open Hagars eyes, ſhe cannot ſee the fountain that is hard by. Rebecca cooks the veniſon, but Iſaac only bleſſeth.

Ver. 8. Remember that Jeſus] Remember it for thine encouragement; that Chriſt, for a reward of his ſufferings, was both raiſed and exalted, Phil. 2. 9.

Ver. 9. But the word of God is not bound] It runs and is glorified, 2 Theſ. 3. 1. being free and not fettered. I preach, though a priſoner, ſaith Paul; ſo did Bradford and other Martyrs. Within a few days of Q. Maries reign, almoſt all the priſons in England were become right Chriſtian Schools and Churches (ſaith Mr. Fox) ſo that there was no greater comfort for Chriſtian hearts, then to come to the priſons to behold their vertuous converſation, and to hear their prayers, preachings, &c. The E. of Darbies accuſation in the Parliament houſe againſt Mr. Bradford was; that he did more hurt (ſo he called good evil) by letters and conferences in priſon, then ever he did when he was abroad, by preaching. Act. and Mon. fol. 1457. Ibid. 1382.

Ver. 10. That they may alſo obtain] viz. By my pains in preaching, though bound, and by example of my patience in ſuffering bonds, &c.

Ver. 11. It is a faithful ſaying] A ſound and a ſure aſſertion, Rom. 8. 17. Afflictions are the præludia triumphi.

If we be dead] As Chriſt, ver. 8. Or, for Chriſt, if we be in deaths often, and at length loſe our lives for his names ſake.

Ver. 12. If we ſuffer] No wearing the crown, but by bearing the croſs firſt. Ne Jeſum quidem audias glorioſum, niſi videris prius crucifixum, ſaith Luther. Chriſt himſelf was not glorified, till firſt crucified. Q. Elizabeth is ſaid to have ſwam to her crown thorow a ſea of ſorrows: ſo muſt we. Epiſt. ad Melanchon.

If we deny him] See the Note on Mat. 10. 33. God uſually retaliates, pays men home in their own coin, proportions jealouſie to jealouſie, provocation to provocation, Deut. 32. 21. Iſa. 66. 3, 4.

Ver. 13. If we believe not] See the Note on Rom. 3. 3. Some ſenſe it thus: Though we prove perfidious, yet he is no loſer by us, as having all within himſelf. Howbeit hereby we ſhew that we have no intereſt in Chriſt; for he cannot deny himſelf, though we can deny him.

Verſe 14. Strive not about words] Either out of novelty, or niceneſs. As Longolius who would not uſe the word Eccleſia, but inſtead thereof Reſpublica Chriſtiana. Another Italian Biſhop for Epiſcopus took up the Heatheniſh word Flamen: So Caſtalio for Angelus hath Genius, &c. And Pomponius Lætus was full of ſuch like fooleries, viery conteſtations, and empty ſtrifes. Or, ſtrive not with words, bandying contumelious ſpeeches (which is but to waſh off dirt with dirt.) Biſhop Mountague could not name any one, that did never ſo little diſſent from him, without a reproach, as Rivet noteth of him. Arbitror te veritate convictum, ad maledicta converti, ſaid Hierom to Helvidius, I ſuppoſe thou haſt nothing to ſay againſt the truth, and doſt therefore fall a railing at me that defend it. Or, think not to carry it by big and boaſting words without better proof; but ſtone thine adverſaries with Arguments, as Athanaſius adviſeth: burn Hereticks with the fire of charity, as Luther teacheth. Joh. Manl. loc. com. Lud. Vives.

Ver. 15. Study to ſhew thy ſelf] There are crept into Gods Sanctuary ſuch Levites to divide the word, that are not worthy the place of Gibeonites to cleave wood: like thoſe unlearned unlearned Logicians in Plato, Lacerant doctrinas, ſicut caniculi panniculos, ſa th he: They tear up a text, and torment it, they wreſt the Scriptures and wrong them, ſet them upon the wrack, and make them ſpeak what they never meant. Theſe ſhould be driven from the work, as thoſe baſtard Levites were by the Tirſhata, Ezra 2.63.

Digitized by Google

Rightly dividing the Word of God] The Syriack renders it, Rightly preaching the word. Æſchines ſaith, An Orators oration, and the Law (ſo a Preachers Sermon and the Word) muſt be uniſons. And if Galen could ſay, That in anatomizing mans brain, Phyſitians muſt carry themſelves as men do in the Temple: How much more muſt Divines do ſo, in dividing Gods holy Word? The Metaphor ſeems to be taken either from the Prieſts of the Law, who were to cut up the Sacrifices accurately, and to lay them upon the Altar orderly: Or elſe from houſholders, that cut and carve to every one at table, their ſhare of meat. So muſt Miniſters; and not do as he in the Emblem, that gave ſtraw to the Dog, and a bone to the Aſs; but ſee that every one have their proper portion; this is workman-like, ſuch as need not be aſhamed.

χρὴ τὸ αὐτὸ φιλοσοφεῖν καὶ ῥητορεύειν καὶ νόμον. Æſch. Gal. de uſu par. lib. 7.

Verſe 16. But ſhun] Gr. Go round about them, viz. to ſuppreſs them on every ſide. St. Peter calls them bubbles of words, full of winde, 2 Pet. 2.18.

περιίστασο.

For they will increaſe] The Greek word ſignifies, to cut a thing before, to make a paſſage for other things; as in ſome Countreys they cut a paſſage for their ſheep, becauſe of the yce. Sure it is that errour is of an encroaching nature. Let the Serpent but wind in his head, and he will quickly bring in his whole body. He that ſaith yea to the Devil in a little, ſhall not ſay nay when he pleaſes; He that tumbleth down the hill of error, will never leave tumbling till he comes to the bottom. The Popiſh Superſtition at firſt grew ſecretly, the Tares were hid under the corn; but now they overtop and choke it. How many (now adays) firſt turn Separatiſts, then Antinomians, then Anabaptiſts, then Arminians, then Socinians, Anti-ſcripturiſts, Anti trinitarians, Stark-Atheiſts? The London Miniſters in their late Vindication complain of this wretched defection of many of their formerly forward hearers, and not without cauſe. It were far eaſier to write a Book of Apoſtates in this age, then a Book of Martyrs.

προκόψουσι.

Verſe 17. Eat as doth a gangrene] Which preſently over-runs the parts, and takes the brain, pierceth into the very bones, and if not ſuddenly cured by cutting off the part infected, kils the patient. Lo ſuch is Hereſie and Error: which made Placilla the Empreſs earneſtly beſeech her husband Theodoſius Senior not to confer with Eunomius the Heretick, leſt he ſhould be perverted by his ſpeeches. Anaſius the ſecond Biſhop of Rome, anno 497, while he ſought to win Acacius the Heretick, was ſeduced by him. Error is exceeding infectious, and for moſt part mortal, as the leproſie in the head was held to be. Jealouſie, frenſie, and hereſie can hardly be cured, ſaith the Italian proverb.

Sozom. l. 7. c. 7 ac Revius, de vit. Pont.

Verſe 18. Have erred] Gr. Have miſſed the mark, as unskilfull Archers; or as inconſiderate Mariners, by miſreckoning of a point, they have miſſed the haven, and run upon the rocks.

ἠστόχησαν.

That the reſurrection is paſt] Theſe were (likely) the progenitors of Marcion, who taught that there was no reſurrection of the body to be believed, but of the ſoul only from ſin. This Hereſie is now revived amongſt us, and raked again out of the grave; as many other alſo are and will be, by this lawleſs liberty.

Epiph. hæreſ. 43.

And overthrow the faith of ſome] Not the grace, but the profeſſion of Faith: and this they are ever doing at (the word is in the preſent tenſe) that they may undo their Diſciples, by digging at the foundation thus, that they may demoliſh the whole Fabrick.

ἀνατρέπουσι.

Verſe 19. Nevertheleſs the foundation] viz. Of Gods election, which is here compared to a ſealed book; on the one ſide of the ſeal is written, The Lord knoweth them that are his. On the other ſide, And let every one that nameth, &c. This the Apoſtle ſetteth forth, for the better ſetling of ſuch as were ſhaken by the fall of Hymenæus and Philetus, two ſuch forward profeſſors.

Standeth ſure] As on a rock. Our Engliſh word ſure, ſeems to come from the Hebrew Tzur, a Rock.

Having this ſeal] A Seal is for two Ends, Safety and Secreſie. The Jews uſe to write on the back of their ſealed Packets, Nun, Cheth, Shin, that is, Niddui, Cherem and Shammatha, all ſorts of Excommunication to him that ſhall offer to break up ſealed buſineſſes. Gods hidden ones are in a ſafe hand, and out of danger of utter Apoſtaſy; though he eſtſoons ſuffereth the tree of his Church to be ſhaken, that rotten fruit may fall off.

Digitized by Google

to

The Lord knoweth them, &c.] In reſpect of the freeneſs of his election, and immobility of his affection. Howbeit this knowledge that God hath of his, is carried ſecret, as a river under ground, till he cals and ſeparates us from the reſt.

That nameth the name of Chriſt] He may have an infallible Seal of ſalvation, that but nameth Chriſts name in prayer, that can ſay no more then Ah Father, deſiring and reſolving to depart from iniquity.

Verſe 20. There are not only, &c.] Wonder not therefore, murmure not that there are a mixture of good and bad in Gods houſe. He knows how to ſerve himſelf of both. Rom. 9 20, 21, 22. Neither be offended, that ſome of great note fall away, as did Hymenæus and Philetus. God hath his veſſels of all ſorts.

Verſe 21. Purge himſelf from theſe] From theſe Seducers or Arch-heretikes, thoſe veſſels of diſhonour, whoſe doctrine defileth worſe then any kitchin-ſtuff or leproſy.

He ſhall be a veſſel, &c.] You know (ſaid John Careleſs the Martyr, in a letter to Mr. Philpot) that the veſſel before it be made bright, is ſoiled with oil and many other things, that it may ſcour the better. O happy be you that you be now in this ſcouring houſe; for ſhortly you ſhall be ſet upon the Celeſtial ſhelf as bright as Angels, &c.

Acts and Mon. fol. 1743.

φεῦγε. Verſe 22. Fly alſo youthful luſts] Fly them he muſt with poſt-haſte, though ſuch a chaſte and chaſtened piece as he was. Youth is a ſlippery age, ſlippery as glaſs, eaſily contracting duſt and filth, as the word uſed by David importeth, Pſal. 119 9. and ſhould therefore cleanſe its ways by cleaving to the Word. Youth is a hot age, as the Greek word ſignifies; a black dark age, as the Hebrew word noteth, Eccleſ. 11. 10. Therefore put away evil from thy fleſh, ſaith the wiſe man there, out of his own experience. S. Paul repeats and inculcates this precept upon his ſon Timothy, as men do not only anoint their fleſh, but rub in the ointment. He knew that all was but enough. Summopere cavendum divino præconi, ne dicta factis deficientibus erubeſcant. Nihil turpius Peripatetico clando, ſaith one.

νέος & ἀπὸ τοῦ αἴθω uro, αἴζηος & ζέω ferveo.

But follow righteouſneſs, faith, &c.] Let not the Devil finde thee idle, but do what thou canſt to be out of the way when the temptation cometh. Keep cloſe to God in other matters, Eccleſ. 7. 26. Prov. 22 14. exerciſe thy ſelf in duties of Piety with an upright heart. Pro. 23. 26, 27. & 6. 23, 24. & 2. 10, 11, 16. Rom. 1. 28.

παραιτοῦ. Verſe 23. But fooliſh and unlearned, &c.] Vitiligatorum nænias devita. Shift them off, ſet them by as ſeeds of ſedition. Shake off vain Queſtioniſts as great triflers: Such were the Schoolmen, in deteſtation of whoſe vain jangling, and doting about queſtions Luther ſaith, Prope eſt ut jurem nullum eſſe Theologum Scholaſticum qui unum caput Evangelii intelligat; I could almoſt ſwear that there is not a Schoolman that underſtands one Chapter of the new Teſtament. One of their Doctors ſaid, That he had publikely expounded the book of Iob. But by that time he came to the tenth and eleventh Chapters, he did verily believe that Iob was more vexed and tortured by his interpretations, then ever he had been by his botches and ulcers.

Luth. tom 1. oper. Lat. ep. 47.

Iob. Manl loc. com. pag. 478.

μάχεσθαι. Verſe 24. Muſt not ſtrive] Scold, wrangle, Ne rixando amittatur veritas, ut fere fit, leſt by ſtriving about the truth, we utterly loſe it. Facta eſt fides Evangeliorum, fides temporum. & cum fides una eſſe debeat, eò pene ventum eſt ut nulla ſit. A ſad complaint of Hilary. Eraſmus obſerveth, That in the Primitive times there were ſo many ſects and hereſies, and ſo much pretending to the truth by them all, that it was a witty thing to be a right believer. A late Writer complaineth, That a Chriſtian now is not the ſame thing as formerly. Our heads are ſo big (like Children that have the Rickets) that all the body fares the worſe for it.

Ἀνεξικάκον. Ἀνέχου καὶ ἀπέχου. Suſtine, abſtine. Ariſt. Top. 1. Ἐλέγχετε διαστελλόμενοι. Arguite diſtinctos: ſic Lorinus vertit.

Patient] Or, Tolerant of evil, both perſons and occurrences: he ſhall have his back-burden of both, and muſt both bear and forbear. Taceo, Fero, Spero, muſt be his Motto, as it was Hyperius his.

Verſe 25. Thoſe that oppoſe themſelves] Though they ſhould deal as abſurdly with us, as thoſe that deny the ſnow to be white, &c. Ariſtotle forbids to diſpute with ſuch. But Chriſt commands not only by force of argument to convince them, Jude 22. but alſo to handle them gently, and in meekneſs to inſtruct them.

Digitized by Google

If God will give them,&c.] Repentance is Gods gift: neither is it in the power of any to repent at pleasure. Some vainly conceit, that these five words, Lord have mercy upon me, are as efficacious to send them to heaven, as the Papists, that their five words of consecration are to transubstantiate the bread. But as many are undone (saith a Divine) by buying a counterfeit Jewel; so many are in Hell by mistake of their repentance.

Verse 26. Recover themselves] Put away their spiritual drunkenness, 1 Sam. 1.14. and go forth and shake themselves, as Sampson, out of sins lethargy. Out of the snare of the devil, i.e. Heretical doctrines, or sensual pleasures; both which do intoxicate mens brains, and make them dead-drunk. Ἀνανήψωσι.

Taken alive] But to be destroyed, 2 Pet. 2. 12. without repentance unto life, Act. 11.18. Ἐζωγρημένοι. Taken alive, and in hunting.

CHAP. III.

Verse 1. Perillous times]

GR. Hard times. Hard hearts make hard times. Ejusmodi tempora descripsit (saith Casaubon of Tacitus, and the same may we say of St. Paul) quibus nulla unquam aut virtutum steriliora, aut virtutibus inimiciora: He describeth these last and loosest times of the world, barren of vertues, but abounding with vices. There was never any but Noah, that with two faces, saw both before and behinde. But that Ancient of days, to whom all things are present, hath here told us, that the last shall be the worst. χαλεποὶ καιροί.

Verse 2. Lovers of their own selves] This sinful self-love is the root of all the rest, that follow in this black bed-roll:

Boasters] Or, Arrogant, as that Pyrgopolynices, Isa. 10.8,9 10,11. Thrasonical Lamech, Gen. 4.23. where he brags and goes on to out-dare God himself. Spaniards are said to be impudent braggers, and extreamly proud in the loweſt ebb of fortune. Vide Iun. in loc.

Verse 3. Without natural affection,&c.] True Christians live soberly, as touching themselves, righteously toward men, and godly towards their God. But these Antipodes are as touching themselves, self-lovers, silver-lovers, pleasure-mongers, incontinent, boasters, proud, heady, high-minded. As for their carriage towards others, they are blasphemers, disobedient to Parents, without natural affection, truce-breakers, or irreconcileable, false accusers, or devils, fierce or savage, despisers of those that are good, traitors, &c. And as to God, they are not lovers of God, but unthankful, unholy. And such dust-heaps as these, a man may finde in every corner of the Church. Tit. 2.12. Ἀσπονδοι.

Verse 4. Heady] Head-long and head-strong, rash and inconsiderate, Qui non vident προορωντες καὶ ὁπίσω, that look not well about them, but make desperate adventures. The Greek word signifieth such as flie before they are fledg'd. προπετεῖς.

Lovers of pleasure] Not considering that the pleasure passeth, but the pain that attends it is perpetual. Momentaneum est quod delectat, aeternum quod cruciat. Let not men take pleasure in pleasure. It was not simply a sin in Esau to go a hunting: But yet the more he used it, the more profane he waxed, and came at length to contemn his birthright. Who are void of the Spirit, but sensual ones? Jude 18,19. Who say to God, Depart from us, but those that dance? Iob 21.10,11. Better be preserved in brine, then rot in honey. These pleasure-mongers are at last, as the worst of all. Such a one was Catullus, who wished all his body were nose, that he might spend all his time in sweet smels. Such was Philoxenus, who likewise wished that his neck were as long as a Cranes, that he might take more delight in meats and drinks. Such was Boccas the Poet, who said that he was born per lamore delle donne, for the love of women. But in the kingdom of pleasure, vertue cannot consist. These voluptuaries (as one saith of them) are, Magis solliciti de mero, quam de vero: Magisque amantes mundi delicias quam Christi divitias: as those Recusant Guests; the worst of all whom, and left excusable, was that Epicure, who had married a wife, and therefore could not come. φιλήδονοι. Chrysost.

Verse 5. Having a form of godliness] Hollow professors are as hollow trees in an old wood; tall, but pithless, sapless, unsound. Their formality is fitly compared to a bulrush, whereof the colour is fresh, the skin smooth; he is very exact that can finde a knot in a bulrush: But pill it, and what shall you find within but a kinde of spongeous unsub- Isa. 58.5.

Digitized by Google

unsubstantial substance, &c. These as if Religion were a Comedy, do in voice and gesture act divine duties, in heart renounce them. Hypocrites only act Religion, play Devotion; like they are to the Ostrich, saith Hugo, Qui alas habet sed non volat, which hath wings but flies not. God is in their mouths, but not in their reins, as the Prophet Jeremy complaineth; and all they do is an effect rather of Art, and parts, then of the heart and grace; shels not kernels, shadows and pageants of piety, not heart-workings. The Swan in the Law was rejected for sacrifice, because of her black skin under white feathers. Art may take man more then nature: but with God the more Art, the less acceptance: he loveth truth in the inwards, Psal. 51. 6.

ἐνδύνοντες. Mulierculas Jesuita pio studio semper complecti solent.

Verse 6. Creep into houses] Gr. Shoot themselves into the inner rooms of houses, Qui se se immergunt, by their pithanology and counterfeit humility, as the Jesuites and many of our modern Sectaries. That creep like Ferrets, or Weesels, as the Syriack here hath it.

Αἰχμαλωτίζοντες. Virgil.

Lead captive silly women] Gr. Take them prisoners, and then make prize of them, 2 Pet. 2. 3. Egregiam verò laudem, & spolia ampla refertis, &c. But omnes hæreses ex Gynæciis. It is the guise of Hereticks to abuse the help of women, to spread their poisonfull opinions. They get an Eudoxia, Justina, Constantia on their side; and so work upon Adam by Eve. Of women they have ever made their profit, that have attempted any innovation in Religion.

Verse 7. Ever learning, and never able] Because resolved not to lose their lusts. Intùs existens prohibebat alienum: There was that within that kept out holy learning. It Scultet. Annal. was therefore an excellent prayer of holy Zuinglius before his publike Lectures, Father of lights, illighten our minds, and open our hearts, so as that we may both understand thine oracles, and be transformed into them, &c.

Verse 8. Now as Jannes and Jambres] Numenius the Pythagorean calleth him Mambres. These were those Ægyptian Sorcerers: their names S. Paul had either by tradition, Tract. Menachoth, cap. 9. or out of some Jewish Records. Apuleius in his second Apology, mentioneth one Jannes among the chief Magicians. The Babylonian Thalmud also maketh mention of these two by name, as chief of the Sorcerers of Ægypt.

Resist the truth] Not so much us, as the truth. So Alexander the Copper-smith did greatly withstand Pauls preachings, cap. 4. 15. this was far worse then to withstand his person.

Verse 9. As theirs also was] Exod. 8. 19. When they were set, and could not with all their skill make a louse, but by further resistance manifested their folly unto all men. So did that Jugler of Antwerp, all whose enchantments were made void by Mr. Tindal the Martyr present at that supper, where and when he should, but could not play

Act. and Mon. fol. 985. his feats, and shew his cunning.

παρηκολούθησας. Verse 10. But thou hast fully known] Or, Thou hast exactly trod in my tract, followed my foot-steps; as Irenæus did Polycarps, as Paræus did Ursins; whence that Poet, Paulus Melissus.

——— Sacra docente Pareo, Vividus Ursini Spiritus ora movet.

ὄτας. Verse 11. What persecutions I indured] Gr. What manner of persecutions. A Christian may without sin be sensible of injuries and indignities. Only it must be the mourning of Doves, and not the roaring of Bears. A Sheep may be as sensible of the biting of a Dog, as a Swine is, though he raise not such a dust, make not such a din.

Verse 12. Yea, and all that will live] Carry they the matter never so discreetly, they must suffer. Many dream of a delicacy, they conceit a godly life without persecution.

Boetius. These would pull a Rose without Pricks. Armat spina rosas, mella tegunt apes. Thucydides complains of his countrey-men, that none of them would παλαιοπαθεῖν διὰ τὸ καλόν, suffer ought for goodness sake. Too few there are, that now-adays will do so.

Verse 13. Shall wax worse and worse] In deterius proficient, a sorry kinde of profiting, Quandò Andabatarum more res provedat. Thus the Illuminates (as they called themselves) a pestilent sect in Aragon, professing and affecting in themselves a kind of Angelical purity, fell suddenly to the very counterpoint of justifying bestiality. And

Spec. Europ. though these men and their light are quenched some while since, yet under pretence of new lights have not our Church-forsakers wheeled, and wheeled about so long to the right-right-hand, that they are perfectly come round to the left? See the Note on Chap. 2.

Digitized by Google

Verse 14. But continue thou, &c. Gr. Abide, Keep thy station: Thou shalt surely be put to't, as that prophetical man in the Ecclesiastical History went to the pillars a little afore an earthquake, and bad them stand fast, for they should shortly be shaken. Μένε.

Verse 15. And that from a childe] Gr. From a suckling. As all children, so those especially that are dedicated to the work of the Ministery, should be betimes inured to Scripture-learning. See the Note on 1 Tim. 4.6. The story of Mistris Elizabeth Wheatenhall daughter of Mr. Anthony Wheatenhall of Tenterden in Kent late deceased, is very memorable. She being brought up by her Aunt the Lady Wheatenhall, before she was nine years old (not much above eight) could say all the New Testament by heart; yea being asked where any words thereof were, she would presently name Book, chapter and verse, &c. Timothy was so sweet a childe, that if that had not been his name, it might have been his surname, as Vopiscus saith of Probus the Emperor. ἀπὸ βρέφους. David's love to Gods word by Mr. Loughton. Epist. to Reader.

To make thee wise] Gr. To wise thee, that thou maist wise others, as Dan. 12.3. The same Hebrew word signifies, 1. To understand. 2. To instruct others. 3. To prosper. σὲ σοφίσαι. שכל

To salvation] He is the wise man that provides for eternity. And when all the worlds wizzards shall very wisely cry out in hell, Nos insensati, We fools counted their lives madness, &c. They shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, Dan. 12.3. Sapientes sapienter descendunt in infernum.

Verse 16. All Scripture is given] Gr. Breathed by God, both for matter and words. What frontless Hereticks then are our upstart Anti-Scripturists, that dare affirm, That the Scriptures are not divine, but humane invention: and that the pen-men wrote as themselves conceived; they were the actions of their own spirit, &c. Also that the Scriptures are insufficient and uncertain? &c. Papists likewise speak and write basely of the holy Scriptures; as Bishop Bonners Chaplain, who called it his little pretty Gods book. Gifford and Rainolds say, the Bible contains something prophane and Apocryphal. A certain Italian Bishop told Espencæus, that his Countreymen were charged not to read the Scriptures, Ne sic fierent hæretici, lest they should thereby be made hereticks, &c. But Gregory cals the Bible Cor & animam Dei, the heart and soul of God. Augustine a fortress against Errors; Tertullian calleth it Nostra digesta, Our digests, from the Lawyers: and others, Our Pandects, from them also. Classicus hic locus est, saith Gerhard upon the Text, This is a Classical place to prove the perfection of the Scriptures against Papists, and whatsoever adversaries, who argue it of insufficiency; accounting traditions or revelations to be the touchstone of Doctrine, and Foundation of Faith. If the Scripture be profitable for all these purposes, and able to make a Minister perfect, &c. Who can say less of it, then that it is The souls food, as Athanasius calleth it, The invariable Rule of truth, as Irenæus, The touch-stone of errors, The Aphorisms of Christ, The Library of the Holy Ghost, The circle of all divine Arts, The Wisdom of the cross, The cubit of the Sanctuary, &c. Θεόθ. ὑγιὴς γνώμη. κανὼν ἡ ἀλήθεια. Θείας κιβωτός. Lindan Panop. l. 1. c. 9.

And is profitable for instruction] See my True Treasure, pag. 40. And hereunto add for Consolation according to Rom. 15.4. though this also is here comprehended in Doctrine and Instruction for righteousness. The same Greek word signifieth to exhort and to comfort. διδασκαλίαν.

Verse 17. That the man of God] The Minister, and so consequently the people too, for whose use the Minister hath all. This is observed of them, that still the Scholar goes one step further then the Teacher.

May be perfect] With a perfection of parts, able and apt to make use of the holy Scriptures to all the former purposes, for the behoof or benefit of his hearers. The authority of the Fathers (saith a grave and learned Divine) I never urge for necessity of proof (the Scripture is thereto al-sufficient and super-abundant) but only either in some singular points to shew consent: Or, 2. In our controversies against Antichristians, Antinomists, Neopelagians, &c. Or, 3. When some honest passage of sanctification or seasonable opposition to the corruption of the times, is falsly charged with novelty, singularity, and too much preciseness. Ἄρτιος, omnibus numeris absolutus. M. Bolton his four last things, p. 147.

Digitized by Google

Chap. IV.

Verse 1. I charge thee therefore]

Matters of greatest importance must be pressed with greatest vehemence. As God putteth not forth great power, but for great purpose, Eph. 1. 18, 19. so neither must we use great earnestness, but in affairs of great moment. It is a weakness to be hot in a cold matter, but worse to be cold in a hot matter. Farellus perswading Calvin (then a young student, and bound for Italy) to stay and help in the Lords work at Geneva, pronounced Gods curse upon his studies (which Calvin pretended) in case he staid not. Whereupon, Non ausus fuit Calvinus ad Farelli tonitrua plus quàm Periclea (saith mine Author) jugum vocationis, quod sibi à Domino imponi videbat, detrectare. Calvin durst not stir after such a charge, but staid it out there to his dying-day.

Melch. Adam. in vita Calv. pag. 114.

ἐπίστηθι. Verse 2. Be instant] Gr. Stand over it. Stand close to it. Chrysostom at Antioch having preached many Sermons against swearing, was at length asked, when he would preach upon another subject? He answered, When you leave swearing, I'le leave preaching against swearing.

In season, out of season] On the Lords-day, on the week-day, Volentibus nolentibus dic importunus, Tu vis errare, tu vis perire, ego nolo, saith Augustine. Let men know whether they will or no, that for lack of preaching they shall not perish. The shew-bread stood all the week before the Lord; to shew, that preaching is not out of season on any day. The Friers of Basil held that it was Lutheranum diebus profanis praedicare, Heretical to preach on working-days. But Anthony Person, Martyr, told his persecutors, That they were bite-sheeps and not Bishops for neglecting to preach: It being as a great a wonder at Rome to hear a Bishop preach, as to see an Ass flie, said Dr. Bassinet. But Bishop Ridley preached usually every Sabbath-day and holy-day: so did B. Jewel, Dr. Taylor Martyr, Mr. Bradford, even during his imprisonment: Preaching, reading and praying was all his whole life. He did sharply reprove sin, pithily improve errors, sweetly preach Christ crucified, earnestly perswade to a godly life, &c.

Melch. Adam. Act. and Mon. fol 1111. Ibid. 862. Ibid. 1559. Ibid. 1380. Ibid. 1457.

With all long-suffering, &c.] Si decimus quisq;, si unus persuasus fuerit, ad consolationem abundè sufficit, saith Chrysostom. If you gain but the tithe of your hearers, or less, it is well.

Alex Aphrod. problem. Verse 3. Sound doctrine] Which as honey, Vulnera purgat, ulcera mordet, purgeth green wounds, but causeth pain to exulcerate parts. Children, though they love and lick in honey, yet will not endure to have it come near their lips, when they have sore mouths. There are that are mad against the Medicine, and flie in the faces of their Spiritual Physitians that come to cure them; they are sick of a Noli me tangere, and had rather perish in their sins then part with them. These must be pitied as people out of their right minds, and pulled out of the Devils paws; this, saith Jerome, is sancta violentia, optabilis rapina, an holy violence, a desireable rapine; they will thank us, if ever they recover: as if not, yet our reward is with the Lord. The Physician is paid, whether the Patient live or die. A Minister must exhort with all long suffering, and oft sigh out with good old Jacob (troubled at his childrens untowardness) Lord, I have waited for thy salvation. Gen. 49. 18.

Horat. Having itching ears] Which must have clawing preachers; such as will never auriculas mordaci radere vero, deal plainly and faithfully with their souls.

De mirabil. auscult. Verse 4. Turn their ears from the truth] Aristotle writeth, that Vultures are killed with oil of Roses. Sweet smells enrage Tigers. Swine cannot live in some parts of Arabia, saith Pliny, by reason of the pleasant scent of Aromatical Trees there growing in every wood.

Verse 5. Endure afflictions, do the work] Honor ministerii est in onere, dignitas in diligentia, corona in contemptu.

πληροφόρησον. Make full proof] Or, Accomplish thy Ministery: So executing every part of it, as to make it thy whole business. Verbi minister es, hoc age, was Mr. Perkins his Motto. Thou art a Minister, look to it.

σπένδομαι. He speaks of it as done already. Verse 6. Ready to be offered] To be poured out as a drink-offering upon Gods altar. Thus the Apostle expresseth himself emphatically, pathetically, elegantly, setting forth by what death he should glorifie God, viz. by being beheaded. Whether my death be a burnt-burnt-offering, a drink-offering (by fire or ſword) or a peace-offering (that I die in my bed) I deſire it may be a free-will-offering, a ſweet ſacrifice to the Lord.

Digitized by Google

The time of my departure] He makes nothing of death. It was no more betwixt God and Moſes, but Go up and die. So betwixt Chriſt and Paul, but launch out, and land immediatly at the fair haven of heaven.

Verſe 7. I have fought a good fight] The nearer any thing is to the Center, the more ſtrongly and ſwiftly it moveth. The wine of the ſpirit is ſtrongeſt in the Saints, when they are drawing to an end. His motions are quickeſt, when natural motions are ſloweſt, moſt ſenſible when the body begins to be ſenſleſs, moſt lively when the Saints are a dying. See this in Moſes his Swan-like Song: Davids laſt diſcourſe to his Son Solomon and his Nobles: Our Saviours farewell to the world, in that laſt ſweet Sermon and Prayer of his, Joh. 13.14,15,16,17. wherein there is more worth (ſaith a Divine) then in all the Books in the world beſides. When excellent Bucholcer was near his end, he wrote his Book de Conſolatione decumbentium, Of the comfort of ſick people. Then it was that Toſſanus wrote his Vade mecum: Dr. Preſton his Attributes of God: Mr. Bolton his joys of heaven: And before them all, Savanarola the Italian Martyr, his Medications upon the one and fiftieth Pſalm, Verbis vivis, animatis ſententiis, & ſpiritus fervore flagrantiſſimis, in moſt lively expreſſions, and with moſt heavenly affections. Indeed the Saints are moſt heavenly, when neareſt to heaven: like as Rivers, the nearer they grow to the Sea, the ſooner they are met by the Tide. Mr. Baxter. Sixtus Senenſ.

Verſe 8. There is laid up a crown] Beyond a crown the wiſhes of mortal men extend not. Alexander inviting many to Supper, provided a crown of 180. pound to be given to thoſe that drank moſt. One and fourty killed themſelves with drinking to get that crown. Shall theſe do more for a trifle, then we will do for heaven?

A crown of righteouſneſs] So ſalvation is called; not for that it is of right due to us, but becauſe it is purchaſed for us by the righteouſneſs of Chriſt, and ſhall be freely given to thoſe that are juſtified by faith.

Verſe 9. Do thy diligence, &c.] We want much of our comfort in the want of a friend, Eccl. 4.9. Optimum ſolatium ſodalitium. How doth David bemoan the loſs of Jonathan? How did D. Taylor prize the company of his fellow-priſoner, that Angel of God, as he called him, John Bradford? What a mercy did S. Paul count it, that ſick Epaphroditus recovered, Phil. 2.27?

Verſe 10. Demas hath forſaken me] Blazing comets, as long as they keep aloft, ſhine bright; but when they begin to decline from their pitch, they fall to the earth. Jonathan followed the chaſe well, and with greedy purſuit, till he met with the honey: ſo doth many a Demas.

Having loved this preſent world] Or, embraced it; that withered Harlot had taken him with her eye-lids; that old Circe had bewitched him, that ſhall one day be burnt up by fire, for her enticing men. Divorce the fleſh from the world, and then the Devil can do us no harm. He hath no way to intangle us, but to ſay as he did to our Saviour, Mitte te deorſum, caſt thy ſelf down, embrace this preſent world, follow after theſe lying vanities. ἀγαπήσας.

And is departed unto Theſſalonica] Where he became an Idol-Prieſt, as ſaith Dorotheus. So Harding (Biſhop Juels adverſary) was one while a thundring Preacher, wiſhing he could cry out againſt Popery as loud as the bells of Oſeney; yet afterwards proved a filthy Apoſtate, and an utter adverſary to the truth; and yet the world favoured him not; for, the moſt he could get of his Holineſs, for all the good ſervice he did him, was but a Prebend of Gaunt, or to ſpeak more properly (ſaith D. Featly) a Gaunt-Prebend. Stapleton (another turn-coat) was made Profeſſor of a petty Univerſity, ſcarce ſo good as one of our Free-Schools in England. Saunders was ſtarved. Allin was commonly called the ſtarveling Cardinal. If any of the worlds darlings ſpeed better, let them take that counſel that was given by one to John the third King of Portugal, viz. to meditate every day a quarter of an hour on that divine ſentence, What ſhall it profit a man to win the whole world, and loſe his own ſoul? Featl. his tranſubſt exploded.

Verſe 11. For he is profitable] Once unprofitable (Act. 15.38. See the Note there) but now profitable, Philem. 11.

Verſe 12. Tychicus have I ſent] For what end, ſee Eph. 6.22. with the Note there.

Verſe 13. The cloak that I left] O ſupellectilem Apoſtolicam! O what a ſmall deal of houſhold- Eraſ. in loc.

Digitized by Google

household-stuff had this great Apostle, saith Erasmus a cloak to keep off the rain, and a few books and writings. Tota etiam supellex mea est chartacea, saith he in another place. All my stock is in books. And of judicious Calvin it is reported, that all the goods that he left behinde him, his library being sold very dear, came scarce to 300. florens, that is about ninety pounds of our money. Seekest thou great things for thy self? Jer. 45.5.

Erasm. in farrag. epist.

But especially the Parchments] Note-books of his own making or collecting: these are highly prized by Students. Julius Cæsar being forced to swim for his life, held his Commentaries in one hand above water, and swam to land with the other. And what a sweet Providence of God was that, that when Heidelberg was sackt and ransackt by the Spaniards, Ursins Catechism enlarged by Pareus, but not yet published, was taken among other Books for pillage, and by him dropped in the streets, but taken up by a young Student, and afterwards Printed by Philip Pareus, to the great benefit of all good people!

Malo fuit cum Catonis libellorum quam purpuræ.

Verse 14. Alexander the Coppersmith] Who was once Martyrio propinquus, saith Calvin, near unto Martyrdom in Pauls cause, Act. 19.33. A glorious professor may become a furious persecutor. Let him that stands, take heed lest he fall.

The Lord reward him] This is neither a curse, nor a railing speech (saith an Ancient) but a prediction well beseeming an Apostle, that avenged not himself, but rather gave place to wrath, Rom. 12.19.

Author quæst. apud Just. Mar.

Verse 15. He hath greatly resisted our words] Or, our preachings, not our persons only. This was a foul fault. See 1 Thes. 4.8. Exod. 16.8.

Verse 16. No man stood with me] So that Paul might have said as Socrates did, φιλοι, οὐδεὶς φιλὸς, My friends, I have never a friend. And as Plato, A friend is a very mutable creature. Or, as he in Plautus, Ut cuique homini res parata est, firmi amici sunt. Si res lasse labant, itidem amici collabascunt.

συμπάβλητον ζῶον. Plato.

Verse 17. The Lord stood] God is never so sweet and so seasonable to his Saints, as in the day of their deepest distress. He loves to help those that are forsaken of their hopes.

The preaching might be fully known] Or, Soundly proved to be a divine ordinance, by my constancy and contempt of death.

Out of the mouth of the lion] Nero, who first orientem fidem Romæ cruentavit, as Tertullian speaketh, put Christians to death, and made a bloody decree, That whosoever confessed himself a Christian, should, without any more ado, be put to death as a convicted enemy of mankinde. Tertullian calleth him The Dedicator of the condemnation of Christians.

Dedicator damnationis Christianorum. Tert.

Verse 18. And the Lord shall deliver] Experience breeds confidence. St. Paul got an opportunity after this from Rome, to make an excursion to plant and confirm Churches, returned again to Rome, and was there martyred by bloody Nero, as it is storied.

Unto his heavenly kingdom] So David argues from temporals to eternals, Psal. 23.5,6.

Verse 19. Salute Prisca, &c. See the Note on Rom. 16.3.

Verse 20. At Miletum sick] See the Note on Phil. 2.27.

Verse 21. Do thy diligence, &c.] The Apostle quickneth Timothy, as Tully did his friend, Quamobrem si me amas, &c. si dormis expergiscere, si stas ingredere, si ingrederis curre, si curris advola. Credibile non est quantum ego in amore & fide tua ponam. Make all possible haste hither, for I rely much upon thy love and loyalty.

And Claudia] An English (or rather Brittish) woman, who went to Rome, was converted by Paul, married a Roman Gentleman called Pudens (as here) for his parts, but before called Rufus. It is thought she sent the Gospel first into England. See Antiq. Britan. Cambden in Britan. Matth. Parker, Bale, Godwins Catalog. Speeds Chron. &c. This is no article of our Faith.

Verse 22. Grace be with you] Gods blessing be with you always, Amen. Even now toward the offering of a burnt sacrifice, &c. said that Martyr in a letter to certain friends.

Act. and Mon. 1365. Lau. Saunders.

A

Digitized by Google

A COMMENTARY OR EXPOSITION Upon the Epistle of S. Paul to Titus.

Chap. I.

Verse 1. The faith of Gods elect]

NOt the election of Gods faithful ones, as the Arminians make it.

And the knowledge of the truth] It is usual with S. Paul in the beginning of his Epistles, to utter much in few, and to set down the sum of the whole Gospel, as here he doth Justification, Sanctification, and the hope of Salvation, and all by the acknowledging of the truth. This Epistle is called the abridgement of all St. Pauls Epistles; but especially of those two to Timothy, whom he more largely instructeth in point of Church-government, because a younger man then Titus, and not so well exercised in Ecclesiastical affairs. Estius.

Verse 2. God that cannot lie] The word of promise binds God: therefore it seems (saith one) that it is stronger then God; for he can as soon deny himself as his promise.

Promised] That is, purposed, as 2 Tim. 1. 9. or decreed to promise, or promised to Christ, or, promised to our first Parents from the beginning of ages, Ante multa secula, so some sense it.

Verse 3. Manifested his word] As when he said plainly, He that believeth in the Son hath eternal life.

Verse 4. Common faith] Common to the communion of Saints, ver. 1. and to them proper and peculiar; for all men have not faith, 2 Thess. 3. 2. Or common, that is, Symbolo Apostolico comprehensum, saith one, contained in the Apostles Creed.

Verse 5. Set in order] Gr. Set straight, or make up the things that I left unfinished. Straighten the things that grow crooked in the Church. ἐπιδιορθώσῃ Confician.

In every City] Crete had an hundred cities, and was therefore called ἑκατόμπολις; as Thebes had an hundred gates, and was therefore called ἑκατόμπυλος.

Verse 6. The husband of one wife] Here the Apostle canonizeth (saith an Interpreter) the marriage of Ministers. Scultet.

Verse 7. A Bishop must be blameless] As was Moses, Samuel, Paul, Bradford, Bucer, &c. who led convincing lives: so that their foes could not in any thing stain them, nor their friends sufficiently commend them. It is better (saith one) to live so as thine enemies may be amazed at thy vertues, then that thy friends should have cause to excuse thy vices.

Not soon angry] Biliosus & bellicosus, testy and techy, easily blown up into rage, that will not be laid down without revenge. ὀργίλος.

Verse 8. Temperate] No slave to his fleshly appetite; but one that can master himself, and give laws to his lusts. See my Common place of Abstinence. ἐγκρατὴς.

Digitized by Google

Verse

Αντεχομ. Verſe 9. Holding faſt, &c.] As with tooth and nail, againſt thoſe gain-ſayers that would ſnatch it from us.

Verſe 10. For there are many unruly] Lawleſs, yokeleſs, maſterleſs men, untractable, untameable, that refuſe to be reformed, hate to be healed. God will hampes theſe Belialiſts, 2 Sam. 23. 6.

βλησομίζειν. Cic. de divinat. Laertius. Fides Punica. Virgil. Cres ſemper mendax, mala beſtua, & belluo doſes. Cambdens Eliz. fol. 394. Cretizare cum Cretenſib. vide Eraſm. Adag. Ισκε ψεύδεα πολλὰ λέγειν ἐτύμοισιν ὁμοῖα. Hom. Eudæmon-Ioannes contra Caſaub.

Verſe 11. Whoſe mouths muſt be ſtopped] Gr. Muzzled, as bandogs are. Frogs they ſay will leave croaking, if but a light be hanged over the Lake wherein they are. Let but the truth come clearly in place, and Hereticks will be ſoon ſilenced. But if they will not, another courſe muſt be taken with them.

Verſe 12. Even a Prophet of their own] Epimenides the Poet, who by his Countreymen the Cretians was counted a Prophet, and had divine honors done to him after his death. This uncircumciſed Poet Paul brings here into the Temple; as before he had done Aratus, Act. 17. 28. and Menander, 1 Cor. 15. 33.

The Cretians are always lyers] So were the Carthaginians, Tyriique bilingues. The French had ſo often deceived the Engliſh, that ſuch as they mean to deceive, they call by a common by-word Les Anglois, The Engliſh. The Cretians were loud liars, even to a Proverb. Of Dolon, Homer ſaith, That he had an Art in lying. But Eudæmon-Joannes (that Cretian Dæmoniack) wins the whetſtone from all his Countrey-men, whiles he bluſheth not to tell the world in Print, that theſe are the doctrines and practiſes of the Proteſtants, to worſhip no God, to frame our Religion to the times, to pretend the publike cauſe to our private luſts, to break our words as we ſee good for our purpoſe, to cover deadly hatred under fair flatteries, to confirm tyrannie by ſhedding the blood of innocents, &c. Evil beaſts, cruel as well as crafty. Theſe two are ſeldom ſeparated; as ſome write of the Aſp, that he never wanders alone without his Companion; and as the Scripture ſpeaks of thoſe birds of prey and deſolation, Iſa. 34. 16. None of them wanteth his mate.

Slow bellies] That is, given to ſloth and idleneſs; and luxurious gluttons.

ἀποτόμως, Cuttingly. Verſe 13. Rebuke them ſharply] Gr. Preciſely, rigidly, ſeverely, and to the quick. A Metaphor from Chyrurgions, who muſt not be melch-hearted, ſaith Celſus, but pare away the dead fleſh, Ne pars ſincera trahatur. Howbeit, that is a good rule given by a godly Divine, that although there muſt be ſome warmth in a reproof, yet it muſt not be ſcalding hot. Words of reviling and diſgrace, they ſcald, as it were. But words that tend to ſtir up the conſcience to a due conſideration of the error, or evil reproved, they be duly warm, and tend to make the Phyſick work more kindly. Evangelizatum non maledictum miſſus es, ſaid Oecolampadius to Farellus: laudo zelum, modò non deſideretur manſuetudo. Vinum & oleum in tempore ſuo infundendum. Evangeliſtam non tyrannicum legiſlatorem præſtes. Thou art ſent to preach, not to rail. Thy zeal I commend, ſo it be mingled with meekneſs. Wine muſt be poured into mens wounds one while, and oil another. Thou muſt ſhew thy ſelf a peaceable preacher, not a tyrannical Law-giver, &c. Rebuke, exhort, with all long-ſuffering, ſaith Paul to Timothy, 2 epiſt. 4. 2. Timothy they ſay was ſomewhat ſharp and tart in his reproofs; and is therefore exhorted to patience and meekneſs. Titus was gentle, and of a milde diſpoſition; and is therefore thus ſpurr'd on to ſharpneſs and ſeverity. The Cretians alſo were (poſſibly) a worſe people then the Epheſians; and were therefore to be more hardly handled. Let it ever be remembred, that matters of moment muſt be wiſely, but yet ſeriouſly dealt with. To tell wicked men of their ſins ſo ſoftly as Eli did his ſons; or reprove them ſo gently as Jehoſaphat did Ahab (Let not the King ſay ſo) doth uſually as much harm as good: like a weak doſe in Phyſick, it ſtirreth the humours, but purgeth them not.

Oecolamp. ep. ad Gul. Farel. Ver. 14. Not giving heed to Jewiſh fables] Wherewith their Talmud is full farc't: which whiles they hug over-hard, as Cleopatra did the Snakes that ſucked her blood, they periſh.

ἀποστρεφόμενοι. Of men that turn from the truth] With utter averſation and deteſtation, as a man turns his body from a loathſom object. Theſe are thoſe that will not endure ſound doctrine, 2 Tim. 4. 3.

Verſe 15. Unto the pure all things, &c.] This Piſcator holds a ſufficient warrant for us to uſe, Ne fortè, and other Heathen-expreſſions; like as the Apoſtles uſed, χρηματίζεσθαι χρηματισμὸς, &c. abuſed by the Greeks to ſignifie their wicked and deviliſh oracles. But Paſor is utterly againſt it.

Piſcat. in Mat. 14. 3. Pat. præfat. ad Lexic.

Is nothing pure] Their own table is a ſnare to them, yea Gods table. The Saints are kept kept at hard Commons, but have their keeping of free-coſt: the wicked have larger cates, but pay ſweetly.

Digitized by Google

Conſcience is defiled] To wit, with ſins, and ſo can no more judge of it, then a man can diſcern of colours in a foul and ſoiled glaſs.

Verſe 16. They profeſs that they know] Aliud in titulo, aliud in pyxide. Out-ſide Chriſtians, who perform as Ephraim, dow-baked duties, are almoſt perſwaded, as Agrippa, come near Gods kingdom with that young Phariſee; ſaint Chapmen that go without the bargain, as he did that came kneeling to our Saviour, and ſaying, What ſhall I do to inherit eternal life? Theſe do virtutis ſtragulam pudefacere, put honeſty to an open ſhame, as Diogenes ſaid to Antipater, who being vicious, wore a white cloak, the enſign of innocency.

Being abominable] Gr. Such as ſtink above ground, and are of an offenſive ſavor. βδελυκτοὶ καὶ βδέλυγμα ποιοῦντες. Aquil.

To every good work reprobate] Or injudicious: ſuch as cannot make a right judgment of any good works, ſo as to approve and reliſh them, to ſee a beauty in them, as good, &c.

But in works they deny him] Which is, as if a man ſhould confeſs his Faith in Engliſh, and deny it again in Latine. Theſe are no better then devils wrapt up in Samuels Mantle; hot Meteors, ſhooting and ſhewing like ſtars.

Chap. II.

Verſe 1. But ſpeak thou, &c.]

Quaſi dicat, The worſe others are, the better thou muſt be: keeping a conſtant countermotion to the corrupt courſes that are in the world thorow luſt. A pearl in a puddle retains its preciouſneſs; and fiſh in the ſalt-waters retain their freſhneſs.

Verſe 2. That the old men be ſober, &c.] Not as it is ſaid of the Flemings, that quo magis ſeneſcunt eò magis ſtulteſcunt, the elder the fooliſher. Solomon and Aſa were ſo. And the Heathen Sages wiſely warn us, That old age is to be feared, as that which comes not alone, but brings with it many diſeaſes both of body and mind. Sæpe fit ut Satan, quem juvenem capere non potuit, annoſum fallat & capiat, ſaith Bucholcerus. Many that have held out well in youth, have failed and been ſhamefully foiled in old-age. Eraſm. in Moriæ encom.

Verſe 3. In behavior] Or, In habit, apparel, gate, geſture. ἐν καταστήμασι Teachers of good things] As was Bathſheba, Prov. 31. 1, 2. Lois, 2 Tim. 1. 5. Monica &c. σωφρονίζωσι. Eurip.

Verſe 4. To be ſober] Or wiſe: teaching them as Shoolmaſters do their diſciples: ſo the word ſignifies. He was a fooliſh man that ſaid, Μισῶ σοφὴν γυναῖκα, I love not to have a woman wiſe. A prudent wife is of the Lord. Such an one was Abigail, and Aſpaſia, Mileſia the wife of Cyrus, who was ſaid to be Καλὴ ἅμα καὶ σοφὴ, Fair and wiſe withal. To love their husbands, though old and leſs lovely; as that famous Valadaura in Ludovicus Vives. Aelian. l. 12. c. 1.

To love their children] And to ſeal up their love, not by hugging them to death, as Apes do their young; but by educating them in the fear and admonition of the Lord, as Bathſheba, Prov. 31. Plutarch ſpeaks of a Spartan woman, that when her neighbors were ſhewing their apparel and jewels, ſhe brought out her children vertuous and well taught, and ſaid, Theſe are my ornaments and jewels. Mothers muſt learn to love their childrens ſouls.

Verſe 5. To be diſcreet, chaſte, &c. Conjugium humana divina Academia vitæ. Much good may be learned by wedlock.

Keepers at home] Carrying her houſe on her back, as the ſnail doth. Sarah was found in the tent, ſo was Jael the wife of Heber. The Egyptian women ware no ſhoes, that they might the better keep home.

Verſe 6. Young men likewiſe exhort] See the Note on 2 Tim. 2. 22.

Verſe 7. A pattern of good] Gr. A ſtamp. Digging thy Sermons out of thine own breſt, and living them, when thou haſt done. τύπος.

Verſe 8. May be aſhamed, having &c.] O, tis a brave thing to ſtop an open mouth, to thrattle envy, to cut off all occaſion of evil-ſpeaking.

Verſe 9. Not anſwering again] Not chatting or thwarting. Servus ſit monoſyllabus Domino, ſaith one. Apelles painted a ſervant with his hands full of tools, to ſignifie his diligence: with broad ſhoulders, to bear wrongs; with Hinds feet, to run ſwiftly about his buſineſs; with the ears of an Aſs, and his mouth ſhut with two locks, to ſignifie that he ſhould be ſwift to hear, and ſlow to ſpeak.

Digitized by Google Verſe

Audent cum talia fures. Virgil. Pirke-aboth, chap. 1.

Verſe 10. Not purloining] Interverting, embezling their maſters eſtates, ordinary among the Romans, which made them call ſervants and thieves by one name: ordinary among the Hebrews; whence that ſaying of R. Gamaliel, Marbe gnabadim, marbe gezel, He that multiplieth ſervants, multiplieth thieves. Ordinary alſo amongſt us, whence that Proverb, He that will be rich muſt ask his ſervants leave.

Verſe 11. For the grace of God, &c. This is rendred as a reaſon why ſervants ſhould be faithful, becauſe to them alſo belongeth the promiſe of ſalvation, yea the reward of inheritance, as if they were ſons: & to them the Goſpel is preached as well as to others.

ἐπιφάνη. Hath appeared] As the Sun in heaven, or as a beacon on an hill.

Verſe 12. Denying ungodlineſs] Every Goſpel-truth ſtrikes at ſome ſin, and thereby may be diſcerned.

Soberly, righteouſly, and godly] This is the Chriſtian mans Motto, his ſymbol, and the ſum of his whole duty.

Hæc tria perpetuò meditare adverbia Pauli:
Hæc tria ſint vitæ regula ſancta tuæ.

Diod. Sicul. The Egyptians when they praiſed their deceaſed friends, were wont to commend them for theſe three things, their godlineſs, righteouſneſs and temperance.

ἀποκαραδοκία. Rom. 8 19. Judg. 5. 28. Verſe 13. Looking for] As with necks ſtretcht out, or head put forth; as Siſera's mother looked out of her lattice for her ſons happy return.

Verſe 14. That he might redeem us] God will have the price of Chriſts blood out; he will thorowly purge us.

περιούσιον. 1 Pet. 2. 9. A peculiar people] Gr. A people that comprehend all that God ſets any ſtore by, that contain all his gettings: called elſwhere the people of acquiſition. The word here uſed Hierom ſaith he ſought for among humane authors, and could not find it. Therefore ſome think the Septuagint feigned this, and ἐπούσιον, uſed alſo in the Lords prayer. Theophylact ſaith it ſignifieth ſuch a people as are converſant about their maſters buſineſs, procuring of wealth and riches for him.

ζηλωτὰς. Zealous of good works] Give God thine affections; elſe thine actions are ſtill-born, and have no life in them. Now zeal is the extream heat of all the affections, when they are ſeething or hiſſing hot, as the Apoſtles word is, Rom. 12. 12. when we love God and his people out of a pure heart fervently. Non amat qui non zelat, ſaith Auſtin, he loveth not at all in Gods account, whoſe love is not ardent, deſires eager, delights raviſhing, hopes longing, hatred deadly, anger fierce, grief deep, fear terrible, voice, eyes, hands, geſtures, actions, all lively, as in holy Bucholcer, Luther, Laurentius, Athanaſius, Ignatius, Paul, Baruch, Neh. 3. 20. he earneſtly fortified, ſeipſum accendit; he burſt out into an holy heat, he wrought with a kind of anger againſt himſelf and others, becauſe the work went on no faſter. He was not of his temper that ſaid, Deum colo, uti par eſt. I go as far for God as in diſcretion it is fit. Religioſum oportet eſſe, ſed non religentem; Such and ſuch are more preciſe then wiſe. The reſerved Profeſſor never ſhews himſelf but at half-light; he follows Chriſt, but afar off, as Peter; or as the people followed Saul (they trembled after him, 1 Sam. 13. 7.) he is afraid of every new ſtep, ſaying as Cæſar at Rubicon, Yet we may go back. Carnal diſcretion controuls his fervency, cools his courage, keeps him that he cannot be zealous of good works, which he doth at the beſt in a looſe, lazie, perfunctory ſtrain, like the pace the Spaniard rides, like Adonikam that was the laſt that ſet foot forward toward the return of the captives; and therefore had his lot below his brethren, Ezra 8. 13. Where is now our ancient zeal, heating and whetting (ſaith a Reverend Zealot) O how cold and careleſs, how diſſolute, and dilute are we? May it not be ſaid of moſt of our hearts and houſes as Iſa. 47. 14. there's not a coal to warm at? May not the old complaint be well renewed, There is none that calleth upon thy name, that ſtirreth up himſelf to take hold of thee? Let Gods love in the work of our Redemption be duly pondered (as here) and it will fire us up to an holy contention in godlineſs.

Iſa. 64. 7.

Theſe things ſpeak and exhort] Leſt men ſhould think we ſhould only preach of Chriſt and grace, preach thou obedience and zeal, ſaith the Apoſtle.

περιφρονείτω. Nemo te plus ſapere anſit. Verſe 15. Let no man deſpiſe thee] Or have occaſion to think himſelf wiſer then thee. He ſaith not, as 1 Tim. 4. 12. Let no man deſpiſe thy youth; for Titus was (likely) elder then Timothy. Mr Calvin thinketh that theſe words are ſpoken to the people; they are, for moſt part, of delicate ears, and cannot abide plain words of mortification.

CHAP.

Digitized by Google

Chap. III.

Verse 1. To be ready to every]

AS the Bee, so soon as ever the Sun breaks forth, flies abroad to gather honey and wax. A ready heart makes riddance of religious duties.

Verse 2. To speak evil of no man] Unless it be in an ordinance, for the reformation of the unruly; pleasing all in that which is good to edifie.

Verse 3. For We our selves also] I Paul, and thou Titus, were as bad as others: let us therefore shew all mercy and meekness to others. Aut fumus, aut fuimus, aut possumus esse quod hic est.

Serving divers lusts] As the Persian Kings were Lords of the world, but slaves to their Concubines. The Assyrians led away the Egyptians naked and bare-foot, Isa. 29. 2. So doth Satan, sinners. Hence, though never so great, they are called vile persons, as Antiochus Dan. 11. 21. because they have as many Lords, as lusts. Felix at that very time that he trembled before Paul, could not but covet and expect a bribe from him.

Captivarum suarum captivi. Plutarch. Roma victrix gentium, captiva vitiorum. O rem miseram [Dominum ferre non potuimus, conservo servimus. Cic. epist. l. 12. συγγνοὶ of συξ.

Hateful] Gr. Horrible, as hell it self, or justly odious to others.

Verse 4. Kindeness and love] His native goodness, and his communicated goodness to us, not yet existing, nay resisting.

Verse 5. Which we have done] We that are Bankrupts in Adam, would yet fain be doing, and think to be saved for a company of poor beggarly duties: as bankrupts will be trading again, though but for pins, &c.

But according to his mercy] God is no merchant: his Kingdom is not partum, but paratum. He that said, Cœlum gratis non accipiam, I will not have heaven on free-cost, went without it. Vega.

He saved us by the washing of regeneration] So Baptism saveth us, 1 Pet. 3. 21. It Sacramentally saveth, by sealing up salvation to the believer: hence it is called the laver of regeneration. It is a noble question in Divinity (saith a learned Author) seeing regeneration is attributed both to the Word and to Baptism, how one worketh it differently from the other? Or if both work it, why is not one superfluous? Mr. Burgess Vindic. legis. page 189.

Verse 6. Which he shed] Gr. Poured out (as it were by pail-fuls) his spirit (the best thing) upon all flesh (the basest thing) Joel 2. 28. ἐξέχεεν.

Verse 7. Be made heirs] Not purchasers; all is of free grace. Horreo quicquid de meo est, ut sim meus. Paul was a most constant preacher of grace. Bernard. Augustin. Διαβεβαιοῦσθαι. φεσυτίζων. Αἰὲν ἀειρεύειν καὶ ὑπείροχον ἔμμεναι ἄλλων. παντων κεράτερ. Plutarch.

Verse 8. That thou affirm constantly] Be well setled in it thy self, and avouch and aver it confidently to others: being ready to make it good, if questioned.

Be careful] Bend their wits, and beat their brains.

To maintain good works] To exceed and excel others in their honest functions and faculties: to be their crafts-masters, to bear away the bell from all that are of the same trade or profession. This was Tully's study, to be best at any thing he ever undertook: should it not then be a believers?

Verse 9. But foolish questions] Such as is that of the Papists, whether an Ass drinking at the font, do drink the water of Baptism, and so may be said to be baptized? Est quæstio digna asino, saith Melancthon. Such questionists are (as Stapleton saith of Bodin) magni nugatores, great triflers.

Verse 10. A man that is an heretick] All heresies are found to flow (saith Chemnitius) either from the supercilious pride of Samosatenus, or from the sophistry of Arrius, or from the ignorance of Ætius. These mens wits will better serve them to devise a thousand shifts to elude the truth, then their pride will suffer them once to yield and acknowledge it. And here this role of S. Paul takes place. Nestorius was an unlearned and proud man, but very bold and well-spoken; insomuch as thereby he oft carried it, and so seduced the Emperour Theodosius, as that Cyril, a very good Bishop was thrown out of his place. Howbeit he was afterwards restored again with honour, when the Emperour had better bethought himself, and the heretick Nestorius was condemned and cast out. Loc. com part. 1. loc. 2. Zanch. Misc. epist. dedicat.

After the first and second admonition reject] Or, avoid, Devita which some Popish dolts interpreted De vita tolle kill them (as Erasmus reporteth) so to justifie their bloody practise of putting Protestants to death. But what saith the same Erasmus speaking of Berquin the Martyr, burnt by them for religion; Damnari diſſecari, ſuſpendi, exuri, &c. To be condemned, hanged, quartered, burned, beheaded, are things common to good and bad people. To condemn, hang, quarter, burn, behead, is a thing common to righteous Judges, with Pirates and Tyrants. The judgements of men are various: happy is he that is abſolved by God the judge of all. And this was as much as he durſt ſay againſt their proceedings, who for ſaying ſo much as he did, hardly eſcaped with this reproach, that for Eraſmus they named him Erat-mus: becauſe he ſo truely but bitterly biteth their ulcers.

Digitized by Google

Scultet. Annal.

ἐξέστραπται. Verſe 11. Is ſubverted] Or. Is turned topſy-turvy, as a tumbler that hath his heels in the ayre, and his head on the earth: as a ſhip turns up her keel; or as a man wipeth a diſh and turneth it upſide down, 2 Kings 21. 13. ſome render it thus, he hath the fairеſt ſide outward: and make it a Metaphor from foul linnen, the foul ſide turned inward: as if he ſhould have ſaid, ſuch a man, whatſoever ſhews he maketh, is a naughty man.

Mr Cranford. on 2 Tim 2. 17.

Verſe 11. Condemned of himſelf] Saith, as a head-ſtrong horſe, he gets the bit between his teeth, and runs away. Thus did the Phariſees, Toties puncti, & repuncti, minimè tamen ad reſipiſcentiam compuncti, as one ſaith, they ſhut the windows leſt the light ſhould come in, and ſo were condemned, by their own conſciences. Or, he is condemned of himſelf by excomunicating himſelf from the holy aſſemblies (as our Church-forſakers do) which other ſinners are condemned to, by the Church. The fornicatour, the adulterer, the murtherer, &c. are caſt out of the Church by the Church-officers. But heretikes condemn themſelves by a wilful departure from the Church; quæ receſſio propriæ conſcientiæ videtur eſſe damnatio, and this ſeems to be the ſenſe of the Apoſtles ſelf-condemned, ſaith Hierom upon his text.

Ver. 12. Come unto me to Nicopolis] The inhabitants of this City are ſaid ſo to have hated the braying of an Aſs, that they would not endure to hear the ſound of a trumpet. So ſome pretend ſuch an hatred of hypocriſy, that they wil not abide the profeſſion of piety

Verſe 13 That nothing be wanting] Thoſe that labour in the Lords work, muſt have all neceſſary accomodations and encouragements. They muſt be ſet forth and brought forward on their journey, and in their negotiatians worthy of God, 3 Joh. 6. Deductione honorificâ, Acts 15. 3. & 20 38. & 21. 5. A Balaam will not deal hardly with his Aſs, if once he perceive the Lord to be in him, and to ſpeak by him; Shall we deal unworthily with Gods Miniſters, iu whom God is of a truth, 1 Cor. 14. 25. and hath given unto them the Miniſtery of reconciliation? 2 Cor. 5. 18.

Verſe 14. To maintain good works] See the Note on verſe 8. of this Chapter.

That they be not unfruitful] As drone-bees or body-lice, living upon others labours, and ſo opening the mouths of Heathens who will be ready to ſay, as he once did, Odi homines ignavâ operâ, philoſophâ ſententiâ, I hate thoſe that can give faire words, but that's all they are good for. See we not how every creature in its kind is fruitful? The Sun, Moon, and Stars in their courſes reſtleſly move to impart their light, heat and influence, to the inferiour creatures: The clouds flie up and down emptying themſelves, to enrich the earth: from which notwithſtanding they reap no harveſt. The earth is cut and wounded with ſhares and coulters, yet is patient, and yields her riches and ſtrength to the tillet; yea what herb, plant or tree grows upon the earth which is not in its kind fruitful, ſpending itſelf and the principal parts of its ſap and moiſture in bringing forth ſome pleaſant berry or ſuch like fruit? And ſhall only man remain unfruitful, and not ſerve God and man with chearfulneſs in the abundance of all things? Shall he be like the Cypreſs tree, which the more tis watered, the more tis withered? Or like Cyparet, whoſe neither fruit nor leaves nor berry, nor ſhadow is uſeful, but rather hurtful? Hear what the Heathen Oratour ſaith, Pudeat illos qui ita vixerunt, ut ad vitam communem nullum fructum afferre poſſunt. Let them learn to be aſhamed of their ſloth that have ſo lived, as to have been altogether uſeleſs and unfruitful.

Plin.

Cicero.

Verſe 15. That love us in the faith] That beſt ligament of love. The Church is the only daughter of her mother, and is called Eccleſia, of calling all hers together. Religion hath its name of binding, becauſe it binds men all in a bundle, and makes them be of one heart, and of one ſoul, Acts 4 32. to ſerve the Lord with one ſhoulder, Zeph. 3. 9. to glorifie God with one minde and with one mouth, Rom. 15 6. there being no ſuch oneneſs in the world as among true be lievers

Digitized by Google

A COMMENTARY OR EXPOSITION Upon the Epistle of S. Paul to Philemon.

Verse 1. Paul a prisoner, &c.]

THis is a notable Epistle, and full of worth; each word having its weight, each syllable its substance. From an abject subject, the receiving of a runaway servant, St. Paul soars like an heavenly Eagle, and flies an high pitch of heavenly discourse. Elocutione tota gravis & brevis, densus sententiis, sanus judiciis, &c. as Lipsius saith of Thucydides, may we say of our Apostle.

Plena roboris & lacrymarum est tota epistola. Lipsius not. ad Polit. l. 1. c. 9.

Our dearly beloved] Or, Our lovely one, as Hierome renders it.

Ἀγαπητῷ. Diligibili.

And fellow labourer] This shews say some, that Philemon was a Minister of the Gospel. That he was a master of a family, is out of question; and his name, which signifies a lover, suits well with his condition: as doth likewise his servant Onesimus, which signifieth profitable. They are not compleat Christians that are not good at home as well as abroad, they walk not in a perfect way, that look not to do domestical duties, Psal. 101. 2. by the careful performance whereof we are fitter to serve God, or converse with men: as may appear by the situation of the fifth Commandment, which stands between the two Tables, and hath an influence upon both.

Verse 2. And to our beloved Apphia] For Appia: but this was the manner of pronuntiation at Tarsus, S. Pauls countrey. This Apphia was (saith Theodoret) Philemons wife; whose good-will might make much to the furtherance of St. Pauls suit.

And Archippus our fellow-souldier] who seems to have sojourned with Philemon. See the Note on Col. 4. 17.

And to the Church in thy house] Every Christian family is a Church. But Philemons house was (belike) a publike meeting house, and so continued for many years after, as Theodoret witnesseth.

Verse 3. Grace to you, &c.] See the Note on 1 Cor. 1. 3. and on 2 Cor. 1. 2.

Digitized by Google

Verse 4. I thank my God] Thus the Apostle begins most of his Epistles. As any man is more or less gracious, so is he thankful. The same Greek word for Grace signifieth thankfulness. Neither is there any thing that seals up more comfort to the soul, then for a man to be able from the botome of his heart to praise God. Self-love may make an hypocrite pray from the botome of his heart, &c.

χαρις.

Verse 5. Hearing of thy love and faith] Love is first mentioned as more noticed: But faith is the mother-grace, the womb wherein love and all the rest of that heavenly offspring are conceived.

Verse 6. That the communication, &c.] This is that which S. Paul prayed for Philemon, verse 4. For the fifth verse comes in by a parenthesis.

Verse 7. The bowels of the Saints are refreshed] Gr. Rested, as it were after much toil and travel, which made their hearts ake.

Ανεπαυται.

Verse 8. That which is convenient] Or, that which is thy duty. Officium autem est jus actionis ad quemcunque statum pertinens, saith Jul. Scaliger.

τὸ ἀνῆκον.

Verse 9. Yet for loves sake, &c.] Here's brave oratory, such as might well mollifie the hardest heart; Petendo movet, & movendo petit.

Paul the aged] And therefore venerable. Old age and honour are in the Greek tongue very near akin: It is a crown (saith Solomon) and that of glory, when found in the way of righteousness, Prov. 16. 31. These bear a resemblance of the Ancient of daies, Dan. 7. These are like flowers which have their roots perfect when themselves are withering; these like roses keep a sweet savour though they lose their colour. These give greatest glimpse at their going down. Magna fuit semper capitis reverentia cani.

Cognata sunt γηρας & γερας.

Verse 10. My son Onesimus] Ignatius in his Epistle to the Ephesians, maketh mention of Onesimus, as Pastour of Ephesus, next after Timothy. The Roman Martyrologue saith, that he was stoned to death at Rome, under Trajan the Emperour. Paul calleth him his son because his Convert. See 1 Cor. 4. 15. so Cyprian calleth Cæcilius (who converted him) novæ vitæ parentem, the instrument of his life: and Latimer saith the like of his blessed St. Bilney as he calleth him.

Verse 11. But now profitable] So is every true convert; there is little cause that men should boast they are no changelings, sith whosoever is in Christ is a new creature. Sr. Anthony Kingstone came to Mr. Hooper the Martyr a little before his death, and said, I thank God that ever I knew you; for God did appoint you to call me, being a lost childe. For by your good instructions, whereas I was before both an adulterer and fornicatour, God hath brought me to forsake and detest the same, &c. Savoy, for the strait passages infested with thieves, was once called Malvoy, or ill-way; till a worthy adventurer cleared the coasts, and then it was called Savoy or Salvoy, the safe way. Such a change there is in every good soul.

Act. & Mon. fol. 1368.

Verse 12. That is, mine own bowels] Pray for me, mine own heart root in the Lord (said Mr. Bradford in a letter to Mr. Saunders) Quem in intimis visceribus habeo ad convivendum & commoriendum.

Verse 13. In the bonds of the Gospel] Which is bound after a sort, when the preachers thereof are imprisoned.

August.

Verse 14. Would I do nothing] Posse & nolle nobile est. He that goes to the utmost of his chain, may possibly break a link. Concedamus de jure ut careamus lite. Part with somewhat for peace-sake.

Verse 15. For perhaps he therefore] God hath a hand in ordering our disorders to his own glory and our good. He teacheth us by our temptations. This made Mr. Fox say, That his graces did him most hurt, and his sins most good.

He departed for a season] Here the Apostle makes the best of an ill matter. Converts are to be gently handled, and their former evil practices not to be aggravated.

Verse 16 Both in the flesh] Perhaps Onesimus was Philemons kinsman.

And in the Lord] Sanctior est copula cordis quam corporis. He that is joyned to the Lord, is one spirit, 1 Cor. 6. 17.

Κυριῳ.

Verse 17. A partner] One in commons with thee. Amicorum omnia communia.

προσλαβου.

Receive him Take him to thee, put him in thy bosom, make much of him. How effectually doth this great Apostle plead the cause of this poor fugitive, now happily brought home to Christ? He deals as one that had himself received mercy, 1 Cor. 7. 25. Steep thy thoughts (saith one) in the mercies of God, and they will die thine, as the die-fat doth the cloth, Col. 3. 12.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verſe 18. If he hath wronged thee] His ſhameful eſcape the Apoſtle ſweetly mitigateth by the name of wrong; his theft, of debt. See ver. 15. and compare herewith, Gen. 45. 5.

Put that on mine account] To the like effect ſpeaks the Lord Chriſt on our behalf to his heavenly father, in his daily interceſſion.

Verſe 19. Thou oweſt unto me, &c.] If Cleanthes gave himſelf to his Maſter Socrates: if Alexander could ſay that he owed more to Ariſtotle that taught him, then to Philip that begat him: if another could ſay, that he could never diſcharge his debt to God, to his parents, and to his ſchoolmaſter: how deeply then do men ſtand obliged to their ſpiritual fathers and teachers in Chriſt?

I will repay it] Philemon, though rich, is ſuſpected to be ſomewhat too covetous, from this expreſſion.

O quàm difficile eſt opibus non tradere mores;
Et cum tot Craſos vicerit, eſſe Numam!

Howbeit in both the Teſtaments we ſhall ſcarce read of any godly man tainted with coveteouſneſs. Luther ſaith of himſelf, that though he otherwiſe had his flaws and frailties, yet the infection of covetouſneſs never laid hold on him. Hem Germana illa beſtia non curat aurum, ſaid one of his adverſaries, wiſer then the reſt, that would have ſtopped his mouth with money. But Seneca was naturally covetous: which he ſhrowds covertly in that ſentence of his in his book de Tranquillitate, Nec ægroto nec valeo, I am neither ſick nor well. It had been well for him, if he could have ſaid with that dying Saint, My body is weak, my ſoul is well. As for thoſe Epiſtles pretended to be written to him by S. Paul, they are baſtard and counterfeit, they ſavour not of his Apoſtolical gravity and majeſty which ſhineth even in this to Philemon, being the leaſt of all his Epiſtles. In thoſe forged Epiſtles far higher matters are ſpoken of; but alas, how coldly, how dryly and poorly! yet here behold (ſaith an Interpreter) a poor petty matter is ſet forth with that pithneſs and powerfulneſs of ſpeech, as is admirable. Dyke.

Verſe 20. Yea brother, let me have joy] Or benefit by thee. An elegant alluſion it is in the original to the name of Oneſimus: and it is as if the Apoſtle embracing Philemon, and hanging about his neck, ſhould ſay, I prethee now let me be ſo far beholden to thee, &c. ὀναίμην.

Verſe 21. Knowing that thou wilt, &c.] Who could ever have the heart to reſiſt ſuch Rhetorick? Is not here the very marrow of moſt powerful perſwaſion? a golden flood of eloquence, as Tully ſaith of Ariſtotles Politiques? Suada medulla.

Verſe 22. But withall, prepare, &c.] Thus he diſpatcheth his own private buſineſs in one word, as it were; his main care was, that Oneſimus might do well: a fair mirror for Miniſters.

Verſe 23. Epaphras my fellow-priſoner] Clapt up, belike, for viſiting and countenancing S. Paul, to whom he was ſent by the Coloſſians with relief, whiles he was priſoner at Rome. The Eccleſiaſtical hiſtory telleth us of one Phileas a Martyr, who going to execution, ſeemed as one deaf at the perſwaſions, and blinde at the tears of his friends, moving him to ſpare himſelf. And when one Philoramus defending him ſaid, How can he be moved with earthly tears, who hath his eyes full fed with heavenly glory? he alſo was taken in, and both preſently beheaded. Quomodo poteſt terrenis lachrymis flecti, cujus oculi cœleſtem gloriam contuentur?

Verſe 24. Marcus, Ariſtarchus, Demas] Here Demas was in good credit with the Apoſtle, but ſoon after fell away: like as glaſs, and ſome baſer metals ſhine brighteſt in the fire, when neareſt of all to melting; or as the candle giveth a great blaze, when going out with a ſtench. Hypocrites have their non-ultra, when the godly mans Motto is (as was Charls the fifths) Ulterius, Further yet, on, on.

Verſe 25. The grace of our Lord] Say the world what it will, a grain of grace is worth a world of wealth. The bleſſings that come out of Sion, are better then any that come out of heaven and earth, Pſal. 134. 3. For they out-laſt the days of heaven, and run parallel with the life of God, and line of eternity; Pray for them therefore in the behalf of our ſelves and others, as Paul conſtantly doth for grace, not with graceleſs Nero, but with the Lord Jeſus Chriſt: one good caſt of whoſe pleaſed countenance was better to David then his crown and ſcepter, Pſal. 4. 7, 8.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

A COMMENTARY OR EXPOSITION Upon the Epistle of S. Paul to the Hebrews.

Chap. I.

Verse 1. God who at sundry times, &c.]

SEE my True Treasure, Page 1, 2, 3.

God who in times past, &c.] The Hebrews had generally a lighter esteem (though without cause) of the Prophets then of the Law: and of such of the books of holy Scripture as had not the names of God or Lord in them, (as Esther, Canticles, &c.) then of those that had. Our Apostle, for more authority sake, begins his Epistle with that nomen majestativum, that holy and reverend name of God, so precious and pleasant to Hebrew ears: and wades at first into that Profundum sine fundo, that bottomless depth of Divinity; prefixing Θεὸς Θεὸς (as Pausanias testifieth that the Ancients even among the Heathens were wont to do, in all their sacred writings) the name of God for a preface, captandi gratia ominis boni, in token and hope of better speed and success. Tertul. Rhodiginus ex Pausan.

Verse 2. Hath in these last days] God doth his best works last (our last also should be our best, as Thyarya's) the sweetest of honey lies in the bottom. Contrarily, Satan (Laban-like) shews himself at parting; and (as the Panther doth the wild beasts) inveigleth silly souls (into sin) and then devoureth them. James 1. 14, 15. 1 Pet. 5. 8. Rev. 2. 19.

Heir of all things] Be married to this heir, and have all. Ubi tu Caius, ego Caia, may the Shulamite say to her husband, as the Roman Ladies said to theirs.

By whom also he made the worlds] Visible and invisible, Col. 1. 16. or the ages under the Old and New Testament; which last (chap. 2. 5.) he calleth the world to come.

Verse 3. Who being the brightness of his glory, &c.] A beam of that Sun, and the express image of his person, a stamp of that seal. This is somewhat, but who can declare his generation? Some glimpses we may have by such similitudes; the full understanding of this this unconceivable mysterie we must wait for, till we come to heaven. The word ἀπαύγασμα signifieth the glittering refulgency.

Digitized by Google

Upholding all things] Both in respect of being excellencies and operations. Seneca, rendering the reason why Jupiter was by the Ancient Romans sirnamed Stator, saith it was, Quia ejus beneficio stant omnia, because all things are upheld by him. How much better may this be said of Christ? Sin had hurled confusion over the world, which would have fallen about Adams ears (saith one) had not Christ undertaken the shattered condition thereof, to uphold it. He keeps the world together, as the hoops do the barrel. He also keeps all in order; disponens etiam membra culicis & pulicis, disposing of every thing even to the least and lightest circumstance. Hence that of our Saviour, The Father worketh hitherunto, and I also work. Hence that of the Orator, Curiosus est & plenus negotii Deus, God taketh care of all, and is full of business.

Aug.

Ioh. 5. 17.

Cic lib. 1 de nat deor.

Purged our sins] By his merit and spirit.

Verse 4. Better then the Angels] Therefore is his doctrine, the Gospel, with more heed to be heard, then the law ordained by Angels in the hand of a Mediatour, that is Moses, Gal. 3. 19.

Verse 5. This day] Either the day of eternity, and so it is meant of Christs eternal generation; or else the fulness of time, wherein God brought his first begotten into the world, and mightily declared him to be the son of God by the resurrection from the dead, Acts 13. 33. Rom. 1. 4.

I will be to him a Father, and he shall be to me a son] The second Person is of himself, as God: of his Father, as a Son; because the Father communicateth to him his own nature, and that by generation; whence he is called his begotten son; and his only begotten; because by generation God hath no more sons but him; he is called the Father of spirits, and of all men, as he is Creatour and Conserver of all; and of all good men, by the grace of Adoption and Regeneration, 2 Cor. 6. 18. John 1. 12.

αὐτόθεν.

Heb. 12. 9.

Mal. 2. 10.

Verse 6. When he bringeth in the first-begotten] He is the only begotten, and yet is called the first-begotten; because he hath the right of first-born over his brethren, and was begotten before the world was.

And let all the Angels of God] The Manhood of it self could not be thus adored (because it is a creature) but as it is received into unity of person with the Deity, and hath a partner agency therewith, according to its measure, in the work of redemption and mediation.

Phil. 2. 9.

Verse 7. A flame of fire] Hence they are called Seraphims, because they flame, like heavenly Salamanders in the fire of pure and perfect love to God and his people: And Cherubims from their winged swiftness; swift they are as the wind; which may seem to be the sense of this text, compared with Psal. 104. 4, 5.

Verse 8. Thy throne O God, is for ever] Christ is God then, as is here set forth by many arguments. God hath laid help on one that is mighty. I and the Father are one.

Verse 9. Hath anointed thee] This imports two things. 1. Ordination to his office, and so the Godhead also of Christ was anointed. 2. Qualification for it, and to the manhood only. And as the holy oil was compounded of divers spices, so was Christ filled with all gifts and graces, Acts 10. 38. but especially with wisdom, as a Propher, holiness as a Priest, and power as a King.

Above thy fellows] i. e. Above all Kings and Potentates, Psal. 89. 28. Or above all Christians, who partake of thine anointing, John 1. 20. and are made Kings and Priests, Rev. 5. 10. It may also be rendred pro consortibus tuis, for thy fellows, as importing a fulness in Christ for us, John. 1. 16.

Verse 10. The works of thy hands] Psal. 8. 3. they are called the works of Gods fingers, artificially elaborated; that heaven of heavens especially, whose artificer and workman is God, Heb. 11. 10. The Apostle there intimates, that it is curiously and cunningly contrived.

τεχνίτης.

Verse 11. They shall perish] The visible heavens are defiled with mans sin, and shall therefore be purged by the last fire, as the vessels that held the sin-offering were to pass the fire.

They shall all wax old] See the Note on Rom. 8. 22.

Verse 12. But thou art the same] As in essence, so in will and counsel. Repentance with man is the changing of his will: Repentance with God is the willing of a change: Mutatio rei, non Dei, effectus non affectus, facti non consilii.

Verse

Digitized by Google

Verse 13. Sit on my right-hand] As mine equal in honour, and power. It seems to be a Metaphor from some King, who having an onely begotten sets him in the throne as heir and successour to raign with him, and use right of dominion over all as partner in the Empire. Thus David dealt by Solomon, Vespasian by Titus, and our Henry the second by his eldest son Henry, whom he crowned whiles he was yet alive; though afterwards he suffered him not to be what himself had made him.

Until I make thine enemies, &c.] Till the mysterie of mans redemption be finished, death the last enemy destroyed, 1 Cor. 15. 26. the Saints perfected and placed at his right hand, Mat. 25. 33. Rev. 3. 21. Psal. 45.

Verse 14. Are they not] See my common place of Angels.

Sent forth to minister, &c.] The Saints are the Spouse, the Bride, yea the members of Christ; and so in nearer union then Angels, or any creature. This the devil envied, and fell from his station.

Chap. II.

Verse 1. We should let them slip]

OR, Run out, as water runs through a riven vessel. The word mingled with faith in the heart, as Acts 16. 14. must be carefully kept, and it will safely keep us, Prov. 6. 20, 22. Some render it, Nequando praeterfluamus, lest we pass by the things we have heard, as a river swiftly passeth by the side of a City, as the fashion of this world passeth away, as a picture drawn upon the ice, soon vanisheth, &c. The Arabick rendreth it, lest we fall, the Syriack, lest we perish. They must needs fall and never rise again, perish without remedy that reject the remedy, that hate to be healed, that spurn at the grace of the Gospel, which is post naufragium tabula, the power of God to salvation. This is as if a condemned prisoner should reject a pardon. παραῤῥυῶμεν.

Verse 2. For if the Word, &c.] Moses-law, Gal. 3. 19.

Was stedfast] Ratified with this sanction, Aut faciendum, aut patiendum, either do it, or die.

And every transgression and disobedience] That is, every commission and omission.

Verse 3. If we neglect] He saith not, If we reject, renounce, persecute; but if we neglect, let slip, shift off, as the word is, Heb. 12. 25. and as those recusant guests did, Mat. 22. Say we rather with Samuel, Speak Lord, for thy servant heareth. And with that Dutch Divine, Veniat, veniat verbum Domini, & submittemus illi, sexcenta si nobis essent colla. Let the Lord utter his minde, and he shall have ready obedience, whatever come of it. παραπίσωμεν.

So great Salvation] The doctrine of the Gospel, that grace of God that bringeth salvation, Tit. 2. 11. I am fully perswaded (saith a late learned light of our Church) that in these days of grace, the Lord is much more quick and peremptory in rejecting men: the time is shorter, he will not wait so long as he was wont to do. The ground is, How shall we escape if we neglect, &c? which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed, &c. This is somewhat like S. Lukes preface to his Gospel, chap. 1. ver. 2. Hence some have thought that he also was the Author of this Epistle. D. Preston.

Verse 4. And with divers miracles] Whereby, as by the wings of the winde, the doctrine of the Gospel was divulged at first. But he that now requireth a miracle, is himself a miracle. The establishing of the present reformation is and will be that miracle which we are in these times to look for. It is that which the former age had despaired of, the present admireth, and the future shall stand amazed at.

Verse 5: For unto the Angels, &c.] The Jews, as they had embraced the Pythagorean transanimation, Mat. 16. 14. so the Platonike opinion of Angels moving the heavens, and ordering the world; whom therefore they worshipped, intruding into those things whereof there was no sound either proof or profit, Col. 2. 18. The Angels (say Proculus the Platonist and Plutarch) are messengers that carry Gods minde to men, and mens requests to God. But who told them all this. Egregie dicis, sed quomodo probas? said Aristotle of Moses, may we better say of these bold affirmers. πεθανεύοντες τὰ περὶ θεῶν πρὸς ἀνθρώπους, &c.

Digitized by Google

Accommodatio eſt facilis ad perſonam Chriſti, ſi interpretes non vellent eſſe nimis ingenioſi Ames. in Pſal. 8. 5. Paulisper.

Verſe 6. But one in a certain place] The full ſenſe is, But he hath ſubjected it to Chriſt, as David teſtified, Pſal. 8.4, 5. where whatſoever is ſpoken to man, is here applied to the man Chriſt Jeſus: and ſo is proper to the Saints by vertue of their union with Chriſt. In which reſpect, they are more glorious then heaven, Angels, or any creature.

Verſe 7. A little lower] Or, For a little while, viz. Ab utero ad urnam, from the womb to the tomb, from his birth to his burial, from his abaſement to his advancement.

And didſt ſet him over the works] Lions hate apes, but fear men: whereof no other probable reaſon can be given, but this here in the text: inſomuch as the moſt timorous men dare kick and beat the hugeſt elephants.

Verſe 8. Under his feet] It is not ſaid, Under his hands, but under his feet. 1. That he may trample upon them with his feet, and not dote upon them with his heart. 2. That by them, as by a ſtep or ſtirrop, he may raiſe his heart to things above. A ſanctified fancy can make every creature a ladder to heaven.

He left nothing] No, not Angels.

Not yet all things put under him] The creature rebelleth againſt man, becauſe he rebelleth againſt God. If the Maſter be ſet upon, the ſervants will draw, and fight for him.

Rebellis facta eſt, quia homo numini, creatura homini. Aug.

Verſe 9. But we ſee Ieſus] The Saints hold all in capite tenure, in Chriſt. Now in him all things are already ſubjected unto us, and made ſerviceable to our ſalvation.

For the ſuffering of death] Or that he might be in a condition to ſuffer death, this Sun of righteouſneſs went ten degrees backward, not only below his Father, John 14. 28. but below the Angels; for man (as man) is inferiour to the Angels.

Taſt death for every man] i. e. For every ſuch man as muſt be led unto glory, verſ. 10. as is of Chriſts brethren, 11. As is given of God to Chriſt. 13. and for none other.

Verſe 10. For it became him] That is, God, whoſe perfect wiſdom, juſtice, &c. ſhineth moſt clearly in that great work of our redemption: then the which God could not have done any thing more beſeeming himſelf; whatever the worlds wizards conceit to the contrary, 1 Cor. 1. 23.

For whom are all things] See the Note on Rom. 11. 36.

To make the captain, &c.] He that is Captain of the Lords hoſts, Joſh. 5. 14. is alſo Captain of our ſalvation. This is comfort.

τελειῶσαι.

To make perfect] Or, Conſecrate. The Prieſts were firſt conſecrated with oil, then with blood; ſo was Chriſt firſt by the Spirit, and then by his own blood.

Verſe 11. Are all of one] viz. of Adam: Only with this difference; that we are of Adam and by Adam, but Chriſt was of Adam, not by Adam, for he was not begotten, but made, and ſo original ſin was avoided.

He is not aſhamed] Chriſt was not aſhamed of us, when we had never a rag to our backs: Should we be aſhamed of him and his ſervice?

Verſe 12. I will declare, &c.] Pſalm 22.22. A Pſalm of Chriſts ſufferings, entituled upon Ajaleth Shachar, that is, The morning-ſtagg, ſuch an one as the huntsman ſingleth out to hunt for that day. Chriſt thus hunted, and praying for deliverance, promiſeth to praiſe Gods name amidſt his brethren, that is, his faithful ſervants.

Verſe 13. I will put my truſt in him] Which he needed not, had he not been a man ſubject to miſery.

And the children, &c.] Chriſt is the everlaſting Father, Iſa. 9. 6. and the Saints are the travel of his ſoul, that prolong his days upon earth, Iſa. 53. 10, 11. Fidiabitur nomine ejus, Pſal. 72. 17. There ſhall be a ſucceſſion of Chriſts name, till he preſent all his to his heavenly Father at the laſt day, with, Behold I, and the children whom thou haſt given me.

παιδία.

Verſe 14. Children are partakers] Little children: Chriſt alſo became a little child, the babe of Bethlehem, Iſa. 9. 6. Catch him up, as old Simeon did; Kiſs him, leſt he be angry, Pſal. 2. Stumble not at his weakneſs, but gather aſſurance of his love, and grow up unto the meaſure of the ſtature of the fulneſs of Chriſt, Epheſ. 4. 13.

Took part of the ſame] Whence they are called Chriſts partners or conforts, Heb. 1. 9. and they may better ſay to him then Ruth did to Boaz, Spread thy skirt over thy hand-maid; For thou art a near kinſman, one that hath right to Redeem. Ruth. 3. 9.

Him

Digitized by Google

Him that had the power of death] As the hang-man hath the power of the gallows, to kill men with death, Rev. 2. 23. He hath not imperium Principis, but carnificis, ſaith a Lapide. And that power of his alſo, as to the Saints, is caſſated, nullified, made void and of none effect, as the word ſignifieth. He may roar upon them, and ſhake his chain at them: not ruinate them, or once ſet his fangs in them. καταργήσῃ.

Verſe 15. And deliver them.] So that to thoſe that are in Chriſt, death is but the day-break of eternal brightneſs: Not the puniſhment of ſin, but the period of ſin. It is but a ſturdy Porter, opening the door of eternity: a rougher paſſage to eternal pleaſure. What need they fear to paſs the waters of Jordan to take poſſeſſion of the land, that have the Ark of Gods Covenant in their eye? Tollitur mors, non ne ſit, ſed ne obſit. As Chriſt took away, not ſin, but the guilt of it, ſo neither death, but the ſting of it.

Who through fear of death] That King of terrours, as Job calleth death; that terrible of all terribles, as Ariſtotle. Nature will have a bout with the beſt when they come to die. But I wonder (ſaith a grave Divine) how the ſouls of wicked men go not out of their bodies, as the devils did out of the dæmoniacks, rending, raging, tearing, foming. I wonder how any can die in their wits, that die not in the faith of Jeſus Chriſt. Appius Claudius loved not the Greek Zeta, becauſe when it is pronounced, it repreſenteth the gnaſhing teeth of a dying man. Sigiſmund the Emperor being ready to die, commanded his ſervants not to name death in his hearing, &c. The like is reported of Lewis eleventh King of France, who to put by death when it came, ſent for Aarons rod and other holy reliques (as they reputed them) from Rhemes: but all would not do. Cardinal Beauford perceiving that death was come for him, murmured that his great riches could not reprieve him. Stat ſua cuique dies. Now, death is natures ſlaughterman, Gods curſe, and hels purveyor: and muſt needſly therefore be terrible to thoſe, whoſe lives and hopes end together, and who ſay as one dying man did, Spes & fortuna valete. Epit. Hiſtor. Gallic. p. 66.

Verſe 16. For verily he took not] Or, For nowhere took he, q. d. We find not anywhere, either in the Scriptures or in any Church record. ἐπιλαμβάνεται.

But he took] He aſſumed, apprehended, caught, laid hold on, as the Angel did on Lot, Gen. 19. 16. as Chriſt did on Peter, Mat. 14. 31. as men uſe to do upon a thing they are glad they have got, and are loth to let go again. It is a main pillar of our comfort, that Chriſt took our fleſh; for if he took not our fleſh, we are not ſaved by him. But he not only took it, but overtook it by running after it, as the Shepherd doth the Sheep that is run away. A Shepherd with a Sheep upon his ſhoulder, engraved upon the Communion-cup, in the Primitive times of the Goſpel, imported the ſame notion that here ſeems implied.

Verſe 17. In all things] Except in ſin, as the brazen ſerpent was like the fiery ſerpent, but had no ſting. Ἀκατάληπτον. ἀθεράπευτον. ἱλάσκεσθαι.

To make reconciliation] To expiate our ſins, and to appeaſe Gods wrath.

Verſe 18. He is able to ſuccour] And no leſs apt then able: as he that hath been poor or troubled with tooth-ach, will pity thoſe that are ſo. Queen Elizabeth ſaid in her ſpeech to the children of Chriſts Hoſpital, as ſhe rode through Fleet ſtreet, We are Orphans all: let me enjoy your prayers, and ye ſhall be ſure of mine aſſiſtance. Englands Eliz. Virgil.

Non ignara mali, miſeris ſuccurrere diſco.

Digitized by Google

Chap. III.

Verſe 1. Holy Brethren]

HOly, becauſe partakers of a calling that is heavenly. 1. Ratione fontis, Phil. 3. 14, 15. 2. Ratione finis, to the fruition of heavenly priviledges in Chriſt.

κατανοήσατε. Conſider] Gr. Bend your minds with utmoſt diligence upon him.

The Apoſtle and high-Prieſt] Thoſe two chief offices of both Teſtaments, ut ubique ſuperemineat Chriſtus.

Verſe 2. As alſo Moſes was faithful] And yet how unworthily handled by the author of the Marrow of Modern Divinity, that fly Antinomian, in divers paſſages of his book, as might eaſily be inſtanced. How much better (herein at leaſt) Bellarmine? Moſes vir Deo longè acceptiſſimus, ſaith He, quo nihil habuit antiqua etas mitius, ſapientius, ſanctius. Moſes a man highly accepted in heaven for his meekneſs, wiſedom, holineſs. Spec. Europ.

Verſe 3. Worthy of more glory then Moſes] In whom theſe Hebrews truſted, John 5. 45. And the Jews at this day hold, That the law of nature ſhall bring to heaven thoſe that obſerve it, but the Hebrews (unto whom the law of Moſes was peculiarly given) by keeping it ſhall have a prerogative of glory. Poor ſeduced ſouls!

Verſe 4. He that built all things] Moſes and all.

Is God] That is Chriſt, whom he had proved to be God by many arguments, Chap. 1. Meſſias therefore is to be preferred before Moſes.

θεράπων ex verbo θεραπεύειν. Verſe 5. As a ſervant] Famulus ingenuus, a ſervant of the better ſort, a man of worſhip, as the word ſeemeth to import: though it be honour enough to be Chriſts ſervant, of the meaneſt in his family. Conſtantinus, Valentinianus, and Theodoſius, three Emperours, called themſelves Vaſſallos Chriſti, the vaſſals of Chriſt, as Socrates teſtifieth.

Verſe 6. Whoſe houſe are we] And he is bound (by his own promiſe) to repair. He alſo is our dwelling-houſe, Pſal. 90. 1. and by the civil Law, De domo ſua nemo extrahi debet, aut in jus vocari. A mans houſe is his caſtle.

If we hold faſt] See here a juſt deſcription of the inviſible Church of Chriſt.

Hier. Epiſt. ad Algeſiam. Joh. Egran. apud Io Manl. loc. com. Verſe 7. Wherefore as the holy Ghoſt] It is well obſerved by Calvin, that the words after wherefore, to verſ. 12. ſhould be encloſed with a parentheſis, and then the ſenſe is clear. If Hierome and Egranus had obſerved ſo much in this and other places, they would not ſo ſharply have cenſured St. Paul for his obſcurities and incongruities, and lame ſenſes and ſentences.

Verſe 8. Harden not your hearts] Some hearts are ſo hard, that neither Miniſtery, nor miſery, nor miracle, nor mercy can poſſibly mollifie them. Such an heart is in ſome reſpects worſe then hell. And if God broke Davids bones for his adultery, and the Angels backs for their pride, the Lord, if ever he ſave any, will break his heart too. As when he marks out a man for eternal miſery, he denies him his grace; and then the ſinner hardens his own heart by his own inward pravity. Like as when an owner denies to prop up or repair a ruinous reeling houſe, the houſe fals by its own ponderouſneſs.

Verſe 9. Tempted me] God muſt be truſted, but not tempted, as he is, when men 1. Queſtion and awake his power; 2. Limit the holy one of Iſrael, and preſume to preſcribe to him, ſet him a time, &c. 3. Neglect the uſe of means, and ſerve not his providence.

Verſe 10. I was grieved.] The Hebrew text hath it, I was nauſeated, and ready to rid my ſtomack at them, to ſpew them out of my mouth.

They do alway err] They muſt needs err, that know not Gods ways. Yet cannot they wander ſo wide, as to miſs of hell.

Verſe 11. They ſhall not enter] This the Apoſtle propounds to unbelievers of his time, that they may beware; Alterius perditio tua ſit cautio. Seeſt thou another ſuffer ſhipwrack? Look well to thy tackling.

Verſe

Digitized by Google

Verſe 12. In departing from] Ἀποστάσια parit ἀποστασίαν. Infidelity is the Mother of Apoſtacy; as in Cranmer: but worſe in John Dudley Duke of Northumberland in Queen Maries days, who being brought to the ſcaffold on Tower-hill, and having promiſe of life, if he would recant his profeſſion, dastard-like forſook his maſter, and exhorted the people to the Romiſh religion. Which his death-Sermon afterwards came forth in print by authority. Speeds Chron.

Verſe 13. But exhort one another] A ſpecial preſervative from apoſtacy. See my Common place of Admonition, and my Treatiſe on Mal. 3. 17.

Leſt any of you be hardened] Continuance in ſin hardeneth the heart, and gradually indiſpoſeth it to the work of repentance. Qui non eſt hodie, &c. There is a deceitfulnes in ſin, a lie in vanity, Ionas 2. 8. Doctor Preſton relateth of one in Cambridge, that had commited a great ſin, and had this temptation upon him, Do the act again, and your conſcience will trouble you no more. He did it again, and then he grew a very ſot indeed and went on in his wickednes.

Verſe 14. For We are made Partakers] Chriſts conſorts, coheirs with him, Rom. 8. 17. This we are in preſent, if we perſevere to the end.

The beginning of our confidence] Gr. Of our ſubſiſtence, or ſubſtance, that is, of our faith, Heb. 11. 1. whereby we ſubſiſt, and become ſons of God, as Ambroſe expounds it. The Greek ſignifieth the very firſt act of faith, whereby we began to ſubſiſt in Chriſt. ὑποστάσεως.

Verſe 15. Whiles it is ſaid] ſc. To you now, as it was ſaid to them of old, verſ. 7. We muſt ſee our own names written on every precept, promiſe, example, &c. Hoſea 12. 4. There God ſpake with us.

To day if ye will hear, &c.] The negligent ſpirit cries, Cras Domine, To morrow Lord. In craſtinum ſeria. But who can tell what a great bellied-day may bring forth? Either ſpace or grace may be denied. God may leave men under his Ordinances, as rocks in the midſt of rivers, as blinde at noon-day.

Verſe 16. Howbeit not all] Yet all fell in the wilderneſs ſave Joſhuah and Caleb. Good men are oft wrapt up in a common calamity. The righteous periſheth, Iſa. 57. 1. ſo the world thinketh: But whether they live, they live unto the Lord, or whether they die, they die unto the Lord, &c. The good corn is cut down together with the tares, but to another, and to a better purpoſe. Rom. 14. 8.

Verſe 17. Whoſe carkaſſes fell] Gr. Whoſe members, joynts, limbs. Cadavera à Cadendo. O that we could make that uſe of their diſaſter, that Waldus the French Merchant (father and founder of the Waldenſes) did of that ſad ſight that befel him. For walking in the ſtreets, and ſeeing one fall ſuddenly dead, he went home and repented of his Popiſh errors and profane courſes. κῶλα.

Verſe 18. To them that believe not] Or, That will not be perſwaded, unconſellable perſons that acquieſce not in wholeſome advice.

Verſe 19. Becauſe of unbelief] A bloody, ſin, Ioh. 3. 19. No ſin will gripe ſo in hell as this. The devil will keep holyday there, in reſpect of unbelievers.

Chap. IV.

Verſe 1. Let us fear]

With a fear not of diffidence, but of diligence. See the Note on Phil. 2. 12. and on 1 Cor. 10. 12.

Leſt a promiſe] Some render it thus, Leſt we ſhould ſeem to fall ſhort of the promiſe that is left us, &c. But where is that promiſe left us, may ſome ſay? It is cloſely couched in the former commination, Chap. 3. 18. God ſware that unbelievers ſhould not enter: and therefore intimates a promiſe, that believers ſhall enter. A Bee can ſuck ſweet honey out of bitter thyme; ſo cannot a Fly do.

To come ſhort of it] To come lag and late, when the gate is ſhut, the draw-bridge taken up, ὑστερηκέναι.

Digitized by Google

up as thoſe fooliſh Virgins, or as lazy race-runners, or as thoſe that come a day after the fair, an hour after the feaſt, and ſo are fruſtrated.

Verſe 2. The word preached] Gr. The word of hearing, i. e. The promiſe that fell from the Preachers lips into their ears. Neſcio quid divinum in auſcultatione eſt, ſaith one; I know not what divine buſineſs there is in hearing: but ſure I am, that what we hear doth more deeply affect us, and more firmly abide with us, and ſtick by us, then what we read.

ὁ λόγος τῆς ἀκοῆς.

In them that heard it] In their hearts, as in ſo many veſſels. Faith and the promiſe meeting make a happy mixture, a precious confection.

Verſe 3. For we which have believed] Believers (and they only) have heaven aforehand in pretio, in promiſſo, in primitiis, in the price that was paid for it, in the promiſe of it (which is ſure hold) and in the firſt-fruits, the graces of the ſpirit, which are as thoſe grapes of the land of Canaan.

Verſe 4. And God did reſt] Here the Apoſtle ſheweth what that reſt of believers is. Not that ſeventh-days reſt, verſe 5. nor that other reſt, Pſal. 95. meant of the Land of Canaan, but another and better, typified in both thoſe, viz. A ſpiritual reſting from our own works of ſins, ſo as God reſteth in his love to us, Zeph. 3. 17. and we ſweetly acquieſce in our intereſt in him, Pſal. 116. 7.

Verſe 5. If they ſhall enter] q. d. Then never truſt me more. Yet Ambroſe here taketh the words for a forcible affirmation, q. d. Si introibunt, benè habebunt.

Verſe 6. Seeing therefore it remaineth] This is a deduction from the former text of the Pſalmiſt. Such as is that of our Saviour, Mat. 22. 32. from Ex. 3. 6. And ſuch inferences rightly drawn, are the very word of God, 1 Cor. 7. 10.

Verſe 7. After ſo long a time] Four hundred years almoſt paſſed between Joſhua's and Davids daies. Davids to day was not Joſhua's to day.

To day if ye will hear] That day of ſalvation, wherein the Lord doth offer us mercy in the Miniſtery of his Word, ſhewing us our miſery, and exciting us to uſe the remedy.

Verſe 8. For if Jeſus, &c.] That is, Joſhuah, who had his name changed when he was ſent as a ſpy into Canaan, Numb. 13. 16. from Oſhea to Joſhuah, from, Let God ſave, to, God ſhall ſave. Under the Law (which brings us, as it were, into a briery wilderneſs) we may deſire, wiſh and pray, that there were a Saviour: but under the Goſpel, we are ſure of ſalvation. Our Jeſus is Jehovah our righteouſneſs.

Verſe 9. A reſt to the people of God] Gr. A ſabbatiſm, an eternal reſt, a Sabbath that hath neither evening, Gen. 2. 2. nor labour, Revel. 14. 13. But they ſhall enter into peace, reſt in their beds, be raviſht in ſpirit, receive the full import and purport of the weekly Sabbath, reſt from travel and trouble. 2. Of the ſeventh year-ſabbath: for the creature, the ground ſhall reſt from it's vanity and ſlavery, Rom. 8. 20, 21. 3. Of the ſeventh ſeven-year ſabbath, the Jubilean Sabbath: for their debts ſhall be all diſcharged, their morgages releaſed, their perſons ſet at liberty from ſins and Satans ſlavery.

Iſa. 57. 2. Apocal. 1.

Verſe 10. From his own works] From the ſervile works of ſin. Theſe are our own works, as a lye is the devils own, Joh. 8. 44. When he ſpeaketh a lye, he ſpeaketh of his own: ſo when we do evil, we work de noſtro & ſecundum hominem, 1 Cor. 3. 3. It is impoſſible for us naturally to do good, as for a toad to ſpet cordials.

Pſal. 18. 23.

Verſe 11. Let us labour] Here he reſumes and re-inforces his former exhortations; that his words may be as nails and goads faſtned by the maſters of the Aſſemblies. The judgement is firſt to be illightened by doctrine, and then the affections to be inflamed by exhortation: like as in the Law firſt the Lamps were lighted, and then the incenſe burned.

Exemplo alterius qui ſapit, ille ſapit.

Fall after the ſame example] God hangs up ſome malefactours, as it were in gibbets, for a warning to others. Jethro grew wiſe by the plagues that befel his neighbour-prince Pharaoh, as Rabbi Solomon obſerveth. And Belſhazzar is deſtroyed for not profiting by his fathers calamities, Dan. 5. 22. Thou haſt not humbled thy heart, though thou kneweſt all this.

Verſe 12. Quick and powerful] Gr. Lively and energetical; ſc. In hearts that can tremble at Gods judgements, as David did, Pſal. 119. 120. As for hypocrites, the word will ranſack them, and give them a very glimpſe of the judgement to come, as it it did Felix, Herod, &c. God ſmiteth the earth with this rod of his mouth, Iſa. 11. 4. he daſheth them in the teeth, and maketh them ſpet blood, as it were; hewing them by his Prophets, and ſlaying them by the words of his mouth, Hoſ. 6. 5. Rev. 11. 5.

Digitized by Google

Soul and ſpirit] See the Note on 1 Theſſ. 5. 23. It affecteth not only the lower parts of the ſoul, which are leſs pure, but the pureſt alſo, and moſt ſupreme; even the ſpirit of the mind, the boſom as well as the bottom of the ſoul.

And of the joynts and marrow] the minima and intima, the leaſt things and the moſt ſecret.

And is a diſcerner] Gr. A curious Critick judging exactly, and telling tales of the hearers: diſcloſing the words that they ſpeak in their very bed-chambers, as 2 King. 6. 12.

Verſe 13. Neither is there any creature] No not the creature of the heart, the moſt ſecret thoughts and intentions.

That is not manifeſt in his ſight] Or in the ſight of it, that is, of the Word preached: but every the leaſt fibra, the ſmalleſt ſtring in the heart, that would eſcape the ſight of the moſt exact Anatomiſt is hereby cut up. See 1 Cor. 14. 24.

But all things are naked and open] Naked, for the out-ſide, and opened, diſſected, quartered, cleft in the back-bone (as the word here ſignifieth) for the inſide. Eraſmus rendereth it, reſupinata, making it a Metaphor from thoſe that lie with their faces upwards, that all paſſengers may ſee who they are. Theodoret readeth it, Hath the throat cut. So opened (ſay ſome others) as the entrails of a man that is anatomized, or of a beaſt that is cut up and quartered; and not only naked, as when the skin is pulled of. He uſeth a Metaphor (ſaith an Interpreter) taken from a ſheep whoſe skin is taken off, and he hanged up by the neck with his back toward the wall, and all his entrailes laid bare, and expoſed to open view. τετραχηλισμένα.

Unto the eyes of him] Or rather, of it, of the word, wherewith we have to do. The word, like a ſacrificing ſword, lits open, and as it were unridgeth the conſcience.

Verſe 14. We have a great high-prieſt] Who by a new and living way will bring us into the reſt above-mentioned. A great high-Prieſt Chriſt is, becauſe 1. Real, not typical. 2. Eternal, and needed not ſucceſſion, as Aaron. 3. Entring (not into the holy places made with hands, but) into heaven it ſelf, Heb. 9. 23.

Verſe 15. Which cannot be touched] Chriſt retaineth ſtill compaſſion, though freed from perſonal paſſion: And though freed from feeling, hath ſtill yet a fellow-feeling, Acts 9. 5. Mat. 25. 35. Trajan the Emperour being blamed by his friends for being too gentle toward all, anſwered that being an Emperour he would now be ſuch toward private men, as he once, when he was a private man, wiſhed that the Emperour ſhould be towards him. Chriſt hath loſt nothing of his wonted pity by his exaltation in heaven. Manet compaſſio etiam cum impaſſibilitate.

Tempted] Or, Pierced thorow. Luther was a piercing preacher, and met with every mans temptations: and being once demanded how he could do ſo? Mine own manifold temptations (ſaid he) and experiences are the cauſe thereof: for from his tender years he was much beaten and exerciſed with ſpiritual conflicts. πεπειρασμένον. Act. and Mon.

Yet without ſin] Tempted Chriſt was to ſin, but not into ſin.

Verſe 16. Let us therefore come boldly] In the ſenſe of ſin to wrap our ſelves in Chriſts righteouſneſs, and ſo go boldly to the throne of grace; this (ſaith a reverend man) is an honour to Chriſt our high-prieſt. Luther prayd reverently to God, and yet boldly as to his friend.

Throne of grace] The altar of incenſe ſtood againſt the mercy ſeat, but yet there was a veyl between them. We when we pray, muſt act our faith upon the throne of grace, though we ſee it not.

Chap.

Digitized by Google

Chap. V.

Verſe 1. Both gifts]

OF things without life.

And ſacrifices] Of living creatures.

For ſins] Chriſt, as God, was the Prieſt and Altar to offer up and to ſanctifie the ſacrifice: And, as God-man, he was the ſacrifice: for the Church was purchaſed by the blood of God, Acts 20. 28. A bloody Spouſe ſhe was unto him, as in a ſenſe it may be ſaid.

μετριοπαθεῖν. Verſe 2. Who can have compaſſion] Or, Bear any thing with reaſon, and not be eaſily angry, but ſhew as much mercy as is meet for his, whether they have ignorantly offended, or upon deliberation. They cannot commit more, then he can remit.

He is compaſſed with infirmity] Chriſt was compaſſed with that which we call miſerable, not that we call ſinful infirmity.

Verſe 3. He ought as for the people] A Prieſt is a perſon by Gods appointment taken from amongſt men, and for men to offer gifts and ſacrifices for ſin in their and his own behalf.

Verſe 4. And no man taketh, &c.] Or if he do, he ſhall ſmoke and ſmart for it, as did Nadab and Abihu, Uzzah and Uzziah,] &c. In phyſicis aer non facit ſeipſum ignem, ſed fit à ſuperiori: as Aquinas noteth upon this text. No man might come uncalled to the King of Perſia upon pain of death. What then ſhall become of ſuch as come without a call to the King of heaven? Chriſt would not let the devil preach him, Mark 1. Quia extra vocationem (as one well noteth) becauſe he had no calling to ſuch an office.

Verſe 5. Glorified not himſelf] As the Pope doth, who will needs be ſtiled Pontifex maximus, the greateſt high-Prieſt (whereas Chriſt is called only the great, and not greateſt high-Prieſt, Heb. 4. 14.) Pope Hilbebrand eſpecially, whom when no man would advance to Peters chair, he gat up himſelf. Quis enim melius de me judicare poteſt quam ego? ſaid he, Who can better judge of me then my ſelf? Heidfeld.

But he that ſaid unto him] He glorified him, or made him high Prieſt.

To day have I begotten thee] Add the words following, Ask of me, &c. and the ſenſe is full. For to ask of God thoſe things that pertain to the peoples ſafety and ſalvation, is the proper office of an high-Prieſt. Chriſt as he expiated his peoples ſins by his own blood, ſo he made interceſſion for them, 1. A little afore his attachment, John 17. 1, 2, &c. 2. In the very time, when the ſacrifice was hanged up, Luke 23. 34. 3. In the heavenly Sanctuary, Heb. 9. 24.

Verſe 6. Thou art a high-Prieſt, &c.] The former proof was not ſo evident; but this puts the matter out of all queſtion. A Miniſter ſhould uſe ſound ſpeech that cannot be contradicted; that he that is of the contrary part may be aſhamed, having nothing reaſonably to oppoſe, Tit. 2. 8. The Jew would object, That Chriſt was not of the Tribe of Levi, therefore no Prieſt. The Apoſtle anſwers; yes, a Prieſt, but after another order, and proves it. This is συμβιβάζειν, collatis teſtimoniis demonſtrare, as Paul did, Acts 9. 22. to confirm and aſſert.

ἱκετηρίας. Verſe 7. Prayers and ſupplications] Gr. Deprecations, and moſt ardent requeſts, uttered with deep ſighs, hands lifted up, and manifold moans, in a moſt ſubmiſſive manner.

With ſtrong crying and tears] Be our hearts ſo hard (ſaith one) that we cannot pray for our ſelves or others? cry Conqueror tibi lachrymis Ieſu Chriſti, I cry to thee with Chriſts tears.

Unto him that was able to ſave him, &c.] Neither let any here object, That many Martyrs ſuffered with leſs ado, nay with great joy and triumph. For, 1. What were all their ſufferings to his? 2. He therefore ſuffered the worſt, that they might the better ſuffer. 3 They were lifted up with the ſenſe of Gods love, which he for preſent felt not. 4. Their bodily pains were miraculouſly mitigated; as Roſe Allen being asked by a friend, how ſhe could abide the painful burning of her hand held over a candle, ſo long till the very ſinews crackt aſunder? She ſaid, at the firſt it was ſome grief to her; but afterward, the longer ſhe burned, the leſs ſhe felt, or well near none at all. Sabina a Act. and Mon. fol. 1821.

Roman

Digitized by Google

Roman Martyr, crying out in her travel, and being asked by her keeper how she would endure the fire next day; Oh well enough, said she: for now I suffer in child-birth for my sins, Genesis 3. But then Christ shall suffer in me and support me.

And was heard in that he feared] Or, He was heard, (that is, Delivered) from his fear. For no sooner had he prayed, but he met his enemies in the face, and asked them, Whom seek ye? I am he. ἀπὸ τῆς εὐλαβείας.

Verse 8. Yet learned he obedience] He came to know by experience what a hard matter it was, thus to obey God. Schola crucis, schola lucis; Gideon by threshing the men of Succoth, taught them, Judg. 8. 7 —— 16. Gods chastisements are our advertisements. See my Treatise on Rev. 3. 19. p. 145. παθήματα μαθήματα. Nocumenta documenta.

Verse 9. And being made perfect] Or, being offered up in sacrifice, or being compleated by this experimental knowledge of passive obedience also. τελειωθείς.

The author] And finisher too, c. 12. 2. Gr. The cause, viz. by his merit and efficacy. Αἴτιος.

Verse 10. (alled] Gr. Spoken unto, called by name, or entituled an high-Priest, &c. therefore he is truly so. For persons and things are as God calleth them. προσαγορευθείς.

Verse 11. Of whom we have, &c.] The digression here begun holds on to the end of the next Chapter.

Hard to be uttered] Gr. Hard to be expounded. But difficulty doth not dishearten, but rather whet on heroick spirits to a more serious search: it doth not weaken, but waken their earnestness; nor amate, but animate them.

Seeing ye are dull] Gr. Slow-paced, and heavy-handed. Our minds are like narrow-mouthed vessels. Our Saviour therefore spake as the people could hear, like as Jacob drave as the little ones could go. νωθροὶ ἐκ νῆ & θῶ curro. Mark 6.

Verse 12. Ye have need that one] But people plead their rotten charters of age and marriage against Catechism.

